Bill could ease way for UI renovations

State lawmakers would take care of some UI budget concerns with the infrastructure bill.

By Lisa Livermore
The Daily Iowan

Science buildings for the state's three public universities are inches away from receiving requested funding for renovations, after an Iowa Senate subcommittee passed a bill Monday adding money to infrastructure projects.

Under the bill, the UI would be guaranteed $14.7 million over the next three fiscal years to fund top-priority infrastructure renovations such as the Biological Sciences Library, said Mark Braun, the head of state relations in the UI governmental relations office.

"It's a very extensive renovation. This isn't just painting," said Doug True, the UI vice president for finance. The bill's funding would enable the UI to renovate the plumbing, electrical heating and air conditioning in the building.

"It's the highest capital-request priority. We need to continue to make progress in the biological sciences," True said. "We feel progress that it is recommended."

Iowa State University would receive $11 million and University of Northern Iowa $16.9 million for the same purpose, Braun said.

ISU would use the money to renovate Gilman Hall, and UNI would renovate McCollum Hall, both science buildings, said Rep. Charles Gipp, R-Decorah, the chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee for transportation and infrastructure.

After passing the subcommittee, the bill must be passed by the Senate Appropriations Committees, which will meet today, and then the House and Senate. In order to become law, it must be signed by Gov. Tom Vilsack.

Both Braun and Gipp said they expect Vilsack to sign the bill.

Last year, Vilsack vetoed a bill covering the same projects because they were funded by bonding from tuition replacement, Gipp said. This year, payments would be made directly from money already present, which increases the likelihood that the governor will sign the bill, he said.

"We are still paying off previous bonding with tuition replacement," Gipp said. "We don't want to go back on that route again. It will pay in cash, or it won't happen, and we intend to pay it in cash."

Under the bill, funding would come from the Rebuild Iowa Fund, which has spent more than $148 million since 1996 on different building projects across the state, Gipp said.

"People ask questions about infrastructure competing with education — that's simply not the case," he said.

Tax revenues fund the education appropriations bill, he said, but the rebuilding fund grows from gambling profits over $60 million, and the interest made from cash reserves.

"We know at some point gambling revenues will fall. We don't depend on

Drinkers may hit a minor setback

As the clock rolls toward 2 a.m. each weekend night, Iowa City's Pedestrian Mall becomes a home to the masses that frequent the downtown bars.

But with the Iowa City City Council opening discussion on raising the minimum age to enter a bar, some believe Iowa City will be faced with a mob of displaced patrons in search of other things to do. The first in a three-part series will examine how underage students would adapt.

With the City Council set to address admitting minors to downtown bars in less than a week, many underage students are beginning to face the possibility that they might have to find alternatives to their normal weekend routines.

The issues to be discussed during the council's work session on April 17 and at a public discussion during the formal meeting on April 18 could affect a large number of UI undergraduates. However, nothing will be decided in the near future, said Iowa City Mayor Ernie Lehman.

"There is no communication from any group of people interested in maintaining the status quo," Lehman said. "The only correspondence has been from people who reject underage drinking in bars."

Census 2000 targets UI students as the state of Iowa shoots for first place in response rates.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

Census forms will be delivered to 5,500 UI students living in UI residence halls Wednesday as the state of Iowa remains in fourth place in initial response rates to the census.

Nebraska, Ohio and South Dakota are tied for first place with a response rate of 67 percent, while Iowa is near the top with 66 percent.

The census, mandated by the Constitution, surveys the country's population once every 10 years. It includes the number of individuals in each household and should include all persons living in one apartment, house or dorm room, said McKenzly Wilson, the manager of the local census office.

Census forms were sent to area residents on April 1. "Special places" such as dormitories, nursing homes and hospitals receive forms later in accor-

Dental school a bit wary — it's Tuesday

Over the past two weeks, a racist incident has occurred each Tuesday and Thursday.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

As an investigation into racist threats enters its third week, it's unclear to investigators whether the person or persons responsible are following a pattern.

Whether or not a pattern does exist, some dental students are apprehensive about an incident occurring today.

Over the past two weeks, something new has happened every Tuesday and Thursday, ranging from a March 28 e-mail to dental faculty demanding that the school get rid of its minority students, to the most recent incident, on April 6, in which e-mails sent to dental students claimed responsibility for setting a lab coat on fire in the Dental Science Building.

First-year dental student Zachary Kouri said he heard students talking about the possible Tuesday/Thursday pattern Monday morning. It was the first time he had thought about it.

Kouri and his classmates will try not to be too preoccupied with thoughts of a possible incident today and will try to go on with their daily routines, he said.

"We try not to worry about it," he said. "We just go day by day."

Though Kouri said a "hint of apprehension" hangs over dental students, who are worried about the possibility of future incidents, he said the atmosphere at the building is not too tense.

UI Public Safety is not treating the series of incidents as a pattern, said Chuck Green, the Public Safety director.

"We are looking at all possibilities," he said. "As far as saying (the person or persons) are working under a pattern, I'm not sure we've come to that conclusion."

Public Safety officers and Iowa City police will be working to keep today's "Walk the Walk" rally secure, said Ann Rhodes, the vice president for university relations. The rally starts at 11:45 a.m. on the Pentacrest; 250-1,000 people are expected to take part, she said.

Green said Public Safety will continue its increased presence and security measures at the dental building, which includes having only one entrance unlocked. Also, Public Safety will continue to give a high priority to the ongoing investigation, he said.

While Kouri has heard rumors that some people think the person/persons responsible for targeting the students are inside the college, he remains unsure.

"I don't have a clue. I don't know how organized this is," he said. "I won't speculate on whether it's an inside job."

Kouri doesn't think that anyone he knows in the school would be capable of such acts. In fact, the recent incidents have brought his class closer together, he said.

WESTPORT, Conn. (AP) — Martha Stewart is moving out of this wealthy Connecticut suburb, fed up with what she calls an "unfriendly neighborhood atmosphere" and a difficult commute to New York City.

In a piece Stewart wrote for The New York Times Magazine on Sunday, she said she is sad to think about leaving the town she has called home for 28 years. But she said Westport "just doesn't work" for her any more.

Stewart said that although she used to be friendly with her neighbors, today she knows few of them. She said she offered fresh eggs or garden produce to newcomers and was rebuffed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Lucas is going digital to shoot much of the next chapter of his Star Wars saga.

After pioneering digital projection in movie theaters with Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace last year, Lucas said most of the live-action scenes for Episode II will be shot using six digital, high-definition camcorders instead of film cameras.

Lucas made the decision after trial runs with a prototype camera made by Sony and Panavision.
 "The tests have convinced me that the familiar look and feel of motion picture film are fully present," Lucas said Sunday in a message on his official Star Wars Web site.

"The picture quality between the two is indistinguishable on the large screen."
Episode II begins shooting in June in Australia.

Leo to shoot scenes in Romanian Parliament house

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Leonardo DiCaprio plans to shoot a science-fiction movie, called Librium, in Romania this summer, with parts to be filmed in the palace of former dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

Ceausescu and his wife, Elena, were executed in the bloody anti-communist revolt in 1989. Romanian lawmakers at first rejected Miramax's request to shoot in the People's House, which houses the Parliament. Andrei Chiliman, the vice president of the Deputies Chamber, said those who initially opposed the project last month "suffer of some psychological blockages" connected with the building.

'Old' Tiger Hawk not fading away, UI says

■ Some coaches are remaining loyal to the traditional version.

By Christy B. Logan
The Daily Iowan

As the UI attempts to debut its "new" Tiger Hawk, officials say traditional Hawkeye fans should rest assured that their beloved "old" logo will remain on some memorabilia and sports uniforms.

Coaches from the Hawkeye football, men's basketball and men's track-and-field teams have decided to stay with the current logo instead of adopting the newer version for their teams' uniforms and equipment, said Richard Klatt, the men's assistant athletics director.

UI officials sparked a controversy last month when they introduced a "more fierce version of the logo." In response, students and alumni expressed discontent about changing the nearly 21-year-old design.

No UI sports team has adopted the new Tiger Hawk, a decision made by coaches and their programs.

Larry Wiczorek, Hawkeye men's track-and-field coach, said the new Tiger Hawk probably won't become the dominant logo for the UI because the largest sports teams have already decided against using it.

UI athletic officials say, the UI has always had several variations of the logo and the "new" Tiger Hawk will serve as an addition to the ones currently in place.

Dale Arens, the director of the merchandising programs for the Hawk Shop, said the UI has always had several logos, which range from Herky to slight variations of the present Tiger Hawk.

The "traditional" Tiger Hawk will probably sell more merchandise, Arens said.

Designing a life, from Castro to kidnapping

■ A UI architect's experiences range from Ronald Reagan to making sculptures from trash.

By Kate McGeown
The Daily Iowan

Most architects don't get the chance to meet world-famous figures such as the pope, Ronald Reagan, Margaret Thatcher or Fidel Castro. And few find themselves the subject of a kidnap attempt. But then, most architects don't have an uncle who was the president of Mexico.

Guillermo Romano works for the UI Design and Construction Services. Talking to him about his passion for art and design, his love of the Southwest and his wife's studies at the UI dental school, you could be forgiven for thinking he has lived and worked here all his life.

In fact, Romano only moved to the United States five years ago. And with his past experiences in Mexico and his unconventional ideas in design and planning, he is far from a normal architect.

"I've had a very interesting and wonderful life," Romano said.

While he was growing up in Mexico, Romano's uncle Jose Lopez Portillo became president.

"He was one of the president's favorite nephews," said Romano's wife, Gabriella Romano. The architect is still close to his uncle, who is now 85 years old.

Through his uncle, he was invited to many official dinners, allowing him the chance to meet and talk to world leaders, including Castro.

"Castro has been in power for eight or nine American presidents," Romano said. "After the revolution, he came to the United States for support, but the Americans put conditions on it."

Romano said Castro felt he had fought the revolution to obtain freedom with no conditions, so he refused the offer. "He ended up getting support from the Russians."

Castro told him: "I am not a Communist — the Americans made me a Communist."

When Romano was 15, he was driving a car in Mexico City when he noticed a car driving close behind him. After taking a couple of sharp turns, he realized the car was following him.

"I managed to contact the police using a short-wave radio in my car, while I was still driving," he said. The police were able to direct him to a parking lot, where the pursuers quickly disappeared.

His family took no chances after the kidnap attempt.

"I had six bodyguards, and I learned how to use weapons," he said. Romano had a successful architect-ture business in Mexico, but, he said, investors became scared in the mid-1990s.

"Elections were coming, and there was a lot of social unrest," he said.

In 1995, he made the decision to move to Arizona to get a master's degree in urban planning.

