Forum airs Nov. 7 issues

Concerted citizens discuss the new poll, library expansion and First Avenue debates. By Andrew Hudy

The League of Women Voters of Johnson County sponsored a Forum Wednesday night to discuss three controversial issues that will be on Nov. 7.

The roundtable discussion of the Iowa City-Cresco area included an audience discussion and votes on the proposed new poll, the expansion of the Iowa City Library and the extension of First Avenue.

In the last six months, debates in the Johnson County on the new poll and environmental impacts have been carried on, said Forrest Stetter, speaking against the building of the new poll. He said the new poll will only enhance property values and said Forrest Stetter, speaking against the building of the new poll. He said the new poll will only enhance property values and that the museum equivalent is.

The Iowa City Library Expanded pleaded their case to the packed room, citing that there has been a significant increase in the use of the library and that the library expansion, when finished, will help to keep up with the increasing demands.

Blimpie, coffee shop close doors

A Blimpie co-owner says she is too busy to maintain both Iowa City locations.

By Katlie Boyle
The Iowa Times

Blimpie Bites and Balboa Wine & Liquor do not plan to be open, both located on the Pedestrian Mall at 108 S. Dubuque St., said their final customers Wednesday before closing permanently.

Blimpie's co-owner Lauren Tulbien said she is in the process of transferring the business in the downtown Blimpie to a franchisee and will work at Blimpie in St. Charles, Ill.

"I'm kind of disappointed they're closing because it's nice to have another business, but nothing is finalized.

Although the coffee shop business will be dismantled, Blimpie will continue to operate its restaurants in the Iowa City area from a different location, 2221 Rochester Ave., Tulbien said.

"I needed to downsize because I'm just too busy," she said.

With additional co-owners in local plumbing and construction, Tulbien said she found herself operating at both locations.

"This town just goes on," she said.

"I'm kind of disappointed they're closing because it's nice to have a good shop sub right up on the Ped Mall, " Tulbien said. "I just don't think it would be a good location.

"I may be disappointed I'm not moving because it's nice to have a good sub shop right up on the Ped Mall," Tulbien said. "I just don't think it would be a good location.

"I like the Blimpie's downtown branch because we have a family feel. We serve a lot of familes.

Iowa City residents and visitors with small children are having a difficult time in the downtown area. When the space becomes too limited for their children, parents are forced to improvise with their own toileting facilities or to use the restroom circuit.

"We're trying to maintain the same level as we have in the past," said Linda Bergeson, a co-owner of the Iowa City residence.

Census: Iowa's median income grows 2nd-fastest in U.S.

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa had the second-fastest-growing median income over the past two years, the Census Bureau reported Friday.

Barbara Byrne, an Iowa State University sociology professor, said many factors contribute to median income growth, be it economic conditions or policy changes.

"I sense that we are in a 'bear market,'" Byrne said. "It's a much more focused only on the harvest.

Industry execs admit R-rated film focus groups include young children.

By Andrea Davies Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Hollywood executives refused to guarantee lawmakers Wednesday that they would end all marketing of R-rated films to underage audiences. Some acknowledged trying to market to children younger than the age of 17, an effort one studio chief called "inappropriate specifically." The film was "The Fifth Element," an action science-fiction story starring Bruce Willis.

Motion Picture Association of America chief Jack Valenti acknowledged in a committee appearance two weeks ago that movie executives had made mistakes by showing R-rated films to focus groups including children as young as 10. But senators were frustrated Wednesday that they would not say explicitly that they had not done enough, or that they would try to advertise a violent PG-13 film to a young TV audience "in a judgment lapse." The film was "The Fifth Element," an action science-fiction story starring Bruce Willis.

"We are going to correct the imperfections of all advertising," said John Fahey, the chairman of Paramount's Motion Picture Group, and Warner Bros. President Alan Horn called it an "innovational use of advertising tools to target PG-13 movies to underage viewers."

Executives were pressed for finer commitments.

Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., went down the table, asking the industry executives one by one whether they would market R-rated films on Web sites popular among children under 17.

"Another message is delivered via showings," said Sen. Dick Cheney, taking aim at The Fifth Element, an action science-fiction story starring Bruce Willis.

"That isn't the message we intended," said John Fahey, the chairman of Paramount's Motion Picture Group, and Warner Bros. President Alan Horn called it an "innovational use of advertising tools to target PG-13 movies to underage viewers."

Team Gore gets slick

Some clarifications need to be made in order of our current flirtatious debate about all things to be produced. The current situation is grim. Our national borders of insecurity is down 45 percent from just last year, and our previously insecure invader is in a 55-year high. These figures have caused the price of oil to skyrocket to about $85 per barrel, which is a 55-year high.

On this route we believe that the price of oil is high because of greed. That's what we call it, 'G.O. This is a false belief in high because of the current administration's prior rhetoric. The Clinton-Gore administration has a history of neglect in lowering of oil prices. Instead, it has blocked any effort at sensible

So, how's that whole "school" thing working out for you?

