■ Gordon plows into the Gulf Coast, its 70 mph winds just under the hurricane threshold.

By Dara Kam
Associated Press

CEAR KEY, Fla. — Tropical Storm Gordon plowed into Florida's Gulf Coast Sunday with winds just below hurricane strength, drenching rain and a storm surge with waves more than 6 feet high.

"The storm is here," Cedar Key Mayor Heath Davis about 8:15 p.m. EDT. "It's making landfall. We're starting to see the effects of the surge."

Wind gusts of 60 mph were reported in this rustic fishing town approximately 100 miles north of Tampa as the storm approached. Gordon's top sustained winds fell from 75 mph early Sunday to roughly 70 mph by late afternoon, just below the 74 mph threshold for a hurricane.

Officials had recommended a voluntary evacuation, but many of town's 800 residents were staying put. Most had weathered hurricanes before.

"We're seeing now waves of up to and beyond 6 feet, and the water is continuing to rise and coming over the road at the docks area," Davis said. The storm had knocked out electricity to much of the city, and heavy rain was falling.

The weakening of the tropical storm system though the day was due to a combination of factors, said Hugh Cobb, a meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Miami: "The circulation center is getting close to land, plus it's pulling in dry air from the Gulf of Mexico and Southeastern U.S."

Forecasters said a storm surge of 7 to 10 feet would likely coincide with high tide, a combination that could cause particularly bad flooding. Cedar Key sits two to three feet above sea level.

There was also a threat of isolated tornadoes, forecasters said. At least one tornado was reported by Sunday evening, in Palm Beach County, the National Weather Service said.

Levy County Sheriff's deputies had ordered non-residents on Cedar Key to clear out by Sunday afternoon. Two hurricane watchers from Atlanta had hoped to watch the storm's approach.

"We have been chasing hurricanes for about 15 years," said John Tyler, a pizza delivery man who said he was disappointed by Gordon's force.

"It's real weak," he said before the storm made landfall. "It's too dry and cool to get much stronger."

Others along the coast weren't taking any chances. The Red Cross reported that approximately 500 people were taking advantage of its shelters around the state, dozens of flights were canceled at Tampa International Airport, and the Tampa Bay Devil Rays baseball game with the Oakland A's was postponed.

"Right now, there are a lot of people who just wanted to leave," said Margaret O'Brien-Molina, a Red Cross spokeswoman. "They wanted to try, but these bands come in again, and the trees start bending and the rain gets really, really stiff."

Members of the McCain family fill sandbags in advance of the arrival of Tropical Storm Gordon in Cedar Key, Fla., Sunday.

Man shoots for riches with Elvis pics

■ A Davenport car dealer believes he has a fortune with a set of 1956 photos of Elvis Presley in concert.

Associated Press

DAVENPORT — Forty-four years ago, a 15-year-old photographer named Vinje Dahl shot four rolls of film of an up-and-coming swivel-hipped singer named Elvis Presley.

Photos of the man destined to become known as "The King" were for Dahl's high school newspaper in LaCrosse, Wis., and it gained young Vinje a modicum of attention around school, where he sold prints for a couple bucks each in 1956.

But for 44 years, the negatives were lost in clutter.

Dahl, who today is a Davenport automobile dealer, said the negatives were relegated to the bottom of a drawer, then shuffled along with old yearbooks and baseball gloves from one place to another over the course of many moves.

Now, the treasury of Elvis negatives has been found, and Dahl believes prints made from them may bring him $2.5 million.

The photos, in crisp focus, were taken of Elvis on May 14, 1956, during a 26-minute performance on the stage of the Sawyer Auditorium in LaCrosse.

Dahl has assembled a showy portfolio of 10 of his best in large, gallery-quality prints. He individually mounted and signed each and enclosed them in plush black cases with white gloves enclosed — to be worn to protect the prints from the acid on fingertips. He plans to sell the portfolio through a Web site and advertisements to collectors.

"I will sell each collection of 10 prints for $2,500," he says. "There are 500 Elvis Presley fan clubs worldwide. I've been told by serious Elvis collectors there is a market for such pictures inasmuch as they are one-of-a-kind photos. I have made 1,000 of these portfolios, and if all sell, I could realize

$2.5 million. There will be no more than the 1,000 sets."

Dahl has been involved for months with gaining clearances and protection of his own property. Copyright attorneys have assured him he has something highly collectible, but one Quad-City memorabilia dealer questions whether

I knew the negatives were somewhere, but where? I got the chills when I found them.

— Vinje Dahl,

How is it possible that such potentially valuable negatives were lost for so many years?

"I knew the negatives were somewhere, but where?" Dahl says. "I got the chills when I found them after moving into our new home in Sabula, Iowa."

States hire banned firms, study shows

■ Most states don't check the federal list of barred contractors.

By Katherine Pflieger
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than half the states hire contractors without regular reviews to determine whether the companies are barred from doing business with the federal government for fraud or other violations, an Associated Press review found.

The federal government maintains an Internet-accessible list of companies it will not hire. Fourteen states said their contracting offices do not check the list, 20 other states check only occasionally, and approximately half a dozen instituted checks as a result of the AP inquiry.

A review of state procurement records in all 50 states found several states that fail to consult the federal list have repeatedly hired contractors that have had run-ins with the government.

In Vermont, two dozen contractors that were forbidden from working for the federal government have done business with the state, including Earth Waste Systems of Pittsford, Vt., banned from federal contracts in 1998.

The company, which recycles metals and dismantles buildings, emerged from bankruptcy in 1999 and has a contract from the Vermont National Guard for demolition work.

Vermont maintains no central list of its own and believes that problems with barred contractors are not widespread enough to merit one, said Tom Pelham, Vermont's finance commissioner until he left in July.

"Vermont's a small state," he said. "We do have a good competitive-bidding process."

Steve Medlin, an accountant for Earth Waste, said he was unaware that his company had been on the federal list.

Mekong flooding a disaster by inches

■ Hundreds of thousands of refugees in Southeast Asia face a grim wait.

By Tini Tran
Associated Press

TAN CHAU, Vietnam — For the residents of Vietnam's Mekong Delta, the summer has been a grim waiting game, watching waters creeping up to claim their farmland and homes in the worst flooding in four decades.

"So many nights, I couldn't sleep because I would worry about the water coming up a little more," said Nguyen Van Quan, 72, a rice farmer whose thatched-roof home is largely submerged under more than six feet of water.

Quan and his wife have been living on bamboo platforms set in the rafters of their house for the past month. "Of course I'm afraid, but I've lived here all my life. Where will I go?" he said Sunday.

Record flooding in Cambodia and Vietnam has affected more than 1 million people in recent weeks, forcing tens of thousands of families from their homes in search of higher ground. Areas of Laos and Thailand have also been hit.

Monsoon rains began in July, a month and a half ahead of schedule. The rain has continued since, swelling the Mekong River along its course through all four countries.

In Cambodia, officials say nearly 100 people have died in flooding since July. In Vietnam, the death toll stands at 15, including 10 children.

Government officials say 150,000 people have been displaced in the three hardest-hit Vietnamese provinces of An Giang, Dong Thap and Long An. More than 200,000 homes have been flooded.

Meteorologists say nearly half the land in the three provinces is submerged, with water levels at or above those of 1996, when floods killed 217 people.

The Mekong, rising an average of two to four inches a day, will probably peak in early October, approaching the 17-foot record set in 1961, officials said.

The town of Tan Chau,

Associated Press
Vietnamese children make their way down a flooded street Sunday in Tan Chau, An Giang province, in the Mekong Delta.

approximately 160 miles west of Ho Chi Minh City in An Giang province, lies near the Cambodian border, where the Mekong rushes down into the delta, and most families make a living growing rice.

Acres of verdant rice paddies have been swallowed by muddy brown water. Low-lying rural roads are often swamped, despite sandbagging. And thousands of homes are flooded, sometimes to the rooftops, driving tens of thousands of people to seek shelter elsewhere.

Along a dirt dike six feet wide near Tan Chau, almost 200 people who were evacuated from their low-lying homes live jammed into makeshift shelters — as do thousands of other families in the region.

Palestinians back off on concessions

■ A key negotiator says the Palestinians will no longer talk about ceding some West Bank land.

By Jack Katznel
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — A senior Palestinian negotiator has backtracked on a major concession made during the U.S.-brokered Camp David talks, saying his side is no longer willing to discuss ceding some West Bank territory to Israel.

Ahmed Qureia, the speaker of the Palestinian Legislative Council, rejected Israel's demand that most Jewish settlers be allowed to remain in the West Bank, under Israeli sovereignty, concentrated in large blocs of settlement.

"These blocs would mean continuation of the Israeli occupation of Palestinian land," he said in remarks broadcast on Palestinian radio Sunday.

Qureia also rejected Israel's insistence on retaining a strip of land in the Jordan Valley for up to 20 years, for reasons of security.

At the Camp David talks in July, the Palestinians became the first Arab negotiators to discuss ceding territory. Palestinian negotiators said they were ready to give up the land in exchange for land in Israel proper. Israelis confirmed that but said the amount of Israeli land would be only "symbolic."

Israel also appeared to back-track on some of its breakthrough concessions at Camp David, including acknowledging the refugee crisis created by its creation in 1948.

In addition, Palestinians say Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak has failed to implement long-standing interim agreements to release prisoners and hand over more territory.

The two sides remained divided on the future of Jerusalem, where the Palestinians wish to establish their capital alongside that of Israel. It was over Jerusalem that the Camp David summit broke down.

Qureia said Israel must recognize full Palestinian sovereignty over all of East Jerusalem. "After that, Israeli interests can be discussed," he said.

The most sensitive issue is who will control the Al-Aqsa mosque compound. It is the third holiest place in the Islamic world, but it is also sacred to Jews because it is the site of the first and second Jewish temples.

Israeli Foreign Minister Shlomo Ben-Ami said Sunday that Israel will never give up sovereignty over the site. "The principle that guides Israel is that we came to the site of the temple never to be separated from it and never to give up sovereignty there."

Talks have resumed, albeit at a low level. One round was held in New York during the Millennium Summit, and another was launched somewhere in the region Sunday evening, Palestinian officials said. Mohammed Dahlan, who heads security in the Gaza Strip, led the talks for the Palestinian side, and Gilead Sher, a lawyer, was representing Israel, said the officials, who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

In an apparent reflection of the deadlock, approximately 50 Palestinian schoolchildren aged 10-13 pelted Israeli troops and police with stones and empty bottles Sunday at the Netzarim junction in the Gaza Strip. Police responded with tear gas and rubber-coated bullets. Five children and one Israeli border policeman were injured.

Hands off Kuwaiti oil, U.S. warns Iraq

■ Tensions increase in the Gulf, as the U.S. and Iraq engage in saber-rattling.

By Dean Visser
Associated Press

SINGAPORE — U.S. Defense Secretary William Cohen warned Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein Sunday to avoid taking any "aggressive action" against his country's neighbors, saying the United States and Britain could defeat any threat.

Kuwait urged world leaders Sunday to take steps to restrain Iraq from threatening the emirate or stability in the Persian Gulf as a whole after Baghdad warned last week that it would take action to stop what it called Kuwaiti theft of its oil.

Cohen said Saddam should "understand that the United States and our British friends are fully prepared to take whatever action is necessary to prevent him from trying to repeat his past actions."

"We can certainly handle Saddam should he choose to take any kind of aggressive action," he said aboard the USS Germantown, a warship docked in Singapore, one of the stops on his six-nation Asian tour.

Tension increased in the Middle East last week, when Iraq accused Kuwait of drilling wells that allow it to siphon Iraqi oil and warned that it would move to halt its smaller neighbor's action.

Iraq historically has accused Kuwait of stealing its oil, one of the justifications it made for invading in 1990. A U.S.-led coalition army drove Iraq from Kuwait seven months later.

In the past two weeks, Iraq also has flown a jet fighter over Saudi airspace for the first time in more than a decade.

