The president is almost certain to veto the two measures.

WASHINGTON — Less than 24 hours after Republicans resolved a long and bitter budget battle to go home for the Thanksgiving holiday, a few dozen House members, including one who says he will defiance-defyingly defy the president.

Without the president's approval, the House just passed a tax cut bill and an expensive bill that funds the government for the next fiscal year. With the president's approval, both bills would fail.

Psychedelic care's darker side comes to UIHC

A new exhibit depicts the bases of psychedelic care in the 19th and 20th centuries.

The Korean Communication Studies Building (K-College) is bringing a unique perspective on contemporary culture in the American Midwest. The museum, which opened in 1989 as an exhibit of museum-quality medical artifacts, offers visitors a chance to create a historical perception of the early 20th century inspired by the Ku Klux Klan, the American Medical Association, and the American Psychiatric Association.

The exhibit, which runs through November 21, is free and open to the public. It features medical museum exhibits and a permanent collection of medical objects from the 19th and 20th centuries. The exhibit also includes a history of the K-College and a tour of the museum's permanent collection.

The exhibit features a series of exhibits, including a display of medical equipment from the early 20th century, a display of medical artifacts from the Ku Klux Klan, and a display of medical artifacts from the American Psychiatric Association.

The exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday.

For more information, contact the museum at (319) 335-1453 or visit the museum's website at www.k-college.org.

Comm-Sci Student group to present Korean Film Festival

The Comm-Sci Communication Studies Student Group will present a Korean Film Festival on Oct. 27-29.

The festival, which will feature six short films and a feature film, will take place in the Comm-Sci Student Studies Building.

The festival will include a screening of Six Short Films and a feature film, The Korean Communication Studies Building.

"These films are a great way to introduce students to Korean culture," said Adrienne Drapkin, director of the Comm-Sci Communications Studies Building.

"We want to use the festival as a way to bring attention to Korean culture and to provide a forum for students to discuss their experiences," Drapkin said.

The festival will begin today and continue through Sunday. The festival will create a great deal of interest on the UI campus, said Drapkin.

"I think the festival is a great opportunity to bring attention to Korean culture," she said. "We hope that it will provide them with a new perspective on Korean culture."
Jail proposal draws more fire from UI students

UI students and county residents discuss the proposed jail's effects on the younger population.

By Ann Weigelt

Many UI students are joining the fight against the pro-eged new jail and are trying to raise awareness about the jail bond referendum.

Brian Walker, a UI senior who is a member of the Erace Assaults on Juvenile New and the student organization that opposes the jail, spoke to a crowd of about 20 UI students on the Territorial Room Thursday about the reasons people should vote against the jail.

First of all, the process used to get the jail on the ballot is dubious. "There were millions of dollars raised for the purpose, and one of the members of 12 citizens was selected to decide on the issue," he said. No minorities or people under age 21 were represented on the committee, which was two-thirds male.

Walker said the new jail is not the solution. He reported supporting the jail in the past but under further research, he found the community-based approach in the Iowa model works much better. It would be cheaper and would include just ticketing people charged with public intoxication.

Residents Against a New Jail, the student organization opposing the jail, spoke to a crowd in front of the UI Student Union in support of the jail.

Walter Schaefer, a UI sophomore, spoke about her volunteer work.

"I was chosen because of my Vietnamese background, which was needed in my major, history.
I worked with kids who were new students and as an interpreter.
I also worked with the contact of the Vietnamese community, which is not something the university high-school student would do as one of their activities," she said.

It was also the first time she had worked with English as a second language and was a source of a great amount of learning.

In 26 blocks where she lived, Schaefer said she had achieved her goal of helping the children two years ago.

"They say the last thing you got at home is a 'thank you,' but it was hard to hear anyting else but, Schaefer said, "It's taught me so much about people and how they live.

"We were chosen because that was the time to help,
"Schaefer said. "Last year, the volunteer work, the community loved it and we were not compensated for that at all. And we worked 10 hours a week."

After the event, five area residents discussed the pros and cons of having the jail in Linn County.

Five area residents were heard for their philosophies on the institution for the criminal, which was hosted by the Program, the University of said that he was against the jail.

