Council to discuss regulating drink sales

City councilors may examine such options as minimum prices and drink specials.

By Megan Eckhardt
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City City Council tonight will have its first opportunity to formally discuss a city attorney's report affirming the city's right to regulate local alcohol sales.

Establishing a minimum price for drinks, limiting out-of-sight sales and regulating drink specials are among the topics the council will consider at tonight's work session.

The council has not specifically addressed various options in the past, said Iowa City Mayor Ernie Lehman. After examining the information in the report, the council will discuss some possible changes in the city ordinances, he said.

"When people can drink all they want for $5, it just invites them to get drunk," Lehman said. "I think that's inappropriate."

The report concluded that limiting drink specials and out-of-sight alcohol sales would most likely survive a legal battle in the courts, but instituting a minimum price for alcohol sales would likely be disputed, said Assistant City Attorney Andy Matthews.

Councilor Steven Kanner believes the main issues are how people are affected by drinkers and that bars need to be held accountable.

"The goal is not to prohibit alcohol but regulate how it is dispensed," he said. "There's too much violence and property damage because of alcohol."

Businesses would be more inclined to restrict over-consumption and underage drinking if threatened with a possible license revocation, Kanner said.

"Bars have to make it harder for underage drinkers to get alcohol," he said. "And I think they can do that."

While an ordinance will be helpful in solving the underage drinking problem, it will not be the only thing that the council looks at.

"We will have to attack it in other ways," he said. "This is Putting the spotlight on Hawk fans

 The Daily Iowan

Ultimate Hawkeye fans now have a fresh way to express their Iowa pride — by illuminating their homes with Herky the Hawk digital images, similar to Gotham City's Bat Symbol.

Five months ago, Michael Bohner, a Coralville resident and owner of Frontier Marketing, was using projection equipment to display real-estate agents' logos on houses for sale when his wife suggested that he expand his idea to collegiate advertising.

After becoming licensed with the UI, Bohner sold at least 20 of the $60 spotlights. He said he expects business to increase even more because the Iowa Hawk Shop in Coralville began selling the spotlights on Sept. 25.

The projection system works by shining digitally processed images onto flat surfaces, through scanning a photo of the image into a computerized digital system. Owners are able to project anything, including Tiger Hawks, football helmets, basketball logos and phrases such as "Beat Michigan State."

"Fans are always wanting creative new ways to show their Hawkeye spirit," he said.

"It is a unique item that lets others know you are a true Hawkeye."

Frontier Marketing is looking to expand to five other collegiate markets by the end of month. Bohner also wants to display holiday and personalized images, he said.

Carlos O'Kelly's, 411 S. Waterfront Drive, has been displaying the Tiger Hawk image and Iowa football helmet image on its inside walls during Hawk Talk on Thursday nights for the past two weeks, said Bruce Titus, the general manager.

Although he doesn't typically have projections inside the restaurant, Titus said, the Hawk logo was so different that he had to buy one. He said he is also purchasing another projector for the outside of the restaurant.

Locals debate effect of debates

UI students and professors have mixed feelings about the debates.

By Jesse Elliott

As the nation awaits Tuesday's first official showdown between Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush in Boston, some UI students and professors are considering what effect, if any, will the debates have on the decision of voters in November.

The 90-minute debate will be aired by most major television networks Tuesday at 8 p.m., featuring the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates squaring off on several major issues, including health-care reform, the future of Social Security and the U.S. public-education system.

This year's debates will be a major deciding factor for voters, said Fred Antczak, a UI professor of rhetoric recognized by the UI Election 2000 Experts Guide for his knowl-

Iowa defensive back Ryan Hansen thought his days as a model were over, but he has taken off his helmet and pads to pose for a second national magazine.

After modeling clothing styles of the Heartland in the current issue of Esquire, the first-year law student will appear in the upcoming issue of People. The topic: America's sexiest men.

"I believe it. I'm in agreement," said UI senior Mary

Berdo, Hansen's friend and former roommate. "The best part about it is that he's so down to earth."

Hansen is known among family and friends as a shy guy, the type they would never expect to model.

"He's the type of kid who just gets in the shower, gets out, dries off, and goes to class," Berdo said.

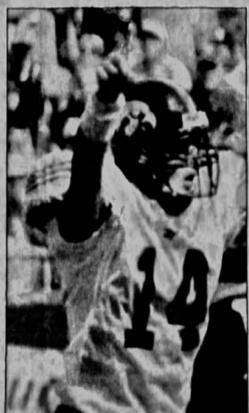

Hansen was surprised to be selected and thought it was a joke when the magazine first called, said his younger sister, UI sophomore Caryn Hansen. But it was no joke.

30 years later, they're still pickin' & grinnin'

■ The Fiddler's Picnic draws 150 people to the Johnson County Fairgrounds.

By Amanda Gorsche
The Daily Iowan

The aroma of chili and the melodic sounds of old-time, bluegrass and folk music filled the breezy air at the Johnson County Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon, as area residents and musicians gathered to celebrate the 30th annual Fiddler's Picnic.

UI mathematics Professor Dennis Roseman, who organized the event, said it has beginnings characteristic of a backyard barbecue.

Roseman, who plays a variety of instruments, said the Fiddler's Picnic began in 1970 in the backyard of former organizer Harry Oster, now a UI professor emeritus of English. The success of the picnic and word of mouth led to the creation of the annual festival.

"The picnic has an informal process," Roseman said. "We feature bands, solo singers and dancing."

Iowa City resident and solo artist Mary Eagle was on hand to provide her unique style of storytelling through what she calls "old-timey American folk." Eagle said she grew up singing folk music with her mother. Her experiences living in England and North Carolina introduced her to old English and Appalachian traditions of folk that influence her music, she said.

"The Fiddler's Picnic is the life-blood," Eagle said. "It nudges me into performing."

Iowa City bands and musicians from Eastern Iowa also attended the event. Acoustic Mayhem and Stones in the Field were among the Iowa City-based groups that played their mellow tunes for the 150 people who sat in the tree-lined surroundings.

Many attending the picnic said they make it a yearly habit because of the abundance of local music. Iowa City resident Justine Retz said she has been enjoying the festival for three years.

"I come because I love the music," she said. "I like the different groups that form spontaneously."

Spontaneity is a common thread at the Fiddler's Picnic — the festival does not have a typical line-up of organized groups, Roseman said. While some bands that have played together for years attend, experienced musicians form groups upon their arrival. Music circles also configure in various locations on the fairgrounds as acts perform on stage.

"It's an organic process," Roseman said. "I still don't know how it will end."

Musician and Cedar Rapids resident Tom Gillespie has been performing and volunteering for the event since its second year. Gillespie said he got involved because he was interested in folk music.

"The Fiddler's Picnic is similar to bluegrass or folk festivals," he said. "It's unique because different types of music are played."

Love of music favored many to attend the picnic.

"There aren't a lot of chances to hear bluegrass music in Iowa City," Iowa City resident John Knoot said. "I thought it would just be acts on stage, but I like the music circles that form."

Gun violence headlines First Monday 2000

■ The UI will hold two programs today on the effects of gun violence.

By Erica Cox
The Daily Iowan

During his 10 years of teaching at an alternative high school in Minnesota, UI graduate student Tom Gilsenan saw the effects of gun violence firsthand.

Thirteen young people, five of whom were his students, were murdered.

"When this happens once, you think this is horrible; after the second murder, I knew I had to do something," Gilsenan said.

People across the nation today will join together for First Monday 2000. This year's theme is "Unite to End Gun Violence." The national day of action is the beginning of a two-year anti-gun violence campaign, organized by the Alliance for Justice and Physicians for Social Responsibility. Organizers plan two programs for the UI. The College of Law will present a video and hold a public discussion at 4 p.m. in the fourth-floor lounge of the Boyd Law Building. The second event is scheduled for 7 p.m. at Bill's Coffee Shop in North Hall.

Lois Cox, a clinical associate professor of law and an organizer of the event, said the law school's program will take a legal view on gun violence, while the second program will involve a more general perspective.

Through these programs, Gilsenan hopes those attending will gain three things.

"First, I want to create general awareness of the issue. Second, I want people to see how serious gun violence is among young people," he said. "Last, I want the program to motivate people toward some type of action."

The topic chosen for this year's First Monday has a special meaning for Gilsenan, who has not only worked as a teacher but also as a social worker and newspaper reporter. He has written numerous times on the effects of gun violence.

According to statistics gathered by Iowans for the Prevention of Gun Violence, approximately 13 young people under the age of 19 die from gunshot wounds each day in the United States. This, Gilsenan said, is equivalent to a Columbine High School incident occurring every day.

Cox points to the Columbine shootings — in which 14 students were killed in Littleton, Colo., in April 1999 — as the impetus for the First Monday campaign against gun violence.

"The shootings at Columbine really brought the issue to light," she said. "We focus more on gun violence as it affects children. Too many lives are lost to guns."

Gilsenan can point to two moments when he knew he had to get involved. In the first, Mary Johnson's 20-year-old son was shot and killed by a 16-year-old.

"Mary came to me and said, 'We have to do something,' and I knew she was right," he said.

The death of a second person, a young man named Maurice, further fueled his desire to take action.

"He was shot and killed in front of his house while talking to his friends," Gilsenan said. "Senseless acts such as this were happening all around."

During today's event, John Johnson of Iowans for the Prevention of Gun Violence and Betsy Ross, the founder of Ray of Hope, will speak during the program at North Hall.

Ray of Hope, a nonprofit organization with chapters around the world, provides support for families who have been affected by a death from suicide. Ross began Ray of Hope in 1976, after her husband took his own life.

"The organization offers a place for families to come for support," she said. "People can come to support groups where there are people who understand how overcoming the grief of suicide is different and the longest mourning process."

Both UI programs are free and open to the public. A light supper will be served at the law school's event.

The law school will feature a panel including Sue Flaherty, an associate juvenile court judge for the 6th Judicial District, Janet Lyness, an assistant Johnson County attorney, Dick Klausner, the chief public defender for Johnson, Iowa and Muscatine counties, and UI law Professor Randall Bezanson.

ACLU accuses Texas town of racist drug busts

■ A small Texas town targeted its black population in a series of drug arrests, the rights group says.

By Pam Easton
Associated Press

TULIA, Texas — Kareem Abdul Jabbar White sat across a courtroom table from the Swisher County district attorney, hoping he'd be found innocent of drug charges but knowing the odds were against him.

Ten people tried in the previous 10 months, including his older brother and younger sister, had been convicted of delivering cocaine to the same undercover officer.

That officer, Tom Coleman, spent a year and a half building drug cases against 43 people in this West Texas farming community, which boasts the "richest land and the finest people." All but three of those Coleman alleged sold him drugs are black.

District Attorney Terry McEachern says racial prejudice played no role in the busts, which resulted in 17 guilty pleas and 11 guilty verdicts. White was convicted in early September of one count of delivering a controlled substance after a two-day trial; he was sentenced to 60 years in prison.

But the Texas American Civil Liberties Union on Sept. 29 filed a lawsuit in federal court alleging civil-rights violations, conspiracy and discrimination "intended to accomplish the forbidden aim of cleansing Tulia of its black population."

The suit was filed on behalf of Yul Bryant, who was arrested in July 1999 for allegedly selling cocaine. His case was dismissed after McEachern learned that Coleman was not certain he had bought cocaine from Bryant.

Now others are coming forward, claiming they were unjustly prosecuted.

LaWanda Smith, who pleaded guilty to one count of delivering a controlled substance, says she only did so because she was afraid of taking her chances on a trial. But she says she never sold drugs to Coleman.

"I have never met the guy," she said. "Not ever."

Coleman came to Tulia, midway between Lubbock and Amarillo, in late 1997.

He was a Texas Ranger's son and had been a Pecos police officer and Cochran County sheriff's deputy, but he left law enforcement in 1996 under questionable circumstances.

He worked as a welder before being hired in Tulia in 1998 as an undercover drug agent for the Swisher County Sheriff's Department.

"I told him to go wherever his investigation led him," Swisher County Sheriff Larry Stewart testified.

Critics suggest that Stewart guided Coleman to target specific residents.

"Sheriff Stewart told me that he had a list of black people in town he wanted investigated," Mattie White, a prison guard who is Kareem White's mother, said in an affidavit. "(He) said that this was how all of these people had come to be indicted."

At Kareem White's trial, his lawyer, Dwight McDonald, asked Stewart if he remembered telling Mattie White that more black residents were arrested because "black people do drugs in the streets and the parks, and white people do them in their home."

"That is something that might have been said," Stewart answered.

On July 23, 1999, a drug task force pulled suspects from their beds and paraded them, still in their nightclothes, across the courthouse lawn in front of television cameras.

The Texas Narcotic Control Program later named him "Outstanding Lawman of the Year."

Coleman, who is working undercover elsewhere in Texas, refused to be interviewed by the Associated Press.

Priest attacks abortion clinic with ax

■ A Catholic priest crashes his car into the Rockford clinic, then chops away with an ax.

By Nicole Ziegler Dizon
Association Press

ROCKFORD, Ill. — A Catholic priest smashed his car into an abortion clinic on Sept. 30, then chopped at the building with an ax until the owner fired two shotgun blasts to stop him, police said.

The clinic was not open, and nobody was injured in the attack, which came just two days after federal approval of the abortion pill RU-486.

The man drove through a door at the Abortion Access Northern Illinois Women's Center around 8:15 a.m. He was swinging an ax when the clinic's owner fired a 12-gauge shotgun twice. Neither man was injured.

The Rev. John Earl, 32, was arrested and charged with burglary and felony criminal damage to property, said Deputy Police Chief Dominic Iasparro. Earl was released later on Sept. 30 on $10,000 bond.

Iasparro would not comment on statements Earl made to police about a possible motive.

The building owner, Gerald W. "Wayne" Webster, 56, has rented space to the clinic for 15 years. He sometimes sleeps in the building for security. No one else was inside on Sept. 30.

Police said Webster's weapon was legal, and no charges will be filed against him.

"He came at me with an ax over his head," Webster told reporters. "He would have chopped my head off if I wouldn't have been armed with a 12-gauge shotgun."

"I thank God and my shotgun that I'm alive," he said.

Earl is the pastor at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Rochelle, approximately 30 miles south of Rockford. Parishioners gathering for Mass on the evening of Sept. 30 said Earl took over about a year ago and was respected by the congregation.

The Diocese of Rockford issued a written statement saying Earl's activities have been restricted while it reviews the matter.

"While it is the policy of this diocese not to comment on the specifics of legal matters, it has never been nor is it the policy or practice of the Roman Catholic Church to condone, approve, or promote violence in any form to achieve a desired end," the statement said.

Bill Cipolla, a parishioner, said Earl sometimes spoke about abortion, but he would not have considered him a radical. "You don't look for priests to do that type of thing," he said.