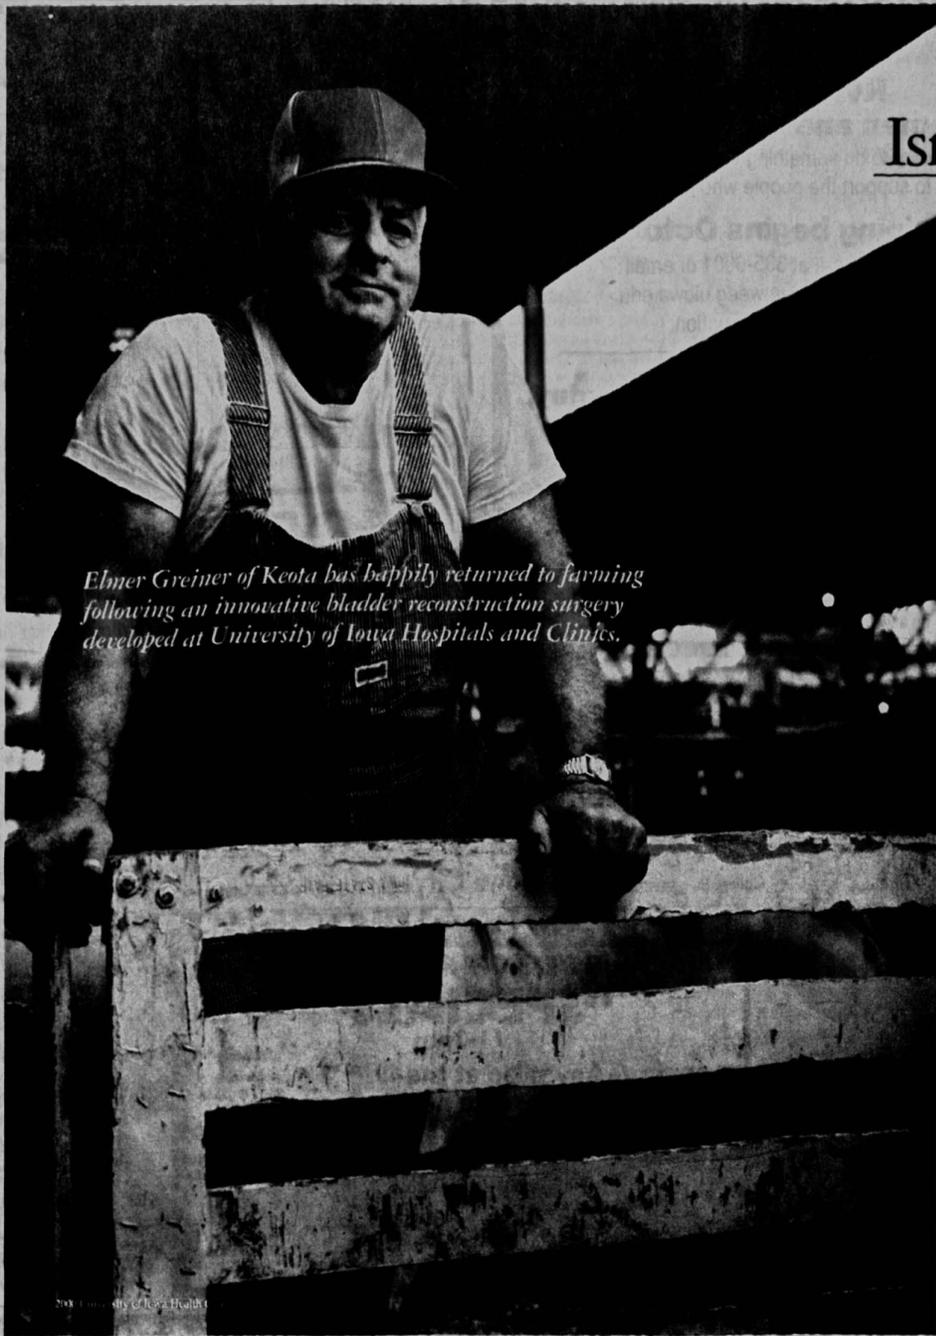

Kuwaiti Cabinet ministers discussed Iraq's recent threats Sunday, Interior Minister Sheik Mohammed Al Khaled Al Sabah said, calling the Iraqi accusation "baseless" and an attempt to create regional instability.

Kuwait "calls on the international community to take serious steps against the Iraqi regime's threats and to take all the needed measures to guarantee that it does not repeat its threats against Kuwait and regional countries," the state-run Kuwait News Agency quoted Sheik Mohammed as saying.

Defense Minister Sheik Salem Al Sabah said in an interview published Sunday the Iraqi leadership "will pay a high price this time if it carries out any foolish military act against Kuwait."

"The Iraqi regime's continuous threats do not scare us, whether they are serious or for political consumption," Sheik Salem was quoted as telling Al-Rai Al-Am daily.

Elmer Greiner of Keota has happily returned to farming following an innovative bladder reconstruction surgery developed at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics.

Isn't that amazing?

When Elmer Greiner learned he had bladder cancer in 1994, his greatest fear was that he'd have to give up farming.

Elmer's cancer was so severe, his bladder had to be removed. That meant he would be dependent upon a urine bag for the rest of his life. No more long days out in the fields.

Fortunately 1994 was also the year a physician at University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics began to perform a new kind of surgery to reconstruct the human bladder using part of the small intestine. Elmer had the surgery. Twelve weeks later he was picking corn and feeding hogs.

Elmer is not the first patient to benefit from a medical breakthrough here. Nor will he be the last. Today we are using electrical impulses to reduce incontinence and microwaves to operate on enlarged prostates. One day, we hope to know how to keep tumors like Elmer's from forming.

Which explains why, every day, we keep caring, trying and searching for the discoveries that change medicine. And change lives.

"On the pommel bars, you can do the most tricks at an easier level; you have less of a chance of hurting yourself, and it's not as difficult," he said.

Melson's brother, Ché, a junior at Iowa City City High, 1900 Morningside Drive, said he goes to all of his brother's competitions because in his family everyone supports one another. Through this, he has learned a lot about the sport of gymnastics and now knows when his brother does well.

"In a way, I'm like his biggest critic," Ché said. "It has changed his whole world. He wants to go to Stanford on a gymnastics scholarship."

Being a gymnast is no easy task, though, said Jim Schlott, the owner and competitive director of the Iowa Gym-Nest.

"It's even more difficult than it looks on television," he said. Although it is very hard, Schlott said, the 1,200 kids who practice at his gym benefit from experiencing a lot, and most enjoy the sport.

"It's one of the few athletic things kids love doing," he said. "No one forces them. They gladly spend a lot of time in the gym."

All of the kids, no matter what their skill level, will watch the Olympics, he said.

the school takes any permanent measures, Scheib said. The council has been monitoring the Buchanan Auditorium, which is one of the most-affected lecture rooms, in order to discover when the worst times of the day are, she said.

Part of the problem lies within the faculty members who do not take the rules seriously themselves, Scheib said.

"The faculty shouldn't be laughing or shrugging this off," she said. "They should be setting the example for students."

Many faculty and staff members have given up on keeping the auditoriums looking nice after continually trying with no avail, said William Albrecht, a professor of economics who teaches in Pappajohn.

"It just makes the classrooms dirtier and more expensive to clean them," he said. "From a teaching perspective it's not relevant, though."

Signs are posted throughout the building, but no professors have actually enforced the rules during UI sophomore Corey Taylor's classes. His professors only mentioned the policy during the first day of classes, he said.

"I see students bring (20-ounce bottles of soda) or something in, but I have never noticed it to be a big problem with them spilling or leaving things," Taylor said.

Although one professor told UI junior Scott Jackson's class about the policy, the professor told the class that he would not mind if students did bring in beverages as long as they were properly disposed of.

"He basically said that we're in college, not kindergarten, but that if we started abusing the policy then he wouldn't allow us to bring anything in anymore," Jackson said.

The problem doesn't exist with students only, said Judy Johnson, a UI custodian, who agreed that maintaining a clean environment is becoming increasingly difficult.

"If they didn't make a mess, then I'd be out of a job, but they should take care of things at least," she said.

An easy solution would be for students to take the time prior to classes to get a drink or food, Scheib said.

"All students have to do is get up 20 minutes earlier ... and get something to eat then."

Crokin thought the four had left, but a few minutes later, she heard knocking at her door again. When she came to the door, she saw that smoke pouring in — a T-shirt was on fire and hanging on her doorknob. Crokin said she put the fire out with an extinguisher and called 911.

Both Crokin and Kanzer left their apartment after the fire subsided.

"There was an intense fog; we couldn't see where we were going," Kanzer said.

Both Kanzer and Crokin were taken to the hospital. Kanzer was admitted to the hospital for observation for irritation to her throat and a high intake of carbon monoxide from the smoke, Kanzer said.

Iowa City police say they have suspects but have not arrested the perpetrators. Kanzer and Crokin say they have a distinct picture of them in their heads.

"We were hoping they would come forward," Crokin said.

If the four are arrested, they will be charged with first-degree arson, a class B felon, said police Sgt. Brian Krei.

The authorities do not know the amount of damage to the apartment.

The football weekend proved eventful for UI students living in the dorms as well.

Six residents in Hillcrest's N100's had their locks jammed early Sunday morning with what was later identified by maintenance personnel as caulk. Because of repairs that had to be made at Mayflower and Quadrangle, maintenance personnel could not arrive for more than an hour and a half, which the locked-out residents spent sleeping outside their doors. Doors in Quadrangle were also vandalized with caulk.

"People come home drunk at night and think the dumbest things are the funniest things," Hillcrest resident and freshman Matt McKee said. "I better get used to it because I have the feeling it's going to happen a lot."

Dormitory doors are supposed to be locked during game days. Hillcrest's are not because the building houses the West Side's food service, but that allows non-residents to enter the building after the game.

Hillcrest resident and UI sophomore Geoff Baker was surprised at the number of fans who cut through the dorm. "I watched the game on TV, but when it was over, people were going crazy. There were ISU people running through the halls and screaming."

Although it is unclear who was responsible for the jammed doors, students are beginning to regard vandalism as a normal part of the dorm experience.

Public Safety Sgt. Mike Hanks said football games will always carry some excessive behavior with them.

"Game days definitely increase how much we're called," he said. "There's a lot more alcohol-related problems. But it's a football game; a lot of people drink."

POINT/COUNTERPOINT

Has UISG sold out UI students?

YES. UISG's actions in the tuition debate hurt UI students, not to mention students of UNI and ISU.

Last week, the UI Student Government, along with the student governments of Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa, made a presentation to the Board of Regents about the tuition hikes proposed for 2001-02. Despite the opposition voiced by the other two governments, the UISG announced its approval of the projected tuition and fee increase.

Though UISG aims to represent the students, its actions betray the wishes and wallets of thousands of students.

UISG delegates claim to endorse the 9.9 percent hike under the assumption that the UI will include students in the allocation process and publicize the final allotments. In the past, the UI has done virtually nothing to include students in the process, short of taking their money. Each year, UI officials tactfully obscure the management of tuition revenue. Given this recurring negligent behavior of university officials in refusing to include students when it comes to tuition and fees, the promise of a revolution for 2001-02 looks dim.

According to the documented tuition and fee proposal, the Board of Regents focuses on a strategic plan stressing excellence in "quality, access, diversity and accountability." It ought to include "counterproductive bureaucracy" as well. If tuition and fees continue to increase sharply, enrollment numbers will slump. Accessibility, then, decreases. Currently, many students who meet the requirements for admission cannot afford to attend Iowa's public universities, particularly the UI. In defense, the regents continually point out that the UI tuition and fees remain much lower than most comparable schools across the country and in the Big Ten. The regents ought to assess within the university instead of weighing against other institutions in a miserly game of financial catch-up. Even more so, the UISG, the alleged voice of the students, needs to re-evaluate for whom it's fighting.

