Bob Knight fired for 'unacceptable behavior'

The brazen Indiana basketball coach is dismissed for several school-policy violations.

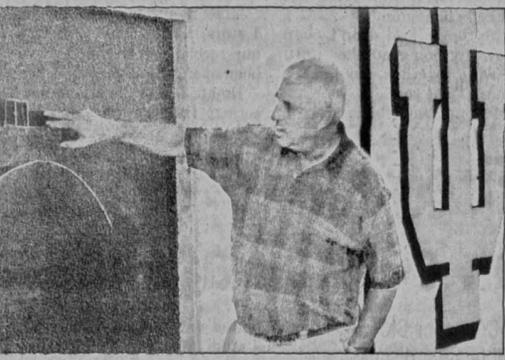

By Amy Forliti
 Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Bob Knight's temper finally did him in. Knight was fired Sunday for a "pattern of unacceptable behavior" at Indiana, ending three tumultuous decades at a school where he was one of basketball's best coaches but also one of its most volatile. University president Myles Brand, who announced the firing at a news conference, called Knight "defiant and hostile" and said the coach had shown a "continued unwillingness" to work within guidelines of the athletic department. Knight also violated the school's "zero-tolerance" policy by grabbing a freshman by the arm last week to lecture him about manners after the student said, "Hey, what's up, Knight?" The coach, famous for his red Hoosiers sweater and blue language as he belted at players from the sideline, was already in trouble for a history of outbursts at Indiana, where he won three national championships. The 59-year-old Hall of Fame coach was warned in May about his behavior after an investigation into accusations he choked one of his players during practice in 1997, an act caught on videotape. But his conduct became even worse, Brand said, and he had been disrespectful to alumni and failed to show up at certain community events. "He did not fulfill the promises he gave me," Brand said, adding that Knight had the option of resigning but refused. Brand stressed that Knight's run-in with 19-year-old Kent Harvey on Thursday was not the only reason for the coach's dismissal. "If that was the only instance that took place you would not be here today," Brand told reporters. Knight held a news conference Sept. 8 to explain his side of the story, complete with a diagram on a blackboard and re-enactment of the encounter with assistant coach Mike Davis. Harvey, stepson of a Knight critic and former local talk radio show host, had addressed the coach by his last name as they crossed paths at Assembly Hall, a greeting Knight deemed disrespectful. The coach said he didn't curse at Harvey but did briefly

Female athletes support athletics merge

Brett Roseman/The Daily Iowan
 UI President Mary Sue Coleman answers questions at a press conference Sept. 8 as current men's athletics director Bob Bowlsby listens. With the recent departure of women's athletics director Dr. Christine Grant, it was announced that Bowlsby will assume responsibility for all intercollegiate athletic programs at the UI.

Though most OK the move, the fear of under-representation remains.

By Andrew Bixby
 The Daily Iowan

Although there is concern among some UI athletes that women will lose representation in UI athletics, most were supportive of UI President Mary Sue Coleman's Friday decision to combine the UI men's and women's athletic programs. Current men's athletic director Bob Bowlsby was appointed as the director of all intercollegiate athletic programs at the UI. There are only five remaining universities in the United States with separate men's and women's Athletics Departments. While she is supportive of Coleman's decision, UI senior and softball player Brooke Cross said she hopes the merger will not lead to the hiring of men's coaches for women's athletics — a move Cross said would be harmful for the UI. "I don't think they'll hire male coaches just because a male is in charge now — especially with softball," she said. "It would hurt the recruiting department and the Athletic Department as a whole." Following the retirement of UI women's athletic director Christine Grant on Aug. 31, Coleman formed a nine-member task force to decide the fate of the UI Athletic Departments. The task force spoke with everyone from student-athletes to officials at other universities before making a recommendation to Coleman. Although there will not be a separate women's athletic director under the new merge, a person will be appointed to assist Bowlsby with women's athletics. The Athletic Department will begin searching for a women's athletic administrator this week, Bowlsby said. The new position will guide the transition of the women's program and serve in

- The women's and men's programs will be integrated with Bob Bowlsby as director.
- A senior women's athletics administrator will be hired to guide the transition of the women's program.
- All sources of athletics income will be combined to form one fund.
- The UI will keep all current men's and women's sports teams.

Students urged to protest tuition hike

Student leaders fear a steep increase will lead the state lawmakers to further underfund universities.

By Ryan Foley
 The Daily Iowan

Student government leaders and UI officials say they have differing views on what kind of message passing an almost 10 percent hike in tuition/fees would send to state lawmakers. Student government leaders across the state say they fear such a hike, if passed without protest, would indicate to legislators that it is OK for the state to continue underfunding its universities. The result, they say, would be less funding from the state and similarly high tuition hikes in the future, which could hurt the accessibility and quality of the universities. That's one of the messages they say they will try to get across to members of the state of Iowa Board of Regents during its meeting on Wednesday. The student government leaders are scheduled to make a presentation in the IMU Richey Ballroom at 1:30 p.m. UI Student Government President Andy Stoll said he is encouraging students to attend the regents meeting and communicate their views on tuition to the board. UISG is also planning other measures to gather student input on the increase, such as an online referendum, he said. Rep. Brad Hansen, R-Carter Lake, said Sunday if students do not protest the proposed tuition/fees hike, some legislators will not be concerned about the effects of steep tuition/fees hikes in the future. He encourages students to voice their opinions in the next month before the regents vote on the proposal in October. See REGENTS, Page 10A

Football attendance dwindles, but tailgating stays strong

With an estimated crowd of 55,000, Kinnick Stadium was short on Hawkeye fans Sept. 9. But tailgaters say the surrounding parking lots were as popular as ever.

UI junior DeeDee Myers first tailgated with friends near the UI Field House before joining her family in the parking lot of Kinnick Stadium before the game. "Everybody was pretty drunk (at the UI Field House parking lot)," she said. "However, most of my friends were just going to tailgate and not go to the game."

A popular destination for tailgaters was 817 Melrose Ave., the home of the "Magic Bus." The UI rugby team rents the backyard of the residence to tailgate, where UI seniors Chad Hambright and Jake Engle live. The party is called the "Magic Bus" because of a bus parked in back, on top of which local bands play for spectators,

Hambright said. "It was pretty fun," Engle said. "A lot of people came." Although Engle didn't end up making it to the game, he said from the crowds tailgating, he guessed that the game wasn't as busy as last year's home opener against Nebraska. The Stepping Up Project sponsors a non-alcoholic tailgate before each home football

Hillcrest RAs plan more social events for residents

Some feel Ethernet has decreased attendance at social activities.

By Peter Rugg
The Daily Iowan

Many resident assistants in Hillcrest Residence Hall noticed that students on their floors this year were not being as social as in past years — something many blamed on Ethernet — so they came up with ideas to get students out of their rooms.

With the fast Internet connections, many students are using computers for increased amounts of time to chat with friends and download music.

"Programs have been a little hard to coordinate with the Ethernet installed this year. Residents seem to be in their rooms a lot more," said Jonathan Bailey, a UI senior and returning Hillcrest RA.

On Sunday, Hillcrest RAs launched a new social-event schedule with two games for roommates called "Survivor."

During the first game, called "I've Got Mail," the roommates stood in a circle while one person in the middle said something their roommate had done. Residents who had had the same experience had to run to a different spot in the circle. Whoever was the last one to make it across then had to go to the middle and say something that had happened with their roommate.

"I've got mail for someone who's walked in on their roommate kissing," and "I've got mail for someone whose roommate sheds hair all over," were some common roommate experiences called out.

The next game combined elements of the TV series "Survivor" with elements of "The Newlywed Game." Roommates sat back to back and were asked questions based on "Survivor," such as "Which of you would walk around naked on the island," and "Who is your roommate most like — Rudy, Rich, Sue or Kelly?"

Roommates received points for matching answers. Eventually the roommates were weeded out to a final pair, who won a Chia Head for their knowledge of each other.

While the turnout was low, residents who were in attendance said they enjoyed themselves.

"It was fun. It's a nice little break from studying," UI freshman Jen Boza said.

The RAs said they hope to have better attendance for a program called "Making the Band," which will be held today at 8 p.m. in Hillcrest's Riverview Lounge. "Making the Band" will be an opportunity for residents who play instruments or sing to meet other residents with the same interests and make music together.

RA Jon Lehan, who organized "Making the Band," said he expects it to be a successful program.

"You have to track people down a bit, which is the hardest thing about programming," he said. "But once you get the residents to come, they always enjoy themselves."

RAs said they are also organizing flag football teams, movie nights and "Tuck Ins," in which residents of a men's floor read stories and then tuck in residents of a women's floor before bed.

Soil conservation down in Iowa

A drop in the environmental practice has EPA officials concerned.

Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — The number of Iowa farmers practicing soil conservation is leveling off after years of growth.

The trend worries environmentalists concerned about silt, the top pollutant of Iowa's waterways, which can cause algae-related fish kills.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is considering whether Iowa is doing enough to clean 159 river stretches and lakes that have been declared impaired.

Through the 1980s and into the 1990s, Iowa farmers increasingly used such soil-saving techniques as leaving corn stubble in fields. A coalition of farm-related groups that sponsored the new survey feared farmers had stopped leaving corn stubble. A check in 1998 had found a 12-percent drop in conservation practices in a year.

Another year later had found virtually no change.

The new poll found that the number of acres on which the surveyed farmers used no-till technique was virtually unchanged between 1997 and 1999. The Iowa Residue Management Partnership sent the survey to 722 corn and soybean farmers in 18 counties; 350 replied.

Pete Hill, an agronomist with Monsanto, said the poll also found that 40 percent of the farmers never had tried no-till, 21 percent tried it and quit, and 36 percent use the method. Farmers said didn't practice no-till because they feared lower yields and problems with soil moisture levels and herbicide effectiveness.

Hill said the survey showed that many farmers' reasons for avoiding conservation practices are off-base. For example, soybean farmers in the survey who never had tried no-till techniques reported 50 bushels per acre, while those who used no-till reported 51 bushels per acre.

Another organization made a preliminary check of fields in the 18 surveyed counties this year and found that conservation practices rose significantly. No-till corn acres were up 85 percent, and no-till soybeans up 40 percent during 1998, the last year the checks were done by government experts. However, Dennis Pate, the assistant state conservationist, said the statewide figures to be released in a few weeks probably will show that the number of no-till acres remains steady overall.

Any rise in conservation this year, if it turns out to be a statewide trend, could be a response to high diesel prices, Hill said. It costs more to farm the land with conventional farming methods.

Voter Registration Day enlists 3,000

The Secretary of State's office, which directed the effort, says more voters are still to come.

Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — More than 3,000 Iowans either registered to vote or updated their registration during the first Iowa Voter Registration Day last month.

"Thanks to the efforts of our corporate, service organization and media partners, Iowans all across the state are more aware of the importance of participating in the political process," said Secretary of State Chet Culver, who organized the day.

Culver established the registration day on Aug. 26, working with convenience stores, department stores, banks and libraries to offer voter registration forms where Iowans work, play and shop.

He said registration forms are still coming in. The department set up more than 1,000 registration sites and had hoped as many as 10 people would register at each location.

While the numbers seem short of that goal, Culver said it was still a worthwhile initiative.

"Voter registration efforts like Voter Registration Day are important because every vote counts," Culver said. "In 1960, John Kennedy was elected president of the United States by less than one vote per precinct."

Iowans still have until Oct. 28 to register so they can participate in the general election on Nov. 7. County auditors' offices will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Oct. 28 to help last-minute voters register.

Registration forms are available on the secretary of state's Web site at www.sos.state.ia.us or by calling 1-888-SOS-VOTE.

Bush's advisers stay despite problems

■ George W. Bush has kept his group of advisers close for years.

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — As George W. Bush gives his campaign a facelift to try to halt his slide in the polls, there's one thing he hasn't changed: the faces.

No staff shakeup. No calls to the bullpen. No relocation of headquarters.

Remarkably, the same close-knit Texas band that was with Bush two years ago — long before the first GOP primary — is still steering his campaign today.

And while many prominent Republicans are voicing concerns about Al Gore's advance, few in the GOP hierarchy are betting against the Austin crew's ability to weather the storm. They've done it before.

The Texas governor's slipping numbers have alarmed many seasoned party veterans. "There's not a single one of us that's not discouraged," said

Bush
Keeping Staff

longtime Florida GOP activist Tom Slade.