Abortion providers usually are on alert for violence following abortion-related events in the news, such as this week's approval of RU-486 by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, said Vicki Saporta, the executive director of the National Abortion Federation.

"We haven't received any specific threats, but anytime abortion is in the headlines, we issue an alert to our clinics to take precautions because there is the potential for increased violence," she said.

Thurmond 'doing well' after fainting

■ The South Carolina senator is hospitalized after becoming ill in a restaurant.

By Jennifer Andes
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Strom Thurmond, at 97 the oldest person to serve in the Senate, appeared "to be doing very well" at a hospital on Sept. 30 after collapsing at a restaurant in suburban Alexandria, Va., his spokeswoman said.

Doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center have not determined why he collapsed, but "more than likely, his condition can be attributed to dehydration," spokeswoman Genevieve Erny said.

Thurmond, R-S.C., remained hospitalized through Sunday for observation, but "he appears to be doing very well," Erny said.

Thurmond has been hospitalized several times in recent years for various problems, including fatigue. He had prostate surgery in 1999. Erny said the collapse was unrelated to previous illnesses.

Alexandria Fire Department spokeswoman Sandy Flynn said Thurmond was taken by ambulance from a downtown restaurant to Inova Alexandria Hospital at 1:40 p.m. EDT. He was later transported to Walter Reed in Washington.

Thurmond was lunching with a staff member and an acquaintance when he began to feel tired and fainted, Erny said. "He did momentarily lose consciousness for a second or two," she said.

"He really looked tired," said Christopher Swift, the manager of the Southside 815 restaurant. "Basically as a precautionary measure, the two gentlemen with him asked us to call an ambulance."

The ambulance responded to a 911 call.

In May, Thurmond was released from Walter Reed after a three-day stay for what an aide said was a back problem.

Earlier that month, he was twice hospitalized for an upset stomach and fatigue.

C.R. man pleads guilty to aiding mob

■ Already serving a life sentence, Bobby McNeese may get another 20 years.

Associated Press

CEDAR RAPIDS — A local man, spending life in prison on bank robbery and drug charges, will get another 20 years behind bars for helping the New York mob launder money.

Robert "Bobby" McNeese pleaded guilty on Sept. 29 in federal court here to one count of conspiring to launder money. He will be sentenced up to 20 more years in prison in December.

Polite and without his adopted wise-guy accent, the McNeese, 35, told U.S. District Judge Michael Melloy prosecutor's improbable allegations against him are true.

McNeese admitted that he became an associate of the Lucchese organized crime family of New York City while in prison. From his cell — with mob help — he orchestrated an enterprise in 1997 to deliver illegal drugs and money for loan sharking to Cedar Rapids.

McNeese said he was not happy that investigators quickly learned of his jail cell activity and the enterprise flopped.

"I don't know how to describe it without getting angry," McNeese said.

McNeese had gone to federal prison in 1988 for robbing a Cedar Rapids bank. Near the end of that sentence, he was convicted for trying to import heroin into Florida from Europe while a prison inmate, which earned him a life sentence in 1995. Along the way, he befriended members of the Lucchese crime family.

McNeese's family in Cedar Rapids has several photos of him with Vic Amuso, the boss of the Lucchese family, and other prominent East Coast mobsters taken during their stay together at the federal prison at Atlanta in 1997.

Amuso is serving a life sentence for conspiring to commit more than 50 crimes, including several murders.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Patrick Reinert has charged that McNeese, allegedly with Lucchese family permission, dispatched an associate of the Lucchese family to Cedar Rapids in late 1997 to set up illegal businesses, principally, supplying illegal drugs.

In court on Sept. 29, McNeese told Melloy that the enterprise began after his brother, Floyd, a Cedar Rapids marijuana dealer, visited him in prison in 1997 asking for help in collecting money stolen from him.

McNeese said he communicated with those involved in the Cedar Rapids business via prison phone and unmonitored mail sent through an attorney. A protection "tax" from drug sales was forwarded to bank accounts under his control.

Reinert said he figured McNeese obtained about $13,000 for his own accounts before the conspiracy came undone.

Six people, including McNeese's brother, Floyd, and Scotter Clark, who ran a local limo service and exotic dancer business, have been convicted in the conspiracy in Cedar Rapids in addition to McNeese.

Critics claim RU-486 unsafe

Abortion opponents are gearing up to fight the abortion pill, which the FDA approved last week.

By Pauline Jelinek
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Abortion opponents contended Sunday that the abortion pill may be unsafe and raised the possibility of government action to limit its use.

Reform Party presidential candidate Patrick Buchanan called RU-486, the early-abortion method approved on Sept. 28 by the Food and Drug Administration for use in the United States, "a human pesticide."

As president, "I would use all the power of my office, including appointments at the FDA, to prevent its being put on the market," Buchanan said on NBC's "Meet the Press." Green Party candidate Ralph Nader, also on NBC, countered that use of the drug is "up to the woman, not the government."

"This is a pill that's been shown to be safe in Europe for numerous years," he said. "And it's preferable to surgical procedure."

Sen. Tim Hutchinson, R-Ark., said on ABC's "This Week" that there are "a lot of questions" surrounding the safety of the pill — and that the outcome of next month's election will determine whether Congress has enough votes next year to put limits on its use.

Eleanor Smeal, the president of the Feminist Majority Foundation, also on ABC, said the drug had undergone "tremendous review" by the FDA.

"They can protest as much as they want," she said of abortion foes. "This is a safe, effective method."

One lawmaker, Rep. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., said after the FDA's decision that he would promote legislation calling for severe limits on when doctors could administer mifepristone, the pill's chemical name.

The Christian Coalition's Pat Robertson said on CBS's "Face the Nation" that the drug's approval was a "political ploy" by Democrats to corner Republican presidential nominee George W. Bush on the subject.

Bush, whose father's administration banned RU-486 imports in 1989, opposes abortion. Vice President Gore supports the pill option. Robertson said the pill should be reviewed to determine if it's a "danger to women."

The pill blocks action of a hormone essential for maintaining pregnancy. It has been used by millions of European women since it was approved nearly a decade ago.

Anti-abortion advocates have fought hard to keep the drug out of the United States since it first appeared in France.

FDA Commissioner Jane Henney approved mifepristone based on studies that found it 92 percent to 95 percent effective in causing abortion.

This is a pill that's been shown to be safe in Europe for numerous years. And it's preferable to surgical procedure.

Ugandan rebels ambush Italian priest

Members of the Lord's Resistance Army kill an outspoken missionary on his way to Mass.

Associated Press

ROME (AP) — Rebels shot and killed an outspoken 71-year-old Italian priest as he drove to Sunday Mass in northern Uganda, an Italian-based missionary news agency reported.

Fighters of the Lord's Resistance Army ambushed the Rev. Raffaele Di Bari's car, killing him instantly, MISNA said.

A nun and a catechist traveling with the priest escaped without injury before the car exploded in flames, MISNA said.

Di Bari had been outspoken in denouncing northern Uganda's 13-year-old Lord's Resistance Army.

Led by a man claiming to be a spirit medium with supernatural powers, the rebels are noted for enslaving children for fighting, chores and sex.

Di Bari called MISNA on Thursday to say he had escaped one attack.

His Comboniano missionary order "gave voice to these people, denouncing the atrocities that the rebels commit almost daily against women, old people and children," the Rev. Giulio Albanese, MISNA's director, quoted Di Bari as having said then.

Sunday's attack occurred as Di Bari traveled from his mission at Pajule to celebrate Mass and baptize faithful at a village 12 miles south of the city of Kitgum, MISNA said.

Rebels killed another missionary at the same site 10 years earlier, the news agency said.

Di Bari, a native of Bari, started work in Uganda in 1959.

Central Americans flee Hurricane Keith

The storm hits Mexico's Yucatan coast and parts of Belize with torrential rain and flooding.

By Lisa Adams
Associated Press

CHETUMAL, Mexico — Coastal residents of Mexico's Yucatan peninsula and northeastern Belize fled their homes Sunday as the dangerous core of Hurricane Keith came ashore, bringing strong wind and torrential rain.

With the storm packing 125-mph winds, scores of people in Chetumal, a bay-side city of 130,000, abandoned their homes. Many live in low-lying areas in shacks made of wooden slats and cardboard.

Mexican authorities set up 15 shelters and evacuated 800 people from high-risk areas in the region, approximately 190 miles south of Cancun.

Many residents seemed to take the weather in stride; families waded through streets flooded with ankle-deep water. Others rode bikes through the pounding rain, and old men drank coffee on a covered sidewalk.

Hurricane Keith was stationary Sunday afternoon, approximately 50 miles south-southeast of Chetumal, and about 40 miles northeast of Belize City, where power lines were reported down, the National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

The U.S. government issued a travel warning to Americans in Belize because of extensive flooding, the State Department said. Peace Corps volunteers and U.S. government employees in non-emergency jobs were moved out.

The Belize village of San Pedro was one of the hardest-hit areas, Red Cross officials said. Winds battering the village were clocked at 83 mph before the instrument broke. Gusts were reported up to 110 mph.

"We have reports that roofs are blowing off houses," said Judith Reid of the Red Cross in Belize City. "The rain is coming on strong, and the wind is picking up here — and we are still far south of where the action is."

Forecasters warned of flash floods and mud slides as heavy rain fell throughout Belize, Honduras, Guatemala and Nicaragua, although the slow-moving hurricane was expected to weaken as it moved inland.

Elsewhere, a greatly weakened Tropical Storm Joyce dumped several inches of rain on Trinidad and Tobago but did little damage as it swept through the central Caribbean Sunday.

Campaigns awash in sea of dollars

Election spending before Labor Day tops $2 billion, with the fall political-spending splurge still to come.

By Jonathan D. Salant
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The price tag of politics keeps getting bigger. Candidates, parties and special-interest groups spent more than $2 billion by Labor Day in pursuit of the White House and Congress, according to an Associated Press analysis of campaign-spending statistics.

The total, coming even before the traditional fall spending splurge, nearly equaled what was spent for the entire 1996 election, stunning even the most veteran political observers. "We have lost all meaningful barriers to the flow of money in elections," said Anthony Corrado, a professor of government at Colby College in Waterville, Maine.

This year already has seen new marks set for the most money raised by a presidential candidate (more than $100 million by Republican George W. Bush) and spent on a Senate campaign ($35 million by Democrat Jon Corzine in New Jersey).

Party treasuries are swelling, and political action committees, the donating arms of special interests, have boosted contributions as congressional candidates rake in record amounts of money.

The net effect has obliterated the boundaries Congress set in the wake of Watergate in an effort to restrain the influence of money on politics.

Critics blame the spiral on court decisions that put free speech ahead of spending limits and on the Federal Election Commission for not cracking down on the unregulated and unlimited contributions known as soft money.

"This is a $2 billion investment, mostly from special interests and very little of it from ordinary Americans," said Scott Harshbarger, the president of Common Cause, which advocates campaign-finance changes. "Average people are looking at this and don't understand how they can have influence."

An AP analysis of FEC records and special-interest spending statistics by the University of Pennsylvania's Annenberg Public Policy Center indicates that individuals and special interests doled out at least $2.1 billion for the 2000 elections before Labor Day.

The total excludes the $60 million in taxpayer assistance the presidential candidates received for the primaries and the $67.6 million in federal money that Bush and Vice President Al Gore each received for the fall campaign.

Experts expect spending for the 2000 election cycle, beginning Jan. 1, 1999, to far surpass the $2.4 billion spent in 1996. That would be a final high watermark in a year that already has seen new records set.

The Pulliam Journalism Fellowship

Jump-start your newspaper journalism career with a solid program that boasts four Pulitzer Prize winners among its alumni - the Pulliam Journalism Fellowship. The Fellowship offers myriad career opportunities; in fact, a Pulliam Fellow from our first class of 1974, Barbara Henry, now serves as president and publisher of The Indianapolis Star. Moreover, a new graduate of our year 2000 class has just been hired as a full-time staff reporter at The Indianapolis Star.

Now entering its 28th year, the 2001 Pulliam Journalism Fellowship helps build a bridge from the classroom to the newsroom. Fellows are assigned to The Indianapolis Star or The Arizona Republic in Phoenix for 10 weeks each summer as staff reporters. We award 20 fellowships annually. The stipend is $5,775.

Traditionally, our fellowships have been open only to graduating college seniors. In 2001, we will be expanding eligibility to include college sophomores and juniors as well as seniors pursuing a career in newspaper journalism. We will be accepting applications for our Summer 2001 program in September 2000.

Visit our Web site at <http://www.starnews.com/pjf/> or e-mail Fellowship director Russell B. Pulliam at russell.pulliam@starnews.com for an application packet. You also may request a packet by writing:

I.C. knows seat-belt safety

Local police officers attribute the high seat-belt use to enforcement and education.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

Buckle up — it's the law. And according to a recent survey conducted by Iowa City police, the law is working.

An informal study conducted by the police last week found that 88 percent of drivers and passengers in Iowa City use their seat belts.

Compared with the national average of 78 percent, Iowa City is doing "extremely well," said police Sgt. Mike Brotherton.

The study, which is performed twice a year, marked a 3 percent increase over the last six months and a more-than 18 percent increase since 1991 in the number of Iowa City motorists and passengers who use their seat belts, Brotherton said.

"It gives us a benchmark figure of people complying with the law," he said. "And we are showing a steady increase over the years."

Officers who conducted the study examined the first 100 cars to pass through 10 different intersections throughout the city, keeping a tally on the number of people wearing seat belts, police Sgt. Jim Steffen said.

While the officers were in marked police vehicles, they were parked in locations where they were not immediately visible to drivers, he said.

Brotherton attributes the increase in seat-belt use to better enforcement and more education on the subject.

"We're trying to get the word out," he said.

Iowa's seat-belt law is enforced somewhat uniquely compared with other states. The law gives officers the authority to stop any unbuckled motorist; in some states, the seat-belt law is only enforced if the car is stopped for another violation, Brotherton said.

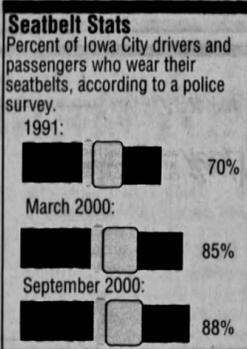

"Iowa is one of the leaders in promoting traffic safety," he said. "But more states are coming around."

Iowa's enforcement of the law is one of the reasons Jennifer Border always wears her seat belt.

"I wear it just because I'm afraid to get stopped," she said. "But I always wear it. It's automatic."

UI junior Nick Gardner said he also wears his seat belt to avoid negative consequences, whether by an accident or the law.

"It's the first thing I do when I get in the car," he said. "It's important for safety, plus if you wear it, you won't get fined."