The projected $20.9 million that the UI would attain from such a rise in tuition and mandatory fees would certainly beget many fancy new facilities and gadgets, raising the relative quality of the university. In supporting these measures, the UISG fails to bear in mind that many UI students chose to enroll on the basis of the comparatively low tuition. Luring students to a university and then fining them in a display of incremental infidelity is wrong. If the UISG has the best interest of the current students in mind, the delegates need to defend the financial reality that most face. Sometimes, the price at which eminence is bought outweighs the final result.

Liz Basedow is a DI editorial writer.

NO. The UISG's cautious endorsement of an increase promotes the welfare of all Iowa students.

The quality of education at the UI is excellent. For one, the faculty is definitely top-notch. For another, many classrooms are equipped with high-tech devices to aid in instruction. The UI's dedication to quality has not gone unnoticed. For 2001, U.S. News & World Report ranked the UI 20th among public universities. However, continued excellence comes at a price. It would be virtually impossible to maintain, let alone improve, the current quality of education without additional funds. The UI Student Government realizes that and has decided to cautiously support a 9.9 percent increase in resident tuition and fees. Although it would have been much easier to pander to the uninformed wishes of the student body and immediately oppose the raise, the UISG has decided instead to take the hard road and do what is right for the students.

First of all, one major factor in this decision was the state Legislature's decision to underfund the UI by $10 million. This decision comes at a time when the Higher Education Price Index, a measure of inflation specifically for universities and colleges, is advancing faster than predicted. As a result, universities have less purchasing power per dollar. It is sad that the Legislature places such a low priority on education, but in order to keep the UI from degrading, the funding must be made up in tuition increases.

Second, President Mary Sue Coleman has promised to use 2 percent of the increase to fund quality improvements that are quite sensible. One such improvement is the proposed UI Retention Initiative, a program designed to help students stay in school. Every upperclassman can probably name at least a handful of students who just could not seem to make it. Many students drop out after or even during the first semester of their first year. The Retention Initiative is definitely needed to help these at-risk students get the counseling and advising they need in order to tough it out. There are many other such improvements proposed, and the UISG has decided to set up an online poll to see which improvements matter to the students. In this way, the UISG hopes to make the administration more accountable to the students it serves.

The UI needs this money in order to continue functioning at such a high level. To deny this increase would be a short-term solution with long-term ramifications. If the UI were forced to sacrifice quality, it would be the students who would lose the most in the end.

Micah Wedemeyer is a DI editorial writer.

GUEST OPINION

Absentees squander tuition

University life is very nice in many ways. For one, students get to make New Year's resolutions several times a year. Now, with the start of the new academic year, one universal resolution will be to do well academically. And to do that means going to class. Hence another resolution: Attend each and every class meeting.

Class attendance in these first several weeks will therefore be quite high. The adjustment to the normal routine will then begin, with absenteeism climbing. It will not be unusual to find absentee rates of 25-33 plus percent after the first month in many courses.

These rates are of sufficient concern that faculty members implement various schemes to discourage absenteeism. Among the incentives to promote attendance are bonus points, attendance quizzes and simple answer "pop" quizzes.

Such attendance-incentive schemes are first-hand evidence that instructors believe absentee rates are too high. Faculty members regularly comment on the excessively high absentee rates in their courses and the seeming "irrationality," irresponsibility and lack of motivation of students.

When students miss class, they receive lower returns on their tuition expenditures; they also waste taxpayer funds that are intended to finance the bulk of the costs of university education. At present, students at the UI pay approximately 30 percent of the total cost of their education, with taxpayers financing the rest. Surely, taxpayers are not paying students not to go to class.

Students at UI pay approximately 30 percent of the total cost of their education ... Surely, taxpayers are not paying students not to go to class.

Ironically, the taxpayer-subsidy acts as an incentive to skip class! Consider, would absentee rates be lower if students paid the full cost? Who doubts the answer?

This raises an important issue. Because taxpayers are financing students to attend class and learn, the act of not going is tantamount to embezzlement — that is, students are using funds for purposes for which they were not intended. They are stealing from taxpayers for their own benefit. The extent of the theft can be readily calculated.

Suppose, for instance that tuition is $1,500 a semester; the per credit hour cost of a 15-hour load to an in-state student is $100, thereby making the tuition cost of a three-hour course $300. Because students pay 30 percent of the cost, taxpayers then pay the additional $700 for a three credit-hour course. When students miss a two-day a week class in a 15-week semester, they forego the benefits of $10 of their own payments and $23.33 of taxpayer-subsidies.

As individuals free to decide what is in their own best interest, students should not be censured for "wasting" their $10 by not going to class. The alternative use of their time may be more valuable, and they are in the best position to evaluate the prospective options.

Students who choose to miss class, however, certainly should be required to reimburse the taxpayers for the $23.33 subsidy that was provided for the purpose of attending class and learning. Taxpayers, after all, are not financing students to skip class.

Allowance must be made for legitimate reasons for missing class — personal illness or a death in the family. Such situations are reasonably rare. Provision thus should be made to allow at most two or three excused absences, ones for which the taxpayer payments need not be repaid. Absences in excess of that are to be financed by repayments in the amount of the subsidy.

In our society, theft is not condoned. Two questions. Why is it then that students who miss class feel no moral compunction about stealing? Why do they treat the taxpayer subsidy as their just due and consequently feel no need to repay?

Second, why is it that the university does not require students missing class to repay the taxpayer-provided subsidy? It after all represents funds that taxpayers transferred in their desire to provide students with higher levels of education and better job skills. Why should those subsidies not be used for that purpose? Why should they not be available to enhance further the educational functions of the university?

IOWA STATE VIEWPOINT

UISG move shattered unity

On Monday night, the UI Student Government passed a resolution to betray all Iowa college students by supporting a 9.9 percent tuition increase at the UI, reversing its previous stance.

The Iowa State University Government of the Student Body learned about this cowardly reversal Tuesday night before the Board of Regents meeting.

That left only 18 hours for the student governments at Iowa State and the University of Northern Iowa to replan five and a half months of strategy.

The student governments at the regent universities had been planning since April to present a unified front at the regents meeting on Sept. 13 to combat rising tuition and take a stand on behalf of Iowa students.

How do you justify approving a higher tuition rate than the regents? How do you sleep at night?

The UISG shattered that unity with one vote. Without the backing of all three student governments, Iowa State and UNI student leaders will have to stand alone to persuade the regents to lower the tuition increase.

The 9.9 percent proposal the UISG supports is higher than the 9.3 percent increase proposed by the regents.

This is not what UI students want. How will UISG answer to its own students? How will it answer to us all?

UISG President Andy Stoll said he still hopes the student leaders can make a joint presentation.

This is unlikely, since a brave man dies but once while a coward dies a thousand times. Sorry, Andy, but those of us with backbone have plans of our own.

Withdrawing your support has weakened our stand. Our governing bodies are actually looking out for our interests.

You see, UISG, student government should protect students, not stab them in the back at zero-hour.

How do you justify approving a higher tuition rate than the regents?

How do you sleep at night? This mystifying move smacks of backroom politicking, while backing out at last minute is merely shady, callow and without class.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

UISG ignores the voice of UI, ISU, UNI students in tuition negotiations

On Sept. 11, the UISG voted in favor of supporting a 9.9 percent increase in tuition for resident undergraduate students. This was in stark contrast to its alliance with the student governments of Northern Iowa and Iowa State to propose a 7.22 percent increase.

On Sept. 13, your student government president stood in front of the Board of Regents and told that you, as a student body, supported a 9.9 percent tuition hike. I am very concerned that the student body in general is not having its voice heard on this issue.

The ISU and UNI student governments are both supporting a more modest tuition increase of 7.22 percent. The differences between the two plans are very important, especially to non-residents, who will see an actual increase of approximately 8 percent or $990, while residents will see a 9.9 percent increase or $324 under the UI's plan.

The students of UI need to be heard.

From Bach to Villa-Lobos

■ An unusual trio will take the Clapp Recital Hall stage tonight.

By Jennifer Aistrophe
The Daily Iowan

Five years ago, three musicians from Flint Hills, Kan., who had a longing to tour together and a desire to challenge themselves musically formed a chamber ensemble to perform pieces from such composers as Bach, Beethoven and Villa-Lobos.

The group, the Flint Hills Trio, is composed of faculty members from Emporia State University. The group performs a variety of pieces from the Baroque period — roughly 1600 to 1750 — to the 20th century. At 8 p.m. today, the trio will perform a free guest concert in Clapp Recital Hall.

The members of the trio — Angela McComas on flute, Marie Miller on piano and Allan Comstock on bassoon — enjoy the opportunities that come with being in a musical group.

"I wanted an ensemble that was small enough to take on the road easily. Also, I enjoy working with the other members of the trio; they're both fine musicians and delightful people,"

Comstock said. In addition to being a member of the trio, each of the three musicians has many outside musical activities.

McComas, a graduate of the University of Kansas and the University of Missouri, Kansas City, Conservatory of Music, is the flute instructor at Emporia State. She also maintains private studios in Kansas and is the principal flute of the Topeka Symphony Orchestra and co-principal of the Lawrence Chamber Orchestra.

Miller is an active soloist, chamber musician and ensemble performer. She holds degrees from Florida State University, Northwestern University and Silver Lake College. She is the chairwoman of the Emporia State music department.

Comstock holds degrees from the Eastman School of Music, Western Illinois University and the University of Memphis. He is professor of double reeds and director of orchestras at Emporia State.

The unique instrumentation of the Flint Hills Trio limits the number of pieces that are specifically written for such a trio. Comstock said that "while there isn't a lot of music written specifically for flute, piano and bassoon, there is enough for a viable ensemble."

To help in the search for new music pieces, the group was able to commission a piece by Memphis conductor Michael Drompp last year. And Andrew Hutchins, an Emporia State professor of composition, is currently composing a piece for the trio plus marimba.

The ability to help form new sounds is just one of the many benefits the trio experiences. Comstock feels that there are many more.

"We enjoy working together," he said. "We felt it was important to represent Emporia State by forming a group that could tour on a regular basis, which we do. It gives us opportunity to perform a wide variety of repertory. Ultimately, though, I think that the most compelling reason for forming the ensemble was the simple fact that we are all close friends and enjoy making music together."

A 'W' for W. means a move for Baldwin

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — If George W. Bush wins the U.S. presidential election this November, he may not be the only one moving into a new house.

Kim Basinger said her husband, actor and Democratic party activist Alec Baldwin, was serious when he said he would leave the United States if the Republican wins.

"Alec is the biggest moralist that I know," she was quoted as saying in Focus magazine, which hits newsstands today. "He stands completely behind what he says."

Asked if she'd move with him, Basinger said: "I can very well imagine that Alec makes good on his threat. And then I'd probably have to go, too."

Life after Kramer?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Richards says he wasn't sure if there was life after Kramer. Acting life, at least.

"At first, I didn't really want to work," the former "Seinfeld" star said. "There wasn't anything that was really exciting me. So I thought I was going to retire."

After earning a reported $13 million on the hit "show about nothing," Richards took it easy. He traveled, restored his home, read classic books, and did little acting.

But he's back on NBC next month in "The Michael Richards Show," playing a befuddled detective.

Some of the mannerisms are the same, but Richards told Sunday's Los Angeles Times that he won't simply relish his "Seinfeld" role.

"I'm not the Kramer character," he said.

People + football + alcohol = arrests

Iowa City police report arresting 65 persons for alcohol-related offenses.

By Bridget Stratton
The Daily Iowan

The influx of people into the downtown area after the Iowa/Iowa State football game Saturday created a higher volume of calls for Iowa City police, said Lt. Matt Johnson.

"All things that you assume would happen when more people come in to town happened," he said.

Iowa City police doubled the number of scheduled officers patrolling the downtown area in preparation for the weekend.

Over the weekend, officers cited 65 persons for alcohol-related offenses, including public intoxication and possession of alcohol under the legal age. Forty-nine were cited the weekend before.

