He also said, "I'm not a very big fan of foreigners. ... How the hell did they get in this country?" In addition, Rocky called a black teammate a "fat monkey."

Commissioner Bud Selig suspended Rocky for the first month of the regular season and fined him $20,000, but an arbitrator reduced the suspension to two weeks and the fine to $500. The pitcher also was ordered to undergo sensitivity training.

Rocky has 10 saves since rejoining the team May 18 but also has struggled with his control, issuing 25 walks in 18 1-3 innings. His ERA is 3.85.

UI alcohol arrests 3 times average

■ The UI's increase in arrests for alcohol violations is more than three times the national average for campuses.

By Carolyn Kresser
The Daily Iowan

UI alcohol-related arrests rose 75.4 percent from 1997 to 1998, while arrests on other campuses with more than 5,000 students rose 24.3 percent, according to a study by The Chronicle of Higher Education.

The study, which will appear in the June 9 issue of The Chronicle, is taken from statistics that colleges compile each year on campus crime. Though the UI's arrests are more than three times the national campus average, the UI is not ranked in the 10 highest arrests by the study.

The 75.4 percent increase at the UI reflected the jump from 171 arrests in 1997 to 300 arrests in 1998, according to UI Public Safety records. The number of alcohol-related arrests by Public Safety also increased between 1998 and 1999 by 54.3 percent, increasing from 300 to 463.

Most people go to the bars because there are so many downtown, and there is always some bar that fits a person's personality. The more bars they add, the less space there is for alternative activities.

— Karen Smith,
UI junior

The rise in arrests at the UI comes from a combination of increased alcohol use, better enforcement of liquor laws and programs that increase community awareness of problems associated with drinking, said Capt. Duane Papke, the associate director of Public Safety.

"It is making the university and the community aware of alternatives to drinking, and that it is a problem that must be addressed," he said.

More new bars in Iowa City's downtown area and a lack of alternative activities are why UI junior Karen Smith thinks the number of arrests has increased.

"Most people go to the bars because there are so many downtown, and there is always some bar that fits a person's personality," she said. "The more bars they add, the less space there is for alternative activities."

The University of Wisconsin, Madison, was the campus reporting the most alcohol-related arrests in 1998, 792 with an enrollment of 39,699, according to the survey. In 1997, Wisconsin was ranked fifth, with 342 arrests. The 1998 figure represents a 131.6 percent increase.

Capt. Dale Burke of the University of Wisconsin campus police said the most logical reason for the increase of arrests on the Madison campus is the addition of 10 officers in 1998.

"In 1997, we were severely understaffed because of retirements within the department," he said. "In 1998, we were able to get those officers replaced."

Schools with a low number of arrests for alcohol-related offenses angered Burke, who said the lack of arrests reflected poor enforcement of laws by campus police.

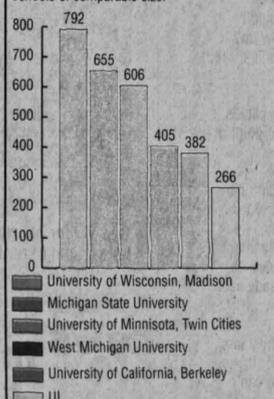

Sgt. Erik Swanson of the University of Minnesota Police Department, whose school ranked third in the survey, said he did not think alcohol use is up and that enforcement of alcohol violations is part of officers' normal duties.

"Officers are aware of the problem," he said. "When they are on duty, they look for it, but it is not the only thing they are looking for."

Campus Alcohol Arrests

In 1998, campus alcohol-related arrests went up by 24.3 percent. For colleges with more than 5,000 students, the UI had fewer arrests than schools of comparable size.

Suspect slays prosecutor before trial

BURKESVILLE, Ky. — A man charged with child molesting blasted his way into a prosecutor's home where both men died in a shoot-out early Monday, hours before they were to face each other in court.

Commonwealth's Attorney Fred Capps, 46, was shot multiple times and died at the scene, Kentucky State Police spokesman Jerry Melton said. The gunman, identified as Eddie Vaughn, 49, also was found dead inside the home by state police troopers shortly after 6 a.m., Melton said.

An autopsy showed two shots from Capps' gun killed Vaughn, police said. Witnesses said Capps died trying to protect his family.

Capps' wife, Cathy, witnessed the incident and was nicked by debris but not seriously wounded.

The couple's two children, John, 16, and Lydia, 11, were asleep in their upstairs bedrooms and were not hurt.

Recent thefts raise two UI art grads' ire

■ Three prints and a sculpture were stolen in the last month from the arts campus area.

By Betsy Lam
The Daily Iowan

Stealing is considered by some to be one of the highest forms of flattery among artists. However, thefts against recent UI graduates Adam Burke and Iris Morehouse came as unwelcome "ego boosts."

Burke's and Morehouse's pieces were stolen while being shown at their respective sculpture and printmaking exhibits in the past month.

"He didn't just get up and walk away," Burke said of the 30-pound sculpture on display in the South Plaza, the area just outside of the UI Museum of Art entrance. It was stolen two weeks ago.

The sculpture, an 8-foot dummy filled with straw, was to be given to the UI art archives after the show. Donating one piece of art is customary for graduates with a Master of Fine Arts degree.

Unlike Burke's piece, Morehouse's art pieces were not donations. Her three prints were worth $1,200 collectively, she said.

The prints were stolen on June 1 from the M.F.A. printmaking show, which ran from May 23 to June 2 in the Eve Drewelove Gallery of the UI Art Building, Morehouse said. Two of

Taking score in the parking wars— faculty 1, staff 0

■ Staff members, who make up 82 percent of UI employees, will lose a lot of parking to professors.

By Bill Bos
The Daily Iowan

Though there are more than four times as many UI staff members as faculty members, a new university parking policy will give an equal number of parking spaces to each group.

While UI employees are 82 percent staff and 18 percent faculty, the parking in UI lots will be 50 percent staff and 50 percent faculty. The policy is in the process of implementation, said David Ricketts, the UI director of parking and transportation.

Faculty members are professors, associate professors and assistant professors; all other UI employees are considered to be staff.

Because there are so many more staff members than faculty members, many staff members are upset about losing their parking spots, said Roberta Paterson, a secretary in the physics and astronomy department who herself is in danger of losing her spot.

"Not all of the university employees have the benefit of parking close to campus," she said. "It gets to be harder when you have to search around for parking on the streets."

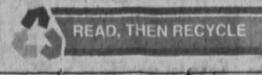

Parking spots in UI lots are hard to get, and there are waiting lists that are years long, Ricketts said.

UI administrators decided to change the parking policy as a method of recruiting new faculty and retaining old faculty for the upcoming school year, he said. He said staff parking spots will be reduced until

Springer chairs a meeting

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jerry Springer, who often has to break up chair-throwing brawls among his guests, couldn't get away from chair jokes during a speech on the power of the vote.

"It's great to be in a place where you actually sit on chairs," said Springer, who was mayor of Cincinnati for two terms before starting a TV career.

Later, one of Springer's long-time friends faked throwing a chair into the audience.

"Now I feel at home," said Springer, punching his fist into the air.

Springer spoke on June 3 at a conference on educating entrepreneurs to work with government. He said lower- and middle-class people can make a difference by using their large numbers to their advantage at the polls.

UI Foundation inducts 5,000th Presidents Club member

The 5,000th member of the Presidents Club of the UI was inducted by the UI Foundation at the 33rd annual Presidents Club Assembly on June 3 at the IMU. The late Don Patrick Steele Sr. of Dubuque received the honorary designation from the club, which recognizes high-level, cumulative support to all areas of the university.

Steele, who died in 1998, earned a B.S.C. degree from the UI in 1938. The Steele family has endowed scholarships benefiting students in the Tippie College of Business and generously supported UI athletics for a number of years. Steele's widow, Helen Steele of Dubuque, and his son Mike Steele, a 1977 UI alumnus who also lives in Dubuque, accepted the honor.

"It's a special pleasure to honor the Steeles, because they're a wonderful example of one Iowa family working to help other Iowa families achieve their dreams," said UI Foundation President Michael New. "Through their support for scholarship funds and other important UI initiatives, the Steeles have demonstrated the loyalty, commitment, and generosity that characterizes all Presidents Club members."

The Presidents Club began in 1967 with 38 charter members. Prior to the 5,000-member milestone, as of Dec. 31, 1999, the membership included 4,513 Presidents Club members, of which 93 were Presidents Club Gold members (cumulative support of $1 million or more), 227 were Presidents Club Silver members (cumulative support of $250,000 or more), and 477 businesses and organizations recognized as Presidents Club Associates.

An individual may become eligible for membership in the Presidents Club with an outright gift or 10-year pledge of at least $40,000 in cash, securities or real or personal property. Contributors who arrange for a deferred gift of at least $100,000 through a bequest, will or living trust may also qualify for membership.