Although seat belts have been known to cause serious injuries and even death in some accidents, Brotherton said, these occurrences are rare.

"Studies overwhelmingly show that if a person is buckled, the chances of serious injury are greatly reduced," he said. "They keep you behind the wheel so you don't get thrown from the vehicle and don't hit other objects."

Parents should teach their children about the benefits of seat belts when they are young, Brotherton said.

"It's important for guardians to set an example," he said.

Council to discuss drink prices

just one step."

Not everyone shares Kanner's optimism about the effect of limiting drink specials.

Randy Larson, the owner of the Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St., believes that such an ordinance would not have a great effect because of the difficulty of controlling underage drinking, he said.

"I don't think that regulating drink specials is going to affect underage drinkers being at bars and being able to get alcohol," he said. "There's nothing controlling a person buying a pitcher and bringing it back to a table of underage drinkers."

Although he said that he didn't understand how it could be patrolled, Larson likes the idea of an ordinance to limit drink specials.

"We would rather compete with quality of service and food, rather than price," he said.

Debating the effect of the debates

sonal experience, while Gore is a solid formal debater, he said.

"Polling shows a larger chunk of undecided voters and voters willing to change their vote choice," he said.

The 1960 debate between Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy was the last time presidential debates have played such an important role in voters' decisions, Antczak said. Officials in both the Democratic and Republican camps have been saying the stakes will be far greater than they had anticipated because the contest is so tight and because the debates are expected to reach many more millions of people than the two political conventions this summer.

Public opinion — especially within the university setting — will be more influenced by other, more informal television settings in which the candidates share their views, said John Nelson, a UI professor of political science.

Recently, Gore answered the questions of young viewers during his MTV "Choose or Lose" appearance, Bush was interviewed by Larry King on CNN, and both candidates appeared on "Oprah."

"There will be a bigger effect from these talk shows and other venues that college-age students pay more attention to," Nelson said.

Matt Blizek, the head of the UI Local Politics group, echoed this sentiment.

"The debates will be watched half-assed by a few students," he said. "But because no issues will be talked about pertaining to our age group, they will have little effect."

UI sophomore Christian

Kurasek, the chairman of UI Students for George W. Bush, won't be affected by the debates, he said.

"Anything new that Gore has to say would be yet another flip-flop on the issues for him," he said. "I can't trust a word that comes out of his mouth."

Evan Mazunik, a UI senior and self-declared Republican-leaning independent, said he is doubtful whether the debate will sway his opinions of the candidates.

"Right now, I'm not voting at all," he said. "I'm going to watch the debates, though, and I would have no trouble voting for either Gore or Bush if they convince me of their ability to do a good job."

Man puts the Tiger Hawk in the spotlight

"Customers love the Tiger Hawk shining on the wall," he said. "The kids especially love it as they try to figure out where the image is coming from."

Titus feels the idea will be successful around Iowa City — he has already had customers asking about it.

Carlos O'Kelly's customer Sara Grubb said that although she wouldn't buy one for herself, she likes the addition to the restaurant.

"It's a unique idea," she said. "I think it will draw people into the restaurant, especially kids, because they'll want to go and see (the Tiger Hawk)."

Dale Arhens, the marketing director of the Iowa Hawk Shop, said he began selling the projectors last week and has one shining on the building after dark. He decided to sell them because it was a different way for Iowa fans to express themselves.

"Our projection system comes with the projector and three slides including a combination of Tiger Hawk images and the block letter 'I,'" he said.

With Homecoming week-end fast approaching, Arhens said, he expects sales to increase as alumni migrate back into town and Hawkeye pride gains momentum. Although the projector is not yet in the Hawk Shop catalogue, it will be in the spring catalogue, he said.

For more information or to order a projector, visit www.fanspotlights.com. Projectors can also be purchased at the Iowa Hawk Shop.

to hit newsstands on Nov. 10. Hansen's mother, Lynn Hansen, said she wasn't exactly sure why her son will be featured in People.

Caryn Hansen said she figures his photo in Esquire and all the activities he's involved in may have played a role in landing him his second modeling opportunity.

Although Ryan Hansen wasn't available for comment, Caryn Hansen said one thing is certain — her brother is trying to "keep this on the down-low."

"He has a lot more things he needs to focus on," she said. "I think he might be a little embarrassed by it."

This year, Ryan Hansen has started all five Hawkeye games at free safety, accounting for one interception and a team-high two fumble recoveries. He was Iowa's leading tackler in its Sept. 30 loss to Indiana.

Despite his concerted efforts to keep his new-found modeling fame quiet, this is Iowa City, and his teammates know.

"I know he took crap for (the Esquire photo)," Berdo said. "It was all in good fun. It's just that he's so not the type you would ever think would model."

Caryn Hansen said she told some of her friends that Ryan Hansen was going to be featured in People, and they thought it was "pretty cool."

But what does the Hansen family think about him being one of the "sexiest men" in America?

"We really don't think of him like that," Caryn Hansen said.

Gunfights break out between Palestinians, Israelis

begin at 8 p.m., with each claiming the other made the offer. However, the shooting continued, and the army reported a gun battle outside the Jewish settlement of Psagot.

An Israeli border policeman was critically wounded and lay trapped for hours in a tiny Israeli enclave in the West Bank town of Nablus, as Palestinian fire blocked rescue teams from reaching the area. Medics eventually got through, but the officer died Sunday night.

The latest fighting came as Israeli and Palestinian peace negotiators traded harsh accusations instead of new ideas on how to solve their disputes.

In an ominous sign of escalation across the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Israeli troops fired anti-tank missiles, hurled grenades, and shot from helicopter gunships. Several Israeli tanks rumbled toward the Palestinian-run towns of Nablus and Ramallah in a warning gesture, but they did not cross the lines of jurisdiction.

The deadliest battle was waged in Nablus over Joseph's Tomb, a tiny Israeli-controlled enclave smaller than a city block and ringed by a cement block wall and barbed wire. An Israeli soldier shot from a look-out post, with only the top of his helmet and his weapon visible. Palestinian gunmen, some in black ski masks, raced up to the wall and fired into the compound where some Jews believe the biblical patriarch Joseph is buried.

At one point, two helicopter gunships swooped down and unleashed a barrage of fire, sending hundreds of Palestinians fleeing for cover. The army said the helicopters were brought in to rescue the wounded Israeli officer.

"This is a holy struggle," said Mahmoud Jamal, one of the Palestinian demonstrators who was injured in the face as he and others tried to break down the gate of Joseph's Tomb, which was retained by Israel after it withdrew its troops from the city and other Palestinian towns in 1995.

Three Palestinians were killed in the fight, including a 12-year-old boy. Six more Palestinians died in clashes elsewhere in the West Bank and Gaza. The Palestinian Health Ministry said 223 Palestinians were wounded, including five who were in critical condition.

With Israelis returning to work today, after their two-day

New Year's holiday, the army closed the main West Bank thoroughfares to Israeli vehicles, meaning Jewish settlers could not enter or leave their communities without army escorts. Yehoshua Mor-Yosef, the spokesman of the Jewish Settlers Council, said he could not reach his home in the settlement of Ofra because of the closures.

OLYMPICS 2000 IN REVIEW

Olympics head south and ratings soon follow ...

Last in its division

Throughout the Olympic Games, NBC complained about the poor ratings it received for this year's proceedings in Sydney. The primary reason it cited for the poor ratings was its inability to show the events of the XXVII Olympiad live, blaming the 16-hour time difference between North America and the land down under. Prime time for American television, 6-10 p.m. CDT, works well for live broadcasts of domestic events, but that narrow window is a bit limiting in an international market. Often, by the time events were broadcast in America, the medals had already been handed out, leaving many Americans wondering at the point of watching the games in "re-run."

It seems we can no longer enjoy the Olympics for the purity of the sport.

when night baseball was fresh off the drawing board. Back then, all of the important match-ups, the playoffs and the World Series, for instance, were played during the day.

Sydney

But the television executives soon realized that their ratings would be better if the important games were broadcast in the evening, after Americans had come home from work and could sit down and relax.

From that modest beginning, television has continued to shape the way we organize our time. We must get home by 8 to watch Regis!

The predominance of television has overcome us to such an extent that it seems we can no longer enjoy the Olympics for the purity of the sport. If we already know who wins the medals, who wants to watch the games? Personally, I still want to see the heroes in action, watch them as they attain greatness, diving from 10 meters or jumping 7.5. And it doesn't matter if there's a 16-hour delay. We're witnessing some of the prime athletic specimens of humanity at their very best. Doesn't that count for anything anymore? Or is all everyone's worried about is who won the gold because he or she jumped .0001 nanometers farther than the guy who won the silver?

Perhaps it's not television that is shaping our competitive worldview, but it sure feeds into a culture that seems to be appreciating less and less the purity not of competition, but of sport.

A first-hand viewpoint of first-place finishes

It's Friday night and Sydney — Australia's darling harbor — is alive.

My friends and I are enjoying a post-Olympic stroll down to the Opera House, when a boom from above the Sydney Harbour Bridge catches our attention. Bright greens, yellows, reds and blues spray across the sky. A fireworks display congratulates the Australian women's field hockey team on its gold medal from earlier in the night. The five-minute display sums up the Olympics pretty well: overly elaborate and gaudy, yet still very entertaining.

Day 14 has officially ended, and my friends Dan, Matt and Thor and I have taken in four hours of track and field in Stadium Australia. Sure, our seats were nose-bleed, but there just isn't a bad seat in the house. This place is huge! It makes our hallowed Kinnick Stadium look like a high school facility.

Seeing Maurice Green and his cocky warm-up, followed by severe ass-kicking, makes you want to sprint down the stairs, hop the gate, and kick out a 100 meters or so yourself. Not to mention being there to experience Marion Jones' "strive for five." You get a feeling of patriotism watching American Nick Hysong in the pole vault. The guy comes out of nowhere to win the event, making you quickly forget all the things wrong with the United States and realize how great this country really is. Unfortunately, we didn't get to see Michael Johnson run.

You certainly do get a different angle of the Olympics from Down Under. Instead of interviewing Michael Johnson after winning the 400, we see an interview with some Aussie bloke that finished seventh. Of course, the questions are usually along the lines of "What is it like to run against Michael Johnson?" Cathy Freeman is a goddess down here — and she deserves to be. She is almost as dominant in the women's field as Johnson is in the men's.

The Olympics has done wonders for Australian identity and patriotism. Historically, Australia has been quite dependent on both British and U.S. culture. Freeman alone has done more to raise awareness of aboriginal society than any individual in the past, and all she did was step on the track. Aussie basketball legend

MICHAEL POE

Instead of interviewing Michael Johnson after winning the 400, we see an interview with some Aussie bloke that finished seventh.

Andrew Gaze has played with more heart and desire than the entire U.S. team. And let's not forget swimming stud Ian Thorpe, who came into the Olympics with seven world records. Good on ya, mates! (That's some Aussie slang for "good work.")

Of course the land down under has not completely abandoned U.S. culture. As I walk around Olympic Park, two things stick out in my mind: McDonald's and Coca-Cola. McDonald's (or Mackers, as the locals call it), is all over the place, and not just in Olympic Park. In downtown Sydney, there is a Mackers on nearly every block. McDonald's has probably been buying up property since Sydney won the Olympic site eight years ago. And Coke has made its rival Pepsi non-existent down here.

The "Today" show has also camped out in Olympic Park for the biggest international event in four years. The crowd can be seen in the background of Katie Couric's broadcast, holding up stupid signs and jumping up and down like idiots. We were, of course, no exception. My friends Dan and Matt attend UNI and Iowa State through study abroad, so we made a sign saying "Fair Dinkum Iowans," and yes, we did make it on TV (Anyone out there happen to see us?) "Fair dinkum" is an Aussie phrase meaning genuine.

When you're at the Olympics, you are bound to see some famous people. My friend Heath ran into NBA star Allan Houston, who was just out for a walk in Olympic Park. The other day, some of us were driving down to Darling Harbor, and we saw boxer Evander Holyfield munching some Mackers and talking on his cell phone. I stuck my head out the car window and yelled, "WHAT'S UP, E!" and actually got a smile and nod from the former gold medalist.

The athletes seem to really be living it up. There was a recent request for more condoms because apparently they were running low. What is the night life like at the Olympics? Put it this way: When I was on my way to the airport at 7 a.m., clubs were still packed. It's kind of like Vegas, because nothing ever closes, although it's Vegas times 10. It's amazing — you walk into a bar and everyone around you is speaking a different language, but they're all drinking the same beer and laughing and singing along to John Denver's "Country Roads" in unison. After several days of enjoying the experience and festivities of the Olympics, Dan and I have sought refuge near Ayers rock to learn about aboriginal culture and society. Australia claims that the closing ceremonies will be the biggest event in its history. This writer doesn't doubt it for a second.

The IOC lashes out against the common cold ...

Testing negative for fairness

Apparently, Olympic standards are so high now that an athlete isn't even allowed to have a common cold. The strive for excellence that is associated with the games has been taken to ridiculous extremes at the summer games this year in Sydney, Australia. Romanian gymnast Andrea Raducan, who turned 17 this past weekend, had her gold medal for the all-around title stripped from her after a routine drug test turned out to be positive for the banned substance pseudoephedrine. On second look, however, it turned out that Raducan had been suffering from a cold and was given two over-the-counter pills, unfortunately containing the substance, by her team doctor.

Though the International Olympic Committee conceded that the substance gave her no competitive advantage, the

The IOC has made an example of Romanian gymnast Andrea Raducan without truly considering the circumstances.

IOC still shot down an appeal by Raducan to retain her medal on Sept. 28. It also expelled the team doctor who gave her the cold medication from the games and banned him from the next winter and summer games. How hard-line is the IOC? According to Kevan Gosper, an IOC executive from Australia, blindly so: "It's a decision that was put to the test. It's a non-ambiguous one, and it demonstrates that we're serious about doping — if anyone had any doubts."

The IOC has made an example of Raducan without truly considering the circumstances. During her failed appeals process, its repeated sympathy for the athlete comes across as extremely facetious, considering it won't change its position on the issue. Doping in the games must be fought and fought well, but unless the IOC decides to regulate every single drug available on the planet, then it must consider every case of doping presented to it on a case-by-case basis. The need may be there: In another case involving the husband and trainer of track star Marion Jones, C.J. Hunter, a strong debate is already developing. In the effort to ensure that everyone is equal, the IOC has simply gone too far. Even at the Olympics, there can be no such thing as a perfect answer to a difficult ethical dilemma.