Concerned Republicans have complained privately about being shunned on decisions over television ads and debate strategy. And some figures from the Reagan and elder Bush years have privately urged Bush not to rely so heavily on the Texas crew — none of whom had previous major national campaign experience.

But Bush has stuck by them — last summer when questions about his past were raised and again last winter after his primary losses to Sen. John McCain — and they've returned the loyalty. Hughes says the campaign should rebound but concedes there has been criticism from some party leaders, but calls it mostly constructive.

"I'm bewildered" by reports of a rift between Austin and the Republican National Committee, she said. "I think we have reached out to a lot of the people in Washington."

The GOP dissension comes as the Bush campaign shifts gears to confront the new realities of a dead-even race.

Late last week, Bush returned to primary-style events featuring more interaction with average Americans. And he took steps to more clearly explain his $1.3 trillion tax-cut and other proposals.

NATION BRIEF

Newsweek poll favors Gore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrat Al Gore has an edge over Republican George W. Bush in a Newsweek poll of likely voters released Sept. 9, while a tracking poll shows a very close race.

The race was tight in Illinois and New Hampshire while Bush still has a big lead in Texas, according to several new state polls. The state-by-state battle for electoral votes is crucial because the winning candidate has to win enough states to collect 270 electoral votes.

Gore was up by 49 percent to 41 percent over Bush in that Newsweek poll of 595 likely voters was taken Sept. 7 and 8. That poll had an error margin of 5 percentage points. A CNN-USA TODAY-Gallup poll taken Sept. 6 through Sept. 8 showed Bush at 46 percent and Gore at 45 percent, about where the race has been for several days. The tracking poll of 675 likely voters has an error margin of 4 percentage points.

The Newsweek poll showed Gore was supported by 85 percent of Democrats and 18 percent of Republicans. Bush had the support of 75 percent of Republicans and 8 percent of Democrats.

Gore held the advantage on handling such key issues as health care, the economy, Social Security and education. Bush still has an edge on leadership qualities, though the two are essentially tied on honesty and ethics.

FTC: Entertainment industry promotes violent products

■ A study contends the industry ignores its own rating system and markets mature products to youth.

By Kalpana Srinivasan
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The entertainment industry routinely markets to young adults violent movies, video games and music, ignoring its own rating guidelines for age-sensitive material, federal regulators say in a report.

The study, to be released Monday by the Federal Trade Commission, offers a tough indictment of the industry's practices. It cites the use of a broad range of advertising and marketing to reach youths with products rated for adults, according to sources familiar with the report's contents.

The conclusions are derived in part from documents submitted by the industry itself, including marketing plans that demonstrate the efforts of companies to advertise to young audiences materials designated for adults, the sources said.

Both the movie and video game industries have age-based rating code systems. Films rated R, for example, require an adult to accompany children under 17. Video games have their own code that includes an "M" rating indicating the product is intended for mature audiences ages 17 and older. The recording industry has a more general label that warns of explicit content in music.

FTC spokesman Eric London declined to comment on specifics of the report, the product of a year-long investigation ordered by President Clinton. He said the study would be noteworthy for "the light that it sheds on how this kind of entertainment material is marketed by the industry itself," London said.

The report includes a survey of marketing practices and found most of the R-rated films and M-rated video games surveyed included promotional efforts targeting underage audiences.

The report does not suggest legislation. The FTC does seek more effective self-regulation of marketing practices by content makers and enforcement of rating codes by retailers and theaters.

The Senate Commerce Committee is to hold a hearing Wednesday on the report's findings, with Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, attending. Lieberman and Commerce Committee Chairman Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., backed an amendment by Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., that passed the Senate last year requesting the study.

Shortly afterward, Clinton ordered the report himself and paid for it with White House money. His announcement came after a spate of deadly shootings in the nation's schools, and the president said the barrage of violence fed to young people through entertainment blurs the line between "fantasy and reality violence."

House may up Colombian anti-drug aid

■ A possible increase in funding for drug police is being considered.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House leaders are considering whether to follow up a $1.3 billion aid package designed to help Colombia's military combat the narcotics trade with $99.5 million more to bolster Colombian police anti-drug efforts.

In negotiations over the original package, which emphasized military aid, congressional Republicans already switched 14 helicopters and other material to the police.

John Feehery, spokesman for House Speaker Dennis Hastert, said Saturday that Hastert saw a possible need for additional help when he accompanied President Clinton to Colombia on Aug. 31 for the symbolic delivery of the first package.

Hastert, R-Ill., "went down there and felt that Colombia's national police are an important part of the war on drugs," Feehery said in an interview. "They obviously need the equipment necessary to do their part."

He said that does not mean that the second round of aid will be provided as requested by 17 conservative lawmakers in a letter sent before Congress' August recess. "They're looking at it," Feehery said, and no decisions have been made.

The group, headed by Reps. Dan Burton, R-Ind., and Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., wants the money to buy aircraft, ammunition and other equipment for the Colombian police for delivery in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The Clinton administration stressed aid to the military in the original package because anti-government guerrillas or right-wing paramilitary groups control much of the land used to cultivate illegal drugs. Colombia supplies 90 percent of the cocaine sold in the United States and a growing percentage of the heroin.

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — In a bid to give faltering peace talks a chance — and perhaps a final one — a Palestinian ruling body honored Yasser Arafat's wishes Sunday and delayed yet again the long-postponed declaration of Palestinian statehood.

The move gave a new lease on life to the delicate and troubled peace process with Israel, but it might be a short one. All sides reported there was still no breakthrough in sight over the heart-wrenching issue of Jerusalem, and specifically of sovereignty over sites holy to both Muslims and Jews.

lateral move that could damage peace talks and possibly provoke violent conflict with Israel.

Israel immediately hailed the decision. In New York, where Prime Minister Ehud Barak is traveling, his spokesman, Gadi Baltiansky, called the move "a positive step."

Barak, speaking from New York just before the vote in an interview with ABC, said the likely delay was "a positive sign, but we still have to have no illusions. We still have a lot of work to do."

Saying that "in a way, it's now or never," Barak hinted at new leeway over the issue at the center of the deadlock. He suggested he was ready to accept less than full Israeli sovereignty over the Temple Mount — known to Muslims as the Haram as-Sharif — the holy site in Jerusalem's Old City revered by Muslims and Jews.

The tracking poll of 675 likely voters has an error margin of 4 percentage points. The Newsweek poll showed Gore was supported by 85 percent of Democrats and 18 percent of Republicans. Bush had the support of 75 percent of Republicans and 8 percent of Democrats. Gore held the advantage on handling such key issues as health care, the economy, Social Security and education. Bush still has an edge on leadership qualities, though the two are essentially tied on honesty and ethics.

WORLD BRIEF

OPEC to up oil output

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — OPEC, facing mounting international pressure to pump more oil to stem surging fuel prices, agreed Sunday to boost the group's official output of crude by 800,000 barrels a day.

Analysts cautioned that the increase, which was roughly in line with what many had predicted, won't do much to roll back prices because OPEC members already are producing at least 700,000 barrels above their current quotas.

The decision was reached after four hours of informal talks in Vienna among members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The new quota will take effect Oct. 1, and OPEC members agreed to meet again Nov. 12 to reassess market conditions and, if necessary, adjust output.

Algerian oil minister Chakib Khelil and Qatar oil minister Abdullah bin Hamad Al Attiyah first confirmed the increase, which adds 3 percent to OPEC's current official production of 25.4 million barrels a day.

Ministers began a formal meeting later to ratify the increase but postponed it until Monday without making a formal announcement of the new quota.

"This is our best assessment of what the market needs now," Saudi Arabian oil minister Ali Naimi said of the 800,000 additional barrels. "It will improve and moderate the price, and if it doesn't we have a mechanism to trigger some more."

In Washington, the U.S. government gave Saudi Arabia credit for the OPEC production increase but said it is too early to know what effect it will have on the shortage in world oil inventories.

Riverside Theatre's 20th anniversary season opener is both Sweet and Hot

THEATER REVIEW

By Aaron McAdams

Just so you're prepared, Riverside Theatre's production of Sweet and Hot: The Songs of Harold Arlen begins at the end and ends at the beginning.

But it's really not as complicated as it sounds. The chronological flip is just one of the clever structural tricks devised by playwright Julianne Boyd to craft a stage production from the timeless tunes of Harold Arlen.

Boyd's Sweet and Hot falls somewhere between revue and traditional stage musical. Unlike recent successful Broadway revues like Smokey Joe's Cafe, Sweet and Hot builds a narrative around more than 30 Arlen classics.

Sweet and Hot begins with the finale of a small cabaret show of the same name. From there the audience is taken backstage, on the tour bus and then on stage again with the cast of the show. With Arlen's music supplying the emotion, the cast of Sweet and Hot endures the troubles of life on the road: alcoholism, marital separation, unrequited love and loneliness. Bare-bones dialogue between musical numbers spells out just enough of the plot to let the music say the rest.

And the music says it well. All the Arlen classics get a part in the show. "Let's Fall In Love," "Between the Devil and the Deep Blue Sea" and "You Gotta Have Me Go With You" argue in favor of love, while "The Man That Got Away," "That Old Black Magic" and "Stormy Weather" try to change your mind.

"Come Rain Or Come Shine," "Happy As The Day Is Long" and "Somewhere Over The Rainbow" flesh out the narrative and deliver Sweet and Hot to the beginning, a new start for its six characters.

The show-within-a-show format allows the actors to essentially play themselves, and Riverside has assembled a solid ensemble to articulate the Arlen songbook.

The strongest, most confident voices belong to John Muriello and Marcia Hughes, who leap from ballad to upbeat swing without effort. Their acting is also the most sure and consistent of the group. Muriello's erupting anger during "One For My Baby" and Hughes' controlled heartbreak on "Come Rain Or Come Shine" elevate these numbers past vaudevillian song and dance.

The rest of the cast, however, is noticeably more comfortable in some musical neighborhoods than others.

Paula Grady can dominate a sultry number like "I've Got a Right To Sing The Blues" but looks ill at ease dancing through "Down With Love."

David Raim is similarly suited to an ambling solo like "Any Place I Hang My Hat Is Home," but seems a bit uncomfortable when the tempo increases.

Maria Gimenez and Steven J. Burge are at their best as a team, which works nicely with the romantic angle of the story. While they leave most of the heavy solo work to their counterparts, they do their part on "Paper Moon" and "I'm Doing It For Defense."

But despite the accomplishments of the cast, the real star of Sweet and Hot remains Arlen's music. Beautiful and charming, these are songs that everyone can hum along with, if not sing word for word. With a cast that takes a reverent back seat to a score of Arlen classics, Riverside Theatre gives the great songwriter the spotlight he deserves.

BOX OFFICE

The Watcher tracks the box office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Watcher, a thriller about a serial killer tracking an FBI agent, slew the competition at the weekend box office but wasn't enough to keep movie revenue from falling behind last year's record pace.

The thriller, which stars Keanu Reeves, James Spader and Marisa Tomei, grossed $9.1 million from Sept. 8 through Sunday.

Another new release, the dark comedy Nurse Betty with Morgan Freeman and Renee Zellweger, opened strong with the weekend's top per-screen average for films in wide distribution, averaging

$5,003 on 1,459 screens. Estimated ticket sales for Sept. 8 through Sunday at North American theaters, according to Exhibitor Relations are:

1. The Watcher, $9.1 million.
2. Nurse Betty, $7.3 million.
3. Bring It On, $6.5 million.
4. The Cell, $3.5 million.

'West Wing,' UI alum win Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One by one, the cast and creators of "The West Wing" ascended to the stage Sunday night to collect their statuettes.

Richard Schiff, who plays the grim aide Toby Ziegler, and Allison Janney, the White House's tough press secretary, winners of the supporting actor Emmys. Thomas Schlamme, winner for dramatic directing.

And most of all, Aaron Sorkin — creator of the acclaimed show about a president who believes in doing what's right.

"I'm the happiest guy in the world," said Sorkin, who won a writing Emmy (with Rick Cleveland) and the prized award for best drama series.

The nine Emmys for "The West Wing" broke the previous record of eight in a single season, set by "ER" and "Hill Street Blues" in their first years. Four of the "West Wing" Emmys came in technical categories.

And as each award went to "The West Wing," it became clear that "The Sopranos" — the HBO mob opera that has inspired a fanatic following — would be sleeping with the fishes, at least until next year.

Each of the two shows received 18 nominations.