Through outright gifts or long-term pledges, Presidents Club members invest in university programs, projects, scholarships, endowed professorships, research funding, facilities improvements and student-faculty development. Many serve on departmental and collegiate university committees.

During the June 3 assembly, Presidents Club members and guests toured a number of campus sites, including the Museum of Art, National Advanced Driving Simulator, College of Education and the Belin-Blank International Center for Gifted Education and Talent Development, and the Pappajohn Entrepreneurial Center and the Iowa Electronic Markets at the Tippie College of Business. UI President Mary Sue Coleman addressed club members at a luncheon and dinner held in their honor.

Supervisor, House candidates poised for vote

The primary election today will cull the field for several local offices.

By Andrea Mason
The Daily Iowan

Last-minute primary election preparations are underway for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors candidates, as polls open today.

Democrats Tom Carsner, Cathy Fitzmaurice, Pat Harney, Terrence Neuzil and incumbent Carol Thompson are knocking on doors, distributing fliers, and trying to get their names and positions on the issues out to the public. Republican candidate Myron Smalley is running unopposed. Three seats will be open on the board.

The main focus of most candidates' campaigns is the county land-use plan. All are in favor of the program and seek to continue to implement it.

Neuzil said that if the plan were integrated with a state land-use plan, he would be concerned that the county keep its autonomy. Neuzil said he wants to focus on the fringe agreements between Johnson County and the cities in it.

Fringe agreements dictate what happens to the area surrounding each city, and, Neuzil said, many of the county's rural towns do not have an agreement.

Carsner said he is in favor of the plan but also wants to implement ideas that have worked in other counties, such as overlay zoning, which is dependent on traffic counts, or well-water quality and quantity.

He also said protection of scenic roads and ceilings on development would be positive additions to the plan.

However, Carsner said, taking away the rights of developers would not be on his agenda. He would rather resurface roads in their current location and keep the rural setting the same, he said.

Thompson agreed that the land-use plan should be used to the county's advantage but said she would like to see a cooperative relationship between the county and the state.

The current plan is a positive force in the county, Fitzmaurice said.

"We should be continuing to implement and expand on those dependent on the needs of the county," she said.

Road upgrades and keeping scenic roads are important part of the land-use plan, Harney said. He added, however, that a separate scenic roads ordinance is not necessary.

Also high on the agenda of each candidate is human services. The loss of several employees from the Johnson County Department of Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities has led to much debate.

Thompson believes the losses are to be expected when a new supervisor is hired and said the department is on track. She said she wants to place human services high on the Board of Supervisors' list of priorities.

Social services should be high on the board's list, Neuzil said. He would like to see more prevention programs in the county, especially in the area of juvenile crime.

Fitzmaurice said the department is performing its tasks well, and the complete picture is what should be looked at.

"We need to look at the overall plan and the overall goals that are implemented in the department,

Carsner

Fitzmaurice

Harney

Neuzil

and that it is going in the right direction," she said.

The Johnson County Senior Center is also important to Neuzil. He said he wishes to expand the Senior Dining Program as opposed to the cut that the current board has been discussing.

Harney said he agrees that the Senior Dining Program should not be cut. However, he said, there are areas in human-services that can be streamlined.

Fitzmaurice also favors avoiding a cut in senior programs. She said that because funding was removed, the county will have to look elsewhere to keep the current programs running.

The Sheriff's and County Auditor's positions are up for election, with both incumbents, Sheriff Robert Carpenter and County Auditor Tom Slockett, running unopposed. Democrats

Cathy Kern and Vicki Lensing are vying for Minnette Doderer's District 45 Iowa House seat. Both said they are placing education as No. 1 in their priorities. Republican Paul Heyn is running unopposed for the seat in the primary.

Polls are open today from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Primary results will be available at approximately 9:30 p.m.

Let the construction season begin, I.C. says

Inconvenience and dust are the signs of summer in the construction zone called Iowa City.

By Megan Kennedy
The Daily Iowan

Construction began Monday on a section of Iowa Avenue between Gilbert and Linn streets, becoming one of several projects that has started in recent months in Iowa City.

The road work, which will make general improvements on the street, will eliminate roughly 50 long-term parking spots. New sanitary sewer and water mains will also be installed, said Kim Shera, a city civil engineer.

In addition to a block of Iowa Avenue being closed, the two southbound lanes of Gilbert Street are closed, reducing the street to one southbound lane and one northbound lane during the first week of construction.

Many other construction projects are underway in town, causing traffic problems to escalate.

"The construction over by the hospitals has made it very difficult to get where I have to landscape; the main road I need to take is completely blocked off, so it takes twice the time to get where I need to go," said Ryan Jayne, a worker for UI Facility Services Group.

Although it may cause annoyance to some commuters, Shera said, the temporary closing of part of Iowa Avenue will not directly inconvenience access to any businesses.

"Most of our customers choose to walk here regardless of whether there is limited parking or not," said Andy Viering, an assistant manager of Bruegger's Bagel Bakery, 225 Iowa Ave. "Because of this, I don't think this will affect our business very much."

UI graduate student Qian Wan says he has adjusted to complications in traveling across town with the recent increase in road work.

"All the construction has made me have to use other bus stops because some have been blocked temporarily," he said. "I think this inconvenience will pay off when all the construction is complete, though."

Bob Noser, the owner of Ewers Men's Store, 28 S. Clinton St., said he is more concerned with the second phase of the Iowa Avenue project, which could occur next summer.

"I don't think that this is going to affect our business this summer, but it could hurt us in the long run next summer, when they take away more parking," he said.

This second phase has not yet been approved by the Iowa City Council. The phase would entail work done on Iowa Avenue between Linn and Clinton streets next summer, Shera said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vote Kern for Democrat candidate for Iowa House

Like many of you, I have come to depend on Minnette Doderer fighting for us in Des Moines. Now that she is retiring, she has endorsed Cathy Kern to carry on her work in the Iowa House.

I have known Cathy Kern for more than 20 years, and I hope the voters of the 45th House District listen to Minnette and vote Cathy in the Democratic primary on June 6.

Jean Martin
Iowa City resident

What makes this vote crucial is that despite the protestations of other parties, the winner of this Democratic primary will surely be elected to office in November and will never lose an election, ever! Either Cathy Kern or Vicki Lensing will help to write our laws for the foreseeable future.

With that in mind, I look at the composition of our state Legislature. It seems that business owners are well-represented. Cathy Kern would bring a different perspective, and a different voice, to the Legislature.

I urge you to vote for Cathy Kern on June 6.

Gary Sanders
Iowa City resident

When I consider which candidate to support in the Kern/Lensing Democratic primary for House District 45, I want to focus on who will be a stronger pro-choice advocate.

Cathy Kern worked at the Emma Goldman Clinic. Because of that experience, she will be better able to speak to this issue in the Legislature.

Three weeks ago, she stood on the sidewalk in front of the clinic when the anti-choice brigade swooped through town. It takes courage to publicly face the anti-choice shouts and placards. Cathy Kern showed that courage.

It is no wonder that Minnette Doderer, who has faced angry anti-choice legislators since 1964, has endorsed Cathy Kern.

Let's make sure that we elect a pro-choice activist—Cathy Kern.

Lesli Lanning
Iowa City resident

The Kern/Lensing primary is a microcosm of the division within the national Democratic Party. The candidates agree on the big social issues: protecting civil rights for minorities, gays and lesbians, and abortion rights for women. They are both caring, friendly people.

But they differ in their backgrounds and in their perspectives on economic and workplace issues. Kern is from the populist/worker-based wing of the party. Lensing is from the entrepreneurial/middle-management wing.

In state and national elections, the Democratic Party needs both wings to coalesce around a candidate. In local elections, the differences about criteria for economic development, guarantees for workers' rights and how to make a more progressive tax system are often glossed over.

Retiring Rep. Minnette Doderer, after charting a course for 36 years that has been worker-based, has endorsed Cathy Kern. Whether we follow Minnette's populism or the path of the national Democratic Party towards the middle will be decided on June 6.

President Coleman could learn a lesson from SAS

In response to the May 1 SAS silent protest of the UI's association with the Fair Labor Association, President Mary Sue Coleman took the opportunity to express many blatant lies about the FLA, WRC and her commitment to labor and human rights.

Coleman has continually expressed her heartfelt commitment to protect working people across the world and their unalienable rights. To expose the truth, one only has to look to her commitment to labor at this university. A couple of years ago, our president, being the labor leader that she is, hired a union-busting firm to eliminate union organizing at the UIHC. Also, to show her lack of commitment to human rights, one only has to look at the UI's continued involvement with the worst sweatshop abuser of our time, Nike. Even after CEO Phillip Knight canceled contracts with Brown, Michigan and his contributions to Oregon because of their affiliation with the WRC, Coleman still defends the Nike-dominated FLA. Even after Michigan President Lee Bollinger stood up to the apparel giant and condemned its unwillingness to abolish sweatshop abuse, Coleman continues to welcome sweated corporate bucks.