When he moved to Iowa, Romano found a job with the Facilities Services Group, designing and planning UI rooms and buildings, including the entrance lobby for Stanley Hall, renovations to the medical auditoriums and a wall in the Nursing Building.

But Romano says he is far from being "just" an architect.

"I'm also a designer, brainstormer, inventor and writer," he said.

One of his designs is based on an idea from his son, who took a glasses case and three rubber bands to make himself an X-ray gun.

"The design is on the University of Arizona calendar, under my son's name," Romano said. "All the other designs are by famous architects." He uses everyday objects to help him in his designs. In the past, he has gained inspiration from a person's ear lobe and a rock in a garden.

In his free time, he draws pictures and uses waste materials to make ornaments to put on his desk.

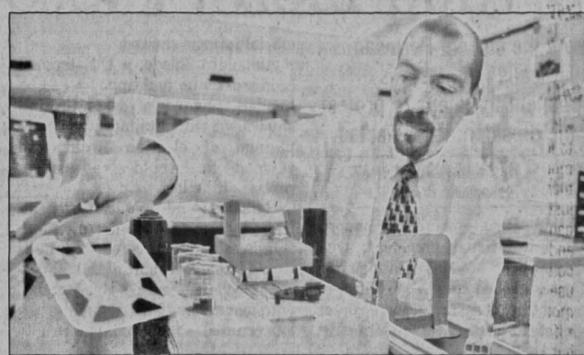

For co-workers, Romano's work echoes his personality.

"He performs at a hybrid — a cross between art and architecture. He looks at things a different way, and he's been a great asset to our team," said George Hollins, the director of design and construction services.

Gabriella Romano said her husband's general philosophy has always been to go by his feelings of what is right and wrong.

"His work is the same way," she said. "He does what he thinks is right."

Fraud charges sully Peru's presidential race

■ As the current Peruvian ruler leads in votes, his opponent threatens to protest if the president is re-elected.

By Monte Hayes
Associated Press

LIMA, Peru — Alberto Fujimori, Peru's iron-fisted president, was within a hair Monday of a majority of votes needed to win an unprecedented third term and avoid a runoff against an upstart contender, early official returns showed. Alejandro Toledo, a U.S.-trained economist who had appeared to be headed toward a second-round showdown with Fujimori, has complained of election fraud and warned he would lead street protests if he lost.

Exit polls and unofficial vote tallies by independent monitors Sunday had indicated Fujimori would likely fall short of the 50 percent plus one he needs. But Monday, with just under 40 percent of the ballots counted, the first official results indicated Fujimori had 49.8 percent, while Toledo took 40 percent. The national elections board released the results after delaying them for more than 12 hours. The board had promised to release first results Sunday night.

The delay raised suspicions among Fujimori's opponents that the government might attempt to tamper with the outcome. The doubts led to violent street protests early Monday.

"They took too long to count the ballots," said Renzo Lopez, a 28-year-old manager of a food wholesale company. "That delay gave them the time to manipulate the numbers. It's a fraud."

Unofficial vote counts Sunday night by Transparencia, an independent citizens group monitoring the elections, and by three private polling firms had given Fujimori at the most 48.7 percent.

"If a second round is ruled out, we have every right to believe that there was a well-thought-out fraud," said Transparencia director Rafael Roncagliolo.

We will never give up the fight, SAS promises

■ In the aftermath of the April 8 arrests, members of the group vow to push on against sweatshops.

By Michael Chapman
The Daily Iowan

Although recent protests by UI Students Against Sweatshops have met with little success, members of the group said at a Monday press conference that they refuse to give up their fight to prevent sweatshop abuses.

"I don't think we plan to ever stop," said Heidi Sabers, a UI senior and SAS member. "We need the UI to commit to human rights abroad."

The group plans to continue to fight sweatshop labor even if its demands for collegiate apparel are met, looking into sweatshop abuses in places such as the computer industry.

Members of the group said they were betrayed because the UI extended an invitation to stay in Jessup Hall as long as the protest remained peaceful.

While the group was removed from the building on April 8 at 11:30 p.m. because of violations of fire and safety codes, Ned Bertz, a UI graduate student and SAS member, said those charges were "spurious and false." He added that the potential for a fire on the night they were removed was no greater than it was the day SAS began its occupation.

The five group members arrested on April 8 said they will plead not guilty to the charges because they were simply trying to express their First Amendment rights.

Ann Rhodes, the vice president for university relations, said expression of those rights is allowed in a reasonable time, place and manner, and she reiterated that the UI still does not intend to pull out of the Fair Labor Association, which allegedly monitors the production of Hawkeye apparel.

Despite believing that the UI deceived the protesters, Bertz said SAS members want a public dialogue with the administration to discuss the best possible solution to ensure that Hawkeye apparel is not produced in sweatshop conditions.

"All of these things will eventually fall into place, and I'm convinced that the administration will eventually make the right decision," he said.

Although a governing board was not elected at the Worker Rights Consortium founding meeting on April 7, Bertz said, SAS members are enthusiastic about what happened and believe "by all accounts the convention was a success."

Although there was some uncertainty whether the UI could belong to both the labor association and the workers' consortium, officials from the consortium have indicated that they are not against joint memberships in the groups, which supports the UI's current stance, said Steve Parrott, the interim director of university relations.

Bertz said those comments were made out of the necessity to avoid a conflict between the two labor monitors.

SAS members said they will concentrate their efforts on educating the public about sweatshop labor. During their occupation in Jessup Hall, Sabers said, more than 50 classes and 1,000 students participated in teach-ins conducted by SAS members.

The group has scheduled a rally in front of Jessup Hall for Wednesday at 6 p.m., followed by a Town Meeting at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the pros and cons of the UI's membership in the labor association.

McCain voters weigh candidate options

Supporters of the ex-presidential candidate say they are in no rush to side with Gore or Bush.

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

ROSEVILLE, Mich. — Cast adrift by John McCain's failed candidacy, many of his supporters say they're unenthusiastic about the remaining presidential candidates and in no hurry to side with somebody new.

In interviews from Missouri to New Jersey, McCain backers said they admired his Vietnam War record and his promise to scrub the political system.

Many knew little else about the Arizona senator, but that hardly mattered. He has become, in a sense, a political mirage dancing in the eyes of voters thirsting for alternatives after the primaries narrowed their major-party choices to Republican George W. Bush and Democrat Al Gore.

"I can't listen to Gore; he's too boring. I can't vote for Bush; he's too shifty-eyed," said Karen Morely, a hospital administrator eating lunch at a diner in the Detroit suburb of St. Clair Shores. "McCain has got to be better, but I'll probably end up settling for Gore."

"I liked McCain. He came across as honest and down to earth," said Clay Johnson of Joliet, Ill. "I'm looking for that same trait in the ones who are left."

After he left the race with seven primary victories, McCain's supporters became a major target of both Gore and Bush. Mostly independent-minded voters, McCain backers could be pivotal in what is expected to be a tight race.

Recently, for example:

- A month after quitting, the Arizona senator scored about one-fifth of the GOP primary vote in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, two key general election states.

• McCain was favored more than Gore and Bush by voters who describe themselves as uncommitted in a hypothetical matchup of congressional candidates.

• McCain still gets major news coverage, as when he campaigned over the weekend for Rudolph Giuliani in the New York Senate race and said in a speech at Columbia University Monday that Hillary Rodham Clinton would be a star in the Senate but is just too liberal. Candidates nationwide are clamoring for his help this summer.

Seven months before the election, the Associated Press interviewed self-described McCain backers in five states that analysts say could determine the election: Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Cheers — Britain proposes 24-hour pubs

The government wants to scrap the 11 p.m. closing.

By Sue Leeman
Associated Press

LONDON — Hoping to cut down on binge drinking and pub brawls, the British government proposed a novel idea Monday: Allow bars to stay open 24 hours a day.

Scrapping the mandatory 11 p.m. closing time was the centerpiece of plans to liberalize and streamline licensing laws that were inspired by fears of munitions workers getting drunk during World War I.

"Fixed closing times encourage binge drinking around last orders,"

Home Secretary Jack Straw told the House of Commons. "The result is lots of people hitting the streets — and sometimes each other — at the same time." Under the government proposals, released as a discussion paper, any pub, licensed cafe or restaurant can apply to stay open for 24 hours, seven days a week.

While some U.S. cities and towns are moving toward earlier bar closings to combat heavy drinking, in Britain, the bureaucrats, police and bartenders all believe that longer hours — allowing for staggered closing times — will reduce binge drinking and alcohol-related crime.

Circus lion kills 6-year-old boy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A caged circus lion snatched a 6-year-old boy from his father's arm, dragged him through the bars and killed him, police in northeastern Brazil said Monday.

Jose dos Santos Fonseca and his son Jose got too close to the lions' cage during the Sunday night show of the Vostok Circus, Pernambuco State police said.

"He dragged my son away, and when I looked, my son was in his mouth," a weeping Fonseca said in a televised interview.

Police and circus employees were unable to remove the body from the cage, which held four other lions. Police then fired on the lions with rifles and handguns, killing three.

A circus employee who declined to be identified said in a TV interview that the lions were famished and had not been fed since April 6.

The show was held near Recife, approximately 1,160 miles northeast of Rio de Janeiro.

Psychiatrists meet with Elián's relatives to discuss handover

MIAMI (AP) — After refusing for months to return Elián González to his father, the boy's great-uncle met with government-appointed psychiatrists Monday to discuss how to make the transfer without traumatizing the child.

The meeting lasted only an hour, despite the government's suggestion that it would take as long as three hours. There was no immediate explanation from the two sides, but Ed Rosasco, the president of the hospital where the meeting took place, said it was cordial.

Immigration and Naturalization Service officials agreed to hold the meeting at Mercy Hospital to accommodate Elián's great-uncle Lazaro González, who said he could not leave his 21-year-old daughter, Marisleysis. The woman, who has been hospitalized since April 8 for stress and exhaustion.

"This is another instance of the government bending over backwards ... for Elián's well-being," INS spokeswoman Maria Cardona said.

At play with all the George W.'s in the snow fields of life

So, if this is April already, it must be snowing. And, just judging from a glance outside at the social climate, snow is general over the United States. Not that that comes as any surprise.

There's the political scene, of course, which doesn't, in the modest, poststructuralist way that American politics works, resemble much of a scene, really. More like non-banging hollowness with wasteland, populated with stick figures whimpering.

Those would be us, of course, as we realize that the Republicans and the Democrats weren't kidding; they truly did mean George W. Shrub vs. George W. Gore. It sounded like such a joke at first — say, last summer, when there was no snow (at least not the kind you paid any attention to) and it was the two George W.'s wandering in true frocks, wondering if they should wear their trousers rolled.

