Fayetteville, after an apparent murder-suicide Monday, the first day of the fall semester. The head of the university's comparative literature program, John Locke, 67, and graduate student James Kelly of Marianna, Ark., were shot in Locke's office at the university.

Kelly earned his B.A. at Grinnell College in 1984. He had been taking courses in a doctoral program at Arkansas for 10 years and had a history of enrolling in comparative literature courses and then dropping them. Locke was Kelly's faculty adviser, according to the University of Arkansas Web site. Sonia Feder-Lewis, now an associate professor of writing and humanities at St. Mary's University of Minnesota, graduated with Kelly from Grinnell. "Oh my Lord, he's the one," she said after hearing that Kelly was involved in the shooting she'd been following in the news. Feder-Lewis said she especially concentrates on news about universities around the country. This news item really caught her eye, partially because she is a professor herself, she said. "You sometimes think of those

Weinberg ducks the curves, catches a dream

After the show, Weinberg went to apologize to Springsteen, who accepted his apology. "Bruce told me when you're on stage, and in life, you gotta watch out for the curves," Weinberg said. "I have never forgotten that line."

It turns out Weinberg's embarrassing moment was well-worth it. The woman he was trying to impress, Becky, became his wife, and the two have been married for 21 years and have two children.

UI sophomore Benjamin Miller said he enjoyed that "heart-touching" story as well as Weinberg's anecdote about how he joined the E-Street Band — through a want-ad in the classifieds in 1974.

"He seems like a pretty straight guy on the 'Conan' show, but tonight he was really personal," Miller said. "It was a good lecture."

The lecture also showed how Weinberg dealt with the shock of Springsteen breaking from the E-Street Band in 1989. No longer did Weinberg want to be a drummer. Instead, he finished a bachelor's degree at Seton Hall University and went to work in the record industry.

Vilsack explains budget shortfalls to UI

The governor answers students' questions about the UI funding at a meeting in the IMU.
 By Erica Driskell
 The Daily Iowan

Gov. Tom Vilsack talked with UI students about funding the UI, recruiting teachers to Iowa and keeping young people involved at a town meeting in the IMU Terrace Room Monday morning.

UI Student Government President Andy Stoll, a UI junior, said that while he understands the necessity of funding community colleges and primary and secondary schools, under-funding the UI has led to delays in campus improvements and hindered the quality of education.

UI officials believed that their budget requests were necessary in order to keep up with other U.S. universities, Stoll said. The lack of full funding put delays on renovations of such buildings as Phillips Hall and Shambaugh Auditorium and forces bigger classroom sizes, Stoll said.

"Though it's not a cut, and doesn't sound as evil, the services for UI are still hindered," he said. Primary and secondary schools received $3,400 per student and community colleges received $2,500, while the state's public universities each received $11,000 per student, Vilsack said. The governor also reminded

Although UI under-funding led to a 2 percent tuition increase this year, Vilsack said, Iowa universities still received three to five times more money than the state's primary- and secondary-education schools and community colleges in Iowa. "Community colleges and K through 12 schools suffer because of past giving to universities," he said. "There are other aspects of the community college that have never even been fully funded."

Video documents SAS sit-in

■ The group will use scenes from the Jessup Hall protest to try to educate students about sweatshop labor.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

Members of the UI Students Against Sweatshops are promoting a video containing footage from their controversial six-day sit-in of Jessup Hall last April in hopes of educating people about their fight against sweatshop labor.

SAS members are inviting students to attend a viewing of the 40-minute video at the group's weekly meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the IMU North-western Room.

"(The video) will educate people about the issue we're fighting for with workers around the world, where we go from here and what this means in a broader picture," said Josh Buck, a UI senior and SAS member who shot and edited the week-long protest.

The sit-in, which was held outside President Mary Sue Coleman's office, ended with the arrest of five SAS members. The group has since been raising funds to assist the five with legal fees.

SAS made three demands of the UI during the sit-in: that it join the Worker Rights Consortium, withdraw from the Fair Labor Association, and adopt a code of conduct to be closely monitored by the WRC and enforced by the UI.

The demonstration was the organization's "last option" in its protest against the use of sweatshop labor for Hawkeye apparel, Buck said.

"Video is a wonderful way to really get a message out and to appeal to a wide variety of people," he said. "It was the perfect opportunity to document activists on campus."

Buck began taping the action on the day the sit-in begin and continued his work throughout the week. The footage includes scenes from the protest and members being removed from Jessup Hall by UI Public Safety officers.

UI junior Sonja Shmidheiser said she is not planning to attend the meeting but feels that the issue of sweatshops is worth fighting for.

"I think it's nice to see people involved with stuff like this," she said. "But I think people would relate to it better if it was an issue that touched home more."

UI junior Joe Kelly was less enthusiastic about the group and its controversial issue.

"I'm not against the cause or anything," he said. "But it's been going on for a long time, and it doesn't seem like they're getting anywhere or will get anywhere."

City to push ahead with transit center

■ The City Council will discuss costs and bids for the new facility and discuss land development at the airport.

By Megan Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City City Council will discuss the city's upcoming construction projects, including plans for a new transit interchange and a new industrial park, at a special formal meeting at 8 a.m. today.

The first of the projects is a proposal for a new transit facility, which will be located on the south side of Washington Street between Capitol and Clinton streets, adjacent to the Old Capitol Town Center.

The council has approved the project; at today's meeting, councilors will discuss contracts, costs and bids.

The facility will include an Iowa City Transit office for bus information and the purchase of passes, a small waiting room for passengers and restrooms.

"This would give us an office building with downtown access," said Joe Fowler, the director of city parking and transit. The current Iowa City Transit center is located at 1200 S. Riverside Drive.

"The project is planned to start this fall, but it will depend on the bids," he said.

The council will also discuss plans by the Airport Commission to develop 54 acres of land north of the Iowa City Municipal Airport to form an industrial park.

The land will be leased to generate additional income for the airport, said Ron O'Neil, the airport manager, and it will be available for long-term leases. Because the airport might need the property in the future, the property will not be sold.

The council will lend money to the commission for starting developments to prepare the land for lease, including paving streets, installing a water main, storm and sanitary sewers, improving the storm-water channel and grading the site, O'Neil said.

Depending on the bids received, the Airport Commission hopes to start groundwork this fall and finish in the late spring or early summer of 2001.

After an eyewitness allegedly recognized him, an Iowa City man was arrested Sunday night and charged in the robbery of a local tavern.

Ronald E. Cooley, 38, was arrested at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., for allegedly robbing Mike's Tap, 122 Wright St., on Sunday morning. He has been charged with first-degree robbery.

According to police reports, Cooley entered Mike's Tap at 7:56 a.m., telling an employee that he had a gun and ordering the employee to give him money and lie on the floor.

Visitor mugged in Quadrangle dorm courtyard in daylight

■ An Illinois man was assaulted and robbed last Saturday afternoon.

By Nicole Schuppert
The Daily Iowan

An Illinois man reported that he was robbed and assaulted on the afternoon of Aug. 26 in the courtyard of Quadrangle Residence Hall, UI Public Safety said.

Shortly after 4:30 p.m., the victim, whose name was not released, was approached by two white males from behind as he walked through the courtyard toward the west end of the courtyard. The two men struck the victim twice in the head and shoved him to the ground, said Duane Papke, the acting associate director of Public Safety.

The man told Public Safety officers that one suspect held him down as the other removed an undisclosed amount of money from his pocket, Papke said. The attackers fled on foot after the incident, he said.

Though the man suffered "obvious head injuries," including cuts and bruises, he refused medical treatment, Papke said.

The man described both suspects as being approximately 20 years old, with short blond hair, medium builds and medium complexions. Neither man was wearing a shirt, according to Public Safety.

The first suspect was described as approximately 5 feet, 10 inches tall, wearing long, button-up navy-blue athletic pants with a white stripe down the side.

The second suspect was described by the victim as approximately 5-7, wearing black nylon athletic shorts.

No witnesses have come forward yet, and the Illinois man did not remember seeing anyone around, Papke said.

"We're hoping that somebody might have seen this act take place," he said. "It's possible that someone saw it and didn't realize it was a robbery if they just saw somebody being shoved to the ground. But we're very interested in hearing from them."

UI freshman T.J. Veneris lives in Quad and can see the courtyard from his room. He said that because he often sees security guards in the courtyard, he was surprised and disturbed by the incident.

"It seems like a really quiet area," Veneris said. "There's rarely loud music, and there are never people running around in the hallways."

Several Quad residents said that the incident occurred during the day makes it even more frightening.

"If they're going to do that to a guy in broad daylight, it makes me even more afraid to go out at night," said UI sophomore Sarah Neader, a Quad resident.

Steve Parrott, the director of University Communications, said the incident underscores the fact that UI students, faculty and staff need to take safety precautions, especially until the suspects are arrested.

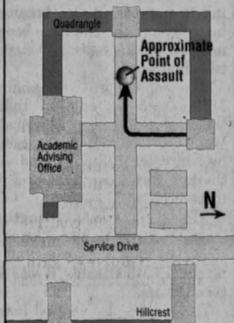

"I don't think you should take the incident as evidence that Iowa City and the UI are unsafe places," he said. "Statistically, it's a relatively safe place, but that doesn't mean we're immune to crime."

While Public Safety does not plan to increase patrolling, officers and security guards will be instructed to be extra alert.

"We're asking officers to be ever vigilant in routine patrols for suspicious activities, and building security guards will do likewise," Papke said. "If anything suspicious is reported, we will respond to it."

Iowa trails in workers with bachelor's degrees

■ The low wages in Iowa are attributable to the state's ranking in percentage of workers with college degrees: 42nd.

Associated Press

DES MOINES - Iowans' low wages are directly related to their lack of higher education, an Oskaloosa researcher reports.

Forty-seven percent of Iowa workers were paid less than $10 an hour in 1998, according to a recent survey by the state's Labor Market Information Bureau.

Tom Mortenson, a higher education policy analyst, said income is "extraordinarily strongly related" to educational attainment.

While Iowa ranked 11th in the nation in 1998 for its proportion of people 25 and older with a high school diploma, the state ranked 42nd in its percentage of adults with a bachelor's degree.

"It's obvious why Iowans are not paid very well," said Mortenson, the publisher of a monthly higher-education newsletter. "Not very many of them have college educations."

Gov. Tom Vilsack confirmed the accuracy of the findings on Aug. 25.

"I've been talking about this for quite some time," he said. "We have a well-educated work force as it relates to high school individuals, but we are lagging on the number of individuals with bachelor's degrees."

State Economist Harvey Siegelman said many of Iowa's college graduates leave state to take jobs elsewhere.

"We rank lower because lose a lot of people we educate he said. "We educate a lot people here who get a bachelor's degree. They just don't stay afterwards."

weapon, but no one actually saw one," said Iowa City police Sgt. Jim Steffen.

A bar patron told police he saw the robber, despite the suspect's attempt to cover his face with his sweatshirt. The patron later identified Cooley in a photo line-up, police said.

Police had already been considering Cooley in this case, said police Sgt. Mike Brotherton.

After the witness picked Cooley out of the photo line-up, police obtained a warrant for his arrest and, with help from an anonymous source, located him at Gabe's, Brotherton said. When police arrived at Gabe's, they had no problems taking Cooley into custody. He had no weapon and was cooperative, Brotherton said.

Police are not disclosing the amount of money taken from Mike's Tap, saying only that it was small.

"It kind of stinks," said Gabe's bartender Ryan Barker. "Local bars shouldn't have to worry about getting robbed."

Cooley made an initial court appearance Monday; he has a preliminary hearing set for Sept. 7 at 2 p.m. His bail has been set at $15,000.

UI engineering dean calls it quits

Anthony Hines, who was appointed eight months ago, will return to teaching in January.

By Amanda Gorsche
The Daily Iowan

After serving only eight months as the dean of the UI College of Engineering, Anthony Hines announced his resignation Monday in a letter sent to the faculty and staff of the college.