At her fireside chat, Coleman also falsely stated that the WRC officially pronounced it was compatible with the FLA. In truth, the WRC has no official position on the FLA, meaning her comments were nothing more than administrative lies. She also stated the FLA was not corporate-controlled. She failed to acknowledge that: (1) corporations monitor themselves (2) four of six non-profit board representatives receive funding from corporations (3) in order to amend any of the flawed tenants of the FLA, a supermajority is required (giving corporations veto power).

In listening to Coleman's multiple inaccuracies at her fireside chat, and acknowledging her past "commitment" to labor rights, it is evident that she has a lot to learn from her silent students.

Change takes time, but fruits of labor still taste sweet

Montgomery, Ala. African Americans begin a boycott to protest the segregation of blacks and whites on mass transportation. Transportation company receipts fall by somewhere between 25 percent and 47 percent. Two years later, the segregation effectively ends.

If you're thinking Rosa Parks or Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. or nonviolent protest, you know your history — but you're wrong. I'm not talking about the famed 1955-56 Montgomery bus boycott. Nope. I'm talking about the Montgomery streetcar boycott, which lasted from July 1900 to July 1902. According to historian Jennifer Roback, the boycott ended when the

SUZI STEFFEN

You lobby and lobby. You hire the best lawyers. You hold protests. You strike, if you're lucky enough to have a strong union. You stay up late with markers and posterboard, and produce posters, newsletters and press releases galore.

streetcar company refused to enforce the city's new segregation law. The Montgomery boycott, though unusually successful, mirrored hundreds like it all over the country.

But long before 1900 — when, historians August Meier and Elliott Rudnick explain, streetcar segregation laws exploded onto the national scene — there was a boycott of segregated horsecars in Savannah, Ga. And in 1870-71, black residents of Louisville, Ky., staged nonviolent protests against horsecar segregation. So by the time December 1955 rolled its bigoted way into Montgomery, the history of nonviolent resistance and boycotts stood as honorable traditions among the black communities living under segregation.

But this isn't a history lesson. I'm not going to talk about Jo Ann Robinson, a professor at Alabama State College in 1955, about whom Dr. King said, "She, perhaps more than any person, was active on every level of the protest." No, I'm not going to go on about the fliers she mimeographed, the students she organized to hand those fliers out, all the work she did the night before the boycott began. I'm not going to tell you that Rosa Parks, often depicted as a simple seamstress, was an educated woman who served as the Montgomery branch secretary of the NAACP. I won't discuss the ways the NAACP had been fighting segregation on legal fronts for years by 1955. I won't quote Mary White Ovington, a founder of the NAACP, whose 1914 history of that organization's first five years you can read online at <http://www.naacp.org>.

I'd love to talk about all the things I won't say — but this isn't a class. It's a column — about history, and about keeping it real.

Now, I'm a contemporary woman. I like it when Netscape loads in 11 seconds. I like it when the New Pioneer deli can make dinner for me immediately. As an activist, I've always liked it when things change quickly. But sometimes it just doesn't work that way.

Sometimes, you lobby and lobby. You hire the best lawyers. You hold protests. You maybe strike, if you're lucky enough to have a strong union. You stay up late with markers and posterboard, or with Pagemaker and Diet Coke, and you produce posters, newsletters and press releases galore. You talk to legislators. You write letters. You make phone calls. Maybe you bake cookies, prepare speeches, or make sure there's good child care available during planning sessions.

You boycott things — segregated transportation systems in the 1900s, Coca-Cola during the apartheid years in South Africa, Hawkeye apparel now produced in sweatshops. But sometimes you don't see results. Although the Montgomery streetcar company didn't enforce segregation at first, it later gave in, and then streetcars gave way to buses, and those buses were as segregated as they could be.

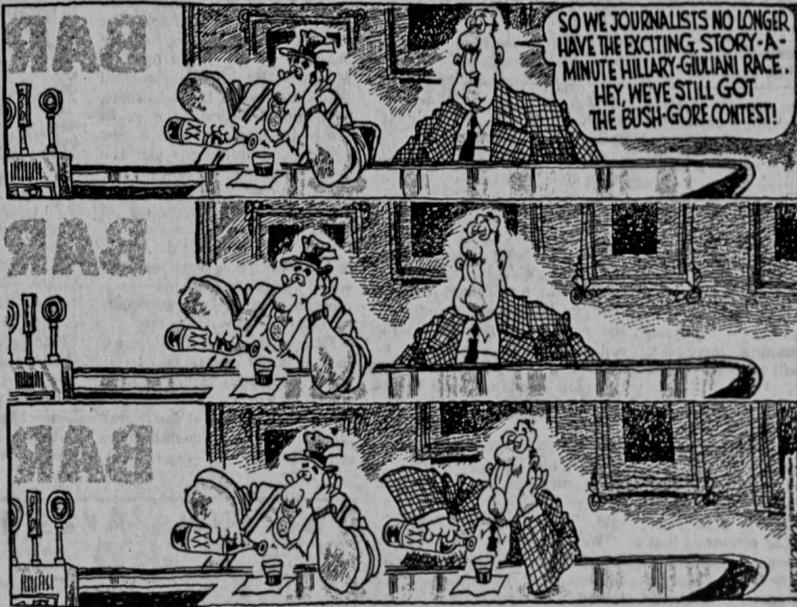

I wonder what any still-alive boycotters of 1900 told Rosa Parks in 1955, what advice they gave to Dr. King, what Jo Ann Robinson learned from them. Maybe they recalled the way they organized private taxis and horse-drawn carriages to get everyone to work. I wonder if they — and the NAACP founders — lived to see the Supreme Court ruling that transportation segregation was unconstitutional.

If they didn't, I hope that Robinson, Parks and King — just as those of us who work for progressive causes today — understood that they weren't the first to protest. Because the going got pretty tough in 1955 and throughout the civil-rights movement. Taking a longer view, knowing that you're building on those who came before, honoring them — these can ease the burden.

It's been a century since those unnamed activists initiated the boycotts. Thanks to them, and every progressive activist since then, things have changed a bit. I wish I knew who they were. I don't now, but I'm going to keep searching. They motivate me and make me shiver at their courage, and they deserve every bit of our honor, respect, and memory. I, for one, will not forget.

EDITORIAL

Knight's armor-tarnishing appropriate

After Indiana University President Myles Brand announced two weeks ago that the university would not fire head men's basketball coach Bob Knight despite allegations of verbal and physical abuse of co-workers and former IU players, much of the press wasted no time criticizing the decision. Instead of terminating Knight, the university imposed a $30,000 fine, a three-game suspension and a seemingly vague zero-tolerance policy for the coach, who has been at Indiana for 29 years. Despite the massive criticism, Brand's decision was not all bad.

Proper actions were taken, given Knight's popularity with players and fans, his ability to raise money for the university and his ability to graduate his players. The graduation rates for IU basketball approach the 90th percentile. Knight makes sure that his players leave Indiana with an education. Hot shots and big heads are not praised in the Indiana system; Knight won't allow it.

This is certainly not to say that abuse, either physical or verbal, is acceptable. It most definitely is not; however, in a day when some players feel they deserve a salary (aside from a free college education) because they can dunk a basketball, Knight has no choice now but to watch his temper. He will be under a microscope as long as he continues coaching. If he does release another outburst, either physical or verbal, which is probably only a matter of time, the university will have no choice but to fire him if it is to maintain any integrity.

a day when the only thing worse than a player's free throw percentage is his attitude and his character, Knight is a breath of fresh air. He has a way of bringing young athletes back down to earth, usually without resorting to violence. His players know this before they enroll at Indiana. He appeals to many players even today. This is evidenced by the fact that despite all the allegations and the investigation surrounding Knight, he has still managed to produce a top-five recruiting class for next season.

One may argue that university professors or other staff members would be fired or forced to resign if they took part in Knight-like tirades — but, in fairness, professors do not have to perform their jobs in front of 15,000 or more people and work under the media microscope that Knight does. That does not excuse him for choking a player or throwing a vase against a wall in the office of a secretary, but it does make even the tiniest outburst a front-page story, especially now. Knight has no choice now but to watch his temper. He will be under a microscope as long as he continues coaching because of the zero-tolerance policy imposed by Brand and the Indiana Board of Trustees.

Despite what one may think of Bob Knight, he has done great things for Indiana and the Big Ten. He is well aware of what is expected of him now. If he does release another outburst, either physical or verbal, which is probably only a matter of time, the university will have no choice but to fire him if it is to maintain any integrity. Knight may have a very bad temper, but he is not dumb. As long as he wants to keep his job, he will be more careful about what he says and does in the public eye.