Remember the Titans fumbles the ball - repeatedly

Film: Remember the Titans
Director: Boaz Yakin
Writer: Gregory Alan Howard
Starring: Denzel Washington, Will Patton, Wood Harris, Ryan Hurst, Donald Faison, Craig Kirkwood
Length: 113 Minutes
Rated: PG

If you want to know the mark of a bad Hollywood film these days, there's really only one thing to look for. No, it's not the quality of acting or the writing. It's the sing-along - the scene in which two opposing people or groups find a way to set aside their differences and come together in song, usually to the tune of some stale '70s hit such as "Ain't No Mountain High Enough." (For one exception to this rule, check out the "Tiny Dancer" sequence in Almost Famous.) Remember The Titans has so many cheesy sing-alongs that I lost count halfway through the movie.

It's 1971, and integration is the new law at T.C. Williams High School in Alexandria, Va. When the School Board starts busing in black students, the town erupts in protest. The racial tension is heightened when the board hires a black man, Herman Boone (Denzel Washington), as the new head football coach, replacing the beloved Coach Yoast (Will Patton), who is expected to become Boone's assistant.

Although neither man is happy with the situation, both feel obligated to assume their new roles.

Boone is swayed by the town's black residents who finally feel like they have someone to represent them; Yoast accepts the demotion to keep the white players from quitting.

Despite their contrasting styles and approaches to the game, the coaches come to respect each other and lead the team through a tumultuous but magical season.

Titans is based on a true story and was produced by Jerry Bruckheimer, the man behind action such blockbusters as Top

Gun, and Armageddon. It's tempting to think that Bruckheimer has turned over a new leaf with this film.

Don't be fooled. For all its weighty subject matter, Titans is just an action film cut to the formula of a sports movie, complete with the obligatory team tragedy and last-second heroics.

In fact, this movie is so sentimental and overwrought that I half-expected Robin Williams to jump onto the field wearing a red clown nose à la Patch Adams.

Screenwriter William Goldman (All The President's Men, The Princess Bride) has said the difference between "art" films and Hollywood films is that art films show us how the world really is, whereas Hollywood films present the world as we want it to be. For me, a good film is an amalgam of the two. It shows us how the world really is, but then suggests a way to transcend this condition. Remember The Titans could have been such a movie. Instead, the filmmakers settled for contrived scenes of racial harmony in which deep-seeded prejudices are easily forgotten thanks to a few speeches and touchdowns. At one point in the film, Boone warns Yoast about coddling the black players every time they make a mistake. "You're not helping these kids by patronizing them," he explains. If only the filmmakers had the same respect for their audience.

BOX OFFICE

Titans stands tall at box office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember the Titans sacked the weekend box office competition with $21.2 million in ticket sales, offering hope that the industry's months-long slump is over, an analyst said Sunday.

Titans, starring Denzel Washington as a coach who helps integrate a high school football team, was the first film to break the $20 million mark in a debut since early August.

The reissue of The Exorcist was second with $7.4 million, losing just 9 percent of its audience in its second week. Almost Famous director Cameron Crowe's fictionalized account of his life as a 15-year-old rock journalist also held up well, with a $5.6 million gross to place third, according to industry estimates.

Titans, rated PG, stood out in a list of R-rated films and drew teen-agers and adults alike.

"It's just a small, sweet movie," said Peter Schneider, the chairman of Walt Disney Studios. "There hasn't been something (like it) in the marketplace."

"I think at the end of the day it's all about emotional content ... when you have something that's both emotional and funny and uplifting."

The movie was made for approximately $27 million, which is considered to be a modest budget for a big-studio picture. It packed theaters, averaging $11,367 per screen. Estimated ticket sales for Sept. 29 through Sunday, according to Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc.:

1. Remember the Titans, $21.2 million.
2. The Exorcist, $7.4 million.
3. Almost Famous, $5.6 million.
4. Urban Legends: Final Cut, $4.7 million.
5. Bring It On, $2.9 million.
6. The Watcher, $2.3 million.
7. Nurse Betty, $2.1 million.
8. (tie) Bait, $1.7 million.
8. (tie) What Lies Beneath, $1.7 million.
10. (tie) Beautiful, $1.4 million.
10. (tie) Space Cowboys, $1.4 million.

Life's better in the married lane

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Travis Tritt says he is lucky to have survived his years of taking drugs and having promiscuous sex.

The 37-year-old country singer said getting married and having two children has settled him down.

"I could easily have killed myself, either with AIDS or with an accidental overdose," Tritt says in the Oct. 17 issue of Country Weekly. "I knew that if I kept doing drugs, somebody was going to find out. I didn't want to be an embarrassment to the people who helped me, so I decided I wasn't going to do that anymore."

Riming again

RENO, Nev. (AP) — LeAnn Rimes is performing again after canceling 30 appearances because of health problems.

"God, it feels so good to be back," she said between numbers on Sept. 29.

The two-time Grammy-winner put her concert schedule on hold in June because of tonsillitis and mononucleosis.

A heavy concert schedule put additional strain on her voice, she said. The 18-year-old performed 400 times in the three years following her debut hit Blue in 1996.

The country singer will sing on the 34th annual CMA Awards Show on CBS Wednesday night. She also will appear Saturday with Christina Aguilera and Seal in Tiger Jam III for the Tiger Woods Foundation in Las Vegas.

horoscopes

Monday, October 2, 2000 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You need some adventure in your life. Try to talk a good friend into taking a holiday with you, but consider the cost before you book a trip to the exotic destination beckoning you. Look into places closer to home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Put your money away for a rainy day. Don't let others coerce you into donating to an organization you don't believe in. You need to take care of your own needs first. Then take care of those closest to you, especially family.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Check into any legal matters that may be incomplete. You can begin new partnerships. Take your time and make sure that everything is in order. Things may not be as you perceive them. Your future is riding on working off a clean slate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can make headway if you share your ideas with your boss. Your view of the situation at work will be amazingly accurate. You can impress others with your fortitude. Take a stand you haven't taken.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will do well if you shop for items that will enhance your appearance, but you should try to stick to a budget. The improvements you make will bring you compliments. Spend too much and people will notice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check out your personal papers and your rights. You are likely to experience problems with family. Be prepared to sort out the mess at home. Go through your closets and get rid of things that you no longer need. It will be a weight off your shoulders.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romantic attractions will surface in the most unusual places. This is a great day to make plans with friends. Discuss your future intentions with someone you respect. Start a list of things to pursue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Implement those innovative ideas that you've had in your head for so long. Moneymaking opportunities are apparent. You should be looking into your own small business.

GEMINI (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Old romantic companions may come back into your life. Your emotions appear to be unstable. Don't forget the problems you had in the past with this same individual. Move on to better things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Intimacies with clients or co-workers would only cause friction at work as well as at home. Keep your private affairs to yourself. You could easily be the topic of conversation if you don't.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You must get involved in worthwhile groups. Your leadership ability will be magnified because of your strong belief in helping those unable to help themselves.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be careful not to tell your secrets to individuals who will let the cat out of the bag. Emotional problems must not be put on display. Take the day off if you think you'll lose your composure.

Brands, McIlravy fall short

Terry Brands and Lincoln McIlravy nab bronze medals at the Olympics.

By Jeremy Schnittker
 The Daily Iowan

For two former Iowa wrestlers, the dream of winning an Olympic gold medal fell one match short.

Lincoln McIlravy, an Iowa assistant wrestling coach, and Terry Brands, a former Iowa assistant, took home bronze medals at the 2000 Olympics in Sydney.

Both had close losses in the semifinals, forcing them to wrestle for third place instead of first.

"They just weren't losses, they were unbelievably tough losses," U.S. co-coach Dan Gable said. "All of them down to the end, all of them close."

McIlravy lost in the semi-

Beutjer shines, Iowa falls to IU

Iowa can't stop Indiana or its Heisman trophy candidate Antwaan Randle El.

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

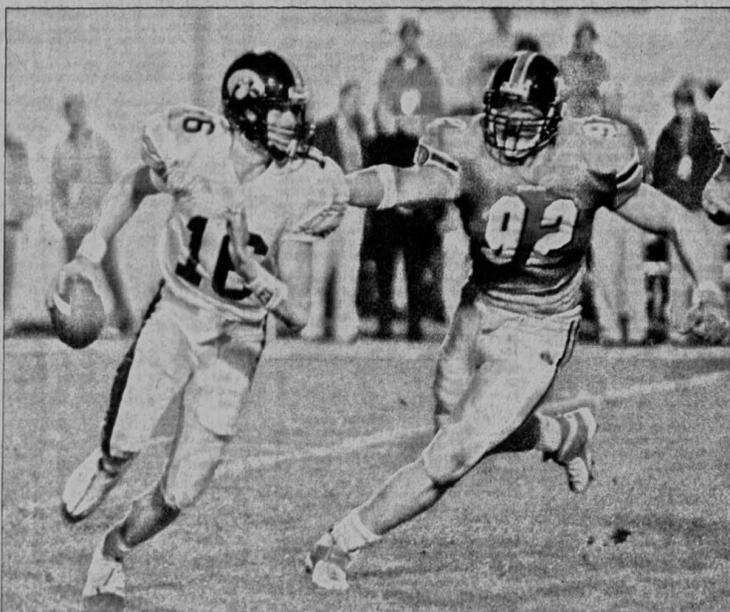

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana alum John Mellenkamp's tune "Your Life is Now" filled Memorial Stadium before the Iowa game on Sept. 30. Behind 380 passing yards and four touchdown passes in his college debut, Jon Beutjer could argue that his time is now.

"I think it's fair to say Jon did a good job today," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said. "To say Scott or Kyle wouldn't have done that, I'm not going to say that either. But Jon was the guy out there, and I think he did everything he could in his part to help us win this game."

However, No. 16's effort can't disguise Iowa's 45-33 loss to Indiana, the 13th straight for the Hawkeyes, setting a school record. With the defeat, Iowa dropped to 0-5 overall and 0-1 in the Big Ten, while Indiana evened its record at 2-2, 1-0 in conference play.

From the game's opening whistle to the final play, IU quarterback junior Antwaan Randle El single-handedly ripped apart Iowa's defense. The Heisman Trophy candidate accounted for 298 of the Hoosiers' 544 total yards, including 187 on the ground, a career high and Indiana QB record. He and his offensive teammates left the Hawkeyes grabbing at ankles and air.

"It's tough to prepare for a guy like that because it's practically impossible to simulate what he does on the football field in practice,"

Jerry Hynes/The Daily Iowan

Iowa freshman quarterback Jon Beutjer threw for 380 yards in his collegiate debut Saturday in Iowa's loss to Indiana.

leading tackler and strong safety Ryan Hansen said. "He gives them so many options. If it's a pass, you can drop back, and if he doesn't find anybody open, he's almost more dangerous just running the football."

Indiana's big-play ability wasn't a secret heading into the game, but once again, Iowa fell victim to the opponents' success on third down. Indiana converted on seven of 12 attempts, helping to establish a 21-3 lead at half-time and preventing Iowa from taking the lead in the second half.

Ferentz said his offensive staff had a great second-half scheme — Iowa put up 30 points and tallied 380 second-half yards. Beutjer was at the center of the Hawkeyes success, bringing Iowa to within five points, 31-26, with 4:21 left in the game when he hooked up with Kevin Kasper in the back of the end zone on a 14-yard scoring play.

"Booty played a great game," said Kasper, Iowa's leading receiver with 143 yards. "He started off a little rocky, but we expected that. He threw some great passes and made some great plays happen, and that's what we were looking for."

The offensive shakeup didn't produce the desired results Iowa was looking for, as Randle El, Indiana's new General, answered every Hawkeye scoring drive and sealed the game with two late rushing touchdowns.

After watching the Hoosier offense tear up the field, there's no question it will be a difficult team to contain. To get that elusive win, Iowa's offense will have to produce similar results against much better defenses. The Hoosiers were ranked last in pass defense and near the bottom in total defense.

Beutjer indicated he has no intention of settling for great individual performances if they're linked to Hawkeye defeats.

"I did OK, but we have to win," he said. "That's my job as a quarterback and as a leader — to lead this team to victory."

Iowa soccer strikes quickly in win

The Hawkeyes down Northwestern with two goals in less than one minute.

By Laura Podolak
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's soccer team scored twice in under two minutes to beat the Northwestern Wildcats Sunday.

The Hawkeyes were down 1-0 going into the start of the second half, when they turned on the pressure and scored two quick goals.

The first of the two was scored by Linzy Wolman, her seventh of the year. She scored unassisted on a perfectly placed corner kick. The ball caught just enough of the wind to curve it into the back corner of Northwestern's goal.

Wolman was as surprised as anyone at the outcome of her kick.

"I've only scored two times on corner kicks. It wasn't planned; the wind was blowing backwards and helped it in," she said.

Iowa's second goal came off of the ensuing kick off. The Hawkeyes front line quickly "stuffed" the Wildcats kick. Walse sailed the ball over her and her defender's heads to Sarah Lynch in stride. Lynch used her superb placement skills and punched it into the left corner of the goal.

Lynch's breakaway goal was her fifth on the season.

Iowa coach Wendy Logan said she was pleased with her team's performance on the field.

"We made some minor adjustments that made a significant difference in the second half," she said. "I give credit to the players for executing those changes."

Logan touched on a problem in the first half of the game and said the team was not getting the ball to the forwards enough.

"We played the first half too safe. We were trying to be pretty. But when you play pretty soccer, sometimes you eliminate the object of the game, to get the ball in front of their goal," Logan said.

The adjustments made at half-time were effective for the Hawkeyes, who held off some late pushes by Northwestern, to get the win.

The Hawkeyes were not as fortunate in their game on Sept. 29 against Michigan. Iowa was behind, 2-0, in the first half and then rallied in the second half to tie the game at 2.

The game went into double overtime before the Wolverines put away the Hawkeyes on a kick that ricocheted off the cross bar and dropped near the feet of an opposing player, who booted it in for the win.

Logan was not disappointed with her team's play. She said Michigan's counterattack is its strength; if teams let the Wolverines play their game, they are hard to beat.

"Friday was a tough loss for us. We created opportunities; we just couldn't get over the edge," she said. "If you let a team like Michigan stay in the game, it will come back and punish you."

Although the Hawkeyes were behind in the first half of both games, Logan said, she is pleased with the way the team has been starting on the whistle. Logan mentioned before that this was an area her team needed to work on, but she said it is no longer a problem.

Another important note on the weekend was that Wolman was named to Soccer America's National Team of the Week after her efforts in Iowa's win over Wake Forest last weekend. She set up both the Hawkeyes goals against the Demon Deacons on Sept. 24.

This marks the first time an Iowa player has ever been selected for the honor.

Wolman was also named the Women's Intercollegiate Sports Council athlete of the week for her outstanding play.

The Hawkeyes go on the road next weekend, when they take on Ohio State on Oct. 6 and Penn State on Oct. 8.

