Coleman to decide athletics fate this week

■ The UI president's task force has made its recommendation but won't say what it was.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

A nine-member task force appointed by UI President Mary Sue Coleman in July to study the proposed merger of the university's two athletics programs made its recommendation to UI administrators on Sept. 1.

Coleman is expected to make a decision about the merger within the week. Committee members held several interviews with staff members in both the men's and the women's Athletics Departments and several campus organizations before reaching a decision, said Bonnie Slatton, an associate professor of sport, health, leisure and physical studies and a task force co-chairwoman. While members of the task force acknowledged that they had forwarded their recommendation to Coleman, none would comment on what decision had been made. In addition to receiving the group's report, Coleman officially named Paula Jantz as the interim director of UI women's athletics on Sept. 1. The Iowa women's athletics director, Christine Grant, resigned on Aug. 31, leaving the women's athletics program without a director.

The position is only temporary; if the departments merge, there will no longer be a need for a women's athletics director. "With the retirement of Dr. Grant, I think President Coleman's decision in naming an interim women's athletics director was a way to continue moving the program forward," Jantz said. Jantz, who has been involved with the program for 20 years, has held the positions of assistant and associate directors of women's athletics. She said her duties as interim director will not change dramatically from that of associate director, and she is eager to continue the traditions Grant established throughout her 27 years at the UI. "There's no way I could ever replace her," she said. "That could not happen. She's been an incredible force in women's athletics across the country." One of Grant's most successful accomplishments

Chamber weighs in on alcohol debate

■ The group says the UI needs to get more involved with underage drinking.

By Andrew Bixby
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Area Chamber of Commerce announced its stance in the ongoing controversy surrounding binge and underage drinking on Sept. 1, releasing a report that outlined many options to be explored and calling upon the UI to help devise answers to the problem. With students being the focus of attention for many involved in the dispute, chamber members said they considered the UI to be partially responsible for providing possible solutions and alternatives to the problem, said chamber President John Beckord. "The UI needs to go above and beyond and provide funding and support by asking students what they want," he said. The Chamber of Commerce decided to become involved after recent incidents of violence and underage drinking in the downtown area, Beckord said. The group's report stressed alternatives to a law banning people under the age of 21 from bars, including non-alcoholic events, increased education, a ban on drink specials and larger fines for drinking violations.

"There is a direct correlation between the size of the penalty and the size of the behavior," Beckord said. "It's simple cause and effect." A "21-only" ordinance should only be considered as a final solution because of possible side effects, including dispersed drinking in Iowa City, he said. See DRINKING, Page 7A

2 locals aim for $1 million cross-country hike

■ Two Iowa City residents want to walk off with a cool million on a new "reality" show.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

Liz Brammeier said she's prepared to up the ante of her current eight-mile walks to 22.3 miles per day for six months if it means winning $1 million. Brammeier and William Berry, both Iowa City residents, were two of 10 semi-finalists to be randomly chosen in the second week of selection for a new reality TV show, "Miles for Millions," which could earn them each $1 million. They must first survive two rounds of elimination, then complete a 3,343-mile journey by foot across the U.S.

The walk, inspired by the bicycle race Tour de France, is set to begin on Jan. 1 in Miami and end in Seattle on June 30, said Peter Weed, the executive producer of Starter Productions in Orlando, Fla.

While the prize money attracted Brammeier, she said, the show sounded a little "boring" compared with other reality shows, such as the CBS hit "Survivor." "I don't know what the schtick is going to be," she said. "I'm wondering what curves they'll throw. At the very least, it would be a fun experience."

Challenges will be scheduled along the walk, although specific ones have not been finalized, Weed said.

"It's not dog-eat-dog, John against Mary," said Denise Person, a public-relations assistant for Starter Productions. "It's going to be a lot of camaraderie and teamwork. That's going to be different from the other reality TV shows." Thirteen episodes of the show will air next summer on an undecided major network, she said.

The walk's pace will be set by vans following and leading the 10 contestants, who will each win $1 million if they finish the race at the set speed — whether they walk or are carried by their fellow contestants, Weed said. Those who fail to finish the race won't win any money, he said, adding that all food and lodging will be provided and the walk will be suspended each Sunday.

The money may come at a physical price, said Christine Grant, the former director of Iowa women's athletics. "It would be a tremendous toll on the body," she said. "Unless you are someone who has been training for years . . . I would imagine the people doing this would suffer greatly."

The long-term consequences of putting the body through such strain are not completely understood or known, she said.

The health of the contestants is very important, Weed said. Medics will be available during the walk, and all contestants must be in good physical condition, he said.

Former Iowa City resident Rob Minick, who currently resides in Des Moines, was chosen as a semi-finalist during the first week of selection.

"It's just a mind game," said Minick of the physical challenge. "I think it's kind of silly myself."

Ten contestants and two alternates will be selected after in-person interviews and physical exams from an original pool of 1,000 semi-finalists.

Sex crimes don't faze some students

■ The UI Public Safety's crime statistics worry some students reassure others.

By Peter Rugg
The Daily Iowan

UI Public Safety officially released its crime statistics from 1999 on Sept. 1, showing that the frequency of sex-related crimes and aggravated assault is on the rise.

Public Safety reported that 12 forcible sex crimes occurred in 1999. Seven of these alleged sex crimes occurred in UI residence halls, four elsewhere on UI property and one near campus.

While Public Safety officials and UI administrators declined to comment on the numbers, a Public Safety release stated that with 28,000 students, the UI is a relatively safe campus.

Despite the increase in sex crimes — from four in 1997 and 11 in 1998 — UI freshman Sarah Seale said she was unconcerned.

"I feel really safe — I just lock my door when I sleep," she said.

UI freshman Erin McDermott said she was not aware of a high incidence of forcible sex crimes

I.C. police brace for assaults on game day

■ Authorities expect the combination of Hawkeye spirit and alcohol will prove to be volatile.

By Bridget Stratton
The Daily Iowan

Although there was only one assault charge the weekend of the first home football game last year, Iowa City Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake said he anticipates that there will be more assaults after this Saturday's game against Western Michigan.

The mixture of Hawkeye spirit and alcohol have led to fights in the past, Winkelhake said, citing the large number of Iowa fans who "indulge during the game," then head downtown as more likely to get into fights.

As a result, Iowa City police will be patrolling the downtown area on game day to ensure the safety of people in the downtown area.

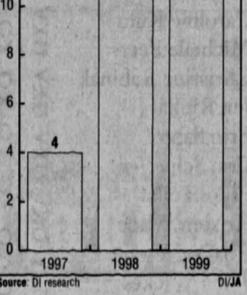

"People shouldn't have to be assaulted downtown because someone has been drinking heavily," Winkelhake said.

Police say they receive a higher number of assault reports than the number of people actually arrested each weekend. Eight persons were arrested for assault and domestic assault during the past three weekends. Of these eight, three occurred in the downtown area.

Four people were arrested for assault the weekend of Aug. 18-20, three downtown. No one was arrested for assault the weekend of Aug. 25-27.

AOL-Time Warner merger hits snag

Antitrust lawyers are pressing for concessions on Internet access from the two media titans.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal antitrust attorneys are prepared to block the proposed merger of America Online and Time Warner unless the companies agree to let competing services use their high-speed cable lines, sources familiar with the government review said Monday.

The Federal Trade Commission lawyers are concerned that in markets where Time Warner operates cable systems, there is no other way for competing companies to get high-speed Internet access, according to a source who confirmed a story first reported by the Washington Post.

The source, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said discussions are ongoing between the government, Time Warner and AOL, and they will continue until a compromise is reached.

A spokesman for the commission, Eric London, declined to comment on the negotiations.

"This is an early point of the process, and the decision is up to the commission. Obviously, these discussions are part of the process that could lead eventually to action by the commission," he said.

AOL spokeswoman Kathy McKiernan said the two companies "are fully committed to open access." She noted that Time Warner recently reached an agreement to open its cable TV lines to Juno Online Services.

New York-based Time Warner is the nation's second-biggest cable TV operator. Together, Time Warner and Dulles, Va.-based AOL would control 40 percent of the Internet access market and 20 percent of cable-equipped homes.

NBC, ABC and consumer groups have criticized the merger, saying it could result in an unfair concentration of power.

New York-based Juno offers both free and paid Internet access and is the third-largest Internet service provider after AOL and EarthLink.

Troubled Firestone averts tire strike

A rough road lies ahead for the tire maker, as probes into its faulty tires continue.

By Joe Stange
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — With contract disagreements apparently out of the way, troubled tire maker Bridgestone/Firestone Inc. and its workers say they're ready to roll up their sleeves and concentrate on the task at hand: making good tires and replacing bad ones.

"We're going to do everything we can to restore the public's faith in the company," said John Sellers, a lead negotiator for more than 8,000 Firestone workers represented by United Steelworkers of America.

Firestone and union negotiators reached a tentative agreement on three-year contracts governing workers at nine U.S. factories, averting a potential strike.

Union leaders and the Nashville-based tire company agreed on broad terms late Sunday and continued Monday to work out the details.

The tentative agreement consists of one master contract that covers seven factories and two local contracts in two other factories.

Sellers said once the tentative agreement is ratified by union members, which observers expect to happen later this week, "then everybody will be focused on the business of making tires."

While Firestone managed to avoid a strike, the company's troubles are far from over.

The company is in the midst of an effort to replace 6.5 million recalled tires, and a federal investigation continues into 88 U.S. traffic deaths allegedly linked to faulty tires.

Congress will begin hearings this week aimed at learning when the company knew about the defects.

Last week, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration issued a consumer advisory that said an additional 1.4 million tires could be dangerous and should be replaced.

And Venezuela's consumer-protection agency has recommended that Ford Motor Co. and Firestone be held criminally responsible for 46 deaths linked to allegedly faulty tires.

All of this loomed in the background as negotiators bargained day and night in a suburban St. Louis hotel, stretching the talks past a Sept. 1 deadline.

"The timing could have been better," Firestone chief negotiator Saul Solomon said of the troubles haunting his company outside the negotiation room. "But I think both parties here wanted to get this done."

"The recall happened in the middle of the process," said Sellers from the union. "We tried as hard as we could to prevent that from becoming a factor."

Labor Day was a holiday for Firestone, which shut down its LaVergne, Tenn., plant at 6 a.m. Monday. Production was scheduled to resume at 6 a.m. today.

Normally, the company hosts a picnic for workers. "I guess they were just a little too busy with other things," said Firestone employee Frank Tuttle.

Worker Jim Ash added, "We need the company for jobs, but they need us for quality products, particularly with the mess they're in now."

Workers in Decatur, Ill., got word of a settlement in a conference call from their union president during a banquet they held after Decatur's annual Labor Day parade.

Surprise earthquake jolts California valley

Two are hospitalized after a Napa Valley trembler catches geologists off guard.

By Kim Curtis
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Even in earthquake-prone California, the sharp jolt that caused millions of dollars in damage in the Napa Valley caught residents and experts alike off guard.

Two people remained hospitalized Monday, one in critical condition.

The magnitude 5.2 tremor struck at 1:36 a.m. Sunday approximately 6 miles northwest of Napa near the small town of Yountville — an area that seismologists hadn't even mapped for faults.

"As far as we know now, it's a previously unknown fault," said Pat Jorgenson, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park. "It shows that we don't know it all. Mother Nature still has surprises for us."

She said it was probably an offshoot of the San Andreas Fault.

The abrupt shock threw Gary Price out of his bed.

"We woke up, and there was glass everywhere," said Price, 43, who has lived in the area for almost 20 years. He expects he'll have to pay at least $1,500 to replace his broken television, videocassette recorder and other property.

Moderate quakes can strike anywhere in the seismically volatile Bay Area, geologists said. But the Napa Valley is far down the list of places where they're expected.

"I don't think anybody would have put a magnitude 5 out there," USGS geologist Steve Walter said. "It occurred in an area of fairly sparse seismic activity. That whole region north of the bay is much less active than the South Bay."

Ben Margol/Associated Press

Arturo Elias carries blankets from a Red Cross emergency shelter at the First Baptist Church Monday in Napa, Calif.

The epicenter was three miles from the northern end of the nearest previously known fault, the West Napa, Jorgenson said. But the West Napa, although well-documented and considered active, hasn't produced a significant earthquake since the late 1800s, she said.

The last strong quakes near Napa hit in October 1969. The quakes, magnitudes 5.6 and 5.7, were centered in Santa Rosa, 17 miles east, she said.

Philadelphia poises for teachers' strike

After a weekend of talks, union leaders schedule a strike vote.

By Michael Rubinkam
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Negotiators for the School District and a teacher's union spent Labor Day at the bargaining table, trying to avert the city's first school strike since 1981.

The school year is supposed to start Thursday for more than 200,000 Philadelphia students. But after a weekend of contract talks failed to yield an agreement, the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers scheduled a strike vote for this morning.

Under state law, the union must give the district 48 hours' notice of a walkout.

Teachers' union President Ted Kirsch said Monday that negotiations were not progressing and that the executive board was recommending the teachers strike.

"We have responded positively and creatively at the table, willing to break ground on each and every issue to improve education in the district. But at the 11th hour, it has become apparent that the district has no intention of honoring their side of the bargain," union spokeswoman Barbara Goodman said.

Hundreds of teachers gathered in downtown Philadelphia for a Labor Day rally, where the Rev. Jesse Jackson spoke. The educators pledged solidarity and vowed to strike if necessary.

"It's going to hurt the children. Is the board really thinking about the children?" said first-grade teacher Jacqueline Chapman, wearing a sandwich board that read "Striking for safe schools" on one side and "$$$ for schools before stadiums!" on the other — a reference to the city's plans to spend hundreds of millions on new baseball and football stadiums.

