Frat not responsible in Garofalo death

■ The dismissal of the suit against another fraternity brother is also upheld.

By Nicole Schuppert
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Supreme Court decided Thursday to uphold a district-court decision that the UI's Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity was not responsible for the 1995 alcohol-related death of pledge Matthew Garofalo, then 19.

The court also affirmed the dismissal of the suit against Timothy Reier, a former member of the fraternity who was at the house the night Garofalo died. However, the court said Garofalo's parents may choose to pursue legal action against Chad Diehl, the former fraternity member who purchased the alcohol that Garofalo consumed.

Diehl, who declined to comment, was assigned to be Garofalo's mentor, or "big brother." Following a "Big Brother/Little Brother" ceremony on the evening of Sept. 7, 1995, members went to their rooms for a traditional toast to celebrate the relationship, the ruling said.

It was at this time that Garofalo drank beer and hard liquor and began to

ISU, UNI may copy UI's fee separation

■ The regents will discuss the two schools' proposals this month and vote on them in October.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

Officials at the University of Northern Iowa and Iowa State University have asked the state of Iowa Board of Regents to separate mandatory fees for some services that were previously covered by tuition.

They hope to redirect a portion of those fees, which cover the cost of nonacademic student services and activities, to improve the quality of the universities, mirroring what the UI started doing this school year.

The UI is redirecting $76 of those fees per student this school year, and $78 of a proposed $387 in mandatory fees next year. That is the result of the regents' approval of a proposal by UI President Mary Sue Coleman in October 1999.

For the UI, the reallocated fees are expected to generate approximately $3.8 million over two years that the UI will use for library improvements, financial aid, a writing initiative and classroom equipment.

The regents will discuss the ISU and UNI proposals at their Sept. 13-14 meetings, which will be held at the UI, with a vote scheduled for October. Officials say the regents will likely OK the proposals.

Under ISU's proposal, a $56 student activity fee of the $326 in proposed mandatory fees, which were previously covered by tuition, would be rerouted to improve quality at ISU. ISU plans to use the $1.5 million in the 2001-02 school year for financial aid, library improvements, improving information technology and keeping class sizes down. Andy Tofilon, the director of intergovernmental affairs for the ISU Government of the Student Body, said ISU officials proposed the fees in an effort to stay competitive with the UI. The university's student body government was forced to support the separation of tuition from mandatory fees so it would be on level negotiating ground in the tuition debate with the other universities, he said.

"Because the UI did it last year and UNI was leaning that way, we felt we had to split up the fees. It was going to happen regardless," Tofilon said. "(But) we don't like the idea of splitting up the fees. We have a lot of problems with it."

The redirected fees add another burden to student's pocketbooks, he said. "It's like hitting students three times instead of one," he said of a proposed 5.2 percent tuition increase for inflation, 2 percent for quality and 2.7 percent for mandatory fees.

At UNI, where students are also facing a 9.9 percent tuition/fees hike, the regents said they are considering approving redirecting $129 of students' fees over two years, with students paying an $84 activity fee of that total in 2001-02. Under next year's tuition proposal, which was released Wednesday, UNI students would pay $324 in total mandatory fees that were previously covered by tuition.

The move would generate approximately $500,000 next year, which would be used to keep class sizes down, improve the study-abroad programs and other

Iowa football causes a shatter

■ The possibility of post-game vandalism has police on watch and glass companies prepared.

By Tony Robinson
The Daily Iowan

With the first home football game Saturday, workers at local glass-repair companies say they expect an increase in business due to vandalism.

Game-day vandals have been known to shatter windows in homes, businesses and vehicles.

"A couple of years ago, we had a window broken on a Saturday night after a game," said Danh Tran, the assistant manager of Paglia's Pizza, 302 E. Bloomington St. Tran said he isn't positive that post-game excitement led to the shattered window, but he did say it is the only time it has taken place.

Iowa City Police Chief R. J. Winklehake said there is higher potential for vandalism after a football game and that the police are preparing for possible outbreaks of violence and vandalism on game days this season. He said the department is scheduling additional officers to patrol the downtown area.

"If Iowa wins, people are happy and go downtown to celebrate; if they lose, people still go downtown to drown their sorrows," he said.

"At the end of these nights, we find that people end up doing things they wouldn't normally do, like urinating on fountains, getting involved in arguments and fighting, which often leads to broken windows," he said.

al manager of Hawkeye Auto Specialists of Coralville, said vandalism comes in spurts, but there tends to be more during football season.

"The reason there is more vandalism during football season is because everyone is drunk," he said. "I even had someone bring a car in that had an onion thrown through the windshield after a game last year."

Sandy Rogers, a secretary for Bargrover Glass Co., 810 Maiden Lane, said the business receives the majority of its emergency calls after home games and Halloween. The firm will have its 24-hour service ready Saturday for incidents taking place after the game, Rogers said.

"Even though the breaking of glass downtown after games is unfortunate, we like it because it keeps us busy," she said.

Vandals release minks from Iowa fur farm

■ Hundreds of the animals are killed on the highway; the loss is estimated at $400,000.

By Mike Branom
Associated Press

DES MOINES — The fur flew early Thursday at a mink farm in northeast Iowa, where vandals broke in and freed 10,000 animals from their cages, the Chickasaw County Sheriff's Department said.

Every animal pen was opened on the Earl Drewelow and Sons Mink Farm near New Hampton, the sheriff's department said. But 4,000 of the 14,000 mink didn't flee.

The small animals were found swarming the farm and the nearby highway, where hundreds were killed by passing cars. Family and friends of the Drewelows were helping to collect the animals.

A telephone message left Thursday at the Drewelow farm was not immediately returned. In a statement released by the Coronado, Calif.-based Fur Commission USA, co-owner Lenny Drewelow said none of the mink are from the wild.

"These mink are farm animals, know nothing about life off the farm and are completely dependent on the farmer," he said. "They will die in a few days without human help."

Although no one had claimed responsibility for the break-in as of Thursday afternoon, David Barberash, a spokesman for the North American Animal Liberation Front, said he had "no doubt this is the work of the Animal Liberation Front."

"Today's raid marks the 68th action of its kind carried out by the ALF and other people since 1995," he

UI alum waiting in the wings for Emmy

■ A 1995 graduate receives a nomination for his writing on "The West Wing."

By Jessi Todden
The Daily Iowan

UI alumnus and Emmy-nominated writer Rick Cleveland is in a frenzy preparing for the live broadcast of the 52nd annual Emmy Awards on Sept. 10.

Cleveland, 36, graduated from the UI in 1995 with an M.F.A. in theater and got a break when he met another alumnus, Barry Kemp, a writer for "Coach." Kemp optioned a screenplay Cleveland wrote while in graduate school called Skinny White Boy.

Cleveland joined the writing team of "The West Wing" in 1999, enlisting with an impressive team of writers and producers: Aaron Sorkin, who wrote A Few Good Men and The American President, Thomas Schlamme, who contributed to "Tracey Takes On," and John Wells, a producer of "ER."

The premise of "The West Wing" is a behind-the-scenes look into the inner workings of the Oval Office as seen through the eyes of its brilliant group of busy staffers.

The show was nominated this year for an impressive 18 Emmys, including Best Drama Series and — the category for which Cleveland was nominated — Best Writing for a Drama Series.

"In Excelsis Deo," the episode for which Cleveland received an Emmy nomination, was written with Aaron Sorkin. Die-hard fans will remember the episode, in which Richard Schiff, who plays Toby Ziegler, the White House's director of communication on the show, tries to honor a Vietnam veteran.

Cleveland joked that were he to win the Emmy, his paychecks should increase.

"I'm very flattered to be nominated, and it didn't suck to be a part of a great show," he said.

At the beginning of the '99 fall TV season, critics predicted the quick failure of "The

Job service plugs students into the Web

■ The system allows students to send out résumés via the Internet.

By Melissa A. Wieland
The Daily Iowan

An online service that assists students with job searches and on-campus interviewing — eRecruiting — is one of the fastest-growing UI job-placement services.

The online résumé-referral service is available through the UI Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office. Now in its second year, eRecruiting has registered more than 2,000 UI students.

"E-Recruiting is the one-stop shop for employers coming to campus and students seeking employment," said Deanna Stupp-Hurst, the director of the placement office.

The system allows students to create personal profiles, send out résumés to companies and sign up for interviews via the Web, she said. Currently, 350 employers and 150 other colleges and universities are connected to the system's network.

Val Gatson, a college-relations manager at Northern Trust Global Investments, said eRecruiting is important in the job market because the system allows businesses to get a large and diverse group of potential candidates.

"E-Recruiting is the wave of the future and allows us to connect with students before the actual phone call and face-to-face interview occur," he said.

The UI is one of 14 on-campus interviewing sites for Northern Trust and has become the largest recruitment spot for the Personal Financial Services Department, Gatson said. In the last two years, six of the 17 individuals hired for the department were from the UI, he said.

UI senior Mark Stratton said he has been on eRecruiting during the past year and has participated in several on-campus interviews.

"E-Recruiting lets me make contact with a variety of companies that otherwise I wouldn't have had the initiative to seek out," he said. "It's a great way to find a job and become more knowledgeable about the opportunities that exist."

Stratton said eRecruiting is a great tool because the system runs through the UI, connects students with companies and arranges interviews. He feels other résumé-posting Internet sites lead individuals in circles because they lack the guidance and counseling offered through the UI service.

KGAN's lineup changes leave Iowa City confusing Prices with passion

■ Programming changes on a local channel surprise dedicated soap-opera and game-show viewers.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

The time was 2 p.m. The day, Tuesday, Sept. 5. As UI sophomore Andrea Hansohn sat down to watch a tape of that day's episode of "As the World Turns," her favorite soap opera, she became angry when game show host Bob Barker appeared on TV instead of the usual heart-throb and femme fatales.

The soap opera that Hansohn said she has watched diligently since the age of 5 and recorded daily since her freshman year at the UI had moved from 1 p.m. to 9 a.m. on KGAN, Channel 2. She had accidentally recorded "The Price is Right" at its new time slot — 1 p.m.

"I was very mad because it was an awesome episode, and I missed it," said Hansohn, who learned of the change as her roommate channel surfed Wednesday morning. "The whole summer was working up to (that episode)."

How was Holden going to react as he accidentally barged in the moment his wife, Lily, and her fellow desert-island exile, Simon, revealed their love for each other as he attempted to rescue her? Was Carly really going to stop Jack and Julia's wedding?

"It's what I look forward to every day," Hansohn said. "It's relaxing. I think it's just ridiculous they moved the soap operas because everyone knows they're in the afternoon — it's tradition."

The traditional morning time slot for "The Price is Right" was just fine with UI junior Jaclyn Stefaniak, who said she watched the show throughout high school.

"It's disappointing," she said. "I liked watching it before class."

Now, Stefaniak said, she's prepared to live a life without the popular game show and won't resort to recording it for future viewing.

Complaints and support come with any programming change, said KGAN Program Director Melissa Hubbard, adding that most of the responses to the time changes have been people complaining about their inconvenience.

The faith-based TV show, "The 700 Club," was added to KGAN's programming this past Tuesday, bumping "As the World Turns" from 1 p.m. to 9 a.m., "Guiding Light" from 2 p.m. to 10 a.m. and "The Price is Right" from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Hubbard said.

"The 700 Club" now airs daily at 2 p.m., and "The People's Court" has taken the 8 a.m. time slot previously occuried by the "Sally Jessy Raphael" show, which has been dropped from KGAN's line-up, she said.

Twenty-two Eastern Iowa counties receiving KGAN's programming are affected by the changes, Hubbard said, adding that it is too early to see how viewing patterns may shift.