While Johnson said the number of alcohol arrests was higher than most weekends, police received few incidents of fights.

One assault was reported at the College Street Billiard Club & Deli, 114 E. College St., when David Becker, 31, Des Moines, allegedly struck a male, cutting him below the right eye and chipping his tooth, Johnson said.

Becker was charged with public intoxication, interference with official acts and assault causing injury Sunday at 1:23 a.m. He was released from the Johnson County Jail Sunday at 3:50 p.m.

One unidentified police officer received an injury to his left hand while making an arrest. Officers were responding to a call at 706 E. Market St., where Dylan Mullinex, 19, 625 S. Clinton St., was allegedly selling cups for alcohol, Johnson said. Mullinex allegedly ran and fought the officers. Police records did not report any injury to Mullinex or any other officers.

Mullinex was charged with possession of alcohol under the legal age, escape from custody, interfering with official acts causing injury and public intoxication on Sept. 17 at 12:15 a.m. He was released from the Johnson County Jail Sunday.

Neither Becker nor Mullinex were available for comment.

the car.

The Department of Natural Resources has recently begun draining some water out of the lake in order to repair the shorelines; as Ramsey walked by, he noticed an object on the surface of the water.

His first impression was that the object was a sandbar, but as he approached, he thought it was a boat sitting upside-down.

"Then I walked closer and saw it was a car, and I assumed it was the one they were looking for," he said.

Ramsey immediately called 911. He said he had not expected that the car would be discovered in the lake because investigators had performed extensive searches throughout the lake.

"I was caught off guard," he said. "It was unbelievable."

The Johnson County Sheriff's Office pulled the car from lake and found the body inside. Because the body had been under water for a long period of time, it was in bad condition and unidentifiable when recovered, Bolzek said.

Authorities do not know why the car was in the lake; they are continuing to investigate, Bolzek said.

"In a monogamous relationship where one partner is infected, there is about a 20 percent rate of infected persons passing on the virus to their partners," Ault said.

Although the vaccine only works on women, there are many people that would benefit from it. Researchers believe if women are given the vaccine, it can protect men by lowering their chances of coming in contact with infected females.

"There are about 30 million to 40 million Americans who are affected by the herpes virus. It would be great if this vaccine was successful because it is a lifelong dis-

Although there are medications that treat the virus, they must be taken over a long period of time. The vaccine would help patients more rapidly, Ault said.

The vaccine could potentially become available to students, which UI Nadia Arab, a UI sophomore, also supports using the vaccine.

"I don't think the vaccine will encourage irresponsible behavior, but will help those people that have to deal with (the virus)," she said.

Karen Kubby, the executive director of the Emma Goldman Clinic, said she is in favor of a vaccine for this common STD, depending on the side effects.

Hawkeyes return to action

■ The Iowa volleyball team plays its first game in a week when it takes on Drake tonight.

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

Healthy and ready. That's the way Iowa volleyball coach Rita Buck-Crockett describes her team as the members prepare themselves for Big Ten competition.

Iowa (3-3) travels to Des Moines to take on the Drake Bulldogs (1-7) tonight at 7 in its final pre-season tune-up before beginning the Big Ten season.

"Everybody is traveling today," Crockett said. "Which is definitely a good thing to see at this point."

Laura Pike, who injured her leg nearly three weeks ago, will return to the lineup for tonight's game. With her return, Iowa is back to full strength. Defensive specialist Evelena Ornelas and setter/hitter Fabiana De Abreu are also healthy, giving Crockett the deep bench she wanted when the season began.

Iowa field hockey rebounds to crush Delaware

■ The Hawkeyes split their games at the Big East Challenge this weekend.

By Roseanna Smith
 The Daily Iowan

It might have been revenge. It might have been retaliation. It was certainly a blowout.

Coming off a disappointing 2-1 loss to Syracuse in sudden-death overtime on Sept. 16, the Iowa field hockey team had something to smile about following Sunday's game at the Big East Challenge.

Keeping with head coach Tracey Griesbaum's expectations of play for Sunday, Iowa "stuck with the game plan and found the back of the net" for a win over Delaware, 6-1.

Another key was scoring on penalty corner shots.

"Corners were huge," Griesbaum said. "We feel like our timing hasn't been really good, but for today, to get a lot of those shots off felt really awesome."

Four of the six Iowa goals were scored on corners, with Tiffany Fodera taking three, her last earning her a hat trick and sealing the game.

Fodera scored four minutes into the first half after the successful execution of a new corner play.

"They got fired up because it was something we just added for today's game. It lifted their spirits and confidence," Griesbaum said.

In the 12th minute, Fodera once again took a straight shot on goal with assists from teammates Maria Merluzzi and Lauren Edwards. Tiffany Leister stepped up for another Iowa goal, her first of the season.

Gina Carr's goal with 10:37 remaining closed up the first half with Iowa leading 4-0.

Delaware took its first two penalty corner shots in the beginning of the second half, both of which were stopped by goalkeeper Saleema Rogers.

Delaware scored its solo goal in the 44th minute, on a breakaway run from Katie Phillips.

Iowa's Susan Gibson made a shot on a corner for the Hawks' fifth goal, and Fodera closed up

Cyclones touch down in Kinnick

■ Iowa State won its third straight game over Iowa with a 24-14 win Saturday.

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

Several Iowa State players wanted more than just a memory of Saturday's game against Iowa, so they dug up handfuls of Kinnick Stadium grass as a souvenir of their hard-fought, 24-14 win.

Meanwhile, the Hawkeyes are left to repair the holes on the field, and the obvious holes in their game, following their third-straight loss to Iowa State.

"It sucks," said Iowa quarterback Scott Mullen. "I'm not from Iowa, but in my five years I've grown to not like them, and it sucks to lose."

Emotions ran high, as the game was expected to be close, and it looked like it could go either way in the fourth quarter.

Facing third-and-21 with approximately 12 minutes left in the game, Mullen threw a ball down the middle of the field. Wide receiver Chris Oliver out-jumped his defender to come up with the 38-yard completion.

Four plays later, Mullen found Kahlil Hill over the middle, and as he was falling to the ground the wide receiver extended the football across the goal line for the score. Nate Kaeding's PAT brought Iowa to within three, 14-17, and Iowa State coach Dan McCarney said he felt Iowa gain the momentum.

Then the Iowa State players gathered on the sideline before driving 79 yards on 10 plays to seal the victory.

This time Iowa State's win no fluke

The 24-14 score may not have shown it, but the Hawkeyes got dominated by Iowa State Saturday.

They got out-rushed and out-passed. They got burned on big plays, they got ground up on long drives and if it weren't for two missed scoring opportunities from inside their own five, the Cyclones would have blown Iowa away.

The Cyclones did almost everything right Saturday, and, as usual, the Hawkeyes didn't do enough right. ISU ran the ball effectively, and when it needed a big play, it got one. The Cyclone defense made stops when it needed to — Iowa's didn't.

About the only thing the Cyclones didn't do well was kick the ball. Iowa State junior Mike McNight missed field goals from 33 and 27 yards — it was because of those missed field goals that this contest was still a game in the fourth quarter.

Take away those missed scoring opportunities, and this one could have gotten real ugly.

For the Hawkeyes, it was the same old story. They at times could throw the ball effectively. Scott Mullen played decently, and Kevin Kasper and Kahlil Hill each caught gobs of passes. For the first time this year, they showed some semblance of a running game — I use the word semblance because the Hawks still netted only 93 yards on the ground. All of them came from Ladell Betts.

The defense, however, couldn't prevent ISU from executing long, clock-eating drives. The Cyclones put together five drives of more than 50 yards. Whether it came from Ennis Haywood's powering runs or Sage Rosenfel's accurate passing and mis-direction running,

Taped Olympics sending Americans to the Web

■ NBC will not show any live coverage of the Sydney Olympic games.

By Howard Fendrich
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — Right about the time NBC's audience was being treated to a hard-hitting interview with the (gasp!) parents of the teen-ager who played a lead role in the Sydney Olympics opening ceremony, someone was winning the men's triathlon.

Someone else, right then, took gold in a shooting competition.

And Australian swimmer Ian Thorpe was probably rel-ishing the world record he had set more than 12 hours before.

Not only were viewers who tuned in for Saturday night's telecast of the Summer Games kept from seeing many of the events, they weren't even told the results.

NBC's telecasts from the 1996 Atlanta Games were billed as "plausibly live."

These Olympics are, implausibly, taped.

NBC and cable partners MSNBC and CNBC are airing more than 400 hours of competition, but not a single second will be live. Most of what the network figures has the greatest appeal is being shown in prime time.

"If you have hundreds of mil-ions of dollars on the table — in the case of Sydney, $705 million in rights fees and $100 million in production costs — you have to put this on to reach the widest possible audience," NBC Sports Chairman Dick Ebersol said. "You HAVE to."

Perhaps, but Ebersol's stewardship of the presentation of these Olympics is odd in this age of the Internet, 24-hour cable news channels and instant access to information.

On Sunday, NBC began its coverage at 11 a.m. EDT with a collection of stars from the NBA (to which NBC holds the TV rights) easily defeating China in men's basketball. Held for at least another eight hours was footage of three swimming world records.

"Plausibly live" is a term coined to describe the showing of taped material as if it were live, withholding results to heighten the suspense. This time, Ebersol is proud to point out, there's no fudging, because hosts are reading a disclaimer the first few days.

"As we begin our Olympic journey here, we have this program note: Here in Sydney, we are 15 hours ahead of New York City, 18 hours ahead of those of you on the West Coast," Pat O'Brien said at the outset of CNBC's first show. "And to present these Olympics at a time convenient to you — that is, while you're awake — the event coverage you'll see broadcast will be on tape."

The three channels are airing events up to 20 hours after they conclude because of the lure of prime-time advertising dollars; NBC has said it will turn a profit thanks to $900 million in ad sales.

What the network is also doing is sending plenty of Americans to the World Wide Web, the fastest way to get results, and some lucky Americans — those who live in border cities such as Detroit and Buffalo or have satellite dishes — to the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., which is airing 288 hours of live cover-

FERENTZ QUOTE

"We have to play smarter out there on defense. I knew that one of the keys to the game would be winning on special teams — not only the battle, but each segment and we couldn't execute on all segments. We have to learn to play better assignment football and take care of our responsibility."

Elliott: Iowa will win games this year

The Hawkeyes used the shotgun formation and saw Benny Sapp play solid special teams.

By Jeremy Schnitker and Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

The best man to evaluate where Iowa is at and where it is headed may be Bob Elliott, the former Hawkeye defensive coordinator and current Iowa State special-teams coach. He recruited many on Iowa's current roster and has had a chance to view the team from both sides of the coaching box. He advises Hawkeye fans to be patient.

"Iowa has good, young players who are developing, and they will win some games this year. They really will," Elliott said. "They are fighters with a good heart, and I don't think there is any cause for panic or alarm."

Shotgun?
 For the first time this year, and one of the few times in Kirk Ferentz's two years at Iowa, the Hawkeyes used the shotgun formation — setting Scott Mullen deep behind center A.J. Blazek.

With the intention of giving Mullen more time to get throws off, the Hawkeyes began practicing the formation two weeks ago and decided to use it extensively against the Cyclones because it might be able to help Mullen see the field a little better.

"I felt great back there," he said.

quarterbyquarter

Iowa State jumped on the Hawkeyes early on a 58-yard J.J. Moses reverse on the first play of the game.

The Hawkeyes came striking right back with a 66-yard drive capped off by a Kevin Kasper TD reception. Ladell Betts' 25-yard run to the ISU eight-yard line keyed that drive.

On Iowa State's next possession, the Cyclones drove down to Iowa's 12-yard line, but couldn't punch in a TD. Mike McKnight booted in a 22-yard field goal to put Iowa State up by three.

Neither team scored on their two last possessions of the quarter.

The second half started off the same way the first half ended. Iowa State drove down all the way to the Iowa nine-yard line, but McKnight again missed a field goal and ISU came away empty.

