Education at center of gathering $$$ storm

Gov. Tom Vilsack threatens to veto a budget bill that would cut education funding.

By Glen Leyden
The Daily Iowan

As the Iowa House prepares to vote this week on next year's budget, Gov. Tom Vilsack says he will not sign the bill unless legislators agree to increase the funding for education.

The current proposal includes such a dramatic decrease in educational funding that the quality of education among levels of higher education would significantly suffer, the governor said.

"The cuts hit the UI especially hard, and I would expect some immediate impact on quality and a significant tuition increase after next year," he said. The House is expected to vote Tuesday on the proposal to reduce by $5.4 million the funds allocated to the UI general operating budget. The decrease would force the UI to operate on $305.5 million in the 2001 fiscal year instead of the $310 million allocated for this year.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman estimates that the UI would also see a shortfall of $4 million to $5 million in salaries under the House subcommittee's proposal.

While Vilsack says he would veto the bill in its current form, it may be altered before reaching his desk. The bill is expected to pass the Iowa House, but both Democrats and Republicans in the Senate have expressed concerns over the shortfalls in education and are expected to make modifications before sending the bill to the governor.

If the bill is not passed by the end of session — April 18 — the Legislature would have to return for a special session in June.

Republicans have argued that there has not been a decrease in funding to the state's public universities. The UI was granted an almost $5.3 million increase in funding from last year.

But Democrats argue that a change in this year's allocation process is working as "smoke and mirrors" to cover a budget cut.

In previous years, the education budget consisted of two bills, one that included the educational budget items and a second bill for salaries. This year, the education budget was combined in one bill, including salaries, for the first time, said Rep. Todd Taylor, D-Cedar Rapids.

When this year's budget, which includes salaries, is compared with last year's, it appears to be an increase.

"By adding the two bills together, we say that Republicans are masking a cut," he said. "The problem is we need to compare the base line budget of last year with this year's without this year's salaries."

By consolidating the education budget, the UI appears to be getting more money, but the base budget is actually $5.4 million less than last year, said Ann Rhodes, the UI vice president for university relations.

"Ideally, we would like the base level to be the same as last year and to receive full salary coverage for an increase for all employees," she said.

The UI is currently under contract to Group whistles foul on college athletics

The "Drake Group" wants to clean up college sports by, among other moves, eliminating scholarships.

By Andrew T. Dawson
The Daily Iowan

A group of university faculty members from across the nation met this weekend in Des Moines in an effort to clean up college athletics by cutting the length of schedules and financial scholarships for athletes and removing the title "student-athlete."

While UI faculty members were not in attendance at the conference, which was held at Drake University, Jon Carlson, the president of the UI Faculty Senate and a professor of law, said Iowa athletes are treated no differently from students involved in other UI-sponsored extracurricular activities.

The "Drake Group," named for the location of its first meeting, plans to rejuvenate "100 years of failed effort to clean up college sports," said Jon Ericson, a rhetoric and communications professor at Drake and the founder of the group.

During the two-day meeting, the group drafted a five-part proposal intended to initiate policy reform at some universities. The list will be sent to Faculty Senates at NCAA Division I universities and to various academic organizations for support, Ericson said.

"College athletics has been transformed into a multibillion-dollar industry that has compromised the academic mission of the university," he said.

The Drake group hopes to restore academic integrity, fulfill faculty members' obligations, and protect the welfare of all students, Ericson said.

The proposals include eliminating the term "student-athlete," reducing the number of games played during a season, public disclosure of all student academic information with the exception of individual grades, eliminating athletic scholarships and

Student has surgery after fire-escape fall

An ISU freshman undergoes back surgery at the UIHC Sunday after an incident at Burge.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa State University freshman is in the UI Hospitals and Clinics after falling from a second-floor fire escape on the southwest side of Burge Residence Hall on March 25.

UI officials have not released the name of the 18-year old student because they are not sure whether his family has been notified, said Ann Rhodes, the UI vice president for university relations. The student had surgery on his back at UIHC Sunday, she said, and his injuries are not life-threatening.

At the time of the incident, UI freshman and Burge resident Joshua Corwin was walking with friends behind Burge when he heard a "big smack on the ground like somebody fell down."

"At first, I thought it was a skateboarder or basketball player who fell," he said. "I looked over and saw a guy in a white T-shirt just lying there underneath the fire escape with no shoes on."

Corwin said he approached the man, who was conscious, with his eyes and mouth open. The man said he had fallen from the fire escape, Corwin said.

Corwin ran into the Burge lobby to call the paramedics, who responded to the incident at 7:06 p.m., said Sgt. Steve Stange of the UI Department of Public Safety.

The incident remains under investigation, Rhodes said.

"The student is being treated for his injuries and has been unable to talk about the incident," she said.

"We don't know if it was accidental or intentional. Sometimes that is a

Putin appears to squeak by in Russian election vote

Boris Yeltsin's hand-picked heir apparently avoids a runoff election against the communists.

By Barry Renfrew
Associated Press

MOSCOW — Vladimir Putin looked set for victory earlier today in Russia's presidential election, after a surprisingly strong showing by the Communists threatened to force him into a runoff vote.

While Putin would almost certainly win a second round, it would have been a humbling setback for the former KGB officer who has soared from nowhere to become the nation's most-popular politician in a few months. Putin's call to strengthen the authority of the state and the security forces worried some Russians, who fear the country's democratic reforms could be rolled back.

With 91 percent of the vote from Sunday's election counted by early today, Putin had 52 percent of the vote, enough to ensure a victory and avoid a second round against the next-highest vote winner. Communist chief Gennady Zyuganov was second with 29.6 percent. The state-run RTR television network predicted an outright Putin victory with no runoff vote. Liberal economist Grigory Yavlinsky was projected to take third place with approximately 7 percent of the vote.

Zyuganov accused the government of falsifying the results, saying the Communist vote was more than 40 percent. There were no immediate reports on the fairness of the election from international monitors.

American Beauty mops up in Academy Awards.

LOS ANGELES — American Beauty, a dark comedy about suburban alienation and family dysfunction, won five Academy Awards Sunday night, including Best Picture, director Sam Mendes and actor Kevin Spacey.

"This is the highlight of my day. I hope it is not all downhill from here," Spacey said jokingly, a racy reference to the film's opening. It was his second Oscar: He won for best supporting actor of 1995 for The Usual Suspects.

American Beauty's Alan Ball picked up the Oscar for original screenplay, and Conrad L. Hall won as the film's cinematographer.

Hilary Swank, who portrayed a woman passing as a man in Boys Don't Cry, won as Best Actress. "Everyone put their heart and their soul into this movie," Swank said.

She thanked the real-life inspiration for her role, Brandon Teena, saying: "His legacy lives on through our movie to remind us to always be ourselves, to follow our hearts, to not conform. I pray for the day when we not only accept our differences but we actually celebrate our diversity."

Michael Caine, the kindly orphanage headmaster in The Cider House Rules, won his second Best Supporting Actor Oscar at the 72nd Academy Awards. Angelina Jolie, the disruptive mental patient in Girl, Interrupted, won for supporting actress — a generation after her father took

THE PRICE IS RIGHT

You think a gallon of gas is expensive? Here are a few things Autoweek magazine brought up.

• Diet Snapple: 16 oz. for $1.29 equals $10.32 per gallon

• Lipton Ice Tea: 16 oz. for $1.19 equals $9.52 per gallon

• Gatorade: 20 oz. for $1.59 equals $10.18 per gallon

• Ocean Spray: 16 oz. for $1.25 equals $10 per gallon

• Quart of milk: 16 oz. for $1.59 equals $12.72 per gallon

• STP Brake Fluid: 12 oz. for $3.15 equals $33.60 per gallon

• Vick's Nyquil: 6 oz. for $8.35 equals $178.13 per gallon

• Pepto Bismol: 4 oz. for $3.85 equals $123.20 per gallon

• Whiteout: 7 oz. for $1.39 equals $25.41 per gallon

• Scope: 1.5 oz. for $9.99 equals $84.48 per gallon

• Evian water: 9 oz. for $1.49 equals $21.19 per gallon

The next time you're at the gas pump, be glad your car doesn't run on Nyquil.

Ophthalmology celebrates 'Vision'

As part of its 75th anniversary celebration, the UI Department of Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences, in cooperation with the Iowa City Area Science Center, will host the National Eye Institute exhibit, "Vision." The free exhibit will be displayed at the Old Capitol Town Center April 2 through June 25 during regular mall hours.

"Vision" is a 2,000-square-foot interactive science exhibit that appeals to audiences of all ages. Developed by leading vision scientists to honor the eye institute on its 25th anniversary, the exhibit highlights the accomplishments of vision research and explores the translation of pioneering research into the treatment of disease. The eye institute supports more than 75 percent of the vision research in the United States, including research conducted at the UI.

UI riverbank to get a makeover near IMU

The university plans to spend $90,000 on landscaping.

By Robin Wright
The Daily Iowan

The UI plans to spend $90,000 this spring and summer for landscaping along the Iowa River in an effort to improve its appearance and increase wildlife.

The landscaping, which will begin in early May, will take place along the river from the IMU pedestrian bridge south to the CRANDIC railroad bridge.

Bob Brooks, the head of landscape architecture in the UI Facilities Services Group, said the work should be completed by early September.

"There are two main reasons behind this plan. The first is for bio-engineering purposes, and the second is to make the area aesthetically pleasing to visitors," he said.

The landscaping will include planting vegetation that is 2-3 feet in height in an effort to attract birds and butterflies to the area. In addition to being visually pleasant, Brooks said, the project will control erosion and function as a filter system for runoff.

The UI estimates that the project will cost approximately $90,000, he said. A $6,000 grant from the Iowa Valley Reservoir Construction and Development Group will go toward part of the cost, and the rest will be covered by the building-renewal fund.

"The building-renewal fund is the traditional source for projects of this kind," said Richard Gibson, the UI associate vice president for the facilities group. "I told the campus-planning committee that there's no guarantee that we will get this funding because of the budget cuts, but I did recommend it."

In addition to the plans for the river, the committee announced the selection of construction firms for the construction of the new journalism building and of the dining area of Currier and Quadrangle Halls.