"You always try a new line-up, and it's always watched very closely," she said. "This line-up works best for us."

Although Hansohn said she didn't see any promotion stating the programing changes, Hubbard said they were broadcast on Sept. 1 during the affected shows' commercial breaks and were announced during KGAN's newscasts over the weekend.

As for Tuesday's episode of "As the World Turns," Holden accused Lily of cheating on him the whole time she and Simon were stranded on the island, and Jack and Julia said their "I do's," Hansohn said.

Hansohn may have had a useless tape in her hands, but after phone call to Onawa, Iowa, her mother's VCR recorded the plot lines and images of the show.

Council to take up deer-thinning issue again

■ The City Council will once again consider using sharpshooters to control the deer population.

By Megan Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City City Council will continue to discuss the highly debated deer-management proposal and the suggested tax break for the developers of the Sycamore Mall area at a formal-council meeting on Sept. 12 and at the Sept. 11 work session.

The Deer Management Committee voted unanimously on Aug. 31 to approve the 2000-01 plan to continue to use sharpshooters to control the Iowa City deer population. The plan calls for approximately 500 deer to be killed and also includes non-lethal methods of controlling the population, such as adding more signs and reflectors and informing the public to drive safely. The committee members plan to look into contraception for female deer in the future.

For the past two years, the topic has been disputed among members of the council and local residents. Last year, 360 deer were killed by Connecticut-based White Buffalo, a company specializing in deer management.

Councilor Steve Kanner said the issue is complicated but thinks the council and committee should look into how construction and development affect the wildlife in certain areas to further understand how to solve the problem.

"I think that there are ways to prevent (vehicle) accidents without killing 500 deer," he said. "There's room for compromise."

Mayor Ernie Lehman said he expects a fair amount of discussion at the work session but expects the plan to pass.

At Tuesday's meeting, the council will also weigh the benefits of issuing a tax-break agreement between the city and MGD L.C. for its development of the Sycamore Mall area as proposed in the Urban Renewal Act.

The tax rebate includes a continuation of the property taxes for the Sycamore Mall for a period of seven years. After that time, the property taxes would rise to the actual value of the remodeled property, and the city would be reimbursed. The plan has previously been opposed by Councilors Irvin Pfab and Kanner, although Lehman said he believes that the tax-break arrangement is an asset for the city.

He said he also feels that it persuades developers to spend more money because they don't have the higher property tax right away.

"The return to the city is phenomenal if you pick and choose businesses carefully," Lehman said.

Libertarian gov't out

■ Harry Browne, who favors eliminating Social Security and income taxes, will visit Iowa City next week.

By Jesse Elliott
The Daily Iowan

Libertarian Party presidential candidate Harry Browne says he believes there is one fundamental problem with government: It makes peoples decisions for them.

Browne is running on the promise that, if elected president, he will eliminate all government programs not specified in the Constitution, including Social Security, income taxes and federal funding for the war on drugs.

On Sept. 13, Browne will bring his message to Iowa City.

"Harry's No. 1 message is that he wants you, the individual, to be free — free from the waste and inefficiency of government interference in your life," said Jim Babka, Browne's press secretary.

In a phone interview with The Daily Iowan, Babka said he joined the Libertarian Party after its 1996 convention as a direct result of Browne's message.

Browne's campaign hopes to draw the votes of the 15 million to 20 million Americans who don't fit into the two-party, left-right paradigm currently being offered, Babka said.

"The objective is to get people not likely to vote at all," he said. "To give them someone to go to the polls for."

Reno weighs in Firestone

■ The attorney general is looking into whether Firestone or Ford executives broke any laws

By Nedra Pickler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Attorney General Janet Reno said Thursday she is looking into whether Ford or Bridgestone/Firestone executives broke any criminal or civil laws with their handling of complaints over tires now linked to scores of deaths.

At the same time, two senators introduced bills to force companies to alert authorities to product safety concerns.

The action came a day after a pair of congressional hearings during which lawmaker pilloried Firestone and Ford Motor Co. for failing to do more to alert Americans to problem with certain Firestone tires that can suddenly lose their tread or suffer blowouts.

At the request of Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., Reno said the Justice Department is studying whether any criminal or civil laws apply to the case.

"We are looking to what, if any, Justice Department action is warranted," Reno said.

Although there were lawsuits, insurance claims and reports of problems with certain Firestone tires around the world during the last decade, officials from the safety agency, Firestone and Ford have said they did not realize they were dealing with a serious problem until this year.

Leahy introduced a bill that would require U.S. tire automakers to notify federal regulators within two days of an overseas recall.

"Timely notice about recalls should not be optional when consumer safety is at stake," he said.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., introduced legislation to establish criminal penalties for executives who intentionally withhold information on defective products that kill or injure consumers.

"When there are simple monetary awards, they cost the company and they cost the shareholders, but it doesn't do anything to the individual

The state of Iowa Board of Regents next week is likely to approve the UI's requests to name the green space south of the Main Library as well as rename the Cancer Center. The UI wants to name the grassy area south of the library in honor of Richard Gibson, the former associate vice president for the Facilities Services Group. UI students, faculty and staff wish to honor Gibson for his long, dedicated and exceptional service, they say.

"It seems like an entirely appropriate way of honoring an individual who gave 40 years of service to the organization and contributed widely to the physical planning and construction of our university," said Joey Haug, the secretary for John Amend, the director of facilities services.

Gibson, who retired this summer, graduated from the UI in 1957 with a Bachelor of Science in commerce and, shortly after, began his career at the university. As the UI grew, Gibson worked hard to improve the services provided and develop many outdoor areas.

Gibson contributed to the UI campus in hundreds of ways during his career, said Doug True, the UI vice president for Finance.

The campus is much more functional and beautiful because of Gibson, True said.

"Dick basically dedicated his life to the UI," said Steve Parrott, the UI director of university communications. "He was a student here and spent most of his life making the campus a comfortable place to be."

The UI Campus Planning Committee, which is made up of students, faculty and staff representatives, made the request to honor Gibson.

The UI also asked the regents to change the name of the UI Cancer Center to the Holden Cancer Center in recognition of a $25 million gift presented by the Holden family on Sept. 1 in honor of the late Roland Holden. The family presented the gift to support research and treatment against the disease that took Holden's life.

Because the separation of fees was inevitable after regents approved the UI's proposal last fall, UNI student-government leaders are trying to get the most out of the separation for students, said Dan Sterenchuk, the president of the school's student government. His group would like to see student fees used for renovations in the student union and to provide more entertainment options.

C.R. man sentenced for bomb threats

CEDAR RAPIDS, (AP) — A Cedar Rapids man who admitted he threatened to bomb the FBI and other federal agencies was sentenced to 27 months in prison and ordered to pay $1,600 to the Internal Revenue Service for security measures he forced the agency to take.

Thomas A. Palmer, 56, pleaded guilty last April in U.S. District Court to three counts of threatening to bomb federal agencies and one count of threatening to damage and destroy real and personal property.

He was sentenced Thursday. He will be on three years' parole following release from prison.

The damage charge stems from a note Palmer deposited in two U.S. Postal Service mailboxes in Cedar Rapids that threatened to use an explosive, according to U.S. Attorney Stephen Rapp's Office.

Besides the FBI, Palmer also threatened to bomb the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the Internal Revenue Service, according to Rapp's office. The indictment against Palmer alleged he left five bomb threats at federal agencies in Cedar Rapids on Nov. 20 and 21, 1999.

FACATATIVA, Colombia — In a scheme worthy of James Bond, a Colombian veteran naval officer, Colombian drug traffickers were building sophisticated submarine to smuggle narcotics, reported with help from American and Russian criminals.

Police stumbled upon the half-built submarine Wednesday night in a warehouse outside the capital, Bogota — 7.5 feet up in the Andes mountain and 210 miles from any port.

Even by smugglers' innovation standards, this was off the charts — Verne could have called it "200 Tons of Cocaine Under the Sea."

The 100-foot submarine could have crossed an ocean surfaced off Miami or other coastal cities, and surreptitiously unloaded its drug cargo.

"In the 30 some-odd years I have been in law enforcement, I have never seen anything like this," Leo Arreguin, the chief of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration in Colombia, said Thursday.

"This is huge," Arreguin said. "We're talking about being able to load up to 200 tons of cocaine in this submarine."

UNITED NATIONS — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat has rejected a proposal by President Clinton for control of Muslim and Jewish holy sites in East Jerusalem, but Clinton refused to abandon his effort to bring about a Mideast peace accord.

Although Arafat's action dimmed already fading hopes for an agreement, Clinton directed his senior mediator, Dennis B. Ross, to keep talking to Israeli and Palestinian negotiators.

Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak are still committed to concluding a settlement and "they understand the time is short," Clinton said.

Arafat has reserved the right to proclaim Palestinian statehood without Israel's blessing on Sept. 13, though he has hinted the Palestine Liberation Organization's top policy-making body, which will make the final decision, is likely to delay such a proclamation until later this year.

Still, with no further meetings between Clinton and the two leaders scheduled — he met separately with Barak and Arafat Wednesday — Clinton's No. 1 foreign-policy goal was "stagger and became loud," according to the ruling. Diehl and Reier helped Garofalo to a couch, where he passed out.

At roughly 11:30 a.m. the following day, Garofalo was found dead. The medical examiner determined his blood alcohol level to be .188 but said it may have reached the level of .300 prior to his death, court documents said.

The cause of death was determined to be pulmonary edema and fluid in the lungs caused by excessive drinking.

In the aftermath of the incident, UI fraternities voluntarily became alcohol-free in 1998.

Edward and Monica Garofalo, Matthew Garofalo's parents, were unavailable for comment. They filed a suit in October 1996 against Reier and Diehl, as well as two other members who were later dropped from the suit, alleging that they "failed to properly care for him after 'securing his intoxication,'" the ruling said.

"We were disappointed with (Thursday's) decision and will confer with our clients regarding any further action," said Edward Gallagher, the attorney representing the Garofalos.

The Iowa Supreme Court said neither the UI chapter or the national chapter of the fraternity were responsible because the alcohol was not purchased with chapter money and Garofalo was not forced to drink as a hazing act.

"Garofalo's consumption of alcoholic beverages was not required or compelled as a condition of membership in the chapter," stated the ruling.

An official from the Lambda Chi Alpha's national chapter said the fraternity was relieved, but not surprised, about the decision.

"We knew from the beginning that this was not a hazing act," said Tom Helmbock, the fraternity's executive vice president.

Now that the court has made its ruling, the fraternity plans to approach the UI within two to five years in hopes of re-establishing a chapter, Helmbock said.

West Wing" because of the poor image politics has, Cleveland said.

Why the show has hit such a chord with viewers may be because of the positive message portrayed in which "the good guy wins," he said.

Although last year was rife with political headlines, Cleveland said, the writers tried to avoid stealing too much from the news in an effort to present an idealized White House with the hope of offering a positive view on politics.

Cleveland said he thinks it's great if people use the show as a civics lesson because the writers and producers worked very hard to make the show as accurate as possible.

"We always had a lot of homework, but we had several people who worked within politics serve as advisers on the show," he said.

All the characters on the show are based on past and present real-life West Wing staffers, Cleveland said.

Cleveland declined to comment on the one big question on viewers' minds: Who was shot in the cliffhanger season finale?

Cleveland said he has been very busy preparing for the Emmys and is looking forward to meeting Garry Shandling, this year's host.

"I'm actually looking forward to not throwing up — it's been nerve racking," he said.

The secret to his success, he said, was a combination of dumb luck and persistence.