Hawkeyes stumble through weekend

Field hockey coach Tracey Griesbaum says she wants her team's energy level to rise.

By Roseanna Smith
 The Daily Iowan

The weekend brought a disappointing loss on Sept. 29 and an unsatisfactory win Sunday for the Iowa field hockey team. Shut out by No. 4 Michigan, 4-0, in the last three minutes of regulation, the Hawks left Grant Field with a bitter taste in their mouths. Iowa (5-6 overall, 0-2 Big Ten) practiced on Sept. 30 with two goals: Play all 70 minutes, and win against Sunday opponent Southwest Missouri State (5-5).

Iowa head coach Tracey Griesbaum said one of those goals was accomplished with Iowa's 2-0 victory Sunday.

"I don't think we had the peaks and valleys we usually have, but we didn't sustain a high-enough level," she said. "We were more consistent, but I don't think we played at the level I'd like to play, or at the level they're capable of playing."

Iowa took a shared offensive and defensive role Sunday against Southwest. The Hawks stayed strong under constant pressure from the Bears' offensive drives and heavy physical game from the start.

In the first 10 minutes of the game, sophomore midfielder

Tiffany Leister was injured in a scuffle with Southwest, and she was taken to the UI Hospitals and Clinics with a possible head injury. A stick caught her in the back of the head, and she fell to the turf and landed on her neck.

Griesbaum said Leister was taken in for precautionary measures and was OK, but the experience "put a little scare" into the rest of the Hawkeye lineup.

UI senior forward Susan Gibson agreed with Griesbaum, adding that the injury gave the Hawks a "let's

thebottomline

It was an epic battle between two of the worst defenses in the Big Ten — when it was all said and done, Indiana just scored more points than Iowa. Behind the running and passing of Antwaan Randle-El, Indiana ran over Iowa's defense for 187 yards.

SAY WHAT?

To say Scott or Kyle wouldn't have done that, I'm not going to say that either. But Jon was the guy out there, and I think he did everything he could in his part to help us win this game.

Iowa game more than just another game for Indiana

Todd Brommelkamp

GAME ANALYSIS

For those who don't know, Saturday's game against the Hawkeyes was more than just a game for Indiana — it was a memorial to one of their own.

Pete Schmidt, the man who single-handedly created IU's explosive offense, passed away Friday morning at the age of 52 after complications from lymphoma cancer.

I have to admit that it has been a long time since I've seen a grown man cry, but Indiana coach Cam Cameron did just that at the mere mention of Schmidt's name. It was possibly the most touching moment I've ever been witness to, and I'm doubtful anyone who was present will forget the moment anytime soon.

Schmidt had been along Cameron's side since he took over the Hoosier program in November of 1996. The duo saw both good times and bad, but perhaps the worst was after last October's visit to Kinnick Stadium. Schmidt began complaining of pains in his hip, which turned out to be more than regular pains. It was cancer. He fought it to the end, continuing to coach the Hoosiers while in remission, until the cancer finally took its toll following spring drills.

When Hawkeye fans were watching Hoosier quarterback Antwaan Randle El embarrass defender after defender on Saturday, they weren't just watching a great quarterback — they were watching the legacy of a great coach.

Besides being an assistant to Cameron, Schmidt's main duty included coaching Randle El and IU's other quarterbacks. The option offense that broke Iowa's back was Schmidt's project.

Randle El, the man who many consider to be a poor man's version of Virginia Tech's Michael Vick, was uncharacteristically silent on the issue following the game, saying he was not ready to talk about it.

A moment of silence was held in memory of Schmidt prior to the start of the game.

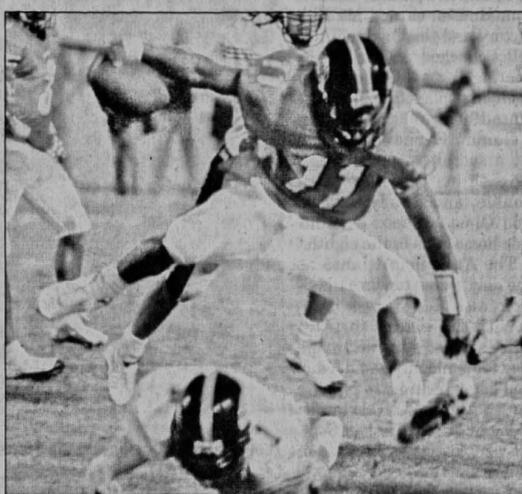

For members of Iowa's defense, the moment could have lasted the entire game.

For the second week in a row, Iowa was brought to its knees by the option attack. This was not Nebraska's option though. Where Eric Crouch would almost surely pitch the ball to one of his backs, there was no given with Randle El. Twice he took the ball in for scores, with the last being the final score of the game. On the rare occasions when he did not rush, he took to the air. If not for the poor hands of his receivers, the game could have been much uglier.

One thing is for certain. As hard as it was for the defensive line to prepare for Randle El, he certainly had prepared for them.

"They didn't give us anything different," he said. "It was the same stuff we ran in practice, they didn't change their defense at all."

No matter what defense Iowa chose to employ, it could not have stopped Randle El Saturday evening in Bloomington, but it does say something about the defense when four of your five leading tacklers are in the secondary. The defense simply did not get the job done.

Cameron took no praise for his team's victory, instead heaping it on the man whose signature was all over the Indiana offense — Pete Schmidt.

While Schmidt's memory will live on at Indiana as long as Randle El is taking snaps under center, the Hawkeyes aren't likely to forget his accomplishments either. It's enough to bring a tear to anyone's eyes.

Suhr leads way for Iowa's women golfers

The Hawkeye's women's golf team places 10th out of 16th.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

The goal of the Iowa women's golf team this weekend was to improve each day of the Lady Northern Invitational. After three long days and 54 holes on the University of Minnesota course, they accomplished their goal.

The Hawkeyes shot rounds of 324, 315 and 314 to finish 10th out of 16 teams. UI sophomore Heather Suhr led the way for the Hawkeyes, shooting a 235, which put her in a tie for 35th place.

"We want to play better than the day before, and we did that," said head coach Diane Thomason.

Iowa also finished ahead of Big Ten opponents Illinois and Wisconsin. However, the team had its sights on overtaking Penn State as well. The Hawkeyes trailed the Nittany Lions by four strokes going into the final round and couldn't catch them in the end.

Ohio State took the team title with a 896 and had the top golfer, Mollie Frankhauser, who shot a 218.

Iowa freshman Maggie Gabelman finished in the top 50 in only her second collegiate tournament. Her rounds of 80,79 and 78 put her in a tie for 40th.

Overall Thomason said she was pleased by what her young team has achieved.

"We are a young squad, but we have a lot of potential," she said. "We need to work on the short game and improve on that aspect of our game."

Welter leads Hawkeyes

The men's cross country team competed at Indiana State.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's cross country team is pleased with its improved team finish, but is still looking to cross the finish line even sooner.

"We made progress this weekend," said head coach Larry Wiczorek. "I was hoping for a bigger step though than we did. We continue to improve, but not as quickly as we want to."

The Hawkeyes placed fifth at the Indiana State Invitational Saturday. The 11-team meet included 15th ranked Northern Arizona who won the meet with a score of 24. Iowa's final score was 109.

Iowa was led by sophomore walk-on Joe Welter, who placed 10th with a career-high time of 25:33.20. Following him was junior Shaun Allen who finished 18th in 25:57.40 and close behind sophomore Bobby Atkins, who placed 20th in 25:59.70.

"For me, the real highlight this weekend was Joe Welter," said Wiczorek.

quarterbyquarter

Behind the running of Antwaan Randle El and Levron Williams, the Indiana Hoosiers jumped out to a huge lead against Iowa early in the game. With touchdowns from Devin Graham and Levron Williams, the Hoosiers found themselves up 14-0 in the first quarter.

Iowa could not hold Indiana's option attack of Randle El and Williams as they ripped through Iowa's defense.

Iowa's offense, on the other hand was stagnant much of the first quarter. Freshman Jon Butjer looked a little timid in his first two series. He was throwing over and under receivers for much of the first half.

Iowa started the scoring in the third quarter when Butjer connected with Kevin Kasper for a 37-yard touchdown pass. That score put Iowa back in the game trailing only by 14 points.

Indiana capped off an 84-yard march on its next drive by scoring off a 15-yard Randle El TD pass to Jerry Dorsey, putting Indiana up 28-10.

Iowa responded a drive that ended with a 35-yard field goal by Kaeding. A 41-yard run by Ladell Betts set Iowa up for that field goal by putting Iowa on the Indiana 20-yard line.

Indiana's offense continued to rip through Iowa's defense in the second quarter behind more Randle El and Williams runs. Indiana scored off a Brian Lewis 7-yard run to give Indiana a commanding 21-0 lead in the second quarter.

Iowa's offense, which had looked flat in the first half, began to move the ball more in the second quarter. Iowa put a drive together early in the second, but Nate Kaeding missed a 40-yard field goal.

Iowa put together a scoring drive later in the second, behind three Butjer to Kahlil Hill passes for 17, 25 and 11 yards. The Hawkeyes drove down to the Indiana 14-yard line and Kaeding connected on a 31 yard kick.

The fourth quarter was a shoot-out for both teams. Butjer's passing and Randle El's proved hard for each team's defense to stop.

Iowa scored on touchdown passes from Butjer to Ryan Barton, Butjer to Kevin Kasper, and Butjer to Chris Oliver.

Randle El scored two TD's of his own off runs of 14 and 42 yards.

Iowa looked like it could come back at times but everytime they scored, Indiana matched them.

Randle El's running proved to be too much for Iowa, and Indiana held on for the win.

Iowa drops two over the weekend

The Hawkeye volleyball team loses its first road game.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

All good things must come to an end.

Saturday, the Iowa volleyball team's perfect conference record was ruined by the No. 11 Penn State Nittany Lions.

Iowa, which extended its conference winning streak to three games on Sept. 29 at Indiana, gave the defending national champions a battle before falling, 3-1.

"We just didn't start out right," said coach Rita Buck-Crockett. "It hurts your confidence."

Katie Panhorst and Renee Hill led the way for Iowa, each recording 20 kills. Panhorst also hit .471 to lead the Iowa attack. Fabiana De Abreu served up 61 assists.

Crockett said she is glad to see Panhorst having a good senior year.

"Katie is playing the best I've ever seen her play," she said.

On Sept. 29, Iowa picked up a victory over Indiana in the team's first road match of the season. Iowa took game one 15-5 before the Hoosiers rallied for victories in games two and three. Indiana won a hard fought battle for the second game, hanging on for a 15-12 victory and taking the third game, 15-9.

With the Hoosiers leading the match the Hawkeyes answered the challenge winning the final two games for the hard-fought five-game victory, 3-2. Iowa never allowed the Hoosiers to make a serious challenge in either of the final sets, winning the fourth 15-7 and the final game 15-6 with rally scoring.

Buck-Crockett said she believed her team was capable of defeating the Hoosiers in fewer games, but the team fell victim to bad luck.

"To their credit, the team really came back and put (Penn State) away," she said.

With the weekend split, the Hawkeyes improve to 7-5 overall and 3-1 in the Big Ten. Though she would have preferred to win both matches, Buck-Crockett said, she will gladly take the results of this weekend.

"For them to come through in their first road trip was huge," she said.

The Hawks will return home this weekend to host Northwestern Friday and the No. 14 Wisconsin Badgers Saturday.

Sekhri leads Iowa

UI junior Desh Sekhri is the only player to win his singles flight.

By Nick Firchau
The Daily Iowan

With the absence of senior Tyler Cleveland during the fall season, UI men's tennis coach Steve Houghton knew that some of his other players would have a great opportunity to step up and improve their game.

This past weekend at the Furman Fall Classic in Furman, S.C., junior Desh Sekhri did just that. Sekhri was the lone Hawkeye to win his singles flight, and the first player on the team to win his flight this season.

"Desh sacked the competition," Houghton said. "Everyone played better than last weekend, and it was against some really tough competition. But this is a really big deal for Desh."

Sekhri prevailed in the tournament's seventh- and eighth-seed flight and defeated Furman's John Navarro in the flight's championship match.

Houghton said he was pleased with the team's performance this week, coming on the heels of a positive start to the season last weekend at the Ball State Invitational. Senior Jake Wilson split his four matches in the tournament's top flight.

Sophomore Hunter Skogman competed in the third flight and also went 2-2 in the tournament. Skogman and sophomore Pete Rose teamed up again in the tournament's top doubles flight and advanced to the quarterfinals.

The team's next tournament will be on Oct. 14-15 at Purdue.

Men's golf takes second

Iowa almost won it's second meet in a row.

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

After winning a tournament for the first time in four years, the Iowa men's golf team almost took its second title in one week. Instead, Iowa settled for second place as Purdue overtook Iowa in the third round of Northern Intercollegiate.

Following rounds of 298 and 291 on Sept. 30, Iowa was deadlocked with Purdue for first place in the 18-team field. However, the Boilermakers shot a 300 Sunday in windy conditions, while Iowa could only manage a 304.

Despite Purdue's better round, the Hawks still finished ahead of 16 other teams, including seven Big Ten foes, at the Stone Creek Golf Course in Champaign, Ill.

"We got beat by a better team," said head coach Terry Anderson. "We played well, but Purdue just did a better job in the tough conditions."

Junior Tyler Stith led the team with a three-round total of 221 to tie for eighth place. He was six strokes behind the tournament champion Matt Abbot of Penn State.

Senior Matt Stutzman finished first with a score of 223. Sophomore Bo Anderson was close behind, finishing with a 226.

A's, Mariners headed for playoffs

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Tim Hudson earned his 20th victory and the Oakland Athletics clinched the AL West by beating Texas 3-0 Sunday for their first playoff appearance since 1992.

Ramon Hernandez broke up a scoreless game in the seventh inning with an RBI double, and Randy Velarde and Olmedo Saenz each hit solo home runs in the eighth.

The A's joined Atlanta as the only teams to win 11 division titles.

With the victory, the Athletics avoided a trip to Tampa Bay for a makeup game today and got extra time to prepare for the playoffs. Oakland's game at Tampa Bay on Sept. 18 was postponed because of Hurricane Gordon.

The Cleveland Indians beat Toronto, 11-4, earlier in the day, preventing the A's from clinching a playoff spot prior to their game.

The A's started the day with a half-game lead over Seattle in the AL West. Oakland holds the tiebreaker over the Mariners, having gone 9-4 against them this season.

There had been talk that manager Art Howe would hold Hudson (20-6) if Cleveland lost, but the manager decided Saturday night he would start his ace no matter what.

"During the postseason, you want to have home-field advantage as much as possible. That's why I wanted Hudson to pitch," Howe said Sunday. "I wanted him to win here in front of the hometown fans, to get his 20th."