Ha-ha. The joke's on us.

So when isn't it? Not to pound it in, Elliot said, but you can see his Shrubness flitting about the country, raising some more millions of dollars because his original $70 million turned out to be walking-around change (or in this case, walking-around-McCain change), and re-inventing himself as the environmental candidate. Kind of curious, this greening of the Shrub. His first act as governor of Texas was to kill an emissions-testing program for vehicles because Texas drivers didn't want to be inconvenienced by ecological concerns. It's bad enough that they're inconvenienced by drivers who foolishly go the speed limit.

Subsequently, Houston leapt past Los Angeles to become the smoggiest city in the country, an act that Angelinos are still muttering about. Angelinos are mighty proud that, because they drive more than everyone else in the country combined, their air is worse than the confines of a steel mill. It makes their anti-smoking stance all the more heroic.

And then there's George W. Gore, busily re-inventing himself as the reform candidate most likely never to go to a Buddhist temple. That Gore, he's always inventing something.

Lately, he's been inventing a new mantra — no easy task when you've been through so many. "What is the sound of one McCain supporter clapping?" he mutters to himself all day long — and nights, too, when Tipper's fallen asleep after a hard day of scrubbing rock lyrics and he's on the computer, logged in and inventing the chat room.

And what of Senator McClean? When last seen, the Arizona senator was dashing about the country, using his new-found fame as a campaign-finance reform titan to raise Titanic amounts of campaign money. Semi-softly, McClean, reportedly eyeing a presidential run in 2004 if the Shrub gets trimmed this year, apparently has decided that if you can't beat 'em, jump into bed with 'em, even if it is the first date.

Well, he didn't make a very good virgin, anyway. The yoke collar of his white dress kept slipping down his shoulder, revealing the strap of his shoulder holster.

Of course, you don't have to look so far as the national scene if you want to find a good snow job. Take our own little university, for instance. Which is not so little anymore. Nor our own. But who's counting? Besides the bean counters in Jessup, I mean.

The bean counters had their day in the sun last Saturday (well, actually, their night in the moonlight), when they decided they'd had enough free speech and sent Public Safety in to bust the SAS protest in Jessup. At 11:35 p.m.

It seems that after a week of the protest, the university suddenly discovered the SAS was blocking access to Jessup. Well, thank god the bean counters finally woke up. There are a lot of times that I, like so many other people, would like to use Jessup at 11:35 p.m. on a Saturday. And I, like so many other people, certainly do not want to be inconvenienced by a group of people who for some reason don't want our beloved Tigger Hawk being made by 14-year-old girls making $1 American every two or three weeks, depending on the phase of the moon. Those 14-year-old girls should feel lucky that we allow them to make our beloved Tigger Hawk in the first place, let alone pay them.

That's the whole point of the global economy. Fourteen-year-olds make the Tigger Hawk, we wear it, the UI becomes one of the 10 best public universities in the country, and the two George W.'s re-invent running for president. What could be simpler to understand?

Have a good snowy season.

EDITORIAL

Unmasking voluntary racist blindfolds

Until recently, people at the UI went about their daily lives wearing voluntary blindfolds, not willing to face the reality that racism exists. Much of the UI community was either too ignorant to notice or not willing to face the concept that something so taboo as racism could be present in our picturesque little town.

The dental school has been the target of several threats over the past couple weeks from a person or persons called Minorityrid, Minoritygetout, the Committee of Minority Flight and Minorityout. It started with an e-mail sent to the dean of the College of Dentistry and a few faculty members, and stated the group's desire to rid the school of minorities.

Dental school students then started receiving threatening e-mails. The person or persons did not stop there — somebody went to a student's home and left a personalized threat. Soon thereafter, a lab coat in the dental school building was set on fire, and an e-mail was sent claiming responsibility for the fire.

With all the threats, the dental school has become a prison. Only one door remains unlocked in the Dental Science Building and students are uneasy in classes — places that should be non-threatening. The UI Department of Public Safety, the FBI, Iowa City police and the Johnson County Attorney are all working together to find the person or persons responsible for the hell recently created. Finding who is behind the hate will solve some things, but not nearly enough.

It always seems easiest to find someone to point a finger at or scold when anything controversial happens, but this does not necessarily fix everything. Yes, finding the person will stop the threats and will allow the students and faculty to continue their days in a "normal" fashion, but racism will still exist.

Punishing this person will make everyone feel a lot better and momentarily let the UI believe the school is once again perfect, but it will not be. There are more racist people out there — hopefully, less violent than the current group — who still live in worlds of hatred and delusion.

Everyone, whether she or he wants to admit it or not, probably knows someone who is prejudiced. We can't keep turning our heads when we see mild signs of prejudice every day. Addressing the situation when we encounter it, no matter how small it seems, sends out the message to the rest of the community that prejudiced behavior is not acceptable.

Unfortunately, not everyone is willing to take the time to learn about those who are different from herself or himself. It is even more disappointing that people living in a community of higher learning can't take any of their precious time to open their eyes and get past looks.

The UI can't solve this underlying problem because it is much larger than the issue of some jerk sending threatening e-mail messages. There isn't an easy answer that will eliminate prejudice, or someone would have fixed it already. But shielding ourselves from the general problem is never going to help the situation.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

'Cause-heads' need to move on

Sweatshops are bad. I think that in this day and age, it is impossible to comprehend how people can work in such conditions. However, this is going on in another country thousands of miles away, and far be it from us to tell other countries how they should run themselves. Do we even know if Hawkeye apparel is made in sweatshops? From what I see, these are all based on allegations and there is no concrete evidence that this is happening. So, to SAS: your point is taken, MOVE ON! Ms. Coleman has already put the process in motion to leave the Fair Labor Association by signing the letter of intent to join the Workers Rights Consortium, yet you still continue to protest. What more do you want? Those five students arrested on April 8 deserved it because they knowingly violated several policies regarding student protests in Jessup Hall. There are so many other issues that the UI has that can be dealt with, such as the 2002 tuition increases and the recent racial tensions in the College of Dentistry. If you SAS people would put even half the effort you spend on protesting sweatshops into these other issues, it could have had a more positive impact on students at the UI. It is also very hard to feel apathetic toward a group who is so hypocritical. More often than not there are photos of protesters wearing clothing that was manufactured in sweatshops. So the next time you take a stand so adamantly, make sure you research your cause from more than one source, because it really makes you look like a bunch of "cause-heads" trying to find something to complain about.

A reply to Professor Lee, commending Ned Bertz

Dear Mr. Lee, I am writing in response to Friday's open letter (DI, 4/7) to Ned Bertz in which you criticize the Students Against Sweatshops for "current uncivil acts on the governing body of the university" and using "confrontation and coercion" to physically force President Mary Sue Coleman to take action. You have grossly misrepresented their actions over the past year and in the past few days. In addition, you have maligned Ned Bertz's character in falsely accusing him of "presumed intellectual luxury and vanity."

In answer to your unfounded assertion that members of SAS have used force to "initiate physical fights," I ask you to consult with Chuck Green, the director of UI Public Safety. Mr. Green has repeatedly praised the students for their "mature" and "responsible" conduct over the past week. Members of SAS have at no time engaged in acts of violence or physical coercion. Anyone involved in any stage of this process will attest to the fact that they have at all times practiced nonviolent, peaceful, civil disobedience.

I ask you also to acknowledge the time-honored tradition of civil disobedience in achieving results where "socially accepted methods," as you call them, have failed. You repeatedly refer to the university's tradition of "consensus-building" as a means of changing the status quo. I ask you, as a member of an organization that recommended that President Coleman withdraw from the Fair Labor Association, who is involved in this consensus? President Coleman's own human rights organizations, the informed members of SAS, and hundreds of students, faculty, and citizens of Iowa City who have petitioned for a withdrawal from the FLA have all offered their input as part of this "consensus-building" process. President Coleman has unilaterally ignored this input and has personally chosen to remain with the labor association. Mr. Lee, how are President Coleman's actions what you call consensus?

In addition to your misrepresentation of the actions of members of SAS, I am offended by your belief that students who have not personally experienced the living conditions under which workers in these factories suffer should not take a stand against their own university's complicity in these exploitative conditions. During Thursday's rally outside Jessup Hall, a member of a union of striking steelworkers commended SAS on just this very point. He pointed out that while he was fighting for the direct amelioration of his own living conditions, he could only express his admiration for a group of students fighting for a cause from which they, personally, gain nothing. These students are extremely sensitive to the fact that there are real people involved in this battle. For this very reason they oppose a boycott of goods that would eliminate desperately needed jobs.

As for Ned Bertz (and I refer to him specifically because you have chosen him, personally, as the target of your attack), he has spent a considerable amount of time (more, at any rate, than your requisite "single day" in South Asia, Africa and South America. While never presuming to speak for anyone who lives with the reality of dire poverty, he certainly does not approach this situation as one from the First World presuming to solve the ills of the Third World. Along with experiencing these conditions firsthand and working to change them, an effort for which he was awarded the Phillip J. Hubbard Human Rights Award in 1999, he has devoted his time at this university, both inside and outside the classroom, to informing the public about human rights abuses around the world. Ned Bertz designs and teaches courses on India and South Asia that explore the inequities of "development." This semester he is focusing on women's rights in a comparative course on India and Africa. In addition to this, he has formed an organization, in concert with a human rights group in India, called the International Alliance of People's Movements. Through the group, he strives to inform the rest of the university community about human-rights issues. I suggest you consider Ned Bertz's words and actions as a member of this university community before again engaging in such a violent, unfounded and uninformed personal attack on his character.

I commend Ned Bertz and the SAS for the actions they are taking on the sweatshop issue. I sincerely hope they do not follow your advice and turn their backs on an issue that does not personally affect them. I also urge President Mary Sue Coleman to follow the recommendations of the SAS, human-rights organizations, and you, Mr. Lee, and signal her full commitment to ending sweatshop abuse by withdrawing from the labor association.

Memorial rids personal demons

Kim Barnes encountered childhood and relationship memories with angst while writing her newest memoir.

By Tyler Steward
 The Daily Iowan

When Kim Barnes finished the manuscript of her most recent memoir, Hungry for the World, she packaged it and placed it in the trunk of her car, intending to mail it immediately. Instead, it remained there for several weeks.

"I couldn't let go of it, it frightened me so much," she said in a telephone interview with The Daily Iowan. The memoir details a period of Barnes' life when she was in an abusive and sadistic relationship. Revisiting that time as she wrote was, she said, deeply unsettling. "It's a story of shame, so it frightens me on that level," she said. "It's not that I care necessarily that people know these things about me, but there was that sense of not wanting to be (my younger self) anymore that scared me to let her out of the closet."

