HawkID becomes Hawk headache.com

■ New computer system causes frustration for many.

By Natasha Lambropoulos
The Daily Iowan

Monday's maiden voyage of HawkID, the new UI computer system, left many students and faculty members confused, frustrated and discouraged. For some, the trial run went fine. They logged in and took advantage of such new services as printing without a print card, e-mail and off-campus Internet access. But others found that the process, designed to be simple, was far from it.

UI graduate student Tim Dun said he went the UI Main Library early Monday morning to find that the system he was used to no longer existed. He discovered he needed a HawkID in order to access the computers in the library's Information Technology Center. After resetting his account, he had problems running the system.

"The lab monitor didn't know how to make his ID work, either," Dun said. "The whole thing was frustrating."

The biggest problems arose when the system's main authentication server began rejecting students trying to log on between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., said David Dobbins, the ITS associate director. The system had some glitches that didn't show up until peak-use times, but, he said, the problems have been repaired by ITS technicians.

Another problem arose for a few stu-

Dorms graced by fewer lounge-livers

■ The number of students in temporary housing — 144 — is down 26 from last year.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

While fewer students are canceling their UI residence hall contracts this year, the number of students living in temporary housing has also decreased.

There are 144 students living in 20 lounges in Rienow and Burge residence halls; last year, 170 freshmen lived in temporary housing, said Dicta Schoenfelder, the housing manager for UI Residence Services.

The UI overbooks the residence halls every year to make up for the students who cancel or drop out in the first weeks of classes, Schoenfelder said. This year, the UI prepared for up to 200 students to live in temporary housing — a lower number than in past years, she said.

Temporary housing is assigned to freshmen whose housing applications are received after the residence halls are filled.

The majority of students in temporary housing can expect to move into their new rooms before Oct. 1.

One of those temporarily without an abode, UI freshman Matt Steuart, lives in a lounge in Rienow with nine other freshmen.

"It's like being homeless and living out of a shopping cart," he said.

Some of the temp residents received notice of their room assignments on their scheduled move-in day, but most of the students are still waiting to receive their assignments.

UI freshman Rebecca Russ moved into a lounge in Rienow on Aug. 14 before receiving a room in Hillcrest Residence Hall this past weekend.

"I was pretty lucky," she said. "But I wanted to stay (in the lounge) a little longer because I like my roommates. We're all really good friends."

One of Russ's roommates, UI freshman Kassie Phillips, is still on the waiting list.

Nick Tremmel/The Daily Iowan

Freshman Rebecca Russ writes in her daily planner while freshman Kassie Phillips writes a letter to her friend in the Navy while sitting in their temporary housing area at Rienow Residence Hall Sunday evening.

"I haven't even unpacked my stuff yet because I might be moving soon," she said. Although Schoenfelder said she has not heard any complaints, some students are "bitter" about having to live in a lounge with multiple lounge-mates.

"If they put you in temporary housing, you should be able to choose whichever house you want because it's an inconvenience," said UI freshman Dave Griffin. "We don't even have desks."

UI freshman John Schmid agreed that there was little room and that it was hard to adjust to having multiple roommates.

"We have to live out of a suitcase," he said. "And it's kind of disturbing if people come in at around 2 a.m."

UI sophomore Andrea Pierce lived down the hall from a temporary housing lounge in Stanley Residence Hall last year.

"It was cool because you got to know more people," she said.

Ellen Degen, another UI sophomore, agreed but added that there was a negative side to living near a temporary lounge. "Sometimes we'd be getting ready for bed, and the women in the lounge would be really loud," she said.

Some freshmen in temporary housing have already planned to find other living quarters if they do not get a room soon.

"If I end up being here a semester, I'll move in with my aunt in North Liberty," Phillips said.

UI irked by TA rankings report

■ The Princeton Review says the UI has the most TAs teaching high-level courses in the country.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

New ratings in the Princeton Review claim that, among U.S. universities, the UI has the highest number of teaching assistants instructing upper-level courses and that it is one of the top 20 schools where students are dissatisfied with financial aid.

Some UI officials say the information in the publication, which is a guide and evaluation of universities across the nation, is unreliable.

The information was gathered solely through student surveys, said Steve Parrott, the director of university communications. The UI did not verify the data, he said.

"No one should draw conclusions from that," Parrott said. "I would just urge everyone to take this information with a grain of salt — or a whole shaker."

According to the fall 1999 Princeton Review, only 8.4 percent of the UI's upper-level courses were taught by teaching assistants, he said.

"I'm pretty sure that can't be the worst in the nation," Parrott said. "In fact, over the past 10 years, I think we've reduced the number of TAs who teach by half."

The prospect of being educated by younger instructors doesn't worry UI freshman Jamina McNear.

"They're more in touch with the times," she said. "They can also offer more insight into what we can take advantage of."

The publication's claim that students are dissatisfied with financial aid conflicts with a 1994 professional survey of 600 UI students, yearly point-of-service surveys and surveys of UI graduates, said Mark Warner, the UI director of Student Financial Aid.

Last year, approximately 90 percent of UI students received nearly $213 million in financial aid from the federal and state government, institutions and private sources, he said.

Bar-hosted alcohol-free events are latest effort to curb underage drinking

■ Bo James will hold Alcohol-Free Night tonight to welcome UI freshmen.

By Tony Robinson
The Daily Iowan

With the Iowa City City Council's Sept. 20 meeting approaching to discuss a possible 21 ordinance for local bars, some bar owners are taking action to show that they can be responsible when it comes to underage drinking.

Bo James will give bar-goers an alcohol-free option today as it holds its first Alcohol-Free Night from 8 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. The purpose is to welcome incoming freshmen, and the event will include a dating game, contests and dancing, said Leah Cohen, owner of Bo James, 118 E. Washington St. Upperclassmen will also be there to welcome and socialize with the freshman.

"What we don't want to do is move one problem to another area, so we need to look at many different solutions," Cohen said. "I think we need to look at alternative activities for these kids, and it's going to take a total effort by everyone to try to resolve the problem that has developed in Iowa City."

In the past year, city councilors have discussed ways to combat underage drinking in downtown establishments.

Alternatives to bars going 21

Bar owners and city council members' suggestions for dealing with underage drinking at bars:

-  Wrist bands for of-age patrons.
-  Limit the number of drinks sold to an individual at one time.
-  No drink specials.
-  Undercover police at the bars.
-  Off-duty police hired to check IDs at the door.
-  Separate rooms: with and without alcohol.
-  Not allow minors to be in a bar past a designated time.

Holding alcohol-free nights at bars may be one way to prove that bar owners are finding solutions to curb underage drinking in bars.

"It sounds like a good idea to have students interact with each other in an alcohol-free environment," Councilor Steven Kanner said. "We should promote more

UI pops price at Coke machines

■ The increases were made in July, and some students and faculty have found the change upsetting.

By Andrew Bixby
The Daily Iowan

Students, faculty and staff may have to dig deeper into their pockets this fall when looking for cold drinks in UI buildings.

The UI recently approved a raise in price for all Coca-Cola beverages sold in machines in UI facilities. The price of cans has increased by 5 cents, from 60 to 65 cents, and the price of bottles has increased by 10 cents, from 90 cents to $1.

Coca-Cola is the sole beverage distributor on campus.

Because the UI made the decision in July, a time when many UI students are not in town, it was not a highly publicized event, said Steve Parrott, the UI director of university communications.

Coca-Cola representatives approached UI officials in late July, asking for the price change as a way to stay competitive with area vendors.

"The new price is based on Coca-Cola's request to the university," said Mary Jane Beach, the UI assistant vice president for finance and university services. "(Coca-Cola) is just trying to stay competitive with the (convenience stores)," Beach said.

In February 1998, all UI beverage vending was contracted to Coca-Cola. The UI received $350,000 up front, plus a 50/50 split of all revenues. With the recent increase, the UI is receiving an additional 2.5 cents per can. As part of the contract, the UI was guaranteed, but not limited to, an additional $400,000 in revenue per year.

The price of a can before the Coca-Cola contract was 65 cents, Beach said, and the company agreed to lower it as part of the 1998 contract. However, after the initial lowering of prices, Coca-Cola has had concerns.

"Coke was looking at prices around the campus and wanted to stay competitive," Beach said. "We agreed to allow them to raise the price."

The new revenue goes into a central pool that is used for student scholarships and improvements on campus, Beach said.

Saturday Scholars series to begin Sept. 9

This fall, the University of Iowa College of Liberal Arts will offer the chance to learn about a variety of topics from some of the top scholars in their respective fields. There will be no books, no homework, no tests and, best of all, no tuition. These lessons will be offered as part of the third annual "Saturday Scholars" program, a free lecture and discussion series open to the public on six Saturdays in September and October.

This year, program participants can learn about Shakespeare, the Northern Lights, the life of a traveling musician, turn-of-the-last-century amusement parks, jazz greats Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington, and the brain's memory capacity.

All presentations will begin at 10 a.m. in Room 40, Schaeffer Hall. Each session will last an hour, including a 20-30 minute presentation followed by a question-and-answer session. Refreshments will be served.

This year's program includes:

- Sept. 9, "Shakespeare: Side by Side," Miriam Gilbert, professor of English.
- Sept. 16, "The Aurora Borealis: Nature's Lightshow in the Sky," Craig Kletzing, associate professor of physics and astronomy.
- Sept. 23, "Oboe on the Road," Mark Weiger, professor of music.

Anything goes in dorm room décor

■ UI students transform their bare walls into ornate works of art.

By Megan Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

The transformation from bare room into home has begun for many UI students.

Several students choose coordinating colors and schemes, while others prefer a collage of collections when decorating their living spaces.

Roommates Susie Feldman and Erin Block, both freshmen, decided to make their room in Mayflower Residence Hall trendy.

"We talked about it before and decided that we wanted a colorful room," said Feldman.

The duo chose two colors, lime green and purple, with which to decorate their rooms.

Feldman and Block wound coiled purple lights through the crates in their room. They also covered their walls with strings of stars and numerous pictures of friends.

Now that their room is done, they plan to start decorating their kitchen, they said.

UI sophomore Andy Roche said the key to decorating his dorm room was accumulation. He lived up his walls with a collection of posters featuring Jackie Chan, Bob Marley, Beck and a slew of movies.

To cover his refrigerator and extra spaces, Roche used coloring-book pictures of Teletubbies and various art projects.

"You really have to hold onto stuff that you identify with," Roche said.

Roche also recommends creating furniture from unlikely items, such as the wine rack and barrel that he uses for tables.

To make his room more like a home, Roche redecorated almost five times last year, taking items down and replacing them with newer décor.

UI freshmen Courtney Lunk, Kayte Bober and Lindsay Hoemmen decorated their dorm room using matching items, such as brightly colored bedspreads and fuzzy pillows.

The trio brightened up the place with colored light covers and photographs of friends. They opted for bean bags instead of chairs and topped it off with a blacklight to reflect the room's bright colors.

"We all talked before about what everyone had and then decided what to bring," Lunk said.

There are many places catering to college students' desires for new décor. Target Stores, located in the Coral Ridge Mall, sold many animal-print items, such as rugs, pillows, notebooks and bedding, said Chanel Gentzler, team relations leader at the store. Matching sets of sheets, pillow cases and comforters were also very popular among college buyers, she said.

"Anything with leopard or animal print is selling out," Gentzler said.

The Futon Shop, 106 S. Linn St., stocks up the store a week prior to the beginning of school. The store also sells futons out of a truck across the street from Burge to new students.

"The two first weeks are really busy, and then things start to slow down back to normal," said Manager Zachary Kraus.

When moving from a dorm room to off-campus housing, such as a sorority, UI students don't make much of a change when it comes to decorating.

UI junior Erin Green, member of Gamma Phi Beta, still puts up her Dave Matthews poster in her sorority house as she did in her dorm room, but now she has more freedom to decorate with borders and wallpaper. Although her sorority sisters don't have a competition for the best decorator, she said, they do all try to individualize their personal spaces.

Students who move into apartments also have a lot more versatility when it comes to decoration. UI senior Sarah Olsen just had her apartment painted and new carpet put in.

"I can hang pictures on the wall now and wallpaper if I wanted to," she said.

The biggest change Olsen liked was that she had more room and her own personal space.

"You don't have to worry about people coming through for an inspection," she said.

"I think I'm going to eat there a lot," said UI sophomore Curtis Lehmkuhl, who lives in Currier Residence Hall.

The Marketplace, which replaced the Quadrangle

Residence Hall dining facilities, operates on the same meal-plan system as previous food services. Students swipe their student IDs through a machine slot at the door and can go to any of the seven stations, taking what they want from each outlet.

Greg Black, the assistant director of UI Food Service, said he was especially happy with increasing the options the students had.

"International food is not going to mean tacos anymore," he said. "Also we're now going to have a changing menu rather than just sticking with a set schedule."

The new format is also making things easier for the cooks. Roger Bernas, a cook for the Marketplace, said he prefers the new system.

"The cooks aren't as pressured now," he said. "Because we're each at a different station we, individually, don't have to make as much food. So everything's fresher now because we can put more into it."

The Marketplace is also affecting the menu at Burge Residence Hall. "Burge's menu will be adapted to Hillcrest's more so it is not left behind," Black said.