Mariners 5, Angels 3

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The Seattle Mariners clinched the AL wild card spot and closed out Cleveland from the playoffs, getting home runs from Alex Rodriguez and

Eric Risberg/Associated Press

The Oakland Athletics celebrate after winning the American League West title Sunday.

David Bell to beat Anaheim, 5-2, Sunday.

Seattle set a team record for wins, going 91-71 and finishing a half-game behind AL West champion Oakland.

The Athletics did not have to play a makeup game Monday at Tampa Bay because they already held the tiebreaker over the Mariners, going 9-4 against them.

Seattle, which led the West for most of the second half, will make its first playoff appearance since 1997. The Mariners open the best-of-5 first round at the Chicago White Sox on Tuesday while the Athletics start later the same day at home against the New York Yankees.

Cardinals 6, Reds 2

ST. LOUIS — After making a strong pitch for a starting spot in the playoffs, Andy Benes said he's ready for a relief role, if needed.

"We're going to have a good starter no matter who it is," Benes said Sunday after the St. Louis Cardinals wrapped up home-field advantage in the first round of the playoffs with a 6-2 win over the Cincinnati Reds.

Benes (12-9) won his second straight start since coming off the disabled list Sept. 2 and made a bid for a start against the Atlanta Braves.

Benes gave up two runs and six hits in six innings, and Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said he is not certain what Benes' role will be.

Darryl Kile and Rick Ankiel are the only definite starters.

"The fair thing to do is let cooler heads prevail when we make a decision," La Russa said. "It's a tough call. Is Andy 100 percent?"

Rockies 10, Braves 5

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Braves were one strike away from opening the postseason on Tuesday at Turner Field.

Todd Helton changed that in a hurry.

The Braves blew their chance to clinch home-field advantage for the first round of the playoffs when third baseman Chipper Jones' two-out error in the ninth inning set up Helton's homer on an 0-2 pitch and helped Colorado to a 10-5 win Sunday in the regular-season finale.

Rowers pick up three Freshman emerge for women

■ The Iowa rowing team wins despite windy conditions.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's rowing team fought through windy conditions this weekend to capture three wins in its first regatta of the season.

The Hawkeyes were able to sweep all of the varsity events they entered in the Head of the Des Moines for the second year in a row. Iowa won the Open 8+ race, the Open 4+ race and the Pairs race.

"We were happy with the sweep, but we were disappointed with the rowing," said head coach Mandj Kowal. "When you have varying winds like Saturday, rowers will struggle to get into a groove. I thought the rowers handled it well."

Last weekend brought in a lot of adversity with the toughest kind of wind, surface wind. Because of the weather frustrations, only one out of 11 Iowa crews walked away from the water pleased with its actual race.

Iowa won the Open 8+ competition for the fourth year in a row. Iowa's A Boat came in first place with a time of 16:26, with the Iowa B boat finishing third with 16:57.

In the Open 4+ competition, the Iowa A boat finished first with a time of 18:26, and Iowa's B boat came in at seventh.

The top two spots in the Pairs race were captured by Iowa with times of 20:08 and 20:14.

■ The women's tennis team places second at the Furman Fall Classic.

By Nick Firchau
The Daily Iowan

The UI women's tennis team proved this weekend that its depth and the play of the younger players may be its strongest assets. One week after freshman Jody Scheldt won her flight at the Furman Fall Classic, freshmen Pascale Veraverbeke and Jennifer Hodgman both placed second in their flights at the Eck Classic in South Bend, Ind.

Veraverbeke advanced to the finals of the tournament's C flight before falling to Katie Dougherty of Wisconsin, 7-5, 7-5. Hodgman lost in the D flight's title match to Northwestern's Jessica Rush, 6-2, 6-3.

Sophomore Cassie Haas had another strong showing in her second tournament as a Hawk-eye after transferring from Texas A&M. Haas competed in the tournament's top bracket and earned fifth place.

"The singles players are way ahead of where we thought they would be," said Coach Paul Wardlaw. "We've still got a ways to go; it's going to be a function of time. But we definitely played much better than last week at Furman."

The team's lone active senior, Erica Johnson, rebounded from losing the first set in her third place match in the tournament's B flight against Wisconsin's Linda Mues and won 3-6, 6-0, 7-5.

Women runners improve

■ The women's cross-country team places second of five teams.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's cross country team had its best finish of the season so far, yet it came home disappointed.

"All runners improved their times this weekend," said head coach Sarah Swails. "We were still a little disappointed."

The Hawkeyes placed second out of five teams in the Midwest Pre-Regional meet, Sept. 29, beating University of Northern Illinois, Minnesota and Western Illinois University.

The University of Illinois finished in first place with a score of 24, followed by Iowa with a score of 59, at the meet hosted by the University of Northern Iowa.

Iowa's sophomore Sarah Arens once again proved she is the Hawkeyes leader, finishing the 6,000-meter course in third place. Her time was 21:58, a season-best time for the Remsem, Iowa, native.

"I have been cutting time each meet, but I would like to cut another 30 seconds by Regional time," said Arens.

Sophomore Michelle Lahann followed with an 11th place finish with a time of 23:00. Sophomore Erica Roberts finished 15th (23:07), closely followed by freshman Georgia Millward's 16th place finish (23:09). The 23rd and 24th place spots were filled by Iowa's Amy Murphy and Atalie Barber respectively.

"Sarah did a good job of being our leader," said Swails.

Rams annihilate Chargers' defense to stay undefeated

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The only question for the Rams seems to be: How high can they go?

Kurt Warner threw four touchdown passes for the defending Super Bowl champions as unbeaten St. Louis defeated the winless San Diego Chargers 57-31 in another awesome display of offensive power.

Warner finished 24-of-30 for 390 yards, showing no signs of slowing down a season after winning the league and Super Bowl MVP awards. St. Louis has averaged 43.4 points in its five games.

After complaining mildly that he threw only 19 times last week, Warner opened the game Sunday with 14 straight passes. He was 21-of-26 for 290 yards and three touchdowns in the first half alone.

He left the game late in the third quarter with the Rams ahead, 40-17. St. Louis has won 14 in a row at the Trans World Dome.

Vikings 31, Lions 24

PONTIAC, Mich. — Randy Moss told Daunte Culpepper just to throw the ball high because he was the only one who was going to come down with it.

Good advice.

Moss caught scoring passes of 61, 50 and 17 yards from Culpepper as the Minnesota Vikings stayed unbeaten with a 31-24 victory over Detroit on Sunday.

The Vikings (4-0) took command of the game with two touchdowns in a 2:26 span midway through the final quarter.

Steelers 24, Jaguars 13

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — After two near misses, the Pittsburgh Steelers got their first victory.

With Kordell Stewart avoiding costly mistakes and Jerome Bettis leading a running game that produced 209 yards and three touchdowns, the Steelers beat the Jacksonville Jaguars 24-13 Sunday.

They made more of the kind of errors that can cost a team games, but an inspired defense kept the sputtering Jaguars out of the end zone until the final minute to drop Jacksonville (2-3) below .500 for the first time since 1996.

Cowboys 16, Panthers 13

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — When Emmitt Smith is due for a breakout game, Troy Aikman can feel it.

Aikman got that feeling Sunday, and Smith proved him right by rushing for a season-high 132 yards and the 150th touchdown of his career as Dallas beat Carolina 16-13 in overtime.

Tim Seder's 24-yard field goal lifted Dallas (2-3) over struggling Carolina (1-3).

Ravens 12, Browns 0

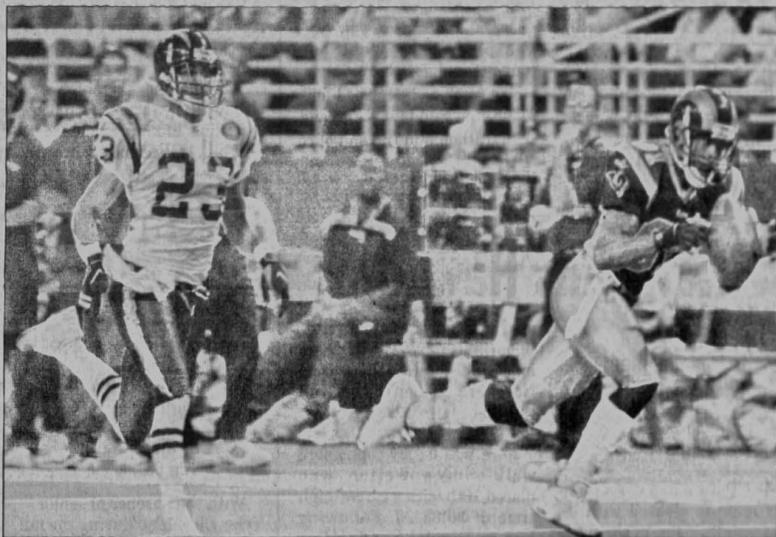

CLEVELAND — While plenty of fans kept an eye on the baseball game next door, the Baltimore Ravens pitched another shutout.

The Ravens became the first NFL team in 15 years to shut out consecutive opponents while kicker Matt Stover supplied what offense there was in a 12-0 victory over the Cleveland Browns on Sunday.

Some of the biggest cheers of the day came when updates were flashed on the scoreboard from the Indians' game against Toronto at nearby Jacobs Field. They won, 11-4, to maintain their flickering playoff hopes.

Colts 18, Bills 16

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Peyton Manning proved he can win without putting up big numbers.

Mary Butkus/Associated Press

St. Louis' Az-Zahir Hakim catches a Kurt Warner pass for 51 yards as San Diego's DeRon Jenkins tries to catch him Sunday.

Facing the AFC's stingiest defense, Manning led two scoring drives in the final quarter — including one in the final 68 seconds — as Indianapolis beat Buffalo, 18-16, on Sunday.

After the Colts fell behind 16-15 on Eric Moulds' 40-yard reception with 1:08 left, Manning drove Indianapolis 42 yards to set up Mike Vanderjagt's 45-yard field goal as time ran out.

"We were very calm. There was no panic at all," said Manning, the NFL's second-rated passer who was coming off a franchise-record 440-yard performance in Monday night's 43-14 victory over Jacksonville. "The fact that we had three timeouts was big because it didn't feel like we had to force the ball long."

Titans 28, Giants 14

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Tennessee Titans picked the perfect time to put together a ball-control offense.

Steve McNair threw three touchdown passes and Eddie George ran for another TD as the Titans beat the New York Giants 28-14 Sunday, setting an NFL record with their 10th straight victory to christen the new stadium.

The Titans (3-1) won their third straight game by controlling the ball against the Giants (3-2), who went into the game ranked second in the NFL in time of possession.

Bears 27, Packers 24

GREEN BAY, Wis. — The Chicago Bears needed another big play to finish off the Green Bay Packers, and this time Phillip Daniels provided it.

Daniels knocked down Brett Favre as he was releasing a fourth-down pass at midfield with 11 seconds left, forcing an incompleteness that preserved Chicago's 27-24 victory over Green Bay on Sunday.

Rookie tight end Bubba Franks dropped a high but catchable pass at the 30 on the previous play that would have put the Packers in position for a game-tying field goal.

Packers coach Mike Sherman put his arm around Franks, and they walked off the field together.

Redskins 20, Bucs 17

LANDOVER, Md. — It was finally time for Prime Time.

Deion Sanders, whose first four games with Washington were decidedly unspectacular, returned a punt 57 yards in overtime to set up Michael Husted's 20-yard field goal, giving Washington a 20-17 victory over Tampa Bay on Sunday.

It was retribution for Sanders, who until Sunday hadn't come close to living up to the $57 million, seven-year deal he signed last summer with Washington. And for Husted, who spent much of his career in Tampa and had a 35-yard attempt blocked with 43 seconds left, allowing Tampa to tie the game in regulation.

Patriots 28, Broncos 19

DENVER — Frustrated by his failure to rally his team in the closing minutes of the first four games, Drew Bledsoe took a different approach.

Bledsoe threw three touchdown passes in the first half and four in all, leading the New England Patriots to their first win, 28-19 over the Denver Broncos on Sunday.

Bledsoe, who had thrown only three TD passes in the first four games, was 18-of-27 for 271 yards with one interception. In the process, he moved ahead of Steve Grogan into first place in New England history with 27,033 career yards passing.

49ers 27, Cardinals 20

SAN FRANCISCO — If Terrell Owens was watching at home, he was probably celebrating again.

Charlie Garner rushed for two touchdowns and Jeff Garcia threw for 220 yards and another score as the San Francisco 49ers held off a late rally by Jake Plummer to beat the Arizona Cardinals, 27-20, Sunday.

The 49ers won consecutive games for the first time since the third and fourth weeks of last season — and they did it without Owens, their top receiver. He was suspended from the game by coach Steve Mariucci because of his midfield touchdown celebrations last week at Dallas.

Basketball wins, boxing struggles

■ The "Dream Team" has to put up a fight for the gold.

By Larry McShane
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — High hopes gave way to harsh reality on the last day of the Sydney Games. For the U.S. boxers and freestyle wrestlers, that meant an Olympic gold medal shutout for the first time in decades. For the French basketball team, it meant a chastened U.S. "Dream Team" reasserting its Olympic superiority in a gold medal-winning 85-75 performance.

After staggering off with a two-point semifinal victory against Lithuania, the NBA all-stars sprinted to an early final lead against France. The Americans faltered in the second half, when the lead was cut to four, but Vince Carter's double-pump dunk with 1:40 left sparked a closing 9-3 U.S. run.

"It wasn't a cakewalk," said U.S. center Alonzo Mourning. "I think that will make us appreciate it even more."

While nowhere near as imposing as in the past, the U.S. team still went undefeated and brought home a gold for the third consecutive Olympics. Carter and Ray Allen led the Americans with 13 points apiece.

"Now, we have the ultimate championship," Allen said. "We won a gold medal with the whole world watching."

Lithuania, a two-point semifinal loser to the Americans, won its third consecutive bronze by beating host Australia, 89-71, on Sunday.

With the final day under way, the Americans were poised to collect the most medals, leading the pack with 94 (39 gold, 24 silver, 31 bronze). Running second was Russia with 79 (29-24-26), followed by China's 59 (28-16-15).

• BOXING: The U.S. boxing team, which arrived in Sydney hoping to reverse its recent Olympic fortunes, wound up without a single gold medal for the first time since London in 1948.

U.S. boxer Ricardo Juarez lost Sunday to 125-pounder Bekzat Sattarkhanov of Kazakhstan, 22-14, giving him a silver medal and leaving the American team with one last shot at winning its only gold in Australia.

Ricardo Williams wasn't up to the task. He was defeated 27-20 by Mahamadkadyz Abdullaev of Uzbekistan in his gold-medal bout at 139 pounds.

The United States protested the decisions in both bouts, with a ruling expected later in the day.

