tor into the situation as well. "B.J. is a really good friend," said. "I really feel bad for him, so it's hard for me to look at his loss as an opportunity for me. But I guess I have to look at it from my position on the playing field, yes, it does give me a big opportunity."

The loss of Van Briesen leaves a void in an offensive line that can't afford injuries or off-the-field distractions. Iowa finished 104th out of the 114 Division 1-A teams in the NCAA in rushing offense. The Hawkeyes rushed for 1,028 yards in 339 carries and finished the 1999 season with 3,300 total offensive yards.

Angie Lee takes fund-raising job in Denver

Former Iowa coach Angie Lee will not do any coaching at the Denver University.

By Molly Thomas The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa women's basketball coach Angie Lee was recently named the manager of Athletic Annual Giving at the University of Denver. Lee resigned as the Hawkeyes coach on Feb. 28, after compiling an 84-60 record at Iowa. She will begin her position with the Denver Pioneers on July 17, joining former Iowa State women's basketball coach Pam Wetting, who was recently hired at the Denver school.

Lee was contacted about the position in the beginning of June. Dianne Murphy, the Denver athletics and recreation director, said Lee brings good experience to the athletics administration.

"Angie comes with several important qualifications for the job," Murphy said. "She has excellent public-relations skills, and she has a very enthusiastic personality. She has a great deal of passion for working with coaches and fans. All of those skills are important for this position."

As the manager of Athletic Annual Giving, Lee will work with coaches to secure monetary gifts from such donors as alumni and parents.

Lee said she is looking forward to being able to work with coaches and the public to get support for the Pioneers' athletics.

"I love the idea of helping coaches to achieve the goals and needs of Division 1 program," she said. "I think it is very important to raise money in order to stand behind the teams."

Lee has lived in the Midwest for most of her life and said she is excited to go to Colorado.

"I'm really looking forward to the move," she said. "If there was a place that I could be outside of the Midwest, it would be Colorado. The move is a good situation for me personally and professionally."

Lee's resignation took effect after Iowa's loss against Northwestern in the Big Ten tournament last season. The Hawkeyes had a 9-18 record. Some of Lee's former players were surprised to see her take a position in the front office rather than on the court. Junior guard Lindsey Meder said Lee's outgoing personality would fit her role perfectly.

"I was a little surprised to see that she took an administrative position because I think she is such a great coach," Meder said. "I hope that she ever does have the desire to return to coaching, she will pursue it again. But I still think that it is a great move for her."

Energy head: Panic behind lab uproar

Bill Richardson dismisses Republican calls for his resignation.

By H. Josef Hebert Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rejecting GOP calls he resign because of security lapses, Energy Secretary Bill Richardson said Sunday there is no evidence that two computer hard drives with nuclear secrets ever left the Los Alamos lab or that espionage was involved in their disappearance. He suggested panicked scientists may have misplaced the drives, triggering a cover-up.

The drives, which were found on June 16 behind a copying machine, were flown to Washington from the weapons lab in New Mexico. They were being examined electronically to determine with more certainty if they had been tampered with or the data compromised.

"I believe there's been no espionage. It doesn't appear (the drives) left the X Division," Richardson said on NBC's "Meet the Press," referring to the highly secure area of the Los Alamos lab in which nuclear-weapons designers work. The drives disappeared from a vault in the X Division sometime before May 7 and mysteriously reappeared behind the copying machine.

Energy Department officials said the investigation was focusing on "several" members of a nuclear emergency-response team who had free access to the vault holding the devices. These individuals have made "contradictory statements" and given "suspicious" answers during polygraph tests, said Edward Curran, the Energy Department's director of counterintelligence.

Richardson said all 26 individuals with access to the vault have had polygraph exams, and he pledged that those involved in the disappearance would face discipline. He declined to rule out replacing the University of California, which has managed the Los Alamos lab for more than 50 years.

In a few days, "We will know what happened," Richardson predicted.

The secretary decried the security breakdown while strongly defending his attempts over the past year to improve security in his department's nuclear programs.

But key congressional intelligence committee members said there is no assurance the information has not been compromised. Even though espionage might not have been involved, they said, the incident was an inexcusable breach of security for which Richardson should be held personally accountable.

Officials head for D.C. to bemoan Medicare money

Iowa ranks 48th in the nation in Medicare payments, and the state's hospitals are hurting.

By Carolyn Kresser The Daily Iowan

Forty delegates representing Iowa hospitals will travel to Washington, D.C., today to inform the state's congressional representatives that cuts in Medicare payments are continuing to hurt Iowa's hospitals.

Iowa ranks 48th in the nation in average benefit payments, an estimated $3,456, according to data from the Association of Iowa Hospitals and Health Systems. The national average is $5,034.

"The purpose of the trip is to keep our senators and representatives current on the effects of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997," said delegate Peter Wallace, the vice president of medical staff affairs at Mercy Hospital, 500 E. Market St.

"The bill went much further than it intended," he said.

The trip has a double purpose, said Iowa City's other delegate, Stacey Cyphert, the assistant director of Statewide Health Services at the UI Hospitals and Clinics.

"We want to thank our representatives for their past support for Medicare funding and let them know added relief is still needed," he said.

Wallace concurred, noting that hospitals around Iowa are being hurt by the lower Medicare payments. "Iowa hospitals are getting less and less each year for Medicare patients," he said. "Most of the hospitals' business comes from Medicare, and most hospitals lost money last year."

Officials estimate that the 1997 budget act will cost the UIHC $62 million from 1997-2002, Cyphert said.

The delegates would like the Senate and the House to consider passing a relief bill increasing payments to hospitals, Wallace said.

The group has previously traveled to Washington, D.C. See MEDICARE, Page 5

Rhodes departs from 10-year Jessup Hall job

The UI spokesperson steps down two months after making her famous white-male "joke."

By Sky Eilers The Daily Iowan

Following nearly two months of criticism for a controversial comment she had made, UI spokeswoman Ann Rhodes resigned on June 16 to pursue personal interests.

Rhodes has been the vice president for University Relations for nearly 10 years and has held several other administrative positions at the UI. She said she will pursue interests in legal work in the UI Office of the General Counsel, teach in the College of Nursing, and spend more time with her family after her resignation becomes effective on July 1.