Mayor John F. Street, who hand-picked the School Board, which is now locked in negotiations, took to the podium and tried to reassure the teachers of the city's intentions.

"There's nothing that we would like more than to get a contract," he said.

The 21,000-member union has so far rejected the district's proposals to extend the school day and school year, increase copayments for health insurance, institute a pay scale based on teacher performance rather than years of experience and level of education, and give principals more say in teacher job assignments. Currently, vacancies are filled through seniority.

'Millionaire' fever sweeps India

■ A Hindi version of "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" has hooked nearly everyone in the subcontinent.

By Ramola Talwar Badam
Associated Press

BOMBAY, India — It's hard for anyone in India these days to state a simple fact — their name, address or the day of the week — without a friend asking, "Are you sure?"

That's the catch phrase of the newest Indian TV hit: a Hindi-language version of the American quiz show "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire."

The show, hosted by the country's all-time top movie star, Amitabh Bachchan, is India's most popular TV program ever. Millions of Indians are hooked, dreaming of winning the rupee equivalent of $219,000. The stock phrases used in the show, "Who Will Become a Holder of 10 million?" — rupees, that is — have become part of the culture.

And in a typical local reaction to the chance to win loads of money, Indian viewers are trying to figure out whom to bribe to get on the program.

Indians are not alone in their obsession.

Versions of the show are licensed and on the air in 31 countries, from Finland to South Africa, and 19 more companies have opted to start local versions soon. In most places, it's a big hit.

The show's set, music, question format and contestant qualification process are set out in a 169-page guide that the creators, Celador Productions Ltd. of Britain, provide with the license.

It's like when the Beatles went to America. They became a global domination.

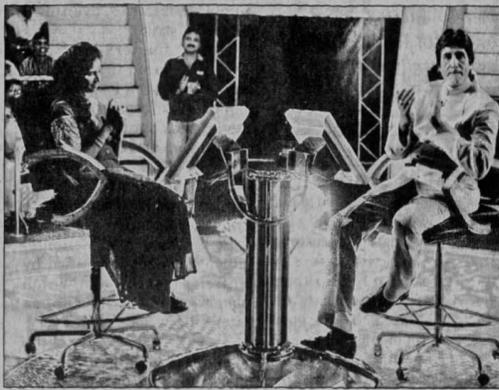

— Colman Hutchinson, the executive producer of the original British show

"The show is pretty much the same the world over," said Colman Hutchinson, the executive producer of the original British show.

But there are local variations.

It's called "Oh Lucky Man!" in Russia. In Spain, it's "50 for 15," meaning 50 million pesetas for the 15 questions it takes to win the grand prize.

Japanese audiences didn't take to "Millionaire" because of a cultural bias against individuals who flaunt wealth. Swedish authorities banned the show, saying it violated laws against lotteries. Many candidates in the last Russian presidential race went on the program, though eventual election winner Vladimir Putin wasn't among them.

"None of us thought it would be the global success it has been," Hutchinson said. "It's like when the Beatles went to America. They became a global domination." Launched on July 3 by Rupert Murdoch's Star TV, the Indian version, called "Kaun Banega Crorepati," was an instant hit.

Just as Regis Philbin, the host of the American show, tortures the audience and contestant with "Is that your final answer?" the Indian show's host asks squirming would-be millionaires: "Are you sure?" "Confident?"

Barak: Time running out for peace process

■ The Israeli leader warns that there are just a few weeks left in which to reach a Mideast peace treaty.

By Karin Laub
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak warned Monday that he will give a Mideast peace treaty only a few weeks to be concluded, raising the possibility of failure ahead of crucial talks with President Clinton during this week's U.N. summit.

The formal deadline for a treaty, Sept. 13, is widely expected to be missed. The real target date for Barak is the end of October, when an increasingly hostile Israeli Parliament reconvenes. Lawmakers are expected to try to topple him because of concessions he has already made to the Palestinians. With a treaty in hand, he could seize the initiative and call early elections.

Barak has said it is now up to the Palestinians to compromise, and Israel's Foreign Ministry said Monday the prime minister is not planning to present new ideas to President Clinton.

The president is scheduled to hold separate talks Wednesday with Barak and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat as part of the summit.

Shortly after arriving in New York for the summit, Barak headed for U.N. headquarters to meet U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan. As he entered the building, a reporter noted that it was a historic time and a historic place for historic decisions and asked what he thought.

"I do hope and I pray, but I don't know," Barak replied.

In their talks with Clinton, Barak and Arafat are expected to respond to U.S. compromise proposals presented to them last week by U.S. Mideast envoy Dennis Ross, said a senior Palestinian official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Both sides described the sessions with Clinton as a make-or-break moment in the tortuous peace process, which began with a mutual recognition treaty in 1993.

In a statement Monday, Barak said a crossroad has been reached in talks with the Palestinians, and that while opportunities were great, time for concluding a deal was running short.

"It does not have to be a matter of days, but it cannot be a matter of months. We are talking about a few weeks," said Barak, who is one of more than 150 world leaders in New York for the U.N. Millennium Summit.

A senior Israeli official, speaking aboard Barak's plane en route to New York, said on the condition he not be named that if it became apparent in the next few weeks that peace options have been exhausted, the prime minister would invite hawkish opposition parties into his government. Such a secular coalition could pursue what Barak has termed a "civic revolution" that would lessen the power of religious parties.

— Ehud Barak, Israeli prime minister

Arafat adviser Nabil Aburdeneh also said that this week was decisive. "Either we reach a formula that we can build on and the negotiations resume, or we reach a deadlock," Aburdeneh said, speaking from Arafat's headquarters in Gaza City.

Aburdeneh would not rule out a Clinton-Barak-Arafat meeting, or talks between the Israeli and Palestinian leaders in New York if a formula was found.

The most difficult issue on the agenda is Jerusalem, with Arafat insisting on sovereignty over all of traditionally Arab East Jerusalem, including holy shrines sacred to Muslims and Jews. Barak has offered Arafat some control in East Jerusalem, home to more than 200,000 Palestinians, but not over the holy sites.

The U.N. summit is an opportunity for both Barak and Arafat to intensify their diplomatic offensive and try to deflect blame for a possible breakdown of the negotiations.

It does not have to be a matter of days, but it cannot be a matter of months.

Eat your fruit and veggies, recommend cancer experts

■ Dietary supplements are no substitute for a proper diet, nutritionists say.

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Nutritionists call the survey alarming: Older Americans — the people most at risk for cancer — say that they're popping unproven dietary supplements in a quest for tumor-fighting nutrients rather than trying to eat cancer-preventive foods.

With this newest trend added to those hot fad diets and the nation's rising obesity rate, cancer experts are increasingly worried. Americans don't seem to heed the warnings that what you put on your plate day after day can truly influence whether you'll get cancer.

Eating more fruits and vegetables must not be a sexy enough message.

"That's why the food supplements industry is worth $40 billion and why the (profit) margin on vegetables and fruits is so small they don't even get advertised," Dr. John Potter of Seattle's Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center says in frustration.

There's no proof yet that pills and powders prevent cancer, and some supplements may actually increase tumor risk, Potter notes.

"This is of real concern. We need people to focus more on factors we know are cancer-preventive," adds nutritionist Melanie Polk of the American Institute for Cancer Research, which conducted the recent survey of 1,010 people. More than half of respondents over age 55 took vitamins specifically to lower their cancer risk — and a quarter took additional supplements such as garlic or fish oil — but just 39 percent preferred the proven method of changing their diets.

So today, the cancer institute will launch a major campaign to teach Americans what a cancer-preventive diet looks like:

Fruits, vegetables, whole grains and beans should cover two-thirds of the dinner plate.

Many factors play a role in cancer. Lung cancer, for example, is the world's leading cancer killer, and tobacco is almost always the cause.

But bad diets — continually bad, not the occasional indulgence — are a culprit, too. People could cut their risk by one-third simply by eating more fruits and vegetables, concludes an exhaustive scientific review led by Potter.

Gov't owes Indians $10 billion, tribes claim

■ For more than 100 years, the U.S. has mishandled a trust fund, a lawsuit says.

By Matt Kelley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal officials admit that for the last 113 years, the government has mishandled $500 million in trust accounts for American Indians.

But they say U.S. District Judge Royce Lamberth overstepped his authority with rulings ordering a full accounting of the money and appointing himself overseer of reform efforts. He also has held two Cabinet secretaries in contempt.

The government is appealing Lamberth's December ruling in a 4-year-old lawsuit brought by American Indians, who contend that they are due more than $10 billion because of the mismanagement. Arguments are scheduled for today before a three-judge federal appellate court panel.

Emotions are high on both sides. Lead American Indian lawyer Dennis Gingold has referred to government lawyers as "dumb and dumber," while Assistant Interior Secretary Kevin Gover has called the plaintiffs "potentially a very dangerous and destructive force."

Lawyers for the more than 300,000 trust account holders contend that the appeal shows that the federal government — particularly Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt — is more interested in blocking attempts to get the money than righting a wrong.

"In the outside world, if you screw up with people's money, you end up in jail," said Elouise Cobell, a Blackfeet Indian who is the lead plaintiff. "That's the problem here, that the Department of the Interior has never had to pay for what it has done to screw up people's lives on Indian reservations."

Cashless Iraq charges students

■ In a country where the average salary is $48 per year, fees can range up to $12.

By Walei Faleh
Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — With the start of a new school year, Iraq has begun charging students to attend classes at public schools.

An Education Ministry official said Sunday that the annual fees would be used to maintain buildings, add to teacher salaries, and buy such supplies as chalk and blackboards.

Fees will vary depending on the student's age, ranging from $1 per year per student to $12.50. An average Iraqi family has four children in school; the typical Iraqi salary is approximately $48 a year.

Iraq, once wealthy because of vast oil reserves, had offered free education from kindergarten through the highest university degree.

The Iraqi economy has been destroyed by war and international trade sanctions imposed to punish it for invading Kuwait in 1990. Aid groups say children have been hardest hit by the economic collapse, with many families unable to provide their children enough food and medicine, and some taking them from school and sending them out to beg or work.

The cash-strapped government has been unable to build new schools for years, resulting in serious overcrowding. Classrooms built for 30 now routinely hold 50 or more — even after schools resorted to double sessions.

started school on Sept. 1. "It is becoming harder and harder for us to raise our children the way we were raised," said Mustafa Radhi, 36, the father of two students and a civil servant.

Radhi said his monthly salary is the equivalent of $3.50; he must pay a total of $6 in tuition for his two children.

Fakhir Tawfiq, the principal of one of Baghdad's elementary schools, said he has had to put off maintenance for years. Windows are broken and walls need repairs, he said.

"The cracks in the walls are so big, birds started building nests inside them," he said.

It is becoming harder and harder for us to raise our children the way we were raised.

Colombia hunts for financial aid

■ The South American nation needs help in covering governmental expenses.

By Javier Baena
Associated Press

BOGOTA, Colombia — Colombia's finance minister traveled to Washington Monday to seek U.S. support for a $1.2 billion bond offering needed to cover government expenses.

The trip follows a request during President Clinton's visit last week for U.S. tariff exemptions on Colombian textiles and clothing as a complement to a $1.3 billion U.S. anti-narcotics aid package.

Colombia has argued that it needs economic help in addition to military aid to successfully combat drug trafficking — the top U.S. policy priority in the South American country, which produces 90 percent of the world's cocaine.

Finance Minister Juan Manuel Santos was scheduled to meet today with Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers and request his help in persuading lenders — including the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank — to back the planned bond sale.

A U.S. nod of approval will help "dispel doubts in international markets about Colombia's ability to pay its future debts," Santos told the local Caracol radio station.

The trip aims to "restore confidence" among international organizations in the Colombian economy, said a statement released Monday by Santos' office.

A severe recession in Colombia has cut into tax revenues, and some analysts believe that the government will be unable to pay some of its estimated 800,000 workers by the end of the year without new funding.

The opposition-led Congress, however, opposes the tax increases, public pension cuts and state-owned enterprise selloffs proposed by President Andres Pastrana, claiming these would unfairly punish the poor.

Amid escalating violence in a 36-year guerrilla conflict, Colombia has seen its currency sharply devalued during the past year, foreign investment shrink and the country's debt ratings downgraded.

Unlike the past governments, we will take a firm stand against the honor killings.

— Shaheen Sardar, the chief of Pakistan's women's rights commission

"suspicion of immorality on the part of the victim," the independent Human Rights Commission of Pakistan says.

Most such killings occurred in the Northwestern province, which borders Afghanistan. Afghanistan is ruled by the orthodox Taliban, which bars women from work and education and forces them to wear veils.

Pakistan to junk anti-women laws

■ The South Asian nation's military rulers also want to combat violence against women.

By Amir Zia
Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Pakistan's military-led government has pledged to scrap discriminatory laws against women, combat violence against them, and promote female literacy, but hitting these targets remains an uphill task in this poor South Asian nation.

A new national commission has started work this week to end sex discrimination and protect women's rights, the commission's chief, Shaheen Sardar, said from the northern border city of Peshawar. Peshawar is the capital of Pakistan's conservative Northwestern Frontier Province.

Reviewing laws that are particularly harsh toward women and implementing reform will require a lot of hard work and political will, she said in an interview Sunday.

The new government has been empowered by Pakistan's Supreme Court to amend the Constitution and enforce new laws — without having to secure the approval of Parliament. The Parliament has been suspended since last October, when the military seized power in a bloodless coup. The commission includes senior government officials, rights activists and social workers.

One of the top items on the commission's agenda is to curb so-called honor killings of women by their relatives. In a country where centuries-old tribal and feudal traditions

Violence rages on in Burundi

■ A week after a peace deal was signed, at least 60 have died in attacks.