Barnes is scheduled to read from the memoir, her second, tonight at 8 p.m. at Prairie Lights Books.

After introducing Barnes' unusual childhood — her family attended a Pentecostal church, which both repulsed and fascinated her — her memoir describes her relationship with a man named David Jenkins, which was initiated soon after she left her family at the age of 18.

While writing the memoir, Barnes found herself facing much about the relationship she had avoided: It's reminiscence of the patriarchy of the church and the family she had left behind, her own sense of powerlessness while in the relationship and her fear of Jenkins and the threats he made. "When I started writing this book, I had nightmares," she said. "I slept with my rifle when my husband wasn't home. Any time I walked into a room, I looked at every object that could be used as a weapon of defense."

Barnes described the writing of the book as "purgative." But she insisted that personal catharsis cannot be the reason for the creation of a memoir.

"The first thing I have to do is serve the art," she said. "The second thing is more individual — for me, it's more a duty, or a calling."

"I believe I'm bearing witness, that when I break a code of silence, I'm breaking it for other people who are reading this."

She traces her love for memoir writing, in part, to Terry Tempest Williams, a personal essayist noted for her passionate writing about the West.

"She broke down barriers for me," Barnes said. "I realized you could be emotional and still make it legitimate in a literary fashion."

Barnes, who lives with her family above the Clearwater River in Idaho, is currently working on a novel, which she describes as a retelling of Shane. Though she is planning to write a third memoir, she welcomes the new novel as "a rest stop."

"I wanted to work on something that isn't going to tear me down to the bone," she said.

Infrastructure bill to help UI renovate those for education. Then you have to find other sources for funding," Gipp said. "If gambling profits fall below $60 million, then grants for these buildings will be discontinued."

The rebuilding fund also supports other infrastructure projects around the state and has funded past UI building renovations, including Schaeffer Hall, the Engineering Building and the construction of the new Biology Building, he said.

The biology department has been waiting since the 1980s for the renovations to be funded and completed, said Jeff McCullough, a biology department administrator, who has been closely involved with the planning of the building's construction.

"We're very excited about it. It's a long time coming," he said.

The original building was built in 1902, and many mechanical systems are from that time period, he said. Currently, there is no central air conditioning, the heating system is steam radiators, and the furnishings in the teaching lab are from the early 1900s.

"Because it doesn't have modern heating and air conditioning, you can't do modern science," he said. "You can't have chemical fume hoods, because there are no exhaust systems to pull fumes away. We'll take a full piece of the department, that makes up one third of the building, that is barely usable, and make it completely usable."

The government's counting on you

CENSUS

the U.S. government," said Celine Hartwig, the assistant to the director of residence services.

The UI's efforts to inform students of the census began in February with posters, notices in newsletters and informational cards, she said.

"I'm hoping for, of course, a 100 percent response rate," she said. "But it's a little early to guess how we're going to do."

According to census guidelines, individuals must file as their city of residence the city in which they are living on April 1, even if they are out-of-state students, Hoshi said. This means that students should not expect their parents to include them on their hometown census.

While Ames has spent more than $15,000 in prizes for Iowa State University students who claim the city as their hometown, Iowa City has not done so, Wilson said.

Federal funding for education, services such as streets and sewers, representation in Congress and attracting businesses to the area are all reasons that students should complete the census forms, Hoshi said.

"People spend more time waiting in line than it takes to fill out a census form," Wilson said. "It's a matter of the citizen's responsibility."

One out of six addresses will receive a long form, which takes 45 minutes to complete and contains 53 questions, including whether your toilets flush and if your relatives are sane, according to the New York Times. Other people will receive the short form, which takes approximately eight minutes to complete, Hoshi said.

Failing to complete and return the census form is illegal, carrying various penalties. Wilson, who said he wanted to stay "proactive," would not divulge

There are penalties but they aren't enforced. Why penalize people for cutting their own throats? All you're doing is hurting yourself and the community.

— McKenzly Wilson,

the manager of the local census office

the exact penalties.

The penalty is a $100 fine, according to the Times; it hasn't been levied in decades. Chuck Hagel, R-Neb., and Charles Robb, D-Va., are working on legislation to remove the fine.

"There are penalties but they aren't enforced," Wilson said. "Why penalize people for cutting their own throats? All you're doing is hurting yourself and the community."

As of Monday night, Iowa City's response rate was 64 percent and Johnson County's was 65 percent — numbers Hoshi said can't be compared with other communities because of population differences.

The Census Bureau began "ground canvassing" in Iowa City this week to remind residents to return their census forms.

A door-to-door campaign called "enumeration" will begin during the first week of May to contact residents whose forms haven't been processed by April 18.

"Compared with 1990, we're above target," Wilson said.

"Be Counted" forms will be available at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., and the Civic Center, 410 E. Washington St., until April 14 for those who need new census forms, said Marian Karr, city clerk.

It may be hard being a minor in a 21 town

BARS

UI junior Joe Henderson said there might be a period of shift if the council raises the minimum age for the bars, and basically, the action will transfer to house parties.

"On a campus such as this, people are going to get alcohol from somewhere," he said.

If students are going to get their alcohol from house parties — an environment typically not conducive to security — some people are concerned about the lack of bouncers or bartenders to check IDs and regulate the service of drinks, said Brian Flynn, a manager of the Sports Column, 12 S. Dubuque St.

"At least here (the bars), it is in a controlled environment with experienced people trained to recognize when someone has had too much to drink as opposed to apartments or house parties," he said.

The distance of off-campus house parties from downtown could lead to more drunk driving, said Nic Mercer, a UI senior.

"If an ordinance is passed, drinking and driving will be increased — or at least the chances will increase," he said. "It's a lot safer to be drinking in a bar than out driving around."

The city of Ames has an ordinance requiring all bar patrons to be 21 or older. Approximately 20 years ago, when the minimum age was raised from 18 to 21, Ames police Sgt. Mike Johns said there wasn't much of an increase in neighborhood house parties.

"Passing a 21 ordinance would significantly reduce the entire drinking population," he said. "The student argument is that they are just going to the bar for the atmosphere. But any time they're in that atmosphere, the likelihood that they will drink there increases."

Police patrols have increased in Ames neighborhoods, Johns said.

"We put a significant amount of energy in alcohol control (in the neighborhoods)," he said.

Most Iowa City police activity takes place downtown, said Officer Steve Kivi, who patrols downtown on weekend nights.

"You can't say we're going to cure the underage drinking problem by making all the bars 21. There's more issues that need to be addressed," he said. "It'll just displace people. What it really comes down to is that people who want to drink will drink."

At house parties, activities that may otherwise be policed at a bar could be left uncontrolled. Kyle Jensen, a senior at Iowa State University, said there's not much to do in Ames for 19- and 20-year-olds besides house parties, and substances found there can include more than beer.

"Anything goes on, including drugs other than just alcohol," he said. "I've seen people sniffing cocaine; people have tried to sell me meth and cocaine."

Though Jim Clayton, the owner of the Soap Opera, 119 E. College St., recognizes that underage drinking may not be eliminated by raising the age to enter bars, he says the community would benefit if there was an effort made to reduce it.

"Some of the problem may be moved, but it's not going to be as costly as it is downtown," he said.

Clayton, a member of the Stepping Up Project, said bar owners have been beneficiaries of illegal sale of alcohol to minors, and an ordinance to prevent minors from entering bars would curb the illegal sales.

"It is against the law for someone under 21 to consume alcohol, so why should we put someone in the position to do that?" he said.

By raising the entry age, Dave Moore, a co-owner of the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., said underage drinkers would find other means of entering the bars.

"Everybody will be getting fake IDs," he said. "It's just going to make criminals out of 18-, 19- and 20-year-olds."

Carbondale, Ill., the site of Southern Illinois University, has passed several city ordinances in recent years regulating the age of admittance in the bars.

Carbondale allowed 18-year-olds in the bars until the early '90s, said Jeff Doherty, the Carbondale city manager. In 1995, the legal age was raised from 19 to 20, and in 1996, from 20 to 21. In 1997, the council lowered the legal age back to 19.

Two of the councilors elected in 1997 were supported in large part by the students, and one of their promises to the students was to allow 19-year-olds in the bars again, Doherty said.

"The students argued that the bars were places to socialize and dance and had a more-controlled atmosphere than private house parties," he said.

The subject is being discussed now as a result of urging from Stepping Up to pass a 21 ordinance, said Councilor Mike O'Donnell.

Councilor Steven Kanner said he hasn't heard much input from people under 21 about the issue.

"I think it would be good to hear from that constituency and if both sides had more conversation," he said.

A task force created by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce has also been looking into the problems of underage and binge drinking, said Randy Larson, a member of the task force and a co-owner of the Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St.

The task force will give the council documentation of its findings to help the council in its consideration of the age issue, Larson said.

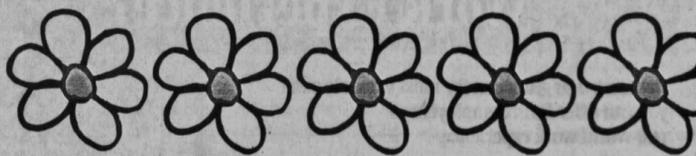

The Airliner is not one of the bars for or against the age ordinance, Larson said, but he would like the council to make an informed decision.

"Underage drinking is like a balloon," he said. "If you squeeze a balloon, it just gets bigger somewhere else."

NATION BRIEF

McCain says Rodham Clinton would be Senate 'star'

NEW YORK — He's certainly not endorsing her, but Arizona Sen. John McCain on Monday predicted that if Hillary Rodham Clinton is elected to the Senate, she will be a "star" in the tradition of Robert F. Kennedy.

"This is the first time in history a first lady has run," the former candidate for the Republican presidential nomination told students at Columbia University. "She would be a star of the quality that has not been seen in the Senate since Bobby Kennedy was elected senator from the state of New York."

"Many of us believe that if (Vice President Al) Gore loses and she is elected to the Senate, she'd be running for the president of the United States," McCain said.

Rodham Clinton has said that if elected she will serve her full six-year term and that she is not interested in the presidency.

Asked to clarify his remarks, McCain said, "I believe she'd be very liberal, and I don't believe she'd be good for the country."

A day earlier, McCain campaigned in New York City for Rodham Clinton's Republican rival for Senate, Mayor Rudolph Giuliani.

He told the students Giuliani would bring "credentials to the Senate that are much needed and very sadly lacking. Giuliani understands the challenges of a major city" on issues like crime and transportation, he said.

Fizer to enter NBA draft

■ With a family to support, Iowa State's Marcus Fizer opts for the NBA.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

AMES — Marcus Fizer decided he could do more for his family as a rookie in the NBA than as a senior at Iowa State.