OPN Architects Inc. of Cedar Rapids will be responsible for the journalism facility, and Rohrbach-Carlson PC, 325 E. Washington St., will handle the dorm cafeteria restoration.

Gibson also presented plans for a new Honors Center and a career center. The structures will be equal in size; a Des Moines firm will assist in planning for them this week.

"Both will be student-oriented services," Gibson said. "The career center will house the Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office and will be across from the Chemistry Building and Old Brick. The Honors Center is slated to be tied in some manner to Daum Hall."

Speaker decries Colombia's 40-year war

A traveling lecture series seeks to promote awareness of the problems in Colombia.

By Avian Carrasquillo
The Daily Iowan

More than 40 people packed a Schaeffer Hall classroom last night to hear Luis Alfonso Velazquez Rico, the director of judicial affairs for Colombia's largest federation of unions, speak about the recent civil unrest in the country.

Rico's lecture focused on three major points affecting Colombia: economics, politics and anti-narcotics action.

"Colombia is in the worst recession in its history," he said. "We're at 70 percent employment. Only about 8 or 9 percent of the population has a stable income."

Colombia has been in a civil war for more than 40 years, and Rico said he hopes a cease fire can be initiated.

"The United States has to stop giving aid directly to the military, which only adds to the conflict," he said. "I urge you to support a substantial positive aid package for Colombia including humanitarian relief for people displaced by violence, crop-substitution programs for small farmers to switch from coca to legal crops and investigations into human-rights violations and drug trafficking."

The lecture series, titled "Colombia Civilians Under Fire," has traveled throughout various U.S. cities, including Chicago and Washington, D.C.

The series was partly sponsored by Amnesty International, a human-rights organization.

UI senior Audra Slocum joined Amnesty International as a freshman because of her interest in human rights. She is now the co-ordinator of the UI chapter of Amnesty International.

"We became familiar with the violence present in Latin America through our own research," Slocum said. "A number of our members have lived and worked in Latin America, so there was a special interest within our own group to let others know about the situation."

One of the main organizers of the lecture, Maria Hope of the Office for Study Abroad, said part of the lecture tour's purpose was to lobby officials.

"Ultimately 'Colombia Civilians Under Fire' is about pressuring public officials to urge Colombian officials to push reform, getting support to the social groups, to the labor groups and to the citizens who have stayed and want to make it work," she said.

Rhythm, salsa dancing create sizzle in IMU

Salsa dancing and Latin culture attract many during Gusto Latino on March 25.

By Rupa Shenoy
The Daily Iowan

Dancing to the rhythm and percussion of a Latin beat, Cedar Rapids resident Natja Guzman described salsa dancing as an opportunity to "put the music inside and feel release."

More than 500 people attended Gusto Latino on March 25 in the IMU. The event featured the music of Orquesta de Jazz y Salsa Alto Maiz.

For Guzman, who recently moved to Cedar Rapids, Gusto was one of the first events she has encountered in Iowa that reminded her of home. Salsa is so much a part of her history that she cannot recall when she began dancing, she said.

"I'm Puerto Rican. This dancing is in my blood. It gets into you and tells you why you have to move and how — from the waist down," she said. "A lot of people learn the steps, but you actually have to put the music inside of you to know."

Events such as Gusto Latino let people see and experience culture so they don't have to rely on stereotypes, Guzman said.

Steve Grismore, the guitar player for the Orquesta de Jazz, said his band has received compliments from the Latin community. Many people say they feel reminded of home because the music and its dances are a part of Latin culture, he said. Grismore said this is why the band feels a responsibility to the music and its tradition.

"It's nice to expose white-bread

America to something more hot, spicy, sensual," he said. "Our music is about (salsa) dancing — it is the premise of our music."

Salsa music and dance are appealing because of their sensual nature, Grismore said.

"The dance movements themselves are about sex and can sometimes be intimidating," he said. "But everyone danced last night. Not everyone knew how, and that's great. It's the spirit, the idea, that you feel the music and it motivates you."

Cedar Rapids resident Bob Mitchell met his wife, Millie, at a ballroom 53 years ago, and Gusto Latino let them make use of the formal dance lessons they began 15 years ago. Salsa dancing, he said, is among the most exciting of dance forms.

"This is such high-energy fun. It makes us twitch, the ancient people that we are," Mitchell said. "Old people like to dance, too, and this music keeps us in good health and spirits."

The International Crossroads Community, which organized the event, decorated until 10 p.m. on March 23, then began again at 11 a.m. the following morning until the event began, Community RA Chris Matthews said. He said he considered the event an incredible success.

UI senior Samantha Chavis, who came for the music and dancing, agreed.

"I don't think the focus is on strict learning of culture. People aren't supposed to take this seriously," she said. "It's just fun. It's about a sexy rhythm."

CITY BRIEFS

Man arrested in alleged kidnap, sexual assault of a minor

Iowa City police charged Alexander Lemus, 30, with third-degree sexual assault and first-degree kidnapping on March 24 after DNA evidence allegedly implicated him in a June 4, 1999, incident.

At approximately 10:30 p.m. on June 4, an Iowa City female juvenile was approached by a man, whom police allege to be Lemus, near the intersection of Riverside Drive and Benton Street, according to police reports.

The suspect allegedly placed an unknown object behind the victim's back and forced her into his car. He then took her to the City Carton parking lot, near the intersection of Capitol and Benton streets, where he sexually assaulted the victim and released her, according to police reports.

Physical evidence was recovered from the victim at Mercy Hospital. It was then sent to the Division of Criminal Investigations laboratory in Des Moines. The DCI lab determined that DNA recovered from evidence matched Lemus's, according to police reports.

Sexual assaults are fairly common occurrences in the Iowa City area, said Iowa City police Sgt. Brian Krei. Although the June 4 incident involved a juvenile and did not necessarily involve alcohol, he said, college women need to be careful when drinking is involved to safeguard against sexual assault.

"Don't trust just anyone to take a friend home, not even a casual acquaintance," Krei said. "Go in groups and escort her yourself."

Laying pipe to connect Seamans Center

Sewer line work will force the closure of a section of Capitol Street for the majority of the week.

Construction on connecting the Seamans Center to the Iowa City storm sewer system will begin today. The work will close Capitol Street between Burlington and Washington streets.

Despite construction, the west entrance to the Old Capitol Town Center and parking ramp will remain open. Pedestrians are advised to exert caution if traveling near or through the construction area.

Officials hope that the paving of the street will be completed by Thursday; they plan to reopen the street Friday.

Local group donates $50,000 to aid Englert coalition

The Englert Civic Theatre Group will use part of a $50,000 donation from the Iowa City Community Theatre to hire a management and consulting company.

The donation will allow the fund-raisers to direct all contributions from the public to the purchase and renovation of the theater and not managerial costs, said Justine Zimmer, the vice president of the Englert board of directors.

"This is going to make the public feel better, and it was very generous of the Iowa City Community Theatre," she said.

Daryl Woodson, the president of the Englert board, said it has been working with Compass Facility Management Inc. for more than a month.

The company, based in Ames, serves the management needs of smaller-market public assembly facilities such as the Englert Theatre.

The Englert group hired an in-state company because of the project's "community factor," Zimmer said. Approximately $24,000 of the donation will be designated for the company, she said.

The remaining portion of the $50,000 will be directed towards the purchase of the building, said Bob Hamel, a member of the board of directors for the Community Theatre and the Englert group.

"Our management unanimously supported the donation, and it was pretty much all of our financial resources," he said.

The Englert group's fund raising will "kick-off" on May 1, Zimmer said. Members of the group need to raise $500,000 in eight months in order to buy the theater from the city.

UI may take a walk on the wildlife side

Representatives of the UI Recreational Services will meet Friday with a firm in Des Moines to begin a feasibility study for a new wildlife facility.

David Conrads, the UI project coordinator in recreational services and one of the department's officials going to Des Moines, said the facility will be used for elementary education programs.

"Currently, we have 1,300 kids coming to the Wildlife Camp and 25 schools participating in our programs at local shelters," he said. "With the new facility, students can stay for a week instead of having to bus them back and forth each day."

The estimated cost of the facility is between $6 million and $10 million. It will have the capacity to house approximately 160 elementary school students with 10 classrooms and 20 "bunkrooms," he said. The facility will be located in the UI Nature Area near Lake Macbride on land the UI already owns, he said.

Jeanne Bancroft, the science coordinator for the Iowa City school district, is optimistic about the facility.

"The facility has tremendous potential to be beneficial not only for Iowa City but for the whole region," she said.

Kitchen fire forces family to motel

■ An unattended stove may be the cause of a fire that could cost $20,000 in damages.

By Christoph Trappe
The Daily Iowan

An unattended stove was to blame for a Coralville apartment fire early Sunday evening.

At approximately 7:30 p.m. the Coralville Fire Department was called to 404 Sixth St. Apt. D3 because of a burning stove. The fire caused approximately $20,000 in damages.

"We extinguished the fire within 30 seconds after walking in the front door," said Bill Honing, a Coralville firefighter. "The fire never even left the kitchen."

The fire most likely started because something on the stove was left unattended, said Dave Stannard, the assistant Coralville fire chief.

"The pan on the stove went on fire, and then the kitchen caught fire," he said. "They definately won't be able to live there at least today (Sunday) and tomorrow (Monday)."

The three-member family planned to spend Sunday night in a Coralville motel, Stannard said.

The tenants had only been away from the apartment for approximately an hour before the fire started, said Wugen Dai, a resident of the apartment.

"We just got done making a bottle for our baby before we left," he said.

Nobody was injured during the fire, but neighbors had to spend more than one hour outside. People were huddled up outside the apartment complex, protecting themselves with blankets.

"When we realized there was a fire, we hammered on their (the Dais') door, but no one answered," said Derek Johnson, a resident of 404 Sixth St. "Then I called 911."

Coralville police arrived at the scene at 7:31 p.m., according to a Johnson County/Coralville police dispatcher. The Fire Department arrived at the scene approximately three minutes later, said Coralville police Sgt. Shane Kron.

"I guess a firefighter lives in the building, and when we got here, he had people moving out of the building," Kron said.

The Fire Department escorted residents of neighboring apartments back into the building and made sure there was no further danger, Stannard said.