But James Gandolfini's victory — best dramatic actor for playing mob patriarch Tony Soprano — spared "The Sopranos" the biggest shutout in the Emmys' 52-year history.

The show nearly broke the record shared by "Northern Exposure" and "The Larry Sanders Show," which were winless in 16 nominations.

Gandolfini was self-effacing in victory.

"I can't really explain this except the academy has an affinity for slightly overweight bald men, looking at the last few years," he said, a reference to last year's winner and fellow nominee Dennis Franz of "NYPD Blue."

Los Alamos scientist reaches plea bargain

■ Wen Ho Lee will serve no more jail time and cooperate with investigators.

By Richard Benke
 Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Los Alamos scientist Wen Ho Lee, who was fired and jailed on charges of mishandling nuclear-weapons secrets, has reached a plea bargain in which he will plead guilty to one charge and cooperate with federal investigators, Justice Department sources said.

Lee will plead guilty to one felony count of unlawfully retaining nuclear weapon secrets, be sentenced to time already served and be immediately freed following a hearing, according to two senior officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The officials said Lee, who has been jailed for nine months, has agreed to provide information on seven missing computer tapes with data on nuclear weapons design and testing. Three other tapes with information Lee allegedly downloaded have been recovered.

"The location and fate of the tapes were always of paramount concern," one of the officials said. Lee said earlier that he had destroyed the seven tapes, but the officials' comments indicated they believed the tapes might still exist.

Lee's defense attorneys said they had been asked not to comment on the settlement.

District Judge James Parker said a hearing had been scheduled for Monday on Lee's plea agreement. Lawyers had been expected to argue Monday before an appeals court in Denver on whether Lee should be released on bail. The plea agreement cancels that hearing, the sources said.

The sources said Lee will plead guilty to one of the 59 counts against him of unlawful gathering of national defense information. He also will agree to hold himself completely available for federal investigators and cooperate with them over the next six months.

It was also expected that Lee would drop his allegations that prosecutors went after him because he is Chinese-American. "This is a favorable resolution," one of the sources said Sunday, adding that it was a good outcome for both sides.

■ As Congress' clock ticks down, major fights with Clinton remain.

By Alan Fram

WASHINGTON — So little time, so many bills. And so many, many disputes.

With just 19 working days left until Congress' scheduled Oct. 6 adjournment, lawmakers must complete 11 spending bills for the coming fiscal year before they can go home for the elections.

Roughly $20 billion separates Republicans from President Clinton. Fierce policy disputes over hiring teachers, standards for drunken driving and other issues probably will prove to be the toughest hurdles.

"Our problem is language this year, not money," said Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

Republicans find themselves in a hauntingly familiar box, yearning to cut quick deals on the bills with Clinton but with precious little leverage. Republican bargaining power is shackled by Clinton's ability to veto bills, the GOP's inability to override the vetoes, and lawmakers' craving for an early dash home for the congressional and presidential elections.

Hoping to get this year's final round of bargaining off to a harmonious start, GOP leaders will meet with Clinton Tuesday at the White House, along with top congressional Democrats. The session seems likely to produce little if any substantive progress, leaving the two sides even less time to resolve differences.

"We think that there's a lot of work that needs to be done, partly because so little has happened in this Congress," the White House chief of staff, John Podesta, said on "Fox News Sunday."

On CNN's "Late Edition," Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., cited "all kinds of efforts to stop us passing appropriation bills."

The 13 annual spending bills for fiscal 2001, which begins Oct. 1, directly control about one-third of the $1.8 trillion budget, or more than $600 billion. Clinton has already signed the two covering most defense programs at a cost of about $300 billion.

The 11 other bills cover 13 Cabinet-level departments and dozens of smaller agencies, plus foreign aid and the District of Columbia's budget, with a total price tag of about $300 billion. Clinton wants about $20 billion more — leaving the two sides battling over about 1 percent of the federal budget.

U.S., Russia to meet in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Space shuttle Atlantis cruised to a smooth docking with the International Space Station on Sunday, setting the stage for the next big event: a long-distance spacewalk.

An American astronaut and Russian cosmonaut were paired up for the grueling climb up the 140-foot space station early today, to lay cable and install a boom for a navigation unit.

Edward Lu and Yuri Malenchenko planned to venture 110 feet from Atlantis' cargo bay, where the space station was anchored. That's more than twice as far as the top of the Hubble Space Telescope, where other spacewalking astronauts have worked.

The spacewalk official inside Mission Control, Mike Hess, said it would be like working on the 11th story of a 13-story building.

The spacewalkers were to be tethered to the structure the whole time, with mini jetpacks on their suits for added safety.

Atlantis linked up with the station as the spacecraft soared nearly 230 miles above Kazakhstan, ending a two-day chase complicated slightly by a failed navigation device aboard the shuttle.

"It was really great to see that the station has changed since the last time we were there" in May, said flight director Mark Ferring.

Baby found buried alive

FAIRFAX, S.C. (AP) — A newborn baby was found clinging to life hours after it was buried in a shallow grave just outside the town's trash dump.

Police got a call for help Friday morning and found the little boy about two hours later, said Fairfax Police Chief John R. Sullivan. He said he believed the infant had been buried for at least four hours before rescuers pulled him from the ground.

"The Lord was looking out for him," Sullivan said.

A nursing supervisor at Palmetto Richland Memorial Hospital in Columbia wouldn't release any details about the boy's condition Sept. 9.

The baby was found under buried under about 3 inches of dirt and lime, Sullivan said. As the dirt was pulled away from the baby, an emergency services worker noticed a pulse. "That was a shock," Sullivan said.

He said the recovery effort initially was hampered because a suspect would not cooperate.

"We finally got cooperation from the mother," Sullivan said. He would not say if she was the suspect or identify her or the child. He also would not say who placed the call for help.

No arrests had been made Sept. 9.

Fairfax is a town of about 2,300, about 75 miles south of Columbia.

For those confused about their political identity ...

You may be a libertarian

Libertarian presidential candidate Harry Browne will be here Tuesday from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Sheraton in downtown Iowa City. If you are not sure about what libertarianism is or are interested in learning more, you should attend this event.

According to a recent Rasmussen poll, only 2 percent of people labeled themselves "libertarian." Nonetheless, roughly 16 percent of Americans consistently support libertarianism on most issues. The Rasmussen poll indicated that 13 percent of Americans are consistently liberal and only 7 percent are consistently conservative. Most other Americans are somewhere in the middle.

Some people say they are conservative because they do not want the government to interfere in their business lives. However, they are tolerant of homosexuality, the occasional use of marijuana and open immigration. These self-labeled "conservatives" are probably libertarians. Some people say they are liberal because they do not want the government to interfere in their personal lives. However, they are opposed to oppressive regulation of small business, Libertarianism in the simplest sense is the belief that people should have the right to do with their person and property as they choose.

high taxes and confiscation of private property. These self-labeled "liberals" are probably libertarians.

The possibility that many of you are libertarian should not be surprising. Libertarianism in the simplest sense is the belief that people should have the right to do with their person and property as they choose. It places liberty and freedom above all other values. Libertarianism was at the center of the American Revolution, the abolitionist movement and the fall of communism. Every time people throw off the chains of oppressive government, they are celebrating libertarianism.

If liberty sounds tempting, but you are not sure if you can trust yourself with so much freedom, ask yourself the following questions. Is life more valuable with the government controlling you and your environment, or is life more valuable when you are free to live life according to your own values and choices, even if you occasionally make mistakes? Do you trust government with its monopoly on violence or do you trust people who can only do things to you with your consent? If you answer the latter on these questions, you are probably a libertarian.

If you think you might prefer freedom to government control, come and see Harry Browne tomorrow. At 6:30 p.m. you will probably have a chance to talk with other libertarian candidates. Christy Welty is the Libertarian candidate for Iowa House in Iowa City, Steve Drahozal is the Libertarian candidate for Iowa House in Coralville and North Liberty, and Tim Borchardt is the Libertarian candidate for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors. Come out tomorrow and celebrate liberty with the candidates who put liberty first.

UI athletics merger finalized

Mixed reactions are expected in response to UI President Mary Sue Coleman's decision on the UI men's and women's athletic programs merger.

Her decision appointed Bob Bowsby, the current director of the men's Athletic Department, to the position of athletic director over all intercollegiate athletics at the university.

Certainly, the departure of Christine Grant, the former A.D. of UI women's athletics, was a sad moment for female athletes. However, in my opinion, the use of Bob Bowsby as her replacement is even a sadder one. How can someone directly involved in men's sports ever be able to give 100 percent to the women's department?

But, the Athletic Department will begin looking for a women's athletic administrator at the beginning of this week, said Bowsby. The person named to this position will guide the transition of the women's program and serve in Bowsby's absence.

I could have supported the merger if an outsider had been appointed as overall athletic director, but Bob Bowsby already had a home in the men's Athletic Department. They say "home is where the heart is." I just hope his heart doesn't feel compelled to dwell there.

More on tuition increases...

The UI may not have any choice

As a student at one of Iowa's state schools, you're facing the largest proposed tuition hike since 1988. Not too happy about it? Neither is anyone else.

Complaints and grumbles could be heard all over campus on Sept. 7, as students learned that the regents are recommending a 9.3 increase in tuition and fees for the next school year for Iowa residents. That means residents would pay $300 more to attend the UI, while out-of-state students may pay approximately $965 more in 2001-02.

Many students are blaming university administrators and the regents for the tuition increase, but their anger is misplaced. This time, UI administrators actually have very little choice about raising your tuition.

The state Legislature cut funding for Iowa's three public universities by $19 million last year, and the UI is facing a surprise insurance hike that will set it back approximately $2 million.

This tuition increase is unavoidable. Administration has to get money from somewhere to maintain quality, to keep the UI competitive.

Even though it puts students and their parents in a tough place, this year's tuition increase is unavoidable. Administrators have to get money from somewhere to maintain quality and keep the UI competitive. Students can't change that by grumbling and criticizing the UI, but it's not too late to work to avoid another increase next year. Here's what you can do to help keep your tuition costs down.

Support UISG's lobbying efforts. Last year, the UI Student Government and student governments from Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa ran a letter-writing and lobbying campaign directed at the Legislature in hopes of keeping our funding intact. This year, get involved. Write a letter to your state senator and representative or volunteer to help. On Wednesday, the joint student governments will make a presentation at the regents' meeting in support of a lower tuition increase. Make time to attend the meeting and let your voice be heard.

Let the administration know what you want. UI administrators are here because of you, the student. Make sure they know how this year's tuition increase affects you. Write or e-mail Mary Sue Coleman, or attend one of her fireside chats in the IMU.

Vote pro-education. If you want the UI to regain its lost funding, don't ignore the state elections this November. Vote for a candidate who prioritizes state funding for higher education. Don't just grumble as you pay your next U-bill. Use your power as a student and a citizen to lower your tuition costs.

Résumés: A necessity or just a flashy package?

Toward the end of the college tunnel, students in the hunt for jobs are expected to sum up their experiences and achievements with what we call a "résumé."

By all appearances, this is no simple task. According to most leading résumé theorists, the résumé is the single most-important document that you will compose over the course of your lifetime. Clearly, one author cautioned, this is not something to be taken lightly. In order to complete a "winning" résumé, one must be a "good strategist" and a "creative problem-solver," among 11 other assets mentioned in the 384-page text.

What it really comes down to, as most authorities on the matter would agree, is good salesmanship. With the résumé, job applicants must package themselves in a flashy, yet still appealing manner. Like an Indonesian hooker, you really have to be able to sell yourself.

So when putting one of these together, you must not forget to spice things up with action verbs, such as "channeled," "dispatched" or "assumed responsibility." For example, it would be foolish to say that you made sandwiches at Dairy Queen when in actuality you "orchestrated product assembly for multiple clients and expanded the implementation of peanuts and M&Ms."

Obviously, there is plenty of useful advice to be found in the résumé books that litter the nation's bookshelves. And where the 200-300 page guides fall short, there are services such as the UI's Business and Liberal Arts Placement Office to offer assistance to students.

This is all well and good. But the question remains: What's the point? A résumé, upon examination, is little more than an absurd display of self-promotion that essentially says nothing. Thanks to the multitude of advice spewing forth from authors and counselors, everybody has become a "self-motivator" who is "driven to succeed." I mean, how can one help it? It isn't your fault that you were born with tremendous interpersonal skills and a highly positive workplace demeanor. You're a detail-oriented perfectionist, and you wouldn't have it any other way.