"Just stay with it, and eventually you'll get struck by lightning, in a good way," he said.

Cleveland said he is no longer with "The West Wing" because Sorkin will write all of the episodes. Cleveland now works on a new TV show for ABC called "Gideon's Crossing," which will debut in October, he said.

The people at his alma mater who knew Cleveland had nothing but glowing terms for him.

Alan MacVey, the head of the UI theater department, said

he's not surprised by Cleveland's success.

"Rick is intelligent, charming, easy to work with and a great talent as a writer," MacVey said. "The West Wing," in my opinion, is one of the best things on TV right now and very worthy of honor."

And many students seem to enjoy his work, too. UI graduate student Amanda Whitmer said she loves "The West Wing."

"It's very intelligent and a perfect balance of drama and comedy," she said.

said in a statement faxed from his home in British Columbia, Canada.

The animal liberation group has claimed responsibility for an Aug. 20, 1998, attack on Hidden Valley Farms near Guttenberg, releasing 330 foxes. The following day, 3,000 mink were freed from the Isebrand Fur Farm in Jewell. In October 1997, the group attacked the Circle K Fur Farm in Sioux City, freeing 5,000 mink and 100 foxes.

Other attacks on fur farms have been reported in Minnesota, Illinois, Wisconsin and Oregon.

"In the past three years, I think we've had 70 fur-farm releases," Barbarash said in a telephone interview.

The animal group claimed responsibility for a break-in Monday at Genesis Laboratories in Wellington, Colo., a commercial lab where scores of quail, ducks and rats were released into wild.

In 1999, there were 19 mink farms in Iowa producing 123,900 pelts, said Teresa Platt, the executive director of Fur Commission USA.

Platt said the current wholesale price of a mink pelt is as high as $40, making the damage at the 60-year-old Drowlow farm an estimated $400,000.

"What's lost, what's really devastating to farm this old, is 60 years of breeding records," she said.

"He has no idea which animal is which. And so his breeding records where he's built up the quality of his herd year after year after year by picking the best animals, he'll have to start from scratch."

Members of the animal liberation group describes themselves as an underground movement of people who take nonviolent direct action against animal abuse. The group's goal, its statement said, is "to liberate animals from places of torture and abuse ... and to cause as much economic damage as possible to the property of animal abusers."

warehouse Thursday to marvel at the lengths that Colombian drug traffickers, who supply more than 80 percent of the world's cocaine and a rising share of its heroin, go to export their illicit products.

Police were led to the find by suspicious area residents, who had seen Americans hanging around the warehouse, located in a cow pasture off a highway near the suburb of Facatativa.

When police arrived, there was no one around. Surveillance cameras had been placed on the roof. No arrests have been made.

"This is very high-tech," said Colombian Navy Capt. Ismael Idrobo, gazing up at the reddish sub, which stood in three sections on lengths of railroad track. "Look at the rudders and the pressurized double hull. This could easily travel 100 meters under the surface of the ocean."

Navy Capt. Fidel Azula, a former submarine captain and member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said even the Colombian navy lacked the knowledge to build such a vessel. "This is unmistakably of superb naval construction," he said.

Arreguin said seized documents, including blueprints, contained Russian- and American-sounding names. There were indications that Russian engineers were involved, including "a very professional engineer who has constructed submarines before," Arreguin said.

Arafat rejects Jerusalem proposal

President Clinton says he will still work for Mideast peace although time is running out.

By Barry Schweid

UNITED NATIONS — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat has rejected a proposal by President Clinton for control of Muslim and Jewish holy sites in East Jerusalem, but Clinton refused to abandon his effort to bring about a Mideast peace accord.

Although Arafat's action dimmed already fading hopes for an agreement, Clinton directed his senior mediator, Dennis B. Ross, to keep talking to Israeli and Palestinian negotiators.

Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak are still committed to concluding a settlement and "they understand the time is short," Clinton said. Still, with no further meetings between Clinton and the two leaders scheduled — he met separately with Barak and Arafat Wednesday — Clinton's No. 1 foreign-policy goal was on the brink of disaster.

Arafat is holding fast for sovereignty over all of East Jerusalem, while Barak said Thursday he had "made it very clear that no Israeli prime minister will ever be able to sign a document that gives up the sovereignty over places like the Temple Mount to the Palestinians."

Clinton's attempt to bridge the two positions would award sovereignty to the Palestinians over the two most sacred mosques on the Temple Mount in East Jerusalem and recognize Israeli sovereignty over the Western Wall, the remnant of the Jewish temple destroyed by the Romans, Palestinian sources said.

The wall around the Temple Mount and the enclosed area apart from the mosques would be placed under divine sovereignty, said the sources, declining to be identified.

In practice, Jews and Muslims would continue to worship separately and, it is hoped, without conflict.

Even if Arafat accepted the proposal, East Jerusalem's future would still be undecided. At the Camp David summit in July, Barak offered the Palestinians local control of some neighborhoods and suburbs, but Arafat rejected the overture, insisting on sovereignty over the entire part of the city Israel won from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war.

A new Johnson County courthouse ...

Objections sustained

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors has recently begun considering the future of the Johnson County Courthouse. It will investigate whether the courthouse's facilities need to be renovated. Overcrowding is a major problem the Board cites for the investigation. One proposed solution is building a new courthouse.

It seems like more than a coincidence, however, that Johnson County is considering building a new courthouse at the same time it's considering building a new jail.

In the Nov. 7 general election, Johnson County voters will decide whether the proposal for a new jail in Iowa City will pass. Opponents of the Nov. 7 referendum argue in part that it would take too much time and manpower to transport criminals to the proposed site for the new jail, which is nearly 4 miles from downtown.

The current courthouse could be expanded for much less than it would cost to build a new one.

With transportation a major issue in the argument over the new jail, is it possible that Johnson County's proposal for a new courthouse is a political attempt to kill two birds with one stone?

Passing the referendum for the new jail creates a transportation issue. Solving that issue may entail solving the apparent overcrowding of the courthouse, too. If a new courthouse were to be built, it only seems logical to build it close to the new jail, perhaps even on the 53-acre site reserved for hypothetical future expansion of the new jail.

But the current courthouse could be expanded for much less than it would cost to build a new one. If the new jail referendum passes, $19 million would be allocated to its construction, and many people say that's money the county can't afford.

If voters do pass the referendum for the new jail, they should be aware that they may be inadvertently casting a vote of support for a new courthouse as well, which would entail spending even more money the county can't afford.

FAITH AND THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN...

Pseudo-science goes mainstream ...

More fiction than fact

FoxNews.com recently placed an article on "astral projection" directly between a report on a summit of world leaders and an article on new advertising strategies. By giving such a piece of garbage such a prominent spot, FoxNews is endorsing it as real news when it is not. One would expect to see this kind of thing covered by Comedy Central's "The Daily Show," not by a supposed news organization.

So far, no scientific inquiry into so-called paranormal activity has ever produced any results that indicate humans have any psychic powers, but no one wants to hear that. Everyone wants to hear that deep inside themselves, lying dormant, is the power to bend spoons, read thoughts and predict the future. The media, always willing to tell the public exactly what it wants to hear, irresponsibly reports pseudo-science drivel without an ounce of skepticism. The end result is a public so blinded by charlatans and con-men that they cannot tell the difference between real science and quackery.

Examples of the media's willingness to subvert true science are easy to find, especially on Fox. "Alien Autopsy" aired on Fox a few years ago under the premise that it was a secret government video of an extraterrestrial examination. "The X-Files" weekly pumps witchcraft, the occult and little green men into the minds of its viewers. It has a discernible effect: A poll conducted in 1997 showed that a sizable portion of the populace believes in the paranormal. Today, 1 in 3 people believe in astrology, while nearly 1 in 2 believe in "faith healing."

This trend may seem harmless, but it has dangerous consequences. If people begin using "faith healing" over scientific medicine, the health of the nation could suffer drastically. Also, some high powered Wall Street executives organize their offices according to feng-shui, an Eastern mysticism, in order to increase their productivity. Would you rather have your mutual funds handled by a feng-shui proponent or someone who actually does scientific market research?

It is time for the public to cast away this enticing, yet completely baseless, belief in pseudo-science and embrace true science. The media must stop its incessant grab for higher ratings and begin reporting with skepticism. Ignorance in favor of pseudo-science and the paranormal may be bliss, but it is ignorance nonetheless.

Thanks to those who helped celebrated 19th Amendment, Mayor Harvat

A group of women got together and organized a celebration for Emma J. Harvat, Iowa City's first woman mayor, and the 80th anniversary of the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote. There were many people involved in making this event a success. We wish to thank the following:

Mayor Ernie Lehman for his words of support and proclamation of Emma J. Harvat Day. Dr. Linda Kerber for her informative and entertaining remarks about the history of women's rights. Gertrude MacQueen, Ruth Bonfiglio, Roberta Till-Retz, the VFW Women's Auxiliary, Susan Rotman, Ross Wilburn, Gail Zlatnik and Lora Alberhasky for their participation in a presentation on Iowa women's notable quotes decade-by-decade from 1920 to the present.

Rotman was introduced as a disabilities-rights activist; Susan is a community activist. We would like to apologize to Susan for introducing her incorrectly at this event.

We also thank Carl Stach, the nephew of May Stach, Emma J. Harvat's lifelong companion, for his support of this project, Pleasant Valley for its donation of flowers, and the Herbert Hoover Museum and the Crowded Closet for costumes. We are especially grateful to the Girl Scout troops facilitated by Cherie Haury-Artz and Betty Huttner, who re-enacted a suffragette march.

We have asked the City Council of Iowa City to honor Mayor Harvat in some permanent way. Our proposal is to name the council chambers after Emma J. Harvat and to label the room as such. We also are requesting that some sort of prominent artistic plaque with Harvat's likeness and an explanation of her historic significance be placed where people will easily view it. Please encourage council members to support this request.

Take the first step toward real UI unity

One of the truly great experiences of college — especially a large state university — arrives unlooked for, often undesired and usually outside the classroom.

Sometimes it's as simple as the girl down the hall blasting Outkast while you try to listen to the new Dar Williams CD. Sometimes it's as complex as watching your roommate fill your room with sweatshop-created clothes his parents are happy to pay for while you work two minimum-wage jobs to pay for even 50 percent of the books you need.

Sometimes it's about ethnic background — your date's family is Serbian, yours is Croatian, and Sometimes it's the way a woman on your floor could give a crap about shopping in Chicago but really misses her family's farm in Spencer; sometimes it's the person in your rhetoric group who tells you he's facing the fact he was raped as a child; sometimes it's the bathroom door in EPB where the discussion moves beyond random Ani DiFranco quotes to information about birth control.

And the experience I'm talking about, the thing that you can't buy or force or outlaw, lies at the heart of that word so praised and vilified, so desperately necessary and so difficult to face: diversity.

What's specifically great here, in the apparently un-diverse land of corn and soybeans? First, this is a community of words. Iowa City is world famous for the Writers' Workshop and the International Writing Program, regionally known for Prairie Lights and

And at the university, the Office of Affirmative Action — which has been at the forefront of helping us find ways to work and study efficiently and kindly with one another — has discovered a way for our coincidental experiences to meet up with our love of gab: Diversity Dialogue Groups.

I will now attempt in my columnist way to translate into newspaper prose the goals of this program. The brochure explains that "the Diversity Dialogue program advances the university's

I won't go into how beneficial it is to you as a human being — to your soul and the souls of your partners and pets and plants and everyone around you — for you to understand exactly who you are and where you fit into the beauties and tragedies of the world. I've improved my relationships with mostly everyone around me this way (except the plants, but I'm not going there).