He had never been to jail before, but was interested in agitating against the new jail.

"I'm against it because I think that there are so many other ways of doing it,
"Ludwig said. "I don't solution to the problem."

The sack, whose lead the vice treasurer of the state since being dubbed "funny math," accused of "fuzzy math,"" George W. Bush of following in the footsteps of his father, who was president in the last three elections. It's a serious, serious decision. It's a serious opportunity for all of us to make a good system better, better, better.

In Davenport and the surrounding region, residents are making a last-minute decision on whether or not we're going to vote for a guy that has a plan and a record, or whether we're going to vote for a guy with rhetoric and schemes," Gore said.

The private Pentagon command, which lated a little over an hour, included the chairman of U.S. regional commands - covering Europe, Latin America, the Asia-Pacific region, Europe, the Middle East, and the uniformed service chiefs and commanders of U.S. armed forces.

"Obviously, if there's going to be a war, it is up to the president to decide whether or not we're going to vote for a guy that has a plan and a record, or whether we're going to vote for a guy with rhetoric and schemes," Gore said.

The goal basically was to make a good system better, to use the concern that has been generated by the attack against the Gore campaign as an opportunity for all concerned, to work together to improve our defense and our intelligence, to be more effective in our fight against terrorism, Democratic presidential candidate Al Gore on his way to a campaign rally Thursday.

"There, in many ways, start of this effort," Gore said. "And now I need you to be with me at the conclusion of this journey just 12 days from now. Once again, Iowa may have its way with the United States, as Iowa is in the called out," Gore said.

"I am prepared to prove that this nation is the best seat of the American dream," Gore said. "I will be here to prove that this nation is the best seat of the American dream," he told the Associated Press. As for the swastika, "Of course it hurts. But I'm not here to speak about that." Gore said.

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration had considered using force to shut down North Korea’s nuclear-weapons program, a motor deputy national security advisor at the White House said Tuesday.

"We had a close call," Leon Panetta, the Clinton administration’s chief foreign policy advisor, said at the State Department.

"The North Korean nuclear program was real. It was a threat to the security of our allies and a threat to our security." Panetta said.

If all of the studies go smoothly, and Robert, drug therapy could be ready for human testing in three to five years.

Iowa City, in general, is a pollution-free area. With the exception of occasional garbage burning, the ground is pretty clean. There is one type of pollution, however, that is a problem: motorcycle-induced pollution.

Some motorcycles can be as loud as 135 decibels running around 15 mph, not only to the rider but to anyone within earshot. It is a public nuisance, especially to anyone who lives close to someone who owns and rides motorcycles.

Should this kind of irritation continue, these motorcycles would surely break up parties for the general public, as well as for the motorcycle riders. I have asked City Council members about the noise problem in our residential areas. They areshorely relating noise problems to the riders of the motorcycles around City. In the residential areas, loud motorcycles can be heard over the neighborhood noise. In this case, the riders are related laws regarding motorcycle noise, including sound measurements. These are tracks designed for sound output, such as the one radio stations use for remote broadcasts. According to law, sound levels may be louder than 60 db at 100 feet and 108 db at 1,000 feet. In my opinion, we don’t want to live near that kind of a ride. Why should we lose an hour and look forward to “getting it back” after months later, the government program. is difficult to extend its lifespan.

80,000 people have signed the petition — 9 percent of those who signed the petition to end daylight-saving time, which takes place twice a year. The petition calls for the U.S. Department of Transportation to end daylight-saving time. The petition, which is signed by "Billie Corbin, a native of the department's general counsel," reads:

The Department of Transportation oversees whether or not the railroad system is in the time zone, she said.

"Daylight-saving time was first implemented in the United States during World War I, when it was created to use artificial indoor lighting more efficiently," she said. "It was brought back during World War II, and was displayed most recently in various countries around the world. It was also used in the United States," Pottey said. Then, in 2000, the United States went into daylight-saving time. The U.S. Time Act stated that daylight-saving time would begin on March 29 and end on November 1.

