Rhodes acclimates to quiet life

Ann Rhodes, a member of the UI General Counsel Office, sits at her new desk in Jessup Hall Monday morning. One of her first tasks of mark day is watching students pass between classes. Her old desk hall the same row.

Ann Rhodes has a large wino to her office for the first time in 11 years. It does not as much as it used to be 11 years ago, but the lights on and the walls are not white, and she can hear the footsteps through the windows.

"I know it's quiet, just not as much as it used to be in the old building," she said. "I'm just used to the old building." She went on to say that she has had a hard time getting used to the new building.

"I have not been to the new building yet, and I have not heard the footsteps," she said. "I am used to the old building, and I think I can get used to it." The Waterloo native cannot remember ever being on the campus in the shadows, just as many students in the UI General Counsel Office. After more than a decade of being one of the most high-profile people in the university, she is happy to be working in the shadows.

"This is the closest thing I can make to the old building," she said. "I am not sure what she will be like when she returns to her old office in Jessup Hall Monday morning, but she said she was looking forward to the changes.

Safewalk expands hours

Extended hours have volunteers hoping more students will use the service.

By Rachel Davis

After struggling to maintain volunteers at the start of the fall semester, Safewalk has managed to expand the staff to 47, allowing it to offer its services to UI students, faculty and staff during later hours of the evening. The university has been trying to improve safety and security on campus.

Safewalk has expanded its hours just for the people walking late at night, but also for those walking home late from the bars or other locations. Stephens Baland, a UI graduate student and the mayor's assistant, said the increased enrollment and new students have led to more volunteers and a larger service area.

"We have been able to provide a service that is beneficial to the students," she said. "It is important for us to continue to provide this service to the students." The University of Iowa has been working to improve safety and security on campus, and the increased enrollment and new students have led to more volunteers and a larger service area.

Bouncers acquitted in nightclub death

The two defendants faced two years in prison if convicted in the Des Moines murder.

Associated Press DES MOINES—Friends and family of two bouncers who were acquitted of killing a young man at a downtown nightclub described the verdict as a relief.

"There's nothing in our city that makes it any safer," said Kathleen Koona, mother of省州的甲.

She said her son had worked as a bouncer at the Rush nightclub in recent months before he was shot and killed early last week.

"I was proud of him," she said. "I was proud of him because he had a job and he was helping people."

Koona said she had thought on occasion about sending him to a police academy to become a police officer.

"I'm just thrilled that the jury had the opportunity to listen to the evidence and make a decision," she said.

Koona said the jury's decision wasn't just about her son's death, but also about the role of security guards in protecting the community.

"I think it's great," said Koona, who said her son always had a smile on his face.

She said she was proud of him and the decision the jury made.

The bouncers were found not guilty on all charges.

The verdict was met with relief by some and disappointment by others.

Joe Wieg, the assistant manager of the club, said he was disappointed with the decision, but he didn't want to speak about the case.

"It's a hard case," Wieg said.

A Tuesday fire at 136 Benton St. left Yo-Yo's Beach Salon out of business, but the owner says she will repair the damage.

Lisa Bracken said, "The smoke and fire caused a lot of damage."

A fire official said there were no injuries.

The cause of the fire is unknown and, under investigation.

The insurance company was not yet estimating the cost of repairs.

The 9.2 percent increase was not expected. Many analysts were predicting salaries would fall by 0.7 percent.

Economists said stock markets and rising oil prices as reasons for the drop.

The Conference Board said Tuesday that its Consumer Confidence Index stood at 135.2, a steep drop from the high of 144.7 in May and 148.7 in April.

The index, based on a survey of about 5,000 U.S. households, is closely watched because it is a leading economic indicator, and spending accounts for about one-third of gross domestic product.

RHODES

Stifling her own emotions, Rhodes was reading every newspaper and magazine and every TV station ironing the story of the fatal shootings in which one of her friends, T. Shawn Clay, was killed last Thursday, and she was trying to make sense of it all. She met with her graduate students to talk about the shootings and to plan out her classes for the rest of the semester.

"Yes, it's hard," said Clay's girlfriend, Jillian Miller. "I don't know how to deal with the loss. I feel like I'm losing everything."

At the same time, Rhodes was trying to keep her students focused on their work. She had contemplated resigning from her job, but decided against it in the end.

"I'm not sure if I can do this," said Clay's roommate, Kirk Peters. "I don't know if I can handle it." But he decided to stick with his studies and hopes to graduate this semester.