Really, by this point, given that you've had experiences such as those outlined above, and given that you are a talker either by nature or by the insidious Iowa City water, and given further that you didn't stop reading at the word "diversity" at the end of paragraph five, and, finally, given that you are a person who desires to change, you are simply waiting for me to hand over the details. Who, how, when, where?

Here's the scoop, straight from the brochure: You are a student, staff member or faculty. You meet in a group of 6-10 people, with facilitators, and in the first meeting you decide on the ground rules and topics. You meet for 10 weeks in a time frame that accommodates your schedule. Atlantis' 11-day voyage will be the first shuttle flight in almost four months and the start of what NASA hopes will be a rapid-fire series of missions to the space station.

WASHINGTON — With Democrats switching sides, the Republican-led House failed Thursday to override President Clinton's veto of a bill to abolish inheritance taxes in a vote with political overtones likely to spill into the election campaigns.

Atlantis' 11-day voyage will be the first shuttle flight in almost four months and the start of what NASA hopes will be a rapid-fire series of missions to the space station.

"Very shortly, the station's going to come to life," said program manager Tommy Holloway. "By this time next year, our plans would have a fully functional space station with adequate power to run our laboratory and keep the home running."

Shuttle commander Terrence Wilcutt and his crew will be the first to float into the space station's new Russian-made control module, Zvezda. Its arrival 1½ months ago nearly doubled the size of the station, now a crowded three rooms.

"I have a real sense of satisfaction being here, getting ready to turn this house into a home and getting it ready for the first crew to live there," Wilcutt said.

Thousands of pounds of supplies must be unloaded from Atlantis and a Russian supply ship that has already docked with the space station.

Astronaut Daniel Burbank said he is looking forward to "where we actually get our hands dirty, break out the tools and install this stuff."

Until Zvezda's launch in July, more than two years late, space-station construction was on hold. Despite the extra time, Zvezda failed to meet NASA safety standards for noise and micrometeoroid protection. Mufflers and shields eventually will be added; in the meantime, everyone inside, Atlantis' crew included, will have earplugs. Space shuttle Discovery must follow with the first piece of space station truss, or framework, before the first permanent residents can move in at the start of November.

Altogether, NASA plans eight shuttle flights to the space station over the next year, beginning with Atlantis' mission.

The high point will be the launch of the U.S. lab Destiny in January. At that point, the international space station will be larger than Russia's Mir. That is also when controllers in Houston will take over day-to-day space station operations from their counterparts in Moscow.

Russia is supposed to supply more cargo ships and more space-station components. But because of the country's financial crisis, everything beyond this year is in question.

"It's an ugly process, actually. It's a very difficult, cumbersome and unpleasant process of dealing with the Ministry of Finance and forcefully getting this money from it," said Mikhail Sinelshikov, the chief of piloted programs for the Russian Space Agency.

Space shuttle Atlantis is scheduled for launch this morning for a mission to the International Space Station.

NATION BRIEF

Qwest to truncate 11,000 jobs

DENVER (AP) — Qwest Communications International, the nation's fourth-largest long-distance phone company, is cutting 11,000 jobs — 15 percent of its workforce — to streamline operations after buying US West.

In addition to the cuts, which will affect mostly white-collar positions, Qwest said it will eliminate 1,800 contractor jobs.

The Qwest chairman and chief executive, Joe Nacchio, said Thursday the changes will help the company refocus on broadband, Internet, wireless and bundled services.

With 29 million customers worldwide, Qwest serves 14 Western states and employs some 71,000 people. In June, it acquired the regional phone company US West for $85 million.

The job cuts, which will take place this year and next, are aimed at eliminating overlapping positions.

Qwest also hopes to sell 570,000 rural lines in various states, which would leave those customers out of company plans to provide broadband services and speedy Internet access.

Teens accused of killing for food

Police say the teen-agers placed a delivery order then killed the delivery man.

By Donna de la Cruz
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Five teen-agers looking for a free meal placed a $60 order for Chinese food to an abandoned house, ambushed the restaurant owner who made the delivery, and beat him to death with their fists and a brick, police said.

Afterward, the four boys and one girl fled to one of their homes to eat the food, leaving behind the battered restaurant owner, along with several hundred dollars and another bag of food he was carrying.

"He was killed without provocation and without reason," Queens District Attorney Richard Brown said Wednesday. "It was a shocking crime that leaves us all shaking our heads as to why these kids would do what they are accused of doing."

The teen-agers, ages 14 to 17, were charged with second-degree murder, first-degree manslaughter, robbery and criminal possession of a weapon in the death of Sheng Jin Liu, 44.

They admitted "they were going to forcibly take the food from the victim," Detective Douglas Diesu said in a criminal complaint.

Police said one of the teen-agers called the Golden Wok restaurant on the night of Sept. 1 and ordered General Tso's chicken, chicken and broccoli, shrimp lo mein and shrimp egg foo yung.

When Liu arrived with two bags of food at the vacant house on a dead-end street approximately 1 mile from the restaurant, four boys jumped over his head and beat him with their fists, police said. The 14-year-old then struck him in the head with a brick, police said.

Liu's wife called police when he did not return to the restaurant within 15 minutes. Police were led to the teens by tracing the cell-phone call used to place the food order.

The teen-agers, all friends, were arrested Tuesday. They were described as being from middle-class families in the borough of Queens and having no criminal records.

AMA decries law opening records

It says a proposed bill is meant to punish doctors for supporting the patients' bill of rights.

By Janelle Carter
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A lawmaker's efforts to open to the public a national databank that details doctors' malpractice history is being denounced by the American Medical Association as retaliation for physicians' support of a patients' bill of rights.

House Commerce Committee Chairman Tom Bliley, R-Va., Thursday introduced a bill that opens the National Practitioners Databank. The databank is now used only by the profession for the licensing of doctors. It includes information on disciplinary actions as well as medical-malpractice payments. Bliley envisions making the information public so citizens can access information about their doctors via the Internet.

"This bill provides patients with a fundamental new right — the right to more information about their doctors," Bliley said. The legislation "will give consumers the tools they need to make informed decisions about their doctors."

But doctors' groups have cried foul, accusing Bliley of targeting them because of their support to expand the rights of managed-care patients, including the right to sue their HMOs. The patients' rights bill is now stalled in conference with House and Senate negotiators.

"Let me send a clear message to Rep. Bliley," said Dr. Thomas Reardon, the immediate past president of the American Medical Association. "We will not be distracted from our efforts to pass a strong patients' bill of rights and put an end to managed-care abuses."

Reardon said several states have already opened similar information to the public. Systems operated by the states, Reardon said, are a better way of disseminating information rather than a national databank, "which contains mostly reports of legal settlements that are not an indicator of physician quality or competence."

"Settling a lawsuit doesn't mean you're a bad physician," Reardon said.

But Bliley aides complain that the state Web sites focus only on actions in that state and do not provide a comprehensive look at problems doctors may have had in other parts of the country.

House fails to override estate-tax veto

The GOP House falls 14 votes shy of the necessary two-thirds majority.

By Curt Anderson
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With 12 Democrats switching sides, the Republican-led House failed Thursday to override President Clinton's veto of a bill to abolish inheritance taxes in a vote with political overtones likely to spill into the election campaigns.

"If the American people really want this tax relief, we need a Republican Congress with a Republican president who will sign it," said House Majority Whip Tom DeLay, R-Texas, framing the campaign issue for the GOP.

By a 274-157 vote, the House fell 14 short of the necessary two-thirds margin to override the veto with 431 members voting. Fifty-three Democrats voted with all but one Republican for the override; 65 Democrats supported the legislation in June, when it passed 279-136.

Clinton praised the vote, calling the repeal bill "a huge tax cut for the most well-off Americans" that threatened the nation's economic health and critical government programs.

"If the congressional leadership is serious about estate tax relief for small businesses, family farms and principal residences of middle-class families that have increased in value, they should work with me in a fiscally responsible manner as Democrats in Congress have proposed," Clinton said.

But GOP sponsors said they would settle for nothing less than full repeal.

"There is only one way to rid the code of this immoral, unfair and economically unsound tax, and that's to eliminate it," said Rep. Jennifer Dunn, R-Wash.

Even though a clear House majority favored repeal and polls show many Americans believe the tax is inherently unfair, Democrats said just as many people want Congress to focus on paying down public debt, improving education and creating a Medicare prescription-drug benefit.

Democrats also portrayed the 10-year, $105 billion bill as a giveaway to wealthy families — only about 2 percent of estates owe the tax each year — and only one part of a huge GOP tax cut that would consume too much of the projected budget surplus.

"Never have so many spent so much time to give so much money to so very few," said House Minority Whip David Bonior, D-Mich.

Republicans countered that the veto by Clinton, and by extension Democratic presidential nominee Al Gore, was another signal that Democrats want to spend the surplus on more federal government programs instead of returning a portion to taxpayers. Republican nominee George W. Bush favors repealing the estate tax.

Kmart to ID buyers of violent games

Wal-Mart also refuses to sell mature-rated video games to minors.

By Jeffrey McMurray
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Young people itching to wreak havoc with an Uzi on their Playstations will have to bring along a parent if they want to buy a violent video game from some major retailers.

Kmart announced Thursday it will refuse sale of mature-rated games to anyone under 17, using a barcode scanner that will prompt cashiers to ask for identification from young people.

After Kmart's news conference in Washington, Wal-Mart announced it would enact the same policy. In a letter last month to Alabama Sen. Jeff Sessions, the president of Toys R Us said the practice is already in place at his company's stores.

Sessions applauded the move but said he would prefer that retailers stop selling mature-rated games, as Montgomery Ward and Sears, Roebuck and Co. already have done.

Sessions said he believes "intense involvement" with violent video games can cause a young person to become violent.

"Common sense should tell us that positively reinforcing sadistic behavior, as these games do, cannot be good for our children," said Sen. Sam

Brownback, R-Kan. "We cannot expect that the hours spent in school will mold and instruct a child's mind but that hours spent playing violent games will not."

Kmart executives said they believe their policy lets parents make decisions about video games.

"A step of responsibility that gets the parents involved is a smart step, rather than just walking away from the issue and letting someone else deal with it," said Shawn Kahle, Kmart's vice president of corporate affairs. In May, Sessions, Brownback and seven other senators sent a letter to executives of Kmart and several other major retailers encouraging them to pull the games off their shelves or prevent their sale to anyone younger than 17.

Sen. Joe Lieberman of Connecticut, the Democratic nominee for vice president, was among those who signed. Most video games sold at major retailers include a rating from the Entertainment Software Review Board advising consumers about which games are suitable for certain age groups.

Wal-Mart spokeswoman Jessica Moser said her company has invested more than $3 million on store signs and advertising to educate customers about the rating system.

Moser said she was not sure when Wal-Mart would implement the new policy. Kmart plans to enact the policy Oct. 15, in time for the holiday shopping season.

Brownback said the Senate Commerce Committee next week will examine the results of a Federal Trade Commission report on whether violent, adult-rated games are target-marketed to kids.

Two teens charged with burning third girl

MAQUOKETA, Iowa (AP) — Two girls, ages 12 and 15, are accused of dousing another girl with gasoline before setting her on fire.

Amanda O'Meara, 12, rolled on the ground to extinguish the flames Wednesday before going home to call police, officials said. She was taken to the Jackson County Hospital, then transferred to the burn unit at UI Hospitals and Clinics. She was in fair condition Thursday.

Police dispatcher Robert Lane said O'Meara suffered second- and third-degree burns on 25 percent of her body, with the most severe burns on her arms, back, neck and head.