Although Hillcrest may offer more food options, many students are satisfied with the food offered at Burge.

"I'll probably just stay on this side and eat or go to the IMU," said Jessica Sammis, a UI freshman and Burge resident.

Renovations are planned for Burge's food service, but they will not be implemented for another few years.

Quadrangle's food service, which the Marketplace replaced, has been closed down and the UI is currently deciding what to put in the space, said Margaret Van Oel, the director of UI Residence Services.

"There have been several ideas suggested so far: a study area, an ITC, a convenience store or retailer, but nothing has been decided on yet, and there hasn't been any budget set," she said.

Coleman: I want everyone to be safe

■ The UI president discusses sexual assault, Stepping Up and the split in tuition and fees.

By Melissa A. Wieland
The Daily Iowan

During her monthly interview with The Daily Iowan, UI President Mary Sue Coleman discussed issues ranging from tuition increases to safety to alternatives to drinking.

DI: Facing possible tuition increases again this year, what should students do to help state legislators realize the UI needs more funding?

Coleman: Students can be very influential individuals, especially when it comes to state legislators. Legislators are very responsive when it comes to the issue of education and the future. By expressing their feelings, students are helping the UI by encouraging legislators to invest more, which allows Iowa to get the best professors and the best tools.

DI: What is the UI doing to work with the Iowa City City Council about underage drinking?

Coleman: For four years, the Stepping Up project has been in place. Basically I am in the process of making locations where students can go at night. I don't believe drinking is the issue, but rather students simply don't have a place to go and be with friends. I am trying to change that by planning late-night activities for students, having the Recreation Center open later at night and by having longer hours at the Iowa Memorial Union.

DI: A sexual assault allegedly occurred this past weekend in Mayflower Residence Hall. There were also numerous sexual assaults reported around various dorms last year. Has the UI done anything or is it planning on doing anything to increase safety on campus?

Coleman: The UI always strives to be vigilant about safety. Students need to be aware of their surroundings. The UI is doing its best to increase safety by having bicycle patrol as well as having individual students analyze the current safety measures — we make sure they feel comfortable with the amount of lighting and the distance between the blue light phones. The UI also works with Resident Assistants in the dorms and teaches them to be aware of what is going on on their floor. The UI encourages Resident Assistants to inform new students to be alert. They do a wonderful job now. I want everyone to be safe and feel safe, and we are always open to suggestions.

DI: This is the first year tuition and fees are separated. How will students see the benefits of the split this year?

Coleman: Students will be able to see how their money is being put to work and how the UI is trying to change things that students themselves wanted changed. Examples of these changes include the Main Library staying open until 2 a.m. during the week as well as attempts to increase the hours at other branch libraries across campus. We are also looking to bringing in new furniture to the library. Some other uses of the fee money include the new instructional equipment the UI is purchasing to aid professors in teaching with more advanced technology — the technology that will allow students to have an edge once they enter their professional careers. Another exciting use is the new writing programs coming to the UI. There will be seminars and writing classes to improve the writing skills of students, which will also be very helpful to students when applying for and working in jobs. All of these areas show how student fees are working toward aiding student needs and how the UI is listening to those needs.

■ The group is putting on benefit concerts to help save the historic theater.

By Erica Driskell
The Daily Iowan

The Englert Civic Group has shifted its focus to the UI students returning to Iowa City as it continues to raise money to buy the historic Englert Theatre.

A benefit featuring eight bands, held at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., on Aug. 18, raised $600 for the theater, said Anita Wollison, a volunteer coordinator.

The group has already raised $250,000 — the half-way mark toward reaching its goal, Wollison said. By Nov. 8, it needs to raise a total of $500,000 to purchase the building from Iowa City, a deadline that was imposed by the city.

Another benefit concert geared toward UI students, featuring Just Brewed Jazz and the Eddie Picard Trio, will be held on Aug. 31 at the Sanctuary Restaurant & Pub, 405 S. Gilbert St. A third benefit concert will be held at the Mill Restaurant, 120 E. Burlington St., on Sept. 10.

Englert group looks for student aid

The group is putting on benefit concerts to help save the historic theater.

The group will hold many more events focusing on UI students, Wollison said. It is planning a New Year's Eve celebration, having already booked the Orquesta de Jazz y Salsa Alto Maiz for the event, she said.

The group has not yet found a location for the celebration but is negotiating with several businesses.

UI senior Naomi Lohr said that while the group is a valuable asset for Iowa City, she does not think UI students will get involved in the actual fund raising. However, the entertainment will attract UI students, which will lead to donations, she said.

"I think the Englert Theatre will have a lot of interesting things," she said.

Lohr also said she is looking forward to the cultural events that the Englert could provide once it reopens.

While it is focusing more on students this fall, the Englert Civic Group is still looking to local residents to provide donations.

Some donations can "buy" parts of the theater, such as dressing rooms and seats, and have them named as the donor wishes. An anonymous man and his wife recently pledged $10,000 for the

"We just thought it was a worthwhile project for Iowa City," Mariam Maxwell said. "It would be good if all could contribute something — whatever they could afford."

Corporations, which are expected to give the larger donations, have become a strong factor in fund raising recently, Wollison said. "There's corporate money out there," she said. "They often wait and give it at the very end to be the savior of the cause, though."

The group is negotiating with several corporations, although no specific names will be available until actual donations are given, Wollison said.

Suspect sought in chase, gun thefts

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa (AP) — A suspect in the theft of more than 20 guns from a shop in Indiana remained at large Monday after a chase at speeds up to 130 mph through eastern Iowa, the Iowa State Patrol said.

It is believed that Justin Fagan, 20, of Springfield, Ill., may have stolen another car after the car he and two others were in crashed Sunday, troopers said.

The chase started around 5:30 p.m. after a caller reported someone waving a gun inside a car on Interstate 80 near the Ladora exit. The car left the freeway and crashed in a ditch near Williamsburg. The three people inside fled on foot.

Inside the car, troopers found 22 guns reported stolen from Triangle Live Bait and Gun Shop in Liberty, Ind., on Aug. 16.

Troopers using dogs and aircraft tracked down Jill Farrell, 19, and Jared Fagan, 15, both of Springfield. Each was charged with interference with official acts and possession of stolen property.

Justin Fagan allegedly tried to steal a car nearby but was scared off when he heard police approaching, Sgt. Bob Cox said.

Justin Fagan is described as white, 5 feet 6 inches tall, 150 pounds with long brown hair and brown eyes. The patrol also is looking for a gray Cadillac, which Fagan might be driving, Cox said. The car, with Iowa license plate 284 BGL, was stolen Sunday night from the Williamsburg area.

'Debby' menaces Caribbean

■ Tropical Storm Debby intensifies but may not reach U.S. mainland.

By Marvin Hokstam
Associated Press

PHILIPSBURG, St. Maarten — Speeding west at near hurricane strength, Tropical Storm Debby threatened several northeast Caribbean islands still recovering from last year's storm damage.

Schools closed, people rushed to buy emergency supplies and governments prepared shelters. Tourists crowded airports to flee the storm, and cruise ships turned away from the winds and rain.

The fourth named storm of the Atlantic season emerged with unnerving suddenness as the season's first threat to land.

At 1 p.m. CDT, Debby was centered about 200 miles east of Guadeloupe, heading for French, Dutch and British islands Tuesday and expected to continue on to the U.S. Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic. Forecasters said it was too early to say whether the storm could threaten the U.S. mainland.

Debby seemingly came out of nowhere Saturday and reached near-hurricane strength in little more than a day. Its sustained winds reached nearly 70 miles per hour late Monday morning, just shy of the 74 miles per hour needed for hurricane classification.

Debby was speeding west at about 22 miles per hour and expected to intensify and keep on the same track for the next three days.

Hurricane warnings were posted from the French island of Guadeloupe north through the island chain including Dutch St. Maarten, Saba and St. Eustatius, through the British Virgin Islands and the U.S. Virgin Islands.

A hurricane watch was posted early Monday in Puerto Rico but was expected to become a warning later in the day.

Debby could be a hurricane by the time it hits Guadeloupe and the Caribbean's easternmost islands around 9 p.m. CDT Monday, said forecaster Henry Laskosky at the National Weather Service office in San Juan.

Meteorologists in Antigua warned their residents to prepare for a direct hit.

Gore's riverboat campaign rounds out

■ The Democratic presidential candidate and company unveil a new campaign slogan and advertising strategy.

By Sandra Sobleraj
Associated Press

QUINCY, Ill. — Flying high on their lift from the polls, Democrats Al Gore and Joseph Lieberman dubbed themselves "the Dream Team" Monday and said their sometimes-weighty talk of policy was paying off.

At a Mississippi riverside campaign stop, Gore even used a somewhat wonkish speech on tax and health-care policy as a rallying cry.

"I'm giving you specifics before the election because I'm not afraid for you to know the facts," the presidential nominee cried out. "Do you want specifics?"

"Yea!" replied the crowd of some 1,000 people.

Behind Gore and Lieberman, a new campaign banner debuted: "The Dream Team — Full Steam Ahead."

The Gore campaign also plans to begin airing new biographical ads this week. The TV spots are set for many of the 17 states where the Democratic National Committee has spent nearly $30 million on a summer ad campaign.

Monday's Democratic focus was on tax cuts. In a forum, Gore and Lieberman told two dozen area residents that targeted relief is the fair way to cut taxes.

Gore's $500 billion package over 10 years offers write-offs and tax credits for child care, long term care, college tuition savings and retirement investments.

Bush wants to reduce income-tax rates to the tune of $1 trillion over 10 years. He also would double the $500 tax credit for each child and increase other deductions.

Lieberman said the Republican proposal would primarily benefit the very rich: "Their plan gives most to people who need it least and least to people who need it most."

Gore, who had just sworn off a campaign of "sound bites and PR and images," chuckled. "That was a sound bite with substance," he told his running mate.

In Texas, Bush spokesman Dan Bartlett said Gore was misleading people about Bush's proposal. The Bush plan is "much more fair" because everyone would have lower taxes, Bartlett said. "With the Gore plan, you've got to jump through hoops to get targeted tax relief."

Gore and Lieberman were wrapping up the fourth and final day of their 400-mile tour of Mississippi River communities in a haven of Americana — Mark Twain's boyhood home of Hannibal, Mo.

■ A glacial rock in Hickory Hill Park commemorates Eric Shaw's life and death.

By Nicole Schuppert

A memorial rock has been placed in Hickory Hill Park for Eric Shaw, who was fatally shot by an Iowa City Police Department officer four years ago.

The glacial rock, which weighs more than two tons, is located in the upper portion of the park near the North Dodge Street entrance. Engraved in the stone are the words "remembering is an act of love," accompanied by Shaw's name and the dates of his birth and death.

Shaw was working in his art studio at his father's business, Iowa Vending, 1132 S. Gilbert St., on Aug. 30, 1996, when police arrived to investigate a fatal shooting. Shaw's family declined comment.

"We were in the park in the trails with an impromptu picnic for my son," the father said.

Though the shooting was a tragedy, the father said, "remembering is an act of love," and the dates of his birth and death.

"All of us have some part in this," the father said.

Northwest Airlines pilot dies during flight

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The commanding pilot of a Northwest Airlines DC-10 died of a heart attack during a flight from Los Angeles, and a co-pilot landed the plane without incident.

The pilot of Flight 308, 53-year-old Capt. Thomas Christianson, had felt ill and left the cockpit, airline officials said.

The two other pilots in the cockpit took over immediately on the Sunday night flight. It is standard procedure on a DC-10 to have two other experienced pilots aboard, Northwest spokesman Dennis Mollura said.

Passenger Merle Minda said the crew announced that a pilot was sick and later asked if a doctor was on board.

"They announced that we'd land fairly quickly and to stay in our seats," said Minda, of Minneapolis. "Then we see a lot of emergency vehicles when we landed."

The jumbo jet, carrying 290 passengers, landed without incident Sunday night at the Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport, said Northwest spokesman Dennis Mollura.

Minda said passengers saw a paramedic enter the forward part of the plane. "After a few minutes, he didn't come out with anybody. I feared it was the worst."

Christianson had been with Northwest since 1972.

Pilots are required to have physical examinations every six months, and Christianson had been examined within the past six months, an airline spokeswoman said.

N.M. pipeline explosion claims another life

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — The death toll from the natural gas pipeline explosion rose to 11 on Monday after one of the two severely burned survivors died.

Bobby Smith, 43, died at a hospital in Lubbock, Texas. His daughter-in-law, Amanda Smith, 25, of Carlsbad, remained in critical condition.

Amanda Smith's husband, 5-year-old daughter, 3-year-old son and parents were among the five children and five adults who were killed early Saturday when a fireball roared from the ruptured pipeline near a Pecos River fishing hole.

The blast left a crater 86 feet long and 20 feet deep and generated heat so intense that sand melted into glass and part of a bridge's concrete structure turned to powder. A dozen people from two local families had been camped under that bridge, 500 feet from the pipeline.

John Somerhalder, president of El Paso Energy's pipeline group, said the pipeline had been installed in 1950.

Shaw family creates memorial for slain son

■ A glacial rock in Hickory Hill Park commemorates Eric Shaw's life and death.

A memorial rock has been placed in Hickory Hill Park for Eric Shaw, who was fatally shot by an Iowa City Police Department officer four years ago.