Pinochet stripped of immunity

■ The former Chilean dictator might face charges stemming from rights abuses during his rule.

By Eva Vergara
Associated Press

SANTIAGO, Chile — A court Monday announced its decision to strip Gen. Augusto Pinochet of his immunity from prosecution, leaving Chile's former dictator facing a long legal battle over the human-rights abuses committed during his rule.

Opponents of the former dictator cheered and wept for joy, while Pinochet's defense team said it would appeal the ruling, the outlines of which were leaked to the media two weeks ago.

The Santiago Court of Appeals voted 13-9 on May 23 to remove the congressional immunity Pinochet enjoys as a senator for life. He faces 110 lawsuits filed on behalf of those killed or missing during his 17-year rule.

In releasing the 55-page decision, court President Ruben Ballesteros said the 22 members of the court "resolved that there are grounds to begin a case" against Pinochet for the right-wing dictatorship that ended in 1990.

Pinochet's lawyers have said they will appeal to the Supreme Court within the five days allowed under law. The former dictator is facing lawsuits filed by victims of the regime that took power in a bloody 1973 coup.

Pinochet's attorney, Pablo Rodriguez, has said an appeal will be based on "Gen. Pinochet's total innocence." The former dictator's defense also is expected to portray Pinochet, now 84, as mentally unfit to understand and consult with his lawyers about the legal proceedings against him.

Should the Supreme Court rule against Pinochet, he would face prosecution for the disappearance of 19 victims of the so-called "Caravan of Death," a military group that toured several cities soon after the coup, dragging prisoners from jail and executing them.

The 19 people have never been found and are among some 3,191 people who died or disappeared under Pinochet's military rule, according to an official report compiled by the civilian government that succeeded him.

Opponents of Pinochet celebrated in the streets, many hugging each other as the decision was released. "It's unbelievable what we've just heard, but we did it!" said Viviana Diaz, the leader of a group representing the disappeared.

Several obstacles remain for those who would prosecute Pinochet, among them, determining whether he is mentally fit to stand trial and whether he would be tried in a civilian or military court. Those over age 70 must also undergo a battery of medical tests required by law.

WORLD BRIEF

Ukraine to entomb Chernobyl

KIEV, Ukraine (AP) — Fourteen years after the world's worst nuclear accident, Ukraine President Leonid Kuchma ordered the Chernobyl nuclear power plant closed, drawing praise from President Clinton, who dispensed $80 million in American aid to entomb the plant forever.

"This is a hopeful moment," Clinton said in this former Soviet republic, the last stop in a week-long European tour. "It is also a moment when we remember those who suffered as a result of the accident there."

The April 26, 1986, accident spread radioactive material over much of Europe. The Ukrainian government has blamed the disaster for at least 8,000 deaths, including 31 killed immediately, many more killed in the massive cleanup operation and others who later died of cancer and other radiation-related illnesses. The plant will close on Dec. 15, Kuchma said.

Videos catch mothers abusing kids

■ Hidden cameras captured mothers injecting children with urine and suffocating them, among other things.

By Erin McClam
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Baffled by unexplained illnesses in some children, researchers hid video cameras in 41 rooms at an Atlanta hospital. More than half the time, the videotapes confirmed doctors' fears — mothers were injecting their children with urine, switching their medication, and even suffocating them to keep them sick.

The cameras, installed over four years, helped diagnose 23 mothers with Munchausen syndrome by proxy — a mental illness that causes parents hungry for attention or sympathy to abuse their children.

Doctors say the mental illness leads to children's deaths in about 10 percent of cases. But they say diagnosing the disorder is difficult, and the number could be higher.

The researchers, whose study will appear in today's issue of the journal Pediatrics, urged hospitals to use hidden cameras to diagnose Munchausen by proxy.

But some specialists call the practice an unethical invasion of privacy and say it means doctors must silently let the behavior continue.

Munchausen by proxy is a derivative of Munchausen syndrome, in which people make themselves ill or fake sickness to get attention.

The mothers in the Atlanta study went to extreme lengths to deceive doctors. In one case, specialists could not explain a child's recurring E. coli infections.

Cameras caught the mother injecting her own urine into the child's intravenous line.

In another, a mother gagged herself and vomited, then told doctors the vomit was her child's.

The mothers told outrageous lies to doctors and to relatives they spoke with on hospital phones. One woman invented seizures that her child never had.

Police were informed of the videotaping beforehand, and many of the mothers were arrested on charges of abuse and other offenses. The study did not release details of the criminal cases.

Eleven of the 23 Munchausen mothers worked in medicine in some form, and eight reported a history of sexual or other abuse. That suggests the women, desperate for sympathy, may associate comfort and protection with hospitals.

JAKARTA, Indonesia — At least 58 people died, and 500 were injured in a powerful earthquake that lasted for minutes on the Indonesian island of Sumatra. It was followed by hundreds of strong aftershocks Monday.

Widespread panic was reported in Bengkulu, a province of approximately 1.2 million people near the tremor's epicenter, as rescuers dug through the rubble of ruined buildings in search of bodies and trapped survivors.

Ali Mughtar, the Bengkulu health department chief, said 58 people were confirmed dead — a total that was expected to rise. Almost 500 people had been reported injured, 255 seriously.

The quake hit at 11:29 p.m. Sunday and was centered beneath the Indian Ocean, about 60 miles west of Bengkulu city. The Indonesian Meteorological and Geophysical Service said the quake measured a magnitude of 7.3. The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., estimated the strength at 7.9.

Taking a stroll on the avenue of letters

Some Iowa authors will be celebrated on new literary walk along Iowa Avenue.

By Kelly Oulman
The Daily Iowan

Iowa Avenue will soon be home to a literary walk honoring Iowa authors with quotes from each of their works cast in bronze. The literary walk is part of the renovation of the street. The city is trying to enhance the community by integrating public art with public-works projects, said Karin Franklin, the city director of planning and community development.

The spirit and character of the community," she said. Authors included in the walk were chosen by a committee composed of librarians, book sellers and others with literary knowledge. The members were meant to represent a wide variety of interests in the community, said Kevin Hanick, the committee chairman. The committee chose 60 Iowa authors and selected the quotes to be honored by the project. "We went through and looked for something really neat they had said," said Paul Ingram, a committee member. The quotes the committee wishes to include are not yet public knowledge because publishing companies have not, as of yet, given the city permission to use them, Franklin said. The first 10 authors will be honored at the end of September, when construction begins on the north side of the 300 block of Iowa Avenue. The project will be completed in the spring and summer of 2001. Bess Streeter Aldrich, Marvin Bell, Patricia Hampl, Black Hawk, James Hearst, John Irving, W.P. Kinsella, Jane Smiley, Kurt Vonnegut and Meredith Wilson are all members of the first group of authors to be honored. Chris Offutt will also be one of the authors that honored in the literary walk. A former student and current teacher in the Writers' Workshop, his works include The Same River Twice, The Good Brother, and Out of the Woods, a collection of short stories. "I'm extremely flattered," he said. "It's a great honor to be included." Construction projects on Iowa Avenue, one of which is the literary walk, will close the street between Linn and Gilbert streets until August. The project will cost $120,000 and will be paid for by an annual allocation from the City Council to the Public Art Committee. D/ reporter Kelly Oulman can be reached at: koulman@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

Florida sex offender escapes by helicopter

An inmate at sex treatment facility was whisked away in broad daylight from the grounds.

By Karin Meadows
Associated Press

INDIANTOWN, Fla. — An inmate at a center for sex offenders made a Hollywood-style escape Monday in a helicopter that landed on the grounds and whisked him away before crashing in an orange grove nearby. The helicopter, with a student pilot at the controls, cleared a 15-foot razor-wire fence surrounding the Martin Treatment Center, then went down approximately 100 yards away, authorities said. The inmate, Steven Whitsett, 28, and the pilot ran off into the marsh surrounding the center. Two gun holsters were found beside the helicopter, said Jenell Atlas, a spokeswoman for the Martin County Sheriff's Office. Police and prison guards from the Martin Correctional Institution, adjacent to the center, searched the area with helicopters and dogs. They also searched trucks along a highway nearby. "We do consider them armed and dangerous, and frankly, desperate," Atlas said. The pilot was Clifford Sebastian Berkhart, 23, according to Beach Scott, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board in Atlanta. Whitsett had been convicted in 1994 of child molestation and finished his prison sentence in 1999. He was being held at the treatment center while awaiting a civil trial under a law aimed at keeping dangerous sexual offenders locked up and in psychiatric treatment even after they finish their prison sentences. The breakout took place around 1 p.m. Berkhart had taken off in a training helicopter from a Fort Lauderdale airport. He had been in flight training for two months, Scott said, and this was only his second solo flight. He did not yet have an FAA license. "It is out of a Hollywood script, isn't it?" Atlas said. "He landed in broad daylight, and he (the inmate) ran out like in a movie. But unlike in a movie they crashed."