Lynette Bodenhofer, 12, and Tara Tallman, 15, both of Maquoketa, were being held in juvenile facilities in Dubuque and Davenport, Lane said. Willful injury is a Class C felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Taking the world by the tail

The Seminole Indians of Florida have some job openings for gator wrestlers.

By Karin Meadows
Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — The Seminole Indian tribe of Florida has job openings for anyone willing to take the world by the tail.

The ad reads this way: WANTED. Alligator wrestlers. Must be brave and a risk taker. Males and females OK. No experience needed.

"Traditionally, Seminoles have done this," tribe spokesman Chuck Malkus said. "The reason that we have the job openings is because tribe members now are going into banking, communications, e-commerce and law school, so we have a shortage of candidates."

The pay is $12 an hour, plus health and life insurance.

Every day at the Okalee Village and Museum, Seminoles jump into a 6-foot-deep swimming pool, stalk a 7-foot alligator hiding on the bottom, and grab the reptile by the tail to the delight of paying tourists.

The goal is to wrestle the alligator out of the pool, sit on its back and pry open its jaw, which holds 80 sharp teeth.

"Here, there's no falling asleep at the wheel. You have to be 100 percent alert," said Michael Osceola, a 26-year-old Seminole who has been wrestling gators for five years.

Lance Holmquist of Key

Largo is one of six people who have applied since the ad ran last week in the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale. So far, no women have applied.

Holmquist, a 39-year-old charter-boat captain, said he has experience if wrestling with sharks counts.

"I'm kind of quick and agile. I can lift my own weight a lot of times. I thought it was a good opportunity," said Holmquist, who is 6 feet tall and weighs 190 pounds.

Historically, Seminole Indians wrestled alligators in the Florida swamp for survival. The reptiles could be tied up and kept alive until they were needed for food, and their skins were traded for gunpowder, tobacco and other items.

Court upholds sexual-predator law

The Iowa Supreme Court says the state may legally force some sex offenders into counseling.

By David Pitt
Associated Press

DES MOINES — An Iowa law designed to label the worst sexual offenders as sexual predators and force them into counseling after they serve their prison term has survived its first legal challenge.

The Iowa Supreme Court Thursday upheld the 1998 law but considered only narrow issues. Stronger challenges are coming, state prosecutors said.

Harold Young, the area prosecutions division director for the Iowa attorney general, said the law has been used in 12 sex-offender cases.

"Every one of those cases have been appealed to the Iowa Supreme Court, and each one is in various cases of appellate proceedings," he said.

The first challenge came from Elroy Morrow, 33, of Scott County. He was the first person in Iowa to be convicted under the new law, which allows prosecutors to seek a court order committing imprisoned sexually violent predators to counseling in a state facility following their prison terms.

The law requires that a trial be held on the sexual-predator allegations, and prosecutors must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the sexual offender would be likely to abuse again.

Morrow contended that the law violated his right to equal protection because it claims sexual offenders are more likely to be dangerous than other prisoners.

The Supreme Court said the Legislature is free to single out sexually violent predators from other violent offenders.

"The particularly devastating effects of sexual crimes on victims and the offender's need for specialized treatment provide a rational basis for the classification," the court wrote.

Morrow also argued that the law allows prior crimes to be raised in the civil trial before a jury, making it fundamentally unfair and violating his right to due process.

"In view of the procedural history of this case, we conclude that the respondent has not been injured by the statute's provision for a jury trial at the state's request" the court wrote

Armstrong commits to Iowa

Jenna Armstrong gave an oral commitment to Iowa women's basketball team Thursday.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

Jenna Armstrong, a talent guard from Stockton, Mo., made an oral commitment to the Iowa women's basketball team for the 2001-02 season.

Iowa beat out several of Division I schools to sign Armstrong. She is the incoming freshman to agree to play under Coach Lisa Bluder, who actually began recruiting Armstrong back when she was coaching at Drake University.

The other schools recruiting Armstrong included Arkansas, Oregon, Drake, Colorado State and Southwest Missouri State. Armstrong's father, Tony, is her coach.

"A big reason I chose Iowa was the coaching staff and the atmosphere surrounding the team," Jenna Armstrong said. "Coach Bluder has been recruiting me for a really long time, and after the move to Iowa and really liking the decision was a gut feeling."

Armstrong averaged 10 points a game and four rebounds, splitting time between the point guard and off-guard positions. Stockton, which is located north of Springfield, Duquesne, was the summer star for a Kansas City team. She averaged 10 points a game during Chattanooga AAU tour-

Armstrong commits to Iowa

Jenna Armstrong gave an oral commitment to the Iowa women's basketball team Thursday.

By Jeremy Shapiro
 The Daily Iowan

Jenna Armstrong, a talented guard from Stockton, Mo., has made an oral commitment to the Iowa women's basketball team for the 2001-02 season.

Iowa beat out several other Division I schools to snag Armstrong. She is the first incoming freshman to orally agree to play under new Hawkeye coach Lisa Bluder, who actually began recruiting Armstrong back when she was coaching at Drake University.

The other schools recruiting Armstrong included Arkansas, Oregon, Drake, Colorado State and Southwest Missouri State, said Tony Armstrong, Jenna's father and coach.

"A big reason I chose Iowa is the coaching staff and family atmosphere surrounding the team," Jenna Armstrong said. "Coach Bluder has been recruiting me for a really long time, and after the move I visited Iowa and really liked it. The decision was a gut feeling."

Armstrong averaged 24.5 points a game and 7.5 rebounds, splitting time between the point guard and off-guard positions for Stockton, which is located just north of Springfield. During the summer, Armstrong starred for a Kansas City AAU team. She averaged 24.8 points a game during the Chattanooga AAU tourna-

Hawkeyes ready to start winning

Iowa is favored to win Saturday after losing nine straight games.

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

Just how big is Saturday's game? Ask Tim Dodge.

"This is a game we definitely want to win just because we need to start winning — period," he said. "It's been a while since the Hawks have won."

Yes, it has. Entering Saturday's contest against Western Michigan Broncos, Iowa has lost nine straight, to be exact, but finds itself in an unfamiliar position — a 7½ point favorite.

In order to even make that spread, the Hawkeyes will have to put points on the scoreboard, but first the offense needs to solve a few problems that were evident in the 27-7 loss to Kansas State. Take away Scott Mullen's 30-yard completion to running back Ladell Betts, and Iowa's air attack compiled just 46 yards, a far cry from the offensive output it enjoyed toward the end of last season.

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz has made it clear that his 2000 team needs to run and pass effectively to consistently win. Betts and fullback Jeremy Allen can get the job

Kinnick won't be full Saturday

Many UI students will be near Kinnick stadium Saturday — but not in it.

By Jeremy Schnitker
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa football team hosts its home opener this weekend against Western Michigan, and it looks like Melrose Avenue may be louder than Kinnick Stadium come kickoff.

With some 20,000 tickets remaining for the contest pitting last year's worst team Big Ten squad against a team for the Mid-Atlantic conference, most UI students will be enjoying the pleasures of tailgating rather than watching the Hawkeyes.

Two of those students, sophomore Jennie Sparks and senior Jeff Bogacki, said they won't be in Kinnick Saturday afternoon. Instead, they'll be outside it.

"I'm not going to the game, but I'm tailgating," Sparks said.

Bogacki will be pulling the same routine.

"I didn't get my season tickets this year, and I really just don't want to go to the game," he said.

UI senior Ryan Stuntz said

Young Iowa golf team hits links

Hawkeye women golfers begin their season today in South Carolina.

By Jeremy Shapiro
 The Daily Iowan

Like the title of the daytime soap opera, the Iowa women's golf team could be called "The Young and Restless."

With six of their seven members in their freshman or sophomore season, the Hawkeyes will have a young appearance this fall. In fact, four team members have yet to compete at the college level. Despite the youthfulness, expectations remain high as the Hawkeyes return three talented starters and welcome a gifted recruiting class.

"With a young squad, we will be good some days and not so good on other days," said head coach Diane Thomason.

Team members say they are restless to get the season under way. After two weeks of intense practices, the Hawkeyes will finally get a chance to compete starting today at the Unlimited Potential/Bay Tree Classic in South Carolina.

Being the lone senior, Meghan Spero will take over some leadership duties. The Rock Island, Ill., native was a force last spring, finishing tied for 43rd at the Big Ten Tournament. Spero also finished in the top five in three tournaments and led the team in overall scoring with an average of 78.6.

Spero said she did a lot of practicing during the summer and that her goals for the fall include "being consistent and being ranked in the Big Ten and district standings."

Also returning are UI sophomores Heather Suhr and Leslie Gumm. Suhr averaged an 80.7 in 31 rounds of competition last spring, including an eighth-place finish at the Hawkeye Invitational. Gumm shot a scoring average of 82.5

last spring. "I am really excited to start the season," Suhr said. "I think we will be pretty good. The new freshmen will help out a lot."

Two freshmen have cracked the lineup for this weekend's tournament. Maggie

Iowa volleyball team to host invitational

Iowa volleyball players will face the Evansville Purple Aces tonight at the Hawkeye Invitational.

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

The level of competition won't be the same, and Iowa volleyball coach Rita Buck-Crockett hopes the results won't be, either.

One week after a grueling

Hawaiian Airlines Wahine Classic that saw Iowa take on the likes of No. 1 UCLA, the Hawkeyes (0-3) return home to host the Hawkeye Invitational today and Saturday.

Iowa will challenge the Evansville Purple Aces today at 7 p.m. before closing out tournament action Saturday with two matches. Iowa kicks off its Saturday doubleheader with a noon set against Texas Southern before closing with the University of Oakland at 6 p.m.

Crockett said she looks forward to the Hawkeyes continuing to build toward the regular season following last weekend's showing in Hawaii.

"We're coming off a really strong tournament," said

Crockett. "We learned a lot of things while we were down there."

The most experienced team in the tournament besides the Hawkeyes will be Evansville. The Purple Aces have a 2-2 record and feature three players with 50 or more kills. This weekend will mark the first action Texas Southern has seen this season. The young Lady Tigers lost only two players from a squad that finished the year at 9-23. The Golden Grizzlies bring a 1-3 record with them from the Golden State.

Two players will return to the Iowa lineup this weekend from injuries, while one may remain sidelined for quite some time. Laura Pike injured her ankle before the Hawkeyes' match against Texas A&M and has spent the week on crutches. Crockett said the team's leading setter underwent an MRI earlier this week, but results have not come back.

Meanwhile, defensive specialist Evelena Ornelas returns along with last season's leading setter, Larissa Lopes. Crockett said Ornelas is not yet at 100 percent but may be ready to play in time to help the Hawkeyes this weekend.

Fabiana De Abreu will do the majority of setting in Pike's place along with Renee Hill and Lopes. The left-handed De Abreu comes off an

Eldred has surgery on elbow

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox pitcher Cal Eldred had a screw inserted in his right elbow Thursday, and the doctor who performed the surgery cautioned the procedure was done for his long-term health, not necessarily to allow him to pitch again this season.

Eldred took himself out of a rehab start Sunday because of pain in his arm, and tests showed he had his third stress fracture in as many years.

Dr. James Boscardin, the White Sox's senior team physician, inserted a screw that's 4-5 inches long into his arm to reinforce the bone.

"This was not done so he could pitch," Boscardin said. "This was done so he would be able to perform 100 percent next year. If he's able to do something at the end of this year, that would be a big bonus."

Yankees to shut down Mendoza

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Ramiro Mendoza might have thrown his last pitch for the New York Yankees this year.

Mendoza will be shut down by the Yankees because of pain in his right shoulder, prompting manager Joe Torre to say Thursday, "I can't think of what condition he might pitch in again this season."