The glacial rock, which weighs more than two tons, is located in the upper portion of the park near the North Dodge Street entrance. Engraved in the stone are the words "remembering is an act of love," accompanied by Shaw's name and the dates of his birth and death.

Shaw was working in his art studio at his father's business, Iowa Vending, 1132 S. Gilbert St., on Aug. 30, 1996, when police arrived to investigate an open door. He was fatally shot by Officer Jeffrey Gillaspie, who mistook the phone in Shaw's hand for a weapon. His parents, Blossom and Jay Shaw, declined comment but sent a statement to local media.

"We want to help Hickory Hill Park in this way because walking its trails with our son and daughter was an important tradition in our family for many years before Eric was killed," they wrote in the statement.

Though trees are the most common memorials in Iowa City, parks, benches, playground equipment and drinking fountains have also been donated, said Terry Trueblood, the director of Iowa City parks and recreation.

"All of the memorials certainly have some value to the park setting," he said. "They enhance the park because they are pleasant for people to look at and they're especially valuable to family and friends of the person."

Iowa City Parks and Recreation officials said Shaw's parents organized the project and purchased the rock with money from his memorial fund. The proposal was endorsed by the Parks and Recreation Foundation, said Matt Pacha, the president of the foundation.

The foundation will oversee a fund established in memory of Shaw, which Trueblood said will be used for trail improvements and possibly for trees, benches or additional land.

"When people come to us with an idea to raise funds, we're generally very supportive of it," Pacha said.

Donations can be sent to the Parks and Recreation Foundation at 220 S. Gilbert St.

The council voted on a proposal last spring to allow only those over 21 to enter downtown bars, but the ordinance did not pass.

Councilor Connie Champion agreed that action needs to be taken, but said all possibilities need to be evaluated before a decision is made.

"I have not yet come to a decision on the matter, but I would like to allow people under the age of 21 to go into bars," Champion said. "The problem is that I don't see the bars doing anything about the problem, and, if they don't, I will not hesitate to raise the age to 21."

The Sept. 20 meeting will address issues discussed last spring and also at a July 11 meeting between the city council and local bar owners.

Many bar owners at the meeting were concerned that an ordinance banning underage drinkers from bars would create new problems in the city, such as an increase in unsupervised drinking at off-campus parties. Bar owners urged the council to seek out alternative measures, such as wristbands for legal patrons and permitting them to purchase only one drink at a time.

The Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., also sponsored an alcohol-free event Aug. 18 for about 200-300 freshmen. The purpose was to welcome them to the UI, said Melissa Goatley, manager of the Fieldhouse.

"It was a very good idea to meet and get to know the other groups," said UI freshman Michelle Wisor, who attended the event.

Polls show Gore-Bush dead heat

■ The post-convention "bounce" suggests the public is giving the vice president a second look.

By Will Lester
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Al Gore is getting a second look from the American voters, post-convention polls indicate, and they generally like what they see — from his leadership skills to his handling of issues.

CBS News and CNN-USA TODAY-Gallup polls indicate that Republican George W. Bush and Gore are now in a dead heat in overall popularity, thanks to a bounce the Democrat got after his nomination in Los Angeles.

The percentage of people who view Gore favorably has improved significantly, both in the CBS poll and the Gallup poll, to levels that are now comparable with Bush's ratings. In the CBS poll, 45 percent viewed Gore favorably and 27 percent unfavorably — the same as the results for Bush. Six in 10 viewed Gore and Bush favorably in the Gallup poll.

Six in 10 said in the Gallup poll that Gore has the personality and leadership qualities a president should have, roughly the same as for Bush. In July, fewer than half in July said Gore had such qualities.

Gore was rated stronger than Bush on health care, Social Security, education, abortion rights, prescription drugs and campaign-finance reform in the Gallup poll. Bush led on national defense, and they were about even on foreign affairs, guns and handling the budget surplus.

Both polls said Gore and Bush were almost even on the quality of leadership, which had been a solid Bush advantage for months. Gore was seen as having strong leadership qualities by just over six in 10, up from 55 percent in July. Bush was seen as a strong leader by almost seven in 10, about the same as in July before his GOP convention nomination.

Six in 10 in the CBS poll said Gore can be trusted to keep his word, up from 47 percent in July and about the same as Bush's rating on that measure now. Six in 10 said Gore has made it clear what he would do as president, while half said that of Bush.

Three quarters in that poll said Gore would ensure that the economy remains strong, while six in 10 said that of Bush.

The boost in poll numbers that comes right after a convention can evaporate as quickly as it appears, and some political pollsters claim that polling on the weekend produces a Democrat-friendly sample of voters.

The CBS poll of 956 registered voters was taken Aug. 18 through Sunday and has an error margin of 3 percentage points. The CNN-USA TODAY-Gallup poll of 697 likely voters was taken on Aug. 18-19 and has an error margin of 4 percentage points.

Verizon settles one strike, faces another

■ The phone company reaches an agreement with 50,000 workers, but 35,000 others are still on the picket lines.

By Kalpana Srinivasan
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Verizon Communications and unions representing 50,000 telephone workers reached a tentative agreement on a three-year contract, returning a majority of striking employees to their jobs Monday after a two-week walkout.

But without a pact covering one other bargaining unit of mid-Atlantic workers, picket lines remained up Monday in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

Union officials said unresolved issues between the company and that bargaining unit of more than 35,000 workers include forced overtime levels and monitoring of customer-service workers and operators.

On Sunday, Verizon reached agreement with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and one of two bargaining units for the Communications Workers of America, covering employees in New York and New England.

Some 30,000 managers had been substituting for the striking workers, but the nation's largest local phone and wireless company still faces a running tally of about 80,000 requests for repairs.

Verizon officials said Monday they have approximately 200,000 orders for service that have piled up in the 12 states in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions that are the company's primary service areas. The company estimated it will take three to four weeks to clear the backlog.

NATION BRIEF

NLRB office: ConAgra plant may have impeded union work

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Multifoods giant ConAgra Inc. may have illegally threatened and coerced workers to keep them from trying to organize at its Omaha meatpacking plant, a regional office of the National Labor Relations Board said Monday.

Allegations made by the United Food and Commercial Workers Union will advance to an administrative law judge for further review unless ConAgra settles, said Leonard Bernstein, an attorney with the NLRB in Kansas City.

ConAgra could settle with the board and post a statement for 60 days at the plant telling employees it will not engage in similar behavior, Bernstein said. The NLRB has not heard yet from the company, he said.

The union accused ConAgra of photographing or videotaping employees who engaged in union activities, prohibiting workers from distributing union literature in non-work areas of the facility and threatening to confiscate union literature, Bernstein said.

"The evidence presented to us would indicate that on certain occasions there was photographing and videotaping and threatening," Bernstein said.

Bernstein said that except for a position letter presented to the NLRB's regional office, ConAgra declined to counter the evidence presented.

ConAgra spokeswoman Karen Savinski said she could not immediately reply to the NLRB's decision. She has said the company did not interfere with anyone's right to organize.

Palestinian statehood

■ Yasser Arafat meets with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak before talking with U.S. envoy Dennis Ross.

By Sarah El-Deeb

CAIRO, Egypt — The Palestinians are trying to determine when is the best time to declare statehood, Egypt's foreign minister said Monday after a day of intensive Middle East diplomacy.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat shuttled to Egypt for talks with President Hosni Mubarak before returning home, where he is to meet later with U.S. envoy Dennis Ross, who is trying to push ahead talks after last month's failed Israeli-Palestinian peace summit.

Afterward, Foreign Minister Amr Moussa said the Palestinians were working on when to declare a state — a move Arafat had earlier set for Sept. 13. He has since said he is reconsidering the date. The United States and Israel have warned him against the move.

"There is absolutely no change concerning the state or Jerusalem, but the date of declaration is still subject to discussion," Moussa told journalists.

LONDON — Former British spy David Shaylor has stopped running.

After nearly three years in exile in France, the man who infuriated Britain's spy agencies with his allegations of incompetence and illegal plots arrived home Monday and walked into police custody.

No sooner had he been charged with disclosing state secrets than the burly, blunt-speaking former agent was vowing to dig further into his revelations — particularly claims that Britain was involved in a plot to assassinate Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi.

"I feel good to be back in my own country. I feel good to be free again, and, as soon as possible, I'm going to pursue the Gadhafi plot," Shaylor told journalists after he was released on bail.

Shaylor, who had worked for Britain's MI5 internal security agency since 1994, fled to France after an August 1997 article in London's Mail on Sunday newspaper with his disclosures.

Insisting he revealed the information out of patriotism, he has since accused the British government of trying to silence him with criminal charges and a lawsuit last year. The British government has denied the Gadhafi claims.

Shaylor returned by ferry from the French port of Calais accompanied by reporters, TV crews and his girlfriend, Annie Machon. Police confronted him as he stepped off the boat in Dover.

"He feels that he needs to come back and vindicate himself," an emotional Machon told reporters. She said it was "scandalous" that he should be arrested when "all he's done is tell the truth about a very secretive government organization."

Palestinian statehood date not set in stone

By Sarah El-Deeb
Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt — The Palestinians are trying to determine when is the best time to declare statehood, Egypt's foreign minister said Monday after a day of intensive Middle East diplomacy.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat shuttled to Egypt for talks with President Hosni Mubarak before returning home, where he is to meet later with U.S. envoy Dennis Ross, who is trying to push ahead talks after last month's failed Israeli-Palestinian peace summit.

Afterward, Foreign Minister Amr Moussa said the Palestinians were working on when to declare a state — a move Arafat had earlier set for Sept. 13. He has since said he is reconsidering the date. The United States and Israel have warned him against the move.

"There is absolutely no change concerning the state or Jerusalem, but the date of declaration is still subject to discussion," Moussa told journalists.

Earlier, Syria's foreign minister met Mubarak in the Mediterranean city of Alexandria and demanded Israel hand over to the Palestinians all of East Jerusalem — the main issue that wrecked the July Camp David summit.

Foreign Minister Farouk Al-Sharaa called on Israel to make "a complete withdrawal" from East Jerusalem, saying it was an integral part of occupied Arab territories. "The issue in our view requires a firm and principle-based position and does not need a great deal of beating about the bush," he said.

At Camp David, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak had reportedly offered the Palestinians limited control over parts of East Jerusalem, which has been traditionally Arab. The Palestinians rejected the offer, demanding that the entire area, which includes sites holy to Muslims, Christians and Jews, must be under full Palestinian control.

In Jordan, King Abdullah prepared to visit Israel today to meet with Barak, following up talks the two leaders held in Amman last week. In the earlier talks, Abdullah had rejected any Israeli sovereignty over Muslim holy sites in Jerusalem.

Moussa said Mubarak and al-Sharaa had focused on how to coordinate Arab positions concerning the Middle East peace process. On Saturday, Syria's new president, Bashar Assad, will begin his first visits in the region with trips to Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain.

Russia halts attempts to save 118 doomed sailors

Some families of the dead are angry at the government's inaction.

By Angela Charlton
Associated Press

MOSCOW — A desperate effort to reach a sunken Russian nuclear submarine ended Monday, when divers said none of the 118 sailors was alive more than a week after a catastrophic explosion left them inside a crumpled wreck on the bottom of the sea.

Norwegian divers who finally opened the escape hatch and forced their way into the hull of the Kursk after working in the Arctic depths for more than 24 hours said the submarine was completely flooded. There was no sign that any of the crew had survived for long inside the mangled warship 350 feet below the surface.

Defense Minister Igor Sergeev expressed condolences to the sailors' families and admitted the rescue attempt had been flawed in a Monday night interview on Russia's largest network, ORT.

"We are all mourning together with the relatives and loved ones," he said, then paused and sighed deeply. "We will never forget what the sailors did, that they did all that was possible and impossible."

Many Russians assailed their government for its slow, bumbling response to the Aug. 12 disaster and wondered when their crisis-racked nation will see stability.

The Russian government resisted international help for days, even as its rescue capsules repeatedly failed to reach the Kursk's damaged escape hatch. A British mini-submarine brought to the site was never used.

"They have killed the boys, that's all," said Yekaterina Dyachkova, a retiree in Murmansk, headquarters of the Northern Fleet. "The (navy) should have called for help immediately, but they waited for so many days."

Thompson's move from the Joffery to the UI dance department delights him.

By Sabrina Taylor
The Daily Iowan

Dance and a love of teaching dancers brought Basil Thompson to the UI. Thompson, a ballet master for the Joffery Ballet during the company's most prolific period, started his teaching career at the UI during the 2000 spring semester, when he filled the vacancy left by the retirement of Françoise Martinet. His move to Iowa City began what he calls "a less stressful way of living."

As a boy, Thompson was more interested in soccer than other sports, but when a grade school teacher told him that dancing would improve his soccer playing, he began taking lessons.

"She told me that if I wanted to be a better soccer player, I should take up dance," remembers Thompson, who speaks with a slight British accent. He enjoyed it from the very first lesson, he said. He moved on to train at the famous Royal Ballet School and gained experience from his time with the Royal Ballet of England.