The resignation may have been due to pressure from UI administrators, said Louis Calabro, the president of the California-based European American Issues Forum.

"They're trying to take the heat off things," he said, referring to a comment made by Rhodes at a press conference on the arrest of a student in conjunction with threats made against the UI College of Dentistry.

At the April 20 conference, a reporter asked Rhodes if she was surprised the person arrested, 23-year-old Tarsha Claiborne, was a black, female dental student.

"I figured it was going to be a white guy between 25 and 55 because they're the root of most evil," Rhodes replied.

Several hours after Rhodes' comment, the Office of University Relations issued an official apology from Rhodes for the statement she called "a poor attempt at humor."

Calabro filed a complaint with the Department of Education against Rhodes for her comment that was dismissed June 9. But Rhodes is not as much at fault for her comment as is UI leadership, Calabro said.

"Since the statement, Ann Rhodes said she's been working to dispel those stereotypes at the UI, but so far, nothing has been done," he said. "Rhodes was just regurgitating the message other people have told her."

Coleman said she doesn't know what caused Rhodes' resignation.

Officials laud Rhodes

Rhodes will be remembered for her guidance and dedication, members of the UI community say.

By Sky Eilers The Daily Iowan

As the official spokesperson for the UI, Ann Rhodes was probably the most visible member of the administration. However, much of her work was done "behind the scenes."

On Nov. 1, 1991, during Rhodes' first year as UI vice president for University Relations, UI graduate student Gang Lu shot and killed three physics professors — Christoph Goertz, Dwight Nicholson and Robert Alan Smith — and research investigator Linhua Shan in Van Allen Hall.

Lu critically wounded two other people in Jessup Hall — Associate Vice President T. Anne Cleary and Mira Rodolfo-Sioson, a staff member in academic affairs. Lu then committed suicide. Cleary later died.

"The Gang Lu incident certainly was her trial by fire," said UI President Mary Sue Coleman.

While Hunter Rawlings was the UI's president at the time, Coleman said, she has heard from many people that Rhodes was largely responsible for keeping the university together after the hor-

Massacre in India highlights caste war

Thirty-four villagers are the latest victims as violence continues over India's ancient system of social hierarchy.

By Hema Shukla Associated Press

MIAPUR, India — A drizzle Sunday dampened the smoldering funeral pyres and ashes of 34 low-caste villagers who had been massacred by an upper-caste militia in ongoing violence over India's ancient system of social hierarchy.

The massacre was the eighth major caste-related attack in the last six months in Bihar, a northeastern state that is one of India's poorest and most lawless.

The Ranvir Sena militia, which is financed by upper-caste landlords, took responsibility for the June 16 attack, in which an estimated 500 gunmen dressed in black stormed Miapur, a village 100 miles east of Patna, the state capital, and killed 34 people, who were mostly from the lower caste Yadav community of cattle herders.

Villager Satendra Paswan, 35, said the violence was the beginning of the mythical Mahabharat war described in one of India's best known epics. The Mahabharat tells of a battle between two rival families that ends in the annihilation of one of the clans.

"We cannot say when this will end," Paswan said.

Police raided several hide-outs in Bihar state belonging to the banned Ranvir Sena militia and arrested 11 people late Sunday, the Press Trust of India news agency quoted Inspector-General of Police Neelmani as saying. (Neelmani uses only one name.)

Study finds no evidence of Gulf War syndrome

In a study involving nearly 3,700 Gulf War-era veterans from Iowa, UI Health Care researchers did not find evidence of a unique "Gulf War syndrome" attributed to military service in the Persian Gulf from 1990-91.

While the findings should alleviate concerns about an unexplained "mystery illness" among Gulf War veterans, the study results make clear the need to recognize the number of unexplained symptoms among veterans who served in the Persian Gulf and develop strategies for preventing similar health problems following future military operations. The study was published in the June 15 issue of the American Journal of Medicine.

"Since the end of the Gulf War, there have been concerns about whether Gulf War veterans have a medical illness of unknown origin," said Bradley Doebbeling, a UI associate professor of internal medicine and epidemiology and the senior investigator and lead author of the study. "Although a number of studies had been conducted, there has been no definitive explanation as to whether such a syndrome exists or not. Our goal was to look for evidence of an illness that was unique to those deployed in the Persian Gulf and was not seen in a comparable control group of military personnel from that period who did not serve in the Persian Gulf."

The developers will complete the plans for an entirely new outside look for the mall within the next month. The plans include changing the exterior of the north and east sides of the mall; construction is scheduled for completion by August 2001.

The owners of the mall also expect to finish negotiations this week that could lead to new tenants.

Police seek armed robber

A local dry cleaning business was robbed at gunpoint on the afternoon of June 16.

At 4:30 p.m., an employee of Concord Custom Cleaners, 1930 Lower Muscatine Road, called Iowa City police to report the robbery, a police report said.

The suspect left the business' premises in an unknown direction and is still at large.

According to a police report, the suspect is a black male who is approximately 5-feet, 10 inches to 6-feet tall with a medium build. The suspect had muscular arms and a deep voice and was wearing a mask, a white T-shirt with a pocket, black jeans, the report said. He was armed with a silver gun, according to the report.

The suspect demanded that the employee place money into a bag, the police report said. When the suspect left, he instructed the employee to not face the door, according to the report.

Iowa City police are continuing to investigate the incident.

"Investigators will take over the case and treat it like any other case," said Lt. Matt Johnson. "They will re-interview witnesses and see if there are any patterns they recognize."

Persons having any information on the case are asked to report it to Iowa City police, 356-5275.

"This is history," Russell said of the automobiles.

Wearing knickers, yellow argyle socks and a page-boy hat, driver Marty Wall smiled as she stepped out of the 1929 Dodge DA Sport

Roadster that she owns with her husband, Russ. The Walls, now residents of Lakeland, Fla., are originally from Iowa and said they were glad to get the chance to return to the Midwest.

"My wife always wanted to drive across country," Russ Wall said. "I thought this would be a great way."

The Walls learned of the race from a documentary on the History Channel five years ago and decided to purchase an antique car to drive in the race when they retired.

The race is a precision-driving contest in which the drivers are given a map each day with a pre-determined destination time. The cars that arrive closest to their pre-determined times receive the highest scores. At the end of the race, the cars with the most points in the different categories will receive a share of the $250,000 purse.