Hines, who was appointed dean on Dec. 27, 1999, announced his resignation effective Jan. 12, 2001.

UI Provost Jon Whitmore said he is not certain why Hines stepped down, but he speculated that Hines wanted to shift his focus from administrative duties. Hines has a tenured position as a faculty member in the chemical engineering department, and he plans to take a position as a full-time UI faculty member. He will teach and do research after he steps down as dean.

Some of the benefits that the engineering school has enjoyed with Hines as active dean include a 6 percent increase in enrollment since last year, Whitmore said. Hines was also responsible for planning a number of fund-raising events for the college.

Hines has been developing a strategic plan for the college that is designed to improve the undergraduate and professional graduate programs, Whitmore said. Hines also has increased awareness of the college's programs outside of the UI.

UI senior John Gourley lauded Hines for making UI engineering programs known around the country.

"It's positive to have more exposure," Gourley said. "Exposure could help the UI's reputation, which helps to get jobs. It can also help the UI get money from outside sources." Alec Scranton, the chairman of chemical and bio-chemical engineering, said that, in addition to the exposure, he has seen other gains during Hines' tenure as dean.

"Dean Hines has done a good job while he has been here," Scranton said.

Whitmore looks forward to Hines' future endeavors in the engineering school.

"He has been a very successful faculty member. We hope he will begin his research project, contribute to the teaching mission, and be very effective at the university," the provost said.

The UI will launch a national search for a new dean in September. Whitmore said the process can take six to eight months and that an interim dean may be needed for one semester after Hines steps down.

Hines could not be reached for comment Monday night.

Iowa trails in workers with bachelor's degrees

The low wages in Iowa are attributable to the state's ranking in percentage of workers with college degrees: 42nd.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Iowans' low wages are directly related to their lack of higher education, an Oskaloosa researcher reports.

Forty-seven percent of Iowa workers were paid less than $10 an hour in 1998, according to a recent survey by the state's Labor Market Information Bureau.

Tom Mortenson, a higher education policy analyst, said income is "extraordinarily strongly related" to educational attainment. While Iowa ranked 11th in the nation in 1998 for its proportion of people 25 and older with a high school diploma, the state ranked 42nd in its percentage of adults with a bachelor's degree.

"It's obvious why Iowans are not paid very well," said Mortenson, the publisher of a monthly higher-education newsletter. "Not very many of them have college educations." Gov. Tom Vilsack confirmed the accuracy of the findings on Aug. 25.

"I've been talking about this for quite some time," he said. "We have a well-educated work force as it relates to high school individuals, but we are lagging on the number of individuals with bachelor's degrees."

State Economist Harvey Siegelman said many of Iowa's

We hope (Hines) will begin his research project, contribute to the teaching mission, and be very effective at the university.

Spending soars, savings sink

■ Consumers' July shopping spree drives the savings rate to an all-time low.

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — American consumers went on a buying binge in July, ratcheting up spending twice as fast as their incomes grew. That drove down the nation's personal savings rate to the lowest point ever recorded.

After spending cautiously during the spring, consumers splurged last month, increasing their spending by a brisk 0.6 percent, the biggest jump since February, the Commerce Department reported Monday.

Spending rose a little bit faster than the 0.5 percent gain many analysts were anticipating.

Americans' incomes, which includes wages, interest and government benefits, meanwhile, grew by a modest 0.3 percent in July, matching analysts' expectations.

Economists said people are feeling wealthy and in the mood to spend because jobs are plentiful, incomes are rising, inflation is low and the stock market — which was volatile in the spring and helped to temper spending — is buoyant.

"The consumer is back," declared Joel Naroff, an economist with Naroff Economic Advisors. "It was not just motor vehicles and furniture that people bought. They traveled, ate out, and bought all the little things they wanted."

All that spending pulled down the personal savings rate — savings as a percentage of after-tax income — to a negative 0.2 percent in July, the lowest monthly rate ever. In June, the rate stood at a positive 0.1 percent.

Still, the savings rate isn't as dire as it would seem, economists said. The savings rate measures only the amount of money being put aside each month for savings.

It doesn't represent a calculation of personal wealth, which would account for gains households have realized on their savings in previous months from such things as rising stock market values and higher real estate values. Thus, the savings rate reflects money socked into a 401(k) but it doesn't capture an increase or decrease in its value.

The consumer is back.

—Joel Naroff, economist with Naroff Economic Advisors

The rising value of investments with the buoyant stock market has contributed to the low national savings rate because consumers feel more confident that they can afford to save less and spend more because their investments are doing well, economists said.

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones industrial average closed up 60.21 points at 11,252.84, a possible sign that investors are more confident about the future direction of stock prices after several indecisive sessions.

Western fires' smoke fouls Iowa air

■ Smoke from the blazes has drifted east, making the air over the central part of the state dangerous.

By Melanie S. Welte
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Air pollution levels were expected to reach unhealthy levels Monday in central Iowa as smoke from forest fires raging in the West continued to drift across the state.

The Department of Natural Resources said that for 24 hours, air pollution averaged "above health-based levels for soot particles" and it was expected to reach the "unhealthy for sensitive group" designation.

"The last few days, the levels have been getting progressively higher," said Brian Button, an air-quality information specialist with the DNR.

"A lot of people won't feel anything, but based on federal criteria, if you have respiratory problems, today is not a good day to be out doing heavy or prolonged exertion. Even for healthy people, it may not be a good day to go for a jog," he said.

Those with asthma, children and older Iowans would be at an increased risk, he said.

State Climatologist Harry Hillaker said a stagnant air mass has been over Iowa for the past week or so, and pollutants are getting trapped.

"For each day the weather pattern continues, the air quality gets a little bit worse. It's not allowing any pollutants near the ground to escape," he said.

Hillaker said he didn't expect any big changes in the weather soon. A good, strong cold front would certainly help to push the smoky air somewhere else, he said.

"We have just a layer of warmer air above us, and we need to get that moved out to allow the air to mix a little more freely," he said.

The DNR also was monitoring soot levels in southeast Iowa, where levels were dipping in and out of the unhealthy zone, Button said.

New bioengineering on spinal injuries promising

■ Researchers transplant pig cells to restore nerve function in mice.

By Joseph B. Verrengia
Associated Press

Scientists have successfully spliced pig cells into the injured spines of paralyzed mice and restored some nerve impulses.

In an additional twist, the pig cells were bioengineered with a human protein that helped to prevent the immune systems of the mice from rejecting the foreign tissue.

The study, conducted at Yale, provides the latest evidence yet that pigs may provide the most promising new source of cells and organs for transplant into humans.

Researchers said the experiment, published in the September issue of Nature Biotechnology, is also another step toward repairing spinal cord injuries.

"Though unthinkable only a decade or two ago, it now appears that reparative treatment for spinal cord injury may be within reach," said Lars Olson of the Karolinska Institute in Sweden, who reviewed the Yale experiment.

Researchers said the experiment shows how transplantation of cells and organs across species lines, known as xenografting, may prolong patients' lives and improve their health, at least until a human transplant becomes available.

Other researchers were surprised that the bioengineered pig cells were so readily compatible with the nervous systems of the mice.

things when you give a bad grade to a student. And that's a horrible thing to say, but obviously these things happen," she said.

High pressure can get to people, she said, and Grinnell students are very susceptible.

"They're especially bright, well-educated and come from economically advantaged backgrounds," Feder-Lewis said. "And rather high strung."

Chandra Johnson, a graduate assistant in the Arkansas College of Education, told The Daily Iowan she doesn't know what to think about Monday's incident.

"Shock, surprise and disbelief are the only words to describe my reaction," she said. "It's something you don't really think about. But, after the fact you realize, 'Why would we be exempt? It's happening everywhere.'"

The tragedy strikes close to home for some who were in Iowa City on Nov. 1, 1991, when Gang Lu, a UI doctoral student in physics and astronomy, killed five people and injured one in Van Allen and Jessup halls before killing himself.

David Bills, a UI associate professor of planning, policy and leadership studies, said he can describe his memories of the Gang Lu incident only as "horrible" and "awful."

No explanation can be given when something such as this happens, he said.

"Every graduate student goes through these pressures... when you come down to it, it's a random act," Bills said.

University of Arkansas Chancellor John White posted an announcement on the school's Web site: www.uark.edu.

"I want to say that all of us at the University of Arkansas are deeply upset by this terrible tragedy," he said. "We are working... to determine as much as we can as soon as we can."

Officers responded to several reports that shots were fired in the building: The officers spoke briefly with a man behind the locked office door, said University Police Capt. Brad Bruns. Another shot was fired five minutes later, and both men were dead when officers entered the room.

"I heard one gunshot followed by a young man's voice saying, 'No, I didn't do anything,'" said Bethany Edstrom, a graduate student who was in a nearby office. "Then I heard a second shot."

On Aug. 21, a committee of six professors voted to dismiss Kelly from the degree program, but he was permitted to take classes as a non-degree student. Locke was on the committee but abstained from the vote, Bruns said.

Kimpel Hall, where the shootings took place, is the home to a variety of departments, including journalism. The chairwoman of the journalism department, Patsy Watkins, said that at the time of the shootings, many of the classrooms on the floor would have been full.

Classes were canceled in Kimpel Hall as well as in an adjacent building, and students and faculty were evacuated from Kimpel. Counseling is planned for students and faculty affected by the shooting.

a UI assistant professor of sociology. To illustrate, she mentioned a story about a former note-taker enrolled in her class last semester who ended up failing the course.

Troyer said she doesn't consider interpretations of her lectures to be theft of intellectual property. "It would be theft if one were to publish one of my outlines word for word," she said.

One reason Cary Covington, a UI associate professor of political science, posts his own notes on his class Web site is to deter students from using online notes.

"Those notes in conjunction with their own notes may be helpful. However, they shouldn't replace them," he said.

His Web site is the "bare bones" of his lectures and is primarily for students to have another tool for understanding his lectures, Covington said.

UI senior Peter Rosen, a former note-taker for I-Notes — a now defunct note-taking service at the UI — was motivated by the money, but said he doesn't think the companies are infringing on professors' intellectual property.

"Students could get notes for free from other students, which is the same as buying them from I-Notes," he said.

DI: What do you hope students get out of your presentations?

Weinberg: I hope they enjoy it, but I also hope that they are able to take something of what I say about my own life and career and apply it to their own experiences.

DI: After the E-Street Band broke up in 1989, you went back to school at Seton Hall. Was it hard?

Weinberg: No. It was actually a lot easier — in fact, I was amazed. If it had been that easy while I was in school, I probably wouldn't have left school. I got straight A's in everything and made the dean's list two semesters in a row, which I never did when I went to college initially.

DI: Now that Andy Richter has left the show, has that changed your role? Do you see yourself becoming the sidekick?

Weinberg: It hasn't really changed what I do... (The sidekick) is not my role. That's not what I signed on for eight years ago. Andy Richter is quite irreplaceable. There's nobody like Andy. They broke the mold when they made him as the sidekick, and there was really no thought of replacing him.

Chicago's experiment with single-sex schooling: Separate but unequal

Students all over the country are adjusting to a new school year this month, but the pupils at Chicago's Young Women's Leadership Charter School are starting something completely different. The charter school is the first public all-girls school in Chicago and one of the only all-girls schools in the country to focus on math, science and technology for students in grades 6-12.

According to the New York Times, the school's directors hope to remove what they say many girls feel — the intimidating presence of boys in the classroom. They want to help girls at the charter school achieve more academically, especially in the traditionally male-dominated fields of science and technology.

The school's directors should certainly be commended for wanting to help girls succeed, but their gender-segregation method may end up harming their students more than it will help them.

Students in single-sex schools are deprived of the chance to interact with the opposite sex on an everyday basis.

Students learn many of school's important lessons outside of the classroom. Interaction and cooperation with others is perhaps the most essential of those extracurricular lessons. Different groups of students, like girls and boys, must learn to tolerate and deal with one another effectively in order to succeed later in life. Students in single-sex schools are deprived of the opportunity to interact with the opposite sex on an everyday basis.