Iowa drove down to the Iowa State 8-yard line and looked like it was going to score. Betts had a 21-yard run and Hill had a 12-yard reception to help the drive, but Iowa was forced to kick. Kaeding came onto the field, but miscommunication between center A.J. Blazek and holder Jason Baker on the snap resulted in a fumble, and Iowa State recovered.

Not tough on third downs
 The Hawkeyes again had problems holding the opposition on third and long.

On three different occasions, Iowa State came up big to stifle Iowa's defensive efforts. On two key third-and-long plays, Sage Rosenfels hooked up with J.J. Moses and on another found Craig Campbell for a 12-yard gain to sustain ISU's last scoring drive.

"It's a simple football game," Ryan Hansen said. "We've got to know our assignment, we've got to know the coverages we have. I mean, I can't place the blame on anybody in particular."

Sapp'em
 Led by true freshman Benny Sapp, both the kickoff and punt coverage, along with punter Jason Baker, came to play. Baker averaged 48.4 yards on five punts, with a long punt of 69 yards, the third longest of his career and 10th in Iowa history. The cover guys held Iowa State to a combined 34 return yards on three punts and two kickoffs.

However, Nate Kaeding missed a 39-yard goal right before half-time that would have cut the Cyclones' lead to seven. In the third quarter, miscommunication between snapper A.J. Blazek and holder Baker ended another Iowa field goal attempt.

"I knew that one of the keys to the game would be winning on special teams," Ferentz said. "Not only the battle but each segment, and we couldn't execute on all of the segments."

Pac-10 gets three in top 10

UCLA, Washington and USC crack the AP's top 10 after this weekend.

By Richard Rosenblatt
 Associated Press

It took a backup quarterback from an overlooked West Coast team to put the first three weeks of the college football season into some sort of perspective:

"I think we proved we were the No. 1 team in the nation," quarterback Ryan McCann said after UCLA upset Michigan, 23-20, for its second win in three games over a team ranked No. 3. "I don't know who else we can beat or what else we can do."

At this early juncture, who's going to argue? After a Saturday full of surprises, the Associated Press Top 25 poll underwent a major reshuffling as five of the top 15 teams were beaten. Losers were Michigan, Texas, Tennessee, Purdue and Alabama.

The results left fans wondering what to make of the 2000 season. For now, we know this:

- The Pac-10 is back, led by UCLA, which started the season unranked and jumped to No. 6 in this week's AP poll. Washington and USC are in the top 10, too. Next up for the Bruins? At Oregon, which has a 16-game home winning streak.

- Alabama still isn't ready to challenge for a national title, no less defend its SEC West crown. The Crimson Tide, 21-0 losers to Southern Mississippi, dropped out of the poll.

- Penn State is worse than anybody thought, South Carolina is better than anybody thought and Notre Dame is playing with a passion that's been missing for years.

- Virginia Tech isn't a one-year wonder.

- Tennessee still can't beat Florida.
- Nebraska and Florida State remain a solid 1-2 in the polls.

There's more, such as Auburn, Iowa State, North Carolina State and Pittsburgh without a loss and Colorado, Army and Navy without a win. Then again, it's a little early to judge which way these teams will go.

The Pac-10, meanwhile, is 16-4 in non-conference games, with UCLA, Washington and USC all undefeated and owners of a bunch of big-time victories. In addition to their win over Michigan, the Bruins (3-0) beat a then-No. 3 Alabama on Sept. 2; the Huskies won at Colorado 17-14 a week after beating a then-No. 5 Miami 34-29; and the Trojans, idle on Saturday, have wins over Penn State and Colorado.

A year ago, the Pac-10 was a non-conference flop. A highly-ranked Arizona loss to Penn State, Stanford lost to San Jose State and Arizona State to New Mexico State, to name a few eye-openers.

What's up at 'Bama? Just when the Crimson Tide thought they were set for a run at the national title, a quarterback controversy and plain old uninspired play saw Alabama (1-2) tumble from preseason No. 3 all the way out of the poll.

At Birmingham, Ala., Raymond Wall returned an interception 54 yards, and Joe Henley returned a fumble 18 yards for TDs for the Golden Eagles (1-1), who lost 19-16 at Tennessee two weeks ago. The loss left Alabama, which managed just 217 yards, with its worst start since 1990.

Iowa runners get confidence boost

The Iowa cross country team placed third at the Iowa State Invitational last weekend.

By Julie Matolo
 The Daily Iowan

The confidence of the Iowa women's cross-country team has just been boosted. After finishing third behind two top cross-country teams at the Iowa State Invitational this weekend, the Hawkeyes have no complaints.

"We are really happy with the results this weekend," said head coach Sara Swails. "Colorado State and Arkansas went to Nationals last year, so we are now knocking on the door. We are really ecstatic."

The Hawks can add beating both other Iowa schools to their check list of goals accomplished this weekend. Out of the nine teams that competed, Iowa finished third, leaving Iowa State in fourth and UNI in sixth.

This is the second third-place finish for the Hawkeyes this season. They opened the 2000 season a week ago at the Purdue Invitational with a third-place finish.

"We are very happy with the big improvements from last week," Swails said. "Iowa State has a much tougher course, but we had many improvements in just a week. The team's confidence is growing, and we know we can run with anyone now."

Sophomore Sarah Arens was the top finisher for the Hawkeyes, taking fifth place with a time of 22:14. Michelle Lahann, also a sophomore, placed 23rd with a time of 23:27, and freshman Georgia Millward placed 27th with a time of 23:37.

"We ran excellently," Swails said. "Sarah has established herself as a top runner. We are now running more as a pack. The freshmen are really stepping up and helping us out."

The Hawkeyes will rest next weekend. The next competition for the women's cross-country team is the UNI Invitational, which will be held in Cedar Falls on Sept. 29.

Flag football season getting underway

Sexual Chocolate looks to keep up its dominance.

By Roseanna Smith
 The Daily Iowan

It will take more than last Monday night's thunderstorm to knock three-year men's independent flag football league champion Sexual Chocolate from the top.

Because of inclement weather, the 2000 season did not officially kick off, but schedules were followed through this week.

After an undefeated record in last year's regular season (10-0), Sexual Chocolate swept through the playoffs to an All-University Championship. In the final rounds, it outscored its six opponents, 178-70.

Despite pressure from challengers Sigma Phi Epsilon — which won last year's the men's social division — Sexual Chocolate team members aren't suffering anxiety attacks.

"We really do not worry too much about the team we are playing," wide receiver Nick Cockrum said. "We concentrate on how we can score, and usually, that's enough. We also don't bring a large following, as do some other teams."

Cockrum and the team know what it takes to win in the competitive league — namely, being on time.

"Our team captain is helping with this because he scheduled us to play Sundays at 5 p.m.," he said. "This gives all of us ample time to get out of bed and get to the game."

Around the fraternity division, Nathan Davis, captain of the No. 2-ranked Sigma Phi Epsilon team, is excited about the coming match-up with the No. 3-ranked Kappa Sigma team — also past championship winners.

"Both teams were in the same league last year as well," he said. "Playing in the same division against one of the other top fraternity teams helps us improve and prepare for the playoffs."

Jets beat Bills to remain undefeated

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — When the New York Jets traded Keyshawn Johnson, they figured they'd need several receivers to fill the void. Little did anyone know that a defensive back would be in the mix.

Cornerback Marcus Coleman caught a 45-yard scoring pass from Vinny Testaverde on the final play of the first half Sunday, breaking a tie and lifting the Jets to a 27-14 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

"We work on that play every Friday, so I knew there was a possibility we would run it," Coleman said of his spot on the Jets' alley-oop pass unit. "I was surprised that no one was on me as I ran down the middle. Once the ball was in the air, I don't care who was around me, I think the ball is mine."

The Jets, 3-0 for the first time since 1966, relied on Testaverde's fourth-quarter heroics to win their first two games. This time, along with Kevin Williams' 97-yard kickoff return in the first quarter, the big plays came in the first half.

Testaverde said he asked the coaches to include the 6-foot-2 Coleman in the alley-oop pass unit when the play wasn't working with 5-10 Wayne Chrebet and 5-9 Dedric Ward in training camp.

"He would make a great receiver if the coaches allowed him to play both ways," Testaverde said of Coleman. "He was the guy I was looking for."

Browns 23, Steelers 20

CLEVELAND — Once the final agonizing second ticked off, Tim Couch hugged Chris Palmer, Al Lerner inhaled, the Dawg Pound barked like it was the old days, and Cleveland rocked.

After nearly five years, several heart-stopping seconds and a chaotic finish, the Browns had finally won a home game.

"Oh, my goodness," linebacker Wali Rainer said. "We did it."

Phil Dawson kicked a 19-yard field goal with 2:45 left, and Pittsburgh couldn't get off a last-second attempt, giving the Browns their first home win since 1995, 23-20 over the arch-rival Steelers.

"When it was over I started breathing again," said owner Lerner, who bought the Browns for $530 million but had never experienced driving home after a win. "Before that I couldn't."

Rams 41, 49ers 24

ST. LOUIS — Kurt Warner's high interception total hasn't cost the St. Louis Rams — yet.

Warner threw two touchdown passes and two more interceptions in a 41-24 victory over the San Francisco 49ers on Sunday, giving him six in each category. Last year he had 41 touchdown passes and 13 interceptions. "I hate to seem them, but we're 3-0, and that's all that matters, and I've got to put them behind me," Warner said. "Those are things I go back and study."

Because of his inaccuracy, the Rams (3-0) had to do it the hard way, just like their 37-34 victory over Seattle last week and a 41-36 decision over Denver in the opener. They won a franchise-record 13th straight at home, exceeded 30 points for an NFL-record ninth straight game, and beat the 49ers (0-3) for the third straight time after losing 17 previous times in the series.

Falcons 15, Panthers 10

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Atlanta's latest victory is more likely to end up in the football follies than a highlight reel.

The Falcons, who had just one takeaway in their first two games, had two interceptions, two fumble recoveries and an unusual safety in a 15-10 victory over Carolina on Sunday.

The Falcons (2-1) weren't perfect either, losing two of three fumbles and missing two field goals while failing to capitalize on most of Carolina's miscues.

"Do you think this will be on the bloopers reel?" asked Atlanta running back Jamal Anderson, who was part of one of the strangest blunders in the game.

Packers 6, Eagles 3

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Andy Reid's much-anticipated return to Lambeau Field ended with Ryan Longwell's long-awaited redemption.

Longwell hit a 38-yard field goal with three seconds left as the Green Bay Packers eked out an ugly 6-3 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday.

It was Longwell's first game-winning field goal in the NFL, college or high school, and it gave Mike Sherman his first victory as an NFL head coach.

Longwell missed one against Chicago last season and at Philadelphia on Sept. 7, 1997 — the last time the Packers (1-2) failed to score a touchdown.

Jaguars 13, Bengals 0

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Embarrassed by four second-half touchdowns in a bitter loss last week, the Jacksonville Jaguars were determined to prove their defense is good enough to carry the load.

They stated their case Sunday with the first shutout in franchise history — even if it came at the expense of the lowly Cincinnati Bengals.

Mark Brunell celebrated his 30th birthday with a 21-yard touchdown pass that initially was ruled out of bounds, and Gary Walker and the rest of the defense took over from there in a 13-0 victory over Cincinnati.

"I made everyone aware before

Morry Gash/Associated Press

the game that this team had never had a shutout," said Walker, who disrupted the middle of the line with five tackles and two sacks. "I said that today would be a good time to get one."

Buccaneers 31, Lions 10

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers beat up an NFC Central rival for the second straight week.

The Buccaneers did exactly what they wanted to do in their 31-10 victory over the Detroit Lions on Sunday. Just as they did in their 41-0 win over Chicago at home last week.

Tampa Bay, undefeated after three games for just the second time since 1979, rushed for 121 yards and limited the Lions (2-1) to 17 yards on the ground.