How any business executive could sift through such bilge without eventually becoming violently ill is beyond me, however. Which is why I propose the abandonment of the entire process. If résumés were limited simply to a name (in something other than 48-point font, mind you), an address and a brief list of job experiences, I am sure the earth would continue to rotate with absolutely no harm done.

If an employer wanted to know about an applicant's personal characteristics, meanwhile, there would be other ways to go about it. Looking for an employee with perseverance, determination to get the job done and an ability to overcome obstacles? Then gather your pool of applicants in an enclosed area and throw in a few carnivorous beasts, such as lions, wolves or drunken football players. After that, it is certain, you will know who has that "winning spirit."

Or perhaps an employer would like to hire somebody with a sense of direction and smooth improvisational skills. In such a case, an applicant would be flown by helicopter into the Appalachians and given $11 along with a couple sharpened stones for fire-building. Whoever makes it back to the office by Tuesday is hired.

The possibilities are endless if both employers and job-seekers are willing to do away with the résumé process that we are now familiar with. This has its risks, of course. Without the résumé as an impetus, it would be difficult to motivate those under age 25 to get anything done. Were it not for the burdensome existence of the résumé, after all, our student government would have no representatives, this newspaper would have no editors, and the internship as we know it would be a laughable concept.

But I, for one, am confident that we can remain productive even without the composition of a weighty résumé looming ahead of us. It will just take a confident attitude, plenty of resourcefulness and a willingness to exceed expectations. And we've all got that, don't we?

what will you

Bush should learn how to play political Hardball

In 1988, Chris Matthews wrote Hardball. In Hardball, Matthews gives advice to politicians and common folk. Using stories from the lives of past presidents, Matthews presents "rules" on how to conduct one's affairs, public or private. After the events of Sept. 4, it should be apparent to everyone that George W. Bush never read Hardball.

This past Labor Day, while standing in front of a crowd in Naperville, Ill., Bush pointed out a reporter to his running mate, Dick Cheney. Bush told Cheney that the New York Times reporter, Adam Clymer, was an "asshole." (His partner of gaff, "I'm an old Republican so I don't just think with my" DICK Cheney, responded, "Big time!")

In making the comment, Bush ran afoul of two Hardball "rules." First, he forgot the Nixon maxim, "the press is the enemy." Second, Bush exposed himself to the point where he can no longer "keep his enemies in front of him."

Matthews notes that since Watergate, the relationship between members of the press corps and political folks are more like sharks sniffing for blood than friends or colleagues who do a little back-scratching. Though Bush did not scream out the expletive, according to Matthewsian logic, he may as well have.

Even the most hermetic person can appreciate that at least since the O.J. Simpson trial and through the Clinton-Lewinsky ordeal, "bad news makes the best headlines." Like Matthews says, journalists are usually looking for a "story where somebody gets hurt." By calling an NYT reporter an asshole, Bush generated fodder for a headline about a story where a reporter "got hurt."

If "stupid is as stupid does," then maybe all those times when Laura Bush was trying to improve literacy among the underprivileged children in Texas, she should have taught G.W. some lessons in etiquette or maybe even in common sense.

But if we turn from the academic/literacy angle, we still can chide Bush for his expletive as a question rejecting principles of his so-called "compassionate conservatism." It is compassionate for a "Christian" to call someone an asshole? And what good conservative fails to learn lessons experienced by his own father?

Though he worked for Tip O'Neill, in Hardball, Matthews repeatedly lauds Ronald Reagan (the great deficit-maker). Matthews cites Reagan as a master at "keeping the enemy in front." In 1980, a Texan attacked Reagan, calling his economic plan "voodoo economics." Of course I speak of James Baker (I hope no one thought former President George Bush came up with the slogan himself; remember his genes, for goodness sake). Matthews says that by appointing Baker as his chief of staff, Reagan "kept his [former] enemy in front," and moved an adversary into the vanguard.

He (Bush) forgot the Nixon maxim, "the press is the enemy." Second, Bush exposed himself to the point where he can no longer "keep his enemies in front of him."

Though Matthews omits the discussion, Reagan used George Bush as he did Baker. Recall, an Ivy-League graduate, senator's son, ex-CIA director, pro-choice advocate who opposed mandatory minimum sentencing for drug offenders ended up working for Reagan. REAGAN, the B-film actor and anti-choice guy who initially supported the Sandinistas, then later said a bunch of thugs in uniform, the Contras, were "freedom fighters," and who intensified the insanity called the "drug war."

With his verbal assault against Clymer, Bush definitely showed his limited appreciation for (family) history, and he may have lost the ability to "use the press." Ironically, it was because Reagan kept his "enemy" in front, that is to say he capitalized on the lessons proposed by Matthews, that one Bush became president, and now there is the same opportunity for another Bush with at least one less name and probably fewer I.Q. points.

For any of you who were still thinking about voting for Bush, I leave you with one last bit of "traditional" (that is, "conservative") wisdom — Bush may be right about Clymer, but it takes one to know one.

hold his arm and lecture him about manners.

"I would have to be an absolute moron — an absolute moron — with the things that have been laid on me to grab a kid in public, or curse at a kid in public, as apparently it's been said that I did," Knight said at the time.

Even so, Brand noted that Knight initiated physical contact and "the two had an uncomfortable exchange."

"The angry contact with the student violates the spirit" of the zero-tolerance conduct policy initiated in May, Brand said.

The search for a new coach will begin immediately, and Brand said he did not yet have any candidates. Knight, who reportedly was in Canada, where he often goes hunting and fishing, will be paid for the final two years of his contract.

The school president said he stood by his decision not to fire Knight in May and for instead instituting the conduct policy, calling it the "ethical and moral thing to do" because of Knight's contributions to the school.

"I still believe we had to give him one last chance," Brand said. "He failed to live up to that. That was his decision."

"His unacceptable behavior not only continued since then but increased."

Besides his three NCAA championships, Knight led the Hoosiers to 11 Big Ten titles and coached the U.S. men's basketball team to the gold medal at the 1984 Los Angeles Games.

Knight had a 661-240 record at Indiana and overall was 763-290, including six years at Army.

But his behavior, which included verbal and physical abuse of players, has been a problem and often an embarrassment since he took over the Hoosiers in 1971.

Knight has one of the game's most notorious tempers — throwing chairs across the court, stuffing a fan in a garbage can, scuffling with Puerto Rico police and kicking his own son on the bench.

Last spring, he faced accusations he choked Neil Reed in practice in 1997. Following a school investigation, Knight was warned, suspended for three games and fined $30,000.

Still, despite his displays of anger, Knight had an army of defenders across the state who pointed to a cleanly run program at a time of widespread abuse in college sports.

Dane Fife said he and other Indiana players were "saddened and hurt" when they heard the news.

"But this team's a family," Fife said. "We still have two or three excellent coaches who will be part of this team."

Reserve Tom Geyer said he and other players would have to decide for themselves whether to stay at Indiana. He said the players told Brand that they want the assistant coaches to stay and lead the team.

Geyer said the zero-tolerance policy was unrealistic.

"It's awfully hard to live under the guidelines that the university gave him," said Geyer, one of Knight's biggest supporters. "I'm not really sure that I could live by those guidelines."

Gov. Frank O'Bannon, who played at the state university before Knight arrived, said he was "saddened" but supported the school's decision.

Meanwhile, Harvey and his two brothers have received numerous threats by phone and e-mail, said their stepfather Mark Shaw.

He said the teens never wanted to see Knight fired. An apology from the coach was all they wanted.

Harvey and his brothers want to stay at Indiana, Shaw said, and university officials have assured their family they will do whatever is necessary to ensure the Harveys' safety.

"We'll have to see how that plays out. It's terrifying," Shaw said.

game. After the weekend's festivities, only eight bags of chips remained, said Julie Phye, the director of Stepping Up who estimated 400 people stopped by.

"We had more people than the first game last year," she said.

Old Capitol Cab dispatcher Karl Lowe, who tailgated himself, saw a lot of people out on Saturday and found spirits to be high.

"They told me here at the cab company it was packed and they couldn't keep up," Lowe said. "And from what I saw, I don't think there were fewer tailgaters showing support for the Hawks this year than in the past."

One local bar and restaurant, The Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St., reported having hundreds of fans converge on the bar immediately after the game was over.

"We were really busy," said UI senior Todd Walli, an Airliner employee.

Walli said he didn't think it was any less busy this year at the bar; the watering hole remained packed until 2 a.m. Sunday.

REGENTS

Meanwhile, UI President Mary Sue Coleman says a 9.3 tuition/fees hike at the UI — the largest proposed hike in recent history — would actually send a powerful message to legislators that students are willing to pay their share for a quality education. Then it would be the lawmakers' turn to "step up to the plate" by fully funding the universities, she said.

"I think it will be a persuasive message," Coleman said last week. "I will work as hard as I can to get that across to them."

UI lobbyist Mark Braun, who works closely with lawmakers, said he agrees with Coleman. An unusually large tuition/fees hike would actually be an incentive for the Legislature and the governor to give more funding to the state's universities, he said.

"It would show a commitment on behalf of the students," Braun said.

Last spring, the Legislature appropriated less money to the state's universities than officials requested. A tuition/fees hike is necessary to address the needs of the university, Coleman said.

But Hansen, who chaired the education appropriations sub-committee last spring, said the blame for a large tuition/fees hike should not rest on the shoulders of lawmakers. Officials could run the universities in a more efficient manner, he said.

"With so much money coming into the UI ... it's hard to say that a large tuition increase would be the result of the bill we passed," Hansen said. "I encourage students to look at wasteful programs on campus. It's the students' dollars at work. If they see their money being wasted, they should communicate that to somebody."

loan funding and a 4.7 percent increase, or $4.9 million, in grant funding for the 1999-2000 school year from the previous year.

According to the report, the number of grants awarded last year at the UI decreased by 2.4 percent despite a 4.3 percent increase in funding.

With a proposed 9.3 percent tuition/fee hike for UI students who are Iowa residents and 8.8 percent hike for non-residents for the 2001-02 academic year, some UI students are counting on loans to finance their education.

Although the proposed tuition/fee increase worries UI graduate student Betty Hom, who also works to support her education, no alternative solutions exist to taking out loans, she said.

"It's better than not having anything," she said.

Hom said she already owes $10,000 in school loans from her undergraduate institution, the University of California at Davis, and expects to add $20,000 more by the end of her two years at the UI.

Loans composed 47.7

percent of all student financial aid given by the regents' universities in 1995-96 and 50.3 percent in 1999-2000. The amount of grants has increased only 0.5 percent in the same time frame, composing 23.5 percent of all financial aid last year.

Borrowing money from the federal government has become increasingly easier for both students and their families because of the Higher Education Act of 1992, said Mark Warner, the director of the UI Office of Student Financial Aid.

The act created a direct loan program for students and families without a financial need for federal assistance, as based on a student's Free Application for Federal Student Aid, said Warner.

The UI is concerned with increasing access to the university but does not promote borrowing, he said.

Each year, the UI sets aside approximately 16 percent of tuition revenue as need-based financial aid students don't have to repay, Warner said.

After witnessing her older siblings struggle into their 30s with an "insane" amount of school loan debt, UI junior and Illinois-native Shauna Cummings said she will never take out loans regardless of how much tuition increases.

"(My parents) wouldn't have me take out loans because they screw you over," said Cummings, whose education is funded by her parents and part-time jobs. "(Loans) make it seem affordable, but you're indebted ... working your ass off until you're 34 paying it off."

Thirty-five percent of UI students who graduated in May didn't borrow any money at all, Warner said, adding that the number has probably decreased because of the Higher Education Act of 1992.

The average indebtedness for a May graduate was $7,330, he said.

Warner said he is optimistic as the maximum Pell Grant increased from $3,125 from last year to $3,300 this year — $400 beyond the UI's tuition.

The regents will vote on the proposed tuition/fee hike during their formal meeting next month.

Iowa soccer wins in overtime

■ The Hawkeyes rebounded to beat St. Louis after losing to rival Iowa State.

By Laura Podolak
 The Daily Iowan

After a disappointing loss to Iowa State, 2-0, on Friday, Iowa soccer team bounced back Sunday with a 2-1 overtime victory over St. Louis. The victory gave Hawkeyes their first overtime win ever.

Kate Walse was the Hawkeye to score in Sunday's contest, netting her fourth goal of the season. Her first goal came about midway through the first half, giving Iowa a 1-0 lead. St. Louis didn't score until the second half when an Iowa penalty kick was an easy score for the Billingsley team.