Driver Dean Kjelden, who drives a 1948 MG-TC that he took 10 months to restore, said he has been in the Great Race for three years because he enjoys the challenge. This year, however, there have been times when the challenge was almost too much.

"It was pretty stressful around New York because of the flooding,"

Nick Tremmel/The Daily Iowan

Gary Kuck prepares to rejoin the History Channel's Great Race on June 17 in Iowa City.

Kjelden said. "At one point, we had to stop the race because a bridge washed out."

Even though the cars' engines are modified and modernized, problems still occur on the road because of the cars' ages, Kjelden said. Drivers must constantly maintain a precise speed and make sure everything on the car works correctly, he said.

For rookie Steve Nilsson, technical difficulties have been a small problem in the race.

"The other day our windshield wipers flew off while we were driving," Nilsson said. "The time it took to fix them brought our score down a bit, but the reactions of people when we come to town make up for it."

The drivers began their race in Boston and will end their 14-day journey in Sacramento, Calif.

"I really admire the courage of the drivers and navigators, especially the ones in convertibles," Russell said.

For self-proclaimed car fanatic John Heise, the best part of the race is the nostalgia the vintage cars bring.

"The history of the cars is great," he said. "It is interesting to see how far we have come, technology-wise."

Museum worker settles suit with UI

■ The two-year-old dispute had endangered the employee's NEA grant.

By Beth Conklin
The Daily Iowan

After more than two years of conflict, Estera Milman and the UI reached a settlement last week in her year-old civil suit. Both sides said they were relieved to see the end of the battle.

Milman, a program associate at the UI Museum of Art, filed the suit in the spring of 1999 against former museum Director Stephen Prokopoff, UI Provost Jon Whitmore and Vice Provost W.H. Knight Jr. She alleged that the university was disrupting her work by administering grants without her approval.

The dispute first arose over the editing of a series of academic articles Milman wrote that were related to a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Following that, she alleged that the museum was interfering with her work.

Milman filed a grievance with the UI in the spring of 1998.

"I feel calm, and I'm looking forward to getting back to work but in a relaxing atmosphere," she said.

Knight said he is glad the case is settled.

"It's not for me to be satisfied with the settlement — the fact of the matter is that it's done," he said.

Milman was not allowed to administer any of the grant money that her department was awarded after her grievance was filed. One of the grants came from the NEA to support her exhibit NO!art and the Aesthetics of Doom.

An NEA rule states that, after five years, any unused grant money reverts to a national treasury, Milman said.

This settlement will allow NO!art and the Aesthetics of Doom to develop at Northwestern University late in 2001. The exhibition will come to Iowa in the spring of 2002.

"I'm hopeful that after two and a half years of destructive battle, the UI will look at what went wrong and ensure it won't happen again," Milman said.

David Skorton, the UI vice president for research, said the settlement will not have bearing on how grants are administered.

The settlement will cover Milman's legal fees and allow work to continue with the grants.

UI chemistry Professor Vasu Nair collaborated with researchers from the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., on the discovery. Nair's findings will be published in the June 21 issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society.

HIV invades human DNA through a complex chemical process initiated by the key "HIV integrase." It is this key that Nair's molecules attach themselves to, Nair said.

"The molecules inhibit the transfer process HIV uses to get into human cells," he said.

Although the concept is promising, it will take five to 10 years before there is a drug available for testing, Nair said.

"We don't know how effective it will be; we're at the early stages of research," he said. "All of this will become clearer once there is animal testing."

Other stages of research must be completed before it will be available for animal testing, Nair said. The researchers will test cellular permeability, toxicity and resistance.

Though this is not a cure, it will instead lead to therapeutic advancement in the fight against HIV, he said.

Nair's work has garnered excitement among faculty and staff at UI.

"Dr. Nair's research is focused on drugs that will block a new target in a new way, and we're all very excited and hope it proves to be a new advance in the treatment of HIV," said Jack Stapleton, a UI professor of internal medicine and the medical director of the Helen C. Levitt Center for Viral Diseases.

An estimated 40 million people worldwide are infected with the AIDS virus. Though the number is a smaller than that of the previous year, the Center for Disease Control and Prevention reports that 2.6 million people died from AIDS in 1999. Since the epidemic began approximately 20 years ago, 16.3 million people have died, the CDC report said.

While treatment for HIV and AIDS may be improving, it is more important than ever that people protect themselves from contracting the disease, Stapleton said.

And even though this research is still very new, Iowa City resident Libby Solursh said the possible AIDS inhibitor is an exciting idea. She lost her father to AIDS in 1994.

"It's really awesome that this research is being done, and that the discovery was made in Iowa at the UI is even better," she said.

Sycamore Mall planning for new look, tenants

■ The mall owners hope to finish negotiations with some potential tenants by Tuesday.

By Bridget Stratton
The Daily Iowan

Incoming businesses and a new look are both part of a revamping project intended to attract customers to the Sycamore Mall.

The exterior of the Sycamore Mall will get a new look, and the mall will become home to new businesses within the next year, said Gerry Ambrose, a developer with the MGD L.C., which owns the facility.

The developers will complete the plans for an entirely new outside look for the mall within the next month. The plans include changing the exterior of the north and east sides of the mall; construction is scheduled for completion by August 2001.

The owners of the mall also expect to finish negotiations this week that could lead to new tenants.

Ambrose said he is optimistic that there will be new tenants in the mall soon. He said he is talking to several potential tenants, including Panera Bread Co.

Pam Krambeck, an administrative assistant with Panera, said there is a possibility Panera will go into the Sycamore Mall, giving the company its second location in the area.

"I am very confident that Panera Bread Co. will open in the mall this year," Ambrose said.

The nature of the negotiations make it difficult to assess the date of the possible addition, Ambrose said. However he expected to finish some negotiations by Tuesday.

Ambrose declined to discuss any other potential tenants he is negotiating with.

New additions to the mall are much needed, said Iowa City resident Phil Connell. He said he remembers 18 years ago when the mall was filled with many restaurants and clothing stores. Since then, it has lost such anchor stores as Walgreen Drug Store and Sears.

"It's too bad that the mall gradually lost many of its stores," Connell said.