Tampa Bay wants to run the ball right at teams while mixing in a pass here or there. On defense, it wants to shut down the run so that teams are forced into obvious passing situations.

Vikings 21, Patriots 13

FOXBORO, Mass. — Daunte Culpepper left New England defensive mastermind Bill Belichick scratching his head in the first half.

And Drew Bledsoe couldn't lead another second-half comeback against Minnesota as the Vikings beat the Patriots 21-13 on Sunday.

Culpepper threw for 177 yards and two touchdowns and ran 12 times for 59 yards as Minnesota improved to 3-0 for the third time in five years, its first with Culpepper at quarterback. New England (0-3) suffered its third straight close loss.

The Vikings scored on their first three possessions, two of them lasting more than eight minutes, as Culpepper threw touchdown passes of 1 yard to Johnny McWilliams and 39 yards to Matthew Hatchette. Robert Smith ran 4 yards for the first touchdown, and Kevin Faulk's 2-yard run tied the game for the Patriots with 4:15 left in the first quarter.

Broncos 33, Raiders 24

OAKLAND, Calif. — As Sebastian Janikowski stood alone on the sideline kicking imaginary field goals, Joe Nedney was making real ones on the field.

Nedney, cut by Oakland late in the preseason when Janikowski won the kicking job, scored all of Denver's second-half points Sunday as the Broncos beat the Raiders 33-24.

Signed by the Broncos just last week to cover for an injured Jason Elam, Nedney kicked field goals of 24, 32, 22 and 21 yards. He was responsible for all nine second-half points, after the two teams emerged from halftime tied at 24.

Janikowski kicked a 19-yard field goal, but missed a 49-yard attempt wide left midway through the fourth quarter that would have brought the Raiders within three points.

The Broncos (2-1) have a five-game winning streak over the Raiders (2-1), dating back to the 1997 season.

Giants 14, Bears 7

CHICAGO — Kerry Collins mixed his passes to eight receivers, Ron Dayne softened up the middle with his bruising runs, and Tiki Barber used his shifty moves to get open on the flanks.

With such offensive variety and a strong defensive effort, as well, the New York Giants won again Sunday, beating the Chicago Bears, 14-7, to go 3-0 for the first time since 1994.

Barber's 3-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter was the go-ahead score, and then the Giants kept Chicago's anemic offense — shut out last week — out of the end zone, while keeping the Bears winless at 0-3.

Chicago scored on a 2-yard pass from Cade McNown to Eddie Kennison with 14 seconds left in the first half for a 7-7 tie. But that was it.

What kind of day was it? With the Bears down just 14-7, McNown ran for a fourth-quarter first down near midfield, but Kennison was called for headbutting Dave Thomas after the play was over, a costly 15-yard penalty in a game of few infractions.

Seahawks 20, Saints 10

SEATTLE — Ricky Waters has a lot of life left in those legs.

Waters had the 31st 100-yard rushing game of his career to lead the Seattle Seahawks to a 20-10 victory over the New Orleans Saints on Sunday.

Matched against second-year running back Ricky Williams, the 31-year-old Waters ran 22 times for 105 yards and a touchdown.

With the score tied at 10, Jon Kitna hit tight end Tula Mili with a 1-yard touchdown with about nine minutes left in the game. Kris Heppner added his second field goal of the day, a 45-yarder, about five minutes later for the final margin.

Williams, the 1998 Heisman Trophy winner from Texas who came to the Saints at the heavy price of eight draft choices, had 107 yards on 23 carries. It was his third career 100-yard rushing game.

Chiefs 42, Chargers 10

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The fans who booed Elvis Grbac in the first quarter never dreamed they were about to see the best game by a Kansas City quarterback in 33 years.

After having a first-quarter interception returned for a touchdown, Grbac settled down to throw five touchdown passes, including three to rookie Sylvester Morris, and the Chiefs swamped winless San Diego 42-10 on Sunday.

No Kansas City quarterback had thrown five TD passes since Hall of Famer Len Dawson did it against Miami in 1967.

The Chiefs (1-2) had six sacks, five on starter Moses Moreno and one on Ryan Leaf, who replaced the shaken-up Moreno late in the third period and had the same kind of luck he experienced on his last visit to Arrowhead Stadium.

Cardinals' magic number reaches two

ST. LOUIS — Sammy Sosa has won plenty of games with a home run. On Sunday, he lost one after a long run.

Sosa's three-base error in right field allowed three runs to score in the eighth inning and the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs, 4-2.

Sosa dropped Edgar Renteria's fly ball with the bases loaded and two outs, giving St. Louis its seventh win in a row.

The Cardinals completed a four-game sweep of the Cubs for the first time since 1963. St. Louis cut its magic number for clinching the NL Central to two over Cincinnati.

"I ran like half a mile, and when I got to the shadows, I knew I was in trouble," Sosa said. "There's no excuse I take the blame."

Chicago has lost five straight and 15 of 17.

Darryl Kile (19-9) won his fifth straight decision, allowing two runs and six hits in eight innings. Matt Morris struck out three for his third save.

Blue Jays 14, White Sox 1

CHICAGO — If Carlos Delgado has his way, he's got a few more home runs to hit.

Delgado hit a grand slam to end a 17-game homerless streak, reaching 40 homers for the second straight season as the Toronto Blue Jays routed the Chicago White Sox, 14-1, Sunday.

"I hit 44 last year and I always try to top the previous year," said Delgado, the first player in Blue Jays history to post two 40-homer seasons. "It seems like the last couple of weeks, I haven't felt great at the plate. It's nice to get to that round number. Hopefully, I can finish up strong."

Mariners 3, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — The Seattle Mariners could hardly have expected to win three straight in Baltimore, a city where they have long endured failure and disappointment.

So, when the Mariners capped a three-game sweep of the Orioles with a 3-2 victory Sunday, their elation extended beyond the fact that they strengthened their hold on first place in the AL West.

"From now on, every game is paramount, every series is huge for us," said Alex Rodriguez, whose eighth-inning homer broke a 1-1 tie. "For us to come in here, a place where we've been embarrassed many times and not played well, it's great to get three."

Indians 15, Yankees 4

NEW YORK — With Manny Ramirez healthy and Yankee-killer Chuck Finley on their side, the Cleveland Indians could be a difficult October opponent for New York.

Cleveland handed New York its second lopsided loss in three days, as Finley allowed one hit in six scoreless innings and Ramirez homered and drove in three runs in a 15-4 rout Sunday.

The Indians have taken two of the first three games in the four-game series — outscoring their potential playoff foe 29-11 — and hold a half-game lead over idle Oakland in the AL wild card race.

Tigers 5, Red Sox 4

DETROIT — Unhappy about leaving Comerica Park with a four-game split, the Boston Red Sox headed home for their most important series of the season: five games against Cleveland, the AL wild card leader.

"We have to find a way to win four out of five against Cleveland," closer Derek Lowe said Sunday after Boston's comeback fell short in a 5-4, loss to the Detroit Tigers.

Dave Mlicki pitched four-hit ball for seven innings, and Dean Palmer hit a two-run homer for Detroit.

Giants 5, Padres 1

SAN DIEGO — Jeff Kent went 2-for-4 with a home run and a triple as the San Francisco Giants, despite resting four regular starters, beat the San Diego Padres 5-1 Sunday.

Mark Gardner (11-6) allowed one run and four hits in seven innings to win his fourth straight decision, helping the Giants win for the 15th time in 18 games. He had missed his previous scheduled start because of fatigue.

San Francisco, which began the day 8½ games ahead of second-place Arizona in the NL West, lowered its magic number for clinching the division to seven. At 89-59, the Giants have the best record in the major leagues, just ahead of the Chicago White Sox (88-59).

Expos 5, Mets 0

MONTREAL — The New York Mets didn't get away with any mistakes.

Vladimir Guerrero homered twice and doubled, leading Tony Armas Jr. and the Montreal Expos over New York, 5-0, Sunday.

Guerrero hit both homers off Bobby J. Jones (9-6), who put the blame for the loss squarely on his own shoulders.

"Those were two bad pitches," Jones said. "A hanging curveball, and the other pitch I tried to bounce. ... You look at his numbers, he's hitting .350-something. He's just a guy you can't make mistakes on."

Reds 8, Brewers 4

CINCINNATI — Pete Harnisch knew he was struggling, but Cincinnati made up for his problems with its bats, including his.

"I couldn't stop giving up home runs, but every time I gave up one, we scored two," Harnisch said Sunday after the Reds beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-4.

Harnisch allowed three solo homers but drove in two runs with a single and a groundout.

U.S. men's swimming team breaks records

■ U.S. swimmer Tom Malchow set an Olympic record in the 200-meter butterfly with a time of 56.25.

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — Another record fell at the Olympic pool when American Tom Malchow led preliminaries of the 200-meter butterfly at 1 minute, 56.25 seconds.

Malchow on Monday (Sunday night EDT) clipped the Olympic mark of 1:56.26, set by American Marvin Stewart in winning gold at the 1992 Barcelona Games.

Malchow, a 24-year-old native of St. Paul, Minn., already holds the world record. One of the most fervent supporters of the new high-tech bodysuit, he swam 1:55.18 at a June meet in Charlotte, N.C.

Fifteen-year-old Michael Phelps of Baltimore, youngest member of the men's Olympic team since 1932, showed himself to be a medal contender. He used a strong kick to win his heat and post the third-fastest time in the morning, 1:57.30.

Malchow was the youngest man on the Olympic team four years ago, when he won a silver medal at Atlanta. Defending Olympic champion Denis Pankratov of Russia, swimming in Phelps' heat, faded badly in the final 50 meters and was ninth-fastest overall, 1:58.01.

Still, he advanced to the 16-man evening semifinals. The final is Tuesday night.

Denys Sylant'yev of Ukraine was sandwiched between the Americans at 1:56.42.

In the women's 200 freestyle, U.S. swimmers Lindsay Benko and Rada Owen moved on to the semifinals. Australian star Susie O'Neill, cheered by the home crowd at the Sydney International Aquatic Center, was top qualifier at 1:59.14.

Helene Muller of South Africa was the only other swimmer to break two minutes, touching the wall at 1:59.89. She was followed by Claudia Poll of Costa Rica (2:00.11), bronze medalist the previous night in the 400 freestyle, and Benko, who was fourth at 2:00.13.

"I'm really excited to be fourth," said Benko, 23, of Elkhart, Ind. "I was nervous. But I love swimming here in Australia."

Benko won five medals — including silver in the 200 free — at the Pan Pacific championships, held last year at the same pool.

Owen, 21, of Chesterfield, Va., barely qualified for the 16-women evening semifinals, placing 15th at 2:01.10. The final is Tuesday.

Tom Dolan, of USA, celebrates breaking the men's 400-meter individual medley world record at the Olympic Games, Sunday.

O'Neill was serenaded with songs and chants of "Susie! Susie!" by another big crowd at the aquatic center.

"I just wanted to get into the semis," she said.

While eight world records fell on the first two days of the eight-day competition, no one came close to Franziska van Almsick's world record in the 200 free. The mark of 1:56.78 has stood since 1994.

The German qualified seventh for the semis, well off her record pace at 2:00.37.

The evening finals were highlighted by a showdown in the men's 200 freestyle between Australia's Ian Thorpe, going for his third gold medal of the Games, and Pieter van den Hoogenband of the Netherlands, who broke the "Thorpedo's" world record in the semifinals Sunday.

American Lenny Krayzelburg was a heavy favorite in the 100 backstroke, and gold medals also will be handed out in the women's 100 backstroke and 100 breaststroke.

Why does the rest of the world show up?

■ The U.S. basketball team beat China, 119-72, in Olympic competition.

By Jim Litke
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — The question is why the rest of the world still bothers to show up. "It is," Yao Ming said, smiling broadly, "a learning experience."

This was five minutes after the Dream Team beat China 119-72, so it must have been some learning experience.