Thompson is not new to the UI. During the '70s, he worked as a guest teacher. He visited the UI during the off-season of the Milwaukee Ballet, where he was the artistic director. He also traveled to Iowa City with the Joffery Ballet. Through his friendship with fellow Joffery Ballet company member Martinet and other members of the dance department faculty, Thompson gained a sense of familiarity with the UI dance program and the Iowa City community.

The transition from a professional dance company to the classroom is "a delight," Thompson said.

"Teaching is very different, but I prefer it because it doesn't cause me stress. It's getting back to what I prefer to do — teaching and coaching students."

As an artistic director at the Milwaukee Ballet, Thompson was engulfed by administrative duties — budgets, budget cuts, repertoire and dealing with the board of directors.

"It wasn't what I wanted to do," he said. "And I missed being with the dancers and concentrating on teaching. An education is important, and even if they don't even go into the field, they will have a greater appreciation for dance and what it's all about."

He is looking forward to doing choreography and a pas de deux for Dance Gala 2000 based on one of Cantaloube's "Songs of Auvergne." But mostly, he is looking forward to working with his students.

"It's a wonderful opportunity to do what I love to do," he said.

International Writing Program back on its feet

The IWP has blossomed after a year of restructuring.

By Kristen Gast
The Daily Iowan

After a year of uncertainty, the pioneering UI International Writing Program is back to its former glory.

"We are very happy to announce we are back at full strength after a year of restructuring by Dr. David Skorton," said program coordinator Rowena Torrevillas.

Last summer, UI administrators announced that they had put the IWP on hiatus. The program was "cut down," said Winston Barclay, the assistant director of UI Arts Center relations, and the future of the program was uncertain.

During the 1999-00 school year, the program was substantially scaled back. Now, the start of a new semester has brought a strong IWP back to the UI.

"We owe so much to Dr. Skorton and his staff for moving us where we are right now," Torrevillas said. "He restored the essential elements of the program and ensured that we would remain a writing residency."

After Skorton's restructuring and the appointment of new program director Christopher Merrill, the program is ready to welcome 20 new international participants.

"Merrill is really the perfect selection for the program. He is qualified as a writer and as an administrator," Torrevillas said.

Merrill has published three collections of poems, four works of translation and three volumes of nonfiction. He has taught at the College of Holy Cross in Massachusetts since 1995 and is an alumnus of Middlebury College and the University of Washington.

The purpose of the IWP is to "create dialogue between nations," Torrevillas said. The residency program brings established writers to the UI, where they become part of the rich campus literary community.

"These writers are opinion-shapers in their nations," Torrevillas said. "The program creates an area where we can probably accelerate the evolution towards acceptance and tolerance that might otherwise take generations."

In keeping with that goal, this year's participants are geographically diverse. Four continents and 17 countries are represented, with writers from countries such as Burma, Nigeria, Togo and Uganda. Participants are funded through State Department grants and cultural foundations. They include poets, fiction and nonfiction writers, playwrights, screenwriters, a journalist, a critic and an editor.

Highlights of this year's program will include a series of readings at Prairie Lights Books featuring IWP participants and Writers' Workshop students. The goal, Torrevillas said, is "to bring writers' works to audiences on campus and in the community."

The weekly readings will occur Sundays at 5 p.m. beginning Sept. 10 and continuing through Nov. 5.

The IWP will also host a series of panel discussions Wednesdays at 3 p.m. in the Gerber Lounge, Room 304, EPB. The first discussion will be held Sept. 13, and the series will continue each week through Oct. 25. The topics have not been decided but will likely include issues of literature on the Web, national identity in literature and writing in a non-native language.

Cubans scrutinize U.S. politics' 'two faces of imperialistic mission'

The country's media say Republicans and Democrats are greedy and short-sighted.

By Anita Snow
Associated Press

HAVANA — For weeks, Cuba's state-run media have given Cubans a rare and close-up look at America's presidential campaign, calling the two major parties "two faces of the same imperialistic mission" and labeling their conventions "without proposals to global problems."

person — after President Fidel Castro, of course — on this communist island, the U.S. race has been of intense interest here, particularly to Cuba's leaders.

There are now nightly televised round-table discussions, usually with government officials and journalists criticizing the large amount of money spent on the conventions and on the campaigns. They say it could be better used to feed the American poor. Participants have dubbed the GOP gathering in Philadelphia the "Convention of the Millionaires."

With the American president considered the second-most influential American presidents have a huge influence over policies Castro's government describes as hostile: the U.S. trade embargo, U.S.-funded broadcasts criticizing the regime, an immigration law that Havana says encourages illegal and risky journeys across the Florida Straits.

No one is more cognizant of the U.S. impact on the 11 million people who live in Cuba than Castro himself, who will have outlasted nine American presidents when President Clinton steps down in January.

"Whichever one reaches the presidency will manage deadly weapons and will have in his hands the nuclear briefcase," Castro said earlier this month in a speech commemorating the start of the revolution that brought him to power. He will have "much more than an emperor of ancient Rome," Castro said, and will be "the owner of war and peace in the world."

Since that Aug. 5 speech, state media has provided extensive — but carefully selected — coverage of the American candidates in a new government push to increase Cubans' knowledge of the outside world.

"Republicans and Democrats: Two Faces of the Same Imperialistic Mission," declared a headline in the Communist Party daily last week. "The Programs of Philadelphia and Los Angeles: Without Proposals to Global Problems," complained another.

As during the Elián González campaign, video clips from American television are shown, albeit carefully edited and accompanied by political commentary.

Begun during the campaign to bring 6-year-old Elián back to Cuba, the round-table discussions now deal with topics ranging from American immigration policies to the defections of Cuban athletes.

Round-table participants noted that Gore's running mate,

Connecticut Sen. Joseph Lieberman, has consistently embraced American policies that Havana abhors. He has voted for tightening the embargo and continuing the U.S.-funded Radio Martí, which broadcasts from the United States to Cuba.

But participants have saved their strongest attacks for Bush and the Republican Party, which adopted a platform on Cuba setting tough conditions just as the Clinton administration and some lawmakers were trying to ease sanctions. The GOP platform says no trade or travel restrictions should be eased until Castro releases all political prisoners.

Two killed in Ulster gang feud

Politicians say the violence among Loyalists won't hinder the region's peace accord.

By Shawn Pogatchnik

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A gunman killed two Protestant militants Monday in a series of shooting and arson attacks linked to a deepening turf war among Northern Ireland's pro-British Loyalist gangs.

About 100 British soldiers were deployed in the most violent area to back up police.

Friends of one of the slain men, a leading member of the Ulster Defense Association, blamed the rival Ulster Volunteer Force and vowed revenge.

"Our people are furious at this provocation," said John White, a senior Ulster Defense Association figure.

Police said a gunman emerged from an alleyway during a heavy thunderstorm and fired at least eight bullets at the two victims as they sat in a brand-new Range Rover parked on Crumlin Road, where fading wall murals honor both the UDA and the UVF.

Hours later, the body of one of the victims, UDA member Jackie Coulter, was still in the front seat of the bullet-pocked vehicle. The other victim, Bobby Mahood — a one-time UVF member — died in a hospital.

It was the first time a gunman had killed two or more people in a single attack in Belfast since 1994. In that year, warlords from the two rival gangs stood side by side to announce a joint cease-fire that halted more than two decades of terrorist attacks against Catholics.

The Powers That Be and their HawkIDs

As I type this on a Pappajohn ITC computer, I glance over my shoulder to see if anyone is watching me. Choosing my words wisely and my URLs even more so, I know that I am not alone.

Big Brother is watching us. In this case, Big Brother has taken the form of HawkID, a new log-in system employed by the UI to oversee our computer habits. I asked a friend who works in the PBB ITC why I had to log on to the computer before I could get my daily fix of the Drudge Report. With sweat on his brow and fear in his eyes, he leaned down to whisper to me the inner secrets of this vast hawk-wing conspiracy when two men in suits and shades whisked him away to a room conspicuously marked "Pain Room."

ADAM WHITE

The UI becomes a pawn in the MP3 lawsuits. Metallica's Lars Ulrich is a crafty little capitalist, speaking out in favor of a crackdown on students' use of Napster to download audio files. In the good ol' days, my friend Eric and I spent many a day downloading MP3s in the Pappajohn ITC and burning them onto CD-Rs. With the UI looking over your shoulder now, though, you might want to think twice before you download Britney Spears' latest chartbuster. Before you can say "intellectual property," Ulrich & Co. might be dubbing thee Unforgiven, too.

Defenders of the football team jump on the 'Net to tackle the opposition. Last fall, a future Viewpoints editor wrote a less-than-favorable review of the team. As soon as the papers hit students' doorsteps, the writer was asked by a few Monday-morning quarterbacks to consider going into a new line of work, such as nonexistence. Thanks to the power of HawkID, though, there's no need for these proactive community members to wait until the paper is actually published to make their suggestions. With one quick call to Big Brother, "special teams" can be on the way.

Strong left, smash the kid's Zip disk on three. Ready. Break. Greenpeace flexes a little muscle and saves a few trees. This one seems most likely. Consider this: In the past, each computer in the Pappajohn ITC prints to a specified printer. You send a file to print, and you know which of the five printers strewn about the room it will be sent to. Thanks to HawkID, students are now free to roam the room aimlessly, looking for their paper at an apparently random printer.

This is where Greenpeace enters the picture: "Accidentally" reroute a few Business Policy group projects to, say, the Art Building or the Law Library printers, and the option of printing endless rough drafts loses its luster. In any case, Big Brother is indeed watching us. Then again, if this is the best he can do, then perhaps George Orwell can sleep soundly after all.

Now the UI is safe from the likes of the spelling-impaired "MinoirtyRid," not to mention copycat wannabees like "RasistEmale," "ThretsRUs," or "HasAnyoneSeenMyDickshunary."

My tech-friend made sure to point out that the UI itself will not monitor student computer usage; rather, it will be a tool for law enforcement. At the same time, though, databasing Internet traffic patterns has become big business, as companies like DoubleClick have shown in the last several months.

In other words, we're asking a cash-strapped public school to safeguard a multi-million dollar business opportunity.

Sounds as rational as giving whiskey and car keys to high-school boys and saying, "Now, play nice," to paraphrase P.J. O'Rourke.

Specifically, students might want to be on the lookout for the following scenarios:

On the SPOT How did your first day of classes go?

Quoteworthy

I do not know why he would want to duck that.

— Vice President Al Gore, on George Bush's hesitation in accepting a bipartisan presidential debate commission's recommendations on the format of this fall's debates.

Another day, another GOP grand jury

Just as Monica Lewinsky had finally faded to a shadow in the nation's collective memory, Independent Counsel Robert Ray appointed a new grand jury to hear testimony on the scandal. The grand jury's job is to determine whether President Clinton should be indicted on criminal charges of obstruction of justice after he steps down from office in January.

This move by Ray, who replaced Kenneth Starr as independent counsel for the Clinton-Lewinsky investigation last year, comes on top of a string of public punishments for Clinton. The Arkansas Supreme Court has moved to revoke his law license, and the judge in the Paula Jones hearing fined him for civil contempt of court after ruling that he gave false testimony. Clinton is also the second U.S. president ever to be impeached and has stayed in office only through his acquittal in the Senate. Events such as these, while they are not in the form of official charges, serve as strong punishments from which Clinton cannot easily recover.

Any criminal charges that Robert Ray could bring against the president would be superfluous. The man's reputation has already been ruined beyond repair. A set of criminal charges and their accompanying trial won't change Americans' opinions of Clinton. After the brouhaha surrounding the cigar, the blue dress and the impeachment trial, most people either support the president or think he's a slimeball. It's very unlikely that Ray will be able to come up with substantial evidence left untouched by Kenneth Starr to even support an indictment of Clinton on criminal charges, much less make these criminal charges punish Clinton further. Given the apparent futility of trying to further punish a man who has already been fully chastised, Ray's appointment of a new grand jury best makes sense as a partisan attempt to remind the nation of the Clinton-Lewinsky scandal as we move closer to November's election. News of the grand jury's appointment was leaked to the press last week in the midst of the Democratic National Convention, reminding voters of Al Gore's relationship with Clinton. Until Robert Ray's investigation uncovers new information about the Clinton-Lewinsky scandal, the new grand jury is nothing more than a partisan waste of time and money for the American people.

Let Confederate sub fade into history

The recent discovery of a sunken Confederate submarine has caused controversy over whether the C.S.S. Hunley should be raised from the bottom of the sea.

The sub was built by the Confederacy and used to sink a Federal warship outside of Charleston Harbor, S.C., during the Civil War. The Hunley was the first submarine that ever successfully sank an enemy warship, a historic event. The explosion that sank the enemy ship also crippled the Hunley, and it was unable to return to port.

When the location of the sunken submarine was recently discovered, the city of Charleston and the state of South Carolina began fund-raising efforts for raising the Hunley so this important piece of history could be preserved and displayed in a museum.

Perhaps it might be best if the bottom of the ocean remained the Hunley's final resting place.

But perhaps it might be best if the bottom of the ocean remained the Hunley's final resting place. Despite nearly a century and a half since the end of the Civil War, Confederate sentiment is still at large in this country. The recent political controversy surrounding the Confederate flag being flown over the South Carolina statehouse attests to that. And in many states, even as far north as Virginia, it's not uncommon to see the Confederate flag flying directly below the American flag on the majority of staffs.