By Jocelyne Sambira
Associated Press

BUJUMBURA, Burundi — At least 60 people have died in fighting between Hutu rebels and government soldiers in the week following the signing of a peace agreement to end Burundi's seven-year civil war, officials said.

The violence continued Monday, a military official said; rebels ambushed two passenger buses, killing one person.

Col. Gabriel Gunungu, the governor of Burundi's southern Makamba province, said seven people were injured in the morning attack in the area near the Tanzanian border. Rebel activity has been on the increase in the past week in the area, which is approximately 90 miles south of Bujumbura.

On the night of Aug. 30-31, at least 20 rebels and four government soldiers were killed in a clash in the area, said an official source who spoke on condition of anonymity. In the Kanyosha region, southeast of the capital, local authorities said approximately 40 people had been killed since Aug. 31 in crossfire between rebels and soldiers.

Elsewhere, unidentified gunmen killed two civilians and wounded two others Sunday night just north of Bujumbura, local official Janiver Rwimo said. Also Sunday, rebels and troops clashed in an area 12 miles south of Bujumbura, local official Emmanuel Buragiyie said. He did not have any reports of casualties.

Heavy fighting has been reported for the last two weeks in the area, known as Bujumbura Rurale. An estimated 5,000 people have fled.

At least 200,000 people, most of them civilians, have been killed in the fighting, which erupted in October 1993 after the assassination of Burundi's first democratically elected president, a member of the majority Hutu community. Tutsis, who are in the minority, have run the tiny central African country for all but four months since independence in 1962.

The latest violence comes in the days after the country's Hutu rebels and four of its 10 Tutsi political parties refused to sign the peace agreement.

The agreement was brokered by former South African President Nelson Mandela, and the Aug. 28 signing was witnessed by President Clinton. Burundi's President Pierre Buyoya, who signed the accord with misgivings, was joined by members of his government and the National Assembly as well as Hutu political parties and six Tutsi parties.

Gore, Clinton

■ The GOP ticket of Al Gore and Dick Cheney is expected to win its fall campaign with a state tour.

By Tom Ramm
Associated Press

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Opening his fall campaign weeklong tour, George W. Bush taunted rival Al Gore on Monday for rejecting his offer of presidential debates. "I'm suddenly the words 'anywhere' don't mean anything," Bush told a Labor Day crowd in Naperville, Ill. Gore, coming off a campaign sprint through the states, tried to keep his pitch to working-class voters that he would be the best candidate for the economy and harder for Americans.

"We've got a lot at stake in this economy in particular," said in Pittsburgh. "I think people have done better than there are more jobs." As for Bush's $1.3 trillion cut plan, Gore told supporters the Louisville Motor Show in Kentucky, "I'd veto that in a minute."

The chamber said its policy statement that calls for a major contributing factor to the problem is binge drinking — that is not shared by local businesses.

Gore, Bush spar over debates

■ The GOP ticket opens its fall campaign with six-state tour.

By Tom Raum

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Opening his fall campaign with a weeklong tour, George W. Bush taunted rival Al Gore on Monday for rejecting his offer of three presidential debates. "All of a sudden the words 'anytime, anywhere' don't mean anything," Bush told a Labor Day rally.

Gore, coming off a 27-hour campaign sprint through several states, tried to keep the focus on his pitch to working families that he would be the better steward of the economy and work harder for Americans.

"We've got a lot at stake, our economy in particular," Gore said in Pittsburgh. "Working people have done better and there are more jobs."

As for Bush's $1.3 trillion tax-cut plan, Gore told supporters at the Louisville Motor Speedway in Kentucky, "I'd veto that in a minute."

Gore, the Democratic presidential candidate, and running mate Joseph Lieberman appealed to working-class voters in a six-state Labor Day weekend tour. The two campaigned together in Pennsylvania, Michigan and Florida, then Gore hit the trail on his own in Kentucky while Lieberman made solo stops in Ohio and Illinois.

Bush and running mate Dick Cheney together opened a campaign push through six Midwest battlegrounds: Illinois and Michigan Monday, with Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio to follow later this week.

In Illinois, Bush made a disparaging remark Monday about a reporter from the New York Times that was picked up by a live microphone.

As Bush stood on the podium waiting for music to finish, he turned to Cheney and used an obscenity to describe reporter Adam Clymer in the nearby press area. Cheney agreed with Bush's assessment. Both men thought their remarks were off-mike.

Karen Hughes, Bush's spokeswoman, said the remarks were "a whispered aside to his running mate. It was not intended as a public comment."

Clymer said, "I'm disappointed in the governor's language."

Cheney refused to discuss it. "The governor made a private comment to me. It was a private comment, and I don't plan to say anything about it," he told reporters later in Chicago.

The Republican presidential candidate, meanwhile, tried to keep up the pressure on Gore to agree to Bush's proposed debate schedule as the Gore campaign held open the possibility for negotiations over the three prime-time matchups.

"Just yesterday, we had an interesting example of Washington doublespeak," Bush told a rally in this heavily Republican Chicago suburb before he and Cheney walked in a parade.

"My opponent said he would debate me any place, anytime, anywhere," Bush continued. "I said fine, why don't we just show up ... and discuss our differences."

Two of the debates Bush accepted would be 60-minute appearances, one Sept. 12 on a special prime-time edition of NBC's "Meet the Press" and Oct. 3 from Los Angeles on CNN's "Larry King Live."

UI senior softball player Brooke Cross agreed.

Chamber calls on UI for alcohol aid

"Seventy percent of alcohol sales in Johnson County don't take place in bars," Beckord said. "That type of drinking is very hard to stop because it's not as controlled as in a bar."

The chamber said in its policy statement that drink specials are a major contributing factor to underage and binge drinking — a view that is not shared by some local businesses.

"If minors end up drinking, it's because they find a legal friend, not because of drink specials," said Ingrid Madsen, a manager at the Q Bar, 211 Iowa Ave.

The City Council will ultimately make a decision about binge and underage drinking. Councilors agree that there is a problem but are undecided on the best way to approach it.

"Something has to be done, and putting our head in the sand is not the way to deal with it," said Councilor Connie Champion.

The chamber's recommendations will be one of the factors that the council will consider, said Councilor Ross Wilburn.

Beckord stressed that the entire community will have to be involved in dealing with the problems associated with underage drinking.

"This is about a change in behavior," he said. "Laws alone will not change behavior."

UI freshman Sarah Fortune said that although she, too, felt safe on the UI campus, she would like to see more lighting around the doors and behind buildings.

According to the report, aggravated assault has also risen, from one reported incident in 1998 to 26 in 1999.

The number of persons cited for alcohol- and drug-related offenses in 1999 was 334, down from 1998's 358.

"I'm sure Public Safety could have something better to do, like protecting us instead of just checking for alcohol," said UI freshman Shannon Dunn.

In addition to the sex and alcohol crimes listed, Public Safety's statistics also showed seven other felony categories with little or no change since 1998. There were no murder or manslaughter reports, no non-forcible sex crimes, one robbery, 53 burglaries, nine motor vehicle thefts and one case of arson — as well as 100 arrests for drug violations.

Be wise with the federal budget surplus ...

Save programs we need

With approximately two months left until Election Day, both George W. Bush and Al Gore are more eager than ever to tell American families exactly why his tax-cut plan will help them more than his opponent's. Bush is promoting across-the-board tax cuts, while Gore promises a series of targeted tax cuts and credits that support such ventures as college education and affordable child care.

With respect to the candidates' targeted audience for their tax-cut plans, it makes sense to sort all of this out as if we were one big American family. We've been putting money in for years, only to see Mom and Dad spend it all and then some, putting the rest of us in debt. Now, we're finally faced with the pleasant surprise of a large budget surplus and the question of how to use it.

(Under Bush's plan), our extra money would most likely end up in the hands of Ford and IBM.

We could all start putting less money into the communal pot, allowing us to buy more things for ourselves and not have to deal with Mom's and Dad's wishes. Or we could use the money to help us buy the things we really need. We'd all keep putting about the same amount of money into the pot, but Timmy would get some of his money back when he was ready to go to college, and Mary would get some of hers back to pay someone to watch over her daughter while she went to work. We'd know that our money would be there when we really need it.

Although somewhat oversimplified, this example illustrates what would be the best way for the nation as a whole to deal with the budget surplus. Bush's across-the-board tax cuts would give us all extra money to use as we see fit, but most of those tax cuts will end up being spent rather than saved. Our extra money would most likely end up in the hands of Ford, IBM and other large corporations.

Gore's plan doesn't provide as many immediate material benefits as Bush's, but his system of tax credits and increased deductions provides more assurance that our extra money will be there to finance things that help us all, such as education, child care and health assistance. Financially responsible families would save their windfalls for needs such as these, and Gore's tax plan exhibits the same values.

Online elections could bring ...

A 'Net increase in voting

As the election draws near, and as our society becomes more centered on the computer, Internet voting may soon be an alternative on Election Day. Already, many organizations are working to become the first to provide this service. Because the traditional system is seen as disjointed, inefficient and "resource intensive," many people are pushing to speed the process along. And although it has a few areas of concern, the benefits appear to be tremendous.

If Internet voting were to become an option, the most easily observable result would be an increase in voter turnout. In a recent study, 48 percent of those polled said they would vote online if that were an option. More importantly, there would be an increase in the number of 18- to 24-year-olds at the polls. This group (let's admit it — it's those of us who are undergraduates) has traditionally been absent from the polls, but it is also the group that spends the most time online. Because it would be an alternative and not a replacement, there would still be the option to vote the traditional way, which would retain the older generation's vote as well. Simply put, voter participation would increase dramatically.

In addition, online voting would be much more convenient. Often we excuse not voting because of a lack of time. Many people would feel more inclined to vote if they could do it with a few clicks of a mouse. Such conditions as working late, living outside of town and weather would also be eliminated. They all become obsolete when you can vote from your computer at home or work.

Of course, Internet voting would have its drawbacks. The biggest problem with voting online is ensuring security and authenticity. There would also be problems with the "Digital Divide" — the gulf between those who have access to computers and the Internet and those who do not. However, with both methods of voting available, this is a problem that would most likely subside. As a result, voter participation and knowledge would only increase.

Internet voting would revolutionize our election system. So much of our lives is centered on computers, and it's time the government fully utilized the available technology to benefit our society.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Students should get their priorities straight

On Monday, when reading the DI, I came upon a phrase that really bothered me. In the article about the different experiences of five students at the UI ("Five experience here and now at the UI," Aug. 28), I came across a line that read, "School is going to have to take priority this year because his (William Holscher's) parents expect him to have a high GPA ..."

I'm glad that he will put school as a high priority, but his reasoning is poor to say the least. He wants to have the Animal House experience of college, while his parents want him to be a good student. Now, maybe I'm just crazy, but I thought the whole point of college was to make it priority No. 1, to come away with a quality education. I personally don't want to be put on a waiting list for a class because someone who would rather be partying happened to sign up first and may never show up.

Now, I'm not saying the person in the article will be this way. But I know there are people like this at the UI. And for all those people, I say, "I'm here to get an education and school is MY first priority," then maybe YOU shouldn't be taking up class space.

Tortorich should get his sub facts straight

I read with great interest Mr. Tortorich's editorial titled "Let Confederate sub fade into history," (DI, Aug. 22). His concern for the recent resurgence of regionalisms within the United States is a valid topic for an editorial. Unfortunately, his treatment of this important topic in terms of the H.L. Hunley is off base and does not do justice to either his original premise or the facts of the project.

The H.L. Hunley was the first submarine to sink an enemy vessel in time of war. We now know that its engineering was extremely advanced for its time and far outstripped the supporting technology available in an agrarian economy. The willingness of its three crews to volunteer to operate an untried technology speaks directly to that spirit of sacrifice and courage that has subsequently defined submariners as a group to the present day. That all three crews perished illuminates the perils of armed struggle and the terrible loss that society suffers from the untimely deaths of its best and brightest.

The decision to raise the submarine was directly tied to the need to protect a war grave from looters and vandals and to preserve the birth of a technology that shaped the 20th century. Starting with P.T. Barnum and continuing through the years, a substantial bounty had been placed on the recovery of identifiable pieces of the Hunley for the antiquities trade. By the time we moved to raise the vessel, the bounty had exceeded $1 million. It would have been the height of irresponsibility to leave the vessel to its imminent destruction.

These issues are neither parochial nor regional — they are universal. It was not lost on those of us who worked for more than seven years on this project and finally raised the vessel that within a week of our raising a lost submarine, another submarine was lost with its full crew.

The tying of a project of this magnitude to the Confederate flag controversy was feeble at best. The bipartisan, diverse, international, national, state, local and private support and effort that culminated in the recovery of one of the most important artifacts of U.S. military history deserved better.

Fortunately, under the leadership of Sen. Glenn McConnell and the South Carolina Hunley commission, the exhibit at the Charleston Museum, the oldest museum in the United States, will present an accurate picture of this vessel's importance to the public. I would suggest that Mr. Tortorich or other interested individuals check the Friends of the Hunley official Web site: <http://www.hunley.org/>.

Welcoming change, for better or for worse

You live in Iowa City long enough and you start to notice the changes.

Little things creep up, like looking into the mirror and seeing a zit. And other major overhauls occur drastically, like looking in the mirror and seeing that you have grown a mustache.

Can you imagine moving to this town and looking at the Englert as anything but a movie theater? And imagine the thrill of incoming freshmen when they learn about the deal at the Airliner for $1.25 slices? One year ago, you could have been waiting to see Being

John Malkovich in an old historic theater after eating dollar slices some Sunday night — but not now. After the movie, you could have gone to Livardo Café and had some coffee while you did your reading for the week, but now you end up eating more slices of pizza at Pizza on Dubuque.