In each of the past two Olympics, U.S. boxers had won just a single gold medal. In Australia, they failed to reach even that modest total — ending up with two silver and two bronze, two less than the one gold and five bronze won in Atlanta.

• WRESTLING: Disaster struck quickly with four straight losses Sunday, dashing any hopes of a U.S. gold — the first time that's happened since Mexico City in 1968.

Ex-Iowa wrestlers Terry Brands and Lincoln McIlravy lost close semifinal matches; Brands and McIlravy won later to each take a bronze. Kerry McCoy and Charles Burton lost tight quarterfinal matches and were shut out of the medals.

On Saturday, U.S. wrestlers Brandon Slay and Sammie Henson had won silver after tough defeats in the finals.

Greco-Roman gold medalist Rulon Gardner, who ended the 13-year undefeated streak of Russian super heavyweight Alexander Karelin, will carry the U.S. flag during the Olympic closing ceremony Sunday.

• MARATHON: Gezahgne Abera of Ethiopia arrived first at the Olympic Stadium, then circled the track as he headed for the finish line Sunday — the end of the marathon and the end of competition at the Sydney Games.

Abera, 22, the runner-up this year in the closest Boston Marathon ever, captured the gold in the final event of the Summer Games.

Jones short in quest for five golds; she ends up with only three gold medals

■ Marion Jones isn't disappointed, but says there's still something out there.

By Steve Wilstein
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — Posing for a photo with her heavy necklace of medals, Marion Jones looks the two bronzes behind the three golds as if embarrassed to be seen with anything but the best.

"I'll just hide them a little," she says with a pert smile.

These were not the fairy-tale Olympics that Marion Jones imagined once upon a time, a games glittering with gold and unsullied by scandal.

She affirmed her status as the fastest woman alive, winning the 100 and 200, and tied a bow around her games with a blistering leg in the 1,600 relay. But the bronzes in the long jump and 400 relay left her with a feeling she can't quite describe.

Not sad, not disappointed, she decides as she leans back in her chair at a restaurant across from the sun-kissed Opera House on Sunday, a few hours before the closing ceremony. More like reaching out for a prize and grabbing only air.

"There's something still out there," she says. "That gold medal was there for the taking in the long jump. And the relay, we had some injuries. We didn't have our best horses. I guess everybody wants to win the lottery. You just don't want to win the $2 ticket."

Jones laughs at that, admitting she's hard on herself. Yet, she knows how lucky she is to have her medals, her health, and a life

Rob Griffith/Associated Press

Marion Jones laughs at one of the questions she is asked at a breakfast for some of the gold-medal winning athletes in Sydney, Australia, Sunday.

she loves.

The photos she's just posed for were taken with an 11-year-old girl with leukemia, Mya Thompson, of Ithaca, N.Y., who was flown to Sydney by the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America. Mya's wish: to watch Jones in the Olympics.

These are one of those moments when Jones can put her own experience in perspective, when the difference between gold and bronze is less important, and when even the tribulation brought on by the doping case against her husband, world champion shot putter C.J. Hunter, is not so serious by comparison.

Michael Johnson suggested that Jones begin to assume a leadership role in American track and field, speaking out on issues of importance to athletes. At 24 and with only one Olympics behind her, Jones says she feels a bit overwhelmed by that responsibility but is flattered to be regarded as a leader.

"To have Michael Johnson say that, I think it says a lot about my character," she says.

Jones' character was on display in Sydney as much as her athletic prowess. The news of Hunter's four flunked tests showing the anabolic steroid nandrolone broke two days after Jones won the 100, and two days before she won the 200. She sat by Hunter's side as he spoke tearfully at a press conference, and she issued a brief statement of support.

Now, with the games over, she gazes out across gleaming Sydney Harbor toward the shell-white Opera House and reflects back on that difficult period when the accusations hurt her much more than she wanted to let on.

"I was at the brink when I made my statement," she says. "I was very emotional at that point."

She recalls huddling in her room with her family, her coach, and her husband, making a plan that would help her get through this ill-timed crisis.

"We decided they would make a circle around me and embrace me and support me and kind of make positive energy just flow my way," Jones says. "When I got on the track for that first round of the 200, it was all business."

Jones still doesn't waver in her support for Hunter and her belief that he will be vindicated.

"I think he's a clean athlete, and there's been an injustice against him," she says. "I think in the coming weeks, months, however long it takes, C.J.'s name will be cleared."

U.S. drug cases still suppressed

■ Details on 10 positive drug tests are being withheld.

By Stephen Wilson
Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — USA Track & Field continues to suppress details on at least 10 positive drug tests, including three for the same steroid allegedly used by C.J. Hunter, the sport's top anti-doping official said Sunday.

Arne Ljungqvist, the medical commission chief of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, said last week that USATF had failed to report up to 15 positive cases in the past two years.

Since then, Ljungqvist said, the IAAF has been notified that five cases have been concluded. The athletes, who were not identified, were found guilty of using the banned stimulants ephedrine and pseudoephedrine.

"There are still 10 outstanding cases," Ljungqvist said. "We don't have any names, information, explanation or anything."

Doping lab reports, however, indicate that four of the cases are for ephedrine or related stimulants, three for high testosterone-epitestosterone levels and three for the steroid nandrolone, Ljungqvist said.

In two of the nandrolone cases, the athletes were exonerated by USATF, he said.

"We have no reason why," Ljungqvist said. "The Americans have taken the privilege on themselves to exonerate without informing us who (the athletes) are and saying this is confidential."

Nandrolone is the same substance for which Hunter, husband of sprint star Marion Jones, tested positive in four separate tests in Europe this summer, according to the IAAF. The positives were confirmed only after leaks in the media.

Hunter withdrew from the U.S. Olympic team on Sept. 11, eight days after undergoing knee surgery.

Ljungqvist said the IAAF had told USATF to suspend Hunter and make sure he did not compete in Sydney.

USATF Executive Director Craig Masback could not be reached for comment Sunday. Messages left on his cell phone were not immediately returned.

However, Masback has repeatedly denied any cover-ups and said USATF followed correct procedures. He said the USATF abides by confidentiality rules prohibiting the disclosure of names of athletes who test positive until due process has run its course.

"The big problem in the U.S. is two things," Ljungqvist said. "They don't inform us at all until the case is concluded. And if they conclude in favor of the athlete, we will not even know the name."

Florida State becomes new No. 1 team

■ Nebraska struggles against Missouri, and FSU blows out Maryland to spur the change.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

There's a new No. 1 in town and it's Florida State, the defending national champions.

The Seminoles returned to the top spot in the Associated Press Top 25 poll Sunday even though former No. 1 Nebraska remained unbeaten with a 42-24 win against Missouri.

Florida State (5-0), which became the first team to go wire-to-wire in the poll last season, moved well ahead of Nebraska (4-0) following balloting by the 71 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP panel.

The Seminoles collected 42 first-place votes and 1,745 points, while the Cornhuskers had 28 first-place votes and 1,731 points after a third consecutive harder-than-expected victory. Florida State defeated Maryland, 59-7, last Thursday night.

Last week, Nebraska had 39 first-place votes and 1,743 points to Florida State's 30 first-place votes and 1,732 points. In the new poll, Florida State gained 12 first-place votes; Nebraska lost 11 first-place votes.

In the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, the top five are Nebraska, Florida State, Virginia Tech, Kansas State and Clemson.

Oregon State moved into the AP poll for the first time since Jan. 4, 1969. The Beavers (4-0), who beat USC 31-21 for their first win over the Trojans after 26 consecutive losses in a 33-year span, are ranked No. 23.

The Top 25 underwent a top-to-bottom shakeup as nine teams ranked last week were beaten — seven by unranked teams.

Virginia Tech (4-0), a 48-34 winner at Boston College, moved up to No. 3, replacing Florida, a 47-35 loser to Mississippi State. The Gators (4-1) tumbled to No. 12.

Kansas State (5-0) moved up a spot to No. 4 after a 44-21 win at Colorado, followed by No. 5 Clemson, No. 6

Michigan, No. 7 Miami, No. 8 Ohio State, No. 9 Oregon and No. 10 Oklahoma. Kansas State received one first-place vote.

It's rare for a No. 1 team to fall after winning. The last time it happened was 1997, when Penn State dropped from the top spot twice, once after a 57-21 win against Louisville (Florida took over), and again after a 16-15 win over Minnesota (Nebraska took over); and Nebraska dropped after an overtime win over Missouri (Michigan took over) and won the AP national title in '97.

In 1994, Nebraska won a national title after it moved into the No. 1 spot late in the season when Penn State fell to No. 2 despite beating Indiana 35-29.

Florida State's ascent to No. 1 comes a week before the Seminoles play at No. 7 Miami, which moved up three places after a 64-6 rout of Rutgers.

"It doesn't mean a thing at this time," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said Sunday. "Especially when we're going to a place like Miami this week. It just gives them more fuel for the fire. Playing down at their place is always tough, and this will give them extra incentive. But our goal is to end up No. 1."

Huskers coach Frank Solich says it's too early to start worrying about rankings.

"It's still anybody's guess as to who the best team in the country is and I think people understand that at this point in the season," Solich said. "Certainly we're not disappointed in any way shape or form. We just feel good that we're 4-0 and still in the ballpark."

Texas was No. 11, followed by No. 12 Florida, No. 13 Washington, No. 14 TCU, No. 15 Auburn, No. 16 UCLA, No. 17 Southern Mississippi, No. 18 USC, No. 19 Georgia and No. 20 Mississippi State. USC dropped 10 places after its loss to Oregon State.

Tennessee, a 38-31 overtime loser at LSU, was No. 21 — down 10 places — followed by No. 22 Northwestern, No. 23 Oregon State, No. 24 Wisconsin and No. 25 Notre Dame.

Playoff matches set

■ The A's will not have to play a make-up game in Tampa today.

By Ben Walker
Associated Press

Thanks to Tim Hudson's arm, Alex Rodriguez's bat and Chipper Jones' glove, baseball's playoff confusion was cleared up Sunday.

Yet one big question remains: What's wrong with the New York Yankees?

With tons of potential snags looming — involving makeup games and tiebreakers — the matchups suddenly became set. Oakland and Seattle were in, Cleveland was out and Atlanta was headed to St. Louis.

"I was better off reciting the Declaration of Independence backwards than figuring out all the possible scenarios," Athletics second baseman Randy Velarde said. "I was thinking, 'Let's just win today, that's all we need.'"

The best-of-5 first round starts Tuesday. It will be the Yankees at Oakland and Seattle at the Chicago White Sox in the AL, and Atlanta at St. Louis in the NL.

On Wednesday, the New York Mets open at San Francisco in the NL.

The Yankees did not exactly play like two-time World Series champions down the stretch. Their 7-3 defeat at Baltimore gave them a seven-game losing streak to end the regular season — for the first time in team history.

"We were playing extremely hard and then it got to the point where we just wanted to get some guys healthy and clinch," said Roger Clemens, who will start Game 1 for the Yankees. "Fortunately, we did and now here we are."

The Indians, hoping to play a one-game tiebreaker for the wild card, were not so fortunate. They temporarily kept alive their chances for a sixth straight playoff appearance by beating Toronto, 11-4, but then watched in the clubhouse at Jacobs Field as they were eliminated by Oakland and Seattle.

"I got a real empty feeling inside," Indians manager Charlie Manuel said. "I don't even feel like I'm going home. It will probably hit me later tonight."

Hudson earned his 20th victory as Oakland won the AL West by defeating Texas, 3-0. Rodriguez homered as Seattle earned the wild card by beating Anaheim, 5-2.

"It's been a stressful situation the last 10 days because we've been in a position where we had to do a little scoreboard watching, and in the position where we had to win," Rodriguez said.

The A's finished a half-game ahead of Seattle and avoided a makeup game Monday at Tampa Bay. The Athletics already held the tiebreaker over the Mariners, having gone 9-4 against them.

The Braves were one strike away from clinching the home-field advantage over St. Louis when Jones made an error at third base. Colorado then rallied for seven runs with two outs in the ninth inning, highlighted by Todd Helton's three-run homer off John Rocker, to beat Atlanta, 10-5.

nals 6-3 in overtime to Daniel Igali, a Canadian who repeated his victory over the American in last year's 152-pound (69 kg) world finals. McIlravy tied it with a reversal at 5:39, but Igali won with a three-point throw at 8:14. Igali later won the gold medal.

Brands, who came out of retirement to try to match the gold medal won by brother Tom Brands in Atlanta, lost 6-5 in the semifinals to Alireza Dabir of Iran at 127½ pounds (58 kg). Dabir led 5-0 with 2:11 gone and held on despite allowing three points in the final 46 seconds. Dabir also went on to win the gold medal.

Brands came back and beat Damir Zakhartdinov of Uzbekistan, 3-2, for his bronze, and McIlravy got his by beating Sergei Demchenko of Belarus, 3-1.

Coming back to the States with bronze medals may be a disappointment for the two wrestlers, who both won multiple national titles while at Iowa. Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said he thought they would be disappointed without a gold.

"This was Terry's only goal left," Zalesky said of Brand's dream of the gold. "Even though he didn't win, this will be an experience that he can look back on in the future."

Iowa wrestler Jody Strittmatter said that the competition at the Olympics is extremely tough, and he's not necessarily surprised that the Iowans didn't get gold.

"The competition is tough; everybody is tough at the Olympics," he said. "There were little things here and there that maybe on any other day could've gone differently."

play even harder now" attitude.

That attitude spread through the Hawkeye lines, and 15 minutes later, Tiffany Fodera hit a straight shot into the Southwest goal on a penalty corner, good for a 1-0 lead.

The Bears kept Iowa on its toes throughout the game, but good saves from redshirt freshman Emily Rinde-Thorsen kept Southwest scoreless.

After the half, the battle became more fierce, with Iowa taking some impressive offensive runs. At the 56-minute mark, Maria Merluzzi took the ball up the left side of the field, looking for a shot and collided with Bears' goalie Monnie Elzy. Gina Carr tried to take advantage of a strong surge in the defense, but her shot ricocheted wide to the right.

The outcome remained suspended until Gibson secured the win with 2:36 remaining.

"You never want to get too comfortable with just a one-goal lead, and you don't want to look past anyone," Gibson said. "Southwest was in that game to the end. There was some relief when Natalie (Dawson) saw me in the circle. She gave me a lot to work with."

Although Griesbaum said she'd wished the goal had come earlier in the game, the win was a welcome feeling.

The loss on Sept. 29 came at the end of a long battle.

From the start, Iowa and Michigan (11-1, 3-0 Big Ten) met one another's challenge. Wolverine defender Ashley Thomas started the action off six minutes into the first half on a penalty corner.