Walse's second goal came from an assist from Iwan Wolman, who moved up to the front line in overtime, playing most of the game on the back. Walse's winning

Good Knight, Bobby

Alford could face toughest choice

■ The UI Athletic Department is confident Steve Alford will remain a Hawkeye.

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

Tom Russo/Associated Press

Bob Knight was fired as Indiana's basketball coach after 34 years of coaching.

Let the rumors begin. On the day Indiana University announced the firing of men's basketball coach Bobby Knight, speculation immediately swept through Iowa City regarding the future of the Hawkeyes' own men's basketball coach, Steve Alford.

"We don't ever discuss the details of contracts, but we've made a commitment and he's (Alford) made a commitment," said UI Athletic Director Bob Bowsby. "And I'd be very surprised if either side doesn't stand by their commitment."

While Bowsby was confident Alford will remain at Iowa, the coach himself was quiet on the situation. "As a former student-athlete at Indiana University, and former player for Coach Knight, it saddens me to see one of the greatest eras of college basketball end this way," said Alford in a release from the UI Sports Information Department Sunday evening.

When Alford was hired to replace Tom Davis as Iowa's head basketball coach following the 1998-99 season, he seemed certain he and his family would remain in Iowa City.

"This is where I would like to call home for a long, long time," Alford said at the time. "I have no aspirations of looking anywhere else or moving anywhere else. It's exciting to be where you want to be. This is the place, quite frankly, I hope we retire."

In a state where basketball is everything, Alford is still spoken of in mythic fashion. Born in New Castle, Ind., where he played for his father and current Iowa assistant coach, Sam Alford, he was named the state's Mr. Basketball in 1983. Alford competed for Knight at Indiana from 1984-87 and was a member of the 1984 Olympic basketball team Knight coached to a gold medal. When Alford returned to Assembly Hall for his first meeting against Knight on Jan. 18, 2000, fans gave Indiana's all-time leading scorer a standing ovation.

Luke Recker, who transferred to Iowa from Arizona after playing for Knight at Indiana, said Alford has given no indication he would leave the team.

Recker would not comment further on the situation.

Reaction among Hawkeye basketball fans was mixed Sunday evening, with most believing Alford will remain in Iowa City while others remain skeptical.

"I don't think we have to worry about Alford leaving," said junior B.J. Kluesner. "He'll have a lot of success here at Iowa."

"It's his dream job," said Iowa fan Mark Mitchell. "I hope he stays, but if they offer him the job, I think he'll take it."

do everything in their power to lure Alford away next April.

And they have a strong case. All they would have to tell the former Indiana Mr. Basketball is the obvious: Steve, you have the chance to come home and take the job that you have always wanted. Come back to a place that you brought to glory. Come back and hear how loud the cheers can be at Assembly Hall when you are on the other bench.

How can Iowa rebut?

Iowa would almost have to re-sell the program and the university. Iowa goes up against Indiana in the most important game that does not have a playing field. And it is the underdog.

It is not Iowa's fault, though. The Athletics Department has granted most of Alford's wishes since he became coach. It has given him the opportunity to make Iowa into a national program. It has given him a program to call his own. It could tell Alford he does not have to live and coach in the shadow of a legend.

There is less pressure at Iowa. Even though Alford would be revered if he were

Hawkeyes get MAC'd

■ Iowa's second-half comeback does not prove to be enough in the 27-21 loss to Western Michigan.

By Jeremy Schnitker
 The Daily Iowan

The worst fears of Iowa football fans came true Saturday after Scott Mullen was sacked on a fourth down with just over a minute left in the game.

The Hawkeyes lost to Western Michigan, the team that most thought would be the easy win on the schedule.

In a game that saw Iowa trail by as much as 18, but nearly come back to win in the last minute, the Broncos bucked Iowa 27-21 and nabbed the school's first victory over a Big Ten opponent.

"We got to the point that regardless who it was, whether it was Wisconsin or Iowa, we were going to win a game against the Big Ten," WMU coach Gary Darnell said.

They did, and they did so with style.

In the first half, Western Michigan jumped out to a 24-6 lead behind WMU's meticulous passing attack that shredded Iowa's defensive backfield.

Leading the first-half scoring barrage was WMU quarterback Ryan Harris, who on his first collegiate play while stepping in for starter Steve Welsh hit Corey Alston deep for a 78-yard touchdown pass, making the score 17-6. On WMU's next possession, Welsh hit Steve Neal for a 36-yard TD pass to cap off an 80-yard drive for the Broncos.

"We didn't execute our plays and get good execution," Iowa defensive end Aaron Kampman said. "They ran just a little bit more than I thought. They came out in some different formations, but that's no excuse. As a Big Ten defense, we should be ready for those checks, and we should have made them."

The Hawkeyes came firing back in the second half after some adjustments were made during what players called an emotional halftime.

Iowa scored two unanswered Scott Mullen touchdown passes early in the third quarter, one to Kahlil Hill for 78 yards and one to Kevin Kasper for six yards.

Just when it looked like Iowa could come back though, WMU made some adjustments of its own.

"I thought they came in and certainly played an excellent football game and did a lot of good things," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. "The scoreboard doesn't lie. They certainly deserved to win. They definitely had a good plan."

After holding back on their blitzing packages in the first half, WMU opened them up in the second half and made it nearly impossible for Iowa to Mission accomplished. Searching for its first win, the Iowa volleyball team swept through its own Hawkeye Invitational this weekend, picking up three victories and playing itself into the record book in the process.

Iowa defeated Evansville, 3-2, on Sept. 8 before closing out the tournament with 3-0 wins over Texas Southern and Oakland on Sept. 9. The weekend sweep allowed the Hawkeyes to even its season record at 3-3.

"We know we can win now," said outside hitter Katie Panhorst. "We did what we were supposed to do, and we won."

Coach Rita Buck-Crockett called the weekend sweep a good confidence builder heading toward the regular season.

"It's good to see we have people to step in and play," said Crockett. "We always played as a team, and that is so important."

Saturday was a day for the record books as Iowa compiled a .450 team attack percentage against Texas Southern, good for second all-time behind a .458 effort against Michigan State in 1984. Iowa used attack after attack to tame the Lady Tigers, who recorded an attack percentage of only .015. Texas Southern won only seven points as Iowa cruised 15-3, 15-0, 15-4.

Freshman Renee Hill led the way for the Hawkeyes with an attack percentage of .688, tying her for third on the all-time individual list. Teammate Sara Meyermann also played her way into the record books by hitting .619, tying her for seventh all-time.

FERENTZ QUOTE

"On the positive side we continue to see great effort. I think that was evident in the second half. They came out and really battled, and I don't think there was a question in anybody's mind that we could win the football game."

Hawks were out-coached and out-played

GAME ANALYSIS

Like so many times last season, the Hawkeyes were close to a victory on Sept. 9 but couldn't get one.

Iowa pulled the same stunt Saturday as it did the last five weeks in 1999.

It spent the first half trying to run the ball and failed miserably.

The Hawks went into the locker room at halftime trailing, then finally came out in the second half and decided to play some offense — that coming in the form of Scott Mullen throwing the ball every down. Sound familiar?

And, like last year, the defense was terrible.

Whether it was getting burned on big plays or the numerous short patterns that Western Michigan ran leaving receivers open all afternoon — the Hawkeyes were getting handled by their Mid-American Conference foe.

The only difference from last year's team and this one was that instead of playing to the wire against Minnesota or Indiana, it was Western Michigan it had fight back from behind.

Western Michigan — not

Kevin Kasper Scores a touchdown in the third quarter of the Sept. 9 game against Western Michigan.

exactly a team you feel proud about losing a close game to. Sure as heck not a team that one can make a moral victory out of.

So what happened? How did Iowa get beat by its first MAC opponent in school history?

It was a case of Iowa being out-coached and out-played.

Western Michigan came in more fired up over the possibility of beating its first Big Ten opponent in school history than Iowa did about getting its first win in 12 tries. The Broncos played inspired football while the Hawkeyes came out flat in the first half. Western Michigan played four quarters of quality football, Iowa played one.

The Hawks were out-coached in the way Western Michigan exploited Iowa's weaknesses. And the way Iowa was dumbfounded on defense.

Gary Darnell and his staff knew exactly how to beat Iowa — spread out the offense against Iowa's young defensive backfield in the first half, and blitz like dogs on Iowa's weak offensive line in the second half.

Western Michigan's spread-out passing attack scorched Iowa's defensive backfield for 294 yards.

WMU also made better

Zach Boyden-Holmes/The Daily Iowan

adjustments than Iowa did. Iowa did make adjustments — the two touchdowns in the third quarter proved that — but WMU simply made better adjustments to adjust to Iowa's adjustments. Make sense?

Iowa came out in the second half and moved the ball, but just when Iowa gained steam, Western Michigan found a way to counter the Hawkeyes' movement.

That came in the form of WMU's second half blitz.

According to Darnell, WMU held off on those blitzes until the second half to confuse Iowa's young line even more. Those blitzes came right after Iowa's third quarter scoring barrage and prevented Iowa from scoring again.

That's good coaching, and that's how the Hawkeyes got beat.

Just like in 1999, Iowa came close, but couldn't come back for a win. It was the same old song and dance after the game too. Coach Ferentz said he was proud of his team's effort. Players said they were sick of losing.

It's time to stop talking about what you need to do to win and do it — close losses won't stop until then.

Baltimore beats Jacksonville for first time

BALTIMORE (AP) — The scenario was all too familiar to the Baltimore Ravens and their fans.

Baltimore had rallied from a 17-point deficit, only to fall behind with 1:45 left when Mark Brunell put together a drive that seemingly doomed the Ravens' bid for their first win over Jacksonville.

This time, however, Baltimore had an answer. Tony Banks' career-high fifth touchdown pass, a 29-yarder to Shannon Sharpe with 41 seconds to go, lifted the Ravens to a rousing 39-36 victory Sunday.

Baltimore's initial win over the Jaguars in nine tries enabled the fifth-year team to reach another significant milestone: sole possession of the AFC Central lead for the first time.

The victory seemed improbable when the Ravens trailed 17-0 in the first quarter and 23-6 at halftime. It seemed virtually impossible when Brunell hooked up with Jimmy Smith for a 41-yard touchdown to make it 36-32.

Browns 24, Bengals 7

CINCINNATI — For Tim Couch and the Cleveland defense, it was the sweetest sort of revenge.

Couch outplayed Akili Smith in their long-awaited rematch and Cleveland piled up seven sacks, dominating the Cincinnati Bengals, 24-7, Sunday in the first meaningful game at their glitzy new stadium.

Couch, who was angered by Smith's chest thumping and Dawg Pound baiting last October, passed for 259 yards and two touchdowns in his finest game yet.

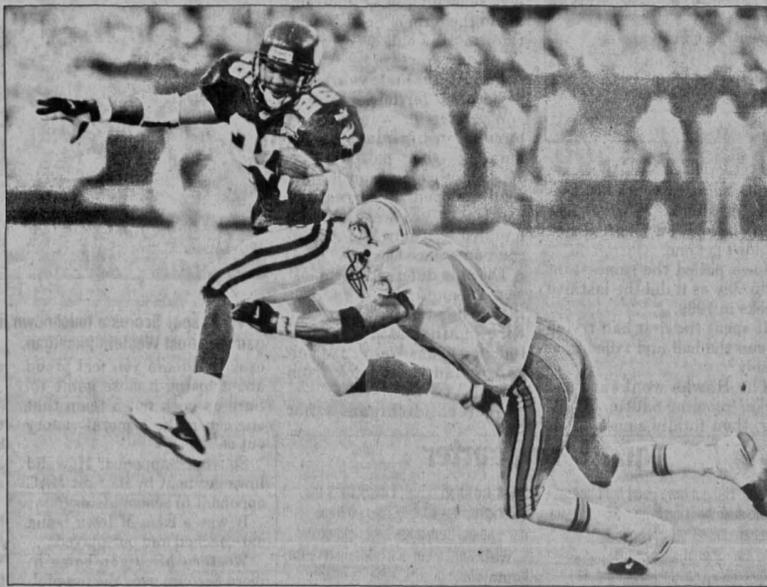

As the clock wound down and woofs from Browns fans filled Paul Brown Stadium for the first time, Couch walked to midfield and shook Smith's hand, then jogged off the field without a gesture.