Mendoza was placed on the disabled list Aug. 3 for the second time this season with tendinitis. He was originally put on the DL on June 25, and had pitched only once in between, giving up four runs in one-third of an inning against Minnesota on July 29.

Torre said he was encouraged with the progress Mendoza had made in two simulated games. But "yesterday he couldn't throw," the manager said before Thursday night's game against Kansas City.

There are about 20,000 tickets available for the Western Michigan game, according to the Iowa Sports Information Department.

OFFENSE

This is a hard choice. Either I could go with the team with 76 passing yards, or I could go with the team who can pass, but ran for negative yardage. Ouch. Hawks get this one because of Ladel Betts.

Who has the edge?

By Mike Kelly

COACHES

Gary Darnell led his team to the MAC Championship last season, and Kirk Ferentz's team won one game. Sorry Kirk, I will go with Darnell.

INTANGIBLES

The Hawkeyes have never lost to a MAC team, it is their home opener, and Hayden Fry will be there. This one is a no-brainer.

SPECIAL TEAMS

Iowa's best talent lies in its special teams. Jason Baker is one of the best punters in the nation. Kahlil Hill and Fred Russell are fast and due for a breakout game.

DEFENSE

The Hawkeyes got lit up early against Kansas State, but rebounded to gain some respectability. WMU shut down Wisconsin's passing game, but they were missing some players. Broncos get the edge.

Jacksonville to test Baltimore's mettle

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

When Jacksonville goes to Baltimore on Sunday, two questions might be answered: Just how good are the Ravens and how much have the Jaguars been hurt by injuries?

The Ravens started the season just as they were supposed to — with their defense stifling the Steelers in Pittsburgh and the offense doing enough for a 19-0 win. The Jaguars, still without many of their most important offensive parts, ran away from Cleveland in the second half for a 27-7 win.

But the Ravens aren't the Browns. And the Jaguars still aren't healthy. Fred Taylor remains out. Stacey Mack, who replaced him at running back, sprained his ankle. That leaves Chris Howard as the starter. And the offensive line continues to be ravaged by injuries.

This opened as a pick 'em game. Then the money came in and the Ravens are now 3-point favorites. The money is right.

RAVENS, 19-13

Washington (minus 6) at Detroit
If Charlie Batch plays, he won't be 100 percent, making him fodder for the Skins' pass rush.
REDSKINS, 31-15

Kansas City (plus 8) at Tennessee
Nice schedule for the Chiefs, starting against what might be the two best teams in the AFC. The Titans need to let Steve McNair out of the pocket.
TITANS, 20-13

New England (plus 6 1/2) at New York Jets (Monday night)
Belichick vs. Groh in the latest Tuna Bowl.
Duller than last Monday.
JETS, 27-16

New York Giants (plus 3) at Philadelphia
Do the Eagles let down? Do Tiki Barber and Ron Dayne combine for 222 yards and does Duce Staley get 201 again?
Momentum holds in a game that will take less than three hours unless there's a thunderstorm.

EAGLES, 22-17

Green Bay (off) at Buffalo
The "off" is Brett Favre's elbow, which even Brett acknowledges REALLY hurts.
BILLS, 21-6

Dallas (off) at Arizona
Both teams were pathetic last week, although the Cardinals' late run made it look respectable. The "off" is for Aikman.
CARDINALS, 25-20

St. Louis (minus 8) at Seattle
Speed kills.
RAMS, 31-10

Miami (plus 3) at Minnesota
Daunte's daunted by the Miami defense.
DOLPHINS, 17-11

Oakland (plus 6 1/2) at Indianapolis
Peyton Manning is not Ryan Leaf.
COLTS, 27-17

Chicago (plus 7) at Tampa Bay

Cade McNown won't scramble for 87 yards against this defense.
BUCS, 24-9

Atlanta (plus 6 1/2) at Denver
This could be Anderson (Mike) vs. Anderson (Jamal) at running back. Jamal's better, but go with Mike.
BRONCOS, 31-14

Carolina (minus 3) at San Francisco
This could be a trap for the Panthers — the Niners are a little better this year, particularly on offense.
PANTHERS, 24-23

New Orleans (plus 6) at San Diego
Leaf will get hit legally this week.
CHARGERS, 5-2

Cleveland (pick 'em) at Cincinnati
Akili Smith, Tim Couch and two teams made for each other.
BENGALS, 14-13

Last week: 8-7 (spread); 11-4 (straight up).

Batch will start Sunday

■ Detroit's quarterback is not 100 percent, but he will play against Washington.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Just 24 hours after signing a four-year, $31 million contract extension, Charlie Batch said Thursday he will start Sunday against the Washington Redskins. "I'm not 100 percent, and there are some things in the game plan that I can't do, but I'll be out there," Batch said after practice. "Obviously, if I keep waiting, I'll get closer to 100 percent, but I can do things now that I couldn't do last week, so we felt the time was right."

Batch broke a bone in his knee during offseason workouts and missed all of training camp and the Lions' 14-10 season-opening win in New Orleans. Lions coach Bobby Ross said the team is happy to have Batch back, even after Stoney Case helped them to victory over the Saints. "No offense to Stoney at all, but Charlie is our quarterback of the present and of the future," Ross said. "He's the guy we want out there in a big game."

As he did Wednesday after signing the contract, Batch took the vast majority of snaps in Thursday's practice — 15 to just three for Case. He looked sharp, completing seven of 10 passes, but used very little lateral movement.

"His timing has been really sharp, and based on what I've seen over the past two days, he's ready to go," Ross said. "Obviously, there's going to be some adjustment to going at game speed again, but his timing with the receivers is already there. Keep in mind that he's been throwing for five weeks now."

Batch missed all or parts of 10 games last season, including a playoff loss to the Redskins, after suffering elbow and hand injuries.

"I'm sure there is going to be some rust there," Batch said. "I'm on game one of my season, and all these other guys have already played a game, plus the preseason. So I'm going to already be playing catchup, and I won't be 100 percent."

Hawkeyes pumped to meet old coach

Iowa meets Stephanie Gabbert and Iowa State today at 4 p.m. in Ames.

By Laura Podolak
The Daily Iowan

As if the Iowa-Iowa State rivalry isn't enough, throw a former coach onto the opposing sideline, and you'll see extra motivation in the eyes of the Iowa soccer team.

Stephanie Gabbert, who was the Hawkeyes' head coach last year, left Iowa in February to coach the Cyclones. She said Iowa State was just a "better fit" for her professionally.

Many of the Hawkeyes admit that having Gabbert in the other corner has fueled the already blazing rivalry between the two schools.

Ask Hawkeye leader Sarah Lynch.

Playing Gabbert's squad intensifies the rivalry "big time," she said. "We literally have a countdown until we play them."

"Oh yeah, by 100 percent. It is intense," agreed co-captain Sarah Kiefer about the upcoming contest.

Although the women said they are aware of the added intensity of the game, they do not feel as though there is more pressure to win. "I don't think it is pressure, just motivation to win. All of our players will play harder than we ever have," said senior midfielder Beth Oldenburg. "It is motivation to defeat her (Gabbert's) team."

"We all want to win. It is not added pressure. (Playing Gabbert's team) is just an added boost. We want to show her what she's missing," Lynch said.

The Hawkeyes want to beat the Cyclones as much as they want to defeat Gabbert, but some say their additional motivation for a win is not due to hard feelings about their former coach's departure.

"Oh no, I definitely don't (have hard feelings)," Kiefer said. "It intensifies because we know her. It's like competing with your friends."

But Oldenburg seems to have a slightly different view on the subject.

"We want to beat Gabbert because she left us," she said.

When Gabbert left the team, she took with her knowledge of the Iowa players she helped recruit and mold into the competitors they are today. To some of the players, this may seem as an unfair advantage, but others have managed to turn it into their gain.

Oldenburg said the Hawkeyes have the advantage because they know Gabbert's style of coaching. With Iowa administering a new system, formation and style of play, she thinks the Hawks will throw Gabbert off.

"We are doing nothing that Gabbert taught us," Oldenburg said.

Freshman Lynch, however, said Gabbert has a bit more of an advantage.

"She knows each and every one of us — the freshmen are not even a secret weapon. But, it is not enough to call the game," she said. "We are hoping that the 4-3-3 formation will work toward our advantage. It is not her style of play. So, it is a little bit of both."

Some may see the Hawkeyes as not only competing against the debatable disadvantage of playing a former coach but also ISU's home-field advantage.

When the Hawkeyes travel to Ames today, they plan to meet up with a hostile Iowa State crowd but this does not seem bother the Hawkeye players. They said they expect a competitive cheering section of their own.

"There is no intimidation factor. It won't be hard to go to Ames and win. So many Iowa fans are coming to this game, parents from Colorado, past players. Fans are coming to cheer for us just because we're playing Gabbert," Oldenburg said. "We'll have so many people there cheering for us, that which ever team goes out and plays harder will come out on top."

In addition to motivation of beating a former coach at her own game, the Hawkeyes look to prior meetings of the two schools for even more incentive for a victory.

"We have never beaten them; we've only taken them into overtime twice. It will be a really good game. Personally, we just want to win," Kiefer said.

Iowa enters the Iowa State game with a record of 4-0. The Cyclones have a slightly less appealing record at 2-1, their one loss coming at the hands of Minnesota, a 1-0 defeat.

The game is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. today in Ames.

HAWKEYE ROAD BRIEFS

Field hockey

This weekend: The women's field hockey team (3-2) hits the road for Philadelphia to play in the Temple Invitational. The Hawks square off with North Carolina (3-0) in the first round Saturday at 1:30 p.m. They will then play either Temple (1-1) or Towson (2-2) on Sunday at a time to be announced.

Last weekend: The team took two out of three wins in St. Louis, starting on Friday by romping over the St. Louis Billikens, 5-0. They fell to the Wake Forest Demon Deacons, 2-1, Sunday before rebounding with a 2-1 overtime win over the Stanford Cardinal on Monday.

Scouting North Carolina: The undefeated Tar Heels are coming off big wins over Michigan and Penn State in the Big Ten/ACC Challenge. Senior back Jana Toppel leads the team as a two-time All-American. The Heels may be looking for revenge on the Hawks because Iowa defeated UNC, 2-0, in the NCAA regionals last season.

Iowa's keys: The Hawkeyes are currently 3-0 in games when one of the two senior captains, Natalie Dawson or Susan Gibson, has scored. The seniors are showing their leadership with their play; each player has a game-winning goal. Top defender Tiffany Fodera will return to the lineup this weekend after missing the first five games of the season with an injury.

Quick facts: The team has ventured into overtime twice this season, prevailing in both matches, 2-1. Last season, Iowa only had one match head into the extra frame, a 2-1 loss in the Final Four to eventual champion Maryland. Sophomore goalkeeper Saleema Rogers had 22 saves in the 2-1 loss to Wake Forest last weekend and was named Big Ten Defensive Player of the Week.

— by Nick Firchau

Men's cross country

This weekend: The Iowa men's cross-country team travels to Purdue for the first meet of the season. The Purdue Invitational begins Saturday with the first race at 10 a.m. Competition includes top-10 ranked Arizona, top-20 ranked Butler, Illinois, Purdue and DePaul.

Last season: The Hawkeyes finished ninth at the Big Ten Championships and ended the season with a sixth-place finish at the NCAA Midwest Regional meet. A highlight from last year was when Iowa won the 12-team Loyola Lakefront Invitational.

Newcomers: Three freshmen have joined the Hawkeyes this season — Chris Jensen and Ben Schutman of Iowa and Dan Trainor of Illinois.