Although this might sound like a great idea to a young girl who's scared of boys, the same student will have to share classes with boys when she goes to college, and she'll have to work with men after she graduates. After six years in an all-girls institution such as Chicago's charter school, suddenly having to interact and cooperate with men will come as a challenge. The intimidation her teachers worked so hard to avoid may hit with full force as soon as she enters a coed college classroom.

Directors of schools such as the charter school could help their female students to succeed in later life by allowing both girls and boys in all of their schools and by promoting tolerance and cooperation between the sexes. If teachers and school officials still felt that gender separation was necessary in some subjects like math and science, girls and boys could break up for those specific subjects, then return to mixed classes for the rest of the day. Female students would receive the kind of attention the charter school promises while they and their male counterparts would both learn essential social lessons.

Spinning prejudice into publicity: A 'sorry' would have sufficed

During a Cubs-Dodgers game earlier this month, Danielle Goldey and Meredith Kott, a lesbian couple, were ejected from Dodger Stadium after kissing in public.

The couple intended to file a civil-rights lawsuit against the Dodgers. The situation sounds like a public-relations nightmare for the ball club.

Obviously, the Dodgers didn't want the publicity of a lawsuit, so last Wednesday the organization issued a public apology to the couple and two tickets behind home plate to another game. The Dodgers also donated 5,000 tickets to three gay and lesbian organizations and promised "sensitivity training" for all their employees.

All the couple was asking for was an apology.

Instead of admitting fault and putting the situation behind the ball club, the Dodgers played the incident for all it was worth.

It seems the Dodgers went a little overboard with the reactionary measures they took. Instead of admitting fault and putting the situation behind the ball club, the organization played the incident for all it was worth. The Dodgers succeeded in avoiding the publicity of a lawsuit, but in turn the ball club seemed to be begging for media attention of some sort. Donating 5,000 tickets seems as much a ploy for attention as a sincere gesture of apology.

This is nothing more than a case of wrongful eviction. If a couple was evicted for public intoxication and it was later proven they hadn't had a single drink, I highly doubt the Dodgers would donate 5,000 tickets to Alcoholics Anonymous. So, what's the difference with this situation? The difference is that not only is it bad PR to evict a lesbian couple, it's un-PC in a kind of way that it wouldn't be were it a case of public intoxication, for instance.

Everyone would have been happy had the Dodgers simply issued an apology. But it seems that instead of merely putting this un-PC incident behind the club, the Dodgers felt compelled to make lemonade from rotten lemons.

Surviving reality-TV realities in Iowa City

Does it seem odd that a construction crew would begin working at 5 a.m. on a Saturday? At Mercy Hospital, no less?

I thought so, too. This construction crew wasn't just any old construction crew, either. It came complete with the guys arguing for 15 minutes in stentorian tones about what job they were going to do, followed by a backhoe roaring around as only backhoes can roar around at 5 in the morning, two guys wielding sledgehammers on concrete as though they were auditioning for one of those much-sought-after roles on "Buffy, Sidewalk Killer" and a dump truck that, each time the driver put it into reverse, alerted everyone from here to Omaha that it was about to back up.

You'd think that maybe the police would show up, cite the crew for making too much noise when taxpayers were trying to sleep, maybe charge them with keeping a disorderly construction site.

Naw. Turns out the city's noise ordinance is only meant for college students having a party. Heavy construction machinery is exempt.

You college students have to realize that Iowa City, in real life, is a "reality-based"

TV game show, and you, the college students, are always getting voted off the island.

The construction episode occurred on the porch of a friend of mine who comes from Boston, complete with accent and a love/hate relationship with the Red Sox. He was recounting the tale of staying up all night with a woman on that very same porch, waiting to see his first Iowa sunrise — which, he assured us, were famous back in Boston. Imagine my disappointment, he said with characteristic South Boston sensitivity, when all I could see was the ass end of Mercy Hospital. You moron, I said with my characteristic gentleness, the hospital is south of you. We may be culturally behind Boston here in Iowa, but the sun still rises in the East.

At which point we all agreed, in that 5 a.m. philosopher sort of way, that the Boston kid would never make it on "Survivor" because, with his sense of direction, he'd never know which way was up.

Thus proving that no matter how hard you try, you cannot avoid "reality-based" TV shows.

Of course, the really funny thing about all these "reality" TV shows is that American TV is stealing the ideas for the shows from Europe. It used to be that no matter what else might be going wrong in the country, America was the superpower of garbage TV. No longer.

We know our culture is really bottoming out when we have to go elsewhere to get ideas for trashy TV shows.

"Reality" TV does bring up an interesting notion, though. What if, instead of having an election, we put the candidates on a "Survivor" island. Wouldn't that be a whole lot more fun? Not to mention edifying?

Or better yet, we could run them through a psychology experiment, which is all that "reality" TV is. Like maybe the famous Stanley Milgram study on obeying authority in which, as the New York Times described it, "the subjects meekly delivered what they believed were potentially fatal electric shocks to another person when ordered to do so by an experimenter in a white coat."

It's pretty easy to figure out how the candidates would react in such a test. Ralph Nader, for instance, probably would not administer the electric shock — shocks need, obviously, electricity, and generating the electricity requires burning coal, which pollutes the atmosphere and fuels global warming. No shocks from Nader.

George W. Gore might or might not push the button. The vice president has proven that he'll go to almost any length to win an election (witness his lying about Bill Bradley's record during the primary season or his Zen-like grammar about the sound of one fund-raiser clapping in a Buddhist temple). Whether he'd administer the shock would depend on what his polls told him the soccer moms wanted.

George W. Shrub? That's a no-brainer, kind of like the candidate. Of course he'd push the button, probably several times.

After all, the Shrub has a Ph.D. in executions.

Peace now, say Mandela, Clinton

ARUSHA, Tanzania — Lending U.S. prestige to an effort to prevent the collapse of Burundi peace talks, President Clinton and Nelson Mandela lectured Hutu and Tutsi factions Monday on the consequences of failing to end seven years of ethnic warfare that has killed 200,000 people.

"When all is said and done, only you can bring an end to the bloodshed and sorrow your country has suffered," Clinton said.

which is still shedding the vestiges of corruption under autocratic rule.

Negotiators in Tanzania had hoped that Clinton would witness the signing of a major Burundi peace accord. But the power-sharing agreement signed Monday wasn't approved by Hutu rebels, who hadn't participated in the talks, or by several small Tutsi parties.

Mandela, the former South African president and chief mediator, lashed out at the Tutsi parties that didn't sign, accusing them of ignoring "the slaughter of innocent people inside Burundi."

They "are sabotaging this agreement," Mandela said. As Mandela spoke, several seats on the stage remained empty. But, in a symbolic move, the Tutsi representatives filed back in to the auditorium to take their seats as Clinton addressed the group.

Clinton avoided pointing fingers, calling on both sides to end the ethnic warfare.

"I do think it is absolutely certain that if you let this moment slip away, it will dig the well of bitterness deeper and pile the mountain of grievances higher," he said.

Clinton stood with Mandela and African leaders — from President Jerry Rawlings of Ghana to the son of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi — in hopes his American presence would serve as a catalyst for peace.

Columbia's neighbors wary of drug war

■ South American countries prepare for the U.S.-planned offensive.

By Andrew Selsky

BOGOTA, Colombia — On the eve of President Clinton's visit to Colombia, neighboring countries are growing increasingly worried about a planned U.S.-backed drug war — and some are even preparing for a possible spillover by sending troops to the borders.

The offensive — to be carried out by Colombian soldiers trained by Green Berets and other U.S. special forces — is expected to displace thousands of people.

The rebels, who earn millions of dollars from a drug-protection racket, have vowed to fight the Colombian troops, who are to be deployed on U.S.-donated combat helicopters. Ecuador, which lies to the south of Colombia and is within sight of Colombian cocaine-producing plantations, has doubled its border forces to 4,000 troops, the Ecuadorian Defense Ministry said.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees has sent delegates to the Ecuador border region and is considering building a camp to hold some 5,000 Colombian refugees.

Food company settles slave-labor claims

■ Nestlé is paying $14.6 million toward a Swiss Holocaust settlement.

Associated Press

VEVEY, Switzerland — Food giant Nestlé said Monday it is paying $14.6 million toward a settlement with Holocaust survivors and Jewish organizations to meet possible claims over the use of slave labor during World War II.

"It is either certain or it may be assumed that some corporations of the Nestlé Group that were active in countries controlled by the National Socialist (Nazi) regime employed forced laborers," the group said in a statement.

It said it would contribute to a $1.25 billion settlement agreed upon by Switzerland's two largest banks.

"Nestlé expects this contribution to cover all possible legal claims that might be raised against it both in Switzerland and abroad," the statement added.

Nestlé companies operating in Germany and Austria will make voluntary contributions to those countries' foundations to compensate slave laborers, it said, but the company did not specify amounts.

Some Swiss companies allegedly used slave labor in German subsidiaries or subsequently took over implicated German companies. Nestlé has said that it acquired a company in 1947 that was suspected of using forced labor during the Nazi era.

Ingram to double your country pleasure

Jack Ingram and the Beat Up Ford Band will play a twin bill in Iowa City tonight.

By Aaron McAdams
The Daily Iowan

Country music in Iowa City? It's a rarity.

So when a performer such as Jack Ingram comes to town, he's got the market cornered. Tonight, Ingram will give Iowa City a double dose of pure Texas honky-tonk.

Ingram and his Beat Up Ford Band will start the evening at 5 with a set at Sal's Music Emporium, 624 S. Dubuque St. From there, they will head over to Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St., for the nightcap of the doubleheader at 8 p.m.

Sal Leanhart, the owner of Sal's Music Emporium, said people can expect an intimate, mostly acoustic set for the first of Ingram's two shows.

"This will be the third time Jack has played here. Last time he was here, he did a couple of acoustic tunes, and then the band joined him for a few more," Leanhart said.

Pinning a label on Ingram's music is a challenging task. His influences range from the classic country storytelling of Willie Nelson to the rock-inflected sound of Steve Earle.

"He's very much in the mold of Steve Earle, Todd Snyder, the Bottle Rockets ... straddling the fence between rock and country," Leanhart said. "Those are his kindred musical spirits. Anyone who's into insurgent country will definitely enjoy the show."

Jack Ingram
Honky-tonk musician

In 1999, Ingram released Hey You, his second album on the Sony-distributed Lucky Dog records. Leanhart said 1997's Living and Dying bears the distinct mark of its co-producer, the aforementioned Earle, while Hey You is more purely Ingram.

"With Hey You, it seems like Ingram really regained his own style. It sounds more like his early work on Rising Tide records," Leanhart said. "He's got a distinct songwriting voice, but at the same time, you can really tell he's from Texas."

Doug Roberson, the booking agent for Gabe's, concurs.

"He's definitely got that honky-tonk sound. But he'll do some ballads and some cryin'-in-your-beer tunes as well," he said.

For Ingram's second set, he'll trade some controlled artistry for a heap of Texas bar room energy. A native of Dallas, Ingram has had his share of honky-tonk bar experience. That pure-Texas atmosphere travels well, Roberson said.

"Ingram has some really solid fans here in Iowa City. He's one of those guys who just needs to hit it hard a few more times and then his career will really take off," he said.

Ventura and Boesch, both Navy SEALs, were together last weekend in San Diego for a SEALs reunion.

Boesch, 72, made it to the final three before being voted off the show on its finale Aug. 23.

NEW YORK — Ensuring baseball will have labor peace through next season, the players' association on Monday exercised its option to extend the sport's collective bargaining agreement through Oct. 31, 2001.

The union's move had long been expected, because players generally are happy with the deal, which went into effect in November 1996 and was reached only after a 232-day lock-out wiped out the 1994 World Series, the first cancellation of baseball's championship in 90 years.

Knight Commission finds NCAA troubled

A committee formed to address the NCAA's problems found little has changed since 1996.