He said he is hopeful that the new owners of the Sycamore Mall will be able to reverse the fortunes of the mall.

CITY BRIEF

Police seek armed robber

A local dry cleaning business was robbed at gunpoint on the afternoon of June 16.

At 4:30 p.m., an employee of Concord Custom Cleaners, 1930 Lower Muscatine Road, called Iowa City police to report the robbery, a police report said.

The suspect left the business' premises in an unknown direction and is still at large.

According to a police report, the suspect is a black male who is approximately 5-feet, 10 inches to 6-feet tall with a medium build. The suspect had muscular arms and a deep voice and was wearing a mask, a white T-shirt with a pocket, black jeans, the report said. He was armed with a silver gun, according to the report.

The suspect demanded that the employee place money into a bag, the police report said. When the suspect left, he instructed the employee to not face the door, according to the report.

Iowa City police are continuing to investigate the incident.

"Investigators will take over the case and treat it like any other case," said Lt. Matt Johnson. "They will re-interview witnesses and see if there are any patterns they recognize."

Persons having any information on the case are asked to report it to Iowa City police, 356-5275.

Ad relapse requires reaction

Downtown Iowa City bars have recently begun running ads for the myriad of drink specials they all offer, in the face of an April 3 agreement with the City Council and the Stepping Up Program, a group devoted to curbing under-age drinking in Iowa City. A reaction to the City Council's flirtation with the idea of making bars 21-only, local pubs have seemingly abandoned the policy for the summer, with most students, and therefore most of the problem, gone. But is it?

"What can they do?" UI senior Angie Krausfeldt told the DI last week. "They'll lose business if they go 21, and they'll lose business if they stopping running ads."

Either way, the bars downtown should be expected to lose business. At this moment, they run or don't run ads of their own volition. Alcohol ads that cater towards the under-aged should be treated the way ads for tobacco aimed at teens are now — with a fair degree of hostility. The initial efforts of the bars to police themselves should be applauded, but the puppy-dog excuses of "Everyone else was doing it" and "What else am I going to do?" represented in the article that ran last week illicit no sympathy from me. Making the bars off-limits to those 21 and over may or may not hurt them as has been suggested, but making the bars off limits period would be a better plan.

The City Council should consider what the proliferation of bars downtown has wrought. Teen-agers out for beer will find it, no matter what limits are placed on them; in fact, the more limits, the larger the problem I'd expect. Downtown should attract young people not to ruin themselves but to enrich themselves. How about a night club that offers first-rate acts but serves no alcohol? How about a 24-hour arcade hall? Alternatives for weekend fun (or anytime) should be the goal of the City Council, instead of groaning about the city's drinking problem after allowing the bars to multiply in the first place.

Iowa Senate should consider importance of Vilsack's order

Iowa Senate Majority Leader Stewart Iverson is going to sue Gov. Tom Vilsack for issuing an executive order that protects homosexuals and transsexuals from discrimination when applying for state employment. An executive order is similar to a law but does not follow the typically lengthy legislative path; therefore, its enactment is almost immediate.

GOP member Iverson makes it clear that his action is not based on the contents of the order but the actual creation of the order. He feels Democrat Vilsack has overstepped his boundaries of power by issuing the regulation. So, to mirror the timetable and process the governor's regulation should have supposedly followed, Iverson is now planning to involve Vilsack in a lawsuit, encumbering the governor's time and resources with unnecessary tasks. In a familiar game of political Ping-Pong, the state Legislature passed a bill that canceled Vilsack's order, and in turn, Vilsack vetoed that bill, canceling the cancellation.

Vilsack claims his attempt to eliminate discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity is vital to establishing Iowa as a diverse state that welcomes all kinds of people. Apparently, it is already a state that elects all kinds of people to office, even those with nothing but political agendas on their minds. True, it is virtually impossible to find a politician without a much-referenced political agenda, but the key is finding one with a balance containing the goal of public equality, too.

Although Iverson says he is just trying to make sure the governor is in accordance with our valued system of checks and balances, it is difficult to ascertain why he would want to override such an important and relevant decision on the governor's part. Wouldn't the next most likely step for Iverson and the Senate be for them to say, "We think you may have crossed a line here, but we also agree your idea is an important one, and we should collectively consider it?"

The purpose of the government is to protect its citizens and ensure that the lawmakers do not have complete power. Iverson's lawsuit mocks this protection, while Vilsack's order reflects its real meaning.

Not coming soon to a theatre near you

Do you ever wonder why you can't buy a Mountain Dew from a vending machine on campus? Or why certain movies never make an appearance in Iowa City?

With all of this talk in recent weeks about Microsoft's cruel grasp of the electronic world, the issue of monopolies dominating our rights as customers seems remarkably relevant right here in Iowa City. The first question does not concern a true monopoly, though, for you can buy Pepsi products on campus, at the Market in the IMU. The lack of vending machines bearing Dr. Pepper stems from a contract that the UI signed with Coke a couple of years ago. Just as Coke controls all of the vending machines, Central States Theatres controls the local movie theaters. In fact, Campus Theatres, in the Old Capitol Town Center, Cinema I and II, in the Sycamore Mall, and the Coral Ridge 10 at the Coral Ridge Mall are all owned by this Des Moines-based company.

Though some argue that the university actually can show movies, proving that Central States is not a true monopoly, I would rebut this with the example of what happened last year when the Bijou tried to show Boys Don't Cry. Because Campus Theatres was showing the movie at that time, the Bijou was unable to get a print, denying people the chance to support a student group. Instead of paying $4, people were forced to shell out $6.50 to a Ticket Master-like organization that has no rightful place in Iowa City.

Tradition looms large in this town. Look around downtown, and you can see much of the original architecture, learn of the history, and even see old pictures in places such as Bruegger's. One of the more recent traditions, commencing around the time of the Great Pumpkin sighting, is the Englert midnight showing of The

"I'm going to count to three. When you wake up, you're going to be really interested in the presidential race."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vilsack's executive order overstepped his bounds

Kelly Oulman's article on the front page of The Daily Iowan on June 12 missed the point of the lawsuit against Gov. Tom Vilsack entirely. Instead of focusing on the issue of constitutional authority, Oulman emphasized the intent of Vilsack's order. Whether or not the Republican Party agrees with the executive order is not the major issue here. What the lawsuit questions is whether the governor can bypass the Legislature completely and institute new law into the Iowa Code.