Sure, these aren't all major changes. Imagine how much economic history is contained in this town, though, by envisioning lines outside the Sports Column every night and not outside Brothers. Or just the history of the Ped Mall: How long until I mention Three Women Peeing in a column and my readers think I'm some kind of scatophile?

With any change comes positive progress. As some restaurants close, as the Cottage moves from corner to corner, new independent restaurants arise. Two have come to prominence in the past year, serving entirely different kinds of food but sharing the quality of being independently owned.

Top Dogs Eatery downtown serves the type of hot dog you would find on the streets of Chicago. With a television in the corner, daily specials and delivery, the owners of Top Dogs are trying to turn a buck on the late-night college-aged crowd. For this reason, Top Dogs can expect to do a decent business on Thursday bar nights, but it should be frequented more often. Though hot dogs aren't my favorite food, supporting local independent business is one of my favorite pastimes. And Top Dogs is establishing itself as a quality fast-food-type dining experience that won't stretch your budget.

The Red Avocado has also established itself in the last year. As one of the best dining experiences in town, the Red Avocado has attracted many people around town who enjoy fine cuisine at a reasonable cost. Simply put, if you have amazingly good food with a wide variety of options, people will find your restaurant.

But the Red Avocado is so much more. The Red Avocado serves organic vegetarian food with options ranging from pastas to sushi, coupled with an atmosphere punctuated by outdoor seating, candles and the most eclectic collection of furniture and silverware you will ever encounter. I could rave on about the many meals I have devoured at the Avocado, but that is not the only reason to support this establishment. Like Top Dogs, the Red Avocado is independently owned. You can see the owner working day and night to serve people some of the best food in Iowa City, and his work is apparent when you sit down to dine. Good food in a cool atmosphere can be rare, which is why more people need to support this local independent restaurant.

In the long run, these restaurants will grow and evolve like the rest of Iowa City. At a time when so many people are talking about reinvigorating the Sycamore Mall and a major drive is continuing to save the Englert from becoming a bar, take a moment to support a local business that is owned and operated by people right here in town. If you don't, Iowa City will find itself looking in the mirror one morning and discovering that the zits have grown and the mustache has become completely unmanageable.

My name is Adam White. I'm a college senior, and I'm roughly 9 years old.

At least, that's what everyone seems to tell me.

Last week, Phillip Jones, the UI vice president for Student Services, mentioned in a discussion of student debt that students overcharge their credit cards not because of their own free-spending habits but because of the overabundance of credit vendors.

It's almost like he said, "Certain administrators wouldn't have built themselves a sparkling new office suite in the IMU if weren't for those darned subcontractors and their pretty carpet samples."

To be honest, I must disagree with Jones' assessment of the situation. Students blow money they don't have for the same reason Jones blows money we don't have — personal irresponsibility.

Every time we whip out the plastic, it's an affirmative statement that we agree to engage in a purchase; if we didn't want to spend the money, we'd just keep the wallet in the pocket.

Jones isn't the only one telling us that we are victims of a higher power when we do stupid things.

According to Washington, Joe Camel told us to smoke, and now we're all on the fast track to cancer.

on a few local groups that can and do use coercive power on the students, such as:

Iowa City water. You think second-hand smoke has plans for me? Forget it — the water that poured out of my Currier-room sink on the first day of freshman year was a lot more intimidating than the clouds of smoke that hover around the entrances of Schaeffer Hall at 20 minutes past the hour. Smoke wins the aftertaste portion of the competition, too.

Iowa City police. In order to protect me from myself, the Boys In Blue hang out downtown to make sure that my peers and I steer clear of those houses of ill repute where UI students might — brace yourself, people — ingest alcoholic beverages and dance in a less-than-Puritanical manner.

Goodness gracious and so forth! They now back up their "suggestions" with rifles that fire bean-bag bullets at me. If I get too rowdy, maybe they'll throw Matchbox cars at me or tip over my sandbox.

A 10 percent tuition increase. I expected rumblings of the annual increase soon but not this soon. One regent recently told the Press-Citizen that students could expect a 10 percent tuition increase this fall. Granted, that's $200 that I won't get to blow on credit-card scams, but it's also $200 that I won't get to spend on, say, meals I wouldn't have to boil. Protect me from

Dead or alive, character counts

We've all been counted in the vote on whether well enough should be left alone with President Clinton's mistakes, but as we select a new president, perhaps there is no better time to examine the degree with which we are truly familiar with the person who will lead our country.

In Arrogance of Power: The Secret World of Richard Nixon, a stunning new biography by Anthony Summers, allegations are made that the Watergate break-in was possibly the least of Richard Nixon's transgressions. Summers claims that not only was Nixon a wife-beater but that he abused drugs. In addition to that, an excerpt published in the most recent issue of Vanity Fair makes the case that Nixon secretly negotiated with the South Vietnamese leaders to stall peace talks in 1968, essentially to prolong the war and get him elected on the platform that he would end it.

What don't we know about Clinton? Kennedy? More to the point, what don't we know about Gore or Bush?

Given what we now may or may not know about Nixon, you have to ask what we don't know about other presidents. Watergate would appear to be the least of his crimes, thank God for small favors. What don't we know about Clinton? Kennedy? More to the point, what don't we know about Gore or Bush? We have long been cynics about the character of the people who lead us, and as time goes on, that cynicism is only more justified. Though some may not care for the exploration into the personal lives of presidents, the incessant and normally annoying ditch-digging by the media into the lives of these people may hold some value, if it can uncover a candidate with the potential to become Nixon. A balance has to be struck in the method of this "sifting" however; in finding the perfect person for the job, we can't forget that he or she is human.

Unfortunately, we may not have much of a choice of candidates in this election, but the word should be out: The blinders are off.

Twenty-four notes. That's all it takes to settle comfortably into Wicked Revelry, the new live CD from Chicago roots-rockers Hello Dave. The 24-note welcome is courtesy of lead guitarist Mike McGohan, whose first solo phrase on the opening track "Mountains" feels so at home over the rhythm section that the listener can't help but feel the same way.

And once the mood has been set, McGohan, lead vocalist Mike Himebaugh, bassist Allen Wetzel and drummer Brian Resendiz never let it leave. Not until the audience has risen to its feet, danced, sung, and even joined the band on stage for some backing vocals.

But this is no CD review. So why sit at home listening to what it would have been like to hear the opening solo on "Mountains" when you can experience it for yourself tonight at the Q Bar, 211 Iowa Ave., when Hello Dave returns to Iowa City. The DI caught up with Himebaugh by DI: First, tell me the story behind the name.

MH: Well, back in the days before we had a name, we had this sound guy named Dave. And old Dave, he was lacking in a few departments. We'd be up on stage and we'd be like, "Dave, can we get a little more lead guitar? Dave? ... Dave? ... Hello? Dave?"

DI: What keeps the band coming back to Iowa City?

MH: Man, it is always so much fun here. There is always so much energy in the Q Bar. I remember our last show there. At one point, everyone in the audience was down on their knees or on their backs for about 30 seconds, and then they all sprang up together. Everyone is just so friendly. There's usually three or four groups having get-togethers afterwards, and we love that.

DI: On the flipside, what keeps the fans coming back to see Hello Dave?

MH: That's a damn good question. I guess it's because they're having just as good a time as we are. All of them just walk out of the show all sweaty, with big smiles on their faces.

DI: You started playing guitar in 1989. Before music came along, what were your career aspirations?

MH: Oh, I was completely going to go pre-veterinarian. Then that turned into pre-med. Between my second and third year of school was when the music thing started. Mom and Dad said to just try to graduate. And I did. Well, I didn't actually graduate. I finished school, but I still have a library fine so I never got my diploma.

DI: How did the idea for a live CD arise?

MH: One reason was, we were doing a lot of different recordings with different producers, but there was something about our studio recordings that didn't sound like us live. We wanted to capture the sound of our live show. So we said, let's just record at a club in Chicago, and that's what we did.

DI: So what's in store for the fans tonight?

MH: The party's going to be at the Q Bar. That's all I can say.

MTV out to shock, not just rock

As its award show nears, the question is, can the MTV Video Music Awards top themselves?

By David Bauder
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Quick quiz: Who's won the most MTV Video Music Awards? Bonus question: Who won the most awards last year?

Question three: Who cares? Awards are never really the point of the Video Music Awards, anyway.

The show's real purpose is to create those pop culture moments that make you cringe or laugh out loud, preferably both. You're much more likely to remember Michael Jackson's creepy kiss with Lisa Marie Presley (1994), Busta Rhymes making time with Martha Stewart (1997), Prince's butt-less pants (1991), the first post-arrest sighting of Pee-wee Herman (1991) or Howard Stern's "Fartman" descending from the rafters (1992).

Pop music's annual outrageous party returns to New York's Radio City Music Hall this week, shown live on MTV at 7 p.m. Central Thursday. Marlon and Shawn Wayans, hot off their Scary Movie collaboration, are the hosts.

They have a tough act to live up to. The 1999 Video Music Awards, with Chris Rock as host, had the highest ratings in the show's 16-year history and, with 12 million viewers, was the top-rated entertainment program in cable television history.

Just because MTV's airtime is now dominated by such youthful acts as Britney Spears and 'N Sync, don't expect a G-rated slumber party.

"There is still a tremendous expectation on behalf of our audience members to completely surprise them, shock them, take risks, and do things that nobody else would do," said MTV President Van Toffler. "That hasn't changed even though the composition of the music has changed."

Toffler believes the openness of young fans to different forms of music is one of the factors driving up viewership in recent years.

"Having all of these stars, the biggest stars from all these genres of music, tends to bring in a bigger audience than we might typically get when we were doing just a rock show," he said.

The nominees for the year's best video reflects the diversity: rapper Eminem, punk rockers Blink 182, soul star D'Angelo, boy band 'N Sync and veteran rockers Red Hot Chili Peppers.

Except for D'Angelo, each of those artists is scheduled to perform, along with Sisqo, Christina Aguilera, DMX, Janet Jackson, Rage Against the Machine and Spears. Presenters include Dr. Dre, Chris Rock, the Rock and Sting.

Eat as I say, not as I survived

FRANKLIN, N.H. (AP) — Believe it or not, eating rats and fending off snakes weren't the hardest parts of being a "Survivor," Jenna Lewis says.

The Franklin High School graduate, hailed at a homecoming Sunday by several hundred parents and children, said she suffered most during her stint on the popular television series from being away from her twin 4-year-old daughters.

"My biggest fear is one day my kids are going to be in the sandbox digging up earthworms and I'll say, 'Don't eat that.' And they'll say, 'But you did, Mommy,'" said Lewis, 23.

The single mom, who now lives with her daughters in San Francisco, spent 27 days on an island in the South China Sea before being voted off during the ninth of "Survivor's" 13 episodes.

Aguilera's lost weekend

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — It was a weekend that pop star Christina Aguilera would sooner forget.

First, she lost her voice, forcing her to cancel a scheduled appearance at the New York State Fair Sunday night. Then souvenir-hunters stole golf clubs, pyrotechnics and a gym bag worth more than $1,000 from her tour bus.

Two Syracuse University students who had been partying with Aguilera's crew members on the bus while it was parked outside a hotel on campus were charged with larceny and burglary, police said.

Versace mansion sold

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The South Beach mansion where Italian designer Gianni Versace partied with celebrities and died at the hands of a serial killer is now owned by a North Carolina businessman.

On Sept. 1, Peter Loftin, a telecommunications entrepreneur, purchased the 12-bedroom, 13-bath home decorated with frescoes, mosaics and wooden floors for $19 million.

Loftin, the 42-year-old chairman and chief executive officer of BTI Telecom Corp., plans to make the Mediterranean-style palazzo a part-time home.

Versace, 50, was shot twice in the head by Andrew Cunanan on July 15, 1997, as he walked up the steps of his home in the trendy Art Deco district.

Yes, they're the great pretenders

BOSTON (AP) — A federal judge has sided with a former member of the 1950s-era band the Platters who sued to stop a band with the same name from performing.

The judge granted original Platter Herb Reed's request for a preliminary injunction on Sept. 1, halting a concert that evening in Lawrence, approximately 20 miles north of Boston, by a knockoff band with the same name.

"I've been fighting for a couple of years all these phony people going around calling themselves the Platters," Reed said. "You've got to draw these battle lines."

Cowboy nailed injuries

Joey Galloway is the year and both Q may not play Sunday

IRVING, Texas — Galloway was supposed to turn around Dallas Cowboys. Instead, a knee injury has turned upside down.

Tests Monday revealed torn ligament in the receiver's left knee that require season-ending surgery. Making matters worse, terbacks Troy Aikman and Randall Cunningham were as questionable for tonight's game in Arizona.

Aikman suffered his career concussion in the quarter of Sunday's 41-17 win over Philadelphia. The mauling him all nine tries to throw, resulting in sacks and five incomplete passes.

Aikman was still dizzy and having trouble Monday. If his symptoms continue Tuesday, it's unlikely he would play.

"Let me be sure we're about one thing: I'm not interested in any way of getting his long-term well," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said. "If you think I'm here pushing him to get out there on behalf of a ball game, the answer is no."

Cowboys nailed by injuries

Joey Galloway is out for the year and both QB's may not play Sunday.

IRVING, Texas — Joey Galloway was supposed to be the guy to turn around the Dallas Cowboys. Instead, his knee injury has turned things upside down.

Tests Monday revealed a torn ligament in the wide receiver's left knee that will require season-ending surgery. Making matters worse, quarterbacks Troy Aikman and Randall Cunningham are listed as questionable for Sunday night's game in Arizona.