Gaps remain in Syria, Israel peace negotiations

President Clinton and Hafez Assad fail to reach an agreement to restart the Syrian/Israeli talks.

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

GENEVA — During three hours of face-to-face negotiations Sunday, President Clinton and Syrian President Hafez Assad failed to nail down an agreement to restart negotiations between Israel and Syria for a landmark peace treaty. "The differences are significant and important, and, obviously, more work needs to be done to bridge them," said White House Press Secretary Joe Lockhart.

He characterized the meeting between Clinton and Assad — their first face-to-face summit in six years — as "very useful." But at the same time, he said, "we don't believe it would be productive" for Syrian-Israeli talks to resume at this point.

"It is impossible to predict when those talks might resume," he said.

Assad "articulated his position clearly and forcefully" throughout two businesslike sessions, Lockhart said. Clinton spoke to Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak both before and after the Assad meeting, he said.

Syrian presidential spokesman Jubran Kourieh said that during the talks, Assad stressed the importance of Syria's long-standing demand for an Israeli pullback to the country's 1967 borders. "Since yesterday, nothing earth-shattering happened in the peace process," Kourieh said afterward. The summit discussed pending issues and the peace process and the "obstacles that Israel has put up and is still putting up," he said. In Jerusalem, Deputy Defense Minister Ephraim Sneh said in a telephone interview that the main sticking point in Geneva was Syria's demand for a prior commitment to cede the strategic Golan Heights plateau.

NATION BRIEF

Hoop scenes: Boilermakers boil over

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A mob of Purdue University students overturned Dumpsters and lit small bonfires March 25 to vent their anger that the Boilermakers' loss in the NCAA basketball tournament. At one point, police fired tear gas into the crowd to break it up. Eleven people were arrested, said State Police Sgt. Shana Kennedy. Most faced charges of public intoxication and disorderly conduct. "A bunch of people came by the residence hall, singing, 'Join the riot,'" said Christina Matthews, 18, as she walked along with the crowd. "Now we're walking around, not doing much of anything. It's kind of a quiet riot." The disturbance followed a riot on campus on March 23, after the Boilermakers beat Gonzaga to advance to the regional final game on March 25. That night, police fired tear gas into a crowd of students who set fires and damaged cars. Four students were arrested. On March 25, disappointed with the team's 64-60 loss to Wisconsin, students tore down a couple of utility poles, lit a sofa on fire at a campus intersection, and overturned a Dumpster, while officers watched on the ground and in helicopters overhead.

Seeing the light through; open minds necessary, please

On my office wall, I have a quote from Virginia Woolf's diary. It begins, "Now, is life very solid, or very shifting?" A few days ago, I glanced up at the quote and thought about the movie Boys Don't Cry, coming to the Bijou this weekend.

Though I haven't yet seen Boys Don't Cry or the documentary film The Brandon Teena Story, I remember the incident upon which both are based. In 1993, Brandon Teena was raped and subsequently killed by two of his former friends in Falls City, Neb. Think about that — two of your friends raping you, then killing you. Why? From what I know, it's because the two guys found out that Teena was not their sort of man.

Teena was a transsexual, a person who had been born appearing female but who was living as he saw himself — as a man. The two guys couldn't handle it — especially because Teena was dating one of their ex-girlfriends. So, reacting in a way that their training told them was manly, they raped him. Teena, courageously, reported the rape. The sheriff called him a "freak" and told the two guys that Teena was filing charges. The men, Tom Nissen and John Lotter, hunted Teena down. They shot the two people Teena was staying with, and they shot Teena: a triple murder. Now, the fictionalized account of Brandon's life and death, Oscar-nominated Boys Don't Cry, is sweeping the country.

The film makes me ask: What is transsexuality? What does transgender mean? Why do trans people sometimes find themselves victims of horrendous violence?

I checked the Internet for more info. The news was depressingly similar to Teena's story. At the GenderPAC Web site (www.gpac.org/iyf/), I read many headlines — about people getting fired, attacked, and, often, brutally murdered.

Then I went to an article called "Boys Do Cry" at www.motherjones.com. Author Noelle Howey quotes a 1999 study by the National Coalition of Anti-Violence Programs that found the number of transgendered victims of hate crimes increased by 49 percent from 1997 to 1998.

SUZI STEFFEN

Trans means across. Hence, transsexuality means across sex — like Teena, female to male or, like former UI Professor Deirdre McCloskey, male to female. Transgendered means across gender — performing a gendered role or looking like a gender that you have not been culturally assigned.

The whole thing seems pretty clear — and non-threatening — to me. But I'm lucky; I have some personal connections. My former massage therapist was born female and is now just about the most attractive man I've ever met. I watched his transformation, and it was wondrous; I'd be narrow-minded and ignorant to think otherwise.

Speaking of narrow-mindedness, I come to violence. Why do some people react to trans folks with such violence? What could impel men such as Teena's killers to murder?

I believe it's fear. The men who murdered Teena were afraid, I imagine, that because they had been Teena's friends, others would see them as less masculine. Plus, Teena was with one of their ex-girlfriends. They were furious. And they went on the attack.

In an interview on Salon.com, Greta Olafsdottir, one of the filmmakers of The Brandon Teena Story, explains that to the young women Teena dated, "he was so different from the men they had been with before ... he listened to them, he didn't push sex ... he treated them with respect."

Susan Muska, the other filmmaker, explains the desire of most transsexual folks to be seen simply as the sex they cross into. Teena, says Muska, "wanted to be a straight guy, to live his life, and that was it."

And that should have been it. But small, sweet Teena was threatening because his way of being a straight guy was not like Nissen and Lotter's. Teena's self-definition was solid — he knew where he stood — but his definition shifted theirs, and they weren't interested in this seismic shift.

"We are successive and continuous — we human beings," says Virginia Woolf. Teena's self-identity was successive and continuous. But to his killers, it was broken.

Teena didn't want to be a hero. But as a martyr, perhaps he can inspire us. I'm going to see Boys Don't Cry this weekend; I'd encourage as many of you to see it as can crowd into the Bijou. Because we need to know how to deal with our lives, both solid and shifting. We need to learn, as Woolf concludes, to "see the light through."

Making something out of nothing

There are two things that do not go well together: the UI and change. Whenever the UI contemplates any sort of change, let it be big or small, people throw tantrums. In the last week, UI students and alumni have been upset over the new Tiger Hawk logo, and for no logical reason.

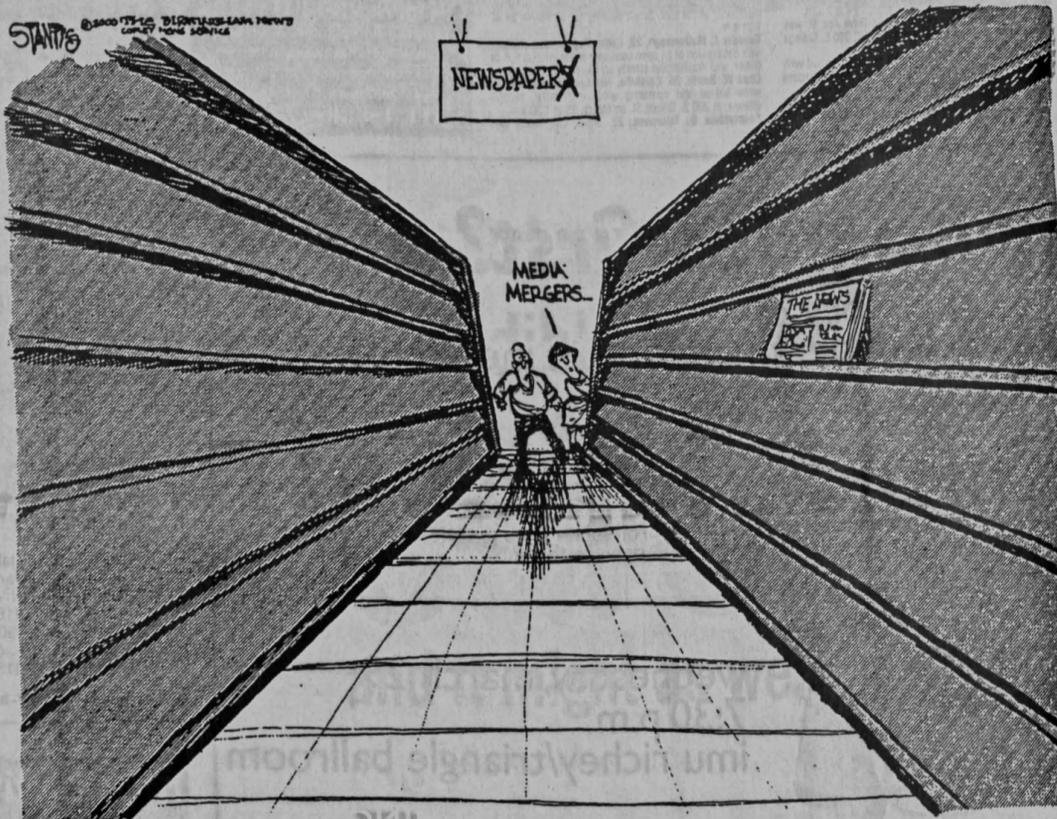

First, the make-over was not drastic in any way whatsoever. The Tiger Hawk in all its Hayden Fry glory still remains a symbol of UI athletics and is easily recognizable as a modern relative of Fry/Tiger Hawk's original creation. Had the UI's extensive search resulted in an incredibly drastic change, an uproar might be understandable. But the new logo, by Matt Ellison, the design artist in the UI men's Athletics Department, only has minimal alterations. The two are almost identical, except the newer one has more jagged lines and looks more contemporary. People across the country will still think of the Iowa Hawkeyes when they see the updated Tiger Hawk.

Another reason the change doesn't matter is that it is just a logo, a symbol. A logo can not be responsible for athletic excellence, or lack thereof. A logo change is not going to bring bad luck to the Iowa sports teams — and besides, we can only improve at this point. Teams are only as good as their players and coaches, not the little picture on their helmets or the mascots running around the court (just look at Ohio State's Buckeye or UNC's Tarheel).