Fizer, a first-team All-American who led the Cyclones to their best season ever, announced Monday he would skip his final college season and make himself eligible for the NBA draft.

"I really think this is the time I can do all the things I've always wanted to do for my family," said Fizer, who's engaged and has two children.

"I have a heart where everyone in my family is within it. It's going to be a comfortable feeling to know that I will have a chance to help all of them."

His announcement was no surprise.

Fizer's NBA stock rose throughout the season as he followed one big game with another in leading Iowa State to the Big 12 championship. The 6-foot-8, 265-pound forward is now projected to be one of the top picks in the June 28 draft.

"The timing's right," Iowa State coach Larry Eustachy said. "He's certainly a lottery pick."

Fizer has not hired an agent and said he was leaving open the possibility of returning to Iowa State next season if he felt that would improve his position in the draft.

Eustachy was not counting on that happening.

"He's not coming back," Eustachy said. "It's just hard for him to tell everybody this is it."

Fizer averaged 22.8 points and 7.7 rebounds and shot 58 percent from the field as Iowa State set a school

Hawkeyes prepare for new look

■ Iowa women's basketball coach Lisa Bluder will implement an up-tempo style of play during the off-season.

By Lisa Colonno
The Daily Iowan

New coach Lisa Bluder is ready to make some changes in the Iowa women's basketball team's game.

When her hiring was announced, Bluder emphasized that she wants to bring her up-tempo style of play into Carver-Hawkeye Arena and increase Iowa's height in the post position.

Iowa junior guard Cara Consuegra said that she is ready for Bluder's style of play.

"That's exactly what I want," she said. "That's actually one of the things we said we want for sure in a coach; a coach that will let us run."

At Drake University, Bluder's Bulldogs led the Missouri Valley Conference in scoring last season, averaging 74.6 points per game.

"We were a pretty up-tempo team," Bluder said. "We like to score a lot of baskets. So, we enjoy putting the ball in the hole, but at the same time I believe in a strong defensive effort."

Drake finished seventh in the MVC in scoring defense, and led the MVC in offensive rebounds, averaging 41.1 per game. The Bulldogs also finished fourth in the MVC in defensive rebounds, averaging 36.2 per game.

Iowa averaged 67.3 points per game, which placed them seventh in the Big Ten in scoring offense. The Hawkeyes finished 10th in the conference in scoring defense, sixth in offensive rebounds with 39.5 per game and 10th in defensive rebounds with 39.3 per game.

Bluder said that changes first need to come in Iowa's quarter-court game before changes can occur in the full court. She will be recruiting to fill this position in the future, but Iowa's current players will have to adjust next season.

"The key position is the inside position," Bluder said. "More height obviously (is needed). One player at 6'4" on this roster is not enough to contend with rebounding and the inside game."

Amber O'Brien, a freshman last season, was Iowa's tallest player. She averaged 3.6 points and three rebounds per game. Freshman Tracy Schrupp, sophomore Beatrice Bullock and junior Randi Peterson all came in at 6'2". Peterson led all post players, averaging 6.7 points per game and 8.1 rebounds.

Cyclones to challenge Pearl Field perfection

■ This afternoon, the Iowa softball team hopes to build on its undefeated streak at home.

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

Iowa has played under the sun and on top of snow, but it hasn't had to battle Cyclones, until now.

Iowa hosts Iowa State in a 4 p.m. matchup at Pearl Field today. This game marks an end to a week of non-conference play, as Iowa heads back into Big Ten action this weekend.

Iowa State is losers of five of its last six. Robyn Riedler ranks first on the team with 16 RBIs, while Erica Martinez leads the Cyclones with four home runs. Iowa State uses four pitchers, with Martinez boasting the best ERA at 3.22. Jen Bice leads her team in wins with eight and strikeouts with 59.

The No. 14 Hawkeyes (27-7) are headed in the opposite direction. They are winners of their last 14 games and are undefeated at home, but Iowa coach Gayle Blevins says the Cyclones always play her team tough.

Iowa State leads the all-time series, 26-21-1, with each team notching a victory last year. Jill Knopf, a senior from Des Moines, knows the Cyclones are the intrastate rival but that is not important.

What is important is a win. "We play Iowa State every year," she said. "It's another game and another good team we have to prepare for."

Whatever the Hawkeyes are doing to prepare for teams seems to be working. The bats are hot as of late and the entire roster is in on the action.

What: Iowa (27-7) hosts Iowa State (15-15)
When: Today at 4 p.m.
Where: Pearl Field in Coralville

"We're starting to see different people come around offensively, and our pitching has been real solid," Blevins said. "The defense is playing more like a unit. It's a real young infield, and it just takes game experience."

One of those hitters producing in the clutch is Megan Atkins. The junior from Moreno Valley, Calif., has stepped up her play and recorded the game-winning RBI against Detroit Mercy on Saturday.

"The big problem I have had in the past is my mental game," Atkins said. "When I wasn't hitting as well, I didn't have a set routine. Now, I have a routine. I step out of the box, step back into the box, and I say 'Confidence.'"

That word seems to hover above every Hawkeye whether on the field or in the dugout, but Knopf is mindful of Iowa's need to stay focused.

Green Bay's Mark Chmura arrested for sexual assault

HARTLAND, Wis. — NFL star Mark Chmura was arrested Monday after his 17-year-old baby sitter accused him of sexually assaulting her in a bathroom during a party at which they played a drinking game together.

Robert Gessert, a friend of the Green Bay Packers tight end, also was arrested. An 18-year-old woman accused him of sexually assaulting her in a hot tub at Gessert's home at the party after a prom, according to court records.

Chmura appeared in court in an orange jumpsuit with his hands bound in chains. Chmura and Gessert were released on $5,000 bail and are due in court May 15.

Chmura, 31, and Gessert, 42, have not been charged. Police are recommending a charge of third-degree sexual assault, a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

A search warrant filed in Waukesha County Circuit Court said the 17-year-old girl told police Chmura led her into a bathroom at Gessert's house early Sunday, locked the door, removed her jeans and underwear and had sexual inter-

Cubs silence Braves at Wrigley

CHICAGO — Wrigley Field's ivy was winter brown, players wore hoods to protect their ears against numbing temperatures and a light snow began to fall in the ninth inning.

Cold? Not the Chicago Cubs. Home had never felt better.

Putting a tiring and trying trip to Tokyo, St. Louis and Cincinnati behind them, the Cubs came back to Chicago.

And then, in dramatic fashion, they came back against the Atlanta Braves, scoring four runs in the ninth inning Monday for a 4-3 win in their home opener.

"I don't think I've ever had an opening day with snow. It was fun," said Shane Andrews, who hit a game-tying, three-run homer off Kerry Ligtenberg. Pinch-hitter Jeff Reed then won it with a single.

"The crowd kept us in it," Andrews said. "We played some tough games and had some tough losses. The trip was awful long. We left spring training it seems like a month ago."

Hawkeyes look to best Iowa State in rematch

Iowa coach Scott Broghamer warned his team against overconfidence coming into today's game.

By Greg Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team faces a unique problem in its game with Iowa State today — overconfidence.

Just six days ago, the Hawkeyes (12-19) used a season-high 16 runs and 18 hits to blow the Cyclones out of Iowa Field, 16-3. For an encore, Iowa took its first Big Ten series win since April 1998, winning three of four from Purdue. This time around, Iowa must avoid looking ahead to an important Big Ten home series with Penn State this weekend.

The game begins at 3 p.m. at Cap Timm Field in Ames, and will be broadcast live on 800-AM.

"Iowa State's going to be a good team," Iowa coach Scott Broghamer said. "We thumped them pretty good here last week, and I know they're going to be ready for us (today). We just have to go out and keep playing."

The Cyclones are 9-24 on the season, and are only 3-13 in Big 12 play. They have lost 11 of their past 14 games, including two of three in a home series last weekend with Texas Tech.

With the series win over

Purdue, Iowa moved into a fourth-place tie in the Big Ten with Ohio State and the Boilermakers. Penn State sits in third, at 7-4. Today's matchup, as well as Wednesday's home game with Northern Iowa, will be important to build momentum heading into the weekend.

Broghamer doesn't expect a letdown from his team. He praised his young Hawks for keeping an even keel.

"Every game is important, and you've got to go out and make sure you play every game like Sunday," Broghamer said. "What I like about these guys is that they don't get too high, and they don't get too low."

Clutch play, both on offense and defense, characterized the weekend's success. The Hawkeyes got every break possible, and backed it up with salty pitching performances from Ryan Prahm and Chad Blackwell, who combined for 13.2 innings of shutout ball over two games.

The team's collective average is down 26 points from last year's .315 mark. But why worry, as long as you're winning?

"If someone doesn't do the job, the good thing about this team is that someone will pick them up," catcher Alex Dvorsky said. "And that's what you need to be a good ballclub. If someone leaves runners on, you pick them up and get the job done."

Minnesota imposes more sanctions on basketball program

The Golden Gophers will lose six more scholarships because of academic fraud.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — University of Minnesota President Mark Yudof imposed more sanctions Monday on its men's basketball program for the academic cheating scandal uncovered last year.

The university already had banned the team from postseason play for one year and put itself on NCAA probation for an unspecified period of time.

The school will eliminate six scholarships over four academic years; reduce official visits from 12 to eight for the next three academic years; reduce the number of days recruiters can watch a prospective player practice or play from five to four; and cut the number of coaches allowed to evaluate off-campus during the summer.

The school also will return to the NCAA 90 percent of the estimated $350,000 it received from the Big Ten Conference from participating in the 1993-94, 1994-95 and 1996-97 NCAA Division I men's basketball championship tournaments with ineligible players, Yudof said. The money will come out of the athletic department, according to vice president for administration Tonya Moten Brown.

"While no one likes imposing penalties on people who were in no way involved in academic misconduct, it is with their best interest foremost in our minds that we take this action today," Yudof said.

"Imposing these sanctions gets the clock ticking, allowing the program to emerge from the penalty phase as quickly as possible, and gives our players and recruits clear information about the future of the program."

"These sanctions are meaningful and appropriate, further demonstrating to the NCAA that the University of Minnesota is serious about responding to the findings of our investigation," Yudof said.

The sanctions come before Wednesday's signing deadline for the upcoming season.

Yudof said he imposed the sanctions at the recommendations of Moten Brown, interim men's athletics director Tom Moe and basketball coach Dan Monson.

"We have been very, very harsh on ourselves. This was an appropriate response," Moe said Monday.

"This actually does help (recruiting), as odd as it sounds," said Monson. "The worst punishment our basketball program could have is the unknown, because other schools can take the unknown and use it to great advantage."

The sanctions were announced just as Saint Paul Pioneer Press reporter George Dohrmann was named a Pulitzer Prize winner for his work reporting on the scandal.