One of the things that makes the U.S. Constitution and state of Iowa Constitution unique and so successful are the checks and balances. These checks and balances were instituted to avoid totalitarian rule. If we're going to allow the governor of Iowa to pass whatever laws he or she pleases, then why should we spend the time, energy and money to elect a state Legislature at all?

Had the governor truly believed that the majority of Iowans wanted to categorize gender identity as a protected class (minority status), he would have simply submitted a bill to the Iowa Legislature and had it go through the constitutional route of how a bill becomes a law.

But the governor probably assumed that most Iowans feel much the same as I do — that discrimination based upon sexual orientation is wrong, but that gay, lesbian and transgender people do not need a protected status similar to the status of African Americans. The great people of Iowa are more than capable of determining which laws they want passed and which they do not.

It is my hope that the governor will read over the state Constitution before he decides to make more laws without consulting our state senators and representatives.

First Avenue plan deserves impartial examination

The First Avenue extension, rejected by voters in 1997, is again an issue.

It may be that the Iowa City Press-Citizen finds itself in an awkward position in covering this because all that land it owns would probably be worth lots more if the road went through. Its June 10 barrage of articles on First Avenue seems to reflect this.

STEPHEN BALSLEY

Instead of paying $4 to see Boys Don't Cry, people were forced to shell out $6.50 to Central States Theaters, a Ticket Master-like organization that has no rightful place in Iowa City.

Rocky Horror Picture Show. I had the privilege, and the distress, of working one of the last showings of this interactive movie at the Englert. It was one of the more bizarre evenings of my life — at least that I remember. There was one man waiting in the lobby for his wife to arrive from Cedar Rapids throughout most of the show because he refused to enter without her — keeping up a tradition of witnessing this strange gala.

But the true monopoly of this town will end this tradition, which is why I asked if Rocky Horror would play again at the Englert last weekend while on a tour of the building. And when my congenial tour guide said no, my resentment for Central States slowly rose.

My brother goes to school in Champaign-Urbana, and every week when he tells me he saw movies such as The Cradle Will Rock (a must-see for Tim Robbins fans) and Sweet and Lowdown as new releases. In a town with such an artistic- and academic-minded populace (proven by the complete sell out that was the Riverside production of Twelfth Night), Jim Jarmusch's Ghost Dog would sell out. But Central States prefers to show Big Momma's House on two screens, hoping for the teen audience that will succumb to this humor and not the literary community that would embrace all forms of developed and polished film.

Central States' crimes do not end with its limited scope on the character of Iowa City. It can also be blamed for the decline of the Englert as a building. As an employee of Central States, I witnessed the supposed up-keep it put into the Englert, a gorgeous, classical theater that was buried for the sake of two screens and a popcorn machine. I am happy to know that the Englert Coalition is renovating the space, bringing back a tradition to Iowa City of downtown performance affordable for the masses.

Unfortunately, the result of renovation is that one tradition dies. And why is it that the kids dressed in golden underwear and chains will not get to celebrate next Halloween by shouting at a screen? Proving its allegiance to Ticketmaster, Microsoft and other great monopolies, Central States put a clause in the agreement to sell the Englert stating no movies could be shown. No movies means that the Englert can not run a late night Hitchcock-fest, or a James Dean weekend, let alone a first-run foreign film, on a weekend when no artistic performance will be in town. And this will keep the money pouring into Des Moines and out of the hands of independent business in Iowa City.

focus for most of 1999 because of former lab scientist Wen Ho Lee, who was accused of illegally copying secret files and is in jail awaiting trial. Richardson's frustration was clear. "I can't get into human heads," he said on NBC, criticizing — as he had often last year — a "lab culture" of not taking security seriously enough. The two hard drives, each about the size of a deck of cards, were found missing from the Los Alamos vault on May 7, when two scientists sought to ensure that the devices were protected from a wildfire that was threatening the lab. The next day the lab was evacuated because of the fire threat, but no one reported the devices missing until May 31, prompting an intense investigation. Investigators said that while one scientist reported seeing the drives in the vault on April 7, it remained unclear when they were last inventoried; they could have been missing longer.

Coleman said she will put together a search committee consisting of UI faculty and staff, and possibly an administrator, to find a successor for Rhodes. "We'll advertise the position across the entire country," she said. "I'm hoping we'll be able to hire someone within the next academic year." The committee will begin its search in late summer or early fall, Coleman said. As interim vice president for University Relations, Skorton said, his first responsibility will be to work closely with other UI officials and to continue with the processes they've been directing. He said he will work with Rhodes on transition projects and also assist Coleman in finding a permanent replacement for Rhodes. Edward Mielnik, a UI professor emeritus, said he's disturbed by Rhodes's exit and would like to urge her to reconsider. "She had a unique ability to gather a lot of information at once and do something with it," he said. "I don't know that anybody else can do that as well as she can." DI reporter Sky Eilers can be reached at skellers@avalon.net trific shootings. Rhodes has routinely practiced similar guidance and calm to manage a variety of other situations throughout her nine years as the university spokesperson, Coleman said. Besides her role as UI spokesperson, Rhodes also did a lot of work with organizations not always in the public spotlight, said David Skorton, the UI vice president for research. Skorton will serve as the interim vice president for university relations. The Alumni Association, men's and women's intercollegiate athletics, the news services and the Old Capitol Museum were just a few of the departments for which Rhodes took on a management role, Skorton said.