Bills 27, Packers 18

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Rob Johnson showed his toughness against one of the toughest quarterbacks ever.

Despite being sacked five times and hit on numerous other occasions, Johnson showed his resilience, completing 18 of 26 passes for 259 yards, leading the Buffalo Bills to a 27-18 win over the Brett Favre and the Green Bay Packers on Sunday.

Asked about one vicious lick he took from Packers' Ronnie Holliday in the third quarter, Johnson said: "I was clear-headed. I just was seeing different colors."

Minnesota's running back Robert Smith runs out of the grasp of Miami's safety Brian Walker Sunday.

Giants 33, Eagles 18

PHILADELPHIA — The New York Giants have something they've been missing for years: a 2-0 start and a diverse offense.

Kerry Collins passed for 220 yards and two touchdowns Sunday as the Giants beat Philadelphia, 33-18.

The Giants hadn't opened with two victories since 1994.

"We showed we can run or throw," said Amani Toomer, who had seven receptions for 80 yards and one touchdown. "We kept them off-balance. In years past, teams knew we were going to pass the ball on third-and-medium. Now we can do both."

One week after Thunder and Lightning — Tiki Barber and Ron Dayne — had a successful running debut, the Giants proved they also have a passing game.

Collins was 21-of-29, including several key third-down conversions as New York dominated the game, controlling the ball for nearly 40 minutes.

Vikings 13, Dolphins 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Daunte Culpepper proved he can throw, too.

Culpepper, who ran for three touchdowns last week in his first career start, was 23-for-37 for 355 yards and his first career touchdown pass in Minnesota's 13-7 victory over Miami on Sunday.

He threw a 15-yard scoring pass to Randy Moss with 1:56 left to offset three interceptions. "No quarterback is perfect," Vikings coach Dennis Green said. "I don't know what quarterback you know that's going to make a perfect decision every time."

Titans 17, Chiefs 14

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Adelphia Coliseum doesn't quite roll off the tongue when talking of great NFL homes such as Lambeau Field, Mile High Stadium and even Arrowhead Stadium. Just give the Tennessee Titans some more time.

Al Del Greco kicked a 36-yard field goal in overtime as the Titans rallied for a 17-14 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs in their home opener Sunday.

The victory kept the AFC champions (1-1) from going into the bye week without a victory. It also kept them undefeated in their new home, tying the NFL record held by the 1971 Dallas Cowboys with nine consecutive victories to christen a new stadium.

Raiders 38, Colts 31

INDIANAPOLIS — Rich Gannon's instincts were as quick as his feet.

The 34-year-old quarterback, coming off his first Pro Bowl appearance in 12 years in the NFL, rushed for a career-high three touchdowns as Oakland overcame a 21-0 deficit and beat the Indianapolis Colts 38-31 Sunday.

"It was hard to hear all the protection calls," he said of the deafening noise from the raucous RCA Dome crowd. "So we had to make adjustments. We completed a couple of big passes, and I think they became more worried about our pass than our run."

Big mistake by the Colts. "One of the touchdown runs was designed," Gannon said. "But the other two just happened. I had to make last-minute decisions, and fortunately they were the right ones."

Bucs 41, Bears 0

TAMPA, Fla. — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers' bandwagon is picking up steam and taking on new passengers.

Movie director Spike Lee was on the sideline for the team's season opener and Michael Jordan was in the house at the invitation of Warren Sapp for Sunday's 41-0 shutout of the Chicago Bears — the biggest winning margin in franchise history.

The Bucs' swarming defense forced four turnovers to help build a 20-point halftime lead. Then the offense finally showed signs of explosiveness in scoring on five of its last seven possessions after a slow start.

Donnie Abraham intercepted Cade McNown's passes twice to set up 10 points, then forced a fumble that Ronde Barber returned 24 yards for a touchdown. The Bucs finished with five sacks, with Sapp getting one of them and taking a bow to the crowd.

Broncos 42, Falcons 14

DENVER — The third-string running back for the Denver Broncos did the other two proud.

Rookie Mike Anderson, making his first NFL start because of injuries to Terrell Davis and Olandis Gary, rushed for 131 yards and two touchdowns on 31 carries as the Broncos routed the Falcons 42-14.

"Driving to the stadium, my heart was pounding and I was shaking a little bit," Anderson said. "Filling in for a guy like Terrell Davis, there are going to be some high expectations. But I just tried to relax and not put a lot of pressure on myself."

"When I started getting handoffs, those holes were just wide open. The guys up front did a great job."

Saints 28, Chargers 27

SAN DIEGO — After failing to win on the road for nearly two full seasons, the New Orleans Saints had the good fortune to be in San Diego when the Chargers self-destructed.

Jeff Blake's third touchdown pass of the game, an 8-yarder to Joe Horn with 47 seconds left, lifted the Saints to a 28-27 victory over San Diego on Sunday in the Chargers' home opener.

Although they trailed by 11 points at halftime, the Saints snapped their 14-game road losing streak thanks to a flood of Chargers blunders. Ryan Leaf threw his first touchdown pass in nearly two years but followed with two interceptions, the Chargers blew a fourth-down play deep in New Orleans territory and the normally tough defense imploded on the Saints' winning drive.

Rams 37, Seahawks 34

SEATTLE — After two straight tight wins, Mike Martz really can appreciate the championship make-up of his St. Louis Rams.

The Rams used a 41-yard pass from Kurt Warner to Torry Holt to set up a 27-yard field goal by Jeff Wilkins with 23 seconds left for a 37-34 victory over the Seattle Seahawks on Sunday.

The defending Super Bowl champs came back to beat Denver 41-36, on a touchdown in the final 2:58 Monday night.

"It's hard to describe the feeling," said Martz, St. Louis' first-year head coach who was the offensive coordinator last season. "No one panics, no one's critical. They're just looking for an opportunity to win the game."

Warner seized the opportunity with 2:05 to play and the score tied at 34.

"I'm bragging on the guy," Martz said of Warner, last season's MVP. "But he is at his best when things are at their worst."

St. Louis drove 61 yards in eight plays for its winning score. Warner's sideline completion to Holt came on third-and-17 from the 50 after a sack for a 7-yard loss.

"Holt is money," said Warner. "He made the big catch when we needed it."

Panthers 38, 49ers 22

SAN FRANCISCO — The Carolina Panthers didn't intend to run up the score against San Francisco. The 49ers let them.

"They really didn't do anything to stop us," quarterback Steve Beuerlein said. "They're a better team than that."

Beuerlein threw for 364 yards and three touchdowns as the Panthers beat the 49ers 38-22 on Sunday. All of the 49ers' points came in the second half.

Former 49ers running back William Floyd opened the game with a 1-yard touchdown run and Tshimanga Biakabutuka ran for another as the Panthers' offense rebounded from a sloppy season-opening loss to Washington.

Lions 15, Redskins 10

PONTIAC, Mich. — So much for the Washington Redskins' spending spree on future Hall of Famers, notably Deion Sanders and Bruce Smith.

The Detroit Lions beat the heralded Redskins 15-10 Sunday as Jason Hanson kicked five field goals, including a 54-yarder that might have been good at 60 yards. The defense sealed the win with four interceptions of Brad Johnson, three in the final quarter and one with 48 seconds left by Terry Fair.

But Sanders and Smith were another reason for the defeat.

Much of the yardage that Detroit gained — almost all of it between the 20s, away from throws toward Sanders, staying away from second-year man Champ Bailey on the other side.

And both Smith and Sanders had key penalties on Detroit's drive for its final field goal — Sanders a 15-yard facemask call after a Charlie Batch completion to Johnnie Morton and Smith a dubious roughing-the-passer call that kept the drive alive after an incomplete pass on third and 17. Smith appeared to be in the air as Batch released the ball.

Yankees complete sweep of Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Just what the American League needs: another successful Yankees starter.

Randy Keisler, making his major league debut, became the third straight Yankees' pitcher to shut down the light-hitting Boston Red Sox, leading New York to a 6-2 win Sunday that completed its first three-game sweep at Fenway Park in nine years.

Following Roger Clemens and Andy Pettitte in the rotation, Keisler pitched just like them.

"It's probably the most excited I've been in my life right now," Keisler said. "I'm not to the level of those two guys yet, but, hopefully, I can get there."

Blue Jays 6, Tigers 2

TORONTO — A year after elbow surgery, Chris Carpenter is still recovering.

Carpenter, who had surgery last September, won his first start in more than two months and the Toronto Blue Jays won their third straight, 6-2 over the Detroit Tigers on Sunday.

Athletics 11, Devil Rays 0

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rookie Barry Zito pitched a five-hitter to give Oakland its second straight shutout as the Athletics beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays, 11-0, Sunday.

Zito (4-3) followed up Tim Hudson's two-hitter in a 10-0 win with a brilliant performance of his own.

Astros 7, Cubs 6

CHICAGO — Tony McKnight was a little nervous about pitching at Wrigley Field after watching his Houston teammates slug seven home runs a day earlier.

Good thing for McKnight that Richard Hidalgo saved something for Sunday.

Sammy Sosa hit his major league-leading 48th home run but Hidalgo hit a pair for the second straight day to lead the Astros to a 7-6 victory Sunday over the Chicago Cubs.

Reds 6, Pirates 4

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh starter Jimmy Anderson gave up home runs to Alex Ochoa and Ken Griffey, Jr. but his biggest problem came against an .097 hitter.

Ochoa drove in a career-high five runs and pitcher Elmer Dessens walked and scored twice as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Pirates 6-4.

Brewers 4, Cardinals 3

MILWAUKEE — Luis Lopez hit a game-tying single in the ninth inning and Ron Belliard doubled home the winning run in the 10th Sunday, leading the Milwaukee over the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3.

Shawon Dunston's third-inning homer, his 11th of the season, put St. Louis ahead 3-2, but Lopez tied it with two outs in the ninth off Mike Timlin, who blew a save for the sixth time in 18 chances. Timlin got out of the inning by striking out Jeremy Burnitz with the bases loaded.

Mets 3, Phillies 0

NEW YORK — Al Leiter hugged

Turk Wendell in a loud clubhouse. Derek Bell played catch with fans in the second deck. Mike Hampton skipped off the field after the final out.

The New York Mets looked like winners Sunday.

Leiter restored a sense of calm to Shea Stadium, pitching his first shutout of the season as the Mets put a stop to their September swoon with a 3-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Expos 4, Braves 0

ATLANTA — Two pitches cost Tom Glavine his chance to become the major leagues' first 20-game winner.

Glavine gave up two-run homers to Fernando Seguignol and Andy Tracy as the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves, 4-0, Sunday.

"I felt good about the way I was throwing the ball other than those two mistakes, that turned out to be the difference in the ballgame," Glavine said. "It was just one of those days. It was probably a game that in many respects I probably pitched better than in some of the games I've won lately."

Safin beats Sampras in dominating fashion to win U.S Open

■ The 20-year-old Russian is the youngest player to ever win the U.S. Open.

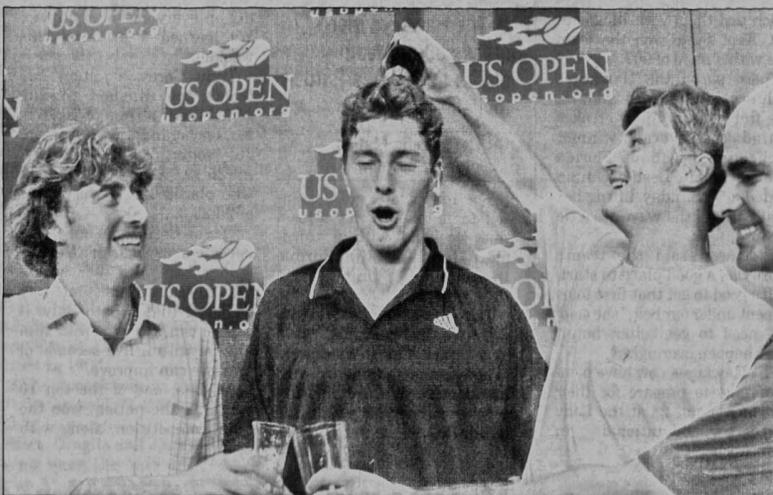

By Steve Wilstein
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Marat Safin, a giant with a peach-fuzz face and a grown-up game, turned Pete Sampras into a weekend hacker.