Tough baptism of fire for young Hawkeye team

The Iowa volleyball team fell to top-ranked UCLA in its opening weekend of play.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

Respect was something that coach Rita Buck-Crockett and the Iowa volleyball team found hard to come by last season. Though Iowa dropped all three of its opening weekend matches to ranked opponents at the Hawaiian Airlines Wahine Classic, Crockett said she felt that her team had finally earned some respect.

"We didn't look like 'just little old Iowa,'" Crockett said. "The other teams took us seriously and we really looked like we belonged."

Iowa opened the season by facing No. 1 UCLA Friday night and losing all three games, 15-3, 15-9, 15-3. The Hawkeyes gave the Bruins a stiff battle during the second game, putting together four straight points to take a 5-4 lead before the Bruins pulled ahead. UCLA eventually went on to score five of the last six points on its way to downing Iowa.

Saturday night, the Hawkeyes came out against No. 19 Texas A & M with their game faces on, and nearly took the first game before once more falling 3-0.

Katie Panhorst's serve for the win landed just outside the line, allowing the Aggies to come back for a 16-14 victory in game one before going on to take games two and three by identical 15-9 scores.

Fabiana de Abreu was pressed into service as a setter for the Hawkeyes following an ankle injury to Laura Pike earlier in the day. Crockett said de Abreu, a true hitter, showed her ability to play the floor by making the move.

Crockett also said the match with the Aggies featured some of the best rallies she has seen in her three years at Iowa. In addition to the rallies, the match also featured eight Iowa players hitting .200 or better, a first during Crockett's tenure.

Iowa's tournament run ended with another 3-0 setback to No. 5 Hawaii on Sunday. The tournament host scored the first eight points of game one en route to a 15-3 victory. It followed with 15-3 and 15-7 victories to ensure the shutout.

Though the Hawkeyes start the season at 0-3, Crockett said there were many successes to be taken from the opening week.

"We out-blocked every team, and I was very impressed with the way they handled coaching," she said. "Something would be said in time-out, and they went out and did it."

Crockett also gave credit to several players for their play throughout the tournament, including Carolyn Giese, who stepped up to give the team several blocks.

Also earning accolades were de Abreu, Renee Hill, Suzanne Bouchard and Jamie Lansing. "Lansing hit with the big guns," said Crockett. "She really impressed the coaches."

Lansing, one of the few returning members of the squad to see major playing time, said there is a noticeable difference in this year's squad.

"This was a really good first step for us," she said. "Our chemistry is much better than last year. It really makes a difference."

Crockett said the weekend matches will be a good learning experience for the young Hawkeyes as they move toward the regular season.

"The girls have their heads up," she said. "We got to feel important, and we did gain respect."

Rams win squeaker

The defending Super Bowl champs win a wild 41-36 shootout against Denver.

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

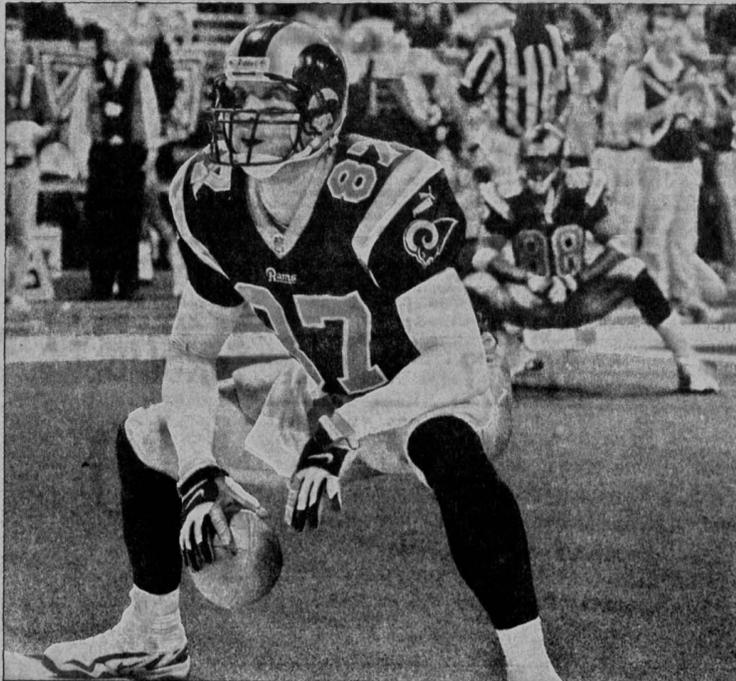

ST. LOUIS — It was just what the NFL wanted for Dennis Miller's first official Monday night game: a shootout in St. Louis.

Az-Zahir Hakim went 86 yards on a punt return and took a short pass from Kurt Warner 80 yards for another score as the Rams' scoring machine picked up where it left off last season and beat the Denver Broncos 41-36 in a battle of the last two Super Bowl champions.

But it took Robert Holcombe's 1-yard TD run with 2:58 left following a 30-yard run by Marshall Faulk to give the Rams the win. It came a little over three minutes after Terrell Buckley had returned an interception 25 yards for a score to give Denver a 36-35 lead after trailing by 15 points in the third quarter.

Warner, who was 25-of-35 for 441 yards, had three TD passes, two of them covering 152 yards in the third quarter on throws in the flat that were perhaps 20 yards in the air sideways. One was the pass to Hakim and the other, four minutes earlier, was to Faulk, who took it 72 yards for a TD.

But Warner also threw three interceptions, the one returned by Buckley and two by Al Wilson that stopped drives deep in Denver territory. Buckley's interception came when Warner tried one time too many to throw into the flat.

The Broncos were nearly as effective on offense although after Holcombe's TD the Rams defense finally asserted itself with sacks by D'Marco Farr and Kevin Carter. Then Grant Wistrom hit Brian Griese from behind on fourth-and-33, forcing his desperation pass awry.

Despite losing running back Terrell Davis to a twisted left ankle in the second quarter, the Broncos moved the ball almost as well as the Rams although not as quickly. Olandis Gary replaced Davis and gained 80 yards in 13 carries.

Griese, who was 19-of-28 for 307 yards, threw for two TDs and ran for a third.

At times, it looked like a game in the Arena League, where Warner apprenticed.

Both teams scored on all of their possessions in the second quarter until halftime stopped the Broncos.

And each scored again in the first two series of the second half, making it six scores in seven possessions with the difference the TDs scored by the Rams against field goals by the Broncos. In all, there were scores on eight of 10 possessions by both teams.

Griffin's dismissal leaves void in Hawkeye backcourt

Rob Griffin will not play this season due to "repeated violations of team policy."

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

Senior Rob Griffin was released from the Iowa men's basketball team in an announcement from Coach Steve Alford on Sept. 1.

"Rob has been dismissed from the team due to repeated violations of team policy," Alford said.

Current Hawkeyes contacted said they could not comment further regarding Griffin's situation.

Griffin joined the Iowa program last season following his playing days at Southeastern Community College in Burlington. As a junior for the Hawkeyes, he played in all 30 games, starting 19. He finished second on the team in scoring, averaging 12.2 points a game. The 6-foot-6 shooting guard also averaged 3.6 rebounds, while shooting 39 percent from the field and 40.1 percent from three-point range.

Griffin's success on the court was often overshadowed by what he said and did off it. He landed in Alford's doghouse early last season for academic problems and comments he made after the Jan. 5 game against Northwestern.

The Ypsilanti, Mich., native, said he was "looking forward to the Michigan State game so we could get another win." The Spartans blew Iowa away, 75-53, and held Griffin to just one point. Griffin said later he was "learning to be more humble."

The problems never subsided, and the 2000-01 Iowa team will be forced to take the floor minus a starter and scoring threat. However, after posting a 14-16 record last season, the Hawkeyes do have two starters and six lettermen returning for Alford's second year at the helm.

The hole left by Griffin will be filled by former Kentucky player Ryan Hogan and Arizona guard Luke Recker. Both are eligible this season after Hogan sat out the required one year after transferring.

Junior college transfer Reggie Evans joins five incoming freshmen as other new faces on this year's squad that's expected to be a contender for the Big Ten Championship.

Soccer nets two more wins

The Hawkeyes start the season 4-0 after a road trip West.

By Laura Podolak
The Daily Iowan

The women's soccer team continued down the undefeated path this weekend with two wins out West.

On Saturday, the Hawkeyes posted a decisive win over the UNLV Rebels, 3-0, and carried that momentum into Monday, when the Hawkeyes downed a pesky Utah State team, 2-1.

Iowa, now 4-0 early in the 2000 season, dominated both UNLV and Utah State on the offensive end of the field, outshooting them 21-10 and 18-9, respectively.

On Saturday, senior midfielder Shelly Batra scored the Hawkeyes' first goal of the game off assists by sophomores Sarah Lynch and Teesa Price.

Less than a minute later, Batra added an assist to her stats when she hit Lynch seven yards from the goal, who knocked it in for the second score of the game. The Hawkeye senior captain Kate Walse netted the final goal of the shut-out off an assist from fellow senior Beth Oldenburg.

The win over the Rebels marked the third shutout of the season for Iowa's sophomore goal keeper Liz Hendel.

On the Line
 The Daily Iowan

On the Line, The Daily Iowan's weekly college football contest, begins this week and will continue throughout the season.

Each week, whoever picks the most winners will receive a free pizza plus a T-shirt. The next five highest-scoring finishers earn a T-shirt.

The winners will appear Mondays in the DI, along with a breakdown of the weekend's games.

Every Friday, The Daily Iowan sports department, along with a celebrity guest picker, will offer up opinions regarding the week's contests.

Applications are due in the Daily Iowan office, 111 Communications Center, by 12 p.m. Thursday. Good luck and have fun with On the Line.

"Wild" Bill Bauer

OPENER: ELLE K

A comic's comic, Bauer has been described as "the most over-looked and underrated comedian in America" by the press as well as fellow comedians Tom Arnold and Louis Andersen. He has been seen on "Roseanne," written for and appeared on "The Jackie Thomas Show," and appeared four times on A&E's Evening at the Improv.

"Wild Bill Bauer is not your normal comedian. A brilliant writer with a unique and manic delivery style, Bauer combines his bizarre observations and weird personal tales into a show that is both shockingly funny and hilariously shocking."

Montreal Expos' Michael Barrett is forced out at second as St. Louis Cardinals' Placido Polanco throws to first, too late to double up Expos' Terry Jones in the seventh inning Monday.

Cards top Expos 4-2, Cubs lose to Rockies

With the win, St. Louis has won 15 of its past 19 games.

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Pat Hentgen pitched seven scoreless innings and Edgar Renteria hit a bases-loaded triple Monday to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-2 win over the Montreal Expos.

Hentgen (14-10) allowed seven hits and three walks as St. Louis reached a season-high 21 games over .500.

The Cardinals have won 15 of their last 19 and are 4-0 on the homestand. The Expos have lost eight of 11 and are a season-low 22 games below .500.

Renteria's triple off Javier Vazquez (8-7) came in the fourth inning a leadoff single by J.D. Drew and walks by Eric Davis and Ray Lankford loaded the bases with two outs. Renteria has a career-high 66 RBI.

Vazquez gave up three runs, four hits and five walks with 10 strikeouts. Vazquez is 1-3 in his last 11 starts with seven no-decisions and has not won since July 23.

Hentgen pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the third by striking out Vladimir Guerrero, who had been six for his last seven.

Guerrero struck out on a 3-2 pitch when plate umpire Mike Van Vleet ruled that he had swung at a pitch that was high and outside. Guerrero argued the call and was ejected.

Guerrero's replacement, Fernando Seguignol, hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning off Andy Benes, making his first appearance since going on the disabled list with an inflamed knee Aug. 19.

Tigers 5, Angels 0

DETROIT — Hideo Nomo pitched eight shutout innings as the Detroit Tigers dropped Anaheim below .500 by beating the Angels, 5-0, Monday night.

Damon Easley was 3-for-5 with two doubles and three RBIs for the Tigers, who have won four of five and remained five games behind Cleveland, which leads the AL wild-card race.

Giants 3, Phillies 0

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Bonds homered twice to top 40 for the fourth time in his career as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 3-0, on Monday for their sixth straight win.

Bonds hit solo shots in the third inning Omar Daal (3-17) and in the eighth off Jeff Brantley to give him 41 homers on the year. Bonds has 45 career multihomer games, 10th on the career list.

Russ Ortiz (12-10) allowed two hits, four walks and struck out five in 6½ innings to win his seventh consecutive decision. The right-hander extended his scoreless streak to 17 innings, dating to the second inning Aug. 25 at Philadelphia. He hasn't lost since July 29 at Chicago.

Rockies 6, Cubs 2

DENVER — Rookie Juan Pierre

went 5-for-5, and Todd Walker fell a single short of the cycle Monday as the Colorado Rockies beat the Chicago Cubs, 6-2.

Walker, who had three RBIs, and Todd Hollandsworth each homered for the Rockies. Colorado's most prominent Todd — Todd Helton — was 0-for-4, dropping his major league-leading average to .387.

Helton was hitting .397 a week ago but is 3-for-20 in the last six games. He also continued to struggle against the Cubs; he is 2-for-26 against Chicago this season.

Marlins 5, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Chuck Smith tied his career high with 11 strikeouts, and Preston Wilson drove in three runs as the Florida Marlins defeated the Houston Astros, 5-2, Monday.

Smith (4-5) allowed five hits and two walks in eight innings. He retired 13 of 14 batters between the first and fifth. Antonio Alfonseca pitched the ninth for his 39th save in 43 chances.