By Joseph White
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON — It seemed a good idea when a group seeking to reform college sports suggested that university presidents — not coaches, athletic directors or boosters — should bear principal responsibility for how things are run.

Today the presidents have more sway, but the image of big-time college sports remains as tainted as ever. The Knight Commission, which proposed the reforms and saw many of them enacted by the NCAA, reconvened Monday after a four-year break amid fears that things aren't any better than they were when the group disbanded in 1996.

"Didn't we think that if we could simply put the presidents' hands on the lever, surely this would go a long way toward putting things back in place?" asked Chase Peterson, the president emeritus of the University of Utah and one of 20 returning members of the reconstituted 28-member panel.

Perhaps not, Peterson said, because after all the average university president's tenure is only 6½ years.

"For presidents who are going to be around for short periods of time, are they going to stand up for the highest norms on a university scale?" Peterson said. "There's an impatience for immediate success."

The commission, named for the James L. Knight

The time has come to face the reality that changes in the NCAA rule book are not going to solve the problems.

— Creed Black
 former president of the Knight Foundation

Foundation, was formed in 1990 to address runaway athletic programs in which education had become secondary to winning and making money.

The commission made numerous recommendations regarding academics standards and control of the NCAA. As a result, new minimum admittance standards were introduced, the NCAA's executive committee was reconstituted to comprise only university presidents, and presidents were actively involved in negotiations for the NCAA's $6 billion basketball tournament contract with CBS.

Still, stories of pampered athletes and the desire to win at the cost of education remain prevalent in Division I schools. "The time has come to face the reality that changes in the NCAA rule book are not going to solve the problems," said Creed Black, the former president of the foundation.

Indeed, the NCAA's power is dwindling as it faces one antitrust suit after another. And, as the commission discussed at length Monday, putting a few college presidents in charge of the governing body can't stop an individual university from, say, offering worthless classes to an athlete to keep his grade-point average high.

"It's the university's responsibility to get rid of (those classes)," said Dick Schultz, the former executive director of the NCAA. "I don't know if the NCAA can do too much about that."

Commission members said university presidents often also are limited on their own campuses. Athletics can take up only a small portion of a busy president's time, and sometimes he or she runs afoul of trustees operating in win-first mode.

Graham Spanier, chairman of the NCAA Division I board of directors and president of Penn State, said he once applied for the presidency of a university, and "athletic boosters were given the primary seat at the table" during his interview.

"Success can only be attained if our members are committed to change," said Jim Isch, an NCAA vice president.

New secondary holds its own

After a shaky start against Kansas State, Iowa's secondary did not show its inexperience.

Riddle me this, Riddle me that. Is Iowa going to have a good defensive backfield?

With question marks abound, like the Riddler's suit in a Batman skit, the Iowa defensive backfield headed into this year totally inexperienced.

One returning starter in Shane Hall, who in fact, wasn't even listed as the No. 1 man on the depth chart heading into Saturday's game.

Cornerback Tim Dodge, who has excelled in track at Iowa for two years but never once played defensive back.

Ryan Hansen, a safety who had never started a game in a Hawkeye uniform, and Mikkel Brown, who made himself famous by getting run over by Eric Crouch in the season opener last year, then mowed over again on Ron Dayne's run breaking the NCAA record.

There is little experience and not a lot of talent just yet. Against the No. 8-ranked Kansas State Wildcats, the defense gave up a few big plays, but overall, the guys held their own.

They created three turnovers at crucial points of the game, coming in the form of two interceptions and a fumble recovery. They made some mistakes but came back aggressive and compensated for their mistakes.

Garcia upsets fatigued Woods at Bighorn

 Tiger Woods jokes with Sergio Garcia, left, as they cross paths on the first tee during the "Battle at Bighorn" Monday.

Sergio Garcia birdies four of the last six holes to comeback and beat Tiger Woods.

By Tim Dahlberg

PALM DESERT, Ca. — Sergio Garcia finally found the secret to beating Tiger Woods — play him at night.

Garcia outplayed Woods under the lights Monday night, upsetting the world's best player 1-up as golf returned to prime time in the "Battle at Bighorn."

The win in the made-for-television event won't show up on any official lists, but it was worth $1.1 million and a ton of pride for Garcia, who has struggled this year while Woods dominated the sport, winning three majors.

Garcia made a 35-footer for birdie on the 16th hole to go ahead for good, and the tiring Woods could not answer on the final two holes.

Woods put it within 4 feet on the final hole for a possible birdie to tie, but Garcia sunk his 10-footer for a birdie of his own before Woods even had a chance.

Woods flew across country earlier in the day and was fighting a cold or the flu after a streak of eight days that saw him win the PGA Championship and the NEC Invitational.

"I'm so cold. I'm freezing," Woods said to caddie Steve Williams as he waited to putt on the 17th hole on a warm night in the desert.

A day after Woods finished off the field in near darkness to win the NEC Invitational in Akron, Ohio, he and Garcia needed portable lights mounted on cranes to finish the final five holes at the Bighorn Gold Club.

And the darker it got, the better Garcia played.

Garcia made eight birdies, five on the back nine, against a pair of bogeys for what would have been a 66. Woods didn't make a bogey, but managed only five birdies, including the conceded putt on the final hole, for a 67.

Garcia grew increasingly animated as he played nearly flawless down the stretch, while Woods appeared tired and trying to keep his focus in a surreal setting in the desert foothills.

The evening started well for Woods, who got out in front quickly as spectators began scrambling for position on an overcast but hot and humid late afternoon in the Santa Rosa foothills. Garcia missed the first green and made bogey after chipping past the pin, while Woods made a routine par.

Is Tiger Woods' dominance bad for golf?

POINTCOUNTERPOINT

Is Tiger Woods' dominance bad for golf?

No one disputes that Tiger Woods has revolutionized golf. He's created a new fan base and sent the TV ratings through the roof. He's fun to watch and pretty dang good.

But it's no fun to see the same guy win all the time. At the end of every weekend, except after those events he takes off, Woods grabs the fat check and crystal cup, smiles, waves, and walks off to do his post-match interview with ESPN.

He's going to set every course record in the world before he's done. He just doesn't have to do it all at once. People are starting to talk. Woods' wins are old news. He's beating up on everybody, some by double digits.

I would much rather turn the TV on Sunday afternoon to see Tiger, dressed in his traditional red shirt, sweating in the rough, with Phil Mickelson's ball inches from the cup. Gone are the challenge and the competition.

The only drama that golf is finding these days is in those made-for-TV showdowns pitting Tiger against a worthy opponent. It doesn't look like Tiger is going to lose anytime soon in those, either. Pretty soon, fans are going to quit watching the events and just stick to catching the highlights Sunday night before bed or Monday morning during coffee.

Then, golf is back to where it started before Woods.

He's a young kid and I think he learned his lesson. You can gain respect but not by throwing at a guy's head.

Jones to start for Arizona

Rookie Thomas Jones will start at running back in the season opener against the Baltimore Ravens.

Coach Vince Tobin decided Monday to move Jones, the No. 7 overall pick from Virginia, ahead of Michael Pittman, who started all four preseason games.

The move could mean rookie running backs will start for both teams in the opener. The Giants will likely start their top draft pick, Ron Dayne, chosen 11th overall.

Jones, shrugged off the starting role as no big deal.

"It doesn't matter whether you start or not," he said. "What matters is at the end of the game how many yards you have, how many big plays you have. I'd rather be out there making big plays and scoring some touchdowns rather than starting just to be starting."

Victory pulls Mets even with Atlanta

NEW YORK — Edgardo Alfonzo hit a three-run homer in the first inning and Glendon Rusch made it stand up as the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros, 4-2, Monday night.

New York has won four of five and is a major league-best 30-15 since the All-Star break. The Mets began the day one game behind Atlanta in the NL East — the closest they've been since July 1.

Rusch (9-10) allowed solo homers to former Met Roger Cedeno and Richard Hidalgo, but pitched around three other extra-base hits.

Houston's Tony Eusebio doubled to give him a team-record 24-game hitting streak.

Reds 6, Braves 3

ATLANTA — Cincinnati stunned Atlanta's Greg Maddux by scoring five runs in the first inning, and fill-in starter Ron Villone pitched the first complete game of his pro career for a 6-3, victory Monday night that knocked the Braves into a tie for first in the NL East.

The New York Mets defeated Houston 4-2, grabbing a share of the lead, which had been held exclusively by the Braves since April 26.

Atlanta (78-53), trying to extend its already unprecedented streak of division titles to nine, is only 13-13 in August and has lost four of its last five. The Reds stopped a seven-game losing streak at Turner Field dating to Aug. 6, 1998.

Maddux (14-8) equaled his career high for most runs allowed in the first inning, the previous time coming a decade ago when he was an up-and-coming pitcher with the Chicago Cubs.

Expos 9, Diamondbacks 5

MONTREAL — Orlando Cabrera and Michael Barrett each had three hits and three RBIs as the Montreal Expos solved Curt Schilling, beating the Arizona Diamondbacks 9-5

Monday night. Schilling (10-9) had pitched eight straight complete games against the Expos. He got off to a good start this time, retiring the first 13 batters, before Montreal caught up to him.

The Expos scored four times in the seventh inning to take a 6-3 lead. Cabrera and Barrett doubled during the rally.

Schilling allowed nine hits and six runs in seven innings. He struck out seven and walked one.

Giants 5, Pirates 4

PITTSBURGH — Russ Davis led off the ninth with his second pinch-hit homer of the season and the San Francisco Giants, despite playing some unaccustomed shaky defense, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-4, Monday night.

Davis hit a 1-0 pitch from reliever Scott Sauerbeck (5-2) into the left-field seats for his sixth homer, helping the Giants to their 10th victory in 14 games and sending the Pirates their fifth consecutive loss.

Devil Rays 5, Red Sox 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Mike DiFelice hit a tiebreaking, two-run double in a three-run eighth inning Monday night as Bryan Rekar pitched the Tampa Bay Devil Rays over the Boston Red Sox, 5-2.

Rekar (5-9) allowed two runs and eight hits in eight innings to win for the first time in six starts since beating Kansas City on July 28. Roberto Hernandez finished for his 26th save in 32 chances.

Indians 5, Rangers 2

ARLINGTON, Texas — Bartolo Colon allowed five hits over eight innings as the Cleveland Indians beat the Texas Rangers 5-2.

The Indians moved a half-game ahead of Boston in the ever-changing AL wild card race.

Colon (12-8) struck out six and walked two. He blanked the Rangers until the eighth, when Mike Lamb hit a two-run homer.

Aiello should be ready for Sep. 9

Iowa's 12 games are against AP Top 25 teams, including No. 1 Nebraska and No. 4 Wisconsin.

"O" No

After putting up 300.3 total offensive yards per game in 1999, the Hawkeyes netted a mere 156 yards on Saturday. "It's obvious we just didn't get the ball rolling from the start on offense — too many three-and-outs," wide receiver Ryan Barton said. "We've got to get the first downs and get the ball rolling, as far as offense is concerned. Once we do that, we can certainly put plays together."

Nation's Best

Kansas State led the nation last year in pass efficiency defense (65.7 rating) and turnover margin (+1.55).

While the pass rush and cover game were great, the opposite was true with the Wildcats' care of the football. Kansas State turned the ball over three times and fumbled twice more but recovered. Iowa had one turnover.

The Streak

Kansas State outscored opponents 108-0 in the third quarter of its 11 games last season. Ladell Betts' third-quarter touchdown run ended the Wildcat streak. "I think in the second half we showed we can run the ball," Betts said. "Some holes started opening up. We started moving the ball a little bit and got a few turnovers. We showed signs of where we want to be. Unfortunately, it took us a little too long to get going."

The loner

Nate Kaeding, Iowa's one in-state recruit, emerged as the Hawkeyes' No. 1 kicker Saturday, and Coach Kirk Ferentz said he will stay there for now.