Flying a Confederate flag may not attract much local attention in states that still consider themselves to possess "southern pride," but the South Carolina statehouse's flag attracted much negative national attention.

So if the initiative to raise this sunken sub — sponsored by the same state — is causing excitement among many South Carolina residents, one can just imagine what political firestorms this excavation effort has the potential of sparking on a national level.

The Civil War remains a rather touchy issue for many Americans. While scholars and historians may be itching to have that lost submarine so it can be studied and displayed, raising it from its salty depths may stir a little more than murky sea water, especially in an election year.

Health Q & A:

STD infections dangerous even when dormant

Q: I once had genital warts. If I haven't had them in years, how should I go about informing my new boyfriend without scaring him away? Is it necessary to inform him right away or at all? Is it maybe smarter for both of us to go for a complete STD checkup and if nothing comes up for either of us, just assume that we are OK? Please help!

A: It is very good that you are seeking more information and that you are concerned about the safety of your partner. Genital warts are caused by a family of viruses called HPV (Human Papillomavirus). There are some sexually transmitted infections (STIs) that can be considered "one-shot deals," meaning that once they are effectively treated, they are gone from your system. Unfortunately, other STIs, including genital warts, herpes and HIV, remain in one's system forever. They may be dormant (meaning you might not have actual "outbreaks" of blisters or warts) but they are there, nonetheless, and it is possible to transmit them to others through sexual contact.

Most experts agree that genital warts, if properly treated, are more a nuisance than a serious health concern.

Recent research indicates that in some individuals with good immune responses, the virus is virtually eliminated or at least strictly controlled after adequate treatment. While the only safe precautions are to use adequate protection (condoms and spermicide, dental dams) during any sexual activity and to avoid direct contact with any visible warts, it is much less common to transmit the disease in its dormant state than when you are having an actual outbreak. Most people who have genital warts only have one or two outbreaks in their entire lives, and their immune systems and healthy habits help to keep the disease in check the rest of the time. Regular check-ups and Pap smears will help you catch any side effects of HPV, such as precancerous cell changes or cervical cancer, very early on.

Remember, you are certainly not alone — estimates are that up to 80 percent of sexually active people will contract HPV during their lifetimes. Educating yourself is an important step in helping you talk more openly with your current or future partner(s). It is an excellent idea for you to suggest to your partner that you both be checked for STIs. Many other STIs, including chlamydia, can be asymptomatic, so being tested is often the only way to find out if one is infected.

Being open and honest about your sexual history, including STI, is difficult, especially with a new partner. However, you obviously respect your partner enough to write, so respecting him enough to be open with him is a logical next step. More in-depth information about HPV, genital warts and other sexually transmitted infections is available at the American Social Health Association Web page at <http://www.ashstd.org>.

Ewing, Rice involved in trade talks

■ A four-team trade between the Knicks, Lakers, SuperSonics and Pistons was discussed on Monday.

By Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Patrick Ewing and Glen Rice are involved in a mammoth four-team trade that was being discussed Monday by the Knicks, Lakers, SuperSonics and Pistons.

The deal, which would be the largest in NBA history, would send Ewing to Seattle, Rice and Vin Baker to the Knicks, and Christian Laettner and Chris Dudley to the Lakers. The Pistons would get several lesser caliber players, draft picks and cash.

ESPN.com reported the trade talk Monday afternoon and said the deal had been agreed to. Two league sources who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity confirmed the identities of several players in the deal but insisted it was not finalized and could fall apart.

If it comes to fruition, it would be a staggering deal.

The centerpiece would be Ewing, who has spent his entire 15-year career with the Knicks; Rice, a free agent who was displeased last season by his role with the world champion Lakers; and Baker, an Olympian and

Kaeding kickin' it with Iowa

■ Iowa City West graduate Nate Kaeding will try to bolster Iowa's kicking game.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

When the Iowa Hawkeyes kick off the 2000 football season this Saturday against Kansas State, fans' eyes will literally be on the person doing the kicking.

True freshman Nate Kaeding enters the season as the leading contender to take over place kicking duties on an Iowa special teams unit that has been less than stellar in recent seasons.

Head coach Kirk Ferentz may say he doesn't like to talk about freshmen, but he doesn't need to in Kaeding's case. For many, the writing has been on the wall for some time.

After the recruiting period ended last season, the Hawkeyes were roundly criticized when Kaeding was their only in-state recruit.

However, from the moment he joined the team it seemed a given he would start. So much so that before the team's August 4 media day, freshman kicker John Gockman transferred to Joliet Community College, leaving veteran Greg McLaughlin as the only experienced kicker.

While McLaughlin has been assigned number 16, the same as promising quarterback Jon Beutjer, Kaeding has number 95 all to himself.

Even if Kaeding has to interview for the position, his résumé speaks for itself. In addition to being a member of the National Honor Society while at Iowa City West, he won state championships with the football, basketball and soccer teams.

It was Kaeding's kick in a shoot-out that won the state title for the Trojans soccer team last season. Not bad for a person whose job description calls for staying calm under pressure.

He brings the same cool demeanor into his first collegiate season.

"There's no guarantees at this level," he said. "I just have to go out and perform to the best of my abilities and whatever happens, happens."

Whatever problems may arise during the season, he will not have to look far for help. The man he calls a mentor, former West High coach Reese Morgan, joined the team following last season as tight ends Freshman kicker Nate Kaeding attempts a field goal at Iowa media day on Aug. 4. Kaeding, an Iowa City West graduate, is the only in-state recruit Kirk Ferentz and his coaching staff signed this year, is expected to boost Iowa's kicking game that has struggled in the past.

Davenport wins in Little League Series

■ Maracaibo, Venezuela beat Dhahran 3-0; Davenport won over Goffstown, N.H.

By John Wawrow
Associated Press

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — Manager Eduvino Quevedo didn't need an interpreter to translate his frustrations with Maracaibo, Venezuela's offense.

Although Maracaibo beat Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, 3-0 in Little League World Series play Monday, Quevedo kept repeating the word, ocho, as in eight: the eight (actually seven) runners his team stranded in Sunday's 10-0 loss to Tokyo; and the eight hits that led to just three runs against Dhahran.

"They're expecting a better pace out of themselves on the offensive side," Quevedo said through interpreter Micah Hughes. "It's his bats, he doesn't know, he's trying to figure it out."

Center fielder Juan Figueroa, who had two hits and scored once, agreed, saying: "We don't leave eight men on base in a game. That's not typical. And we're not taking advantage of our at-bats."

Against Dhahran, Maracaibo did take advantage of a solid pitching performance to even its record to 1-1. Ruben Mavarez pitched a two-hitter struck out five, did not allow a walk while allowing only one ball out of the infield.

Philip Hecht doubled and Chris Griffith singled for Dhahran, playing its Series opener. The Dhahran squad is representing Europe and made up of mostly Americans, whose parents work in the Saudi oil fields.

Pitcher Riley Arp allowed eight hits, but was undone by two errors that led to Maracaibo's three-run second inning.

Larry Gonzalez drove Figueroa home to open the scoring. Then with two out and the bases loaded, Mavarez singled to center, driving home Roy Refungol. Gonzalez scored when center-fielder Wande Olabisi misplayed the ball.

Dhahran manager Al Griffith blamed "butterflies" on his team's early miscues.

He's not worried, though. "I feel like all the team's in the international pool are capable of beating each other," Griffith said. "We're deep in pitching ... I think we'll do fine."

Earlier, Julian Vandervelde's two-run homer keyed Davenport, Iowa, to a 5-0 victory over winless Goffstown, N.H., and Tokyo improved to 2-0 by hanging on for a 9-8 win over Toronto. Bellaire, Texas, faced Vancouver, Wash., in the final game of the day.

Vandervelde, who stands 6-foot-2 and weighs 231 pounds, carried a big bat for Davenport, which marked the U.S. Central region's first Series win since 1996.

Ahead 1-0, the first baseman slammed a two-run, 239-foot shot off the hedges beyond the center-field wall in the third inning.

"We grow them big (in Iowa),"

Hill adds offensive threat

■ The return of Kahlil Hill gives the Hawkeyes another receiving option.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

When Scott Mullen takes the field for Iowa's season opener at the Eddie Robinson Classic in Kansas City Saturday, he will be faced with a dilemma he did not have last season. When Mullen drops back to pass, he will have to decide who to throw to.

Mullen's main target from a year ago, Kevin Kasper, will be joined in the starting lineup by Kahlil Hill, forming a lethal 1-2 receiving combo.

The senior quarterback looks forward to having another choice down field.

"Having Kahlil back adds another weapon to a good team," Mullen said. "Still, one person is not going to be the difference. The offense is a unit and everyone has to help each other out."

Last season, with Hill under a year-long suspension, Iowa finished second only to Northwestern at the bottom of the Big Ten in total offense. Despite the low numbers, Iowa quarterbacks still managed to throw for 2,275 yards in the air. Kasper accounted for 664 receiving yards, averaging 11.1 yards per catch.

While Kasper certainly was the beneficiary of Hill's absence, the former walk-on looks forward to his return.

"We've been working together this summer a great deal and we kind of complement each other," said Kasper. "I'll be more than happy to give up some of my receptions for him."

Hill has been the main focus of reporters and teammates since his return to the field last spring. Though everyone involved with the team remains quiet about his past, Hill is more than eager to talk about his future.

"Last year really allowed me to study and get a grasp of the offense," said Hill. "I just hope Kevin can

Woods wraps up great season

■ Tiger Woods matches Ben Hogan's historic mark with three major wins in one season.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Ben Hogan so thoroughly dominated professional golf in 1953 that when he returned home from the British Open after winning his third major championship, he was treated to a ticker-tape parade.

For Tiger Woods, they might as well save the confetti.

He not only matched Hogan's feat of three majors in one season, he set a new benchmark of domination by winning his fourth out of the last five, winning the PGA Championship on Sunday in a thrill-a-minute play-off over Bob May.

Is it the greatest season ever in golf?

"Three major championships and the season is not over for Tiger," Tom Watson said. "It would rank right up with the best."

Bobby Jones won the Grand Slam in 1930, but that was at a time in which the "majors" were defined as the U.S. Open and Amateur and the

POINTCOUNTERPOINT

Does Iowa have a chance against K-State

As the cheer goes, Kansas State is "overrated." Sure, it's got a solid receiving corps, but it also has an un-proven quarterback in Jonathan Beasley to get their receivers the ball. The defense is hurting after the departures of Mark Simoneau and Daren Howard. On paper, and in Vegas, this game looks to be a major blowout, but I say, Not so fast, my friend. The Hawks are pretty bad this year, but they are the best non-conference team K-State has played since 1994. Also, anyone remember the last Big Ten team the Wildcats played? Purdue, and the major underdog Boilermakers stumped Kansas State in the 1998 Alamo Bowl. K-State, which played Temple and Utah State last year, is not used to playing non-conference teams from big conferences, and that is an advantage for Iowa. Not to mention that the Hawks will be improved — much more improved than I think people around the country are giving them credit for. Ladell Betts will have well over 1,000 yards, and Kahlil Hill will add a whole other dimension to Iowa's offense. The defense? It was worse on paper last year than it really was. You have to consider the defense came in after so many of the offense's three-and-outs last year that it even made me tired. This year's defense will be worlds better than last year. An Iowa team with nothing to lose against an overrated team with a Top 10 ranking to lose, at a neutral site? The possibility for the Hawkeyes to pull a surprise upset exists. — by Jeremy Schnitker

Former champ banned from Olympics

Linford Christie, a 1992 gold medalist, cannot coach in Sydney because of a drug related suspension.

By Robert Millward
Associated Press

Diether Endlicher/Associated Press
Linford Christie was given a two-year suspension by track and field's governing body for testing positive for the banned steroid nandrolone.

LONDON — Linford Christie, the 1992 Olympic 100-meter champion, may have run out of options to go to the Sydney Olympics as a coach.

The IAAF officially branded the Barcelona Olympics sprint champion a drug cheater and banned him for two years. Christie, now retired, tested positive for the banned steroid nandrolone while running for fun 18 months ago.

He has denied knowingly taking any banned substances and was cleared by UK Athletics, but the IAAF arbitration panel said the federation was wrong to find him not guilty.

Now 40, Christie no longer competes, but the ban could hamper his new role as a coach in Sydney. The British Olympic Association likely will stick to its hard line on drug cheaters and refuse him a credential for the games.

He already has lost one Olympic job. Reacting to Monday's IAAF ruling, the BBC kicked Christie off its commentary team for Sydney and

"The arbitration panel believes that UK Athletics misdirected itself and reached an erroneous conclusion when clearing these athletes," an IAAF statement said.

The panel imposed two-year suspensions starting on the dates they were tested: Cadogan on Nov. 28, 1998; Walker on Dec. 1, 1998; and Christie on Feb. 13, 1999.

A fourth British athlete to test positive for nandrolone, 400-meter runner Mark Richardson, faces an arbitration hearing before next month's Olympics. Although he faces suspension, the IAAF has allowed him to compete in the meantime.

For Christie, the ruling is a big blow to his reputation.

The high point of the muscular sprinter's career was winning the 100-meter gold medal at the Barcelona Olympics at a time when he regularly beat the top Americans. He also won the 1993 World Championships 100 and, when he retired at age 37, the young athletes he started coaching used to jokingly call him the world's fastest grandfather.