Iowa's key: The Hawks return 10 lettermen, including All-Regional selection Paul Sarris, who will run later in the season.

Head coach Larry Wiczorek: "This weekend gives us a great opportunity to get an early season test against nationally ranked opponents. We are a very young team, and we hope to see who will step up to the challenge and take leadership positions."

Next week: The Hawkeyes will travel to Ames for the Iowa State Open.

Men's golf

This weekend: Iowa will open the fall season with a trip to Madison, Wisconsin for the Badger Invitational. The tournament will be held at the University Ridge Golf Course, which is a 6,888-yard, par-72 course. Thirty-six holes will be played Saturday and 18 Sunday.

The lineup: Iowa will start seniors Jason Wombacher and Matt Stutzman, junior Tyler Stith, and sophomores Bo Anderson and Matt Larson.

On the competition: Perennial golf powerhouse Arizona State will be among the 15 teams in the field. Sun Devil golfer Jeff Quinney captured the U.S. Amateur Championship over the summer.

Head coach Terry Anderson: "We have four guys playing real well, and the fifth spot is up for grabs. The future looks bright because we have more than five guys that can play. Overall, our optimism this year is high. I feel it will be a good year in Iowa golf."

Player's comment: "It's a fairly big field. It's going to be a tough meet, but it should be fun, too. We have a chance to do a lot of good things this year," Wombacher said.

White Sox fans conspicuously absent

The White Sox should go to the playoffs but still get outdrawn by the Cubs.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago White Sox have the best record in all of baseball, an offense that scores runs in bunches and an all-but-guaranteed spot in the playoffs for the first time since 1993.

Yet Comiskey Park is still empty, practically barren on a regular basis. The city of Chicago has been starved for a winner since Michael Jordan retired, and empty seats abound in the White Sox's stands.

"I don't know what happened to all the people, man," reliever Kelly Wunsch said. "I wish I did. We were doing OK, drawing pretty decent crowds. We weren't selling out like a lot of people — the Cleveland Indians — but then all of the sudden, we got back from our last road trip, and there really was nobody out here."

"It's funny." Or sad. The White Sox are averaging 24,749 at home, a number that shrinks with every game. With the playoffs less than a month away, they've drawn 30,000 only twice in the last 15 home games.

On Tuesday, a paltry 13,899 showed up. Only 15,622 came out Wednesday. Those numbers might be better suited for a bottom-feeder like the Tampa Bay Devil Rays, not a division leader.

In Cleveland, where the Indians are 6½ games behind the White Sox, the Indians were scheduled to sell out their 441st game in a row Thursday. They're drawing an average of 42,665 at home.

"It just surprises me, that's all," White Sox manager Jerry Manuel said. "I came to Chicago and people said, 'Oh, you've got to win.' They said, 'If you win, people will come out'.... I don't know, maybe we have to win it a year and do the same thing for years to come."

Sounds like a good theory, but one trip to the North Side blows it to bits. The crosstown Cubs are one of the wor-teams in baseball year after year, yet fans flock to Wrigley Field.

Last year, when the Cubs finished 30 games out, they drew a record 2.8 million. Despite being below .500 for all but the first two games this season, the Cubs are averaging 34,924 at home.

For those who can't do the math, that means the North Siders are outdrawing the White Sox by 10,000 a game.

"This is not a South Side team, it's a Chicago team," Manuel said. "This team belongs to the city. It's just unfortunate we're not getting the support we think we should get."

While some fans may be opting to tailgate instead of watch the Hawkeyes, there are still some die-hard students that will be in Kinnick despite Iowa's recent football woes.

"I'm really looking forward to watching the Hawkeyes this season," said UI senior Jason Augustine. "I think we're really going to surprise some people with our play, turn some heads."

Augustine said he is confident the Hawkeyes will be surprising some folks, predicting that the team will pick up a 27-10 victory.

"Our defense steps up, our passing game gets its stuff together, and Betts has a big game," Augustine said.

UI senior Eric Smith held off on any bold predictions and said he just wants to get back in Kinnick and enjoy some college football.

"I'm always excited about college football and the Hawkeyes," Smith said. "I love Kinnick Stadium, it's great. I just hope the weather is good."

Tailgating? Both Smith and Augustine said they'll be enjoying the pregame festivities also. "Definitely, man," Augustine said. "I'm going to be up at seven in the morning, hamburger in hand, drinking some beer."

Smith said he'll be up early too.

"I'm not going out Friday night so I can get up in time Saturday," he said.

While some fans will attend the game half-heartedly, or some not at all, Smith said he hopes that more fans show up than anticipated.

"It's going to be really disappointing if I go to the game and the fan support isn't up to par," Smith said. "That's really bad, that there are so many tickets left for this game. I guess there's not a whole lot of loyalty anymore. That's pretty sad."

ST. LOUIS — Darryl Kile struck out 10 in seven innings for his 17th win as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos, 6-1, Thursday.

Kile (17-9) allowed a run on five hits to win his third straight start. Kile allowed one walk, his only one in his last three starts and tied Arizona's Randy Johnson for second most victories in the league. Atlanta's Tom Glavine has 19.

Kile struck out Wilton Guerrero all three times he faced him and finished his stint with a flourish, dropping to sidarm to fan Peter Bergeron to end the seventh. Kile's only trouble came in the fourth, when he left the bases loaded.

BOSTON — Jose Offerman homered twice, giving him three in two days, and Dante Bichette also homered for the second consecutive game as the Boston Red Sox rallied from a five-run, first-inning deficit on Thursday to beat the Minnesota Twins, 11-6.

David Ortiz hit his first career grand slam, then Corey Koskie followed with a homer off Ramon Martinez to give the Twins a fast 5-0 lead.

"We're definitely going to take some shots this weekend and just open it up and have some fun," Hill said. "Why? What have we got to lose?"

Western Michigan's pass defense surrendered just 96 yards to Wisconsin's Brooks

Bollinger last Saturday, but Hill isn't the only receiver convinced Iowa's offense will be clicking and much improved come Saturday.

"We need to get our offensive line on track and get quarterbacks and receivers back in the rhythm," Kevin Kasper said. "I know this weekend we're going to break out and have a good offensive game."

Defensively, the Hawkeyes are looking to build upon a pretty solid first-game performance. Iowa only trailed Kansas State 17-7 with about five minutes left in the game. As a unit, the defense forced three Wildcat turnovers to open the second half.

While K-State had a balanced offensive attack, the Broncos feature the passing game with quarterback Jeff Welsh and five returning wide receivers.

"They come right at you," Mikkel Brown said. "As a DB, that's what you want because that's going to test you and see where you are. Hopefully, we'll rise to the challenge."

Iowa is not looking past Western Michigan on either side of the ball. No matter the opponent or its record, Iowa is entering every game with a must-win attitude.

"We're up for the challenge," Brown said. "We're ready to show fans at home what we can do and erase all the questions people may have about us."

Gabelman quickly added that the college game is more fun.

The Hawkeyes will compete with 31 other teams, including

Wait Until Dark opens tonight

■ The show's focus on an able and intelligent blind woman breaks many stereotypes.

By Karen Schmiedeskamp
The Daily Iowan

Audiences can expect thrills and suspense in the Iowa City Community Theatre's season opener Wait Until Dark, opening tonight at the Johnson County Fairgrounds.

In the psychological thriller written by Frederick Knott (who also wrote Dial M for Murder), three con-men are after a blind woman named Susy Hendrix (played by Kristy Hartsgrove) who has a valuable heroin-filled doll in her apartment. The evil trio assumes because it is tracking a "helpless blind woman," its quest for the doll will be easy. But Hendrix is anything but helpless, and the search for the doll becomes a battle of wits.

In order to create an authentic character, Hartsgrove shadowed Priscilla McKinley, a UI rhetoric teaching assistant, to learn how a blind person functions in his or her daily life, she said.

Watching McKinley was helpful, Hartsgrove said, because McKinley taught her how to feel her way around a room, how to watch out for tricky turns and pathways, and she even gave Hartsgrove a parting gift.

"She gave me lots of helpful pointers. She also gave me a stylus, a Braille plate and a cane," Hartsgrove said.

The show's focus on an able and intelligent blind woman breaks stereotypes that some (including the characters of the three con-men) hold about the blind.

"It's a wonderful, less empowering show in terms of being blind," said director Matthew Falduto.

Hartsgrove isn't the only colorful character in the pro-

"It's a wonderful change," said Brewbaker, who said he usually plays "good-guy" roles. "No one will walk up to me and say 'Oh! How cute!' when this show is done. I'm also enjoying the chance to use different acting techniques in order to get to a dark, juicier role."

Audiences should prepare themselves for a fast-paced show, full of combat and blood, said Falduto.

ARTS BRIEF

Russell brings political satire to Hancher

Politics are usually no laughing matter, but for satirist Mark Russell, political humor is a lifestyle.

Local residents will have a chance to hear Russell's unique political outlook tomorrow and Sunday at Hancher Auditorium. Proclaimed "the funniest man on television" by TV Guide, Russell, who has regular specials on PBS, has dedicated 25 years of his life to comedy. Russell began his career as a pianist at a Capitol Hill hotel bar frequented by politicians. While there, he began writing songs about the politicians. He went on to become a resident comedian at Washington's Shoreham Hotel. When Watergate hit, his routines about the scandal gave him national attention.

Today, Russell writes a regular column for the Los Angeles Times and enjoys performing for live audiences.

"The largest audience I ever had was 10,000 people," Russell said. "The smallest was a group called 'Gay and Lesbian Mexican Jews for Pat Buchanan.'"

Russell's Iowa City performances will focus on the presidential and vice-presidential nominees. Phil Kloer of the Atlanta Constitution wrote that Russell's success as a comedian is because "he hands it out equally to Democrats and Republicans, conservatives and liberals."

With the elections only a few months away, Russell has a lot to say about this year's candidates.

"Regarding candidates' reactions to me," Russell said, "I would be honored to take the blame from whoever loses."

UI art museum expands hours

■ Beginning today, the museum will be open until 9 p.m.

By Natasha Lambropoulos
The Daily Iowan

New hours at the UI Museum of Art will offer more students a chance to participate in upcoming intellectual and cultural events. The UI Museum of Art, located on North Riverside Drive in Iowa City, has expanded its Friday hours to remain open until 9 p.m. starting today, announced the museum's new director, Howard Collinson.

"We are making hours accessible for the public to have time to visit the museum," he said.

Along with the new hours, the museum will expand its programming to include Friday night events such as performance art, artist receptions, musical performances and lectures. All events will be free and open to the public.

"The events will be lively and entertaining so that people can see a museum from a different light, a different perspective," said Emily Vermillion, the curator of education for the museum.

"We're hoping a lot of students will come."

Museum staff hope the new hours and expanded programming will attract students and give them options of weekend activities that differ from the norm.

"I think we can offer an alternative to the bar crowd," said Pamela Trimpe, the curator of painting and sculpture for the museum.

The museum will kick off its new programming today at 7 p.m. with the performance art exhibit, "still moving present," by UI graduate students Miriam Bennett, Melissa Lockwood and Rachel Winborn.

The performance is in conjunction with the opening of "What Remains in Each Case: Installations by Miriam Bennett," which will remain on display through Nov. 26.

The museum displays more than 10,000 works in collection, including Jackson Pollock's largest painting, a Picasso and an outstanding African collection, said Vermillion.

"People come from all over the world to see Jackson Pollock's mural, his largest oil-on-canvas painting, almost 20 feet long," Vermillion said.

The museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday; from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Friday; and from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

A change in general museum hours is under discussion, Collinson said.