Injury Report

Ferentz said Iowa suffered a few minor injuries in the game but nothing serious. In addition, he said, he hopes offensive lineman Sam Aiello will be ready to go for Iowa's home opener.

Up Next

The Hawkeyes will open the 2000 home season against Western Michigan on Sept. 9. "Anytime you lose you don't feel good," Ferentz said. "I think we saw some things out there that we're going to be able to build on. As long as our players' attitudes remain strong and firm — and they're all coming in and working hard — good things will happen to this football team in due time."

Parker's record good against the pass

SECONDARY

"We had some exciting rides out there," UI head football coach Kirk Ferentz said of the defensive backfield. "We're very young and inexperienced back there, but I think the good thing in that second half was that we made some plays. Our guys were playing aggressive and made some things happen."

How did they make things happen? How did this squad that has never started a game together as one unit play the way it did?

According to Ferentz, they're natural football players.

They looked like it Saturday. Hansen's strip of KSU's David Allen was a heads-up play, giving the ball back to Iowa with good field position.

Brown played smart football and looked more physical — hopefully, he won't be getting run over by any more quarterbacks in his remaining two years.

Dodge's interception of David Beasley in the end zone showed that maybe he doesn't have the greatest defensive back instincts yet (he was burned to the corner and used his track speed to catch up and intercept the pass), but he showed that he knew how to compensate for mistakes.

"He made some plays," Ferentz said. "He gave up a play or two, but I think he came back. He hung in there tough mentally, and we knew Tim would do that because he's a football player. He thinks like one and competes like one."

Maybe not all of it has to do with the players themselves, though. Defensive coordinator Norm Parker knows a few things about stopping passing offenses. He made a habit out of doing it against Peyton Manning-led Tennessee teams while he was a coach at Vanderbilt.

Parker's Commodores held Manning's team to 17 points in 1997 and 14 points in 1996.

"He's strict. He's a good coach," Hall said. "He knows exactly what he's doing. We've put a lot of trust in each other in the secondary, so we feel comfortable with each other."

Maybe it was luck. Maybe K-State's offense wasn't so good after all. But if Iowa's D-backs continue to make big plays in crucial moments, as they did Saturday, folks are going to know who these guys are.

San Diego turns over a new Leaf at QB

■ After a rocky two years in the NFL, Ryan Leaf is beginning to play like the Chargers expected him to.

By Bernie Wilson
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Imagine if Ryan Leaf had acted his age as a rookie. And instead of letting interceptions eat at him to the point of committing more blunders, think what might have been if he came right back and threw touchdown passes.

The San Diego Chargers think they finally have that Ryan Leaf in uniform.

In one of the more stunning turnarounds in the NFL this summer, Leaf has played his way back into the starting quarterback job that he'd lost as a highly touted rookie in 1998. Back then, as the second pick overall in the draft, Leaf was viewed as a savior by a franchise that desperately needed one.

Instead, he had one spectacular meltdown after another on and off the field.

With the exception of a brief scare when some scar tissue tore in his surgically repaired right shoulder, it's been a quiet, businesslike summer for Leaf. He's been on his best behavior and has said all the right things. His passes have been crisp and there's been no sign of the arrogance he showed as a rookie.

Leaf will take his first regular-season snap in more than 20 months when the Chargers open at Oakland on Sunday.

"So many things had gone wrong, I guess you could say

Lenny Ignelzi/Associated Press
Ryan Leaf fires a pass during drills at the teams training camp on last week in San Diego.

that we're pleasantly surprised it's turned around as quickly as it has," said player personnel director Billy Devaney.

"This is the way we envisioned it when we drafted the guy."

What changed? Just 10 months, Leaf was still getting into trouble. While rehabbing from the shoulder surgery that sidelined him last season, he was suspended for four weeks without pay for cursing at then-general manager Bobby Beathard. He seemed on the brink of becoming one of the biggest busts in NFL history.

As recently as the spring, a teammate called Leaf fat and overweight.

Having bottomed out, teammates and management sense that he's growing up.

Leaf admits he's learned a lot. "My life is really, really different than what it was two years ago, in every sense of the word," he said. "It's just kind of a night-and-day, drastic difference from what it was. Calming everywhere, I think.

In my head, in my soul, in this team, in the coaching staff."

Leaf is engaged to a former Chargers cheerleader, and some of coach Mike Riley's nice-guy attitude seems to have rubbed off.

New quarterbacks coach Mike Johnson has been a positive influence. Johnson and offensive line coach Joe Bugel, a former NFL head coach, helped Leaf get comfortable reading defenses and knowing his protection — something had to be done about that ratio of 2 TD passes to 15 interceptions Leaf had as a rookie.

In Leaf's mind, it's all about being healthy. The shoulder injury may very well have scared him straight.

"It's been great in the fact that I've been able to be out on the football field, period," Leaf said. "It's been so long and so frustrating."

"I think that was the biggest change. For me, every other aspect of it is just day by day, really. I'm trying to stay on that even keel, and coach Riley's got me by the short tail. I'm just kind of following how he acts. It's a good way to go about things."

Leaf seemed appreciative, not cocky, that he won the job back.

"Earning it gives you credibility," he said on Monday. "The only credibility I had as a rookie was being the second pick overall."

Can this new attitude last? Leaf has said several times in the past that he had changed, only to take a step back.

"A lot remains still to be seen from him, but he's definitely heading in the right direction," said team President Dean Spanos.

Preseason 'classic' games end with a bang

■ The lightning that struck just outside of Virginia Tech's field last night hit announcer Lee Corso's car.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

College football's preseason is over, and thank goodness nobody got hurt. At least not too seriously.

The biggest casualty after five weekend "classic" games appears to be Lee Corso's rental car, which was struck by lightning Sunday night during violent thunderstorms that forced postponement of the BCA Classic — Georgia Tech at No. 11 Virginia Tech.

ESPN aired video of a red car being hit by a bolt of lightning in the parking lot at the north end of Lane Stadium. Corso, ESPN GameDay's analyst, was not certain the car was his until he left the stadium and tried to drive back to his hotel.

"It started up, and he drove it a little bit before it just died, and he realized it was his car that got hit," Chris Fowler, GameDay's host, said Monday. "Lee got out, hitched a ride with some fans, and the carrental people brought him a new car."

The lightning strike came right after the GameDay crew went off the air, with Corso having just predicted a Georgia Tech upset of the Hokies and Michael Vick.

In the games that did get played, there were a few mishaps:

■ David Allen, Kansas State's return specialist, injured his left ankle on a punt return in the Wildcats' 27-7 win over Iowa in the Eddie Robinson Classic. K-State coach Bill Snyder said his halfback should be OK, but Allen was wearing a cast on Sunday. K-State plays Louisiana Tech on Saturday.

■ Bret Engemann, BYU's starting quarterback in the Cougars' 29-3 loss to No. 2 Florida State in Saturday's Pigskin Classic, sprained a left knee ligament and is day-to-day.

■ LaVell Edwards, in his 29th and final season at BYU, was fine after being flogged by Seminoles quarterback Chris Weinke, who was pushed out of bounds and into the 69-year-old coach. Weinke was throwing a 19-yard TD pass at the time.

■ Florida State kicker Matt Munyon had his confidence shaken after missing his first extra point and field goal attempts of 34 and 27 yards. Coach Bobby Bowden hopes freshman Brett Cimorelli can do better once he shakes off a groin injury.

■ Penn State absorbed its worst season-opening loss in 17 years after revitalized USC beat Joe Paterno's team, 29-5, in Sunday's Kickoff Classic. The loss knocked Penn State out of the Top 25 for the first time since the final poll of the '92 season.

■ Big East Conference teams have now played host to the last two games postponed by weather — UCLA at Miami in 1998 and Georgia Tech-Virginia Tech.

UCLA-Miami was wiped out by the threat of Hurricane George on Sept. 26, 1998. The game was played on Dec. 5, with the Hurricanes winning and knocking UCLA out of the national title picture. But it's doubtful the BCA Classic will be played because it is an additional game to the standard 11-game schedule.

Officials at both schools plan to meet this week and discuss whether to reschedule, perhaps on Dec. 1.

Comebacks, debuts and encores were also on the week-end agenda:

■ Texas Tech's Ricky Williams had 15 carries for 78 yards and caught the first TD pass of his career in a 24-3 win over New Mexico in Saturday's Hispanic College Fund Football Classic — making coach Mike Leach's debut a successful one. Williams, the nation's fourth-leading rusher in '98, missed last season with a knee injury.

■ USC quarterback Carson Palmer wasn't super — 10 of 20 for 87 yards — but he did nothing wrong in his first game since missing most of last season with a broken collarbone.

"He handled the football team the way I wanted him to," USC coach Paul Hackett said. "That was more important than how much passing he did."

■ Engemann, the brother-in-law of CNN's Larry King, did not fare well in his debut before he was hurt, hitting 12 of 28 passes for 139 yards and two interceptions. He was sacked five times.

Sampras wins first U.S. Open match

NEW YORK (AP) — Pete Sampras slogged sluggishly through a slow-motion, first-round victory Monday as the U.S. Open got off to a sleepy start.

As leaden as Sampras looked, he served well enough to overcome an even slower Martin Damm of the Czech Republic, 7-6 (3), 7-5, 6-4. It was that kind of day at the National Tennis Center, when heavy, muggy weather took a toll on players and fans alike after nearly two hours of rain interrupted matches early in the afternoon.

Torpid performances infected many of the matches, including No. 5 Yevgeny Kafelnikov's 6-7 (5), 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3 comeback against 116th-ranked Orlin Stanoytchev.

Martina Hingis, looked no less listless Alina Jidkova 6-3, 6-1, as did No. 9 Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario in a 5-7, 6-4, 7-6 (2) victory over No. 63 Joannette Kruger.

Hardaway

■ Miami point guard Hardaway says he'll go to Indiana if Miami doesn't sign him soon.

Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

LAHAINA, Hawaii — being the only unsigned player and growing ever more irate, Tim Hardaway now says he has a 50-50 chance he'll leave the Heat and play elsewhere.

The Indiana Pacers will be time Monday seeing if Hardaway is bluffing, placing a call to agent.

"I'm dead serious. I'll go to a contending team like Indiana," Hardaway said. "I'll go where they appreciate me. I think (Indiana coach Larry Bird) appreciates me. I'm right now I'm getting no love from the Miami Heat."

Hardaway, an unrestricted free agent, is seeking a three-year contract from the Heat. But he will consider signing a deal with Indiana for the same salary cap exception of $10 million.

The Heat can pay him more, but Miami President Pat Riley and Hardaway's

Hardaway losing patience with Heat

■ Miami point guard Tim Hardaway says he'll go to Indiana if Miami doesn't sign him soon.

Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

LAHAINA, Hawaii — Upset at being the only unsigned Olympian and growing ever more impatient, Tim Hardaway now says there's a 50-50 chance he'll leave the Miami Heat and play elsewhere next season.

The Indiana Pacers wasted no time Monday seeing if Hardaway was bluffing, placing a call to his agent.

"I'm dead serious. I'll go play for a contending team like the Pacers," Hardaway said. "I'll go somewhere where they appreciate me. I think (Indiana coach) Isiah (Thomas) appreciates me, and right now I'm getting no love from the Miami Heat."

Hardaway, an unrestricted free agent, is seeking a three-year contract from the Heat. But he says he will consider signing a one-year deal with Indiana for the mid-level salary cap exception of $2.5 million.

The Heat can pay him much more, but Miami President Pat Riley and Hardaway's agent, Henry Thomas, have made little progress toward an agreement. With three months having passed since the Heat were eliminated from the playoffs, Hardaway has lost his patience.

"I deserve a lot more respect than I'm getting," Hardaway said. "I took less money to stay there. (Riley) said he'd take care of me, and it hasn't happened yet. I want to be there, but I've got to look out for Tim Hardaway and Tim Hardaway's family."

Donnie Walsh, president of the Pacers, placed a call to Thomas after hearing of Hardaway's dissatisfaction over the weekend. Indiana plans to move Jalen Rose to the point-guard position after losing Mark Jackson to Toronto on the free-agent market, but the opportunity to sign Hardaway could alter those plans.