In as thorough a thrashing as anyone has ever given the all-time Grand Slam champion, the 20-year-old Safin became the first Russian to win the U.S. Open with a 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 victory Sunday as he stamped himself the player of the future in men's tennis.

Boyish and emotional and blessed with talents beyond his natural power, Safin celebrated by getting down on his knees and kissing the court in Arthur Ashe Stadium.

The youngest champion since Sampras won the first of his four U.S. Open titles a decade ago, Safin won his first major title and only the fifth tournament of his brief career in the most lopsided victory over a former champion in 25 years.

Suzanne Plunkett/Associated Press

"He reminded me of myself when I was 19 and came here and won for the first time," said the 29-year-old Sampras. "The way he's playing, he's the future of the game. I didn't feel old. I felt I was standing next to a big dude. "It's a bit of a humbling feeling to have someone play that well for that long. He serves harder than I did at 19. He's more powerful. He doesn't have many holes. He moves well. He's going to win many majors."

Safin, serving at up to 136 mph and whacking a dozen aces to push his tournament total to 115, never faced so much as a single break point until the last game when Sampras finally got two after Safin opened with a double fault, only his second of the match.

"I felt no pressure until last game," Safin said. "He becomes huge, the racket was huge, everything was huge."

Safin wiped away those break points quickly, and closed the 1-hour, 38-minute match with a backhand pass that zipped by Sampras as so many others had before.

Sampras, holder of 13 Grand Slam titles, had lost only twice before in a major final — against Stefan Edberg in the 1992 U.S. Open and Andre Agassi in the 1995 Australian Open.

No one had lost in the final so badly since Edberg beat Jim Courier in 1991. And no former champion had gone down so hard since Jimmy Connors lost to Manuel Orantes in 1975.

Asked how he returned Sampras' serve so well, Safin replied, "You think I know?"

Sampras unleashed a 131 mph ace to start the match, a message intended to intimidate the Russian in his first major final. But Safin resolutely stood his ground time after time, waiting for his chances.

At 3-3 in the first set, on a mild afternoon with a slight breeze, Safin created his first break point at 15-40 with a sizzling forehand pass into the corner that Sampras watched like a spectator. Two points later, Safin rocketed back a return winner that seemed faster than Sampras 124 mph serve. Sampras barely caught a glimpse of the ball going past him.

That was all Safin needed as he cruised on his serve, yielding only nine points in five service games and going to deuce only once.

The second set turned at the same 3-3 juncture. After Sampras served the first of his double faults, Safin pounced again, setting up the first break point of the match with a spectacular running backhand pass, and taking the game with a solid return Sampras slugged long.

Once more, Safin had no trouble holding serve to close the set, and his victory assumed an air of inevitability when Safin took a 3-0 lead in the third set.

"I really didn't have my game today," Sampras said. "He played so well, served big. He was not intimidated. He's a champion. He's young. He's going to get better and better."

Woods shoots lowest Canadian Open score in 22 years

■ Tiger finished with 266 after being 22-under for his past 49 holes.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

OAKVILLE, Ontario — Tiger Woods has a shot for every occasion.

Pushed to the limits by an unlikely challenger, Woods completed golf's great summer in style Sunday with a 6-iron from a fairway bunker, over the water and right at the flag, to win the Canadian Open by one stroke over Grant Waite.

"When pressure is at its peak, that's when your concentration level is at its highest," Woods said. "It builds to a crescendo."

Woods chipped from the back of the green to a foot and tapped in for birdie to close out a 7-under-par 65 and his fifth victory in seven tournaments this summer. Three of them were majors, one of them gave him the career Grand Slam, and all of them were filled with unforgettable shots.

All five victories included some kind of scoring record — 15 under at the U.S. Open, 19 under at the British, 18 under at the PGA and a 21-under 259 at Firestone.

Woods was 22 under over his final 49 holes and finished at 266, the lowest 72-hole score in the 22 years that the Canadian Open has been played at Glen Abbey Golf Club.

"I've had a wonderful summer," Woods said.

He was nearly flawless on Sunday, and had to be. Waite, a runner-up for the second straight week in Canada, matched him stroke-for-stroke and put the pressure on with a 5-iron into the par-5 18th green that left him a 20-foot eagle attempt that could have forced a playoff or perhaps snatched a victory away from Woods.

"Grant forced my hand," Woods said.

Woods went right at the flag, the ball landed about 18 feet behind the hole. Waite missed his eagle try and had to settle for a 66 and one stroke short of winning, just like he was in Vancouver last week.

"My goal was not to get too caught up in the hype," Waite said. "I gave him a run for the money."

Indeed, neither player made a bogey and they combined for 13 birdies to turn the final round into a memorable duel.

"The only way to beat him is to outplay him," Waite said. "Right now, that's a difficult task. He's an extraordinary player who comes along once every generation — or his this case, maybe once in forever."

Woods won for the third straight time, and for the ninth time this year, the most PGA Tour victories in one year since Sam Snead won 11 times in 1950. He earned $594,000, giving him more money in his last 38 tournaments — $14.9 million — than anyone else in their career.

And Woods can now add the Triple Crown to the Grand Slam he completed by winning the British Open at St. Andrews. He became the only other player besides Lee Trevino in 1971 to win the U.S. Open, British Open and Canadian Open in the same year.

Those are the three oldest national championships in golf, all of them conquered by a 24-year-old who knows no limits.

And his knack for dramatic finishes has no end.

Woods had the outright lead for only six holes in the tournament. He grabbed it for good on the par-5 16th with a 12-foot birdie putt. Woods pointed to the cup — a gesture that has replaced his famous fist pump — as the ball disappeared to give him a one-stroke lead with two holes to play.

North and South Koreans will march together during opening ceremonies

■ It will be the first time the two countries have marched in the ceremonies together.

By Stephen Wilson
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — Juan Antonio Samaranch pulled off a diplomatic coup for his final Olympics as IOC president — getting athletes from North and South Korea to march together for the first time in the opening ceremonies of the games.

Samaranch considers his greatest achievement to be the highly successful staging of the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, games which transformed South Korea and went off peacefully despite tensions with the communist North.

Now Samaranch, who steps down next year after 21 years as head of the International Olympic Committee, can claim another victory in Korean sports diplomacy by convincing both sides to accept his proposal for a joint march.

After five days of intense negotiations in Sydney, Samaranch brokered a deal Sunday for athletes and officials from the divided peninsula to parade as one team behind a unification flag in Friday's opening ceremony of the Sydney Games.

"I think this is very good news for sport, for the Olympic family and also for the games of Sydney," Samaranch said in announcing the agreement during a speech at the Sydney Opera House at the opening of the IOC's annual general assembly.

Speaking later, Samaranch said: "It's a very important gesture to show to all the world the will of the two Koreas to be unified as soon as possible."

Added IOC vice president Anita DeFrantz of the United States: "It's a very, very powerful symbol. I think it might bring a lot of people to tears on the 15th of September."

The Koreans remain technically in a state of war because their three-year conflict in the early 1950s ended in an armistice, not a peace treaty.

Samaranch first proposed the joint march in letters to South Korean President Kim Dae-jung and North Korean leader Kim Jong Il before their historic summit meeting in June in Pyongyang, capital of the North.

While the South Koreans quickly accepted, the proposal went through several changes before the North Koreans gave their assent.

Samaranch said 180 athletes and officials, 90 from each country, will march in a single delegation called "Korea."

Chang Ung said the entire North Korean delegation totaled 70, and could not say how that would affect the number of people who marched.

The unified delegation will parade behind one flag held by two athletes, one from the North and one from the South, Samaranch said. The Koreans will likely wear the same uniforms, although the final details were still being worked out between the two nations, he said.

During the games, however, the Koreans will compete as separate countries, with their own uniforms, flags and anthems.

Samaranch said he personally brokered the deal during negotiations stretching over five days in Sydney, with the IOC's executive board then approving it.

He said the final stumbling block was the issue of numbers. The North Koreans, with a team of 30 or so athletes, were concerned at being overwhelmed by a South Korean team of several hundred.

After Sunday's announcement, Samaranch posed for photos standing between IOC members Kim Un-yong from the South and Chang from the North, with all three clasping hands.

"We are the same blood," Chang said.

Spero places sixth at Myrtle Beach

■ The Hawkeyes finish 11th at the Unlimited Potential/Bay Tree Classic.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

Senior Meghan Spero shot a 226 to lead the Iowa women's golf team to a solid 11th-place finish at this weekend's Unlimited Potential/Bay Tree Classic in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Spero's effort was good enough for sixth place in the largest collegiate women's golf tournament in the country. Thirty-two teams and 165 women competed in the three-day event on two different courses.

Head coach Diane Thomason was satisfied with her team's performance but would like to see better scores in the future. "With a young team you never know what to expect," she said. "Until we get the experience, the scores will be up and down, and be not as low as we would like."

The Hawkeyes opened play on Friday by shooting a team score of 317, which put them in 12th place. They followed that up with a 311 on Saturday. Continuing the theme of improvement, the Hawkeyes shot a 310 Sunday, which tied them with Illinois at 938. Kent State won the team title with a score of 907.

Spero paced the Hawkeyes with scores of 77, 74 and 75. She finished only four strokes behind the overall winner, Michelle Simpson of Florida International. Leslie Gumm carded a 73 Sunday, lifting her from 75th all the way into a tie for 36th.

Thomason said the team's effort was a good place to start. "It's good to get that first tournament under our belt," she said. "We need to get better, but it won't happen overnight."

The Hawkeyes now have plenty of time to prepare for their next meet Sept. 28 at the Lady Northern Invitational in Minneapolis.

Iowa field hockey splits out East

■ The Hawkeyes rebounded to beat Towson after losing to North Carolina.

By Roseanna Smith
The Daily Iowan

It was a tournament of sweeping wins and losses for the Iowa field hockey team at the Temple Invitational Sept. 9 and Sunday.

Iowa kept its heads up after a loss to North Carolina by defeating Towson 2-0 in the consolation game on Sunday. Hawkeyes' Tiffany Fodera came back from her early season ankle sprain scoring the first goal against the Tigers (2-2) with 6:22 left in the first half. Maria Merluzzi and Lauren Edwards took assists on Fodera's penalty corner kick.

Freshman Margot McMahon put away the Iowa win with help from Susan Gibson and with 10 minutes remaining, to continue her team-leading first year with three career goals.

Registering her first solo shutout of the season, goalkeeper Saleema Rogers made eight saves. The Hawkeyes made 19 shots on goal.

Earlier in the weekend, North Carolina (3-0) swept Iowa on Saturday taking an early lead with two first half goals. The Tarheels put the pressure on Iowa's Emily Rinde-Thorsen—who made four saves on 16 Tarheel shots on goal.

Tarheels' Holly Huff scored five minutes into the second half and again after teammate Abbey Woolley to secure the win 5-0.

get passes off.

WMU's blitzing packages clicked at just the right time — on Iowa's last scoring drive.

With 47 seconds left on the clock on fourth-and-14, WMU called a blitz that resulted in Scott Mullen getting smashed to the turf and Iowa's hopes of a comeback victory smashed to the ground as well.

"I tried to stick with it a few times, but they just got to me," Mullen said of the Broncos' blitzing.

After the game, a wiped-out and frustrated Mullen said this team was far from giving up despite what fans and the media say.

The Hawkeyes may have lost what many felt was the easiest game on their schedule, but they aren't going to jump ship.

"I don't care about what anybody in the media writes about us," Mullen said. "If you guys want to give up on us, I don't care. We're not giving up on ourselves. It's too early in the season for us to go down — we're not doing that."

play in Saturday's second match against the Oakland Golden Grizzlies. After fending off the Grizzlies 15-8 in the first match, Iowa put Oakland away with 15-2 victories in the last two games.

Only hours after entering the record books, Meyermann pushed her first mark aside by hitting .625 against Oakland.

"Sara is a very key player for us," said Crockett. "She's being trained at three positions, and it's making her a much better player."

The Hawkeyes faced their toughest challenge of the weekend on Friday, needing all five games to defeat Evansville. After downing the Purple Aces 15-8 and 15-9, Evansville fought back with 16-14 and 15-9 wins, forcing the match to a fifth game. Hill finished off the Aces with a kill to the right corner for a 15-11 Hawkeye win.

Meyermann and Hill were selected to the all-tournament team, but it was teammate Fabiana De Abreu who walked away with MVP honors. In her first home performance, De Abreu tallied 90 assists while filling in for the injured Laura Pike. She also remained one of the Hawkeyes' biggest hitting threats, hitting .412 against Oakland.