- "It's going okay. I'm getting used to it."
- "It's that same old routine of life."
- "It's taken an adjustment, but I'm not expecting any more."
- "It's not as bad as everyone said it would be."
I'm sitting here in Iowa City, before the start of the basketball season. I noticed that college basketball is going strong so far. It's exciting to see how the teams are playing and how the fans are supporting their teams. It's a great way to spend an afternoon. I'm looking forward to the rest of the season.

At the beginning of this year, my mom and I thought it would be fun to try out some fun activities together. We decided to make a plan to go hiking and try some new foods. It's been a great way to spend time together and enjoy each other's company. We've tried so many different things and have had a lot of fun exploring Iowa City.

At the end of the day, I'm always looking forward to coming home and relaxing. I love spending time with my family and friends. It's great to have a support system to lean on when things get tough. I'm grateful for all the wonderful people in my life.

Well, that's all for now. I hope you have a great day. Take care, and see you soon.
Military: U.S. troops ill-prepared

Officials say solutions include a higher budget and fewer peacemaking missions.

By Robert Burns

WASHINGTON — The nation's military leaders told Congress on Wednesday that American troops are in danger of being overworked and underfunded, with the possibility of billions of dollars to the defense budget as it moves to a new posture of fighting and peacekeeping around the world.

"We must find the resources necessary to modernize the force," said Gen. Henry Shelton, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Otherwise, he said, the military could not be "fighting and winning" as well as "peacekeeping and other extensive initiatives" — while preparing for major wars — will erode combat readiness, he said.

The current budget of nearly $1.1 trillion should be increased, said Mr. Burns, who is preparing a major report for the Defense Department, saying the exact figures could not be calculated until next year.

Mr. Burns said that several joint command centers have been established to fight terrorism.

Mr. Burns added that the military needs "credible" weapons and new equipment is "likely" to "attract bids for the price" by spending more time fixing mechanical problems instead of training the force.

NATION BRIEF

News Corp., TV Guide swap shares

NEW YORK (AP) - John Malone's Liberty Media Corp. is in advanced negotiations to swap shares with News Corp. in exchange for the media conglomerate's 20 percent stake in TV Guide. Malone, who also owns MTV Networks, said Tuesday the deal makes Liberty the largest shareholder in TV Guide and Roger Ailes and his family.

The deal also puts News Corp., which already owns 20 percent of Liberty Media, a bigger player in the company. Compaq's plans on developing a new browser provide new competition as well as the weekly TV Guide.

Nigerian runner wins silver in 100-meter hurdle race

Alice Mouroune

At a silver medalist in the 100-meter hurdles at the Olympics, Mouroune accepted the congratulations of her friends and teammates and the crowd in a ceremony at the Olympic Stadium on Monday.

She was among the best athletes in the world and had run it in less than 12 seconds.

The victory came after she had lost her right leg in a crash during the second round of the 80-meter hurdles.

Mouroune is the first African athlete to win a medal in the 100-meter hurdles.

She said: "I'm very happy, and I'm very proud to have won this medal."

But she also said that she was disappointed to have lost her leg.

"I'm not going to give up. I'll come back stronger."

The Pacers have found a new role for Keith Smits. The former All-Star center, who was released by Indiana Pacers after averaging 19.5 points and 10.2 rebounds last season, has been given a new lease of life after agreeing to terms with the team on a one-year contract. Smits, who was cut by the Pacers at the end of last season, has been working out with the team and is expected to play a key role in the team's hopes of returning to the playoffs this year.

"I'm ready," Smits said. "I've been waiting a long time for this opportunity."

Smits, who was a key player for the Pacers during their playoff run last season, has been working on his game and has been given a new lease of life by the team. "I'm ready to take on a new role," he said. "I want to be a part of something special again."

jazzus is 5 will hip-hop into its form with the words of Mouh Tesh.

By Aaron McKinley

Words are spreading.

A hip-hop revolution is under way, and it all started on September 8 when Jazzus introduced his MCing style and his first single, "The Day Tone." Beginning with his own name, Jazzus lists the names of other artists and groups, keeping it true to its "living sculpture" style.

The name can be broken down into three parts: "Jazzus," representing the natural movement of people running on stage, "Music" representing the different art forms, and "Tesh" representing the natural movement of people running on stage. "Jazzus" has spent the last three and a half weeks completing an educational residency at the Pilobolus Institute. The group traveled to several elementary and middle schools around the area to hold workshops for students.

The group started with "The Chocolate School of Tomorrow," a performance that combines movement and voice in an innovative way. "We started balance and how to keep the audience on the edge of their seats," said Hespel Varian, "with Pilobolus's contagious energy, and we really enjoyed having them." Pilobolus may be the only group in the world that can make the audience such an active part of the show. Their unique style attracts elementary schoolers and college students alike.

"It's like being in a dance," said reviewer Graham Ross of the Bijou's "Ultimate" series. "You can't help but be interested in where the duets are going to take you."

The group also has high hopes for its upcoming show, "The Burning of the Book." "We're really excited about the show," said Jazzus. "It's going to be a lot of fun." The group is also looking forward to its upcoming tour, "The Night," which will take them to some of the most exciting places around the world. "We're really looking forward to the tour," said Jazzus. "It's going to be a lot of fun." The group is also looking forward to its upcoming tour, "The Night," which will take them to some of the most exciting places around the world.