Philip Morris yanks cigarette advertising in magazines

Philip Morris to suspend advertising in dozens of magazines.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Philip Morris will stop advertising in about 40 magazines amid criticism that it still pitches cigarettes in publications that have large teen-age readerships.

In a statement Monday, the nation's largest cigarette company said it will suspend future cigarette ads in any publication in which readers under the age of 18 constitute 15 percent or more of the total readership, or in magazines that have more than 2 million readers under 18. "Philip Morris USA believes that applying this extra rigor to reportedly higher youth reach and readership is consistent with its commitment to lower the profile of tobacco advertising and its mission to responsibly market its products only to adults," Philip Morris said. Washington state Attorney General Christine Gregoire applauded the move. "One of the reasons we sued tobacco companies was to stop them from targeting kids to make them the next generation of smokers," said Gregoire, president of the National Association of Attorneys General. "We are concerned about readers, not necessarily subscribers, and this is a major step toward reducing the exposure of our kids to the hard sell of tobacco," she added. Magazine readership numbers are generally much higher than subscription figures, especially among teen-agers.

Prosecutor, suspect killed in shoot-out

PROSECUTOR

The gunman's wife and brother were arrested at the scene and charged with murder. Vaughn, 49, had been due to go on trial Monday, with Capps prosecuting him on charges of sexual abuse involving a child under 12. Authorities did not immediately give details on the charges. State police Sgt. Mike Castle said Vaughn fired several shots from an assault rifle into Capps' home before 6 a.m., then entered and fired more shots. The front door handle was blown off by gunfire, and five bullet holes were visible in a front window. "There are dozens of shell casings and bullet fragments in the interior of the home, which would indicate a tremendous amount of gunfire," Melton said. Neighbor Mack Walker, whose family has lived across the street from the Capps for more than 25 years, said: "I heard the shots and saw this boy standing at the doorway shooting into the house ... I knew Fred was in trouble and told my wife to call the law." Vaughn's wife, Patricia Vaughn, and brother, James Vaughn, were charged with murder, though neither was armed. Witnesses said Patricia Vaughn was in a vehicle in the Capps' driveway. James Vaughn was arrested in a field nearby. Police would not say why the two accompanied Vaughn to the scene or exactly what prompted the murder charges against them.

Capps was the prosecutor at Vaughn's arraignment last July on the sex charges. Vaughn was freed on bail. "There was no animosity or anything that I knew about" between the two men, circuit court Clerk Hazel Jones said. Vaughn had a long arrest record on charges including intoxication, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. Capps was prosecutor for Adair, Casey, Cumberland and Monroe counties in southern Kentucky. He shared a law practice with his wife, who is an assistant commonwealth's attorney. They also represented Burkesville, a town of 1,800 approximately 140 miles south of Louisville, near the Tennessee line.

Recent art thefts irk two UI art grads the prints cannot be replicated. Morehouse had already sold one print for $425 but had to return the check when the print was stolen. After filing a report with UI Public Safety, she consulted the School of Art and Art History to see if she could be reimbursed. She was referred to the Risk Management Office, an affiliation of the art school and museum, but, she said, she didn't expect to receive an insurance-coverage payment. Burke waited a week to file a report with Iowa City police in hopes that the sculpture would be found or returned. One Iowa City police officer suggested Burke ask the UI to drag the Iowa River to look for it, Burke said. The Museum of Art offered to reimburse Burke for the cost of materials, which add up to $25. David Dennis, the museum's technical director, said Burke has not yet contacted the museum to receive the money. "Maybe it was meant to happen," Burke said. "The dummy had taken on its own personality." But Morehouse doesn't share Burke's willingness to see the art as expendable. "The two pieces were irreplaceable," she said. "They should have tighter security — maybe security cameras or a security guard." The Drewelow Gallery has posted hours, but, Morehouse said, she has seen it open long after its designated closing time. Public Safety is responsible for the security of artwork outside the Art Museum, where Burke's sculpture was stolen, Dennis said. The building and premises are monitored in shifts at all hours by one building guard, said Capt.

Duane Papke, the associate director of Public Safety. The guard makes one check around the grounds throughout the shift and one specific check to lock and unlock doors in the Art Building complex, he said. "I would say (the sculpture theft) is a rare occurrence," he said. Dennis said he urged Burke to bring the sculpture inside the museum, where security is more dependable. It was understood that if the artwork was left outside, Burke would assume full responsibility for it, Dennis said. "I would hope the school would take some responsibility," Morehouse said. "The M.F.A. show is one of the few opportunities art students have to show their work, and thefts really discourage people from promoting themselves and their careers." D/ reporter Betsy Lam can be reached at: betsy-lam@uiowa.edu

UI staff members cry foul in parking spat

the number of spots between faculty and staff are even. The new policy will help faculty members who have been complaining about having to park far from campus, said Jonathan Carlson, a UI law professor and member of the Faculty Council. "This move will make more space in the more-desirable spots closer to the buildings," he said. Although UI employees will benefit from the new policy, the administration says, some UI faculty are not in favor of it. "Everybody should be treated equally," said Gerald Payne, a UI physics and astronomy professor.

"The faculty has the same needs as the staff." Many staff members have opted to rent spots from Paglia's Pizza, 302 E. Bloomington St., for $35 a month or opted to utilize parking spots in city ramps, Paterson said. "It is a long way to walk," she said. "It gets to be quite expensive." D/ reporter Bill Bos can be reached at: daily-ian@uiowa.edu

Melodic electronica with a somber echo. Olive's new album accentuates Ruth-Anne's clear, hermetic vocals with keyboardist-producer Tim Kellest's dark chords. The title, Trickle, may refer to the euphoric nature of this British trip-hop, or it might allude to the syrup dripping from the sappy lyrics. Most likely, it is titled after the second track.

Although sentimental and a little banal, every song tells a story. Kellest's lyrics and sonic effects create an entrancing musical fantasy world. Perhaps it is the influence of U.K. technophilia, but the album's sound seems to transcend reality. It is a hypnotic exploration of the dream-like edge to familiar love.

The album has a very definite feminine aspect to it, and that allows it to achieve a serene mood. Trickle is the duo's second album, a magnificent follow-up to its first masterpiece, Extra Virgin. The two have succeeded in developing a new, unique sound with a cross-generational appeal. Kellest utilizes the orchestra of Michael

The New Stone Age

Shady lyrics, a lap steel and a very, very blue case, the New Stone Age's album R is the delightful result of drug-induced garage rock. Each fun-filled track is a masterful composition containing either paranoid delusions or adult situations. It's alternative sound is sure to tickle every young rocker's fancy.

For Josh Homme (vocals, guitar), it has been a long trip through the music industry, including the Seattle scene and a brief stint with the Screaming Trees, to end up in his present state: disbelief. The New Stone Age is tasting sweet success touring with such infamous bands as Rage Against the Machine, the Smashing Pumpkins and Ween. Although put out by a rather small company, Interscope Records, its tunes are hard enough to compete with any of these big-name bands. The music is a cross between STP's No.4 and Blur.

CD REVIEWS

With songs such as the happy, pop-ish "AutoPilot" to the edgy "Feel Good Hit of the Summer," R is an excellent addition to every 20-something's collection. In fact, I'd definitely recommend it except that it is "Restricted to everyone, everywhere, all the time."

THE HISTORY OF ROCK

Kid Rock

Modern intellectual giant Kid Rock graces the nation with more adolescent diatribe. The crass style in his new album, The History of Rock, is enough chauvinistic ranting to make this janky white boy bigger than Pamela Lee's breasts. But don't take my word for it—buy the album so you can directly absorb the real American badass' musings on culture, art and the Oedipus complex. Such a pity it's too late for Mother's Day.

The hottest blond since Britney Spears, Kid Rock's (formerly Bob Richie) tunes just might be the greatest white imitation rap to come out of Detroit this year. His touching lyrics are obviously the result of an artist's revelations on physical love and repressed childhood issues. Through songs such as "Early Mornin' Stoned Pimp" and "Fk You Blind," one really gets to know the real Kid Rock. It's as if he's sharing a tiny part of himself with all the women of the world.

The album received rave reviews from contemporary artists such as Lars Ulrich (drummer for Metallica) and is a favorite for pubescent junior high boys everywhere. After a long and struggling career, Kid Rock has finally made his fortune. Possibly, with his example, thousands of youngsters everywhere might one day hope to be talented and prosperous as little Bobby R. After all, Kid Rock's music truly is the inspired thoughts of a little, little boy.

Sanders adds to turbulent off-season

Already this year, the Redskins have signed free agents Bruce Smith, Mark Carrier, Jeff George and Adrian Murrell. They also traded to get two of the top three picks in April's draft, choosing Penn State linebacker LaVar Arrington and Alabama tackle Chris Samuels.