Christie, in Australia preparing some of his athletes for the games, maintained his innocence. "I have always made it clear that I have no confidence in the IAAF's arbitration process and this simply reaffirms this," he said in a statement released through his agents. "I am very disappointed that the tribunal did not feel able to accept the new scientific evidence presented to them.

"I have never intentionally taken any banned substance and the IAAF have not suggested otherwise.

"The important thing to me is that my athletes, family, friends and the public know that I am innocent of any wrongdoing," Christie said. "My priority now is the same as it has been all year, which is to prepare my athletes for what should be a successful Olympic Games."

The IAAF said it had no power to suspend him as a coach. UK Athletics, having cleared him in the first place, said it was happy to see him coaching members of the British team, including European 100-meter champion Darren Campbell and 400-meter runners Jamie Baulch and Katherine Merry.

But the British Olympic Association, which prides itself on taking a hard line on drugs, hands out Olympic credentials, and Monday's IAAF ruling might convince the BOA not to give one to Christie.

"The BOA is currently seeking clarification from the relevant authorities on Mr. Christie's ability to coach at facilities in Australia," the BOA said in a statement.

Karolyi gets his way with gymnastics team

The venerable coach of the U.S. Olympic team said he is happy with the mix of young and old on his squad.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

Michael Dwyer/Associated Press
Members of the U.S. Olympic women's gymnastics team smile during ceremonies at the end of the 2000 U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Trials, Sunday.

BOSTON — As usual, Bela Karolyi got what he wanted. He has the blend of young and old he was looking for when the Magnificent Seven came out of retirement one by one. He has the calm leadership of experience and the eagerness of youth.

Most of all, he has a team he thinks can put the United States back on the medals podium.

"I believe now we are medal contenders," Karolyi said Sunday night after the Olympic team was selected.

"We have a proud, strong, very athletic team that can perform up to those standards. If they perform to their potential, they can win a medal."

Lured out of retirement in November to revive a faltering program, Karolyi caused a firestorm of controversy with new selection procedures that essentially allowed him to handpick the team. Weighted scores from trials (60 percent) and last month's U.S. Gymnastics Championships (40 percent) were combined, but Karolyi and his selection committee weren't bound by them.

They could pick whoever they wanted, regardless of where the gymnast finished.

But when the dust cleared at the end, no one in the arena could disagree with the choices. Elise Ray, Amy Chow, Kristen Maloney, Morgan White and Jamie Dantzscher — the first five finishers — were all on the team.

Dominique Dawes finished seventh behind Vanessa Atler, but her selection was a no-brainer. Though the 23-year-old only began training seriously on May 1, she made the most progress of anyone during the trials process. Twelfth after the first night at nationals, she climbed all the way to fifth in Sunday night's competition with a series of crisp, clean, elegant routines.

Atler, on the other hand, wilted under the pressure. She botched every one of her routines Sunday night, looking up at the roof at one point as if to say, "What is going on here?"

Though Karolyi made no secret that Atler was his favorite — her bubbly personality reminds him of Mary Lou Retton — he knew she didn't belong on the team.

"She has a unique talent, but talent alone is not enough," he said. "And when you weighed the sturdiness she should have versus the athletic performance she gave, it wasn't convincing."

Even Atler agreed.

"I almost had a sense of relief because deep down I knew I shouldn't be going. I knew I wasn't ready," she said. "It's just not my day. Not my time."

The other glaring omission was Shannon Miller, who withdrew after jamming her knees on her opening vault Sunday night. America's most decorated gymnast held out hope Karolyi would leave a spot for her, but she'd given him no reason to do so.

Still limited by a hairline crack in her right leg, she competed in only one event at nationals before withdrawing. She competed in all four events Friday night, but aside from a 9.712 on uneven bars, her performance wasn't spectacular.

"Considering her physical status, it's hard to consider her ready for the full speed and full pressure of the Olympics," Karolyi said.

Besides, he already has two holdovers from 1996 in Chow and Dawes. With the steely nerves and focus that come only from experience, the two can be the calming force when the young ones' butterflies start flying.

And like Ray and Maloney, Chow performs some of the toughest skills around. Only she does them so effortlessly she makes them look like something out of ninth-grade gym class.

Tampa Bay's Bryan Rekar arrested

CHICAGO (AP) — Tampa Bay pitcher Bryan Rekar was arrested early Sunday on a misdemeanor charge of domestic battery.

Rekar, 28, was with the team Monday night at Comiskey Park as the Devil Rays completed a four-game series against the Chicago White Sox and remained scheduled to start Wednesday at Minnesota. He declined comment.

Rekar was arrested at the Devil Rays' downtown hotel at 1:05 a.m. CDT

Sunday and held at a Chicago police station. He was released after a bond court appearance, according to the St. Petersburg Times.

The altercation apparently took place in Rekar's hotel room and involved his wife, Jamie. The newspaper reported Jamie Rekar was bleeding from the nose and had facial swelling but refused medical attention. She did not want to sign a complaint, the newspaper said.

Because of the signs of physical abuse, the arresting officer is required to proceed with the charges.

Larry Walker could be out for the year

■ The Colorado slugger's ailing elbow puts him on the disabled list for the second time this season.

By Aaron J. Lopez
Associated Press

DENVER — Larry Walker barely had time to dry himself off when he received the all-too-familiar news. He was returning to the disabled list and could possibly miss the remainder of the season.

The Colorado Rockies placed the two-time defending NL batting champion on the 15-day DL on Monday, hoping the time off will help Walker's chronically ailing right elbow.

Walker was in the hot tub before Colorado's game against the Atlanta Braves when he was summoned by manager Buddy Bell. He did not take the news well.

"I came to the ballpark with my game face on, ready to play and now I'm on the DL," Walker said. "I've gone from one extreme to the complete opposite. I'm still dumbfounded by it."

Walker was hitting .309 with nine homers and 51 RBIs in 88 games. He also was second in the NL with 11 outfield assists.

The trip to the disabled list was the second for Walker this season and the sixth since 1996. He has played in more than 140 games just twice in 11 full seasons.

"I'm quite aware of the reputation that follows me as far as getting hurt," Walker said. "If I could shake it and never get hurt, I'd do anything for it. Unfortunately, I'm not Cal Ripken. I'm more like Jose Canseco, I guess."

Walker went on the disabled list in May after team doctors diagnosed the onset of a stress fracture in his elbow.

He was cleared to play four weeks later, but his productivity has dropped off from recent years.

"I'm not playing up to my capability. I know that," he said. "I'm aware of the season I'm having. You don't have to tell me. You don't have to write it down all the time. It's been real frustrating for me trying to find out what's wrong and how to get better."

Walker, in the first year of a six-year, $75 million contract, said the pain in his elbow has neither increased nor diminished. Despite his desire to play through his struggles, Bell said he did not want Walker to risk further damage to his elbow.

"I'd like to see him go into the winter with no health issues," Bell said. "It seems like he's got to rehab something every winter."

A's knuckled under by Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Knuckleballer Steve Sparks won his fourth straight start as Detroit beat the Oakland Athletics, 3-1, Monday night, the Tigers' sixth victory in their last seven games.

The Tigers won three of four from Oakland to move within five games of the A's in the AL wildcard race.

Sparks (4-2) allowed an unearned run on four hits with a season-high seven strikeouts and no walks in 6 2-3 innings.

Sparks, who pitched his first career shutout in his last start Aug. 15 at Seattle, has not allowed an earned run in his last 20 2-3 innings.

Yankees 12, Rangers 3

NEW YORK — Rangers shortstop Royce Clayton's error opened the way for six unearned runs in the third inning and Jorge Posada drove in four runs as the New York Yankees beat Texas, 12-3, Monday.

Orlando Hernandez (9-10) was the beneficiary of the big inning and won his first decision since beating the Mets on July 7.

Hernandez allowed three runs on six hits in seven innings.

Brian Sikorski (1-1), who made his major league debut last Wednesday with a victory over the Yankees, was charged with nine runs — three of them earned — on nine hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Sikorski also had a throwing error before Clayton's in the six-run third inning.

Orioles 2, Royals 1

BALTIMORE — Mike Mussina allowed one unearned run in seven innings to win for just the second time in eight starts, and the Baltimore Orioles beat Kansas City, 2-1, Monday night for a split of the four-game series.

Brook Fordyce singled in a run and scored one for the Orioles, who managed only five runs in the series. Baltimore has won its last two games by identical scores.

Mussina (8-13) allowed six hits, striking out six and walking one. He had lost three straight starts and had been 1-6 since July 7.

Just 10 days earlier, the right-hander allowed seven runs and 11 hits in a loss to the Royals. In his previous start, Mussina left after four shaky innings because of the flu. But on this night, he displayed the form that enabled him to go 18-7 last year.

Reds 7, Phillies 4

CINCINNATI — Dmitri Young hit an upper-deck grand slam and Barry Larkin got his 2,000th hit in the same inning Monday night as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4.

Young's first career slam highlighted a six-run third inning off Randy Wolf (9-7) that sent the Reds to only their second victory in seven games. Chris Stynes had four hits and scored twice.

Tomas Perez had three doubles and drove in three runs for the Phillies, who lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Cincinnati had two franchise moments as it battled around in the third for a 7-1 lead. Larkin, the team captain, lined a run-scoring double to left for his 2,000th hit, then stood at second and waved as the crowd of 21,558 gave a standing ovation and chanted his first name.

Red Sox 7, Angels 6

BOSTON — Brian Daubach hit a two-run homer in the ninth to send the game into extra innings and then won it in the 11th with a two-run single as the Boston Red Sox beat the Anaheim Angels, 7-6, Monday night.

Anaheim took a 6-5 lead in the top of the 11th on Adam Kennedy's squeeze bunt, but Red Sox loaded the bases with no outs in the bottom half, and Shigetoshi Hasegawa got Jason Varitek to ground into a second-to-catcher-to-first double play.

Daubach then reached out and blooped the ball to left. Orlando Palmiero ran in but couldn't catch it, and Troy O'Leary and Manny Alexander scored to give Boston the victory.

Derek Lowe (4-4) won despite allowing a run for the first time in 10 appearances. Hasegawa (8-3), who hadn't allowed a run in his previous 23 innings, was the loser.

Astros 5, Cubs 4

HOUSTON — Scott Elarton won his fifth straight decision and reliever Joe Slusarski escaped a bases-loaded jam in the ninth inning Monday night to give the Houston Astros a 5-4 win over the Chicago Cubs.

Sammy Sosa hit his major league-leading 43rd home run for the Cubs, connecting for the fifth time in four games. Chicago lost its season-high sixth in a row.

Elarton (14-4) allowed three runs and eight hits in eight innings and left with a 5-3 lead.

Octavio Dotel took over to start the ninth and walked the bases loaded with no outs. Slusarski got Ricky Gutierrez to ground into a double play, with one run scoring, and retired Mark Grace on a fly ball to earn his second save.

Bonds may benefit from judges ruling

■ Barry Bonds could save millions from a ruling that allows a prenuptial to stand.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a ruling that may save Barry Bonds millions of dollars, the California Supreme Court ruled Monday that prenuptial agreements are valid even if only one party had a lawyer.

The justices unanimously reversed a lower court's decision last year that made vulnerable thousands of existing prenuptial agreements in California.

Bonds' wife-to-be, Sun, had no lawyer when she signed the prenuptial agreement on the eve of their 1988 Las Vegas wedding. In 1999, a state appeals court ruled that it was unlikely a trial court could find the agreement valid.

At the time the agreement was signed, Bonds was earning $106,000 a year for the Pittsburgh Pirates. When the couple split up after six years of marriage, the outfielder was making $8 million a year with the San Francisco Giants.

The agreement said future earnings would be kept separate, and it barred claims to community property upon divorce. Bonds' wife was to receive $10,000 per month in child support for each of their two children, and she was given $10,000 per month in spousal support ending in 1998.

Without a prenuptial agreement, she would be entitled to half his earnings under California's community property law.

The high court's ruling "affirms existing law and soundly rejects the effort of the Court of Appeals to legislate," said Bonds' lawyer, Robert J. Nachshin.

The ex-wife's lawyer, Paige Leslie Wickland, called it a "bad ruling."

"My fear is, this will mean that every premarital agreement is enforceable," she said. "A lot of them are unfairly entered into, like this one was."

On their way to the airport for their scheduled Las Vegas wedding, the Bonds and his bride-to-be stopped in his lawyer's office to sign a prenuptial agreement. With the player was Bonds' financial adviser and two lawyers. The bride had only a friend from Sweden.

Sun Bonds was coerced into signing, her lawyer said, because the agreement was presented to her only one day before the wedding, compounding the pressure to sign.

"I'm going to throw the ball to whoever is open," said Mullen. "Last year things just worked out with Kevin and me but that may not be it this year."

Mullen has been the one in charge of deciding who receives the ball since he was installed as the head quarterback last spring, despite not playing during the spring game. Mullen was forced to sit out after injuring his shoulder while watching Kyle McCann and Jon Beutjer take the snaps last April.

Both receivers say they have no preference as to who the starting quarterback is, but both agree that Mullen is in top form.

"Scottie's really been snapping the ball," said Hill. "His arm is stronger than ever."