The UI community needs to accept this small change and move on. There a thousand more important things to complain about — such as the tuition increase. Let's not waste anymore energy complaining about something that truly doesn't matter in the long run. It is just a picture.

Underwater tales from a room just off the Dubuque St. exit

The walls of my Mayflower dorm room shake with the resounding vocal stylings of my neighbor's Britney Spears collection. Another neighbor lies asleep on a futon, his constant place of existence through each day of class. My roommate, Kathryn, and I sit on our couch crying, staring at the vast ocean that used to be our living room carpet. All is well here in yet another typical day of first-floor Mayflower life.

My horror began with a call from the Mayflower front desk the morning of March 17. I was enjoying my last day of Spring Break, so one can imagine my surprise in picking up the telephone and having the desk person tell me that our room had been overtaken by flood water. No, I don't mean a flood from the Iowa River. I'm talking about a ruptured pipe above our couch.

I drove back to Iowa City that afternoon to find an army of equipment lined up on the sidewalk outside our door, including a Wet Vac nearly as tall as me. A maintenance worker stood cutting a ceiling tile in front of our door.

He asked if I lived in the room. I peered through the door and was dreadfully sorry to admit I did.

Upon entering our humble abode, I encountered yet another maintenance person standing on a ladder, replacing ceiling tiles among a sea of plaster bits and chunks. I turned to lean against my precious black chair.

Surprise ... inches of water sitting in the middle of it. This was when I broke down. The ceiling-tile man informed me that housekeeping would shampoo our carpet and clean the mildew off our walls. I mustered up the strength to nod and left the room.

Housekeeping never came Friday afternoon. Or Saturday. Hey, I didn't mind washing the walls, but I've never been a carpet-cleaning-connoisseur, and our floor was not getting any drier. I drove home to retrieve a dehumidifier and box fan from my parents to make an attempt to at least get the water out of the carpet. Pipe water, you know, leaves an interesting film on a carpet ... and a funky smell too.

On Sunday afternoon, my roommate ran into our assistant hall manager. She was very upset by the condition of our room and invited him to have a look. As shoes squished while crossing the carpet, my roommate encouraged him to kneel down and smell the floor. He did. Upon regaining his senses, he assured us it would be taken care of the next morning.

But, the fun did not stop there. Upon opening our coat closet, we encountered walls full of ugly mildew. We started removing items from the closet, and in turn discovered the largest mildew colony in North America. We decided to take matters into our own hands and made a trip to Target, buying more than $50 of cleaning supplies.

We bathed our apartment for nearly three hours Sunday evening, getting nowhere closer to a sanitary living environment. I finally gave up on the genocide of the mildew colony, went to the front desk, and asked that the housekeeping people take a look at the closet when they came to do the carpet. (I left our now half-used bottle of mildew remover sitting on the closet shelf. I want to be as much help as possible.)

They came to clean our carpet, but the mildew colony continues to prosper. I think it is even constructing a resort where our laundry detergent used to be. I called the front desk to say that I wanted this closet clean before my roommate and I wind up in the hospital with some weird disease. I was told someone would be down.

Hours later, I was still waiting on a stained sofa with my dirty, wet socks up on a stool. Our closet doors leaned against the window. The dehumidifier and fan were running at top speed. But I could still hear Britney blaring. Whoa, a knock on the door. What do you know? Housekeeping. The fun never stops in Mayflower.

On the SPOT

How do you feel about the ISU men's basketball team losing?

"I don't really care. I'm a die-hard Hawks fan."

"I thought it would be good for Iowa State if it won. I was disappointed that it lost — even though I'm a Hawkeye fan."

"I like to see the Cyclones lose. I like the Big Ten over the Big 12 anytime."

"I totally don't care. I think that sports don't belong in schools. Schools shouldn't have to pay for sports. It's not relevant to university life."

"I was kind of sad because they were crying, but other than that, I don't really feel anything. They had a shot to go to the Final Four — so that's sad."

Legislators debate education money

give some employees a specified pay increase each year, but if the UI salary budget is under-funded, the UI may have lower increases for others or freeze hiring possibilities, she said.

Rep. Teresa Garman, R-Ames, said there is no difference in the number of bills and the reduced increase from last year is necessary.

"When you don't have the money, you can't spend it," she said. "We were overzealous last year, and we have to tighten our belts this year."

Important items, such as quality education and keeping young Iowans in state, are jeopardized by the proposed cuts, Taylor said.

"Once you develop an institution to be top notch, it takes money and attention to keep it going, but it's worth it," he said. "Vilsack has had the theme of keeping Iowans in Iowa and providing higher-paying opportunities for them, but these won't be available without top-notch higher educational institutions."

Taylor says he expects to see programs cut and double-digit tuition increases if the current budget is passed.

"The budget is less than what the governor recommended, but it is still higher than last year's dollars," said Rep. Bob Brunkhorst, R-Waverly.

Legislators are not ignoring educational concerns, he said. This year's education budget increases spending for K-12 schooling and teacher salaries, he said. Changes in the handling of administration and consolidation of programs are the top priorities before there is a need for a tuition increase, Brunkhorst said.

Rep. Carmine Boal, R-Ankeny, said the 1.5 percent decrease in areas from last year can be handled.

"It may delay some projects and increase tuition, but we have had regular increases in the tuition, anyway," she said.

In past years Iowa had surpluses, but tax cuts and other spending have limited this year's budget, Boal said.

"We had to scale back for the past year, but I believe (the UI) can find the money, but it will need to prioritize," she said.

Putin squeaks by in Russian elections

RUSSIA ELECTION

"They have set up a zone of blanket fraud to cheat citizens," Zyuganov said.

Putin looked likely to fall well short of his campaign's hopes for a huge victory and a strong mandate for his call to impose strong government at home and to revive Russia as a global power.

Putin's campaign may have suffered from the widespread assumption that he would win, convincing many of his supporters that there was no need to vote. But the fairly strong vote for Zyuganov was also seen as a protest by Russians unhappy about Putin's apparently inevitable victory.

Putin, looking relaxed, said on Sunday that he was confident of victory as he voted at a Moscow polling station. "Tomorrow is Monday, a hard day, and I will have to go to work," he said.

Putin later acknowledged the Communists had done well despite their cash-strapped campaign and that his government would have to take popular discontent into account.

"That means that our policy must be more balanced, take into account the existing realities and aim at increasing living standards," he told a news conference.

The tough, man-of-action image that Putin cultivates appeals to many Russians, tired of the uncertainty and mayhem of the final years of former President Boris Yeltsin. Putin has promised to end massive corruption, revive the economy after years of recession, and restore the political and military influence that Moscow wielded before the Soviet collapse.

"I'm tired of all this disorder," said Vladimir Prishchev, a pensioner casting his ballot for Putin in Russia's Pacific port city of Vladivostok, where graft is rampant and life miserable for most people.

"When Putin takes charge of something, he takes it to the end."

Some Russians, particularly liberals, fear that Putin may trample Russia's fragile democracy and restore the iron control the secret police enforced during the Soviet era.

But some Russian reformers and Western officials and businessmen have praised Putin as a pragmatic reformer who will restore stability in Russia and improve people's lives by making reforms work.

With his trademark poker face, Putin comes across as stern and colorless, often cold. He is described often as resembling the archetypal "chekist" — secret policeman — which appeals to many Russians, who believe tough government alone can clean up the country and restore stability.

Putin insists that he is a democrat, but he has been vague about his plans beyond stressing the need for strong government. Some analysts say Putin has few specific plans because of his rapid rise to power, and it may be months before his intentions are clear. Nor is Putin likely to turn things around quickly after decades of authoritarianism and economic disintegration, they add.

Yeltsin, who stunned Russians by resigning six months early and dubbing Putin as his political heir, said Sunday he was confident that the younger leader would continue the reforms set in place after the Soviet collapse.

"Everybody is waiting for change," said Yeltsin after casting his ballot. "There will be some changes, but the main thing is the course of reform must stay, and it will stay. I am convinced of that."

Putin, who rose through a series of mostly obscure government posts in the 1990s and has never held elected office, was appointed prime minister by Yeltsin in August 1999. He gained immediate popularity for his vigorous image and his tough handling of the war in Chechnya. Putin was named acting president when Yeltsin resigned on Dec. 31.

Little is known about Putin, and extensive checks by journalists and others in recent months have produced more questions and few insights. Unlike many prominent officials, Putin has not been linked to major corruption, boosting his image in the eyes of Russians who have seen political insiders amass vast fortunes while living standards for most people plummeted.

Iowa 'clean' on athletics, an official says

COLLEGE SPORTS

removing the responsibility of academic counseling from the Athletics Departments.

Ericson said he hoped these measures will help to bring the focus of college back to the classrooms. He noted that the process of reform will not be easy and that every point in the proposal serves a significant purpose.

Ericson said students involved in athletics are treated differently from other students, something that is perpetuated by the title "student-athlete." He also said athletes are sometimes short-changed in their effort to gain a quality education.

"I'll have students in my class who come in the first day and say that they'll be missing eight classes because of games," Ericson said. "That automatically puts the student at a disadvantage. You'd think that teaching is some kind of magical act."

Ericson said that aside from missing class, athletes who attend his classes are often fatigued from practice and are unable to reach their full potential.

"There are a lot of faculty who are concerned about the situation of athletes on campus — how the student athletes are treated, are they given the opportunity to get a good education, or are they exploited (by the university)," Carlson said.

A.J. Blazek, a UI junior (junior-college transfer) and center for the football team, said the quality of UI academics was stressed heavily when he was recruited last Christmas.

"During my campus visit, I had more meetings concerning academics than athletics," he said.

"The coaches are more concerned about classes than they are about practices," Blazek said. "There has been a couple of times when they have told us to go to class first and come to practice when we are through."

Carlson said there are also UI faculty members who are drawn to the Iowa's high-quality athletics.

"From an academic standpoint, athletes are doing a pretty good job. A number of coaches stress academic achievements. As far as I can tell, the average student-athlete is doing as well or better (than the average student)," he said.

American Beauty blooms at Oscars home an Oscar.

The Matrix, the story of a computer hacker who discovers life is a huge illusion, won four Oscars — for film editing, sound, sound effects editing and visual effects.