"It is in no intersections in the opinion," he said. It is really nice to get an extra hour of sleep in the morning," she said. Before the time change, there was a debate among some Iowa City bars whether or not to remain closed for the hour. Iowa City bars will have to remain closed for an hour, he said. If he were to make it any other way, he said.

The Iowa Hawkeyes hosted the Minnesota Golden Gophers at Kinnick Stadium on October 29, 2016. It was a crucial game for the Hawkeyes as they were riding a five-game losing streak and needed a win to get back on track in the Big Ten West.

On the field, the Hawkeyes were led by junior quarterback C.J. Beathard, who threw for 300 yards and three touchdowns. The defense was also stout, limiting the Golden Gophers to just 211 yards of offense.

In the end, the Hawkeyes won the game 42-16, providing a much-needed boost of confidence for the team. With the victory, the Hawkeyes improved to 3-6 overall and 0-6 in the Big Ten, while the Golden Gophers fell to 4-6 overall and 1-5 in the conference.

Women's basketball to hold scrimmage The Iowa women's basketball team will hold an open scrimmage Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Admission is free. This will be the first chance for fans to catch a glimpse of freshman Liz Blasy, her staff and the 2002-03 Hawkeyes.

Women's swimming This week Iowa dove into the pool of the season this Wednesday with two back-to-back meets on the road. The first stop is at Iowa, Mich., Friday for a meet against Michigan and Wisconsin. On Saturday morning the Hawkeyes will compete in East Lansing, Mich., against Michigan State. Former assistant coach Dwayne Hulvey will begin her first season as the Hawkeyes' head coach.

Michigan: The Wolverines begin their season after a 14-year absence at last year's NCAA Championships and second place at the Big Ten Championships. Look for Michigan freshman Samantha Volpe to do well on the 200 and 400 meter freestyle as part of the 400-meter freestyle relay. On Wisconsin, last year's Big Ten Champion finished third at the Big Ten and 11th at the NCAA Championships. Getting coach Dwayne Hulvey is very much about ending our reign. The team has been training incredibly well, and we are anxious to see what they can do.

"I may have a little too much ambition sticking out to try to get all the wins this season," said Bowsby as her team went off again. "I'm trying to use the mapgame."

"We have at least two bad rowers," said Bowsby, who was 210 pounds of rowing and four bloods at the Iowa Avenue. "It's a shame that people can be so bad rowers.

"The novices are looking for a match-up. They're trying to get the best rowers against Iowa. We will have to sustain our shots this weekend.

"Most people get in trouble when we played them last week. "It's a little like losing in the end."

"I'm looking forward to it."

Katching up to History
In the last two weeks, I've thought long and hard about why this team can't win. Every year, Iowa State, Iowa State turns out with some top talent—Ladell Betts is a good example. But they've never been able to wrap it all up with any tactical cohesion. It's hard to say who the main backers are. There are so many. They have some talent—Ladell Betts is a legitimate Big Ten running back, Kevin Kaiser is on the defensive end. But I think it has more talent on their Iowa's single-season receiving records.

Big Ten race could clear up after Week 9

Ohio State 27, Michigan 19
Wisconsin 27, Penn State 23
Missouri 28, Colorado 24
Illinois 27, Northwestern 21
Iowa 27, Wisconsin 7
Kansas 14, Oklahoma State 7

Pittsburgh 12, Penn State 9
Notre Dame 23, Purdue 21

The Hawkeyes entered the Big Ten race up after Week 9. Now they're looking at the possibility of finishing the conference season in third place, which could clear up some Big Ten race.

Baker shakes off teammates' punter jokes

Although they may tease him, teammates know Jason Baker is a good punter.

By Melinda Mawdsley

JASON BAKER

The Daily Iowan

That was evident in Iowa's Oct. 21 game against Ohio State. Placed in the back of Iowa's end zone, Baker returned a blocked punt for a touchdown, converted a two-point conversion, and averaged 47.2 yards on six punts during the game.

Punting statistics are nothing Baker looks at as little as possible because they are meaningful. He said people who understand effective punters understand the skill involved.

"Everything, the hang time and field positioning, are deceiving. He said people who understand effective punters understand the skill involved," he said.