Virginia Tech thumps ECU, 45-28

GREENVILLE, N.C. — Like so many times in Frank Beamer's career, special teams made No. 10 Virginia Tech special Thursday night. The Hokies (2-0) blocked two kicks, disrupted another one deep in East Carolina territory, and had an 87-yard punt return in the first half en route to a 45-28 victory over the Pirates. Michael Vick barely broke a sweat in the opening 30 minutes, completing five passes for 56 yards. But Virginia Tech still managed a 31-0 lead in beating the Pirates (1-1) for the fifth straight time since 1993. Vick finished with 106 yards passing and 13 yards rushing.

BRIEF

The largest audience I ever had was 10,000 people," Russell said. "The smallest group I ever addressed was 'Gay and Lesbian'." Russell is a political satirist.

Russell's Iowa City performance will focus on the presidential and vice-presidential nominees. Phil Kloer of the Atlanta Constitution wrote that Russell's success as a comedian is because "he hands it out equally to Democrats and Republicans, conservatives and liberals." With the elections only a few months away, Russell has a lot to say about this year's candidates. "Regarding candidates' reactions to me," Russell said, "I could be honored to take the blame from whoever loses."

horoscopes

Friday, September 8, 2000

by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): One-sided partnerships will be upsetting. Be sure to get promises in writing. Self-deception, coupled with confusion, will lead you in the wrong direction with the wrong individual.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You're in a high creative cycle. Make an effort to complete unfinished projects. Involvement with children will be enlightening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your emotions and your capacity for love are growing. Greater opportunities to meet potential lovers will evolve through attending investment meetings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Sudden romantic attractions may surface through work-related events. Be careful not to let co-workers in on personal secrets. Problems with partnerships may disrupt your routine.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can be the center of attention with your colorful wit. Gain popularity by attending business festivities. Don't get involved in the personal affairs of co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Unique forms of entertainment will captivate you and bring about a romantic interest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will be concerned about the changes going on at home. You don't like to feel unsettled and know that a decision must be made. Look to a close friend for advice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Talk to individuals you trust and bounce your ideas off them. You have initiated your plans but haven't anticipated some of the delays you are encountering.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't become angry because a financial deal you were working on went sour. You have only yourself to blame. Dealing with dubious characters and taking risks probably means you'll lose.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Difficulties with emotional partners will be most unpleasant. You haven't had much time to spend with loved ones and had better start thinking about making up for lost time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This is not the best time to deal with your boss. Difficulties will occur with institutions or authority figures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel and adventure can be yours. Foreign cultures and customs will enlighten you. You will need mental as well as physical stimulation in your relationship.

TRUE FRESHMEN FIND SUCCESS

Iowa's Jeremy Allen breaks free from a pack of Kansas State defenders in the third quarter last Saturday at Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City. Allen, who played 11 games as a true freshman in 1998, gained 40 yards on nine carries in the team's season opener.

Iowa freshmen hope to follow in steps of predecessors

■ The youth on Iowa's squad tries to adapt to Div. I football quickly.

By Roseanna Smith
The Daily Iowan

From the ranks of a high-school team to the trenches of Division I, freshmen football players find it takes a lot to survive the first year.

Iowa's only in-state recruit, Nate Kaeding, learned early that the accolades he garnered in high school (first-team All-State kicker and punter at Iowa City West) meant nothing once he put on a Hawkeye uniform.

"It's different," said Kaeding, who was Iowa's starting place-kicker in the season opener against Kansas State. "It was a struggle for the first few weeks as a freshman with the opportunity to play. There is more responsibility with school and going out there and playing in front of 80,000 people."

And he got the job done, making his first career point-after attempt at Kansas State.

Freshmen were not normally used to taking hits from upperclassmen — in games, at least. In the '80s and early '90s, traditional football powerhouses could stockpile top recruits. The NCAA currently allows schools to keep 85 players on scholarship, and some say that is still too many. The NCAA is weighing the option of cutting football scholarships even more.

Current Hawkeyes Aaron Kampan, Ladell Betts and Kahlil Hill all played as true freshmen.

Players regarded as blue-chip prospects who normally would be offered a full-ride by the likes of Florida State now may end up at a less-prestigious school because a team on the Seminoles' level simply has no scholarships available. This pressure, along with new-found freedom, is sometimes too much for players.

Junior Jeremy Allen, who played all 11 games of his freshman year on special teams and saw limited action as a fullback, recounted some of the difficulties he's seen.

"There's a lot more independence in college," he said. "In high school, there are teachers and coaches pushing you. College expects you to do it yourself. A few guys have had problems being late, missing classes and not knowing the importance of accepting the responsibility, but that's part of growing up."

Senior teammate Kevin Kasper agreed.

"Playing football is motivational — if you're not doing well in school, you're not going to be doing anything on the field," he said.

Kasper has gone from a walk-on in 1996 to a key wide receiver with more than 1,000 career yards receiving. It didn't happen overnight.

"I tried to work as hard as I could — I had to do it," he said. "The biggest differences are everything is faster and there's a crazier mentality. In high school, you can dominate, but in college, everyone is as good as you are. You have to work hard to excel and have an exceptional work ethic. There's no question that it's a huge challenge, but if you shy away from that, you aren't going to make it."

Coach Kirk Ferentz's goal at the beginning of the season was to recruit more freshmen who could play early. He wanted to boost last year's totals in which only two-of-18 freshmen played on the defensive side of the ball, while 16 took redshirt years. During Hayden Fry's last year at Iowa in 1998, seven played and 11 were redshirted.

In order to find success with freshmen taking on an increased amount of responsibilities, Ferentz counts on his players to help each other. So far, it seems to have worked.

"The older guys keep an eye out for you — it's hard to slack off," Kaeding said.

WESTERN MICHIGAN

Broncos hope to capture first Big Ten victory against Iowa

Western Michigan prepares to face its second Big Ten opponent in consecutive Saturdays.

By Nick Firchau
The Daily Iowan

With an early season bye last Saturday, Iowa football players and fans had a little extra time to watch some interesting college football games on television.

One story that gathered plenty of national attention was that of a Mid-Atlantic Conference team downing a mighty Big Ten mainstay: Toledo drubbing Penn State on the road. But the Hawks had their ears tuned to another interesting game between the conferences.

Mighty Wisconsin 19, lowly Western Michigan 7.

Hawkeye fans did a double take at that final score because the Badgers came into the game ranked No. 5 and the Broncos are charging into Iowa City Saturday to meet up with the 0-1 Hawkeys.

The significance of Western Michigan's performance came under immediate question following the pregame announcement that 11 Wisconsin players were suspended from the game for receiving unadvertised discounts from a local shoe store. The Badgers lost five starters to the suspensions.

So, the Western Michigan squad is surrounded by a bit of mystery about how good it will actually turn out to be. What kind of team can Iowa players and fans expect? Bronco coach Gary Darnell says it will be a hungry one.

"The Big Ten win is going to happen some day," he said. "Western has come a long way. This team belongs in those arenas and can play in those arenas."

Darnell coaches a Broncos squad that posted a 7-5 record, won the Western division of the MAC and shared the conference title with Marshall last season. The Broncos set a school record for conference wins in a season with six.

MAC opponents aside, Darnell knows how important a win over a school Iowa would be for his program.

"The day it happens is going to be another dramatic change in the perception of Western Michigan," he said. "I hope we're ready to take that next step, and that next step is going to propel this program into another place that it's in right now, in respect a'one."

Western Michigan's coaching staff did not heavily emphasize Wisconsin's suspensions as the key to the game being so close. Rather, Darnell praised the play of his quarterback for the solid game against the Badgers, a game that had Broncos down by only 3 as late as 11 seconds left in the third quarter, before Wisconsin added an insurance touchdown in the fourth. Junior Jeff Welsh went 20-39 for 243 yards and threw a two-yard touchdown during the game.

"To play against one of the premier defenses in the country, he took his hits," said Darnell about Welsh. "But to play against the No. 4 team in the nation and to run his offense, I give him an A."

Welsh's primary target was

— Gary Darnell
Western Michigan coach

junior Josh Bush, who hauled in five passes for 76 yards. Senior Steve Neal had three catches for 44 yards. "Jukebox" Neal owns the Broncos career records for receptions, receiving yards and receiving touchdowns — numbers that are second-best in the nation among active players.

While the Broncos succeeded through the air on the Badgers, their rushing game never got off the ground. Senior running back Robert Sanford, who is currently the nation's fourth-leading active career rusher, fought for 23 yards on nine carries.

Senior linebacker Garrett Soldano led the Broncos' defense with the best performance of his career. He amassed 21 tackles, of which 11 were solo, and was named MAC Defensive Player of the Week after leading a team that held Wisconsin to 252 yards of total offense.

Darnell knows that all cylinders will have to be firing together to get the win for the visiting Broncos.

"A win will mean a lot to a lot of people," he said. "Being close is nice whiskey talk, but it doesn't get you trophies. I don't when it's gonna happen, or if it will happen this week, but it's gonna happen."

Beat Western Michigan

football
from ...

A to Z

A is for Allen. Jeremy Allen rushed for 40 yards in his debut at full-back.
B is for Broncos. Western Michigan went 7-5, 6-2 in the Mid-Atlantic Conference last season and shared the overall title with Marshall.
C is for contract. Maybe coach Kirk Ferentz will actually sign one this year.
D is for Dodge. Tim Dodge has one interception in just one start. He plays with the same spirit as Timmy D.
E is for endzone. Iowa needs to start finding it consistently.

F is for five-foot-eight or Fred Russell. It's the same thing.
G is for goal line. Iowa needs to cross it more. Notice the trend?
H is for Hill. Kahlil Hill was a no-show in Iowa's loss to K-State, but that better change in Saturday's game.
I is for injuries. The Hawkeyes really have to avoid this bug this year, especially since they've waved bye-bye to the bye-week.
J is for Jason. Jason Baker totaled 377 yards on nine punts last game. Since the Hawkeyes punt so much, it's a good thing Baker's good.

K is for Kaeding. Nate Kaeding emerged as Iowa's No. 1 kicker. He is the first true freshman to place-kick for Iowa since Zach Bromert in 1995.
L is for Ladell. As soon as the line starts opening holes for Ladell Betts, look out.
M is for Mullen. Last time he was in Kinnick Stadium, Scott Mullen put up 340 yards on 28 completions against Minnesota.

N is for night life. Win or lose, it'll still be fun.
O is for one. That is how many wins Iowa had last year, and it came in the non-conference schedule so ...
P is for Pickens. This juco transfer may not have the height of a dominating lineman, but he has the heart and hunger of one.
Q is for questions, like what's up with Iowa's special teams?
R is for running game. Ferentz said Iowa must establish one if they are going to be successful this year. You think?
S is for Stoops. Only Hawkeye wins will stop Iowa fans from watching Bob Stoops.
T is for touchdowns. Refer to letters "E" and "G."
U is for Uselman. Who? If you are looking in the media guide, you won't find him, but Joe Uselman is listed as Iowa's second-string right end. By the end of the season you'll probably even know how to pronounce his name.

V is for Varsity Club Day. Saturday, the 1990 and 1985 Rose Bowl teams and the 1980 men's basketball Final Four team will receive special recognition.
W is for Woods. As expected, senior LeVar Woods helped lead the defense in Iowa's first game. The outside linebacker recorded nine tackles, including three for a loss.
X is for "X's" and "O's." If Iowa executes the game plan, this should be a very winnable game.
Y is for youth. Iowa's depth chart includes only 13 seniors.
Z is for zero. It's how many Ztimes Western Michigan and Iowa have met. However, for some reason, Hawkeye and Bronco fans are not rushing to the ticket office to see this first-time meeting.