The shootings have also caused Rhodes to reflect on her own life.

"I have to make the same mistake again," said Rhodes. "I can't let this define me." She said she would focus on her work and try to help her students through this difficult time.

The shooting has raised questions about the safety of the UL campus.

"We need to do more to protect our students," said Clay's brother, Tony. "We can't afford to lose another life."

Community representatives at the UISG parking lot meeting, which was held on Monday, March 1, 1999, voiced concerns about the increased number of cars on campus and the need for additional parking spaces. David Stoll, the executive director of UISG, said that the city parking and transit director, Joe Fowler, has been working with UISG on the issue of parking.

"We are looking at a number of options," Fowler said. "We are considering the possibility of increasing the number of permits available forUISG parking, as well as exploring the possibility of creating a new parking lot. We are also looking at the possibility of creating a new parking permit system, which would allow students and faculty to purchase permits for specific lots.

"We are also considering the possibility of creating a parking management plan, which would allow us to better manage the parking facilities on campus," Fowler said. Bush airs negative ad; Gore counters

Vice President Gore questions Governor Bush's experience.

George W. Bush dashed a huge lead on Tuesday among Iowa voters by calling the state of his character an issue.

"You need someone who will fight for you and us, and Bush has not," Gore said.

"The line came out of polls that show many voters still mention Bush's credentials."

Bush has criticized Gore for playing "class warfare" in his campaign. Gore said that against the Republican, too, saying:

"What he is actually proposing is a massive redistribution of resources to the wealthiest few."

"It is, in fact, a form of class warfare on behalf of billionaires."

Oregon, two states Gore hoped long ago to lock up. Bush now wins Oregon and six other states, but California, the election's biggest prize at 63 electoral votes, is still a long shot.

In Oregon, Gore cast himself as the defense-oriented populist in hopes of driving Bush supporters back into the Democratic fold.

WASHINGTON — Changing the United States with a better Arab lead in the peace process, a leading Pales-

Do your civic duty: Please don't vote

G r o w i n g up, I was told that it was every red-blooded American's duty to vote.

I believed that, right up there with the Fridge of Allegiance, cheering against the Soviets and drinking 2 percent milk, every American was bound to participate by voting at every election. Then I learned how to read, and the world around me exploded with possibilities. It's no longer a duty to vote. The overwhelming responsibility of each American is this: "Is this a person, do I know them, do I have to vote for them?"

The same is true with the Supreme Court. Is this a person, do I know them, do I have to vote for them? What hard evidence does Bush have against Gore? It would be like cheering against the Soviets and drying 2 percent milk.

I believe that this is the supreme test of voting. If you are voting for the man, regardless of what he stands for, if you want the man to succeed, you are voting for the man. If you are voting against the man, regardless of what he stands for, if you want the man to fail, you are voting against the man.

Some activated people who are set to vote in the presidential election are so committed to their causes that they are planning to vote on behalf of others. These individuals, known as "proxy voters," are not just a common occurrence in Iowa but are expected to increase in number this year.

Some of these proxy voters are members of the celebrity panel, such as David Letterman, who has managed to turn political questions intoDaily Iowan.

Illinois students want to silence Eminem

CHAMPAIGN - A small group of University of Illinois students is planning to organize a show in Champaign that would feature a performance by Eminem. The students say they are fed up with the rapper's violent lyrics and want to "send a message" with their concert. The planned concert would be held at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign's Assembly Hall. The students say they have contacted the university's police department and are working with the university's student government to plan the event. They also say they are seeking donations from local businesses and individuals to help fund the concert.

Control of Senate down to wire

Democrats still have hopes of taking over the body while Republicans dismiss the idea.

By David Sanger

WASHINGTON - A fall in Delaware, a close race in Missouri and a modest resurgence in Virginia are injecting late suspense into the battle for control of the Senate, where Republicans now hold just enough seats to maintain a razor-thin margin of 51 to 49.

Republican leaders dismiss such talk, saying they may yet top off Election Night by defeating Sen. Joseph Lieberman, Al Gore's vice presidential running mate, in a contest for the Connecticut Senate seat he is seeking as a write-in candidate.

Republicans have held a 54-to-46 edge in the current Senate, and they will be defending 19 of the 35 seats on the ballot next Tuesday.

The election arithmetic is so complicated that it's possible the Senate's makeup won't be known until well after Nov. 7.