"I'm looking into it to see if he's for real," Walsh said. "I'm sure there's a place for Tim Hardaway somewhere."

Hardaway also said he would consider signing with the Chicago Bulls, who have enough cap room to outbid the Pacers. Hardaway is from Chicago and played for Bulls coach Tim Floyd at Texas-El Paso.

Riley has made major changes to the Miami roster this summer, acquiring Eddie Jones and Anthony Mason from Charlotte and agreeing in principle on a three-team trade that will bring Portland free agent Brian Grant to Miami.

The Grant deal is expected to be finalized Wednesday, which will presumably allow the Heat to turn their attention to Hardaway.

"I'm not on that team, so I'm not going to talk about the moves they made," Hardaway said.

An 11-year veteran and five-time All-Star, Hardaway has been slowed by injuries the past two seasons. A deep bruise in his left foot limited his movement in the playoffs last June when Miami lost to the New York Knicks in seven games, but Hardaway says everything has healed.

Riley and Miami general manager Randy Pfund are expected to fly to Hawaii later this week to meet with Hardaway and watch him scrimmage. The Olympic team will play exhibition games Thursday against Canada and Saturday against the U.S. Select Team.

Alonzo Mourning has been working out with Hardaway all summer and has been in contact with Riley regarding the Hardaway situation.

"Going into this, he should have been signed. But it's like this: This is a cold, unpredictable business," Mourning said.

Sport Clubs

To be recognized as a sport club under the sponsorship of the Division of Recreational Services, a club must first be recognized as a student organization by the Activities Board.

The University of Iowa Sport Clubs consists of a group of individuals organized for the purpose of furthering their interest in a common sport or recreational activity and designed to accept members at any and all skill levels and to provide recreational fun and/or competition depending on the desires of the membership

Clubs are encouraged to expand within themselves to accommodate the various skill levels from recreational fun to extramural competition.

Final recognition is subject to the approval of the Recreational Services Committee.

The University of Iowa and the Division of Recreational Services DO NOT provide insurance for club members and cannot be held responsible for injuries incurred through participation in sport club activities.

Clubs Currently Active: Aikido, Chess, Biking, Mountain Biking, Fencing, Ice Hockey, Kayak & Canoe, Men's & Women's Lacrosse, Rowing, Men's & Women's Rugby, Sailing, Ski (cross country), Ski (downhill), Snowboard, Men's Soccer, Synchronized Swimming, Table Tennis, Men's & Women's Ultimate Frisbee, Volleyball, Waterpolo and Waterski. For contacts of individual clubs call 335-9293 or stop by the Rec Services Office / E216 FH.

The Division of Recreational Services offers a variety of non-credit instructional classes for youths and adults throughout the University school year. First Semester classes begin in September, Second Semester classes begin in January and Summer Session classes begin in June. Registration for all programs is handled on a first-come, first-served basis, so it is important to note the beginning registration dates for specific class sessions. To defray the cost of providing instruction, a minimal registration fee is charged for each program. Anyone signing up for a lesson program must register in person at the Recreation Office, E216 Field House. When registering, the participant will need to fill out & sign a registration form/liability statement (those under 18 will also need a parent's or guardian's signature), pay the registration fee, and pick up an information sheet giving dates, times, and place of class instruction.

Lesson Programs

Gymnastics

Pre-School

Through this program, pre-schoolers and kindergartners, three through six years, are given the opportunity to experience basic gymnastics skills. Forty-five minute classes are scheduled each session during the morning and early afternoon hours. These classes meet once or twice a week for the six-week session. Sessions are offered throughout the school year.

Youth

Gymnastics instruction is open to youths, grades K through 8. Participants attend one-hour or one and one-half-hour classes twice a week, depending on his/her skill level, for the six-week session. Sessions continue throughout the school year.

Boys & Girls Competitive

Recreational Services offers an opportunity for boys and girls to compete in gymnastics, a sport unsurpassed when it comes to developing kids. Ages 6 to 18 may participate. These are structured programs where the gymnast progresses from one level to the next. Each program has a head coach who may employ assistants. Competition occurs at sanctioned AAU or USAG meets within Iowa and the surrounding states.

Adult

Adult Gymnastics is offered twelve months of the year. High school age and up, including senior citizens, are welcome. All ability levels from no experience to elite level are enrolled. A minimum of two coaches for six gymnasts is the standard group size. This is a great opportunity for cheerleaders, martial artists, rock climbers, dancers and people wanting to have some fun. This program is based on a principle of progression, adjusted for individual needs and levels of ability.

Master Swimming

The Master Swimming program is comprised of adults interested in further developing strokes, mechanics, staying fit or just having fun through an exercise program. It is designed for those who are able to swim continuously for 20 minutes. It is offered on a semester basis.

Tennis (Clinic and Private)

Tennis instruction for youth ages 10 and above, through adults is offered throughout the spring and summer. There are junior tennis clinics, adult summer leagues, and outdoor private lessons available on various days and times. Cost varies depending on the type of instruction.

Rowing

High School Program

This program is for high school students 14 years and older. The classes teach the basic rowing stroke, boat equipment care and knowledge. All classes are held on the Iowa River, conditions permitting.

Introduction to Rowing

This ten-lesson introduction to rowing course teaches the basic rowing stroke, parts of equipment, proper storage and basic fitness. Prior knowledge of rowing is not necessary. All classes are held on the Iowa River, conditions permitting.

Adult Rowing Program

This program is for those persons who have taken the Introduction to Rowing program or have had prior rowing experience. It also offers participants the opportunity to attend competitions in Iowa and Illinois. Classes are held on the Iowa River, conditions permitting.

Martial Arts

The Aikido program is offered throughout the first and second semesters to all persons twelve years and older. Beginning each semester, classes meet twice a week. Aikido is the newest of Japanese martial arts. It is a method of self-defense, but it is based on spiritual power rather than strength.

Students of Shorin-Ryu are instructed according to traditional Okinawan techniques involving the use of hands, feet, and elbows. The adult program meets Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on a semester basis.

Hapkido is thought to be the most valuable martial art for self-defense. It is a unique art form that combines Tae Kwon Do kicks and Judo throws & joint locks, emphasizing circular motion & non-resistance. Classes meet 2-3 times a week for the semester.

Not only is the Korean martial art of Tae Kwon Do a most effective method of weaponless self-defense, but it is also an intricate art form, an exciting sport, and an effective method of maintaining physical fitness. Tae Kwon Do demonstrations are usually scheduled with the start of the semester. There are three Tae Kwon Do programs offered: The University of Iowa, Hawkeye, and Iowa Tae Kwon Do.

T'ai Chi is the Chinese art of movement. It is a form of exercise suitable for everyone; women and men, young and old, strong and weak. The emphasis in T'ai Chi is on slow breathing and balanced, relaxed postures.

Judo is an Olympic sport for both male and female. A Japanese martial art, Judo techniques include wrestling-style throws and pins as well as chokes and armbars. There are no kicks or punches in Judo. Judo is equally beneficial for males and females. It develops athleticism, mental toughness and discipline.

POLICY

U I Fitness

The University of Iowa Division of Recreational Services offers various aerobic and exercise programs for students, faculty/staff, and the public. Classes are geared for the many fitness levels of the participants. Instructors stress the importance of working at your own level and "listening" to your body. Making each class safe and effective for the participant is the number one goal. These classes are a great way for total fitness improvement. Regular attendance will benefit your cardiovascular fitness, flexibility, muscle strength and endurance. A wide range of exercise classes are offered to enhance participants' program goals and quality of life; cardio party, hi/lo, step, sculpt, kickboxing, and cycling (Cycle Reebok).

Aerobic Classes are held at noon, 3:00, 5:30 and 7:00 P.M. Times remain the same, however, instructors and workouts will vary. Consult the schedules or call the Fitness/Aerobic information line 353-3000 for more information.

Aerobic/exercise/cycling workouts are $4.00 per walk-in. A FITNESS punch card may be purchased (10 workouts for $32 or 20 workouts for $64). There is no expiration date for the punch cards; however, Recreational Services is not responsible for lost or stolen punch cards and no refunds are given. Programs that differ in cost will be noted in their description. If you work out 3 or more times a week, consider buying a semester pass for unlimited aerobics/cycling for the entire semester, ($75 for students, $90 for faculty/staff & $110 for public). A Fitness Combo Package is also available each semester ($110 for students, $177 for faculty/staff and $225 for public). This combo package permits usage of: Fitness Loft, Fitness East, Rec Building Weight Room, PLUS unlimited Aerobics.

Each class varies as do instructors' styles, yet techniques are consistent: safe and effective. The instructors may incorporate exercise equipment that reduces monotony or incorporates a certain fitness aspect. Equipment includes boxing gloves, resistance tubing, jump ropes, hand weights and resistaballs.

As with any exercise program, if you have any medical concerns or history of medical problem, or if you have never participated in an aerobic class, you should consult a physician to obtain approval for participation. Any recommendations or limitations from your physician should be communicated to the instructor before class. This is to assure you that the class will be modified, if need be, to make it safe and effective for you. Before beginning an exercise program, participants are encouraged to have a physical exam and in certain programs (i.e. Upper Class, Balanced Choices, etc.) they are required to get medical clearance from their physician.

Cycling

Cycle Reebok - Studio cycling is an indoor stationary cycling workout that integrates music, motivation, and inspiration for a terrific cardiovascular and lower body workout. Cycle Reebok is an exciting program that utilizes the most innovative sports psychology, including guided imagery, motivational techniques and exercise physiology to prepare both mind and body for ultimate performance.

The instructor takes the class through a workout that is fun, challenging and addictive! This workout welcomes newcomers and challenges even the most seasoned athletes.

Hi/Lo

In many cases, the safety of a low-impact class has become a trade-off for an effective aerobic challenge needed by more highly fit individuals. To respond to a need for proper balance between safety and effectiveness, instructors are exploring the integration of high and low impact choreography.

Often instructors demonstrate high and low components of the same moves. Individuals then choose high, low, or a combination of both to modify or increase their intensity.

Step

This is a challenging, high-intensity, low-impact program involving stepping onto an adjustable platform while simultaneously performing a series of upper body movements. The height of the platform as well as the speed at which the steps are performed may vary depending on the participants' level of fitness. Remarkably, all fitness levels can participate together since the intensity can be adjusted through individual step height and modifications given by the instructor. Because of the ability to vary intensity levels, the STEP program offers the unique opportunity to include both beginners and advanced students in the same class, and it appeals to both men and women.

Cardio Party

A challenging cardiovascular conditioning class includes but is not limited to hi/low impact step aerobics, kickboxing, and cardio circuits.

T.B.C. (Total Body Conditioning)

This class keeps participants in shape for a variety of activities. The body is conditioned with the utilization of jump ropes, kickboxing, strength training, lunges, stretching/flexibility and much more! T.B.C. provides a non-competitive environment for individuals to work hard and improve their fitness level.

Kickboxing

An energetic combination of punches, kicks, blocks and interval training utilizing jump ropes, weights and resistance tubing. This class develops muscular strength and endurance, cardiovascular fitness, self-defense skills, flexibility, agility and assertiveness. The non-contact, cardio-combative workout incorporates a series of basic punches and kicks into a choreographed routine. No previous boxing or martial arts experience required.

Sculpt

The desire for a strong, but lean physique has brought weight training techniques into the aerobics room. Instead of spending only 10 - 15 minutes on conditioning exercises, this class utilizes the entire hour. Body Sculpting is designed to overload muscles from head to toe. Enhanced muscle definition is achieved by using up to ten-pound weights. By concentrating on individual muscle groups, this organized weight workout creates a body that is "sculpted" to perfection.

Balanced Choices

A lifestyle approach to Weight Management-One Step at a Time. Balanced Choices is a ten-week program designed to provide sustainable weight management by establishing healthy behaviors in regard to nutrition and physical activity. Program participants will enhance their physical and emotional well-being and quality of life. Provided in partnership by Counseling and Health Promotion Services, Food and Nutrition Services and Recreational Services of The University of Iowa.