"All put their heart and their soul into this movie," said Swank, 25, who bested a field including Annette Bening for American Beauty, Meryl Streep for Music of the Heart, Janet McTeer for Tumbleweeds and Julianne Moore for The End of the Affair.

"I'm stunned and I'm speechless," Spacey said.

The Cider House Rules earned the adapted screenplay Oscar for John Irving.

Irving offered thanks for recognition of a film that deals with abortion and concluded by thanking everyone at Planned Parenthood and the National Abortion Rights League — which got thunderous applause.

Caine, 67, who previously won as supporting actor for Hannah and Her Sisters in 1986, seemed overwhelmed by the applause that greeted the announcement by Judi Dench and he saluted his fellow nominees.

"I'm basically up here guys to represent you as what I hope you will all be — a survivor," Caine told the star-studded Shrine Auditorium audience.

The 24-year-old Jolie thanked her father, Jon Voight, a best actor winner for 1978's Coming

Home and a nominee for 1969's Midnight Cowboy, saying: "You're a great actor, but a better father."

Pop star Phil Collins scored the best original song award for his sentimental "You'll Be in My Heart" from the animated Disney film Tarzan. It was his first win in three nominations.

Collins thanked his three children, who, he said, "really wrote this song for me."

The award followed a rousing performance of the bawdy "Blame Canada" from South Park: Bigger, Longer & Uncut. Robin Williams led the chorus in a production number, even though the show's producers swore there would be none.

Best original score went to John Corigliano for The Red Violin. The art direction trophy went to Sleepy Hollow.

Topsy-Turvy, a drama about the creation of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta The Mikado, won two awards — for makeup and costume design.

The live action short award went to My Mother Dreams the Satan's Disciples in New York and animated short Oscar went to The Old Man and the Sea. Documentary honors went to the short King Gimp and the feature One Day in September.

Spain's All About My Mother won for best foreign film, prompting one of the night's humorous moments. When director Pedro Almodovar's acceptance speech began to run long, presenter Antonio Banderas pretended to pull him off the stage.

suicide gesture," Rhodes said. "It's not clear if that was the case or if it was an accident."

Corwin said he thought the man jumped, not fell, from the fire escape. Footprints in the wood chips indicated the man had landed feet first, he said.

Rhodes said it is unusual for a student to fall from one of the residence halls; the only other time she could recall was when Herschel Vargason, a pre-med student, died after jumping from a Mayflower Residence Hall room window on Jan. 18, 1999.

CITY BRIEF

UI graduate killed in attempted mugging in Dallas

Friends spent Sunday mourning the loss of Dan Holmstrom, a 1999 UI graduate who was reportedly shot by a mugger while out with a group of friends in Dallas early on March 25.

Holmstrom moved to Dallas four months ago to work for the elevator-and-escalator company Montgomery Kone.

Holmstrom was shot in the stomach by the mugger, who fled the scene and remains at large, according to Dallas police reports.

Holmstrom was a member of Beta Theta Pi and graduated from the UI with a dual degree in marketing and history. He was originally from Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Tony Gargano, a UI junior and the president of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, was from Fort Dodge as well. He remembers Holmstrom as a "well-liked, outgoing, goal-oriented individual."

Nick Tasler, a close friend and member of the fraternity, said he thought the death was ironic because Holmstrom is the one person who knew where he was going to be in 30 years and was headed in that direction.

The Dallas Homicide Unit is investigating the incident. While it has no suspects, it says there are a number of people who witnessed the shooting.

JIM LITKE COLUMN

'You have to be a strong man'

■ Bill Guthridge's reign in Chapel Hill has been anything but easy.

By Jim Litke
 Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — He never asked for the job. He still doesn't look the part.

Different? Put it this way: Not long after North Carolina gave Bill Guthridge the biggest win of his brief career as a head coach, the silver-haired, 62-year-old wisp of a man slipped out of the Erwin Center late Sunday afternoon and headed for Kansas to bury his mother. Yet when Betty Guthridge died earlier this week at age 96, her son didn't even tell his ballplayers. They found out the next day, when reporters began asking around for comment.

"He's a strong man," said Phil Ford, who's been around the Tar Heels program as a player or assistant coach for 16 years. "You have to be a strong man to be the head coach at a place like North Carolina."

"Even with his mom's passing," Ford added, "he still put the program first."

Anybody who knows anything about Guthridge knew that, even before the

Two long shots reach Final Four

■ With Florida and North Carolina capturing wins Sunday, the Final Four is expected to be full of even more surprises.

By Hal Bock
 Associated Press

Two long shot teams who were on the NCAA tournament bubble two weeks ago are headed for the Final Four along with the last No. 1 seed in the field and a racehorse team that nearly went out in the first round.

North Carolina and Wisconsin, both No. 8 seeds, join No. 1 seed Michigan State and No. 5 Florida in the climax of the college basketball season with the national semifinals set for next Saturday at the RCA Dome in Indianapolis.

For the Tar Heels and Badgers, the Final Four berths are payoffs for peaking at the end of difficult seasons. For the Spartans and Gators, the trip to Indianapolis is an opportunity to punctuate successful seasons.

At No. 8, Wisconsin and North Carolina are the lowest seeds to reach the Final Four since No. 11 LSU made it in 1986. The last No. 8 to get this far was Villanova, which won the national championship from that spot in 1985.

Wisconsin (22-13) vs. Michigan State (30-7)

Wisconsin finished sixth in the Big Ten but has lost just three games since Feb. 2, all of them to conference champion Michigan State, winners of nine straight.

"We haven't figured out a way to score against them yet," coach Dick Bennett said. "Michigan State is one of the premier defensive teams in the country. They're hard to score against."

Michigan State coach Tom Izzo knows the three earlier games don't matter much now against a Wisconsin team that is in the Final Four for the first time in 59 years.

"I don't think it's ever easy to beat a team twice or beat a team three times," he said. "We know it's going to

IOWA SOFTBALL

Sluggers take title

■ The softball team overcame a rain delay to overtake Creighton Sunday.

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

Kelly Zeilstra wasn't going to let anything stop Iowa.

Behind a 75 minute rain delay in the second and the senior pitchers bat and arm, the No. 16 Hawkeye softball team defeated Creighton, 1-0 to take the title in the second-annual Hawkeye Classic.

Zeilstra, known more for her control than her power, struck out seven Bluejays and allowed only two hits in her second shutout of Creighton in as many days.

But Creighton pitcher Kristan Melton was dominating Iowa as well. Heading into the bottom of the seventh, the score was knotted at zero.

After striking out two Bluejays in the top of the seventh, Zeilstra stepped up to the plate and led off with an infield single to the shortstop.

Liz Dennis laid a bunt down the first base line, advancing Zeilstra to second. With a runner on and first base open, the Bluejays intentionally walked Katy Jendrzewski.

Creighton played a solid defensive game. In fact, Iowa's steady defense committed two errors to the Bluejays' none. Until Katie Boney stepped to the plate.

Boney slapped the ball on the right side of the infield. Creighton's second baseman was covering first but failed to catch the easy throw from her teammate, Zeilstra, who was on third, took off towards home. The White Rock, British Columbia native, slid around the catcher's tag and recorded Iowa's winning run.

"We've got to get better at executing and moving runners," Iowa coach Gayle Blevins said. "However I was pleased to see how we came back in the seventh inning and we had a great."

Creighton proved to be a tough match-up for the 17-7 Hawkeyes. In Saturday's matchup between the teams, a 2-0 Iowa win, Iowa relied on solid defense and timely hits to secure the victory.

Iowa's winning run came in the bottom of the second. Melissa Stuber came into pinch-run for Lori Leon after the designated hitter earned a walk. With one out and Stuber in scoring position, Jill Knopf singled to centerfield.

Iowa came out strong in its first home game this season. The Hawkeyes defeated Wisconsin-Green Bay, 9-1 in five innings. Sophomore Kristi Hanks struck out six Wisconsin-GB batters and surrendered only one run.

Iowa also defeated Eastern Illinois for the fourth time this season Sunday, but the real story was Jessica Bashor. The freshman catcher recorded all three Iowa RBIs, including her two run laser over the left-centerfield fence. The homerun was her seventh this season.

Weather conditions slow varsity boats in regatta Sunday

■ The Hawkeyes won three of five races against the ninth-ranked Badgers Sunday.

By Megan Mantull
 The Daily Iowan

In addition to facing a traditionally strong Wisconsin squad, the Iowa rowers had to battle the wind Sunday at Lake Macbride.

The 16th-ranked Hawkeyes entered the regatta looking to sweep. However, 20 miles per hour crosswinds slowed Iowa's varsity boats and dashed the Hawkeyes' hopes.

Wisconsin won two of the three varsity competitions, and Iowa won both novice races. Creighton also competed but did not win any of the races.

"I was disappointed it was windy today," Iowa coach Mandi Kowal said.

"There was good racing and there was frustrating racing."

Iowa's varsity opened the regatta with a loss in the Varsity 4+. However, in a surprising follow up, the Hawkeyes took first in the second Varsity 8+, a race which the Badgers owned last spring.

The featured race of the day, however, was the finale. Wisconsin was ranked seven spots higher in the Varsity 8+, and Iowa was hoping for an upset.

When the boats approached the area of Lake Macbride where fans had gathered to watch, the Hawkeyes and Badgers were even. However, the grueling winds were too much for

Hoch's win leads Iowa to victory over Buckeyes

TENNIS

Iowa and Ohio State traded blows during singles competition, with Iowa gaining the upperhand on a win from Steffi Hoch at the No. 6 spot, 6-3, 6-3. Hoch's win helped to take the pressure from Neykova who was taken to a third set by her opponent before winning, 6-2, 5-7, 6-0. Wardlaw praised Hoch following the victory.

"Steffi played great under pressure," he said. "She knew that team point was riding on the match."

Hoch kept her cool during the match but admitted to feeling the pressure.

"I was really nervous because this was such an important match," Hoch said, "but I work better under pressure."

Dawaf and Kearney also picked up victories for Iowa, winning 6-2, 6-0 and 6-4, 6-2, respectively.

The pair of conference victories gives the Hawkeyes momentum heading into the heart of the conference schedule and also proved the team was better than its ranking.

"It was great to play Big Ten teams again," said Kearney, "The matches are more intense and there's more riding on the outcome."