Yao is 7-foot-5 and only 20, but he already knows all he needs to about the Olympics. The only chance his country has to beat the United States in basketball during his lifetime is if they're playing Nintendo.

China coach Jiang Xingquan could have shown his squad Hoosiers 100 times before tip-off and all he would have had for his trouble was a burned-out projector.

"We started off well," Jiang said. "And then the gap widened."

For four minutes Sunday night, his team actually had the lead. Yao blocked a shot by Vince Carter at 18:12, and Wang Zhizhi made a layup at the other end for a 7-5 lead. It swelled to six before Ray Allen drained a 3-pointer at 14:14 for a 17-16 lead. Soon after, the exhibition began.

"The way I learned the game, everybody is allowed to score points," Carter said. "The only thing that matters is what's the score at the end of the game."

The United States now meets Italy, New Zealand and France during the next week, and none of them will have a chance, either. That's pretty much been true since basketball became part of the Olympic program in 1936, but never more so than after an NBA-assembled Dream Team made its debut at Barcelona in 1992.

There were those two infamous hiccups, of course: First, in 1972, when the officials helped the Soviet Union pick America's pocket, and again in 1988, when then-Georgetown coach John Thompson brought a U.S. squad to Seoul with exactly one guy, Mitch Richmond, who could score. Otherwise, the history of the tournament has been there, done that.

People like to argue that for years the Russians sent unbeatable hockey teams to the games. The Kenyans still send unbeatable marathoners. But the parallels are hardly exact.

The 1992 Dream Team led by Michael Jordan might have the only mortal lock ever in sports. But the sequels have been close enough so that the only way the United States gets beat is if the bus makes a wrong turn and winds up in Melbourne.

Recognizing as much, defenders of the Dream Team concept have conceded the point is no longer just winning gold, but spreading the gospel of hoops. If so, the exercise might be even more futile. And China is as good an example as any of why the rest of the world has fallen even further behind.

Former LSU coach Dale Brown, who travels frequently to Asia for basketball clinics, says the game is more popular than ever and estimates there are at least a hundred 7-footers playing in China alone. Both Yao and Wang, two of the three 7-footers who make up the "Great Wall" on the current Chinese team, are legitimate NBA prospects. Still, the nation of 1.25 billion people has yet to turn out a few decent guards and even one passable defender.

"That's what separates us from the rest of the world — defense," said U.S. assistant coach Larry Brown.

"We're more physical," Gary Payton chimed in, "and worlds more experienced."

"We play against guys like Kevin (Garnett) and Alonzo (Mourning) night in and night out. Those guys," he said, nodding in the direction of China's locker room, "do it one night every four years — if they're lucky."

Brown, whose regular job is coaching the 76ers, was quick to point out that if Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union had remained unified, the Dream Team might have had some competition. He said that would be true if Arvidas Sabonis and Zydrunas Ilgauskas, middle-level NBA talents, had shown up to play for Lithuania this time around.

Gymnastics team advances to finals

■ Blaine Wilson was not happy with the fourth place finish.

By Nancy Armour
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — It's not often that Blaine Wilson leaves the floor a happy guy. There's always some flip, some hold, some swing he could have done better.

This, though, was unparalleled grumpiness. He threw tape. He spit his gum at a wall. Asked to describe his day, the best he could come up with was an expletive.

"It was just a (bad) meet for me. (Bad)," he said. "Nothing more needs to be said."

In a rare lapse, the five-time national champion blew two of his routines and was only fair in a third during the men's team preliminaries.

But here's the kicker: It didn't matter. The Americans still finished fourth and advanced to today's finals. Russia, the defending gold medalist, was first, China was second and Ukraine was third.

If Wilson gets back on track, the Americans could have the Olympic medal they crave hanging around their necks before the night is over.

"I'll come back out here and make sure I don't make the same dumb mistakes," Wilson promised.

Scores from the preliminaries are thrown out for the finals, with the six teams starting from scratch. That means it's like the movie Groundhog Day for Wilson — but unlike Bill Murray, Wilson isn't going to need a bunch of chances to get things right.

"I have faith that he's going to perform better," said Paul Hamm, who helped pick up the slack for Wilson. "I know Blaine, and I know he gets (mad) when he does bad. I'm not worried about him."

The United States hasn't won a team medal since 1984, when most of the Eastern bloc boycotted the Olympics. It hasn't won a team medal at a non-boycotted games since 1932, when gymnastics was held outside and resembled a track and field event.

But the Americans are close now, finishing only 0.448 points behind Ukraine in the prelims.

Throw out the 9.025 Wilson took on the floor and the 9.312 he got on the parallel bars and replace them with something in his normal 9.6 to 9.95 range, and the Americans are golden.

Well, probably more like bronze, but a medal is a medal at this point.

"That's the beauty of it," team captain John Roethlisberger said. "We've got a lot of improvements we can make."

With Wilson faltering, the United States got clutch performances from Roethlisberger and the 17-year-old twins, Paul and Morgan Hamm.

Australia enjoys good first weekend for Games

■ Australian Ian Thorpe wins a gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle.

By Mort Rosenblum
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Driven to frenzied screaming by their local hero, the kid with the small ego and the big feet, Aussies who dwell Down Under spent a golden weekend on top of the world.

"If we could have made him swim any faster with mental telepathy, he'd have shot right out of the water," Katrin Burmeister said Sunday, exhausted from cheering for Ian Thorpe, the "Thorpedo."

Thorpe, 17 years old with size 18 shoes, won a gold medal in the 400-meter freestyle, breaking his own world record. Less than two hours later, he anchored Australia's 400-meter relay team to beat the Americans.

Not to put too fine a point on it, Sydney went bazooley. At the end of the first weekend of their 2000 Summer Olympics, Australia was high atop the medals chart. Sun blazed in a blue sky. People smiled. This was as good as it gets.

The swimming gold came Saturday, along with a silver in women's triathlon and a silver and bronze in cycling. There was new gold in shooting Sunday. Though only the start, it was close enough for delirium.

Any Australian could do the math. They were just behind the United States, a country with 15 times the population, in the medals. And leading China, which is a whole lot bigger. Not to mention everyone else.

Even Sydney has never seen a party like this.

At a giant screen on Martin Place, a normally mild-mannered accountant named Andrew Macias watched the games wearing a wild green and yellow fright wig. He was jammed in on all sides by cheering countrymen.

"I'm just glad to be alive," he said.

As if stung by a bee, he leaped to his feet and bellowed: "Aussie!" "Aussie!" "Aussie!" The crowd thundered back: "Oy" "Oy!" "Oy!" That cheer, heard often and easy enough to remember, has seldom conveyed as much.

That was after Thorpe won his first race. After the relay, in which the young Australian outclassed American Gary Hall Jr., Martin Place — and the city around — exploded with jubilation.

Flags whipped the air. A teenage girl near Macias sobbed with joy. People flung their arms into the air and whooped at the top of their lungs.

As the four Aussies thumped each other on the back, several mimed a guitar strum, turning the cheers into laughter. Hall had boasted sometime back the Americans would crush the Australians like guitars.

After three days in front the huge "live screens" dotted around town, Sydneysiders still had plenty of beer.

Hawkeyes open Big Ten play with split

■ The Iowa soccer team lost, 5-1, to Minnesota before winning at Wisconsin.

By Laura Podolak
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's soccer team came off the weekend 1-1 after starting its Big Ten season on the road against Minnesota and Wisconsin.

On Sept. 15, the Hawkeyes suffered a disappointing 5-1 loss to Minnesota, but Iowa coach Wendy Logan said that the score and the stats from the game did not tell the whole tale.

Minnesota took 22 shots on goal and finished five, which, Logan said, is "incredible."

Though the Hawkeyes did not get as many shots on goal (16) as the Gophers, Logan said, Iowa did generate some offense of its own. The Hawkeyes managed to put up a goal early in the second half, but just couldn't chip any more away from Minnesota's commanding lead.

"I think that we played a very good game in Minnesota, even though we lost," Logan said. "The first 20 minutes really hurt us."

Minnesota pounded home a penalty kick only four minutes into the first half, and then soared two 35-foot blasts into the goal before the Hawks knew what hit them.

"By the time we recovered, we were down 3-0, and it was just too late to come back," Logan said.

Kate Walse was the lone Hawkeye to score.

After the disappointing loss, the Hawkeyes balanced their Big Ten record Sunday with a 2-1 victory over the Wisconsin Badgers.

Wisconsin was a big, big win for us on the road.

— Wendy Logan
Iowa soccer coach

Iowa wanted to come out and make a statement against Wisconsin after the loss to Minnesota, Logan said.

"In Wisconsin, we wanted to set the tone from the kick-off. Our players came out and played with emotion and rhythm," she said.

Linzy Wolman, who found herself back to her original scoring position after spending some time on the defensive end of the field, also found the back of the net 19 minutes into the first half. The goal was Wolman's fourth goal of the season.

Wisconsin was the next to score when Allison Wagner pounded home a shot in the middle of the second half.

Less than five minutes later, Sarah Lynch clinched the game over the Badgers when she scored her fourth goal of the season from 10 yards out.

Iowa only recorded nine shots on goal, while Wisconsin drilled 22 at Hawkeye goal keeper Liz Hendel. Hendel handled the pressure, notching 10 saves in the game.

"We wanted to come out of the weekend 1-1, not 0-2," Logan said. "Wisconsin was a big, big win for us on the road."

The Hawkeyes, who are now 6-2-0 on the year, will face Michigan State Friday at home at 4 p.m. They then travel to Winston-Salem, N.C., to face No. 14 Wake Forest on Sept. 24.

Cardinal rule: Stanford rallies to beat Texas

■ Only a week after losing to San Jose State, Stanford stuns the No. 5 Longhorns.

By Greg Beacham
Associated Press

STANFORD, Calif. — The Trench Dogs finally bit somebody, a freshman backup quarterback stole the spotlight, and Tiger Woods led the cheers on the sideline.

It added up to an unforgettable victory for Stanford.

While much of the college football world was sleeping, Stanford avenged a 52-point pounding in Austin last season by beating Texas 27-24 Saturday night.

The loss, just Texas' third to an unranked team under coach Mack Brown, sent the Longhorns (1-1) tumbling 10 spots to No. 15 in the latest AP poll.

But the pollsters who went to bed well before the West Coast's final game was complete couldn't appreciate the surreal atmosphere and unlikely events leading to Stanford's victory.

"The game definitely had a sense of the bizarre. We didn't play well until the fourth quarter. ... The game was going in so many different ways, up and down. I'm sick to my stomach thinking about it," said Texas quarterback Major Applewhite, who shook off a bad night to lead two scoring drives in the final 10 minutes and give the Longhorns a brief lead.

"I don't know how it happened," said Stanford quarterback Chris Lewis, who had thrown three collegiate passes before starter Randy Fasani was injured in the first quarter. "I just went out there and tried to complete one pass, then one more. I really have no idea how we won."

However it happened, coach Tyrone Willingham called it the biggest victory in his six years at Stanford (2-1).

the Cyclones offense picked apart Iowa's defense and piled up 485 yards rushing.

But, despite all the lopsided statistics, Iowa somehow managed to stay in this one.

After a Hill touchdown reception in the fourth quarter, Iowa found itself down by only three, 17-14. For a short time, it looked as though Iowa could still come back.

That was before Rosenfels and ISU's offense took the field again.

As they had been doing all afternoon, the Cyclones put together another masterful drive.

They pieced their way 79 yards downfield, and Rosenfels ran a naked bootleg into the endzone from five yards out, putting the game out of reach with just over five minutes left to go in the game.

That finalized it Cyclones 24, Hawkeyes 14. Iowa is now

0-2 against Iowa State in the Kirk Ferentz era the Cyclones have won three straight against the Hawkeyes for the first time since 1982.

In each of Cyclones' two previous wins against Iowa, there had been some question of whether they were for real. When ISU beat Iowa, 27-9, in Kinnick in 1998, people thought it was fluke. Last year's 17-10 Cyclone win at home didn't make many people believers in Iowa State. But, Iowa State made one thing clear Saturday — this game was no fluke. It was definitely the better team.