"We're definitely the 'Who's Who' of the NFL now," receiver Irving Fryar said after a morning practice. "We've got a lot of great names who carry a lot of great talent with them. Yeah, on paper, we're the team."

"But obviously the reason we're out here working is to try to develop some cohesiveness between those names, so all those great names become one great name."

Sanders was at Redskin Park at 7 a.m., working out with his personal trainer. He passed a physical in the afternoon before signing his contract.

The 32-year-old cornerback arrived in Washington on Saturday night and had dinner with Snyder, director of player personnel Vinny Cerrato and longtime Redskins cornerback

Tyler Mallory/Associated Press
Deion Sanders signed Monday with the Washington Redskins to a seven-year, $56 million contract.

Darrell Green. "Nightmares of the last few years of Deion scoring touchdowns against us will no longer happen," Snyder said.

Green helped recruit Sanders, even though the 40-year-old, seven-time Pro Bowl cornerback concedes his days as a starter may now come to an end.

"As the job changes, your responsibility changes," said Green, who signed a five-year contract last week. "This is only normal, this is only natural."

Coach Norv Turner said Sanders would immediately become a starter — and then hedged as much as he could concerning Green and the other incumbent, Champ Bailey. Turner said all three would be on the field often because offenses are frequently using sets of three and four wide receivers. He even quipped he may "introduce 12 men defensively" when the line-ups are announced.

Turner said Sanders also will return punts, but downplayed the possibility of Sanders lining up as receiver as he occasionally did with the Cowboys.

Sanders realizes some Washington fans may cringe because he's spent so long on the other side of the Cowboys-Redskins rivalry.

"I know it's hard to do a man with open arms who's done a little work against you," Sanders said.

"You win over fans by making plays."

Rocker stands to lose much money

"While major league baseball is conducting its own investigation, I am satisfied that the Braves have moved expeditiously and have treated the matter with the seriousness it deserves," he said.

Rocker, who has 10 saves and a 3.93 ERA, told the Braves he would have to talk to his agent before reporting to the minors. He cleaned out his locker and left the stadium without talking to reporters.

"Obviously nobody is happy when they get sent down from the major leagues, but I don't think it's something his agent is going to be able to change," Braves pitcher Kevin Millwood said.

The demotion has the potential to cost Rocker millions if he remains in the minor leagues for 20 days or more.

Rocker, who is making $290,000 this year, was on track to become eligible for salary arbitration next winter. If he stays in the minors less than 20 days, he probably would get $3 million or more in arbitration instead of the $300,000 to

Mariene Karas/Associated Press
Atlanta closer John Rocker sits in a hallway as he speaks on a cell phone Monday after being sent down to the minor leagues.

$400,000 he would receive if Atlanta can unilaterally determine his salary.

Rocker was given the news about the minors when arrived at Turner Field for the game against the Toronto Blue Jays. He was clearly surprised.

"He thinks he's pitching good," said Cox, who has pulled Rocker out of several crucial situations. The Braves called up 21-year-old pitcher Jason Marquis from Double-A Greenville to replace Rocker.

Pearlman had a chance encounter with Rocker in a tunnel near the clubhouse Sunday, about two hours before the final game of the Braves-Yankees series.

Red Sox cheered on the road in Florida

MIAMI (AP) — The Florida Marlins felt like they were on the road, and it wasn't just a warm welcome for a former teammate.

Former Marlin Carl Everett hit a solo home run in the ninth inning as the Boston Red Sox snapped their longest losing streak of the season at five games with a 3-2 win over Florida on Monday night.

Many of the 12,523 fans in attendance not only cheered when Everett hit his 20th homer of the season, they were on their feet when Derek Lowe had two outs in the ninth.

"It seems like we should have been in our gray uniforms," Marlins outfielder Preston Wilson said. "It was absolutely disgusting. It seems like we should be playing all 162 games on the road when that happens. I'm embarrassed."

Added manager John Boles: "When you pay your money, you can cheer for whoever you want to cheer for. There were a lot of happy people at the end of this Marlins loss."

Rangers 2, Dodgers 0
ARLINGTON, Texas — Ryan Glynn, a Triple-A player called up specifically for the start, won a duel against $105 million pitcher Kevin Brown as the Texas Rangers beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0 Monday night. Glynn (1-0) was promoted from Oklahoma to start in place of Darren Oliver and allowed two hits in eight shutout innings, striking out six. John Wetteland finished to convert his 13th consecutive save chance, his 16 in 19 opportunities overall.

Astros 8, Twins 2
HOUSTON — Jeff Bagwell broke out of a 1-for-15 slump with a two-run homer, giving him 1,000 RBIs in his career and helping the Houston Astros beat the Minnesota Twins 8-2 on Monday night.

Blue Jays 9, Braves 3
ATLANTA — Rookie Chris Woodward's three-run homer capped a five-run first inning, and the Toronto Blue Jays cruised to a 9-3 victory over Atlanta on Monday night in the Braves' first game without John Rocker.

Raul Mondesi added a three-run homer in the third for the Blue Jays, who lead the AL with 93 homers. The Braves have lost three of four since beginning interleague play.

Orioles 4, Mets 2
NEW YORK — Albert Belle, playing his first game at Shea Stadium, had three hits and drove in two runs as the Baltimore Orioles beat the New York Mets 4-2 on a windy Monday night and broke a five-game losing streak.

Jason Tyner, playing his first game in the big leagues, was 2-for-3 for New York, including an RBI single off Mike Mussina.

The 23-year-old rookie was promoted from Triple-A Norfolk before the game and immediately became the Mets' leadoff hitter.

Orioles manager Mike Hargrove, back after missing two games while attending his son's high school graduation in Cleveland, made an unusual move that paid off during a three-run rally in the seventh off Mike Hampton (6-5).

White Sox 4, Reds 3
CINCINNATI — Jose Valentin and Greg Norton homered, and Chicago's bullpen had just enough to close out James Baldwin's solid start as the White Sox beat the Cincinnati Reds 4-3 Monday night.

The White Sox got their fifth win in six games, improving the AL's best record to 33-23. It's the second time this season that they're 10 games over .500.

Baldwin (9-1), off to the best start by a White Sox pitcher since he won nine of his first 10 decisions in 1996, turned a 3-0 lead over to the bullpen with one out and two on in the seventh.

Expos 6, Yankees 4
MONTREAL — David Cone was far from perfect this time.

Orlando Cabrera hit a three-run homer one pitch after being knocked down by Cone, and the Montreal Expos beat the New York Yankees 6-4 Monday night for their season-high sixth straight win.

Cone (1-6) was facing Montreal for the first time since his perfect game against them at Yankee Stadium last July 18, and he lost for the 11th time in 14 decisions since then.

With the score 3-all in the sixth inning and runners on first and second, Cabrera was sent sprawling by a high, inside pitch with a 1-0 count. Cabrera drove the next pitch into the left-field stands for his sixth homer.

Indians 8, Brewers 4
MILWAUKEE — David Justice had a pair of home runs and four RBIs to back Dave Burba, who won his fifth consecutive decision and led the Cleveland Indians over the Milwaukee Brewers 8-4 Monday night.

Burba (6-1) allowed three runs and seven hits in six innings, striking out eight as Cleveland won its third straight. He improved to 3-0 with a 2.38 ERA against the Brewers.

Jeff D'Amico (2-4) lost his third consecutive game, allowing six runs and seven hits in four innings.

Cubs 4, Diamondbacks 3
CHICAGO — Jeff Reed picked the perfect time to break out of his slump. Reed, 0-for-14 over his last five-plus games, hit a two-run, two-out double in a three-run 10th inning Monday night as the Chicago Cubs rallied to beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 4-3.

"I was just glad I got a hit, No. 1," Reed said. "And that we won the game. We'll take it any way we can get it."

Reed hit a hanging slider off Matt Mantei (1-1) deep into the corner in right, and Andy Fox, who had entered in the ninth in a double-switch, couldn't get to it in time. Sammy Sosa scored, and he stayed at home waving wildly as pinch-runner Eric Young rounded third.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Young, who remains under contract with San Francisco while considering his football future, sought and received permission from the 49ers to talk to the Denver Broncos about joining them.
Young, a two-time league MVP who led San Francisco to a Super Bowl title in 1982, reportedly met with Broncos coach Mike Shanahan at a hotel near the Denver airport. Shanahan was the 49ers' offensive coordinator during their last Super Bowl run and a close relationship with Young.
A team source requesting anonymity Young approached 49ers officials earlier week to ask if he could talk to the Broncos and San Francisco, which is struggling with salary-cap problems and is in the midst of rebuilding effort, agreed.
Young, 38, still has not decided whether to keep playing or retire after going down with a concussion on Sept. 27 at Arizona, missing the last 13 games of the season.
His agent, Leigh Steinberg, did not immediately return a phone call seeking comment. A spokesman for the Broncos declined comment on a KCNC-TV's report that Mets fans are going to be real disappointed, real disappointed. It would've been a wild night, probably wild beyond imagination.