Hoch said she felt much the same.

"We needed to know we could win again," said Hoch.

Gutsy performance leads Sampras

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — When Pete Sampras hit his best backhand of the day on the biggest point of the match, he did not raise a fist, shout with glee or otherwise celebrate.

Instead, he slowly walked to his changeover chair and threw up.

Sampras overcame an upset stomach and an upset bid by 19-year-old Swede Andreas Vinciguerra on Sunday, winning 5-7, 7-6 (3), 6-4 in the third round in the Ericsson Open.

The gutsy performance was reminiscent of Sampras' victory in the 1996 U.S. Open quarterfinals, when he threw up during a dramatic fifth-set tiebreaker against Alex Corretja.

"I'm 2-0 in those matches," Sampras said with a smile. "It's all a ploy."

Webb runs away with Nabisco Championship

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. — It was the only time Karrie Webb stunk in four days.

Webb shot a 2-under 70 Sunday for a 14-under 274 total to win the Nabisco Championship by 10 shots over defending champion Dottie Pepper, then jumped feet first into the murky water at the 18th green in the traditional winner's celebration.

"I stink right now, but I'm very happy that I do," said Webb, bundled in a thick white robe, with her feet bare and her hair plastered to her head after the trophy presentation.

Pepper instigated the watery conclusion with a friendly shove as Webb approached her for a handshake. Webb's caddie joined her in the lake, and singer Celine Dion waded in to shake hands with both of them.

"If I can advise Karrie on anything, I'd get on some antibiotics right now," said Pepper, who said she had "green something" in her ears a month after her victory plunge.

Violence shadows NFL at league meetings

PALM BEACH, Fla. — No one in the NFL questions that the league's image has been damaged by off-field violence. But as the league begins its annual meeting Monday, few executives know what to do about it.

"You can't legislate good behavior anywhere in society," Bill Polian, president of the Indianapolis Colts, said Sunday. "What you can do is penalize bad behavior."

Along with the annual discussion of instant replay, the owners, general managers, coaches and other club officials will spend part of this week dealing with a troublesome and persistent problem — acts of violence by NFL players.

The most serious cases are murder charges against Ray Lewis of Baltimore and Rae Carruth, formerly of Carolina.

Iowa golfers place second-to-last in Texas

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

You'll have to forgive UI men's golf coach Terry Anderson if he doesn't "feel like a pepper" following this weekend's Dr. Pepper Tanglewood Intercollegiate.

The Hawkeye golfers finished 17th in the 18 team field at the 54 hole tournament in Pottsboro, Tex., after finishing day one tied for last.

Iowa opened the tournament by shooting rounds of 303 and 301, leaving them 39 strokes off the pace set by Kent State.

Adam Turner had the best showing for Iowa following 36 holes, turning in rounds of 75 and 72 for a 147. Matt Stutzman and Bo Anderson both shot rounds of 152, while Mike Tapper and Jason Wombacher shot 154 and 156, respectively.

Day two saw Iowa make a slight improvement to finish 17th. The Hawkeyes shot another 301 round, giving them a total of 604 for the tournament and allowing them to avoid finishing in the meet's cellar. The score was actually 43 strokes better than the team's performance at the tournament a year ago.

Anderson said the tournament was a good indoctrination to how tough the competition would be during the Big Ten championship, as well as in District 4 action.

Minnesota took the tourney title, besting second-place Kent by seven strokes. The Golden Gophers shot a 285-285-275-845 to win the tournament.

Eight other Big Ten teams played at the meet along with district foes Kent State, Ball State, Toledo and Akron.

Anderson did find positives in the team's performance, mainly the improvement over last year's finish and the belief that the team has gotten their bad tournament out of the way for the spring season.

Anderson also said the two freshmen at the meet, Tapper and Bo Anderson, did their jobs and performed as expected. However, his three experienced players, Turner, Stutzman and Wombacher need to step up their play.

"We need to work on our toughness and learn to shoot par," said Anderson.

Kingdome meets its doomsday

■ Seattle's Kingdome, which was only 24 years old, was imploded Sunday to make way for a new football stadium.

By Laurence M. Cruz
Associated Press

Stevan Morgain/Associated Press

The Kingdome implodes Sunday in Seattle. The Kingdome, which went from engineering marvel to anachronistic eyesore in just 24 years, was demolished in a controlled implosion Sunday to make room for a new, more expensive stadium.

SEATTLE — The Kingdome, which went from engineering marvel to anachronistic eyesore in just 24 years, was demolished in a controlled implosion Sunday to make room for a new, more expensive stadium.

Thousands of spectators cheered from office towers and hillsides around the city as a series of blasts crumbled the massive concrete structure — once home to the Mariners and Seahawks — into a mound of rubble and dust.

"It sent chills down your spine. Forget TV, you had to be here to see it," said John Geoffrey of Amazon.com, whose headquarters overlooks the site.

Sparks from a 21.6-mile web of detonation cord flickered over the ribbed surface of the dome, followed by 5,800 gelatin dynamite charge explosions. The 25,000-ton roof collapsed into a billowing dust cloud in less than 20 seconds in rare March sunshine.

"It just happened so fast. Everyone started clapping. They were just gasping and yelling and clapping," said Susan Clark, one of about 130 people who watched the implosion at a fund-raiser from the 11th floor of the nearby Smith Tower.

"The little flashes of light going down between each section (of the roof) like lightning bolts — that was pretty exciting," said Cheryl Winchester,

33. The Kingdome — dubbed the mushroom, the concrete cupcake and other less charitable names over the years — was completed in 1976 at a cost of $67 million. The Seahawks made their debut in the Kingdome that year, and the Mariners arrived a year later.

The dome was a necessity in a city where rain is part of civic life. But fans complained that the concrete stadium was too small for football and not intimate enough for baseball.

What's more, it leaked. And in 1994, four 15-pound ceiling tiles crashed into the stands just hours before a Mariners' game.

Ken Griffey Jr. found one advantage to the stadium — it was a home run hitter's paradise where he once hit 56 homers in a season. And the concrete dome amplified the volume inside, earning screaming Seahawks fans the honorary title of 12th player.

The Mariners abandoned the Kingdome last season and moved to $517 million Safeco Field, a state-of-the-art outdoor stadium across the street.

The Seahawks will share the University of Washington's Husky Stadium until their new home is finished — built on the site of the Kingdome — in August 2002.

The old Kingdome won't disappear from Seattle entirely. One third of the rubble produced by Sunday's implosion is slated for use in the Seahawks new $430 million stadium.

"It's a shame. It was a good-looking building," said Steve Albert, 46, of Seattle, who watched from Pike Place Market. "It didn't seem that old as buildings went. It's a waste."

Steele runs to Olympic Trials

■ Iowa distance runner Stetson Steele provisionally qualified for the NCAA outdoor meet and Olympic trials.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

After competing in the Purdue Invitational, the members of the Iowa track team returned to Iowa City and received some good news Sunday night.

The team found out the one teammate who didn't travel with them, senior distance runner Stetson Steele, who instead competed in the Stanford Invitational, provisionally qualified for the Olympic trials and the NCAA outdoor meet in the 10,000-meters.

"Holy cow!" thrower Chris Cassata said after hearing of his teammate's performance. "That's great news."

Steele who is fresh off a fourth place finish at the NCAA Indoor Championships, traveled to Palo Alto Calif., to be the lone Iowa participant in the meet. Coach Larry Wiecek said he decided to send his senior there because many of the nation's best 10,000-meter runners compete in the invite.

In the 10,000 Saturday, Steele finished fifth with a time of 28:44, a school record.

"It was a great performance," Wiecek said.

The rest of the team also fared well in Purdue.

Cassata and Arno van der Westhuizen placed second in the shot put and hammer throw, respectively.

Sprinters Merrill Coleman placed second in the 100-meter run and Liam Card placed third in the 200-meter run.

Overall, Cassata said he was pleased with the team's performance.

"As a whole team, considering how early it is in the season, we did pretty well," he said. "With (star sprinter) Tim Dodge gone, and the injuries we had, we didn't do too bad."

UI ROAD SPORTS ROUNDUP

Men's Tennis

The Iowa men's tennis team opened its Big Ten season with a split on the road, and No. 1 singles player Tyler Cleveland improved to 11-1 on the spring season.

Iowa (5-7, 1-1) defeated Penn State, 5-2, and lost to Ohio State, 6-1, over the weekend.

"Overall, a split on the road in the Big Ten these days is pretty good," coach Steve Houghton said. "But Ohio State is a team we have to beat if we want to do what we want to this year."

Against the Nittany Lions Saturday, Iowa took an early lead winning two of three doubles matches to claim the doubles point. At No. 1 doubles, Cleveland and Stuart Waters downed Steve Van Der Westhuizen and Jamie Gresh, 9-8. Jake Wilson and Pete Rose beat Matt Nielsen and Brad Nudell, 8-4, at No. 3.

The Hawkeyes then went on to win four of six singles matches. Cleveland improved his individual record to 10-1 at No. 1. Wilson, Petar Mandic and J.R. Chidley also walked away with wins at No. 3-5, respectively.

"Penn State was a good win," Houghton said. "We won the doubles point which was very important at the time."

"We needed another win in singles to win the match and in the midst of the number three and four matches it started raining and we had to go indoors. Jake Wilson and J.R. Chidley really came through. Jake clinched the match."

Ohio State proved to be a greater challenge for the Hawkeyes Sunday. The Buckeyes won all three doubles matches and five of six singles matches for the win. Cleveland came away with Iowa's lone victory, 7-5, 6-4, over Ohio State's Andrew Carlson at No. 1.

"Tyler continues to get the job done," Houghton said. "Ohio State is very good; No. 48 in the country. We had to play very well to win and we didn't do it. They beat us pretty decisively."

Men's Swimming

The UI men's swimming season officially came to a close over the weekend with three Hawkeyes competing at the NCAA Championships in Minneapolis.

Iowa sent diver Simon Chrisander and swimmers Jay Glenn and Ales Abersek to the meet to challenge the best swimmers in the nation. The Hawkeyes found the meet to be more than a challenge, as they saw many fast times.