Mullen concurred with the two, saying there were no adverse

"I'm not taking anything for granted," said Mullen. "I'm working harder than I ever had, and I'm glad to have good receivers all around me."

A healthy Mullen, a Hill that can play on the same level he was his freshman year and a Kasper that can build on a solid 1999 season will give the Hawkeyes' offense the ability to score some points.

Kaeding's confidence cracked only slightly when his debut at Arrowhead Stadium, home of the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs, was mentioned.

British Open and Amateur. Jones never turned professional.

Hogan turned in what is generally regarded as the greatest single-season feat in golf in 1953. He was 41, his legs still weak from a car accident four years earlier that nearly killed him, when he won five of the six tournaments he played.

He won the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open, the only majors he entered. Hogan couldn't play the PGA Championship that year because it was held the same week as British Open qualifying, and Hogan's legs could not have carried him for over 200 holes of the match-play format.

"Ben Hogan ... he has won so many tournaments it's scary — especially after the car accident, to come back and play as well as he did," Woods said. "He was incredible. He played at a level that not too many players could ever attain."

History will determine that, because Woods is just getting warmed up.

"I remember Hogan in his heyday," said Peter Thomson, a five-time British Open champion. "He was equally awesome, very nearly unbeatable. The two compare favorably."

Only nine times since 1953 has a player gone to the PGA Championship with a chance to win three majors in one year. The closest anyone came was Watson, who tied for sixth in 1977. From the first round, it was clear that Woods is in a class by himself.

former All-Star whose game has deteriorated the past two seasons while his weight has ballooned.

If the trade goes through, the Sonics would then sign free agent forward Maurice Taylor for the midlevel salary cap exception of $2.5 million — allowing the Sonics to upgrade their front line by being able to bring Horace Grant off the bench to back up Ewing and/or Taylor.

Ewing, 38, is entering the final year of a four-year, $60 million contract but wants to play two more years after the upcoming season. His production has slumped the past two seasons as he has battled injuries.

He still has plenty of talent left, however, and would give the Sonics a center who could allow them to better compete in a conference loaded with talented big men.

Recently, Ewing reportedly gave the Knicks a list of eight teams to which he would accept a trade. He is one of just a handful of NBA players with no-trade clauses in their contracts.

Rice, who until recently was one of the most feared shooters in the league, has remained the most high-profile unsigned free agent throughout the month of August. A three-time All-Star who averaged at least 21.1 points per game for five straight seasons beginning in 1993-94, he was never comfortable with the Lakers being the third option on offense behind Shaquille O'Neal and Kobe Bryant.

With the Lakers needing rebounding help following the release of power forward A.C. Green, it would make sense for them to exchange Rice for Laettner, who would take Green's place, and Dudley would be the backup to O'Neal.

Davenport added two more runs in the fifth, while starter Dan O'Donnell — 10-0 in All-Star play — went the distance, throwing a two-hitter and striking out seven. Michael Mitchell had a hit and scored three runs.

"I thought it was going to hit the fence when it first went off the bat, because I usually don't hit line drives' all that far," said Vandervelde, who failed to hit a homer in seven regional tournament games. "But yeah, I'm glad it went anyway."

Dropping to 0-2, following Sunday's 3-0 loss to Bellaire, Goffstown has managed just three hits in the Series.

"These are the best pitchers in the country and we're having a hard time with the mixing (of pitches)," Goffstown manager Frank Szumiesz said. "We've just got to refocus."

Earlier in the day, Toronto's six-run, sixth-inning rally — capped by Julian Olivera's two-out, three-run homer — fell one run short against Tokyo.

Daiki Ichimura, the second reliever of the inning, got Ozzie Diaz to pop out to second baseman Yuusaku Nakanishi to end the game.

Despite the loss, Toronto manager David Trimble was bolstered by the way his team didn't give up.

"Let me put it this way. We'd love to have a shot at Japan again in the playoff game," Trimble said, referring to Thursday's International Pool final.

Tokyo, coming off Sunday's 10-0 win over Maracaibo, has all but mathematically clinched a spot in the pool final.

Loaded Badgers eager to live life after Dayne

■ Ron Dayne's departure to the NFL means other Wisconsin weapons will be exposed more.

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

MIDDLETON, Wis. — Ron Dayne may be gone, but he left behind a Wisconsin program full of players who can't wait to create memories of their own.

Dayne became college football's leading career rusher in four punishing seasons of straight-ahead, no-nonsense football. He left the school last season after winning the Heisman Trophy and becoming the signature image of Wisconsin's football renaissance while leading the Badgers to back-to-back Rose Bowl victories.

But his departure to the New York Giants doesn't leave a void. On the contrary, the fruits of the notoriety and acclaim Dayne brought to Wisconsin can be seen on the Badgers' current roster, which is filled with a number of talented players who might not have been interested in Wisconsin without Dayne's image in their heads.

"Ron is more responsible than he knows for where we are today," offensive coordinator Brian White said. "Guys came to this school because they knew Ron and what kind of a guy he was. We're in a position right now to be every bit as good as we were last year, and that's all due to Ron."

Last year, Wisconsin went 10-2 and won the Big Ten title outright. The Badgers enter the current season with a No. 4 ranking, the highest preseason mark in school history.

And with good reason. Besides Dayne, the Badgers' most significant graduation losses were offensive tackles Chris McIntosh and Mark Tauscher and starting linebackers Chris Ghidorzi and Donnel Thompson. Starting linebacker Roger Knight returns. Essentially everyone else is back from the '99 team that ran roughshod over the Big Ten, leading the league in both total offense and scoring defense. The Badgers haven't lost since a Sept. 25 defeat by Michigan.

"We've got talent, and that's why we're out here working extra hard," said coach Barry Alvarez, who is putting his team through training camp at a Catholic school in suburban Middleton.

"We don't have to prove we can win without Ron. We have to prove we can win with the players who are here, because this is a very talented group."

The talent starts on offense, where sophomore quarterback Brooks Bollinger will look to build on the momentum of his remarkable freshman season. Stepping in as a starter midway through the year, Bollinger didn't lose a game while showing the poise and aggressiveness of a veteran.

Bollinger is joined in the backfield by tailback Michael Bennett, an Olympic-class sprinter who is almost certainly the Big Ten's fastest football player. He'll never be the unforgiving ground-gainer Dayne was, but Bennett is a capable runner and a better receiver than his famous predecessor.

"It's not like I can fill Ron's shoes, because I can't," he said. "That would be ridiculous. I'm just trying to be me and take a role on this team, instead of being the main guy on the team."

Bennett said his favorite part of the job is running behind Wisconsin's offensive line, which is fast earning a reputation for dominance once held only by Nebraska and a few other schools. McIntosh and Tauscher are gone, but center Casey Rabach and both starting guards return.

Receivers Chris Chambers and Nick Davis are back, as well as kicker Vitaly Pisetsky, a finalist for last year's Lou Groza Award who recently took his American citizenship test.

Boys' participation in softball questioned

■ A team with five boys won the Little League Softball World Series via a forfeit in the title game.

By James Prichard
Associated Press

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Now that an Arizona team with five boys has won a Little League Softball World Series title, expect changes to be made before the 2001 tournament.

The organization's board of directors will meet this week in Williamsport, Pa., where a major topic of discussion will be how the organization can prevent a recurrence of the controversy that swirled around this year's event.

No action is expected to be taken until the board's annual meeting in November, Lance Van Auken, a Little League spokesman, said Monday.

"I don't think there's any thought that a solution will come out of this week's meeting," which is expected to take place Thursday, Van Auken said.

The Little League Baseball World Series is taking place in Williamsport this week.

Three games were forfeited during the weeklong softball series that concluded Saturday, when an all-girls team from the Philippines forfeited the title game for 14- to 16-year-olds to the team from Eloy, Ariz.

The Arizona team, which lost to the Philippines 3-2 on Aug. 15, forced what would have been the deciding game in the double-elimination tournament by beating the Filipino squad 4-3 earlier Aug. 19.

Umpires interrupted Aug. 19 game after the second inning because of constant jeering by some of the 2,500 spectators. An announcement was made asking fans to be good sports.

An hour after that game, just prior to the scheduled start of the title contest, Philippines coach Damaso Sancon decided to forfeit, explaining that three of his softball team, which lacked enough female participants.

Little League created what was intended to be an all-girls softball division in 1974, the same year it lost a New Jersey lawsuit forcing it to allow girls to play baseball. The organization's official stance is that it would prefer for the softball division to be limited to girls.

But after losing lawsuits in California and Vermont filed by boys demanding to play softball, Little League opened its baseball and softball divisions to both sexes.

Of the approximately 400,000 youngsters who play Little League softball, there are 2.5 boys for every 1,000 girls, the organization said. This was the first year the Softball World Series had any teams with boys.

Besides the team from Eloy, a Canadian team in the division open to players ages 16-18 also included a boy. A team from Belgium forfeited to the Canadian team on Wednesday, with the Belgium coach explaining that he was watching out for the safety of his girls.

The gender issue needs to be settled before next year's tournament, otherwise girls may start losing interest in the program, Van Auken said.

"Our position is that providing an athletic program like softball specifically for girls is a very valuable thing for girls," he said. "When boys begin playing it, it upsets the competitive balance of things. The end result could be far fewer girls playing competitive softball."

Van Auken said the Little League board of directors will review what happened and, in the months before the November meeting, mull over their possible options.

Leaf should s

By Mark Long
Associated Press

It looks like Ryan Leaf will be a starting quarterback again.

Incumbent Jim Harbaugh all but declared San Diego's competition over after Leaf took the first snaps in practice Monday.

"I think it's probably Ryan who's the starting quarterback," Harbaugh said. "He took the first snaps today, he took the start last game. He's earned it, though. Everybody's had a shot at it, and he's taken his opportunities and played real well."

Coach Mike Riley is holding back on the decision — for now.

Titans

Tennessee got a scare when All-Pro defensive end Jevon Kearse twisted his right ankle at practice and limped to the sidelines. The NFL Defensive Rookie of the Year twisted his ankle at the end of a running play.

Coach Jeff Fisher said Kearse should be fine after putting ice on his ankle to reduce swelling.

"He's too good an athlete to be hurt," said Fisher, noting Kearse's value to the team.

Cardinals

Quarterback Jake Plummer sat out Monday's practice with a sore shoulder. However, offensive coordinator Marc Trestman said the problem was "nothing serious," just slight soreness from overuse.

Plummer has completed 25 of 48 passes for 340 yards in the preseason. He has thrown for one touchdown and been intercepted once.

The Cardinals already have lost starting receiver Rob Moore, cornerback Coby Rhinehart and defensive back-special teams player J.J. McCleskey to season-ending

Overnight ratings for PGA final round best in history

■ Tiger's thrilling tie-breaker proved to be good TV for the 10 million who watched the PGA Championships.

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tiger Woods keeps winning, and so do the networks that televise golf's majors.

His duel for the ages with Bob May at the PGA Championship drew the event's highest preliminary TV ratings on record, bolstering a trend of unprecedented audiences for Woods' unprecedented triumphs.

CBS Sports' coverage of Sunday's final round, when Woods finally put away May in a three-hole playoff, got a big-market overnight rating of 10.0 with a 23 share.

That means about 10 million homes tuned in, and 23 percent of TVs that were on during the 12:30-6:45 p.m. EDT broadcast were tuned to CBS.

The rating is 30 percent higher than the 7.7 overnight that CBS got last year at the PGA, when Woods beat Spanish sensation Sergio Garcia by a stroke.

That 1999 overnight rating was the previous best for the final round of a PGA Championship since at least 1986. CBS's overnight records don't go back beyond that year.

Sunday's telecast peaked, naturally, during the playoff, pulling in a 17.6 overnight with a 33 share from 6-6:30 p.m.

"People who never, ever watch golf — wives and young kids and daughters who never watch golf — are tuning in to watch Woods," CBS Sports president Sean McManus said Monday. "I don't see it leveling off for a long time."

May, a 31-year-old journeyman seeking his first career PGA Tour victory, led Woods by as many as two strokes early in Sunday's round, and then matched Woods stroke-for-stroke down the stretch.

"Once in a while you get that kind of story," McManus said. "You couldn't have scripted it better. For Tiger to be behind a guy nobody's ever heard of, at a major."

The victory was Woods' latest full of "firsts."

He's the first player to win consecutive PGA Championships since 1937, and the first to win three majors in a year since 1953. Woods also became the first player to own the scoring record in relation to par at all four major championships (he shares the PGA mark of 18 under with the unheralded May, of course).

When Woods won the U.S. Open by a record 15 strokes in June, NBC's telecast drew the highest Sunday rating for the tournament since 1981. His victory a month later at the British Open — by eight strokes to complete his career Grand Slam at 24, the youngest player to do so — helped ABC pull in that tournament's biggest ratings for a Sunday.

The Sunday overnights for each of those were bettered by the PGA, which was 33 percent higher than the British Open and 14 percent higher than the U.S. Open.

"One of the best things about this summer was that all three networks that have a major investment in major golf had their moments," McManus said. "Woods has been very magnanimous about spreading around the wealth to NBC, ABC and CBS."

When Woods won his first major title by a record 12 strokes at the 1997 Masters, CBS got a record 14.1 national rating.