Speaking of better teams, the Hawkeyes travel down to Lincoln next Saturday to face the No. 1-ranked Cornhuskers.

If the Hawkeyes couldn't stop Iowa State's running game, it's doubtful whether they will be able to stop the Big Red Machine.

FOOTBALL

Rosenfels found Craig Campbell on the sideline for a 12-yard gain and a first-down. Once again, Iowa had a chance to stop Iowa State, but Rosenfels came up with another big play to sustain the drive, which eventually ended with a Rosenfels five-yard touchdown run.

"Before that drive started, the whole offense out there dedicated that drive to Matt McGettigan, our strength coach," Rosenfels said. "We said we were going to control the line of scrimmage, we were going to be in better shape than them, and we were going to make plays when we had to — and we did."

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz congratulated the Cyclones on the win, saying they deserved the victory by the way they responded following Iowa's scoring drive.

"Iowa State is a veteran football team," Ferentz said. "They have learned to win. That shows in their last scoring drive. That's what winning teams do."

Iowa is still searching for that first win of the season and the second under Ferentz. The Hawkeyes will come back Tuesday and have four days to prepare for Nebraska, the No. 1 team in the country — but frustration is growing, and the players are sick of hearing the same "regroup spiel."

"Speeches get old, that get back on the horse thing, but that's the only thing we really can do," Hill said. "We have a big game next week against a great opponent."

than how the athletes fare. "The Olympics are made up of sports that do not have a substantial following in the United States," Ebersol said. "If you put gymnastics, swimming and diving, or track and field at any time on American network television outside the two weeks of the Olympics, it would be beyond a miracle to do a 3 or 4 rating. Suddenly you put it on in the Olympics and it's a 20 rating."

"The results of the Olympics are not what truly matter to the vast majority of the audience. They're interested in the story."

That may be. Perhaps, though, the network's announcers should stop their ad nauseam use of the phrases "carpe diem" and "seize the day."

the game with four minutes remaining.

Griesbaum was happy with both Fodera's offensive and defensive performance.

"She has this sense of poise. She is totally athletic and has strength, speed, and she's experienced," she said. "As a junior, she's someone we have to turn to as a senior leader. For her to step up this weekend was huge."

Fodera said she was focusing on the fundamentals, especially while recovering from an ankle sprain early in the season.

In the game versus Syracuse, there weren't many smiles as Iowa dominated in shots, corners and circle entries but couldn't put the winning goal in.

"It was the first game where I felt really sorry for them," Griesbaum said. "I think that they deserved (to win) because they did everything they could. It's just hard when you don't reap the benefits."

Despite having a strong offensive game, Iowa came up against a tough challenge in Orangewoman goalie Audrey Latsko, a former under-21 national team player.

Griesbaum once coached her and said it was hard to face her in a game situation.

Syracuse led off with a goal in the first half from Becky Kohler on a breakaway shot. Iowa tied the score in four minutes with a shot through the crowd from Natalie Dawson.

The score remained tied through the second half, despite multiple Iowa shots on goal led in part by Fodera and Dawson.

At the end of regulation, with the score still tied, the game went to a 15-minute 6-on-6 overtime. Fodera had a penalty stroke at 8:55 that was blocked by Latsko.

Syracuse coach Kathleen Parker was impressed with Latsko's consistency and defense.

"In the overtime, Audrey made a great save on the penalty stroke. It looked like a pinball machine. She kept us in a couple games last year as a freshman and kept us in a few already this year."

Orangewoman Michele Marks made the winning goal with three minutes remaining. The Hawks will travel to Penn State Saturday.

she said. "It's good to have plenty of others who can step in."

Though Pike returns this evening, Crockett said De Abreu will continue to handle most of the setting chores. Pike and Larissa Lopes will help to take the load off De Abreu and allow her to be utilized as a hitter, her natural position.

Last season, Iowa defeated the Bulldogs in four games, dropping the first set before winning the final three. Crockett said that although Drake is an intrastate rival, playing the Bulldogs does not have the flair of a true rivalry because most players are from out of state.

"It's just a competition," she said.

The Hawkeyes had all last week off, but, Crockett said, the team continued to work hard and used its regular practice schedule. The time off has given her a chance to work closely on making minor adjustments with the team, she said.

"We're working on the things we need to work on," Crockett said. "We're polishing the things we do well."

Following tonight's match, Iowa will return home Friday and Saturday to open conference play against Illinois and Purdue.

Late TD call for Florida draws ire of Tennessee's Phillip Fulmer

Fulmer said he plans to speak to SEC officials but would not say if he plans to file a protest about a controversial Florida touchdown reception.

By Elizabeth Davis
Associated Press

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Florida coach Steve Spurrier thinks the play could have been ruled either way. Tennessee is certain there was only one correct way to make the call: incomplete.

Not that the Volunteers can do much about it. Coach Phillip Fulmer said he will speak Monday with Bobby Gaston, the head of officiating for the Southeastern Conference, as he does every week after a game. He would not say Sunday whether he intends to file a protest.

The play in question was a 3-yard touchdown pass by Florida with 14 seconds left. The score gave the Gators a 27-23 victory Saturday in a game that could well have a bearing on the national championship.

"Whether or not he had it, I don't know," Spurrier said Sunday. "Did he have it long enough? I would say if it was in the field of play it would have definitely been incomplete. But in the end zone, you only need a moment."

It was a moment that could define a season.

Before a Neyland Stadium-record crowd of 108,768, Tennessee was ahead 23-20 when Florida got the ball back at its own 9 with 2:14 to go. The Gators drove to the Tennessee 3. On third down, Jesse Palmer threw a quick pass to Jabar Gaffney just over the goal line.

Two Tennessee defenders crashed into Gaffney, jarring the ball loose.

Line judge Al Matthews paused before raising his arms to signal the touchdown. His call stood after a brief conference with referee Al Ford. Matthews played on the last Vanderbilt team that beat Tennessee, in 1982.

"I had it long enough for it to be a touchdown," said Gaffney, who finished with six catches for 91 yards.

Tennessee cornerback Willie Miles hit Gaffney on the play.

"I saw the ball fall," he said. "I'm not a ref. What I think doesn't matter. The Gators won but the world knows about the last play. I thought they were going to overrule. I don't think they were sure."

Tennessee left tackle John Henderson, who sacked Palmer twice, agreed.

"What I saw was him not having control of the ball," he said.

Fulmer was clearly upset after the game. He interrupted one question to wide receiver Cedrick Wilson about Gaffney's touchdown.

"You're asking about the last touchdown? To me that's irrelevant," Fulmer said. "The guy called it a touchdown. It must be a touchdown. We sit here and bounce that pingpong back and forth all day. There were 140 other plays in the ball game that could have made a difference. We're not going to hang the game on one play or one official. It's done."

Fulmer said he did not see the play unfold during the game. After looking at the film, he said he does not think Gaffney caught the ball.

The officials were not available after the game.

If Tennessee does protest, it would be the second straight appeal involving the officiating crew. Vanderbilt protested the Sept. 9 game with Alabama.

I saw the ball fall. I'm not a ref. What I think doesn't matter. The Gators won but the world knows about the last play. I thought they were going to overrule. I don't think they were sure.

— Willie Miles,
Tennessee defensive back

What is not in dispute is this: Florida is now the team to chase in the East in the Southeastern Conference.

Florida (2-0, 1-0) moved up three places in the Associated Press poll to No. 3 Sunday, while Tennessee (1-1, 0-1) dropped two spots to No. 13.

Spurrier acknowledged Tennessee had beaten the Gators in nearly every category except the final score. But the Vols had some fatal mistakes.

Florida's Lito Sheppard ran back an interception 19 yards to give the Gators a 17-12 lead. And despite Tennessee's dominance on the ground — Travis Henry had 175 yards on 37 carries — the Vols had to settle for five field goals by Alex Walls. Three came after Tennessee was unable to convert from inside the 6.

The loss puts Tennessee in a familiar spot — playing catch-up in the SEC East. The winner of the Florida-Tennessee matchup has won the division and advanced to the title game six of the last eight times since divisional play began in 1992.

"At some point, one of us will have an awful lot to say about what happens in this conference and what happens in the national rankings," Fulmer said. "We're not done, and they're not, either."

SPORTS BRIEF

Ticket sales set Olympic record

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The successful first weekend of the Olympics and the biggest single day of sales Sunday have helped Sydney set an Olympic ticket sales record.

More than 85 percent of Sydney's tickets have been sold, compared with the previous record of 82.3 percent for the 1992 Barcelona Olympics.

Sydney Games organizing committee ticket manager John O'Neill said ticket-buyers had been swept along by the Olympic spirit.

"There's been an alignment of the stars," he said. "We've been blessed with stunning weather."

People waited in line for up to three hours at box offices Sunday as 65,000 tickets were sold. Tempers flared when many potential purchasers found that tickets to several events were not available.

More than 5.5 million tickets to events in Sydney and nearly 650,000 to soccer matches in Canberra, Melbourne, Adelaide and Brisbane have been sold.

O'Neill would not say whether the late ticket rush would reduce the organizing committee's shortfall of about $65 million to $70 million.

"We are cautiously optimistic given the booming ticket sales, but we won't know exactly what our budget position is until we finish selling tickets at the end of the games," he said.

Monday, September 18, 2000 by Eugenia Last
ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can make a real difference at home if you put some thought into ways you can make it more inviting or comfortable for the whole family. Try to get everyone involved.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Check your personal papers and make sure everything is in order. You may find that you have some luck. Get together with people who mentally stimulate you.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You'll have plenty of opportunities for love. Don't be enticed into a new relationship if you are still attached to someone else. Be honest with yourself as well as with those who love you.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check out any opportunities that arise at work. Advancement could be yours if you use your innovative ideas to impress superiors. These days, you have to go after what you want.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll have a problem with your family if you are extravagant or if you don't spend enough time with them. Do things around the house to increase its value. A change or move is possible.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your forceful action will win points with superiors at work. You can accomplish a lot by using your charm, intellect and extensive knowledge. Partnerships will be favorable.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): If you can't travel, you'll be dreaming about the places you would like to go. Business and emotional partnerships will be in your best interests. Don't be too shy to approach others. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work can be favorable if you stick to your job and don't interfere in other people's affairs. Your energy must be directed wisely if you wish to advance. Go after your goals. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your involvement in sports clubs will help keep you fit. You will meet interesting individuals through work. Be aware that risky financial ventures are not likely to pay off. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get the house ready; it's a good time for you to sell. You may want to move a little farther out of the city. Peace and quiet are greatly needed. The people you've been meeting will help you. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be more emotional than usual. Don't let your lover cause undue upset. You will be able to make major changes regarding your position if you are prepared to pursue new avenues. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel will be most enticing; consider a cruise. Romance may develop. Become involved in social events that involve children.

What guys should never say at restroom urinals

- Well, so far so good.
- This place really is nicer than the womens' restroom!
- Can somebody give me a hand over here?
- Man, I definitely have to get that checked out.
- Any of you guys heard the new Barbra Streisand CD?
- Uh-oh.
- All right. Let's see if it works this time.
- Yes! I win!!
- Hmm — don't remember drinking that.
- Don't worry — my grandpa has the same problem.
- Do you believe in destiny?
- Who's your daddy?
- There's more where this came from.
- Aren't you glad they invented millimeters?
- I hope your shoes are waterproof.
- Damn public lice.
- Hey dude, could you tell me if this is genital herpes?
- I'm thinking of going pro.

— J.A.

The Daily Iowan is looking to expand its online staff. Possible positions include editors, writers, designers and photographers. It's possible the work will be used exclusively by the DI Web site. If interested, stop by Room 201N, Communications Center, for an application.

Editor's Note: The strip "Get Real," by UI freshman Bill Peniston, will now appear on the Viewpoints page on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