"This was a world-class meet," said Abersek who competed in the 100 and 200 butterfly events.

Iowa began competition on Thursday evening with Chrisander placing 17th in the 1-meter dive with a score of 466.95. Chrisander competed during all three days of the meet.

Friday, Chrisander hit the water with his best finish of the meet, a 10th place showing in the 3-meter dive. His final score for the event was 526.55.

Abersek also took to the water Friday evening for the first of his two events, the 100-meter butterfly. Abersek's time of 53.52 placed him 14th, one spot below his original 13th seeding. Nebraska's Adam Pine set a U. S. Open record in the event, winning in a time of 51.23.

Saturday, all three Hawkeyes competed during the final day of the event. Chrisander placed 15th in the 10-meter platform dive with a score of 423.95.

Abersek finished the preliminary round of the 200-butterfly in 10th, but fell to 16th in the finals with a time of 1:59.33.

Glenn swam his only event for Iowa, the 100-meter freestyle, in 50.27 for a 50th place showing.

Abersek said he knows the team is looking forward to sending people back to the meet next season.

"Next year, we've got some goals," he said, "and we know where we want to be."

Lost cool leads to a lost game

Larry Eustachy's temper tantrum helped end Iowa State's majestic season.

By Hal Bock
Associated Press

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — All night long, coach Larry Eustachy was on his feet, up and down in front of the Iowa State bench, shouting at his players, shouting at the officials, just plain shouting.

This was, after all, no small piece of business against Michigan State. The coach's seat on the bench was there strictly for decoration. Eustachy certainly didn't need it.

In the end, though, the coach's carrying on went too far in the NCAA tournament's Midwest Regional final Saturday night. Eustachy wound up in the dressing room, thrown out on a double technical foul in the final minute of Michigan State's 75-64 victory that was much closer than that.

This game was played hand-to-hand, with an in-your-face attitude by both teams. "I didn't even comb my hair today," said Iowa State guard Michael Nurse, "because I knew it would be a dogfight."

Emotions ran high all night long and Eustachy wasn't the first coach to get in trouble with the officials. Michigan State's Tom Izzo drew his own technical foul with 5:49 left, dropping the Spartans into a seven-point hole at 59-52.

"I ask my players to stick up for what they think is right and I stick up for what I think is right," he said.

So did Eustachy. Shortly after Izzo's technical, Eustachy's pressure cooker began to build. With 3:43 to play, Iowa State's Paul Shirley got locked up under the basket. As Shirley's shot went in, it was waved off by the officials. No basket. Instead, a fifth personal foul on Shirley.

Eustachy screamed at that turn of events, crucial at that juncture with Iowa State's lead down to three points.

It would get worse.

Carlos Osorio/Associated Press

ISU coach Larry Eustachy is held back by Michael Nurse as he argues with referee Curtis Shaw in the closing minutes of ISU's 75-64 loss to Michigan St.

All-American Marcus Fizer was already laboring under the burden of four personal fouls but Eustachy couldn't pull the centerpiece of his team off the floor at that stage. So Fizer stayed. And so did Nurse, also playing with four personals.

"We play hard, no matter what," he said. "If Coach catches you playing soft because of fouls, he'll take you out. Whether we're not in foul trouble or if we have a lot of fouls, we play the same way."

Now, after being beat off the boards all night long, Michigan State began asserting itself under the basket — just in time. Andre Hutson grabbed three rebounds in a row and the Spartans converted each time to take the lead.

The game had turned. In the final minute, Iowa State was down by five points at 69-64 and desperate for baskets. Fizer went up for a shot and again there was the dreaded whistle.

Another personal foul, this one

Nurse's fifth.

Eustachy went ballistic. Players tried to keep the crewcut coach away but he tore past them to confront officials Curtis Shaw, Frank Basone and Lonnie Dixon.

Quickly, Dixon called a technical and that just incited Eustachy even more. He was out on the floor, pushing players away, appearing to make contact with Basone.

Quickly, he drew another technical. In an instant, the coach was gone. Moments later, so was the game.

"The first technical foul was for excessive demonstration and cursing," Shaw said. "The second technical was for coming out on the floor and being outside the coaching box."

"We don't have any choice. It was done strictly by the book."

Rain washes out Hal Sutton's run

Tiger Woods is three shots behind Hal Sutton when the Players Championships resume today at 8 a.m.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Hal Sutton got the challenge he wanted and played the way he expected. The only thing that stopped him from winning his showdown against Tiger Woods in The Players Championship on Sunday was the weather.

Sutton was nearly flawless for 11 holes in building a three-stroke lead over Woods when thunderstorms drenched the TPC at Sawgrass and suspended the final round until today. Play will resume at 8 a.m.

"Obviously, I'd have liked to keep playing," Sutton said.

No wonder. Sutton didn't miss any fairways and only one green, and that followed a bunker shot that he ranks among the best of his career to save par.

Woods failed to birdie three par 5s, twice had to get up-and-

Chris O'Meara/Associated Press

Hal Sutton is showered with sand after blasting out of a trap Sunday at the Players Championship.

down for bogey and bolted off the course when the siren sounded.

When play resumes, Woods will have a 40-foot birdie putt on the 12th, while Sutton has 82 yards left for his second shot from — where else? — the fairway.

"Things aren't going exactly the way I wanted," Woods said with a smile.

But he wasn't exactly counting himself out. Remember, his record is 1-0 in Monday finishes, having stormed from seven strokes behind with seven holes to play last month to win at Pebble Beach.

And no lead is safe as long as the island-green 17th is still to be played.

"Three shots back is nothing on a golf course with the trouble that's out there," Woods said. "If there's any golf course you want to play when you're behind, it's one like this."

Sutton also has a little history on his side. He won The Players Championship in 1983, the last time weather forced a Monday finish.

"I was thinking about that up in the locker room," he said. "I don't know if that has anything to do with anything, but it was nice to think about."

What matters more is his play, and he had few complaints after an abbreviated day that featured rock-steady play by Sutton and several blown opportunities by both players.

Grandma's death sullies win for Peterson

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Morris Peterson went from the high of making a highlight reel alley-oop dunk that sparked the Michigan State Spartans to their second straight Final Four appearance to learning shortly after the game that his grandmother had died.

"He went from the top of the top to the bottom of the bottom in a matter of seconds," Spartans coach Tom Izzo said.

Clara Mae Spencer, 72, died early Saturday morning in Mississippi of complications from a stroke she suffered last month. His family decided not to tell Peterson until after the Spartans had beaten Iowa State 75-64 Saturday night.

After the game, Izzo pulled Peterson into a room where his family was waiting and delivered the news.

Peterson told the Lansing State Journal that he will fly to Mississippi this week for the funeral, then try to give her the gift she would treasure most — a national championship.

"She'd do anything for me," he said. "And I really felt her with me tonight. I didn't know she passed away. But I felt here with me all night long."

Peterson scored 13 of his 18 points in the second half.

"It seemed like somebody was guiding those shots in," Peterson told the Detroit Free Press. "When I got the news, it was very emotional. My grandmother was my best friend."

Her wake will be held Thursday and funeral services are Friday.

Hawkeyes salvage one win

After dropping a double-header Saturday, the Iowa baseball team broke its hex against the Illini.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team ended its weekend series at Illinois the way they wish it had begun.

The Hawkeyes (6-15, 1-3 Big Ten) used a two home-run performance from walk-on freshman center fielder Brian Burks and a white-knuckle pitching performance from reliever Reed Pawelk to end a fifteen-game losing streak to Illinois (13-7, 3-1 Big Ten), 5-4, Sunday in Champaign, Ill.

"It was gut-check time," coach Scott Broghamer said. "A lot of teams could have folded and not come out and performed the way we did today. It really says something about our team."

The Hawkeyes won only one of four games in the weekend series, but were two innings away from reversing the results after losing two games in heart-stopping fashion on Saturday.

Sunday, Iowa grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning after a triple from shortstop Kurt Vitense, who scored on a wild pitch.

After the Illini tied the score in their half of the second inning, Burks hit his first home run of the day in the fourth to make the score 2-1. Burks added a leadoff solo shot of his own in the Iowa fifth, giving the Hawkeyes a 3-1 advantage.

Four batters later, Burks hit his third home run of the weekend, a towering shot to right, extending the Iowa lead to 5-1.

Illinois would crawl within 5-4, helped by an Andy Schutzenhofer home run that chased starter Nick Jensen from the game. But Pawelk, the third Hawkeye pitcher on the day, stranded the tying Illini runs at third in the final two innings to preserve Jensen's first collegiate win.

Saturday was the kind of day that would make a baseball coach's hair go gray.

After finishing a 15-1 loss to the Illini which was suspended by a power outage on Friday, the Hawkeyes were two outs from finishing their first Big Ten win of the season in Game One of the doubleheader.

But Joe Perenti, and the wind, changed that. Perenti hit a fly ball the breeze turned into a grand slam, bouncing the ball off of the top of the left-field fence for a 9-7 win in the seven inning game.

Sunday's events salvaged the wounds of Saturday, according to Broghamer.

"It feels good, it really does," he said of breaking his team's hex against the Illini. "I told the kids it's the start of what I feel will be a great year from here on out."

Tokyo speaks to US sluggers

■ Heavy hitters for the Cubs and Mets quickly fell in love with the cozy feel of the Tokyo Dome.

By Ben Walker
Associated Press

TOKYO — Mike Piazza took one look at the left-field wall and took aim. At a cozy 317 feet from home plate, it made for an easy target.

The New York Mets and Chicago Cubs saw a lot to like about the Tokyo Dome, where they'll open the major league season Wednesday night. Especially the sluggers.

"The ball flies, at least when Mike hits it," Mets teammate Todd Zeile said.

Most players got their first peek at the 50,000-seat ballpark during workouts Sunday. To some, the place playfully nicknamed the "Big Egg" seemed pretty foreign.

Two rows of benches in the dugout. Black dirt on the pitcher's mound, brown dirt around the bases. A chain-link fence for a backstop. No warning track.

And that was before the Seibu Lions and Tokyo Giants claimed the field for an exhibition game. They set up side-by-side cages for batting practice, and inside them catchers sat on wooden benches. Later, a rookie wearing No. 122 walked past.