Solid defense from Tiffany Fodera, Gina Palma and Leister kept Michigan from scoring, returning shots back to the field. Iowa kept a mostly offensive position, unable to score on solid Wolverine defense that stopped every Hawkeye shot.

"I think it was pretty balanced," Griesbaum said. "Everyone started out strong, and there were no glaring weaknesses."

The Hawkeye focus became blurred in the last six minutes of regulation on a second goal from top Michigan scorer Kelli Gannon. Only 86 seconds later, Gannon's sister Kristi firmed up the lead with a goal from a Wolverine penalty corner.

Kelli Gannon found the back of the cage once more for the victory with 4:12 remaining.

"It's heart-wrenching. We had a great week of practice, and we were doing some really good things," Griesbaum said. "After their first goal, we were still competing. We had some good offensive runs, but they lost their focus. They have to play 70 minutes."

Iowa will play its third Big Ten game on Oct. 8 at noon against Ohio State at home.

The Hawks took Monday off from practice and, Griesbaum said, they will work on individual play for the remainder of the week.

"We are going to get prepared," she said. "We can't slow down now."

the transport, the whole thing."

And the final flourish, an orgy of pyrotechnics that seemed to light up half the Southern Hemisphere, elevated them to gush mode.

"My God, you didn't know where to look," Louisa said. "Firework came from overhead, from the sides, from the tops of buildings."

She forgot to mention the streak of flame 1,000 feet up as an F-111 fighter bomber buzzed the harbor bridge trailing ignited fuel.

With every outsider's accolade, Australians seemed to lose more of the condition known here as "cultural cringe," a collective anxiety about what everyone else thinks about them.

"Australians now realize how good they can be, and this will inspire us in other areas," said Paul Vlagsma, a University of Sydney engineer. "As far as I'm concerned, the Olympics can go on forever."

But the games ended Sunday night, and newspaper headlines predicted psychologists would be overwhelmed with cases of post-rings letdown.

Traffic, miraculously free-flowing during the Olympics because so many Sydneysiders left town, will go back to its habitual snarl. Bar talk will be deprived of the butt of so many jokes: the Sydney organizing committee.

The games seemed to bring out the Aussies' best. Praise was heaped upon 47,000 volunteers who shepherded visitors, hauled supplies, solved problems and, essentially, made the games happen.

Wry, irreverent wit pervaded the Aussie-style Olympics, making believers of the most cynical.

Each night at 11, Australia watched "The Dream," a sort of adults-only "Sports Night" with two commentators, Roy and HG, who reported on the day's action.

Their furry stuffed animal, Fatso the Wombat, eclipsed the three official cuddly mascots. Fatso was auctioned off for $40,000.

After being turned away from the U.S. team's party venue, they giped at Yankee unfriendliness. In references to past games, they say "toilet" for Atlanta. New slang for visiting the men's room is "going to Atlanta."

Beneath the surface, there was bitterness and dispute. Ric Birch, who directed the smash-hit opening ceremony and the closing, announced he was moving to California with his American wife.

WELCOME HOMECOMING DIRECTOR'S ADDRESS

Hawkeyes, Alumni, Friends, welcome to the 88th edition of Homecoming at the University of Iowa! With the year 2000 upon us, this year the Homecoming Council has chosen the theme "2000 Reasons to be a Hawkeye." This year we hope to capture the feeling of truly being a Hawkeye for 2000 or more reasons.

We have planned several programs which will help capture this feeling from October 2-7. From the traditional parade and fireworks to a bigger and better pep rally and more activities, we've tried to plan activities for everyone to enjoy. And don't forget the new and improved parade route. We hope that everyone from residence halls, fraternities, sororities, student organizations, faculty/staff and community will come out and enjoy the festivities and programs that we have spent countless hours planning. I would also like to say a big thank you to 18 hard working, fun loving people who comprise the Homecoming Executive Council.

We really worked hard to put together a deliciously awesome Homecoming! We hope that ALL Hawkeyes will come on out and show off your TRUE black and gold this week.

Again, Welcome to the University of Iowa's Homecoming week, we hope during this week you'll discover your reason to be a hawkeye and enjoy some of the many events that we have planned for you.

Eddie Robinson Named 2000 Homecoming Honored GUEST

The University of Iowa welcomes back one of the most distinguished coaches of all time.

By Anne Chu

The University of Iowa Homecoming Council is excited to announce our Honored Guest for the 2000 Homecoming festivities.

Having coached during one of the most amazing eras in the history of sports, Eddie Robinson is indeed one of the most distinguished coaches of all time.

Mr. Robinson coached the Grambling State University Tigers. His coaching career spanned 56 years, starting in the 1940s and ending in the 1990s. Mr. Robinson has 408 career wins under his belt and countless other achievements.

Mr. Robinson had 45 winning seasons and holds the College Records for: Most Career Football Games Won, Most Games Coached and Longest Football Coaching Career at One College. Mr. Robinson has been inducted into numerous Halls of Fame, which include: Sugar Bowl, Pop Warner

Hall, Louisiana Sports, National Veterans of Foreign Wars, National Sports and Physical Education, SWAC, Blue-Grey All Star Football, College Football and The National Football Foundation Hall of Fame. Mr. Robinson was born on February 13, 1919 and attended the University of Iowa. He will be attending the University of Iowa's 2000 Homecoming Festivities as our Honored Guest along with his wife Doris.

Iowa Shout Continues As Homecoming Tradition

It started in the '70s and continues to be one of Homecoming's most popular attractions.

By Courtney Wilson

Candles are lit on a cake, carols are sung, fireworks decorate the sky. A campfire wouldn't be complete without s'mores, just like a ballgame without hot dogs, or snowy days without hot chocolate. The continuation of doing what has always been done makes everyday seem like yesterday. It's called tradition!

Among the many traditions that Hawkeye fans participate in annually are all of the festivities associated with the celebration of Homecoming! This year's theme, 2000 tradition of Iowa Shout Since the early '70s, Iowa Shout has always been a part of Homecoming. Usually taking place on the Thursday night before the football game, any group can perform a four-minute routine, skit and/or dance relating to the theme of Homecoming for that particular year. This competitive event started within the Greek community. Today, Iowa Shout is not entirely for students in the Greek system. It is open to anyone who wishes to participate. Any student group or organization can submit a skit to perform in this traditional event.

theme. James Bond, Indiana Jones, Karate Kid, Grease, Swing Kids and Austin Powers are just a few of the ideas that have been used. The sororities are matched together with at least one fraternity. Pairings for Iowa Shout are determined by each chapter's preference and consideration of what chapters have not been together for the past three years. Working with different chapters creates diversity among the Greek system. Members get the chance to meet others during the countless hours they spend preparing for Iowa Shout.

Greek chapters are pre-matched six weeks ahead of time. The following weeks of preparation build camaraderie and spirit while the teams practice their skits. In the past, it has been a friendly

In order to perform on the night of Iowa Shout, any organization, group or Greek chapter must have earned enough points in order to perform their skit. Points can be received through other Homecoming events and opportunities. One way to earn points is to buy or sell Homecoming buttons. The profit from Homecoming buttons is what the Homecoming Council uses to put on other traditional events throughout the week. Points are also gained at other events that students can participate in, such as the parade, Havoc at Hubbard and window painting.

Tradition today is held within the memories of yesterday and the dreams of tomorrow. What Iowa means to us now may be different than it did years ago. While people grow older, trends fade and times evolve, the University of Iowa tradition will continue through the pride that binds all Iowa students and alumni. We know this spirit best, for it is only seen from the eye of a Hawkeye.

Reasons to be a Hawkeye can give any proud student or alum just one more reason to keep on coming back to where a Hawkeye tradition began.

A Welcome Message From President Mary Sue Coleman

The crackle of crisp golden leaves as you walk the sidewalks of our beautiful campus. The chilly snap in the air. Faces of old friends back with us in Iowa City. The biggest cheers of the year coming from Kinnick. It's Homecoming time again!

This year we're making a list: "2000 Reasons to Be a Hawkeye." I could come up with at least 2001 myself! But one of the best reasons to be a Hawkeye is you have such a wonderful place to come home to. Hawkeyes are fiercely loyal, and no more so than at Homecoming time. And why not? We have a beautiful campus which beckons you back, wonderful professors and friends as well as cherished memories that you love to revisit, and a dynamic University and a dynamic town that are always full of new surprises for you.

In the year 2000, we're proud that you're coming back home to a University that now boasts a hospital with a National Cancer Institute-designated Cancer Center, a distinction that only about sixty hospitals across the nation can claim. You're coming back to a campus that has provided the state of Iowa with its very first Poet Laureate, Marvin Bell, a professor in our Writers' Workshop. You'll see that our new Biology Building on Iowa Avenue is finished, and the spectacular addition to the Seamans Center for Engineering Arts and Sciences is open for business. The Health Sciences campus on the west side of the river is being literally transformed before your eyes. Downtown's newly-renovated pedestrian mall looks great, and the new downtown clock tower is almost ready to join our skyline.

Each year, Homecoming is a reminder of our history and our traditions, and we are glad you are part of them. We're thrilled to show off our progress, but we're also delighted to keep you in our Hawkeye hearts. You are important to keeping our University community a special place to come home to. So welcome back, enjoy the festivities and the big game, and thank you—because your own part in our history is another great reason to be a Hawkeye!

Mary Sue Coleman
 President

Coach Kirk Ferentz's Homecoming Address

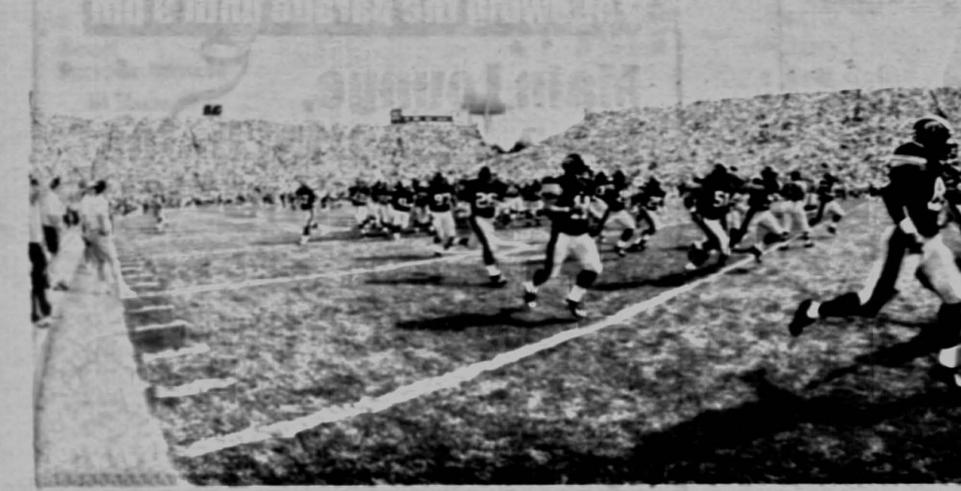

Welcome back! The theme of this year's Homecoming is 2000 Reasons to Be a Hawkeye. Everyone who has had an opportunity to live in the Iowa City community as a member of The University of Iowa family can name many reasons why they enjoy being a Hawkeye.

My reasons for being a Hawkeye probably aren't significantly different from yours. I enjoy the friendliness of our campus and the openness of the community. I also enjoy football Saturdays... there are few better places that rival the excitement and energy of a game day in Iowa City. We enjoy something very unique...

it is something that we can all be proud of and participate in.

I encourage you to explore the University of Iowa and Iowa City, to relive the memories of your time spent here, and to marvel at what has been added to accommodate the students of the new millennium. I also hope you'll be inside Kinnick Stadium on Saturday. I promise you a great effort by men extremely proud to represent you and your school. Go Hawks!

vintage Homecoming

In this, the 88th year of the University of Iowa Homecoming celebration, we take a look back at Homecoming from years past. In the early days, before Kinnick Stadium was built, the Homecoming game took place in the stadium located where the EPB parking lot now exists. In the thirties the Homecoming dance was a big attraction, where students would dance the night away in the IMU main lounge to the sounds of the Glen Miller Orchestra and other bands of the era.

As the University's enrollment increased, so did the scope of celebration for Homecoming. Today's Homecoming is one of the largest student run events, boasting a number of activities for students and the community.

HOMECOMING 2000 MISSION STATEMENT

Homecoming is a celebration of the institution of the University of Iowa. The purpose of the UI Homecoming Council is to plan and implement programs which positively affect a large and diverse group of students, alumni, staff, as well as the larger Iowa City community and beyond. An ongoing goal of the Council is to incorporate student groups which traditionally have not been involved in the UI's largest fall celebration.

Homecoming, a week long UI festival, is planned to incorporate as many exciting and creative events as possible, with the goal of promoting school spirit. Homecoming in short, is a unique and long standing Hawkeye tradition which attempts to bring festive, educational and cultural experiences to the University of Iowa.

SCHEDULE OF EVENTS

THROUGHOUT THE WEEK

WINDOW DISPLAYS DOWNTOWN IOWA CITY

University of Iowa organizations will decorate the windows of downtown businesses in the spirit of Black and Gold. Their efforts will be judged as part of the Sweepstakes Competition

CHILDREN'S ART DISPLAY CORAL RIDGE MALL

Area children's artistic depictions of Homecoming will be displayed in the Coral Ridge Mall. Winners of the contest will be selected from three separate age categories.

MONDAY OCTOBER 2ND

WINDOW DISPLAYS JUDGING DOWNTOWN IOWA CITY

The windows of downtown businesses that were painted by student organizations will be judged as part of the Sweepstakes Competition.

TUESDAY OCTOBER 3RD

HAVOC AT HUBBARD HUBBARD PARK • 1:00 - 5:00 PM

Students take part in this fun filled and wild event, including a six on six volleyball tournament, an American Gladiator style jousting tournament, and a dodgeball competition.

WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 4TH

SPORTS NIGHT CORAL RIDGE MALL • 6:30 - 9:00 PM

Come and take part in this annual event that gives kids and community members the opportunity to meet Herky and their favorite Iowa athletes. Children can get autographs and pictures taken with Iowa athletes and watch performances by the cheerleaders and Iowa Dance Team.

THURSDAY OCTOBER 5TH

IOWA SHOUT! IMU MAIN LOUNGE • 8:00 PM

Iowa Shout is a variety show put on by pairs of student organizations, who create a short skit and dance routine. These acts are part of the Sweepstakes competition.

FRIDAY OCTOBER 6TH

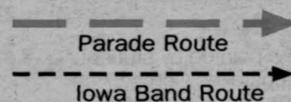

HOMECOMING PARADE DOWNTOWN • 6:15 PM

This long standing Homecoming tradition features floats, marching bands and entries from local businesses as well as student organizations.

* Please allow extra travel time if you are driving, due to traffic, street closures and detours.