Rangers 5, White Sox 4

CHICAGO — Gabe Kapler hit a solo homer and Ricky Ledee hit a tiebreaking RBI single to lead the Texas Rangers to a 5-4 victory Monday over Chicago, snapping the White Sox's five-game winning streak.

Kapler hit his 11th home run leading off the fourth as the Rangers won for only the third time in 10 games.

Orioles 3, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Jose Mercedes won for the eighth time in nine decisions since the All-Star break, leading the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 win over the Minnesota Twins on Monday.

Mercedes (11-5), the only Orioles starter with a winning record, allowed one run and seven hits in 6½ innings. His second-half record is tied for the best mark in the AL with Pedro Martinez.

Indians 5, Devil Rays 1

CLEVELAND — Kenny Lofton's record run-scoring streak came to an end Monday, but Dave Burba pitched 7½ strong innings to help the Cleveland Indians maintain their AL wild card lead with a 5-1 victory over the Tampa Bay Devil Rays.

Lofton failed to score a run for the first time in 19 games. Lofton went 1-for-5 and remained tied with Red Rolfe of the 1939 New York Yankees for the major league record for scoring in 18 consecutive games.

Red Sox 5, Mariners 1

BOSTON — Pedro Martinez struck out 11 — and didn't hit anybody — and Nomar Garciaparra snapped a 15-game RBI slump Monday as the Boston Red Sox celebrated Carlton Fisk day by beating the Seattle Mariners, 5-1.

Making his first start since sparking last Tuesday's brawl with Tampa Bay by hitting the first batter of the game, Martinez (16-4) allowed six hits and one walk in eight innings before Derek Lowe pitched the ninth.

Athletics 10, Blue Jays 0

TORONTO — David Wells' bid for 20 wins was temporarily derailed by Mike Stanley and the Oakland Athletics.

Stanley went 5-for-5 with five RBIs, and Oakland scored seven runs in the first two innings to knock out Wells in a 10-0 win over the Toronto Blue Jays on Monday.

POINTCOUNTERPOINT

Is Joe Paterno past his prime at Penn State?

The situation at Penn State looks just like something that happened here in Iowa City two years ago.

A coaching legend, after years of success, gets passed up by the game.

It happened to a guy named Hayden Fry, and it's happening to a fellow named Joe Paterno.

After a loss to Toledo, the perennial power that it is, it looks as if Penn State football has hit an all-time low, and it looks as if Paterno is to blame.

His team has come out flat for both USC and Toledo, which says something about coaches getting a team ready.

His offense has averaged only 150 yards in its first two games, which verifies what people have been saying for years: Paterno's style of offensive play is out-dated.

Normally, in situations where teams come out ranked, then drop two games in a row as Penn State did, one could blame other things, such as lack of talent and strength of schedule.

But even as of last year, Penn State had a top-10 recruiting class. The Nittany Lions have their entire backfield back after last year. They have the talent, but they can't run the ball when the opposing team has seen the same plays called in State College since the '80s.

As for strength of schedule? They lost to Toledo, and badly so. No excuses there.

Paterno is a great coach, no doubt, but he has stayed past his prime. He had one of his most talented teams last year, and despite having the two top draft picks in the NFL Draft, Penn State lost three games. He was beaten by Toledo this year by 18 points.

I hate to say it, Joe, but it's time to go.

— Jeremy Schnitker

"Dance with the one that brung ya."

This political rule of thumb applies in the college sports world as well. It certainly applies to Joe Paterno and his woeful 0-2 start at Penn State this season.

Let's look at what Paterno has done in Happy Valley. Paterno has coached the Nittany Lions since 1966. That first season the team broke even, going 5-5. That's not even a losing season. In fact, the only season under Paterno in which the program actually had a losing record was 1988, when Penn State went 5-6.

The Lions have dropped their first two games of the year, including a 24-6 beatdown at the hands of MAC opponent Toledo. Not an attractive beginning to a Big Ten schedule.

Granted, any time a team does poorly the coach is partly to blame. Paterno hasn't changed his play book in several years and has been openly criticized by his own players for not doing so. However, those same players are the ones in the trenches playing poorly.

Paterno has taken the Lions to 30 bowl games, including one in each of the last 11 seasons. Add those stats to the fact that Paterno is fifth on the list of coaches for number of all-time victories, and they far outweigh an 0-2 start.

The Joe Paterno case is just another example of the "what have you done for me lately?" attitude that prevails among college fans these days.

With his résumé, Paterno should be able to coach until it is proved that he can no longer have the winning seasons to which Penn State has become accustomed. Wait until the end of the season to start speculating on coaching moves and let Paterno take care of business.

Braves beginning to falter amid pennant race

Atlanta is still on pace to win 95 games, but that is the lowest total wins for the club since 1991.

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

ATLANTA — Go ahead, take the division title. The Atlanta Braves insist.

No, no, no. The New York Mets don't want it. Can't they just leave it in Atlanta for another year?

On it goes, a so-called pennant race in which neither team will take control, flailing around in the NL East as if the thought of extending the season deep into October is downright revolting.

The Braves were off Monday, licking their wounds and trying to figure out how to escape the worst stretch of the year — five defeats in seven games, and eight of the last 11. Included is a season-high, four-game losing streak and three straight series losses, another first.

While Atlanta is still on pace to win 95 games, it would be the fewest victories in a full season since 1991, when the Braves began their unprecedented streak of eight straight division titles.

Last week, the players even called a rare clubhouse meeting, hoping that airing things out would turn things around. But Atlanta is only 2-3 since going behind closed doors.

"There's no panic in this club," manager Bobby Cox said, undeterred by a 9-3 setback Sunday to the lowly Houston Astros. "I think the day off may help us. Maybe it'll break things up a little for us."

Thanks to the suddenly clutch-less Mets, Atlanta was still clinging to a one-game lead in the East after going 14-15 in August and losing two of three in Houston to start September. The once-torrid Mets endured three straight final at-bat losses to St. Louis over the week-end and lost Monday at Cincinnati.

"The way both teams are playing," Braves outfielder Brian Jordan said, "you'd think no one wants it."

Atlanta could always count on its starting pitching, but Tom Glavine (18-6) has been out on a limb in recent weeks.

Greg Maddux (15-8) has put together solid numbers overall, but he's only 3-5 since July 18. Andy Ashby, acquired in an All-Star break deal, was rocked for five runs and eight hits in 3½ innings Sunday, taking his fourth straight loss. Kevin Millwood is not the same pitcher he was a year ago, plodding along at 8-10 with a 4.76 ERA. Overall, the staff ERA (4.22) is more than half-run above last year's and on pace to be the highest since 1990.

It's not all about the pitching. Chipper Jones, who agreed last month to a six-year, $90 million contract extension, has been a rather ordinary player since the All-Star break. He is batting just .259 with eight homers and 26 RBIs, including a current 8-for-48 slump.

Making those numbers more pronounced, Jones was always one of the Braves' most reliable clutch players. Until this year, he had a .306 career average after the break and clinched his first NL MVP award last season by hitting .324 with 24 homers and 53 RBIs down the stretch.

"You're going to go through a rut at some point in time," Glavine said. "Unfortunately,

"You're going to go through a rut at some point in time," Glavine said. "Unfortunately, we're going through it right now. When it's late in the season, it's magnified a little more."

Now it's up to Glavine to pull the Braves out of another slump. He'll start tonight in the opener of a three-game series against Arizona, taking on Randy Johnson (17-5) in a showdown between the two leading contenders for the NL Cy Young award.

The Diamondbacks are a desperate team, trailing the Mets by 4½ games in the wild card race. But Glavine is 8-1 when he's pitched after an Atlanta loss, and five of those wins came in August, putting a soft landing on the Braves' slide.

"It's a challenge," Glavine said. "You can't let the situation make you do things you're not capable of doing. I've just got to pitch my game."

Mourning: 2000 team best ever assembled

■ The USA basketball team arrived in Japan Monday.

By Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

TOKYO — The words "Vince" and "Carter" were not uttered a single time Monday when the U.S. men's basketball team arrived in Japan.

Apparently, news doesn't travel as fast as everybody thinks.

Coach Rudy Tomjanovich and center Alonzo Mourning represented the Olympic team at a news conference to promote the Super Dream Games 2000. The Americans play their first game of the exhibition tournament at 7 p.m. today (5 a.m. CDT) against Spain.

"We're looking forward to putting on a show," Mourning said.

A big part of that show will be Carter, who had a pair of standout performances in Hawaii as the U.S. team had easy victories over Canada and the U.S.

Select team in its first two exhibitions.

Carter scored 29 points in the first game on 7-for-9 shooting, then had 24 in the second game while shooting 10-for-10 from the field.

The showstopping performances, complete with Carter's usual array of spectacular dunks, have turned the early stages of the U.S. team's exhibition tour into a pre-Olympic version of "Vinsanity." But it would have been hard to tell from the news conference in Hawaii as the U.S. team had easy victories over Canada and the U.S.

It's definitely not McHusker, I'll tell you that," said the attorney for the Mutual of Omaha insurance company.

That doesn't stop Nebraska alumni who stop by his office from mentioning it.

"There's a lot of good-natured jawing going on that's part of the fun," McCusker said.

Life is bit harder for some Notre Dame fans living in Big Red country.

Colleen Warin's license plates proudly read "ND1" — prompting obscene gestures from other drivers. The plates were recently left hanging by one screw before some would-be vandals apparently took off.

A recent trip to a roadside stand to buy some corn topped that, Warin said.

This is the first trip to Japan for about half the players on the U.S. roster. Before boarding a plane in Honolulu for a seven-hour commercial flight, some members of the team got to watch the first few moments of the NFL season. Tim Hardaway was especially pleased when the Miami Dolphins scored a touchdown on their first possession.

After being greeted by photographers and a few fans seeking autographs at Narita Airport, Carter wasted no time preserving the moment by breaking out his video camera on the bus as the team made the two-hour trip to Tokyo.

Tomjanovich expects to have a tougher time against Spain today than against Australia on Friday when the U.S. team will be in Melbourne for its final exhibition game.

Women's swimming team gets new coach

The Iowa women's swimming team announced the hiring of Brian Schrader as the new assistant coach on Sept. 1.

Schrader joins the Hawkeyes after working with the men's and women's sprint teams at the University of Florida.

"I am very excited to have Brian coming in," Iowa head coach Garland O'Keefe said. "He can help us with recruiting, as he has connections we don't have now. He also has a good relationship with athletes he's worked with, so he should fit in quickly."

Before working with the Gators, Schrader worked with USA Swimming.

Religion divides Husker, Irish fans in Nebraska

■ In a state with lots of Roman Catholics, the Red Sea of Husker fans is split.

By Phil Rooney
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Fall Saturdays at the McDermott house were spent in two separate rooms, with one group of family members listening to broadcasts of Notre Dame football games and the others listening to the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

The dilemma continued last week as Dennis McDermott cut hair at this barber shop in southwest Omaha.

The Irish Catholic stood in front of a banner boasting of Nebraska's five national championships alongside a smaller Notre Dame pennant.

His customer: former Notre Dame lineman Keith McCormick.

McCormick has a national championship ring from 1977. McDermott's daughters attended the University of Nebraska.

This Saturday's Nebraska-Notre Dame football game is a rare event capable of dividing fan loyalties in this football-crazed state.

While most Nebraskans bleed Husker red, the Fighting Irish are not without their backers in a state where the largest religious denomination is Roman Catholic and many feel a sense of loyalty to Catholic institutions — including Notre Dame.

McDermott said his sister-in-law will attend the game in South Bend, Ind., dressed in a Notre Dame green sweatshirt and Nebraska red pants.

Catholic Nebraskans are seldom faced with the problem of picking sides on game day. The traditional powers have met only 14 times in the history of their 100-plus-year-old programs, with the Irish holding a narrow 7-6-1 lead in the series.

The last meeting came at least a generation ago in the 1973

Orange Bowl when Nebraska won 40-6.

One of the state's biggest Notre Dame boosters is Tom McCusker of Omaha, a South Bend native who grew up selling programs at Irish football games.

"I'm going to be a little biased, but I think we are the best team ever assembled. We want to take it to a totally different level."

— Alonzo Mourning, member of the 2000 U.S. Olympic team original Dream Team, won the gold medal in Barcelona in 1992.

"I'm going to be a little biased, but I think we are the best team ever assembled. We want to take it to a totally different level," Mourning said.

Anderson keeps his golden Notre Dame helmet in his office, but calls himself a Husker fan.

The farmer looked at her plates and asked if the "ND" stood for North Dakota. Warin proudly informed him it was for Notre Dame.

"This corn is going to cost you twice as much," the farmer responded.

She bought her corn somewhere else.

Warin, who works at Creighton University in Omaha, said she is not anti-Cornhusker.

"I'm very proud of the Cornhuskers. They've put this state on the map, but I won't be wearing red next Saturday," she said.

Car dealer Mickey Anderson played in Notre Dame's offensive line during the late 1980s and is happy to sell cars to fans of both teams.

"I can't lose on that game," he said.

Swimmer from Palau readies for Olympics — faces tough competition

■ Anloyd Samuel may not be the best, but he's all Palau has.

By Rob Gloster
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — He arrived from the tiny Pacific island nation of Palau ready to take on the world's top swimmers. Instead, he has struggled to keep up with a bunch of 8-year-olds.

Anloyd Samuel, an Olympian who had never been in a 50-meter pool before coming to Sydney in mid-August, could barely finish his first series of training exercises with some of coach Dick Caine's youngest swimmers.

"The first day he was here, he nearly died," Caine said Monday. "I thought, 'This is going to be torture.'"

Caine, who has trained several Olympic champions, was selected by Sydney Olympic organizers to help prepare Samuel for the 50-meter freestyle event at the games.