Dohrmann and his team reported that a tutor did work for student athletes, athletes earned credits from classes they never knew about, faculty were bullied by the basketball program staff and head coach Clem Haskins told players to lie about the scope of the cheating. The school later bought out Haskins' contract for $1.5 million. Haskins denied any wrongdoing.

The NCAA is still considering what sanctions to levy against the university, which spent nearly $1.9 million on the basketball probe.

"This should encourage the NCAA to look away from additional penalties," Moten Brown said.

Transition season a success for Hawkeyes

Women's gymnastics coach Mike Lorenzen thinks he has one of the nation's top recruiting classes

Molly Thomas
The Daily Iowan

It was a chance to start over. The Iowa women's gymnastics team found hope with a new coaching staff this year after a 1998-99 season of controversy and disappointment. Though the Hawkeyes did not improve from their seventh place Big Ten finish last year, they sent four individuals to NCAA regionals, which was the most gymnasts to compete since the whole team traveled in 1992.

Under the direction of coach Mike Lorenzen, and assistant coaches Joanna Parrett and Kris Buchheister, the Hawkeyes found a positive outlook on gymnastics and improved the reputation of the sport throughout the community. Lorenzen is pleased with the

Brett Roseman/The Daily Iowan

"I think the team gained a lot of structure and organization with their workouts and conditioning this year," Lorenzen said. "In the long run it created a stronger, healthier team that provided execution and consistency."

One of the major highlights of the season came when junior Giselle Boniforti won the uneven bars title at the Big Ten Championships. Lorenzen said that no one can remember the last time an Iowa gymnast won a title at Big Tens, so Boniforti definitely left her mark on the season.

Another accomplishment came when the Hawkeyes broke the team record for the uneven bars at Carver-Hawkeye Arena against Illinois. According to junior Angie Hungerford, the Hawkeyes are looking to break many more records in the future.

"This year was a turning point for women's gymnastics," Hungerford said. "We found unification as a team and we were finally competing with self-confidence. Next year, we are going to come up in the Big Ten rankings and break more records."

The Hawkeyes signed four strong recruits to come in as freshmen next season. Though no official rankings were posted, Lorenzen believes that Iowa's recruiting class is in the Top 10 in the nation.

The Hawkeyes signed Junior Olympic vault and floor national champion Stephanie Gran, Michigan's state champion Brandy Killian, Capital Cup champion Alexis Meday and bronze medalist in Virginia's state meet Nicole Long. Lorenzen said the new class will provide depth and be immediate contributors to the team.

"When we combine the new recruits with the rest of the team we are going to have a very strong line up," Lorenzen said. "They all bring in competitive experience at very high levels. Three of the four gymnasts have the ability to perform mid-39 all-around scores and with scores like that we can jump to the Top 15 in the nation."

McEnroe dances on the edge again at Davis Cup

As captain of the United States Davis Cup team, John McEnroe has to get used to sitting around.

By Beth Harris
Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Slowly, and with much squirming, clapping, prodding and grimacing, John McEnroe is getting the hang of being U.S. Davis Cup captain.

"To sit there and not be running around, I'm not used to that," McEnroe said Sunday after the Americans eked out a 3-2 victory over the Czech Republic to advance to the semifinals against Spain in July.

"I'm accustomed to running around, getting some of the nerves out," he said.

His squad rallied from a 2-1 deficit for the second straight round. In McEnroe's debut as captain, the Americans faced elimination in Zimbabwe before winning both singles matches on the final day.

"These have been two tough ties," he said. "The scary thing is it's going to be tougher, if anything."

McEnroe's job confines him to a court-side seat where he ponders ways to motivate players like Andre Agassi and Pete Sampras, who aren't used to having anyone tell them how to play tennis.

After Sampras was dealt a humiliating straight-set defeat by Jiri Novak in Friday's opening singles, McEnroe was at a loss at what to say to a player who was once his opponent and doubles partner.

"It's not easy to know how to motivate sometimes when you're around them all the time, and particularly when you're not around them that often," he said. "It was a situation where certainly I feel like I could have done better."

But McEnroe rates highly with Agassi for his direct approach.

"Under normal circumstances, you're feeling like, 'I've done this my whole life ... so I don't want to hear anything,'" Agassi said. "But it can be an asset ... John will never detour you from your path. He'll only say things that keep you focused on the things that particular person needs."

And he isn't afraid to rip his players. After Saturday's doubles loss by Alex O'Brien and Jared Palmer left the Americans trailing 2-1, McEnroe said his team was "acting like spoiled kids."

He criticized his players' work ethic, and singled out Sampras for not hustling in the loss to Jiri Novak on Friday.

"I'm sure John was as frustrated as much as I was sitting there watching, that I couldn't get my game going," Sampras said. "I was trying hard. I was doing whatever I could."

Early in Sunday's fifth and decisive match against Slava Dosedel, Sampras strained his left thigh on a running forehand. He limped back to his chair on the changeover, where a trainer massaged his leg.

Bunting hangs from Pacific Bell Park a day before the San Francisco Giants regular season opener against the Los Angeles Dodgers in San Francisco, Monday.

New Giants home a far cry from old

■ Developers hope Pacific Bell Park will erase fans' memories of chilly Candlestick Park.

By Rob Gloster
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — With its view of San Francisco Bay beyond the outfield wall, the Giants' new Pacific Bell Park is being compared to the Sydney Opera House in Australia.

"No other team has the site that we've got. The views from the upper deck are spectacular," says team owner Peter Magowan, whose $319 million stadium makes its official debut Tuesday when the Giants play host to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The park affords many fans a spectacular glimpse of the San Francisco Bay Bridge and the Oakland hills in the distance. But one Giant great is much more interested in what he'll be able to see on the field.

"Who cares about the view? Let's play ball," Willie Mays says. "This isn't a condo, it's a ballpark."

The 40,800-seat park, the first privately financed major league baseball stadium in 38 years, has plenty of curiosities for everyone to see. There's a 9-foot bronze sculpture of Mays at the stadium's main entrance, a 26-foot mitt above the left-field bleachers and an asymmetrical outfield wall that may drive fielders crazy.

The 20,000-pound mitt, built of fiberglass over a steel frame, is 36 times the size of the actual glove — a 1927 Rawlings — from which it was modeled. It sits 518 feet from home plate, reachable by some of today's power hitters.

The four-fingered mitt was designed by Gerard Howland, who grew up playing cricket in London. But he quickly learned about the love affair between little kids and their baseball gloves, and turned that into the centerpiece of the stadium.

"I like all the icons of baseball, and I thought of the glove. I don't know if anyone ever throws their glove away," Howland says. "I think it added a lot of warmth to the stadium."

The new park has touches of Wrigley Field, such as the hand-operated scoreboard in right-center and the cozy playing surface — it has very little foul territory,

There's a 25-foot-high brick wall in right field, which should lead to wacky bounces, and five portholes in that wall for passers-by to watch the game for free. The right-field foul pole is just 309 feet from home plate. Balls hit high enough over the right-field wall will land in a channel off San Francisco Bay.

The Dodgers worked out at the ballpark Monday. Though manager Davey Johnson says he likes the stadium's quirks, he is concerned about the bullpen pitching mounds being so close to the foul lines.

"I don't like it. I think it's an accident waiting to happen. I don't like humps or jagged things on ballfields," he said, echoing criticisms by Milwaukee manager Davey Lopes after an exhibition game at the park. "And I see some calls umpires are going to miss already."

Begun in December 1997, it was designed by HOK Sport and resembles the three major league parks that architectural firm designed in the 1990s — Camden Yards in Baltimore, Jacobs Field in Cleveland and Coors Field in Denver.

Tigers limp into their new park with baseball's worst record

■ The Tigers' new home will sport the longest dimensions in the major leagues.

By Harry Atkins
Associated Press

DETROIT — Comerica Park, a spacious new ballpark in the heart of downtown Detroit, has all the amenities, from statues of Cobb and Kaline to liquid fire-works and a carousel.

Alas, it also has the Tigers. After opening the season with a win, the Tigers lost five straight and will have the worst record in baseball when they open their new stadium against the Seattle Mariners on Tuesday.

"Don't be misled by what this team did the first week," said manager Phil Garner, who expressed his displeasure after an 11-6 loss in Baltimore on Sunday. "This team will win a lot of games."

Win or lose, it's a safe bet fans will enjoy visits to the 40,000-seat stadium built at a cost of $300 million, about $200 million of it from team owner Mike Ilitch, founder of the Little Caesar's pizza empire.

The scoreboard in left field is 202 feet wide, including a video screen 42 feet by 24 feet. A smaller board at field level in right-center will carry out-of-town scores. A board over the bullpen in right gives the speed of pitches thrown to each batter.

"It's kind of like Christmas," right-hander Brian Moehler said. "You can't wait to get to the tree in the morning."

"The thing that caught my eye first was the monuments. Everything seems to be first class, really nice."

A fountain in the center field wall produces a programmable "liquid fireworks" display. It is capable of spraying water up to 150 feet in the air from more than 900 nozzles.

The carousel, in a food court, features 30 hand-painted tigers and two chariots. A 50-foot, 18-ton Ferris wheel has 12 baseball-shaped cars.

"But, you know what?" outfield-

Paul Sancya/Associated Press

Mark Eagle sweeps between rows of seats at Comerica Park in Detroit, Monday.

er Bobby Higginson said Monday after the team's first workout. "It's going to be a fantastic place to play baseball."

The workout was held on an ideal April day, with sunny skies, a gentle breeze and temperatures in the high 50s. But the weather isn't likely to anywhere near so nice for opening day.

Tuesday's forecast called for snow, turning to drizzle with temperatures in the high 30s. Still, it appeared every effort would be made to play the game.

"There is almost no chance this game won't be played," Tigers spokesman Tyler Barnes said.

Moehler, who started the last game at venerable Tiger Stadium, will start the first game in Comerica. He said the weather wouldn't concern him.

"I've heard it might snow, but it probably won't stick," said Moehler, who will oppose Seattle right-hander Freddy Garcia. "It'll be like rain, I guess."

"Besides, I like pitching in cool weather. I've never pitched here when it was 60 in April."

Moehler can afford to be glib. Comerica is nothing if not a pitcher's paradise. The power alley in left-center is 395 feet from home plate. It's 385 in right-center and 420 to get over the wall in dead center. "Standing behind the plate, it looks almost like Yellowstone," reliever Doug Brocail said. "It looks like no man's land out there."

Still, there were plenty of balls hit over the walls during the Tigers' first batting practice.

The first was off the bat of outfielder Karim Garcia. On his third swing, Garcia hit one out in right-center. Juan Gonzalez, who has played sparingly because of a sore hamstring, was the first to knock one over the left-field wall.