Get on the Ball

Improve your flexibility, balance and strength with the resistaball. The resistaballs that were previously used in physical therapy settings have found their way into aerobics rooms all over the country. This 1/2-hour class on the ball makes improving strength and flexibility fun yet challenging. Improve your posture and balance while sculpting your muscles utilizing this user-friendly piece of equipment. Give your muscles a workout like they've never seen before.

Fitness Loft

Recreational Services Fitness Loft is located on the fifth floor of the Field House. Cardiovascular equipment includes: stairclimbers, treadmills, rowing machines, EFX elliptical crosstrainers, upright and recumbent bikes and various pieces of selectorized weight equipment. Also in this facility are Hammer Strength, Pro-Power and free weight equipment.

Fitness East

Fitness East is located on the east side of campus in Halsey Hall (by the IMU). Cardiovascular equipment includes: stairclimbers, treadmills, rowing machines, EFX elliptical crosstrainers, upright and recumbent bikes and various pieces of selectorized weight equipment. The CardioTheater is our entertainment center found in both fitness facilities where you can "walk or run on a treadmill, ride a bike, climb a stepper, or even ski on a crosstrainer while enjoying your favorite TV show".

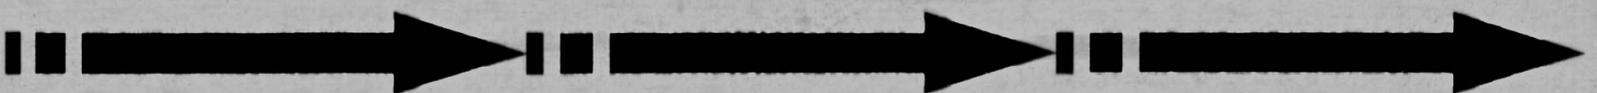

Recreation Building Weight Room

The weight room is equipped with various pieces of Hammer Strength, Pro-Power and free weight equipment. A 3/8" Dino-flex sport flooring was installed for secure and comfortable footing. Cost per semester for the weight room only is $33 for UI Students, $50 for UI Faculty/Staff and $66 for the general public. Daily walk-in is $3.

Personal Trainer Services

The goal of every personal trainer is to develop a balanced exercise program that fits your specific needs, goals and lifestyle. The fee includes your initial fitness consultation/assessment and one-on-one training. Each session is a maximum of 1 hour. Fitness assessments are available each month at no charge. Body composition, cardiovascular endurance, blood pressure, flexibility, and muscular strength/endurance are assessed. Dates and times will be posted in the Fitness Loft/Fitness East or call the Educational Program lines.

Fac

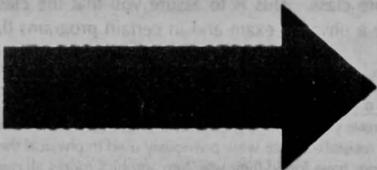

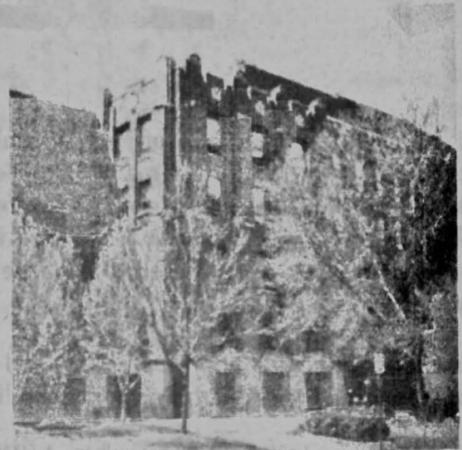

The University of Iowa Field House is located at the west end of Grand Avenue. It houses the offices of the departments of Exercise Science; Sport, Health, Leisure & Physical Studies; PE Skills and the Division of Recreational Services.

The Field House has a storied history. It has served as the site for the U of I's intercollegiate and intramural sports. The original Field House was built in 12 months at a cost of $620,000.00. Upon its completion, in 1927, it stood as the largest facility of its kind in the world (5.5 million cubic feet).

The original Field House had a dirt floor, cinder track, gymnasium, swimming pool, squash and handball courts, as well as coaches quarters, classrooms, offices. The adjacent armory housed the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

A remodeled Field House was reopened in the fall of 1984 and serves as the main recreational facility on campus. The south gym addition was completed in February of 1989 to replace the armory. The recreational facilities available for men and women in this building are the swimming pool, fitness room, free weight room, studio cycling room, mat room, martial arts, table tennis room, aerobics room, climbing wall, and 3 activity areas, 5 badminton courts, 10 basketball/volleyball courts, 18 racquetball courts, 3 squash courts, and a one tenth of a mile raised track.

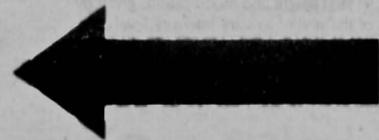

THE FIELD HOUSE

RECREATION BUILDING

North and west of the football stadium, is the Recreation Building. It is home to the Men and Women's Intercollegiate Track and Tennis teams as well as for recreational use. The main deck is made up of 68,000 square feet of Proturf surface. Participants can choose to walk/jog on the indoor track or play tennis on one of the six indoor tennis courts, (4 doubles & 2 singles). The upper deck contains a weight area with free weights and Hammer Strength. There is a locker room with full and 1/2 size lockers, rented by the semester, plus coin lockers for drop in use. A small concession area is also available. Tennis leagues, clinics and private lessons are held for all ages. Call 335-9308 for more information and to make tennis reservations.

HALSEY HALL

Located on the east side of the Iowa River, between Calvin Hall and the Iowa Memorial Union, is the home of the new Fitness East workout facility. The new facility entrance is located on the north side of the building in the alley across from the IMU Parking Ramp. In addition, Aerobics classes are held in the gray room (check aerobics schedules for time & type). Men and women's locker facilities are available.

KLOTZ TENNIS CENTER

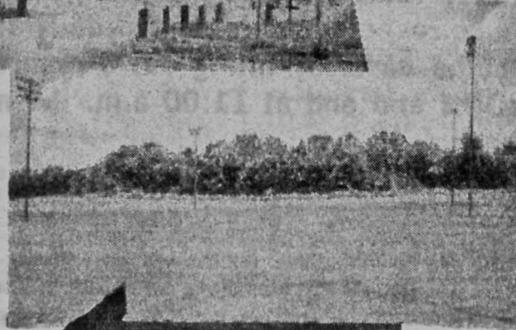

The University currently has a total of 16 outdoor tennis courts for use by students, faculty/staff, the public and their families. They are available on a scheduled basis from approximately May 1 to Oct 1. The courts are the hard Laykol-surface type, and are located on the corner of Melrose and Woolf avenues near the south end of the University football stadium. A tennis center, with a pro shop and concessions, is located at the west end of the courts. Tennis leagues, clinics and private lessons are held for all ages. Call 335-9293 for more information.

HAWKEYE RECREATION FIELDS

Located on Hawkeye Drive, the Hawkeye Recreation Field complex has eight fields 120 feet by 300 feet. Four of these fields are lighted and will be used primarily for intramural flag football. There are four multipurpose fields, 225 feet by 330 feet, that will be used for soccer, rugby, lacrosse and ultimate frisbee clubs. One field, 225 feet by 390 feet, is currently being used as the Women's Intercollegiate Soccer field.

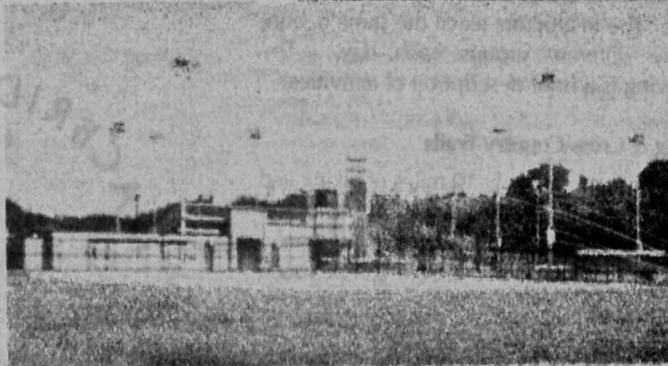

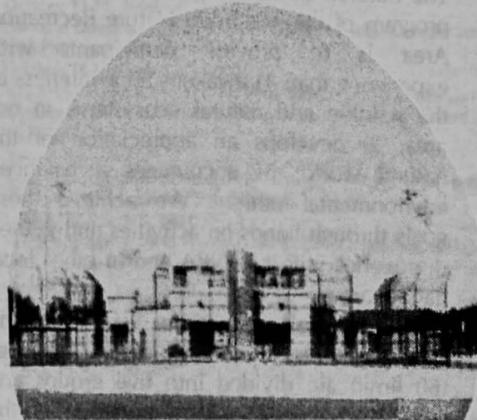

A concession/storage building houses the men's and women's restrooms. Adjacent to the building is a 225-car parking lot.

Highway 6 and Mormon Trek Road bound this field complex. The Hawkeye Softball Complex is located on the Southwest corner of the area and has three fields that are 275 feet to the fence and one women's intercollegiate field. These fields are available on a scheduled basis from approximately April 1 - October 14.

Three sand volleyball courts, a 1.1-mile fitness trail, a soccer field and the intercollegiate track are also located in this area.

A bike trail runs through the area that contains native prairie grasses, a wetland area and a heavily forested hillside. This combination makes a pleasant atmosphere for relaxation and recreation.

SOFTBALL COMPLEX and LOWER FINKBINE

Macbride Nature Recreation Area

Located just 15 minutes north of Iowa City is one of the largest wooded areas in Johnson County. Macbride Nature Recreation Area (MNRA) is a 480-acre tract of land leased from the Army Corps of Engineers by The University of Iowa. It is under the direction of the Division of Recreational Services.

HOURS

April 1 - October 31, 6:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m. daily
November 1 - March 31, 9:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m. daily

Picnicking

There are six large picnic areas located throughout Macbride Nature Recreation Area. Each area has its own distinctive feature. CEDAR Shelter is secluded and private, while HICKORY Picnic Area is the staging area for a nature trail. SUMAC Shelter can accommodate moderate sized groups of 20-30 people. The new BLUESTEM Shelter is very large with an open field, water pump and electricity. The ARCHERY Pavilion and TRIANGLE Recreation Area can also be used for picnics. Exclusive use of picnic areas is possible by making paid reservations in advance (see Reservation Policy.)

Camping

Groups: There are five primitive group campsites (WOLF sites). These sites can be reserved for groups of 10 to 45 people for a fee of $10 per site, per night. Each site has picnic tables and a fire ring.

Individuals: (FOX sites) Eight individual campsites are very popular at MNRA. Each site is large enough to accommodate two four-person tents. Each site has a fire ring and picnic table as well. The cost of an individual FOX site is $5 per site per night. There is only one reservation per person per night (except by special permission).

Running water can be obtained from pumps located throughout the area. Campsites may be reserved in advanced at Recreational Services (see Reservation Policy.)

CAMPING IS PERMITTED ON DESIGNATED CAMPSITES ONLY

Reservation Policy

Paid advance reservations may be made in the Recreational Services Office, Room E216 Field House, Monday-Thursday 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., AT LEAST 24 hours in advance of desired time. The list of advance reservations is posted daily at MNRA. Sites unreserved in advance may be reserved on a first come basis by filling out a reservation form located at MNRA. Campsite reservations begin at NOON and end at 11:00 a.m. the next day. Picnic sites are reserved from OPENING to CLOSING each day.

Archery Range

The archery range is located near the entrance to MNRA. The facility includes a sheltered pavilion, practice range, and bow hunter range. (See Archery Range brochure.)