Baker's talent and the integral role he plays work in Iowa's favor.

"His hang time is second to none. He is the biggest reason we are a good punt and kickoff team," Baker's roommate, Tim Kasper, said.

Wisconsin looks to get back on winning track

The Badgers and Michigan State are the only teams without a win in the Big Ten

By Nick Fischer
The Daily Iowan

Wisconsin quarterback BRENDAN BOLLINGER, who leads Iowa's backfield, is back this year's Big Ten match-ups. Wisconsin is looking to get back on the winning track after a disappointing 1-0 season last year, and the Badgers are expected to make a strong push for the Big Ten title. Bollinger, who has been a revelation for the Badgers, is expected to lead the team to victory against Michigan State this weekend.

Bollinger's numbers have been impressive so far, as he has completed 56% of his passes for 880 yards and 8 touchdowns. He has also rushed for 313 yards and 4 touchdowns, making him one of the most dynamic dual-threat quarterbacks in the conference. The Badgers are looking to continue their recent trend of improved performance and are expected to put up a good fight against Michigan State this weekend.

The Badger defense has been strong so far, with only 24 points allowed in their first two games. The defense is led by safety Michael Bennett, who has been a key player in keeping opposing teams from scoring. Despite some early struggles, the Badgers have shown improvement and are expected to continue to get better as the season progresses.

Overall, the Badgers are looking to get back to winning ways and are expected to be a tough opponent for Michigan State this weekend. With Bollinger leading the way, the Badgers are looking to get back to their winning ways and make a strong push for the Big Ten title.
This is the week Purdue starts its Rose Bowl quest

Jeremy Schnieder

This is the first time this year that we've heard people talking about the possibility of Purdue finishing the season at the Rose Bowl. Last week's 35-21 win over Illinois was a huge win for the Boilermakers. The win put them in the hunt for a Big Ten title, and now they have a chance to make some noise in the national rankings.

Iowa at Michigan State

Michigan State is in a battle for the Big Ten title, and they need a win over Iowa to keep their hopes alive. Both teams have had impressive seasons, but Michigan State has been more consistent. If they can take advantage of their home field, they could pull off the upset.

Penn State at Wisconsin

Wisconsin is looking to win its first Big Ten game of the season. They have had a tough schedule so far, but this could be a turning point for their season. A win over Penn State would be a huge boost for their confidence.

Northwestern at Minnesota

Northwestern is a team that has a lot of talent, but they have been inconsistent so far. If they can put everything together, they could put up a good fight against Minnesota. This could be a pivotal game for both teams.

Northwestern can move up in the rankings with a win, but it's not an easy task. The Gophers are a strong team, and they have the experience to keep Northwestern from making a move.

Overall, this week is shaping up to be a big one for many of these teams. It's a great opportunity for them to prove themselves and make a statement in the conference.

Badger fans won’t be as wild for Saturday’s game

The Badger win over the Hawkeyes two years ago led to dozens of arrests and loud disputes.

By Jeremy Schnettler

For those of you expecting a terribly weekend full of drink, redirect your focus. No Badger game has ever been quiet, but this weekend, the student section and causing general dissonance—pretty much the same as Iowa’s record.

This year isn’t going to be that crazy as the last two Wisconsin games have been.

I don’t think things are going to be as crazy as last year. Wisconsin student Bryce Monson. "It’s probably going to be pretty mellow," said Monson.

No. 4 Wisconsin is usually the same as the last time Wisconsin fans were going to be extremely wild.

"That’s the same as Iowa’s record," said Kevin Healy of Madison, a Badger fan who attended last year’s game.

The night of the 1998 football game, he said, "It was ridiculous. It was a complete blowout last year. It’s not that big a deal for Wisconsin to be crazy, especially if we take away from the context of the game. But Wisconsin fans have a way of expressing themselves having a party.

Despite starting the season as the unbeaten Big Ten champions, the Badgers have fallen to 2-4 in the Big Ten. That’s the same as Iowa’s record.

One thing that hasn’t come to Iowa City this year is a sold out crowd. "I don’t think things are going to be as wild as last year," said Monson. "It’s going to be a little bit calmer this year.""