"This may be the biggest stadium in baseball, but whether it plays that way remains to be seen," Garner said. "If the wind blows out, there may be a lot of home runs flying out."

This will mark the first time in 100 years that baseball in Detroit hasn't been played at the corner of Michigan and Trumbull. In an effort to remember the team's roots, the flagpole at Comerica has been placed in left-center and will be in play, as it was at Tiger Stadium.

Griffey's 400th homer can't help Reds

DENVER (AP)— Ken Griffey Jr. became the youngest player to hit 400 career homers, but the Colorado Rockies beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-5 in their home opener Monday behind two-run homers from Mike Lansing and Todd Helton.

The new-look Rockies, with just 10 players remaining on the roster from last year's opener, got six strong innings from Rolando Arrojo (1-0), who became the first Rockies starter to win this season.

Griffey tied the game 1-all in the fourth with an opposite-field homer off Arrojo. It was Griffey's second homer of the season and second in as many days.

At 30 years, 141 days, Griffey beat the previous mark, set by Jimmie Foxx, who was 30 years, 248 days old. Griffey is fifth on the career list among active players, trailing Mark McGwire (525), Barry Bonds (447), Jose Canseco (431) and Cal Ripken Jr. (403).

Griffey's historic homer came on the 50th birthday of his father, Ken Griffey Sr. It was the fourth time he has homered on his father's birthday.

Arrojo left after deflecting a double-play grounder with his pitching hand, a play that ended the sixth. X-rays were negative, leaving him with a bruise on the middle finger of his right hand. He allowed two runs and six hits.

Brewers 4, Marlins 3

MILWAUKEE — Geoff Jenkins homered and Milwaukee's bullpen had another strong outing as the Brewers beat the Florida Marlins 4-3 Monday in County Stadium's second final opener.

A crowd of 53,509 braved game-time temperatures in the 40s and biting winds to welcome the new season in Milwaukee. The game was the 48th opener at ramshackle County Stadium, the Brewers' only home since 1971.

Shiny new Miller Park, rapidly approaching completion 100 feet behind the current field, will open in 2001, a year behind schedule following a crane accident last July 14 that killed three iron workers.

Royals 6, Twins 5

and the Kansas City Royals beat the Minnesota Twins 6-5 Monday after wasting a two-run lead in the top half.

Jacque Jones tied it at 5 with a two-run homer off Ricky Bottalico (1-0), who relieved Dan Reichert starting the ninth. Corey Koskie was on base after hitting the 10th double of the game.

Damon's home run off LaTroy Hawkins (0-1) was his first of the season.

Jose Rosado allowed three runs and five hits in six innings, and Reichert struck out four in the next two innings. Minnesota starter Sean Bergman gave up four runs and 11 hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Phillies 9, Mets 7

PHILADELPHIA — Mike Lieberthal hit a tiebreaking two-run homer in the fifth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies overcame a four-run deficit and beat the New York Mets 9-7 in their home opener Monday night.

With white towels swirling in Veterans Stadium, the Phillies got another terrible outing from starter Paul Byrd.

The bigger news came from Clearwater, Fla., where ace Curt Schilling struck out nine in four scoreless innings of a rehab assignment. That was far better than both starters fared in this game. Byrd and Mets starter Bobby Jones both were chased in the fifth inning.

Schilling continued his impressive comeback from shoulder surgery, allowing two hits and no walks in a Class-A game. He wants to come back now, but is scheduled for a return to the mound in late April or early May.

Diamondbacks 8, Padres 4

SAN DIEGO — The San Diego Padres' home opener turned into an Arizona Diamondbacks' homerfest.

Erubiel Durazo hit two home runs, including a three-run shot, and Jay Bell, Steve Finley and Kelly Stinnett also connected to match the club record of five as the Diamondbacks spoiled San Diego's home debut with an 8-4 win Monday.

Todd Stottlemyre (2-0) was hit on the right knee by Ryan Klesko's line drive in the first but stayed in the game, holding the Padres to three runs and seven hits, in six innings. He also made a nice defensive play in the sixth, catching Eric Owens' liner and doubling Ryan Klesko at first.

Flyers 'win' chance to play Hasek

■ The top-seeded Flyers must face last year's Eastern Conference winner in the first round of the NHL playoffs.

By Ira Podell
Associated Press

The Philadelphia Flyers are about to find out if their scramble for the top seed was worth it.

The Flyers rallied from a 15-point February deficit to finish first in the Eastern Conference. Their reward — Dominik Hasek and the defending Eastern Conference champion Buffalo Sabres.

Philadelphia will face the eighth-seeded Sabres and Hasek, their outstanding goalie, beginning Thursday in the first round of the playoffs.

"The first round is dangerous," Flyers center Keith Primeau said. "Buffalo's playing well ..."

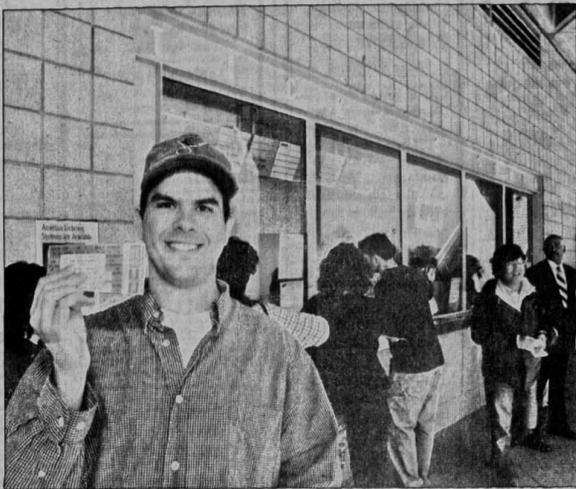

The 16-team NHL playoffs begin Wednesday. Ottawa plays at Toronto; the Stanley Cup champion Dallas Stars open against Edmonton; and St. Louis, winner of the Presidents' Trophy with a league-best 114 points, entertains San Jose.

The Flyers went 3-1 against the Sabres, but didn't face Hasek, who missed the first half of the season with a groin injury.

"Everybody's talking about Hasek," said captain Eric Desjardins, "but (Doug) Gilmour and (Michael) Peca are playing good too."

Philadelphia fell 15 points behind New Jersey when the Devils beat them Feb. 15.

Roger Neilson, the Flyers' coach, left later that month to receive treatment for cancer. The past few weeks, the Flyers were faced with turmoil surrounding former captain Eric Lindros.

Lindros missed the final 14 games with a concussion, but the Flyers went 9-4-1. Lindros questioned the Flyers' medical staff for not correctly diagnosing his condition — opening a rift between management and some of his teammates.

The captaincy was permanently transferred from Lindros to Desjardins late last month.

"The adversity that this club has faced off the ice hasn't made a difference in the preparation and the way the guys have handled it on the ice," Primeau said.

Neilson and Lindros will miss at least the first round.

Brian Boucher will be in goal for Philadelphia, getting the start over veteran John Vanbiesbrouck. Boucher led the league with a 1.91 goals-against average and became the first rookie to have an average under 2.00 in 50 years.

"They're a different team from when we last played them," Boucher said of Buffalo. "Hasek is very good and we're going to have our work cut out for us."

Also Thursday night, it's Pittsburgh at Washington, Florida at New Jersey, Los Angeles at Detroit and Phoenix at Colorado.

San Jose at St. Louis

Blues goalie Roman Turek has been on two straight Jennings Trophy winners, awarded to the team that allows the fewest goals. Turek was Ed Belfour's backup last season with Dallas, but didn't play in the playoffs.

Now, Turek, who won 42 games with a 1.94 GAA, leads the top-seeded Blues.

Women's soccer league launched

■ Riding a wave of World Cup popularity, teams in eight cities will start play next spring.

By Barry Wilner
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Parlaying deep-pocketed investors, a strong television presence and the popularity of the World Cup champions, a women's professional soccer league plans to begin play next spring.

The Women's United Soccer Association said Monday it approved teams for eight cities: Atlanta, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Orlando-Tampa, San Diego, San Francisco and Washington.

Listed as alternates were: Chicago, Columbus, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, Portland, Raleigh-Durham and St. Louis. Any of those cities might be selected if one of the original eight drops out. Also under consideration are Milwaukee, Denver and Houston.

The league begins in April 2001 and has letters of intent to play from all 20 members of the 1999 U.S. world championship team.

"We want the focus entirely on the women's game," said Julie Foudy, co-captain of the 1999 U.S. team. "We all know how difficult it is to get a league off the ground."

"With all the resources these companies have and all the promotion you can have, we feel you need that directed focus and energy that is solely behind the women's game. We are totally committed to playing for just the WUSA and hoping that is the league that gets sanctioned."

WUSA envisions stadiums with capacities of 6,500 to 10,000 for an 80-game schedule, far smaller than Major League Soccer sites. It might not find those venues immediately, and could temporarily emulate the MLS, which has many teams playing in NFL stadiums.

"We need to get one season behind us so we know our exact venue needs," said John Hendricks, chairman and CEO of Discovery Communications and WUSA's board chairman.

The keys to success are signing the best players and hooking up with television. TV coverage would be on TNT and CNN/BS, mostly on weekend afternoons.

The U.S. Soccer Federation set a May 1 deadline to submit business plans. The WUSA, with a four-year TV contract with Turner Broadcasting and such heavy corporate backers as Time-Warner, Comcast and Cox Communications, already has met that deadline.

"The official U.S. Soccer standards require each team with a minimum salary level of $400,000," Hendricks said. "From the investor side, to get the absolute top players involved, we needed to double that budget."

"The soccer federation has a standard for guaranteed funding for a minimum of three years. We wanted to go longer and we have lined up funding for a full six years: a development year as well as five years of league play."

Carter's triple-double leads Raptors

TORONTO — Vince Carter's first career triple-double helped the Toronto Raptors inch closer to their first playoff berth with a 112-103 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers on Monday night.

Carter went 13-of-19 from the field and scored 31 points, had 11 rebounds and added a career-high 10 assists.

Toronto (43-34) moved within one win or one Milwaukee loss of clinching a postseason spot. The Bucks hosted Orlando on Monday.

Tracy McGrady had 27 points, a career-high nine assists and six blocks as the Raptors ended a four-game home losing streak by beating Cleveland for the fifth straight time.

Antonio Davis had 14 points and four blocks, while Charles Oakley added 10 rebounds.

Shawn Kemp had 22 points for Cleveland, Bob Sura had 19, and Lamond Murray 16.

Hornets 107, Wizards 105

WASHINGTON — Elden Campbell's 18-foot turnaround jumper over Juwan Howard as time expired capped a wild finish and lifted the Charlotte Hornets over the Washington Wizards 107-105 Monday night.