"She puts a lot of energy, honesty and care into her behind-the-scenes activities," he said. As the liaison to UI news services, Rhodes frequently interacted with local media. Coleman said Rhodes has always been straightforward. "She doesn't try to hide anything from reporters," she said. "If there's something wrong, she'll say so. That type of integrity and honesty is important for her job." Marquez Brown, a UI senior and former UI Student Government senator, said Rhodes' energy and hard work will be difficult to replace. "It's going to be hard for someone else to come in and fill as many shoes as she did," Brown said. "She probably took a lot more responsibility than the average person would in her position." 34 villagers killed in Indian caste massacre

The militia said Sunday the attack was revenge for last week's massacre of 12 upper-caste landlords, which it blamed on state Labor Minister Raj Ballav Yadav and B.K. Mandal, a top police officer. "We have been forced to kill lower-caste people because of the state government's discrimination against a particular caste," the statement said. Rabri Devi, the top elected official in the state, belongs to a lower caste. Approximately 83 percent of India's 1 billion people believe in Hinduism, which classifies its adherents into a hierarchy of four major castes. In recent years, the government has launched efforts to educate members of lower castes and bring equal rights, and more people are challenging the status of the higher castes. Caste-related killings are common in Bihar between the Ranvir Sena and communist guerrillas belonging to the People's War Group and the Maoist Communist Center, who say they represent the lower castes. Revenge attacks are often carried out against villagers, and scores die each year. The gunmen stormed Miapur village before dawn on June 16 and fought a 2½-hour gunbattle until the villagers ran out of ammunition. The militiamen then executed a young girl, seven boys, 19 women and seven old men, Police Superintendent M.V. Rao said. Eighteen others were wounded and were being treated Sunday at two government hospitals.

He's back and as bad as ever, but bad is beautiful if you're Shaft, can ya dig it?

FILM REVIEW

Film: Shaft Director: John Singleton Writers: Ernest Tidyman, John Singleton, Shane Salerno, and Richard Price Running Time: 98 minutes Starring: Samuel L. Jackson, Vanessa Williams, Jeffrey Wright, Christian Bale, Busta Rhymes, Toni Collette and Richard Roundtree

"It's my duty to please that booty," (Jackson) quits being a detective after a wealthy youth named Walter Williams (Christian Bale) kills a young black man, gets easy bail, and skips to Switzerland. Shaft believes that a waitress, played by Toni Collette, witnessed the murder and went into hiding.

Two years pass and Shaft transfers over to the narcotics unit, still upholding his style of butt-kicking justice. Williams decides to return to the country thinking things have cooled off, and when he does, Shaft nabs him. However, Williams again gets off on an easy bail. So Shaft gives up his badge and takes matters into his own hands.

Shaft is full of references to '70s action films. The beginning titles, filled with dramatic transitions and intense slo-mo shots of Jackson, look like they have been lifted straight from the '70s. Even the automobiles and clothing are vintage. People tailing each other in cars, wet streets and even a reference to presidential assassination all contribute to the '70s feel of the picture.

The dialogue and plot are beautiful. Richard Price, who wrote Clockers, is a master of writing great one-liners and soliloquies. His writing style complements John Singleton's stark directorial style.

Perhaps the most interesting elements to the film were the characters of Williams and Peoples Hernandez, a powerful drug dealer played by relative newcomer Jeffrey Wright. Neither their performances or dialogue allow us to put them into the stereotypes typically associated with these two roles. Wright is particularly interesting. One moment he is cradling his newborn baby, and in the next he is violently charging someone with an ice pick.

Christian Bale plays a character full of richness and depth, much unlike his previous roles. I found him hypnotic, his boyish face suddenly replaced by dark, menacing features.

I was captivated by Jackson. He successfully carries the movie by mixing toughness with humor, a style that made him famous in Pulp

Fiction. The only thing bad about him was his beard, which made me think his Norco ran out of batteries halfway through shaving.

Shaft is the best action film I have seen so far this summer. It's true that the film ends with a predictable gun fight and car chase. But the exceptional plot and captivating characters make up for this.

So who's the bad action hero who gets all the chicks? Just talkin' about Shaft. Can ya dig it?

Big first innin

NEW YORK (AP) — Jose Valentin's grand slam highlighted a nine-run first inning as the Chicago White Sox extended their season-high winning streak to seven games with a 17-4 rout of the New York Yankees on Sunday.

Valentin and Carlos Lee each had four RBIs as the White Sox tied a team record with their 11th straight road victory, and completed a four-game sweep.

Jim Parque (7-2) allowed four runs and nine hits in six innings as Chicago improved baseball's best record to 44-24, becoming the first visitors to score 17 or more runs at Yankee Stadium since Cleveland on Aug. 4, 1990.

Orlando Hernandez (6-6) gave up nine runs, six hits and three walks, lasting two-thirds of an inning.

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 1
BOSTON — Raul Mondesi homered twice and Frank Castillo (3-5) pitched seven shutout innings of three-hit ball. Billy Koch allowed an RBI single to Scott Hatteberg, then retired Jose Offerman on bases-loaded a grounder for his 15th save.

Brad Fullmer also homered for the Blue Jays, who extended a franchise record of 17 consecutive games with a home run and stole a season-high five bases.

Indians 9, Tigers 4
DETROIT — Roberto Alomar had four RBIs as Cleveland stopped a six-game losing streak.

Mosley willing to give De La Hoya a rematch
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sugar Shane Mosley says Oscar De La Hoya will get a rematch if he wants one.

Promoters Bob Arum and Cedric Kushner certainly want one. So do the fans who watched Mosley upset De La Hoya for the WBC lightweight title.

A disappointed De La Hoya mentioned a rematch moments after his split-decision loss in the Staples Center June 17.

Later, he said he'll have to think about meeting Mosley again.

Whatever happens, this was a terrific fight.

De La Hoya's Golden Boy image, tarnished in a loss to Felix Trinidad, was polished in defeat this time. And Mosley, now 35-0, moved out of De La Hoya's shadow.

"This fight takes my career to a new level," said Mosley, who had been the IBF lightweight champion.

As for a rematch, Mosley said, "He gave me an opportunity to fight him. If he wants a

Woods wins third major

TIGER

make." More history awaits next month. Woods goes to the British Open at St. Andrews with a chance to become only the fifth player — and at age 24, the youngest — to win all four major championships.

"He'll really have to be on his game to have a chance against us, won't he?" said Nick Faldo, rolling his eyes.

Too bad for Ernie Els and Miguel Angel Jimenez that the U.S. Open didn't have a B-flight this year. They had to settle for second place, at 3-over 287, their names in the record books, but only as footnotes.

This U.S. Open was really the Tiger Woods Classic.

"I don't know how much more there is to say," Els said. "We've been talking about him for two years. I guess we'll be talking about him for the next 20. When he's on, we don't have much of a chance."

"He's near perfect, the way he played this week."

So dominant was this performance that Woods never made worse than par over his final 26 holes. He closed with a 4-under 67, the best score of the day.