UI School of the Wild

The mission of the environmental education program of the Macbride Nature Recreation Area is to provide participants with experience that: 1) awakens an awareness of the wildlife and natural ecosystems in our area; 2) develops an appreciation of the natural world; 3) encourages a balanced environmental ethic. We achieve these goals through hands-on activities and guided discoveries within MNRA and in other local natural areas.

During the Fall and Spring Schools of the Wild, we offer five-days of lessons. Classes (60 limit) are divided into five groups and rotate among the five instructors through the week. The instructors teach the same lesson, but to different groups each day. The following is a brief description of activities

Hiking & Cross-Country Trails

There are approximately 10 miles of hiking and skiing trails on MNRA. Most of them are groomed for cross-country skiing in the winter months. Maps of the trail system can be found around the park.

High Adventure Challenge Course

Groups of 10 or more may wish to participate in The Full Day High Adventure Challenge Course. The course is designed to increase self-confidence, self-esteem, improve group trust, teamwork and cooperation. This is done through a series of high ropes activities and group problem solving situations. The program participants are assisted by trained facilitators. For information on the program call Recreational Services at 335-9293.

Raptor Center Project / Nature Center

Adjacent to the Nature Center is a center for the rehabilitation of injured raptors (hawks, owls, eagles, vultures.) Some of these birds are trained for use in educational programs (see Raptor Project brochure.) Also located there are a hummingbird garden, butterfly garden and a prairie grass exhibit.

Hayrides

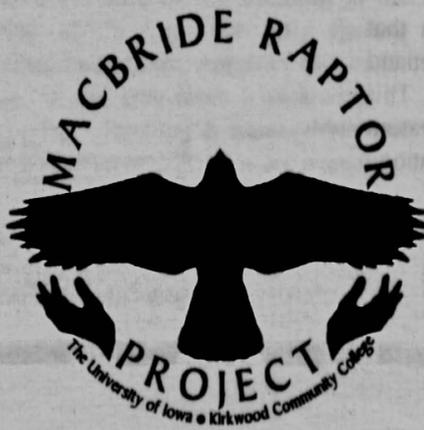

Hayrides are available in the fall (Sept. - Oct.) The cost is $50.00 per wagonload. Maximum number of people per wagon is twenty (20). Reservations are necessary and the fee is payable in advance. Reservations may be taken in the Recreation Office, E216 Field House.

Sailing Club

The University of Iowa Sailing Club operates from the SOCIAL CENTER on MNRA. They have approximately 45 boats and membership is open to students, faculty, staff, and public. Membership dues are paid by the semester and are fairly inexpensive.

Wildlife Camp

Children first grade through sixth grade may attend the wildlife camps during the summer. The camps feature exciting hands-on activities for the children that expose them to the diverse plants and animals found in our area. Activities such as crafts, art, games, and field trips allow the children to learn first hand about the native plants and animals found in Johnson County. Some specific activities include flower and tree identification, mammal identification, bird banding, butterfly netting, fossil collecting, fishing, canoeing, and hiking. Local teachers fill the bulk of the staff. More information may be obtained from Recreational Services.

Since 1977, the TOUCH THE EARTH OUTDOOR RECREATION AND EDUCATION PROGRAM has been a part of the University of Iowa Division of Recreational Services.

TOUCH THE EARTH provides opportunities for members of both The University of Iowa and Iowa City communities to introduce themselves to a variety of outdoor activities. Through a focus on adventure-based learning we aim to educate our participants in the necessary technical skills as well as provide the ethical guidance to ensure these activities are carried out with a maximum level of concern for both the participant and the environment. Our programs are geared to give participants the confidence and the expertise to continue to enjoy the out-of-doors and encourage this by acting as a constant and comprehensive resource open to all.

REGISTRATION:
Registration for all Physical Education Skills classes (028:000) takes place in the Physical Education Skills Office located in Room 213 of the Field House. Registration for all trips and seminars takes place in the Recreational Services Office located in Room E216 of the Field House.

COST:
The cost listed for each Physical Education Skills class includes instruction and materials only (285:000). All trips include transportation, some meals, instruction and guiding, camping fees or lodging.

CREDIT:
University of Iowa credit may be obtained for all TOUCH THE EARTH OUTDOOR RECREATION AND EDUCATION PROGRAM classes and trips. All trips are credited through Sport, Health, Leisure and Physical Studies (028:129) and require special permission and a signature from Wayne Fett, the program director. All Physical Education Skills (028:000) are credited through that department. In most cases trips cannot be used for Physical Education Skills credit.

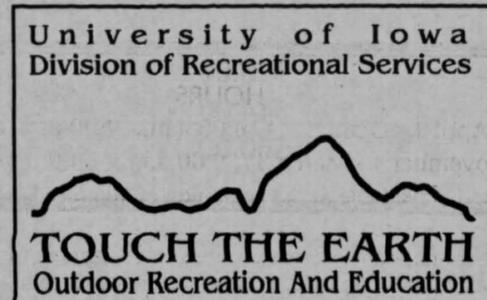

Classes and trips for the 1998-99 academic year are listed on this page along with the cost and date of each one. More information can be obtained from the Recreational Services Office, Room E216 Field House, between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. weekdays or by calling 335-9293.

CANCELLATION POLICY:
All classes taken from the Physical Education Skills Department are non-refundable. The cancellation policy for all trips is as follows:

1. If the cancellation is made at least 14 days prior to the departure date, 50% of the fee collected at registration will be held as a handling charge (or 100% of the listed deposit). A full refund, minus a $10.00 handling fee, will be issued if the Recreational Services Department can locate a paid replacement.
2. Cancellations within 14 days of departure will result in a 100% forfeiture of the fee collected at registration.

NOTE: The amount collected at registration is the total trip fee if the trip is scheduled for a weekend. The amount collected at registration for trips of longer duration are deposits of $100.00

TRAILS:
Our comprehensive trail program consists of both HIKING and CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING. Our hiking and backpacking trips have taken groups to such beautiful locales as Teton National Park, the Wind River Range and the Big Horn Mountains of Wyoming, Rocky Mountain National Park, Indian Peaks Wilderness Area, Maroon Bells/Snowmass Wilderness Area and San Juan Mountains, all in Colorado. We also sponsor occasional trips to Wisconsin and Minnesota. Not only will participants enjoy the splendor of these areas, but will also learn the fundamentals of backcountry travel and return with a renewed appreciation for our natural environment.

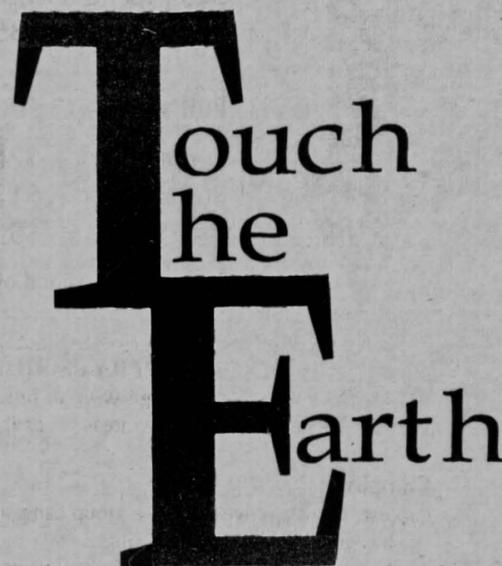

The winter enthusiast will enjoy our cross-country skiing programs that encompass the needs of the beginner and expert alike. Instructors tailor each course to the specific needs of the participant. Local instruction takes place on the groomed trails of Macbride Nature Recreation Area. Trips take us to nordic ski areas in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Colorado.

WATER:
Whether you prefer to CANOE the gentle, scenic Upper Iowa River, challenge yourself KAYAKING the Wolf River, RAFT the Chattanooga River in Georgia or SCUBA dive, our water program will cater to your needs. We offer classes and trips that range from local basic courses to extended journeys on remote lakes and thrilling rivers. Our groups have traveled all over the Midwest and southeastern United States. We offer instruction in flatwater, whitewater canoeing and whitewater kayaking and whitewater rafting. SCUBA courses are also available for those who want to venture beneath the waters surface. Our small group sizes assure participants gain the most from their experiences.

BICYCLE:
TOUCH THE EARTH offers both road and off-road bicycling trips and classes for beginners and advanced riders. Emphasis is on safe riding practices, efficient riding techniques, equipment familiarity, bicycle repair and trip planning. Participants will increase their level of bicycle riding knowledge and riding enjoyment. Current trip and class location range from the Iowa City area to remote areas of Wisconsin and Utah.

ROCK CLIMBING:
Rock climbing opportunities in the Midwest are surprisingly varied. Our classes and trips use the limestone bluffs along the many local rivers to the beautiful quartzite rock at Devils Lake, Wisconsin. The novice can take classes from the Physical Education Skills Department or register for a trip to Devils Lake. Our favorable student/instructor ratio assures full and complete attention to the individual's needs. Our focus is on safety, technique, equipment knowledge and care, and proper climbing etiquette.

FIELD HOUSE CLIMBING GYM:
The University of Iowa's Climbing Gym is located near the main deck of the Field House. The Climbing Gym is open to the University community and the general public. There are special hours for high school and junior high school aged students. There are over 40 routes set with 12 different belay ropes. To use the Climbing Gym, one must participate in and pass a user seminar. Seminars are held twice each day. For more information contact the Recreational Services at 335-9293.

HIGH ADVENTURE CHALLENGE COURSE:
The University of Iowa's HIGH ADVENTURE CHALLENGE COURSE is a unique opportunity for participants to grow both personally and professionally. The course is one of the most extensive of its kind. Located at Macbride Nature Recreation Area, it consists of a series of high and low obstacles carefully placed in an outdoor environment. Through facing both physical and emotional obstacles, participants build self-confidence and group trust. While physical prowess is not a necessity, TEAMWORK is. The HIGH ADVENTURE CHALLENGE COURSE staff is trained to ensure participants meet these challenges in a safe, supportive environment. A minimum of 9 people and a maximum of 20 are required to organize a course. Programs can be organized from 1/2 - 2 days in length. Reservations must be made at least two weeks in advance. Please contact Wayne Fett at 335-9293 for more information.

Please note that the maximum number of students for each class is listed last and the minimum is listed first:

- | | |
|-----------------------|----------------------------|

| Rock Climbing 8/12 | Ropes Course 20/30 |
| Bicycle Touring 15/30 | Cross-Country Skiing 20/50 |

Students must attend all sessions including the meeting (each Wednesday before at 6:00 PM). If a student becomes injured and cannot complete the class, they will be enrolled in the next available open section. If there is no open section, the student must discuss the situation with the supervising instructor in person. All classes are $50.00.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

All students, faculty and staff of the University of Iowa are eligible for the program. In order to compete in the residence hall division, you must live in a residence hall. In order to compete for a fraternity or sorority, you must be a member or pledge to that organization. You may only compete for one team in a sport, but may switch to other teams in other sports if you are eligible for more than one team.

HOW TO ENTER A TEAM

If you are interested in entering a team in an intramural activity, stop by the Division of Recreational Services Office and pick up an entry blank prior to the event. You may use the approximate deadlines to determine the date of the event. Entries are usually out at least one week prior to the event. You simply need to fill out the entry and turn it in at E216 Field House. If the event is instant scheduled, there will be a specific time listed when you may begin to sign-up for the event.

INSTANT SCHEDULING vs TRADITIONAL SCHEDULING

If a sport is instant scheduled, teams are given their playing times at the time they sign-up for the sport. They then play at the same time each week. It is to their advantage to sign-up at the earliest opportunity if they have a certain time that is best for them. In traditional scheduling entries are accepted until a deadline. Teams may or may not be given an option of a preferred time. In any case, it is of no advantage to come in early as all teams will have the same chance of obtaining their preferred times. Instant scheduled activities include: Flag Football for men, Golf, Frisbee Golf, Volleyball & Basketball.

FIGHTING POLICY

There is a policy in place to discourage fighting and encourage sportsmanship. Participants are urged to become familiar with these rules and policies before participating in the program. All eligibility rules and policies governing participation in the program may be picked up in E216 of the Field House.