Eddie Jones scored 26 points and David Wesley had 21 for the Hornets, who swept the three-game season series from the Wizards. Charlotte has won two straight games and nine of 11.

Mitch Richmond had 21 points and reserve Richard Hamilton 19 for the Wizards, who had won 8 of their last 11.

The game was tied at 103 when Hamilton missed a pair of free throws with 59.6 seconds left. Charlotte missed two shots on the ensuing possession, but gained two clock resets before Anthony Mason hit a 10-footer with 2.8 seconds left for a 105-103 lead.

Celtics 99, Hawks 94

BOSTON — Antoine Walker scored 26 of his 34 points in the second half, including a 3-pointer with 25 seconds left to cap a game-ending 11-0 Boston rally, as the Celtics beat the Atlanta Hawks 99-94 Monday night.

The win snapped Boston's 10 game-losing skid, its longest since 1997. The Celtics' last victory was March 18 against Dallas.

Kenny Anderson was the only other Boston player in double figures, with 24 points.

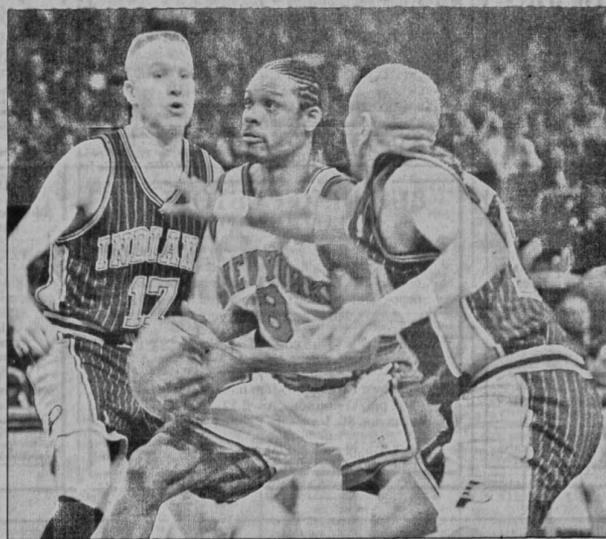

Jim Jackson paced the Hawks, losers of seven in a row, with 27 points and 10 rebounds. Atlanta hasn't won on the road since Feb. 25 at Seattle, a 12-game drought.

Jackson's basket with 3:02 left gave the Hawks a 94-88 lead, but Atlanta didn't score again.

Paul Pierce's three-point play cut it to 94-91 before Anderson's twisting layup sliced it to one with 1:47 left.

76ers 96, Heat 80

PHILADELPHIA — Allen Iverson's 33 points led the Philadelphia 76ers to a 96-80 victory over Miami on Monday night, ending the Heat's seven-game winning streak.

Eric Snow added 12 points and 10 assists for Philadelphia, which stayed in fourth place in the Eastern Conference standings, one game ahead of Charlotte. The No. 4 seed has home-court advantage against No. 5 in the first round of the playoffs.

The Hornets defeated Washington 107-105 Monday.

It was a humbling defeat for Miami, which had pulled out to a three-game lead in the Atlantic Division by beating New York in overtime Sunday on Tim Hardaway's 25-footer at the buzzer.

Philadelphia stumbled during the first quarter, falling behind 22-18. But the hosts outscored Miami by 21 over the next two periods and coasted to the win.

Bucks 104, Magic 87

MILWAUKEE — Ray Allen couldn't be guarded, Sam Cassell couldn't be silenced and the Milwaukee Bucks finally looked like a playoff team.

Allen scored 33 points, and Cassell added 18 points and eight assists as the energized Bucks beat the Magic 104-87 Monday night, moving Milwaukee one game behind Orlando for the Eastern Conference's final postseason berth.

The ninth-place Bucks and eighth-place Magic both have five games left. The teams meet again in Orlando next Monday.

Cassell, who guaranteed the Bucks would win, verbally goaded the Magic all night in an intense, emotional game for both teams.

Milwaukee (38-39) is right behind Orlando (39-38) after being three games out of the playoff picture a week ago. The victory also was Milwaukee's third straight against the Magic this season, giving the Bucks the tiebreaker edge.

T'wolves 102, Pistons 100

MINNEAPOLIS — The Minnesota Timberwolves lost their cool, their coach and their cushy lead Monday night, but recovered to defeat the Detroit Pistons 102-100 on Kevin Garnett's buzzer-beater.

Garnett, who scored 25 points, sank a 10-foot jumper at the horn, then ran around the court with his arms out like a little kid pretending he was an airplane.

Brandon added 16 points for Minnesota, which tied its franchise single-season record with its 26th victory at Target Center.

Grant Hill scored 36 points and was 17-of-18 from the foul line, including the go-ahead free throws after Flip Saunders was ejected in the third quarter for clashing with the officiating crew.

Knicks 83, Pacers 81

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing made a turnaround jumper with two seconds left after apparently redirecting Larry Johnson's 3-pointer into the basket, leading the New York Knicks to an 83-81 victory over the Indiana Pacers on Monday night.

On a night with all the tension, drama and excitement of a playoff game, Ewing scored nine of the Knicks' final 12 points and appeared to have a hand — or at least a couple of his fingers — in the other three.

Johnson was credited with a 3-pointer with 21.7 seconds left, although replays appeared to show Ewing getting a hand on the ball and directing it into the basket as it was heading for the rim. The Pacers argued frantically but to no avail.

Bluder wants balanced scoring two players in 1999-2000. Sophomore guard Lindsey Meder and junior guard Cara Consuegra averaged 19.1 and 14.6 points per game, respectively.

But Bluder said that she does not like one or two players to dominate on her team.

"I don't like a team that revolves around one or two players," Bluder said. "I like a team that is very balanced in scoring. For example, we (Drake) had four people in double figures this year. I think that is what you really want in a team. If you want a true team that's hard to defend, you need to have more than one or two scorers that people can just rely on. Not having a star philosophy, but a very balanced team is very crucial."

Now, the Hawkeyes need to get the process of adjusting to their new coach underway.

"I'm excited to get going," Consuegra said. "We haven't been working out. I'm ready and I'm excited for next year."

"It'll be hard. But we all have a positive outlook on this and know it's for the best. Things are going to get better from here."

"No one is ever unbeatable and that's the approach we have to take," she said. "Regardless of whether or not we've won 14 straight, that doesn't mean we can't be beaten."

While the weather for today's game is unpredictable at best, one thing for certain is the Hawkeyes are nearing the toughest part of their conference season and getting better every game.

"We've progressed and matured," Knopf said. "We've really started to come together. It's fun to play like that."

Fizer's decision does not surprise friends, family record for victories in finishing 32-5. The Cyclones' season ended with a 75-64 loss to eventual national champion Michigan State in the Midwest Regional final.

Eustachy said it became clear as the season progressed that Fizer was ready for the NBA. When the two met to discuss Fizer's options for next season, Eustachy said he encouraged his star to turn pro.

"Really at the beginning of the year I thought Marcus would be back," Eustachy said. "I didn't think he'd make so much progress. But he worked so hard and became such a force."

"I thought the turning point in his season was when he struggled against Drake and we really, really challenged him. Then he found out he could play right with Kenyon Martin in the Cincinnati game. I think he just kept making progress from then on out."

Fizer scored 26 points on 12-of-19 shooting in a 75-60 loss to Cincinnati on Nov. 28. Martin, the national player of the year, scored 22 in that game.

"Selfishly, we'd love to have him back," Eustachy said. "I'd look like a much better coach. But it's not the right thing to do: The right thing for him to do is move on. I'm behind him all the way."

Fizer said he was grateful for Eustachy's support. The two shook hands and embraced as they traded places on the podium at Monday's news conference.

"I really didn't know what to expect when I met with him when he and I had our talks," Fizer said. "When he told me he was encouraging me to go for the draft, that he thinks the time is now, it really touched my heart to see this guy is putting me before his own interests and his needs."

Fizer's guardians, Robert and Sheila Frazier, attended the news conference, along with his fiancée, Anysha Ticer, and his daughter, Arael.

"It's amazing to see him come this far," Sheila Frazier said. "I had no idea he could get to this level. I always worked on Marcus' character. His dad worked on his sport."

course with her. The girl knew Chmura because she had baby-sat his children, the warrant said.

The 18-year-old girl accused Gessert of indecently touching her while in the hot tub. Police Chief Morton Hetzner said 15 to 20 people were at Gessert's home, many of them juveniles. The 17-year-old girl told police they were playing a drinking game and Gessert gave her a drink with vodka. She told police she became drunk, the warrant said. She said Chmura was wearing white boxer shorts and a dark towel. Four pairs of underwear were confiscated when authorities searched Chmura's home Monday, including white boxers, the warrant said.

Chicago opens home season at Wrigley with a come-from-behind victory

CUBS-BRAVES

Sunday's 8-7, 11-inning loss at Cincinnati, drove a 1-2 pitch from Ligtenberg into the left-field bleachers for his third homer of the season.

Ligtenberg (0-1), the Braves' closer until John Rocker's suspension is over April 17, then allowed a single to Damon Buford and was replaced by Luis Rivera.

Joe Girardi sacrificed and Reed slapped a single down the left-field line, sending the Cubs out of their dugout to celebrate.

"I just got the pitch up and Andrews got it out," Ligtenberg said. "I'm not really happy with the results."

The Cubs had lost six of seven games after opening the season with a win over the Mets in Tokyo on March 29.

"When we were in Japan, I told the guys it didn't feel like opening day for me. This one did," Reed said.

"We didn't play that badly on the road, but we didn't pull out any wins. We didn't get the big hit or make the big pitch. We hadn't been having a whole lot of fun. Today we did."

Mark Guthrie (1-1) who pitched the top of the ninth, got the victory in Don Baylor's debut as Cubs manager at Wrigley.

"This club's been grinding it out from day one in Tokyo," Baylor said. "There were some agonizing and excruciating losses for us.

When it happens in the bottom of the ninth, it was pretty exciting for everyone on the bench. To snatch it back from the Braves is quite nice."

It didn't appear the Cubs would score at all. Kevin Millwood blanked them for seven innings on a day with temperatures in the 30s and a cold wind off Lake Michigan gusting up to 21 mph.

Mike Remlinger pitched a scoreless eighth, but after Mark Grace worked him for a walk to start the ninth, Ligtenberg came on and walked pinch-hitter Glenallen Hill. That set the stage for Andrews.

Atlanta's Chipper Jones said Grace's walk "set the tone for the whole inning."

"There wasn't a walk the whole game, then all of a sudden, it's a whole different strike zone. It's a fluke," he said. "After the pitches to Grace weren't called, you kind of had to feel the momentum (change)."