Jimenez had a 71, while Els finished with a 72. Woods began the final round with a 10-stroke lead, and no one got any closer than eight.

"Before we went out, I knew I had no chance," Els said.

Woods said his first U.S. Open victory was the perfect Father's Day present, even though Earl Woods did not make the trip to Pebble Beach.

"It was awesome, totally awesome," Earl Woods said from his home in Cypress. "It was like watching a Mercedes climb a hill. The power was there, the control was there. It's just on cruise control."

Even though the outcome was never in question, Woods managed to provide plenty of thrills on a lazy, sunny day along the rugged California coastline.

The gallery occupied every inch of grass along every fairway and behind every green, craning their necks to catch a glimpse of history. Yachts crammed into Stillwater Cove, and spectators tried to catch a piece of history from the beach below the famous "Cliffs of Doom" that overlook the Pacific.

They weren't watching a competition, but another coronation.

The first one came three years ago at Augusta National, where Woods became the youngest Masters champion with a record 12-stroke victory.

The U.S. Open was never supposed to look this easy. It is the toughest test in golf, which aims to identify the best player in the world.

Any questions? Woods has now played in 14 majors as a professional and won three of them, including the PGA Championship in August.

A sign dangling from the grandstand read, "Thanks, Jack. Long Live Tiger." Nicklaus made his exit from a record 44th consecutive U.S. Open on Friday.

Smith does not anticipate early exit from WNBA

The two became a force in the middle.

"She's young in age, but she's a talented athlete," said Griffith, who was named the WNBA's most valuable player in 1999. "I try to go up against her in practice because it's a challenge. You try to go up against people that you think are the future. She's mobile, she gets up and down the court, and she reads the defense well. She's a good player."

Smith has adjusted to playing with Griffith, but said some of the rebounds go in the "wrong" hands.

"I like playing alongside her, but she takes my rebounds," said Smith, laughing.

Most of the time it's hard to tell. On June 5, Smith recorded her first double-double of the season with 16 points and a game-high 12 rebounds.

She's averaging 11.0 points, six rebounds and 1.75 blocks in 28.5 minutes per game. Despite being new to a starting role, Smith has already earned herself a spot on the 2000 WNBA All-Star ballot.

Of course, not everything is easy for Smith in the pros. Two games after recording the double-double, Smith's minutes decreased and so did her productivity.

While Smith's frustration mounted in New York after seeing only 23 minutes on the court, Monarch coach Sonny Allen said inconsistency was the only thing that was slowing his youngest star.

"Tangela is a smooth operator," Allen said. "She is still inconsistent, but she's got great talent and has had some big games.

She's got unlimited potential."

The future is open for Smith, on and off the court. According to the Monarch's media guide, Smith's possible post-basketball careers include modeling, coaching or owning a chain of soul-food restaurants. Not that anyone expects an early WNBA exit from Smith. She's just getting started.

"She's such a nice girl, you want her to keep getting better," Wicks said. "You just don't want it to be against the Liberty."

WNBA

"She's got unlimited potential." The future is open for Smith, and off the court. According to the Monarch's media guide, Smith's possible post-basketball careers include modeling, coaching or owning a chain of soul-food restaurants. Not that anyone expects an early WNBA exit from Smith. She's just getting started. She's such a nice girl, you can't help but to keep getting better," she says. "You just don't want to be against the Liberty."

Prime Time heats up

Jared Reiner and Glen Worley will try to match their scoring last week as they face Fitzpatrick's tonight.

By Ethen Lieser
 The Daily Iowan

Goodfellow Printings' Jared Reiner and Glen Worley will try to continue their excellent play in tonight's Prime Time League action.

Goodfellow Printing (1-0) will be matched against Fitzpatrick's (0-1) during the 7:30 game at the North Liberty Community Center. After combining for 62 points on June 15, incoming freshmen Reiner and Worley will face-off against three other newcomers to the UI basketball program.

Fitzpatrick's Reggie Evans, Ryan Hogan and Courtney Scott played solid all-around games in their loss to Goodfellow. Evans led Fitzpatrick's with 18 points and 14 rebounds, even though 7-foot center Acie Earl hounded him all evening.

Hogan showcased outstanding ball-handling and defensive skills, combined with a soft perimeter shot. Hogan scored 14 points and collected four rebounds.

In addition to Reiner and Worley, Goodfellow guards Brandon Sain and Terrence McGee made key contributions in the team's win over Highland Park Development. Sain grabbed a team high nine rebounds and converted four of nine field goals.

Other games: The 4:30 game will feature Highland Park Development (0-1) and F.I.T. Zone (1-0). F.I.T. Zone's David Kruse and Monte Jenkins combined for 34 points last Thursday.

Brad Lohaus will headline the 6 p.m. game between Nike-Merrill Lynch (1-0) and Active Endeavors (0-1). Lohaus had a double-double for Nike-Merrill Lynch last Thursday.

Coming off a 42-point night, Rob Griffin of Iowa City Ready Mix (0-1) will be matched up against Goodfellow (1-0) starters Dean Oliver and Duez Henderson in the 9 game.

Tiger Woods wins his first U.S. Open in dominating fashion.

By Doug Ferguson
 Associated Press

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Tiger Woods' last challenge came from history. And like everything else for him at this U.S. Open, it was no contest.

Woods turned Pebble Beach into his personal playground, leaving everyone else so far behind that he might as well have been playing all alone. While the rest of the field was playing for second, Woods took aim at the record books.

When the final putt fell Sunday against the spectacular scenery off Carmel Bay, Woods claimed the U.S. Open, along with the kind of records no one imagined possible.

— He became the first player in the 106-year history of the U.S. Open to finish 72 holes at double digits under par — 12 under.

— His 15-stroke victory not only shattered the Open mark of 11 set by Willie Smith in 1899, but was the largest ever in a major championship, surpassing the 13-stroke victory by Old Tom Morris in the 1862 British Open.

— His 272 tied the lowest score ever in a U.S. Open, first set by his idol, Jack Nicklaus, in 1980 and later matched by Lee Janzen in 1993.

"The day, and all week, I had a sense of calmness that I haven't had in quite a while," Woods said. "It was reminiscent of Augusta in '97. No matter what happened, I was able to keep my composure and focus on the shot I needed to

NBA Finals take a rare Sunday night off

The Pacers are trying to do what no NBA team has done before: come back from a 3-1 deficit.