POINTCOUNTERPOINT

Do the Pacers have a chance in the NBA Finals?

Teams up and down the West Coast have proven that the Lakers are not infallible in the 2000 playoffs, so to put them on a pedestal of invincibility would be inaccurate.

Indiana is a team that matches up somewhat well with Los Angeles, and that is the main reason why it will not be a cakewalk for Jack Nicholson's favorite team.

In the middle, Rik Smits will provide formidable opposition for Shaquille O'Neal. In fact, it will be better than Shaq has seen in the past season. Although Portland's Arvydas Sabonis put forth a gallant effort, he is not Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, or Rik Smits for that matter.

For as dumb as he pulled up black socks look on TV, he will make Shaq work on both ends of the court. Fatigue could play a part in the late-going, especially when Clank-Fu shoots free throws.

Reggie Miller is a gamer as well. He says he enjoys his role as Indiana's go-to guy and has the post-season statistics to back it up. Even though Kobe Bryant is creeping up on him talent-wise, Miller expects to be in top-form for the series.

Dale Davis and Derrick McKey will both have to get open and contribute to the Pacers offensive cause in order to compete with a deep Los Angeles team.

Both teams have two marquee players and match up fairly well in the middle. Even though the Lakers are the more skilled team on paper, they have proved throughout the playoffs they are mortal. The series will come down to defense and Rik Smits, but it will not be a sweep.

Niners grant Young permission to talk to Denver

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Young, who remains under contract with San Francisco while considering his football future, sought and received permission from the 49ers to talk to the Denver Broncos about joining them.

Young, a two-time league MVP who led San Francisco to a Super Bowl title in 1994, reportedly met with Broncos coach Mike Shanahan at a hotel near the Denver airport. Shanahan was the 49ers' offensive coordinator during their last Super Bowl run and had a close relationship with Young.

A team source requesting anonymity said Young approached 49ers officials earlier this week to ask if he could talk to the Broncos, and San Francisco, which is struggling with salary-cap problems and is in the midst of a rebuilding effort, agreed.

Marlins make Gonzales No. 1 pick

Once the Florida Marlins took a look at Adrian Gonzalez's smooth left-handed swing, their minds were made up.

The Marlins selected Gonzalez, from Eastlake High School in Chula Vista, Calif., with the No. 1 pick in Monday's baseball draft.

"We all agreed that Adrian Gonzalez was the best hitting prospect available in this year's draft," Marlins scouting director Al Avila said. "Every time I went to see him, he hit. He definitely possesses the best pure stroke in this year's draft."

The 6-foot-2 Gonzalez hit .645 with 13 home runs and 34 RBIs this season and is the first high school infielder to be selected No. 1 since Alex Rodriguez in 1993.

"It's a thrill. It's a dream come true," Gonzalez said. "I've wanted to play professional baseball since I can remember."

Hanrahan, a right-handed pitcher at Norwalk High School, was chosen by the Dodgers in the second round of Monday's major league draft. He was the 57th player chosen overall.

Had he been picked later, Hanrahan would have wrestled with the question of whether to sign with the Dodgers or finish the high school season this summer and then play at Nebraska, with whom he has signed a national letter of intent.

Ex-major leaguer Don Liddle dies at 75

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. — Donald Liddle, a former major leaguer who threw the pitch that became one of baseball's greatest defensive plays, died Monday of lung cancer. He was 75.

Liddle was on the mound in Game One of the 1954 World Series at New York's Polo Grounds when Willie Mays made his famous over-the-shoulder catch running down a 460-foot fly ball hit by Cleveland's Vic Wertz. Liddle had been summoned by Giants manager Leo Durocher to relieve Sal Maglie, specifically to face Wertz. When fellow reliever Marv Grissom came to the mound to replace him after Mays' spectacular catch, Liddle said, "I got my man."

Magic and Bird foes again in Finals

■ With Larry Bird coaching the Pacers and Magic Johnson in the Lakers front office, the two will meet again, sort of.

By Ken Peters
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Magic vs. Bird, again.
"One more time," Los Angeles Lakers Vice President Magic Johnson said, relishing the reunion coming up with former Boston Celtics great Larry Bird, now the coach of the Indiana Pacers.

"It'll be great," Johnson said. "I knew it was going to happen, at checkers or softball or something. I didn't know it was going to be at basketball, but it's one more time, head-to-head, us against each other."

Bird said he doesn't see Johnson often, because "he's doing his thing and I'm doing mine."

"I've always been down on the Lakers," Bird said Monday after the Pacers worked out in Indiana before traveling to Los Angeles for Wednesday's Game 1 of the NBA Finals. "But I've always had the utmost respect for the guy, and he's the best player I played against. We've had some good battles. It's been a lot of fun."

Of course, Johnson won't be wearing the Lakers' purple and gold and making no-look passes and tossing up junior sky hooks, and Bird won't be clad in Celtics green and popping in his feathery jumpers from all over the court. But Johnson still relishes the renewed competition between the two, which began when he led Michigan State to the 1979 NCAA title with a victory over Bird and Indiana State in the championship game.

The Magic-Bird rivalry flourished in the NBA during the 1980s, as they provided many memorable moments and helped revive interest in the league. Bird and Boston beat the Lakers in the 1984 championship series, and Johnson led the Lakers to wins over the Celtics in the 1985 and 1987 Finals.

Speaking with several reporters Sunday near the Lakers' locker room in Staples Center, Johnson preceded many of his remarks with an "If we make it." He spoke about an hour before Los Angeles played Portland in Game 7 of the Western Conference finals, but seemed confident the Lakers would win and advance. The Lakers had to rally from a 15-point fourth-quarter deficit for an 89-84 victory.

While Johnson and Bird were taping a TV special, the two talked about the possibility they would compete again in some fashion, and Johnson said: "We thought that something was going to happen where we're going to be against each other again. We laughed about it, but here it is."

Johnson seemed proud that Bird, who drew some skepticism when he became the Pacers coach, was able to lead them to the Finals.

"Some guys said, 'Can he lead this team to a championship?' Well, he's done it," Johnson said. "He's proved a lot of people wrong, and he's ready to try to prove them wrong one more time."

Bird apparently would prefer he and Johnson were rival coaches in the Finals.

"Somebody told me Magic's been yapping again," Bird said. "But what I say is, let him take Phil (Jackson)'s place for about two weeks, and we'll see what happens."

Johnson had a brief and largely unsuccessful fling at coaching the Lakers late in the 1993-94 season, going 5-11 during his stint.

Win or lose in the Finals, Bird apparently intends to stick to his plan and make this, his third year of coaching the Pacers, his last.

"It's the right move. Larry's smart. This is his shot," Johnson said. "Everybody (on the Pacers) is getting old now. Why wouldn't he walk away?"

"They're going to have a lot of free agents and unless they sign a lot of people, it's going to be tough. He's right — three, maybe four to five years, that's about right for a coach. He will be back in basketball; mark my words," the Lakers' executive said.

No room in salary cap for Chmura

■ Despite the fact Mark Chmura is being charged with sexual assault, the Green Bay Packers cited lack of room in the salary cap for cutting him.

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — In a move the Green Bay Packers termed strictly business, Mark Chmura was released Monday as he awaits trial on charges of sexually assaulting his 17-year-old babysitter.

Even before the case surfaced, the star tight end had a questionable football future. He missed all but two games of last season with a neck injury that caused partial paralysis in his arms.

By releasing Chmura after June 1, the Packers save $900,000 in salary cap room.

"The actions of the Packers were nothing more than a formality," said John Drana, Chmura's friend and personal attorney.

Chmura, who helped the Packers to Super Bowl appearances in 1997 and 1998, announced the Packers' decision Saturday and thanked general manager Ron Wolf.

Drana said Wolf didn't mention the criminal case when he informed him of the release last week. Drana declined to say Monday if any teams expressed interest in Chmura.

Chmura had hoped to play this season and participated in the Packers' first minicamp in March before his arrest.

Chmura has not been able to rehabilitate his neck since the start of the case. Drana said Chmura, listed at 6-foot-5 and 255 pounds, has dropped 20 pounds since his arrest.

Packers coach Mike Sherman said Monday the decision was a salary-cap move.

"Please don't make it anything more than that," he said after minicamp practice.

Safety Darren Sharper said Chmura's release was part of the "nature of the business."

"It's a tough situation," Sharper said Monday. "We want to look forward to the season. We don't want to think about a lot of stuff that happened this offseason, because it hasn't been a good offseason for us."

Chmura is one of five Packers players who have been in trouble with law since late last season.