"You don't see that very often," observed Joe McEwing of the Mets.

Others found the park more familiar.

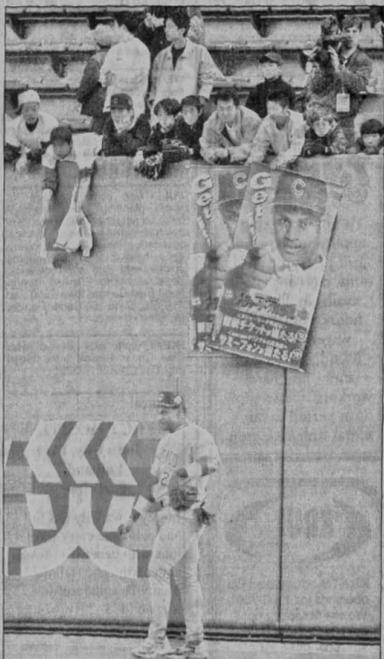

"You look up at that puffy, white roof and see those blue seats and it looks just like the Metrodome," said Cubs pitcher Rick Aguilera, who spent most of his career in Minnesota.

"The only thing missing were the homer hankies," he said.

And, like the Metrodome, it's loud. A few thousand fans, most of them kids, watched the workouts and screamed — "Sign, please" — for autographs.

The decibel level was doubled by an announcer standing on the dugout roof with a hand-held microphone, commenting on the festivities. Most Japanese games feature lively cheerleaders, too.

"There is a noise factor here," said Mets manager Bobby Valentine, who managed Chiba Lotte in the Japanese league in 1995. Piazza created a huge stir when he strolled over to the third-base stands to oblige the children.

Japanese players traditionally do not sign autographs. The chance to get a souvenir from Piazza, extremely popular in this country since his days of catching Hideo Nomo with the Dodgers, made him a bigger hit.

Even the man who stitches players' names and numbers onto the Mets jerseys was busy.

HELP WANTED

Modeling Specialists

The Department of Natural Resources, Air Quality Bureau and Merit Resources, Inc. are seeking to fill two full time co-employment positions. Merit Resources Inc., a "Professional Employer Organization" contracting with the State of Iowa to provide long term staffing. The individuals will work at the Air Quality offices as Air Quality staff. Both positions will support the Bureau efforts to model the regional transportation of pollutants, evaluate the modeling results and prepare the various inputs for the models. Inputs involve the preparation of meteorological and emissions data through special computer preprocessor programs. Positions will specialize in one of two computer applications: emission modeling or meteorological modeling.

Salary Range: $1132.80 to $1699.20 biweekly.

Minimum Qualifications: Graduate from an accredited four year college or university. Major course work: physical science, natural science, or engineering.

Preferred Qualifications: Experience or educational qualifications in meteorology or air pollution control, or experience in inventory and analysis of environmental data, with a strong preference for experience in regional air dispersion modeling.

Examples of Job Duties:

- Serve as technical staff person responsible for conducting computerized regional scale modeling, input data preparation with the emphasis on tracking the formation of ozone and the transport of ozone precursors. Computer modeling of emissions based on emission inventory data and strategy assumptions. Computer modeling of meteorological data for specific historical pollution episodes. These programs are unix/linux based applications with limited Windows interfaces.
- Serve as technical staff person responsible for conducting computerized local scale modeling, input data preparation with the emphasis on ensuring maintenance of the National Ambient Air Quality Standards. These programs are Windows based applications.
- Completing regional and/or local scale modeling in a timely and accurate manner in accordance with Department goals and objectives.
- Work with Information Technology staff to manage computer files, programs and networked multi-processor based regional scale models and input preparation programs.
- Work with other agencies to obtain emissions and meteorological information for use in regional scale modeling.
- Assist in the development of standard procedures and protocols for regional scale modeling.
- Develop an expert working knowledge of the regional and local scale models, pre- and post- processors and visualization tools and performing modeling and technical input for the development and negotiation of multi-state pollution control agreements within constraints set by the state legislature.
- Some travel in and out-of-state training.

Please send cover letter, resume, and references to: Chad Daniel, Regional Modeling Lead Worker, Program Development Section, Environmental Protection Division 7900 Hickman Road, Ste. 1 Des Moines, IA 50322, by e-mail: chad.daniel@dnr.state.ia.us or call with questions (515) 242-6494. Deadline: March 31, 2000.

Guthridge shook up, but thrilled

LITKE COLUMN

Heels held off Tulsa 59-55 to send him back to the Final Four for the second time in his three seasons on the job.

As Guthridge stood in a hallway just a few feet from the locker room celebration, the memories that came flooding back had little to do with basketball.

"I don't think my mother even knew that I was the head coach," he said quietly. "I told her, and my sister did, too. But with Alzheimer's you never really know if she heard."

For 30 years, Guthridge sat next to Dean Smith on the Carolina bench, content to bask in the reflected glow of college basketball's winningest Division I coach. Then, just weeks before the 1997-98 season was set to start, Smith stepped down and a reluctant Guthridge had to be cajoled to step forward.

The journey has taken more than a few twists and turns since: a Final Four in Guthridge's first season, a first-round knockout by lowly Weber State in his second and now this, the most improbable, emotional-fueled run in Carolina's illustrious history.

And it's not over yet. First comes a triumphant return to Carolina, where postseason success is taken for granted and calls for Guthridge's firing began with the first-round NCAA tour-namment loss last year and ricocheted across Web sites and talk radio every time this season's team went into a tailspin.

But at the moment when he had every right to blister his critics, Guthridge apologized instead.

"I had a lot of faith in this team," he said. "I'm sorry it took us so long to get going, but it couldn't have come at a better time."

Guthridge might have said the same thing about Joseph Forte, who along with UNC football player Julius Peppers, are the only significant additions to the team that couldn't climb over Weber State. The cold-blooded freshman scored a career-high 28 points against Tulsa, including 10 in a decisive 14-4 second-half run and a crucial free throw with 4.1 seconds left.

Not that it's going to get him out of the freshmen's traditional chores at Carolina — carrying the team's heavy green training bag back and forth from the bus to the locker room.

"The fact is," Guthridge said, "we might put some more bricks in the green bag."

Fear not for Forte. He can handle a heavier load and then some. Former Tar Heel star James Worthy was broadcasting the game for CBS and said he hadn't seen a freshman play with that much poise since a jug-eared kid named Michael Jordan showed up in Chapel Hill.

You wouldn't know that from listening to Guthridge, though. Carolina is still run much the same way he and Smith ran it side-by-side for 30 years. Quietly. No one gets too much credit, especially the newcomers. No one takes the easy way out. No matter the situation, the coach sets the example.

Just down the sideline from Guthridge on Sunday, Tulsa coach Bill Self clapped, screamed, waved and pleaded in the direction of his ballplayers for much of the game. He is just 37, in his third year with the Golden Hurricane, still building a resume. A day earlier, he said his ego wouldn't let him be an assistant for three decades.

Meanwhile, the man who had done just that, stayed in his chair most of the afternoon. When the tension wound Guthridge's body so tight that he had to get up, he took a few steps, then stuck his hands on his hips and tried to look at ease. It worked well enough on his kids during the game; afterward was another story.

Asked whether this trip to the Final Four meant more than the previous ones, Guthridge tried to recall the years and the teams Carolina met, but quickly made a mess of the whole thing.

"I'm a little shook up, obviously," he said. "But I'm thrilled to be going."

be tough to beat a team four times. They are on a roll and making shots now."

These are two grind-it-out teams with Michigan State depending on the senior leadership of Mateen Cleaves, Charlie Bell and Morris Peterson and Wisconsin riding the hot 3-point shooting of Division II transfer Jon Bryant.

Take it from Mike Kelley, the Badgers aren't going to roll over now.

"We had a chance for a letdown after Fresno State, after Arizona, and after LSU," he said. "We could have fallen to that temptation, but we didn't. We are a very competitive group. It doesn't matter if it is basketball or bridge, we all go out to win."

North Carolina (22-13) vs. Florida (28-7)

For the Tar Heels, this marks a 15th trip to the Final Four and third in the past four years. It was one of the least expected. Coach Bill Guthridge was under fire during a difficult 13-loss season that had some people believing North Carolina would not be invited.

The Tar Heels stumbled in with four losses in six games and a mediocre 7-8 record in the season's final weeks. Their No. 8 seed matched their lowest in 22 years of being seeded and they had been a No. 1 or 2 seed in their previous seven Final Fours.

"Obviously, since we were an eighth seed, this was unexpected," Guthridge said. "But I believed and the team believed and that's why we're going."

The four-game winning streak in the tournament was the first all season for North Carolina. "We became a team and started playing together," senior point guard Ed Cota said.

Seven-foot Brendan Haywood gives North Carolina a presence inside and Joseph Forte is the first freshman in school history to lead the Tar Heels in scoring. And, yes, that includes a fellow named Michael Jordan.

Under fourth-year coach Billy Donovan, Florida turns games into track meets with a go-go style and a freshman-sophomore dominated roster that can sustain it.

grueling winds were too much for Iowa in the 2,500 meter race, and Wisconsin eventually pulled ahead, taking a lead they would not relinquish.

"The varsity eight couldn't get in a good groove," Kowal said. "They let the water get in the way. I've seen them row all spring. I know what good rowing is for them, and that wasn't it."

Kowal, a former coach at Wisconsin, said the Badgers' program is a benchmark for Iowa's. She said "being in the same ballpark" is satisfying for Iowa's program. However, during the fall, Iowa defeated Wisconsin in one regatta and tied them in another.

Iowa doesn't plan to be chasing the Badgers for long, though.

Kowal and the Hawkeyes are looking forward to a rematch with the Badgers during the Big Ten Championships at the end of April.

"Not winning the Varsity 8+ was really disappointing because we had such high goals," junior Meghan Martin said.

The Hawkeyes will host another meet at Lake Macbride Saturday, and they know they will have to be more prepared for the wind.

"This was good for our crews to deal with these weather conditions," senior Lisa Deimerly said. "It can be like this during bigger regattas. The last 1000 meters was really difficult because of the wind."

Saturday's regatta will be Iowa's final one at home this season. The first race is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. and the last race should begin around 2:20 p.m.