"I called them up and said, 'You've sent me a fellow who can't swim the length of the pool,'" Caine said. "I said, 'What are you doing to me? He's going to drown.'"

After a few weeks of intensive training with Caine at the Kogarah War Memorial Olympic Swimming Pool in the suburbs south of the Sydney Airport, Samuel now has little trouble swimming the length of the pool.

But he's still far from challenging Olympic favorites such as Alexander Popov of Russia or Gary Hall Jr. of the United States. While Popov has done the 50 in 21.64 seconds and Hall set an American record of 21.76 at the recent U.S. trials, Samuel's best is 27.23.

"I feel great," Samuel said. "But I do feel a little frightened."

Samuel was a basketball player who had no interest in swimming until some friends and a cousin talked him into competing in the pool at Palau's national games in 1997. He won eight gold medals and a silver.

Anloyd Samuel, 19, from the tiny Pacific island nation of Palau, sits next to a 50-meter swimming pool Monday.

"The first time I swam, I didn't think I was going to get any medals," said the shy Samuel. "But then I did well, so I started training hard."

He won 10 swimming gold medals at Palau's national games this July.

"His time maybe doesn't compare with the Australians and the Americans, but he's the best we have," Palau swim coach Bismarck Brel said. "Of course, we know we won't be close to the rest of the world, but we still want to be part of the Olympic Games."

Palau, an archipelago of some 340 tropical islands in the western Pacific, was the site of major World War II naval battles. Its coral reefs attract scuba divers from around the world.

A former U.S. trusteeship until it declared independence in 1994, Palau is slightly more than twice the size of Washington D.C. Its 18,500 citizens rely mostly on subsistence farming, fishing and U.S. aid.

The Sydney Games will mark the Olympic debut of Palau, which will be represented by two runners, two swimmers and a weightlifter.

ing the 1996 Atlanta Games, but none of the swimming.

After training at home, he was overwhelmed at first by Caine's 50-meter outdoor pool in Sydney — a place advertising "Adults - Learn to Swim" classes and crowded with youngsters and out-of-shape parents on a sunny Monday.

"The length is very long. Now I'm getting used to this distance," Samuel said. "I've never had to swim this much in my life."

The biggest adjustment, though, was to the Australian winter. Samuel said it rarely gets cooler than 80 degrees in Palau. The temperature in Sydney in August often dips into the 40s.

"You see him coming in the morning, and he looks like an Eskimo," Caine said.

Though Samuel still has trouble keeping up with some of the youngsters, his attitude has been a good example to kids who have been brought up to believe that winning is everything.

"As far as I'm concerned, Anloyd is the true story of the Olympics," Caine said. "He's not getting paid to wear sneakers, he's not getting a million dollars to say he eats a brand of muesli. He's from a country with no coaches, no facilities. He's not here to win medals. He's here to be part of the Olympics."

Top teams win; Ravens and Eagles emerge in first week of NFL

■ The Steelers and Cowboys seem to be in continuing decline

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

After one Sunday, the NFL had a familiar look.

Four of the five upper-echelon teams that played won, the only loser being Tennessee, which fell 16-13 in Buffalo in a road reprise of the "Music City Miracle."

As some suspected all along, the Ravens and Eagles played as if they might be this year's teams from nowhere — as the Colts and Rams were last season.

The Steelers are still plummeting, and the Cowboys looked as if they might be this year's 49ers, with Troy Aikman getting knocked out with his ninth concussion.

Washington, Tampa Bay, Indianapolis and Jacksonville all had ugly moments, but all won.

The Colts may have had the most impressive win of the bunch, simply because the game was in Kansas City, where the Chiefs had won their last 11 home openers and were feeding off the emotion of a pregame tribute to the late Derrick Thomas.

Uncharacteristically, the key play for the Colts was on defense — an interception returned 27 yards for a touchdown by Jeff Burris.

The Redskins' 20-17 win over Carolina was most notable for the work of 37-year-old Bruce Smith. He had two of Washington's six sacks and manhandled Clarence Jones, Carolina's journeyman left tackle.

"Anyone who thinks that Smith's tank is running on anything but full is wrong," Washington coach Norv Turner said. "He is a force."

Tampa Bay got the usual forceful play from its defense, a workmanlike job from quarterback Shaun King and won in New England. Banged-up Jacksonville got a break because its opener was in Cleveland.

Tennessee? Credit its loss Sunday night in Buffalo to the emotion the Bills carried over from their playoff loss last season. The game was played with the intensity of a playoff contest and almost ended the same way last year's game did — Derrick Mason was a shirthead away from breaking a kickoff for the winning TD in the final half-minute.

But for all those teams, things were sloppy. The always reliable Frank Wycheck dropped a TD pass for Tennessee that forced a field goal, and Eddie George dropped another pass when he took his eyes off the ball to look for a defender who was far behind.

"We made a lot of mistakes," said Colts quarterback Peyton Manning, who at 24 has the wisdom of an elder statesman. "Those kinds of things happen on opening day."

The biggest surprise Sunday was the Eagles. They entered this season improved, but they delivered a shocker with a 41-14 victory over Dallas.

And now the Cowboys, with Aikman down, might turn into last season's 49ers.

The Eagles, meanwhile, have four straight games coming up that could leave them at 5-0 — the Giants at home, at Green Bay and New Orleans, and at home to Atlanta.

Favre banged up after week one

■ Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre sprained his thumb Sunday.

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Brett Favre's attempt to regain his form just got a little bit harder.

Green Bay coach Mike Sherman said Monday that Favre sprained his right thumb during the Packers' 20-16 loss to the New York Jets on Sunday. Though Sherman said it isn't serious, the injury is yet another blow to a quarterback trying to recover from two sub-par seasons.

Favre missed the final three preseason games with tendinitis in his right elbow, and the three-time MVP played in pain Sunday while completing just 14 of 34 passes for 152 yards.

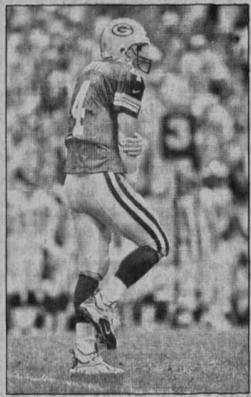

Sherman said the thumb injury occurred early in the second quarter when defensive end Shaun Ellis swatted the ball out of Favre's hands. Tackle Earl Dotson recovered the fumble, and Favre played the rest of the game.

"That thumb will not be an issue on this team, and neither will the elbow," Sherman said. "Quarterbacks get hurt in this league."

Favre went through a light workout at Lambeau Field on Monday with his thumb wrapped securely in bandages. Offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Tom Rossley said he isn't sure whether the injury will affect Favre's ability to practice for the upcoming game at Buffalo.

"He has come through a couple of bumps and bruises before," Rossley said. "You don't start all those games in a row without being tough."

With all the attention focused on Favre's tendinitis-stricken right elbow this season, the balky thumb that hindered him last year was nearly forgotten.

Last year, a bruised and swollen thumb contributed to a subpar season in which he threw 23 interceptions and failed to lead Green Bay to the playoffs for the first time in seven seasons.

After the Packers' loss Sunday, Favre — who has started 126 straight games, an NFL record — conceded he will probably play another season in pain. That could set up an interesting test of wills between Favre and Sherman, who has pledged to remove Favre from the lineup if the injuries significantly affect his play.

"I know I didn't hurt (the elbow) any worse," Favre said Sunday. "I was able to practice every day last week. I know how it's probably going to feel this week, maybe the rest of the year."

"I felt for the most part I threw the ball with a lot of velocity, and accuracy I thought was as close to normal as possible. It can get better with practice."

Still, the Packers' offense sputtered under Favre against New York. In the first half, Favre was 4-of-13 for 25 yards, and the Packers — who dropped five or six of Favre's passes in the game — managed just 55 yards of total offense before halftime.

"You can't put the blame on Brett," said receiver Antonio Freeman, who dropped two passes. "We couldn't run the ball, so we couldn't help the passing game. If you can't do one, it's hard to do the other."

Sherman, who has preached a return to fundamental football since replacing Ray Rhodes last winter, was particularly piqued by the drops.

"Those are definitely catchable balls," Sherman said. "On the film, you see balls bouncing off chests."

The Packers' offense won't get any relief from its running game any time soon, either. Sherman said Dorsey Levens, who underwent arthroscopic knee surgery during training camp, won't play on the artificial turf at Ralph Wilson Stadium in Buffalo.

Ahman Green, Levens' backup, played just three weeks after spraining his left knee but was mostly ineffective, gaining 41 yards on nine carries and losing one fumble. Favre, who gained 13 yards on two scrambles, was the team's second-leading rusher.

"If we had caught even two of the five drops, we wouldn't be talking about any of this right now," Sherman said. "Right now, (Favre) gives us a chance to win. I don't even think he was at 80 percent, but he's our guy."

2000 NFL takes on new face — it's not your father's league anymore

■ With a bevy of new stars, this year's NFL takes on a different look.

By Jim Litke
Associated Press

Any questions about this being your father's NFL were answered in the first five seconds.

Or so we hope. Because that was as long as it took the Philadelphia Eagles to disrespect their elders in Dallas. Yet whether that single play marked the beginning of a season of change or just one afternoon remains to be seen.

So don't throw away any scripts yet.

Still, in a league packed with risk-averse coaches and error-prone kids, it was as promising a cocktail — shaken, not stirred — as has been served up on an opening Sunday in a long time.

Second-year coach Andy Reid spent the last month talking about starting Philadelphia's season with an inside kick, but his staff wrote it off to training-camp euphoria. His players did, too, until special-teams coach John Harbaugh let a handful of guys from the kick squad in on the secret — just before they left the locker room.

"Guys were like, 'No. No way,'" Harbaugh recalled. "Then they thought about it and they were rooting for us to lose the coin toss."

The Eagles did, and it was the only thing they lost all afternoon.

Kicker David Akers' pop was recovered by Dameane Douglas at the 42-yard line and it turned out to be just the first in a long line of rude surprises.

In short order, a stoked Philly defense sacked Troy Aikman four times, the last one sending the Dallas quarterback to the hospital for observation with the ninth concussion of his career. After that, the Eagles relied on the arm of Donovan McNabb, the legs of Duce Staley and pickle juice to combat on-field temperatures reaching 170 degrees as they humbled the Cowboys, 41-14.

It's easy to read too much into a single play, even a single game. McNabb played like Aikman used to and Staley, who finished with 201 yards, ran like another No. 22, Dallas' Emmitt Smith, used to. McNabb and Staley are only second-year players, but the confidence Reid displayed in both his young stars and his defense with the opening gambit proved infectious.

"They have a nastier attitude," Cowboys coach Dave Campo said. "And they came in today and got after it. They blocked us, and we didn't get off our blocks. They whipped our butt."

At New England, Tampa Bay coach Tony Dungy played a similar hunch against the Patriots. Trailing 10-7 with less than a minute left in the opening half, quarterback Shaun King hooked up with Jacques Green for a 38-yard catch that landed the Bucs at New England's 8.

As he hustled downfield, King yelled at his teammates all the while. When they reached the line of scrimmage, logic dictated spiking the ball to stop the clock, so that's what the Patriots assumed the yelling was about. Instead, King took the snap and faked the spike, then straightened up and tossed a floater to Reidel Anthony for a touchdown. It was the last time Tampa Bay trailed.

"It's a play that probably works once every six weeks," Dungy said. "People will see it on film now, so it probably won't be effective for a while."

The real surprise is not that the play worked, but that Dungy was willing to find out. The coach's idea of wild-and-crazy offense is a long field goal, and it's understandable, given Tampa Bay's stingy defense and the limited playing time King has seen at quarterback.

But for one Sunday, at least, Dungy gave in to the kind of gambling impulse that Reid and a few other of his desperate brethren couldn't resist.

In Minneapolis, both Vikings coach Dennis Green and Dick Jauron, his Chicago counterpart, turned the game over to a pair of second-year quarterbacks and stood back.

When it was over, Daunte Culpepper had carried Minnesota to victory, but just barely, 30-27. He finished with less yards passing and running than the Bears' Cade McNown — 190 vs. 290; 73 vs. 87 — but rushed for three touchdowns.

Sampras wins on windy day

By Steve Wilstein
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Surrounded by 23,000 empty seats and buffeted by fierce winds, a no-nonsense Pete Sampras put an end to the U.S. Open fairy tale of South Korea's Hyung-Taik Lee.

Sampras, who holds a record 13 Grand Slam titles, found himself under extraordinary pressure Monday in the first set against Lee, a qualifier playing in his first major tournament.

Ron Frehm/Associated Press
Pete Sampras won 7-6 (5), 6-3, 6-2 against Hyung-Taik Lee Monday.

A nearly full house of fans at Arthur Ashe Stadium delighted in Lee's nervy, sturdy play amid the sweltering heat and humidity when play began during the afternoon. But after a cloud-burst suspended the match with Sampras leading 7-6 (4), 3-1, it took 2 1/2 hours before play resumed in chilly, windy weather.

Lee, a strong, quick baseliner who was unruffled by Sampras or the occasion, coped better with the four-time champion and the swirling breezes in the third set before finally going down 7-6 (4), 6-2, 6-4.

The stadium was virtually empty then, except for a couple hundred fans as the night crowd drifted in, and Sampras was in no mood to let the party linger much longer. He unleashed a 132 mph ace on his first serve and closed out the set by breaking Lee at love. Sampras advanced to the quarterfinals, where he will play Richard Krajicek, a 7-6 (11), 6-4, 6-1 victor over Dominik Hrbaty. Krajicek, the only player to beat Sampras at Wimbledon during the past eight years, holds a 6-3 lifetime advantage over him.