By Chris Sheridan
 Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Six days after commissioner David Stern called the NBA "a Sunday sport," that very day of the week passed without the biggest basketball game of the season being played.

Why did the Lakers and Pacers practice instead of playing Game 6? It's about ratings, rest and the relationship between NBC and the NBA.

"Instead of playing Game 5, traveling and immediately playing Game 6, it gives us a day off in between for practice, and the guys are more rested," league spokesman Brian McIntyre said. "Also, NBC didn't want to have an overlap situation where the end of the U.S. Open wouldn't be on TV."

There was plenty of scheduling misinformation being tossed around by players and coaches as they found themselves in the unusual mode of being off on a Sunday.

The Lakers, for instance, have played playoff games on eight of the past nine Sundays, and they also played on nine of the final 10 Sundays during the regular season.

Their arena, the Staples Center, was being used for an Arena League football game Sunday. A night earlier, it was the site of the WBC welterweight title fight between Shane Mosley and Oscar De La Hoya.

Pacers assistant coach Rick Carlisle thought the football game was the reason for having no game Sunday, while Lakers forward Robert Horry thought it was because of the fight.

"I ought to go beat up De La Hoya and Sugar Shane for that," Horry said. "We wanted to play on Father's Day for all those fathers who are home chillin' on their couches watching TV."

Hawkeye assistant expected to leave Iowa

Assistant wrestling coach Terry Brands is expected to be named an assistant coach for Nebraska next week.

By Jeremy Schnitker
 The Daily Iowan

Terry Brands, a former Iowa wrestler and an assistant Iowa coach, is expected to be named an assistant coach at Nebraska.

Iowa coach Jim Zalesky has confirmed that Brands had mentioned making the move, but, Zalesky said, Brands has not officially resigned.

"It's more he's just trying to promote himself," Zalesky said. "Being the second assistant here, maybe he feels like he's not getting looked at in the future as a head coach. Maybe he figures he can get more experience leaving here."

Mark Manning, the former head coach at the University of Northern Iowa who was named as Nebraska's head coach last month, said Brands could be a top candidate but would not say if Brands has the job. A final announcement is expected on June 26.

Brands, who wrestled for the Hawkeyes from 1990-92, has been an assistant coach at Iowa for three years. He also has worked as a volunteer assistant and strength and conditioning coach for the Hawkeyes.

Brands' brother, Tom Brands — the head assistant coach at Iowa — is one of three finalists for the head coaching position at Northern Iowa. He joins current UNI assistant Brian Penrith and Iowa State assistant Thom Ortiz in the hunt for the UNI position, which is expected to be

Former Hawkeye at home in WNBA

Tangela Smith is making a name for herself in her second year with the WNBA.

By Megan Manfull
 The Daily Iowan

NEW YORK — Tangela Smith has quickly become a quiet monster in the WNBA.

The former Hawkeye is one of the smallest centers in the league at 6-4, 160 pounds. At the age of 23, she's also one of the youngest. Someone must have forgotten to tell her that those two attributes are handicaps. To Smith, they are compliments.

Since joining the Sacramento Monarchs in 1998, Smith's shot blocking ability has only improved. Her shooting touch makes opponents jealous, and her speed helps her beat the smallest players up the court.

"She reminds me a lot of Marcus Camby, of the New York Knicks, with her shot-blocking and her getting down the floor," New York Liberty center Sue Wicks said. "She's not that strong, but she's really hard to get a hold on. She's one of the best athletes in the entire league."

A week ago, Wicks fell victim to Smith and her teammates. After a three-game losing streak, the Monarchs were able to steal a win second round of the 1998 draft. Smith has finally found her niche.

She spent parts of the past two seasons playing in Italy and Israel, and earned a starting role with Sacramento when the team's star forward, Yolanda Griffith, went down with an injury late last season.

During Griffith's hiatus during the final three games of the season, Smith averaged 20 points and nine rebounds per game. The show she put on was enough to keep her in the starting lineup even after Griffith's injury healed.

Rulings on moments of silence and valedictorian speeches could follow, court observers say.

In a 6-3 decision Monday, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that elected student officials are not allowed to lead groups of students in prayer on the grounds of public school. The ruling could lead to further debate over the legality of moments of silence and valedictorian speeches with religious undertones.

City to open for hazardous

The center will accept such items as paints, pesticides and auto oil, in addition to recycling paper and plastic.

By Bridget Stratton
 The Daily Iowan

A new recycling/disposal center will give Iowa City residents a place drop off their unwanted hazardous materials.

After six years of consideration, the city will build a facility for the disposing of hazardous household waste adjacent to the Iowa City landfill, 3900 Hebl Ave., said David Elias, the superintendent of the Landfill and Waste Water Treatment Plant.

The center will be the first of its kind in the area. Iowa City residents will be able to dispose of their hazardous household chemicals, such as paint, pesticides, herbicides and automobile oil, he said.

"I'm afraid to guess what people have been doing with the items until now," Elias said.

The facility will also recycle such items as paper, plastic and glass.

Cedar Rapids has a similar pollution-prevention facility. Floyd Pelkey, the operations manager of the Linn County solid-waste agency Blue Stem, said it is important to dispose of household chemicals responsibly.

"If someone were to throw old paint away, there is a possibility that it could contaminate the groundwater," he said.

Mondo-microbrew

High costs have scuttled plans to replace Mondo's Sports Cafe with a restaurant/microbrewery, the owner says.

By Carolyn Kresser
 The Daily Iowan

High construction costs have caused the plans for a two-kettle microbrewery in the Whiteway 2000 Building to be scaled back, leaving a restaurant much like the former Mondo's Sports Cafe.

Good food and service will be the main focus of his restaurant, not brewing beer, said Jim Mondanaro, the owner of the planned Mondo's restaurant and also of Mondo's Tomato Pie, Micky's and Giovanni's. The construction of a micro-brewery would have cost $1 million more than what had been projected, he said.

"In a market such as Iowa City, with a population of 75,000, and to do it the right way, it just wasn't cost effective," Mondanaro said.

The new Whiteway 2000 Building, 212 S. Clinton St., is scheduled to be completed on Aug. 15, nearly a year