The investigation, which sources close to the Yemen crisis said was Increasingly centering on Aden, said the South Dakotan, whose re-election is scheduled for Nov. 7, was checking the house and locations the bombers appeared from government files, the sources said. Paperwork relating to U.S. servicemen believed to have taken part in bombing Aden and a stronghold of veterans of the 1990's Marine operation in Somalia was turned over to the South Dakota lawmen.

The investigation, the sources said, was Increasingly centering on Aden, where four men believed to be the main case against the U.S. militants, appeared from government files, the sources said.

At least one of the cards is fake and was issued in Laos. The card that Aden and a stronghold of veterans was issued in the U.S. and was held last week for testing in Aden by a local janitor.

And a seven-way race in Georgia holds out the possibility of a run-off in December.

In Florida, Democrat Bill Nelson has been ahead by 200,000 votes, but Republicans strategists in his party concede the election is so close that the South Dakotan, whose re-election is scheduled for Nov. 7, is likely to lose a seat in the Senate, despite his win over the former Republican senator, Bob Graham.

With one week remaining until the election, as many as seven races may be too close to call, the sources said. A few seats have become more predictable in recent weeks. GOP Sen. Bob Graham, elected in the Republican landslide in 1994, remains behind in the polls in Minnesota, and many GOP sources privately expect Democrat Mark Dayton in that state to defeat him.

Democrats acknowledge that they are likely to lose a seat in Nevada, where former GOP Rep. John Ensign is running. And in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, where Democrats are mounting strong challenges, GOP News, Lincoln Chafee and Dick Sununu appear comfortably ahead.

In Florida, Democrat Bill Nelson has been ahead consistently in the polls against GOP Rep. Bill McCollum for a seat left open by the death of Sen. Bob Graham.

In Georgia, Democrat Roy Blunt, a local janitor, is running for the seat held open by the death of Sen. Zell Miller, a Democrat, Jesse Republican Mark Hat­ tings in a run-off uncustomed to the Georgia Senate seat.

In Wisconsin, Republicans characterize the state as a "screw-up" and a "minority party" that has a "small chance of winning a seat" in the Senate, while Republican strategists dismiss the idea of a "red wave" that may sweep the GOP to victory.

In Delaware, Sen. Joe Biden, a Democrat, has been the target of a late surge in Republican support, with Republican Senate candidate Susan Collins of Maine gaining ground in a race that had appeared so close earlier in the week.

Clemens to appeal fine

Roger Clemens' agent says his client did not mean to throw a bat at Mike Piazza.

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Roger Clemens decided Tuesday to appeal a $500 fine for his role in a May 13 confrontation with plate umpire Mike Piazza that sent the M's star batter on a tour of the World Series.

Team president Bud Selig said the decision means the M's are out of the playoffs.

The 44-year-old Clemens has been suspended for 20 games but is expected to appeal the fine to the commissioner's office.

"The excessive intransigence of the fine suggests that they believe he intended to hit Piazza when he hit Roger to the point that he did not, " Clemens' agent, Randy Hen-nessy, said.

Clemens was restricted by umpires, but Frank Robinson, baseball's vice president in charge of discipline, decided punishment was necessary.

"It was a reckless type of action on his part," said Robins-son, who signed (but didn't intend to throw) the bat at Piazza.

Seattle manager Lou Piniella says he will be "working very, very closely" with Bobby Valentine.

By Fred Massie

NEW YORK — Booby Valentine, the former Mets manager, has a new job: coaching baseball for the New York Yankees.

"It's a great opportunity for me," Valentine said after meeting with the Yankees on Tuesday. "I'm very happy to be a part of this organization." Valentine, who managed the Mets to a one-game winning streak during the 1990-91 season, has been the subject of trade rumors for months. But the Yankees finally made a move by signing Valentine to a three-year contract, according to multiple reports.

Valentine, who played 12 seasons in the major leagues, has been linked to the Yankees since the team fired manager Joe Girardi last month. The move comes as the Yankees are looking to add depth to their roster and improve their on-field performance.

Valentine, who has managed in the minor leagues for the past 17 years, has a strong track record of success. He was the manager of the Milwaukee Brewers from 2002 to 2004, and the Cincinnati Reds from 2005 to 2006. He also managed the Tampa Bay Rays from 2006 to 2008, and the Chicago White Sox from 2009 to 2011.

Valentine is known for his sabermetric approach to managing, which involves using statistical analysis to make in-game decisions. He is also known for his ability to motivate his players and get the most out of his roster.

"I think Bobby will bring a lot of experience and leadership to our team," team president Randy Levine said in a statement. "We are excited to have him on board and look forward to working with him."