In February, Antonio Freeman was sentenced to a year of probation for obstructing police in a traffic accident. Former Packer Charles Jordan was fined $5,000 for lying about the accident. DeMond Parker was arrested April 2 on marijuana charges. In May, Marco Rivera was cited for drunken driving.

Prosecutors say Chmura had sex with the 17-year-old at a party after a high school prom on April 9. The girl, who had cared for Chmura's two young children, testified at a hearing last week that Chmura called her into a bathroom, locked the door, moved her onto the floor and had sex with her without her consent.

2000 MEN'S TRACK WRAPUP

Junior Arno van der Westhuizen tosses his Big Ten record setting hammer throw during the Big Ten Championships on May 21.

Matt Holst/The Daily Iowan

Rebuilt quickly

In what was supposed to be an off-year, Iowa's men's track team turned heads.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

Tim Dwight? Gone. Bashir Yamini? Gone. Tim Dodge? Left the team for spring football. Tony Branch? Sat out most of the season because of an injury. What's left? A team good enough to take sixth place in the Big Ten conference, get two All-Americans and a provide a bright future for Iowa track. Considering all the injuries and departures, the Iowa men's track team didn't have a whole lot to work with this year — but it still got some good things done. The Hawkeyes had distance-runner Stetson Steele break every school distance record but one, his coach's 5,000-meter outdoor record. Steele was also an All-American in the indoor and outdoor season. The Hawks' hammer-thrower Arno van der Westhuizen set a Big Ten conference record, and Jeremy Allen set a school shot-put record and earn All-American status in the indoor shot put. All things considered, the season went well, said coach Larry Wiecek. "Overall, I feel real good about this season," he said. "We knew it was going to be rough, but given the losses, it was a good year."

"We have a solid future — next year, we'll be back up in the top three." Up in the top three is where the Hawkeyes had been in the outdoor season for two previous years; with the talent returning, saying they'll be back there isn't too far-fetched. Allen and van der Westhuizen will be back because they both qualified for the NCAA Championships in 2000. Junior javelin thrower Dan Ralph will return to next year's roster after he also qualified for NCAAs, but did not participate because of a shoulder injury. Sprinter Tim Dodge will return for his senior season after sitting out this spring to practice for spring football. Most importantly, in the holes left open in the lineup because of all the injuries and departures, the Hawkeyes had a slew of young athletes develop. NCAA provisional-qualifier freshman Russ Peterson will return with a bunch of other promising freshman, such as Liam Card, who had the team's fastest 200-meter time. Freshman Bobby Atkins will return to run distance, and sprinter Scott Williamson will be back for his senior season. "This will be a real exciting group to build around," Wiecek said. "Our goal is to score 100 points at the Big Ten outdoor meet. We didn't do that this year, but these guys coming back can get 100 points at the Big Tens." DI Sports Editor Jeremy Schnitker can be reached at: jschnitk@blue.weeg.uiowa.edu

Rocker sent down to the minors

One day after lambasting a reporter, the embattled pitcher was sent down to Triple-A.

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA — John Rocker was banished to the minors Monday. The team insisted it was because of his arm, not his mouth. The timing suggested it was a little of both. Already struggling with his control, the Atlanta Braves reliever was sent to Triple-A Richmond just one day after he threatened the reporter who wrote the story about Rocker's bigoted views on foreigners, gays and minorities. "He told us in spring training he was going to change," catcher Eddie Perez said. "But he didn't change a thing. Maybe he can go down there and change." Braves officials said the move had been under discussion for nearly a week as a way of addressing Rocker's control problems — 25 walks in 18 1-3 innings. But Sunday's confrontation with Sports Illustrated reporter Jeff Pearlman made the decision a no-brainer. "He made the decision himself when he went after the SI guy," said outfielder Brian Jordan, who called Rocker a "cancer" after his confrontation with Pearlman. "He made another boo-boo." Perez wondered if Rocker, who had 38 saves a year ago, will ever bounce back from the stigma of his offensive comments. "I don't know if this will help him or hurt him," Perez said. Rocker, 25, also was fined "a substantial amount" for threatening Pearlman, according to manager Bobby Cox. A baseball source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the amount was $5,000. Cox said the Braves planned to demote Rocker last week but couldn't because of an injury to reliever Greg McMichael. "This is something that's been brewing for a while," he said. "We've been bailing him out. It couldn't go on like that forever." Commissioner Bud Selig said he was saddened by Sunday's confrontation. See ROCKER, Page 8

Lewis could return to football soon

Murder charges against Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis were dropped Monday.

By Chad Roedemier
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Murder and assault charges against Ray Lewis were dropped Monday, and he could be practicing next week with the Baltimore Ravens. The NFL star pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor and agreed to testify about what he saw during a brawl after the Super Bowl that led to two deaths. Lewis, who faced life in prison, avoided jail time by pleading guilty to obstruction of justice. He is expected to take the witness stand Tuesday against two friends still facing murder charges in the stabbings of two men after partying on Jan. 31. Lewis, 25, will serve 12 months on probation under Georgia's first-offender law. He must remain employed and not use drugs or alcohol. Lewis also must pay one-third of the prosecution's court costs. The NFL said he might be fined but not suspended. "He was an innocent man, wrongly accused, and who's been through an awful ordeal," defense attorney Ed Garland said. "Today he has been exonerated." Lewis, the leading tackler in the NFL last year, has a four-year, $26 million contract with the Ravens. The team said Monday he will be welcome to rejoin the club at a voluntary minicamp next week. "The players are obviously excited to have this behind them, keeping all this in the context that two people are dead," Ravens coach Brian Billick said.

Devils one win from Stanley Cup

New Jersey scored two goals in a 1:09 span in the third period to beat Dallas 3-1

DALLAS — Four minutes, three New Jersey goals — and one big problem for the defending Stanley Cup champion Dallas Stars. New Jersey's kiddie corps got goals from rookies John Madden and Brian Rafalski during a momentum-swinging flurry in the third period, and the Devils rallied for a 3-1 victory Monday night and a 3-1 lead in the Stanley Cup finals. The Devils can claim the Cup for the second time in five years by winning Game 5 Thursday night in the Meadowlands. Just as coach Larry Robinson predicted they could, the Devils stole into ever-confident Dallas to win both games against a veteran team that rarely loses big games at home and was coming off a road victory in Game 2. The Stars have dug themselves into a hole nearly as big as the Lone Star state. Only one team in 58 years, the 1942 Toronto Maple Leafs against Detroit, have rallied from a 3-1 deficit to win the Stanley Cup finals. Such a comeback can happen, of course; only two weeks ago, New Jersey rallied from just such a deficit to win the Eastern Conference finals against Philadelphia. The Devils are 6-1 since starting that comeback, with four of the victories in the road. Dallas had won 11 of its last 12 home playoff games before losing 2-1 in Game 3 Saturday, then lost a lead Monday in its biggest game of the season. New Jersey's comeback from a 1-0 deficit — Dallas was 11-0 when leading after two periods — was remarkably swift and stunning and caused some of the Stars' towel-waving faithful to turn on their own team. Unless the Stars win Thursday, it was their last home game of the season, a predicament their fans clearly did not expect. Sergei Brylin made sure the Stars couldn't protect the 1-0 lead generated by Joe Nieuwendyk's power-play goal late in the second period, scoring on a 4-on-2 break 2:27 into the third period. Vladimir Malakhov dropped the puck into the slot for Alexander Mogilny, whose shot rebounded directly to Brylin for his second goal of the series and third of the playoffs. The goal clearly deflated the Stars — they had begun to dominate play after going without a shot for 12 minutes of the second period — and re-energized the Devils, who are 9-2 in playoff road games.

Mr. Prime Time goes to Washington

The Redskins signed Deion Sanders to seven-year, $56 million contract.

ASHBURN, Va. — The "Who's Who" team now has a Prime Time lineup. Deion Sanders brought his flash and dash and two Super Bowl rings on Monday to the Washington Redskins, who fully expect him to get a third one this season. His signing of a seven-year, $56 million contract is the boldest move yet in an audacious offseason that reflects the championship-or-bust mentality of owner Dan Snyder — although it's hard to imagine anything more audacious than the newly tailored suit of Redskins burgundy and gold, complete with mustard-colored buttons, worn by Sanders at the news conference. "If the top priority's not to win the Super Bowl, then I don't know why you even play the game. I don't play for the money, although the money is fine. God bless you, Mr. Snyder," said Sanders, who got an $8 million signing bonus and has received about $28 million in signing bonuses in the last five years. "If you win it all, the money will come."

Dress code

Some of the Iowa City transit drivers are less pleased with their new code.

The Daily Iowan

Though a policy requires forms for Iowa City Transit drivers has been replaced with dress code, some drivers' actions were unnecessary. "It hasn't been an issue for the last 30 years,"