Crockett said her team continued to impress her this weekend with its increased hitting percentage and continued blocking success.

"You can't let teams go," said Crockett. "You need to stay at your level, and that's why we had such high numbers."

to coach at Indiana, he would be under constant scrutiny from the time fall practice starts to the time recruiting season ends. In other words, all the time.

Neither school is going to tell Alford anything he does not already know. There is nothing more Iowa can do to keep him in town, and there is nothing Indiana can do besides offer him a job.

Steve Alford will make the decision that is best for himself and his family. He is in a no-lose situation right now, and was netted 99 minutes into the game.

Logan happy with soccer team's comeback

Although both teams looked sluggish and tired Sunday, Iowa head coach Wendy Logan was happy with her team's performance.

"Well, I think that it was a big win in the sense that we won in overtime. We weren't playing particularly energetically. We were tired, but we were able to overcome that and find a way to win," Logan said.

The Hawkeyes were not only battling fatigue yesterday, but also the loss of players to injury. Iowa has lost three of its starting defensive players since the season started. Katie Poole is out for the season due to a stress fracture, Teesa Price is out for a couple weeks where we need her. But, the other thing is that she's such an offensive weapon that it is hard to have her in the back," Logan said.

The win yesterday helped cool the burn from losing to Iowa State on Friday, but Logan said it wasn't so much that they lost Friday, or who they lost to, but more that they did not play as well as they could have.

"We didn't perform anywhere near our capabilities on Friday, and the coaching staff gave a challenge to the team after the game and said that the way we make it (the loss to Iowa State) a positive is to respond and play hard and win on Sunday. So, we got the win," Logan said.

Linzy Wolman has been the Hawkeyes' saving grace during this period because she has been so flexible in her positioning, while still being effective. "Linzy's been great, playing for the first 20 minutes, then they just took it to us, they know how to break us apart, and they ended up getting two goals," she said. "So, I think that winning this in overtime totally helped bring us back."

The win on Sunday came at a good time for the Hawkeyes, who are entering their Big Ten season next weekend when they're on the road again, traveling to Minnesota and Wisconsin.

"Going into the Big Ten season our heads are up, and we just don't know what to expect, because they are all pretty strong. We just have to go in there and fight and take people by surprise," Walse said about the upcoming regular season.

Iowa starts strong despite injuries

■ The Hawkeye men's cross country team places third at the Purdue Invitational.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's cross country team opened its season this weekend with a third-place finish at the Purdue Invitational in West Lafayette, Ind.

"This weekend's results were really positive," said head coach Larry Wiecek. "The team is shaping up with an identity. We are missing two key runners this year due to injuries, so we are depending on everyone to step it up. We learned a lot from this weekend."

Trent Corey, a junior, was Iowa's top finisher, placing eighth with a time of 26:06.0. Not far behind was sophomore Joe Welter, who finished 11th in 26:19, and Shaun Allen, who placed 13th with a time of 26:23.3.

"Trent Corey was our number-one man and ran an excellent race," said Wiecek. "He is really consistent, and we need that type of guy. If people can keep up with him and be within five seconds of him, we can improve."

Arizona, one of the top 10 teams in the nation, won the team competition, along with a first-place finish for the individual competition. Purdue, ranked in the top 20, took second place behind Arizona. Iowa beat Big Ten rival Illinois for a third-place finish, leaving them in fourth. Iowa was only three points behind Purdue.

"Everyone who ran this weekend had positive accomplishments," said Wiecek. "This is a meet we can build off of, and we can improve in the next two weeks. Also, it is always great to beat a Big Ten team."

This weekend, Iowa will travel to Ames to compete in the Iowa State Invitational.

Women's cross country takes third

■ Coach Sarah Swails says she is happy with her team's debut.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's cross country team opened its 2000 season by attaining its first season goal: a third-place finish at the Purdue Invitational on Sept. 9.

"It really was top-notch competition this weekend," said head coach Sara Swails. "Arizona is a top-ranked team, and Purdue is ranked a top-25 team. I am very pleased with our racing, and we had a good start this weekend."

Iowa's top finisher was sophomore Sarah Arens, who placed third with a time of 22:22.80. Freshman Georgia Millward placed 13th in the 6,000-meter course with a time of 23:50.80. Close behind in 14th place was sophomore Michelle Lahann at 24:04.10.

"Sarah Arens has established herself as one of the top runners in the Big Ten," said Swails. "She had a great race this weekend and finished third after two top runners."

The University of Arizona won the team competition, and two of its runners won second and third places in the individual standings. Purdue earned the second-place finish. Big Ten rival Illinois and Butler University failed to show up for the competition this weekend.

Swails said she is happy with her young team's start this weekend. It had a stronger start this season than last year, and Millward has already proved to be a key contributor to the Hawkeyes, she said.

"Georgia Millward has really stepped it up and become a good runner," said Swails. "She did very well in her first competition at the college level."

Next week the Hawkeyes will travel to Ames to compete in the Iowa State Invitational on Sept. 16.

Hawkeyes take fourth in Madison

■ Iowa finishes ahead of nationally ranked Arizona State at the Badger Invitational.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's golf team made its move Sunday at the Badger Invitational and finished ahead of the fourth-ranked team in the country.

Mired in a three-way tie for eighth place after 36 holes, the Hawkeyes caught fire and shot a 286 to leap over five schools on the way to a fourth-place tie with Notre Dame. Iowa finished four strokes ahead of fourth-ranked Arizona State.

"Overall, I was very pleased with tying for fourth," said head coach Terry Anderson. "I was happy with Sunday's round, but we want to do that every round."

Sunday's jump up the leader board was due to three golfers shooting under par for the round and a fourth who was just one over par.

Anderson said the key was eliminating the number of bogies.

"We had no problem all weekend making birdies," he said. "On Sunday, we got rid of the big numbers."

Senior Matt Stutzman's three-round total of 215 put him in a tie for fifth place out of the 75 golfers who competed. He was only three strokes behind the winner, Jim Lemon of Wisconsin. Also shooting a 215 were Andy Latowski and Jim Fuller of Penn State and Kevin Kornova of Toledo.

Sophomore Bo Anderson tied for 12th following rounds of 72, 75 and 71 (218 total), while senior Jason Wombacher and junior Tyler Stith finished tied for 35th with a three day total of 224.

Wisconsin took the team title at 860, followed by Penn State at 864, Toledo at 875 and then Iowa and Notre Dame at 881. The Hawkeyes finished ahead of Big Ten opponents Indiana (888) and Illinois (893).

Next, the Hawkeyes will have two weeks to prepare for the Hawkeye Invitational in Iowa City starting Sept. 23.

Ottey wins Gold Coast 100 meters

■ The 40-year-old ran a wind-aided 10.91 to earn a spot in the Sydney games.

By Bert Rosenthal Associated Press

GOLD COAST, Australia — Still trying to show the Jamaican federation that she's fit enough for a sixth Olympics, an angry Merlene Ottey blazed down the track Sunday.

The 40-year-old Ottey, whose scheduled two-year ban for steroid use was reduced to one year this season, won the women's 100 meters in a wind-aided 10.91 seconds at the Gold Coast Meet — a tuneup for the Sydney Games.

"This year my goal has been to be in my sixth Olympics," Ottey said afterward. "It's been quite a fight. I have to wait to see if Jamaica will let me in the 100."

Ottey finished fourth in the Jamaican trials, only .02 seconds behind the winner, and the federation told her she would be a member of the 400-meter relay team.

That wasn't good enough for the highly decorated Ottey, winner of seven Olympics medals — two silvers and five bronzes. The silvers came in the 100 and 200 at the Atlanta Games in 1996.

If she doesn't run in the 100, Ottey said, "I think I will go on vacation."

Stacy Dragila and James Carter were the only out-right American winners Sunday. Dragila, the world record-holder in the women's pole vault at 15 feet, 2 1/2 inches, cleared 14-5 1/2 on a windy day. She then missed three times at 14-9, coming close on two attempts. Carter took the 400 hurdles at 50.06.

A big surprise was the defeat of world champion Anthony Washington in the men's discus. Washington threw only 205-8, finishing third behind winner Jason Tunks of Canada (215-7).

Ottey has won 34 medals in international competitions, including a record 14 in the World Championships.

The Jamaican team will decide its three 100-meter runners Sept. 19, three days before the opening heats of the Olympic race. The optimistic Ottey said she would go to Sydney on the 17th hoping for a berth on the team.

by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Get ready to be active. Fitness programs started today will pay off. Don't hold grudges because of a foolish financial venture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't take financial risks. Problems will surface if you try to convince colleagues to do something they don't want to do. Offer suggestions, but don't get involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Let your imagination run wild. You can charm others with your quick mind and humorous approach to life. Start a new hobby.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may have to deal with some legal problems that children in your life are experiencing. Try not to be too negative. Approach the problem with confidence, but let them know that you are concerned.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your emotional relationship may have to be put on hold. If your lover doesn't like it, you ought to question his or her loyalty.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can rely on friends you work with to cover for you if you need to do something personal. You've made some good friends. Let them know they're appreciated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Go for it. You can get back money you thought you'd never see again. Both you and your partner will enjoy your plans for entertainment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful what you say to those you love with. You can bet that someone will be extremely sensitive to criticism.

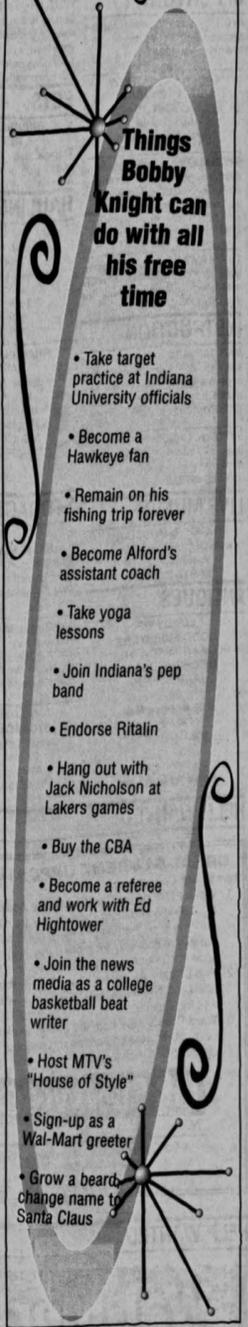

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will find it difficult to discuss your personal problems with people you know. You may want to talk in confidence with a stranger or someone who doesn't know your family.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't let other people meddle in your personal financial affairs. You can make major career gains if you plan carefully and don't let anyone stand in your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't let your emotions get the better of you. You need to deal with your relationship at your own pace. If your partner pushes you, don't be afraid to back off. You need more time to sort out your differences.

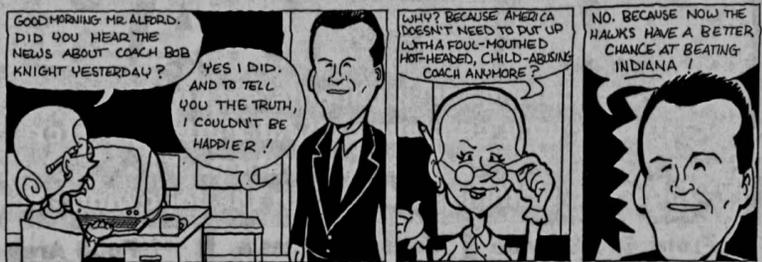

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This is a great day to work on your own projects. You need time to exploit your talents and see exactly what you can come up with.

Webster Elementary teachers and faculty were the cover story in this month's Teaching Kids.

By Andrew Bixler
 Teachers and faculty at Irving B. Weber Elementary School, 3850 Rohrer were excited to win the "Practices Award" from the Boyer Center in Penn last March, but they were overwhelmed with pride upon their students on the cover of a major magazine.

Teaching Kids, which strategies and ideas to elementary-school teachers, Weber as the cover story in September issue.

Weber Elementary one of three "Basic Schools" in the Iowa City School District. Weber Elementary School, Oakdale Blvd., and Weber Elementary School, Iowa, are also structured in a Basic School format.

The schools are not the sense of reading and arithmetic, but a sense of looking at the mental years of a child, said Weber Elementary Principal Dr. Celia Burger.

"The three principals at Basic School are making a change and arts," said "Arts play a very important role in Weber School."

The school received recognition for its involvement, integration and team teaching which students ages 5 into one of four teams.