Each rating point represents 1 percent of the nation's estimated 100.8 million TV households, and the overnight ratings for the PGA Championship were based on the country's 47 largest TV markets. National ratings will be released later in the week.

Gophers not faze

■ Coming off its best season in 32 years, it is business as usual in Minnesota.

By Jason Wolf
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — They had their best season in 32 years and finished last year ranked No. 17 in the Associated Press poll, but Minnesota Golden Gophers coach Glen Mason is perfectly satisfied that his team isn't one of the seven Big Ten teams ranked in the preseason top 25.

"Let's face it. You know how that goes. You sit down and start saying, 'Who's going to be good?' You name the household names," Mason said. "I'd sure rather be one of those that isn't ranked at the beginning and ranked at the end than one of those teams that's ranked at the beginning and not ranked at the end."

The Gophers were left out of the preseason rankings for good reason: last season's offensive stars — running back Thomas Hamner and quarterback Billy Cockerham, who rushed for a combined 20 touchdowns and Agassi, who edged Todd Martin in a five-set final last year, was seeded No. 1 at America's premier tennis tournament for only the second time in his career. He was the top seed in 1995 when he lost the title match to Pete Sampras, and he was unseeded when he won the U.S. Open in 1994.

Bengals

Cincinnati cut long-time placekicker Doug Pelfrey after he was beaten out by rookie Neil Rackers. The most accurate kicker in Bengals history, Pelfrey was the second-leading scorer for the franchise.

But he expected to lose his job, partly because of economics, partly because of age, partly because Rackers out-kicked him in the preseason.

He went up to Rackers and told the rookie he had won the job.

"I think Doug was eager to get a new start somewhere," Rackers said. "He was upbeat on the outside, but that's the way he always is."

Ravens

Tony Siragusa was upbeat after joining Baltimore, ending a four-week holdout. The 33-year-old defensive tackle had one year, at $1.5 million, left on the four-year contract he signed before the 1997 season. The Ravens added two years to the deal.

"I'm happy. I got what I wanted," said Siragusa, who missed all of training camp. "I just wish it would have been done earlier. But I decided to take a stand and stand up for what I believe."

He said he expects to play in the Sept. 3 opener at Pittsburgh.

"He's a valued member of what we're doing," coach Brian Billick said. "Obviously he's got an uphill battle in terms of getting himself in shape in quick order, but he's a veteran."

Siragusa played in 14 games last year on a unit that ranked second in the NFL.

Lions

Quarterback Mike Tomczak was placed on injured reserve, three days after the 16-year veteran broke his leg in an exhibition loss to Oakland.

He was substituting for Charlie Batch, Detroit's top quarterback, who recently resumed practice after recovering from a broken bone in his right knee but is being held out of games.

Tomczak was 6-of-12 for 37 yards before he was knocked down by Oakland linebacker Greg Biekert and stayed on the ground, curled up in pain and grasping his shin.

Cowboys

Dallas cornerback Kevin Smith, who left training camp to consider retirement, likely won't return to the team, his agent said. But a final decision on retirement is not imminent as Smith "will take his time," agent Steve Zucker said.

The nine-year veteran left the Cowboys two weeks ago because of a congenital degenerative disc in his lower back. He may be put on the reserved/retired list soon, Cowboys Vice President Stephen Jones said. But Smith also has an offer to remain with the team in another capacity.

Gophers not fazed by expectations

Coming off its best season in 32 years, it is business as usual in Minnesota.

By Jason Wolf
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — They had their best season in 32 years and finished last year ranked No. 17 in the Associated Press poll, but Minnesota Golden Gophers coach Glen Mason is perfectly satisfied that his team isn't one of the seven Big Ten teams ranked in the preseason top 25.

"Let's face it. You know how that goes. You sit down and start saying, 'Who's going to be good?' You name the household names," Mason said. "I'd sure rather be one of those that isn't ranked at the beginning and ranked at the end than one of those teams that's ranked at the beginning and not ranked at the end."

The Gophers were left out of the preseason rankings for good reason: last season's offensive stars — running back Thomas Hamner and quarterback Billy Cockerham, who rushed for a combined 20 touchdowns and

2,491 yards — are in the NFL.

In their place are three quarterbacks who have never played a down of major college football and a heralded freshman running back who won't be available until at least the season's third game.

Mason said this year's team looks better than the 1999 version that went 8-4 and reached a bowl game for the first time in 13 years. That doesn't mean, he cautioned, that fans should expect a 9-2 or 10-1 finish.

"We could very easily be an improved football team and not have as good a record," he said.

Asad Abdul-Khaliq enters the season as the starting quarterback. The 20-year-old freshman played a year at a prep school after high school and said he's been waiting his whole life for this opportunity.

"It was all kind of planned out" when he chose to attend Minnesota, he said. "There's a lot of pressure on me right now (but) I knew it was coming."

Abdul-Khaliq is a mobile passer with a strong arm. He doesn't yet have Cockerham's scrambling ability, but Mason said he's comfortable handing the offensive controls to the rookie.

"He seems like a pretty cool customer. He has a lot of ability," Mason said. "I have a lot of confidence in Asad Abdul-Khaliq, and more importantly, our players have a lot of confidence in him."

If Abdul-Khaliq falters, junior college transfer Travis Cole and freshman Benji Kamrath are listed second and third on the depth chart.

Tailback Thomas Tapeh was highly touted a year ago as Hamner's eventual successor, but he was academically ineligible last season. He's still recovering from foot surgery and is expected back in time for the Sept. 16 game at Baylor or the Sept. 23 conference opener vs. Purdue.

All-America center Ben Hamilton said the backfield — which also consists of Tellis Redmon and Renato Fitzpatrick, who combined to rush for 50 yards last season — will improve as the season goes on.

"We've had a lot of chances to see what they can do," Hamilton said. "We know they're pretty talented."

Agassi, Hingis garner top seeds

Andre Agassi is the top seed at the U.S. Open for just the second time in his career.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., (AP) — Defending men's champion Andre Agassi and 1997 winner Martina Hingis were seeded No. 1 Monday for next week's U.S. Open tennis championships.

Agassi, who edged Todd Martin in a five-set final last year, was seeded No. 1 at America's premier tennis tournament for only the second time in his career. He was the top seed in 1995 when he lost the title match to Pete Sampras, and he was unseeded when he won the U.S. Open in 1994.

Agassi being seeded No. 1 makes it the ninth consecutive year an American has been top-seeded in the men's singles.

Brazil's Gustavo Kuerten, the reigning French Open champion, received the No. 2 seeding, joining Marcelo Rios of Chile (1998) and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina (1975) as the only South Americans to be seeded as high as No. 2 in U.S. Open history.

Hingis, who has played in the last three women's singles finals, is seeded No. 1 for a fourth consecutive year. Lindsay Davenport, the 1998 winner, is seeded No. 2 for a third consecutive year, while Wimbledon champion Venus Williams is seeded No. 3 for a second straight year.

Reigning French Open champion Mary Pierce of France rounds out the seeded fourth, followed by defending women's champion Serena Williams.

Jennifer Capriati is seeded No. 15, her first U.S. Open seeding since 1993.

The seedings were made directly from the Aug. 21 Sanex WTA Tour rankings and ATP Tour Entry System.

Following Agassi and Kuerten in the men's rankings are Norman, Sampras, Yevgeny Kafelnikov, Marat Safin, Thomas Enqvist, Alex Corretja, Lleyton Hewitt, Cedric Pioline, Tim Henman, Juan Carlos Ferrero, Franco Squillari, Nicolas Kiefer, Mark Philippoussis and Nicolas Lapentti.

Monica Seles is seeded sixth in the women's singles, followed by Conchita Martinez and Nathalie Tauziat.

Little League created what was intended to be an all-girls softball division in 1974, the same year it lost a New Jersey lawsuit forcing it to allow girls to play baseball. The organization's official stance is that it would prefer for the softball division to be limited to girls.

But after losing lawsuits in California and Vermont filed by boys demanding to play softball, Little League opened its baseball and softball divisions to both sexes.

Of the approximately 400,000 youngsters who play Little League softball, there are 25 boys for every 1,000 girls, the organization said. This was the first year the Softball World Series had any teams with boys.

Besides the team from Eloy, a Canadian team in the division open to players ages 16-18 also included a boy. A team from Belgium forfeited to the Canadian team on Wednesday, with the Belgium coach explaining that he was watching out for the safety of his girls.

The gender issue needs to be settled before next year's tournament, otherwise girls may start losing interest in the program, Van Auken said.

"Our position is that providing an athletic program like softball specifically for girls is a very valuable thing for girls," he said. "When boys begin playing it, it upsets the competitive balance of things. The end result could be far fewer girls playing competitive softball."

Van Auken said the Little League board of directors will review what happened and, in the months before the November meeting, mull over their possible options.

Wild finish propels Miami over Green Bay

■ Miami's Ben Kelly returns a punt to the Packer 2-yard line in the final minute to set up the winning score.

By Mark Long
Associated Press

MIAMI — Without stepping on the field, Jay Fiedler might have gained ground on Damon Huard in the Miami Dolphins' quarterback competition.

Huard failed to lead the first-team offense to a touchdown for the third straight preseason game, but the Dolphins scored with 25 seconds to play to beat the injury-riddled Green Bay Packers 17-14 on Monday night.

The game featured four fourth-quarter touchdowns and four missed field goals by Miami's Olindo Mare.

Mare, a fourth-year player who set the NFL single-season record with 39 field goals last year, missed from 33, 50, 48 and 51 yards.

Dolphins rookie Ben Kelly returned a punt 73 yards with less than a minute to play, setting up a 2-yard scoring pass from Mike Quinn to Deon Dyer. The Packers questioned the ruling, arguing that Kelly had stepped out of bounds near midfield. Replays were as unclear as Miami's quarterback situation.

Huard played three quarters, completing 16 of 23 passes for 138 yards. But without a touchdown in three games, he seemingly left plenty of room for Fiedler to take over the starting job before the season opener.

Fiedler, who had arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage in his right hip on Aug. 3, returned to practice Saturday and should play significantly in Miami's exhibition finale Friday against New Orleans. His performance could be an important showing in the race to replace Dan Marino, the NFL's career passing leader.

The Dolphins — with as many questions on offense as the Packers have injuries — might have found an answer at running back.

Lamar Smith carried 15 times for 86 yards, giving Miami a second consecutive solid outing. He gained 72 yards on 17 rushes last week against Tampa Bay's stingy defense.

Smith could be relied on heavily early this season, especially with J.J. Johnson facing a four-game suspension for violating the NFL's steroid policy.

After missing his first three field goals, Mare gave Miami (2-1) a 3-0 lead in the second quarter with a 34-yarder.

The Packers (1-2), playing without quarterback Brett Favre and running back Dorsey Levens struggled to move the ball for much of the night.

White, Stensrud make impression on ISU offensive line

■ Lorenzo White is new to ISU and Andy Stensrud is at a new position, but both are No. 1 on the depth chart.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

Lorenzo White and Andy Stensrud have quickly made themselves at home with Iowa State's football team, White at a new school and Stensrud at a new position.

White, a transfer from Blinn Junior College who did not report to camp until Aug. 12, already has earned a spot on the No. 1 offensive line at right guard. Stensrud, a tight end his first three seasons at Iowa State, is listed as the starting right tackle.

"We're really pleased with both of them," coach Dan McCarney said Monday.

White, 6-foot-5 and 363 pounds, had to finish up some academic work at Blinn before he could join the Cyclones. His size alone made him a candidate for playing time. He has backed that up with his performance.

"He's basically had only eight days of camp, but it's no secret that he's got a chance to help this football team," McCarney said. "He's athletic, he's got good feet, he's just a real fine football player and has made a very positive impact on this team. He has earned great respect from all the coaches and the players alike."

Stensrud could not beat out Mike Banks for the starting job at tight end so he asked if he could move to tackle. The 6-foot-7, 290-pounder has been competing with veteran Marcel Howard and has the edge right now, McCarney said.

Another new face, redshirt freshman Bob Montgomery, is the starting left guard. He has held that spot after earning it in spring practice.

"He's tenacious, he's tough, he's got a great work ethic, all the things you look for in an offensive lineman," McCarney said.

The offensive line was a concern last spring because Howard and another veteran, Ben Beaudet, were questionable because of concussion-related problems.

But they were cleared to play and now with the emergence of White, Stensrud and Montgomery, the picture looks much brighter.

"Most people were thinking it was probably going to be a weakness," McCarney said. "I feel if they continue to improve, it has a chance to be a real strength on our football team this year."

McCarney said the two most highly touted freshmen in his latest recruiting class, linebacker Tyson Smith and running back Jamaine Billups, both will play this fall.

Smith is behind Derrick Williams and former basketball star Stevie Johnson at strongside linebacker but will be a regular on special teams. Billups, who is behind three other running backs on the depth chart, also will see action on special teams.

Barring injuries, the only other true freshman with a chance of playing is kicker Tony Yelk. He is locked in a tight battle with last year's regular, Mike McKnight, for the placekicking job.

"Neither one has just taken the job and run with it and shown he's a clear-cut better performer than the other," McCarney said. "Mike has improved, but Tony Yelk is a fine kicker, too. We like the competition going on there."