"He's a guy who gives me a lot of trouble," Sampras said.

Lee gave Sampras a lot of trouble at the start. Sampras was impressed not only by Lee's return of serve, but his ability to stay calm in the biggest match of his life.

"He was cool as a cucumber," Sampras said. "He's a good player. ... He wasn't overwhelmed by the situation, playing me on center court. He came out and held his own."

"But after I got the first set, I started to settle down and started playing a little bit better and just went from there to deal with the rain. And then coming back, dealing with the wind and the cool weather, it was a completely different match from the first set."

Sampras fended off three break points in the sixth game of the first set and won the tiebreaker only when Lee inadvertently touched the net with his foot as he rushed in for an overhead on a short half-volley by Sampras. Lee thought no one would notice. Sampras didn't, but the umpire did.

Sprint records unlikely to fall

■ Sprinters will have to deal with headwinds at Sydney's Olympic Stadium.

By Bert Rosenthal
Associated Press

BRISBANE, Australia — Don't expect Maurice Greene to break his world record in the 100-meter final at the Sydney Games. Florence Griffith Joyner's world records in the women's 100 and 200 appear safe from Marion Jones' clutches.

World records in the distance races also are unlikely, despite the expected cool weather.

Although the forecasters are predicting temperatures in the 60s for late this month when the track and field competition is held — from Sept. 22-Oct. 1 — the sprinters will be buffeted by the expected headwinds in 110,000-seat Olympic Stadium.

While the distance runners — from 1,500 meters through the marathon — should find the conditions ideal, history dictates that world records in those events will stand.

"I don't think the times are going to be as fast as everyone thinks (in the sprints)," said Ato Boldon of Trinidad & Tobago, the 1996 bronze medalist in the 100 and 200, who already has competed in the stadium.

"The wind blows almost directly down the straight into which the 100 meters is run. That's not something that sprinters love."

When Greene set the world record of 9.79 seconds at Athens, Greece, last year, the weather was hot and the wind negligible. The same conditions existed when he ran 9.80 in winning the 1999 world championship later at Seville, Spain.

When Canada's Donovan Bailey set the 100 world record of 9.84 in 1996 at the Atlanta Games, he also was the beneficiary of warm weather and little wind.

"The times this year don't matter," Boldon said. "You run to win. The Olympics is when time matters least."

That's what Jones should be thinking. She is facing a Herculean task in trying to win an unprecedented five gold medals and will need to pace herself to remain fit for five events — the 100, 200, 400 relay, 1,600 relay and long jump.

She has come the closest to breaking FloJo's marks of 10.49 in the 100 and 21.34 in the 200. Jones' best times are 10.65 and 21.62, both at altitude. Sydney is at sea level, so that will not help her.

If the weather is cool, "it will have a physical and psychological effect on the sprinters and jumpers," said Ernie Gregoire, an assistant U.S. women's coach in charge of the long jumpers, triple jumpers and hurdlers.

"The ballistic athletes depend on warm weather," he added.

Include the throwers in the group that prefers the warmth, said Jerry Quiller, an assistant U.S. men's coach responsible for the distance runners from 1,500 meters through 10,000 meters.

"Sprinters, jumpers and throwers don't want to have to compete with their sweats on," he said. "The distance guys will love the cool weather unless it's windy. If it's just cool, they'll be fresher after running their heats or rounds."

Despite the gloomy forecast for the sprinters and jumpers, Gregoire thinks world records are possible.

"When you get in this kind of situation and the adrenaline starts flowing and there's that quest to be No. 1, great things happen," he said.

"Special events bring out special times from special people."

U.S. high jumper Kenny Evans doesn't think anything special will occur in his event if the weather isn't warm.

"In that case, I don't think people will jump as high," he said. "People will just have to tough it out in the cold weather."

"I don't know of anyone breaking the world record when it's been cold. I don't think anything explosive will happen."

American long jumper Melvin Lister doesn't believe the weather will be a factor.

"If you're feeling good, the record will fall," he said. "If not, it won't."

Abdi Abdirahman, a member of the U.S. 10,000-meter team, said, "It depends on how cold it gets. If it's real cold, it might not help set a world record, but the cold probably will help some people get PRs (personal records) by a couple of seconds."

"I prefer the cooler weather, not cold," he said.

No matter the weather, distance runners don't often set world records at the Olympics, because most of the races are tactical.

Of the top performances in races between 1,500 and the marathon, plus the walks, very few happened at the games. Going into this year, the highest-standing mark from the Olympics was 27:07.34 by Ethiopia's Haile Gebrselassie in winning the 10,000 meters at Atlanta, and that ranks only 18th.

Redskins sign Stephen Davis

■ The running back could be the highest paid player ever if he earns all incentives.

By Joseph White
Associated Press

ASHBURN, Va. — The wacky nature of NFL contracts has hit a new high.

Running back Stephen Davis' new deal with Washington is the first in league history to have a maximum value of more than $100 million, although realistically it is worth much less.

The Redskins formally announced the deal Monday. Strictly by the numbers, the contract covers nine years at $90.75 million with an extra $45 million available in incentives, making the total possible package worth a staggering $135.75 million.

However, only the $6.5 million signing bonus is guaranteed. The deal is otherwise purposely designed to be renegotiated early and often to keep the team from bursting the salary cap.

"They can live with this contract the first two years, that's the way we created it," said Steve Weinberg, Davis' agent. "They don't have to go to Stephen Davis in 2000 or 2001 to create some cap room."

Nearly all major NFL contracts have similar structures designed to bend the cap as much as possible. The previous most lucrative contract is believed to be the nine-year, $85.5 million deal signed last year by Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman, and Aikman almost certainly will be long retired before that one expires.

A more realistic estimate of the worth of Davis' contract is three years at $15.75 million, with incentives that could max out at $32.55 million. The contract actually gives the Redskins about $800,000 more cap room for this season than Davis' previous one-year, $3.532 million deal, possibly allowing the team to get to work on a new multiyear agreement with quarterback Brad Johnson.

Weinberg and director of player personnel Vinny Cerrato tried to avoid the media glare by negotiating last week at a Baltimore restaurant, where the waiter thought his customers were two guys talking over a fantasy football game.

The fantasy turned into reality when the deal was signed just before Saturday's 4 p.m. deadline, putting the contract in effect for Sunday's season opener.

who collected eight saves in the game.

The game statistics for Monday were comparable with those compiled during Saturday's competition.

The names Walse and Lynch lined the score card again this game, with Walse scoring the first goal of the game, a four-yard shot at the 16:31 mark in the first half. Walse was assisted by sophomore Julie Atkocaitis and senior Linzy Wolman.

Lynch's goal was also scored in the first half, when she nailed the ball into the net from 20 yards out. Lynch was assisted by senior captain Sarah Keifer.

The only goal the Aggies put on the board was assisted by Iowa, which committed a foul late in the first half, giving senior Jayme Gordy a penalty kick which she pounded home.

The Hawkeyes will resume play Friday, when they take on Iowa State in Ames at 4 p.m.

Questions arise after Aikman's latest concussion defender. On Monday, while squeezing a glob of Silly Putty borrowed from his kids, he said he expects to be ready.

Jones said he's looking into bringing in another quarterback, preferably a veteran. He already plans to put Galloway on injured reserve and activate rookie Clint Stoerner off the practice squad. Galloway, incidentally, was Dallas' third quarterback.

Galloway's receiving skills made him the centerpiece of the Cowboys' offseason overhaul of its offense. To get him, Jones gave Seattle two first-round draft picks and signed the speedster to a $42 million, seven-year contract.

Galloway caught four passes for 62 yards in the opener, including a 4-yarder in the fourth quarter for the Cowboys' lone touchdown. He was hurt on Dallas' third-to-last snap. Jones said he had no problem with Galloway still being in the game, even though running back Emmitt Smith was long gone.

Galloway had a similar injury two games into his sophomore year at Ohio State in 1992.

"He's distressed about it, very down," Jones said. "But he basically told the doctor and told me there's no issue about rehabbing from this so he can play next year."

Aikman's health is much more of a concern. This is his third concussion in his last nine games and with each one comes the question of how many more he can — or will — take.

The cumulative effect of concussions has ended many careers, most recently Steve Young. A generation earlier, Roger Staubach called it quits because concussions were coming too easily, although he was 38.

"I think Troy is astute enough, smart enough to know when he can get on the field and perform at his best and whether he's at risk," Smith said. "He's going to need all the professional advice he can get and make the decision for himself."

Last season, Aikman, 33, suffered a concussion early in a game in Indianapolis and returned. He played the next week and a relatively light blow gave him a second concussion. He sat out the next two weeks.

Jones said doctors consider the latest concussion less severe than the one against the Colts.

The injuries are only part of the Cowboys' problems.

Both lines looked horrible in the opener, resulting in five sacks and 306 yards rushing allowed, the most in team history. The 27-point loss tied their worst in 41 home openers and they've already matched their number of home losses last season.

Cincinnati beat 23-17 in Monday

CINCINNATI (AP) — threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to beat Army 23-17.

EAST LANSING, Mich. — ball coaches don't believe in the season.

But when Michigan Bobby Williams lauded Monday, he had good reasons.

"It's quite obvious they've dominated the conference the past few years. They have far superior talent than the rest of that league," he said. "So I think this is a very, very tough opponent."

Michigan State host Saturday in the Spartan opener. But Marshall played one game — a 40-10 victory over SE Missouri State.

And the record book shows the Spartans a 10-2 record, which includes a 13-0 triumph, the Herd was 13-0 last season. Motor City Bowl victory.

And you don't have to remember when Marshall suffered embarrassing losses to Central Michigan in 1991 and 1992 seasons that we lost to we're very familiar with said Williams. "But that's the way it is. I think they're a cut above the league they play. The talent they have played, they have. The little bit of an imbalance because they've had it we haven't."

Cincinnati beats Army 23-17 in Monday game

CINCINNATI (AP) — Deontey Kenner threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to Jason Collins-Baker with 6:11 left as Cincinnati rallied to beat Army 23-17 on Monday.

Kenner completed 18 of 29 passes for 239 yards for Cincinnati, which overcame a 17-13 deficit in season opener to snap a six-game losing streak in conference USA.

"Deontey played great as expected," Cincinnati coach Rick Minter said. "We must continue to use him to the best of his ability for this team to be successful."

Army lost its first game under coach Todd Berry, the former Illinois State coach who took over after Bob Sutton was fired following a 3-8 season.

Williams impressed with Marshall

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Football coaches don't bad-mouth opponents, especially just before the first game of the season.

But when Michigan State coach Bobby Williams lauded Marshall on Monday, he had good reason.

"It's quite obvious from the way they've dominated the Mid-American Conference the past three years they have far superior talent than the rest of that league," Williams said. "So I think this is going to be a very, very tough opener for us."

Michigan State hosts Marshall on Saturday in the Spartans' season opener. But Marshall has already played one game — a 63-7 drubbing of SE Missouri State last Thursday.

And the record book is enough to convince the Spartans not to take Marshall for granted.

While the Spartans are coming off a 10-2 record, which includes a Citrus Bowl triumph, the Thundering Herd was 13-0 last season with a Motor City Bowl victory.

And you don't have to be very old to remember when Michigan State suffered embarrassing back-to-back losses to Central Michigan to open the 1991 and 1992 seasons.

"I was here those two disastrous seasons that we lost to Central, so we're very familiar with the MAC," said Williams. "But this team here, I think they're a cut above the rest of the league they play in because of the talent they have. We haven't played, they have. There will be a little bit of an imbalance there, because they've had one game and we haven't."

horoscopes

Tuesday, September 5, 2000 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Sudden changes, limitations or frustrations will develop when dealing with legal matters or contracts. You can make financial deals; however, be sure you don't overextend yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may feel like breaking up with your partner today. Don't make rash decisions. You are overreacting, and it is important that you calm down. Talk to someone you trust first.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Put in some extra hours at work and it will pay back big-time. You can talk your boss into doing things your way if you are diplomatic in your approach.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can meet someone very special if you go out on the town with close friends. Don't try to hold onto something that has been over for a long time. You may not like change, but it can be good.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will find it difficult to deal with family matters today. Someone you love will be impossible to get along with. Caustic language will lead to physical confrontations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Social events will open romantic possibilities as well as bring you in touch with individuals who can lead you to higher positions. Use your resourcefulness to capture the interest of others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Opportunities will develop through talks with superiors. You can make changes in your home environment. Real estate will be profitable if you act fast. The change of location will be your good.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You won't gain anything by taking revenge. You need to listen, observe, and then focus on getting ahead in a dog-eat-dog industry. Your greatest payback will be success.

GEMINI (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't let minor details stand in your way. Deal with them as quickly as possible and get on with business. You can make positive changes at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Too much activity will be exhausting. You must talk over confusing issues. Be prepared to leave if that's what's required. Don't let anyone handle your financial affairs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will be tempted to push too hard or to take drastic measures in order to get things done. Friends may lead you astray unintentionally. Don't believe everything you hear.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Learning and observing will be the key to getting ahead. Take notes. Be sure to delve deeper if something remains unclear. You can achieve your goals if you're willing to follow that small voice within.

Bush, Clinton tune on

As Election Day nears, both presidential campaigns are ready to go on the attack.

By Jesse Elliott The Daily Iowan

Early in the Democratic and Republican campaigns, both parties promised they would not take part in attacks that sought to hurt their opponents in a negative light. But as the Nov. 7 election fast approaches, both parties are changing tune.

Two new television commercials portraying Al Gore as a candidate who pulls anything to the public this weekend as part of his GOP campaign. The Republican National Committee sponsored which describe Gore as "venting" himself —
