UISG, city team up for parking plan

■ The city has accepted a UISG request to use parking debit cards that can be charged to U-bills.

By Megan L. Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

Paying for parking around campus will be a little easier this winter, now that students will be able to charge city parking-ramp fees to their U-bills.

A collaboration between UI Student Government and the city of Iowa City will allow UI students and employees to charge city parking-ramp debit cards to their U-bills — the first time students will be able to charge a non-university item.

The plan is expected to be implemented by Thanksgiving in the Capitol Street and Dubuque Street parking ramps. When the Clock Tower Place ramp on Iowa Avenue is completed next year, it will also have a debit-card system.

With the approval of City Manager Steve Atkins and a majority of the Iowa City City Council, the Iowa City Parking and Transit Division is purchasing an upgraded prepaid debit-card system for the three facilities.

Over the summer, the UI Student Government met with city councilors to discuss some concerns and ideas the group had. UISG initially suggested providing pre-paid debit cards for parking in city facilities that would be compatible with the current UI parking card, said UISG Vice President Chris Linn.

Although the city chose not to make the cards compatible, the UISG is pleased with the city's concern and action.

"This does allow the UI to sell the card at the same location that the UI cards are sold at," Linn said. "It also provides students with an added bonus because it's quicker."

Councilor Ross Wilburn, who worked with the UISG, said he believes the debit-card system is a good idea.

"It's a good idea for frequent users," he said. "It's not imperative but a matter of convenience."

Ann Rhodes
Looking back on a legacy

Rhodes acclimates to quiet life

Kourtney Hoffman/The Daily Iowan

Ann Rhodes, a member of the UI General Counsel Office, sits at her new desk in Jessup Hall Monday morning. One of her favorite parts of each day is watching the students pass between classes. Her old office down the hall did not have a similar view.

■ Ann Rhodes handed in her notoriety three months ago for a life outside the limelight.

By Megan Manfull
The Daily Iowan

It has been three months already. Yet, the pictures that will make this office home are still on the floor propped up against the wall. The lights are off, and the phone, which used to ring up to 40 times a day, rarely makes a sound anymore.

Ann Rhodes has a large window in her office for the first time in 11 years. It draws so much sunlight there is rarely a need to turn on the lights. Yet Rhodes has never found herself more in the dark at the UI.

For 11 years as the vice president for University Relations, Rhodes was the face associated with everything on campus. She was the spokeswoman for the university and the administrator who oversaw athletics. When she talked, people listened — and they didn't always like what she said.

Rhodes resigned amid controversy in July, and she is now in the shadows, just one of many lawyers in the UI General Counsel Office. After more than a decade of being one of the UI's most high-profile people, the 47-year-old is trying to adapt to anonymity.

"The hardest thing is to go from knowing what was going on within all aspects of this university to becoming quite removed," Rhodes said. "I knew it would take adjusting to. I'm going to forge my own territory now, and I think I can get used to it."

The Waterloo native cannot disconnect herself from the past. It's especially evident whenever Nov. 1 is mentioned. Her eyes lower, and her voice becomes soft. Nine years ago today, Iowans were introduced to Rhodes.

Rhodes struggles to remember details about the day, but she was the one who kept the UI together emotionally when former UI graduate student Gang Lu went on a shooting spree in Van Allen and Jessup halls, killing five.

Vilsack's K-12 funds may hike UI tuition

■ As he did last year, the governor will make K-12 education his funding priority.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

Gov. Tom Vilsack says he will again make kindergarten through 12th-grade education his priority in the upcoming legislative session — which may cut back the state's financial support to the public universities and cause tuition to continue to rise at above-average rates in the future.

Vilsack's remarks came during a visit with students on the Iowa State University campus Monday. In August, Vilsack conveyed the same message to UI students.

"I think it's time for us to pay attention to the K-12 system and children who are abused," he told the ISU students. "It's tough to say this in a crowd of students who finance their own education."

Steve Parrott, the director of UI Communications, said university officials believe that the state can fully fund K-12 education and higher education at the same time.

UI officials say they do not want to start a battle for funds between K-12 education and higher education because they believe it is important that the state funds both.

"I don't think (making K-12 education a priority) is mutually exclusive with funding the universities," Parrott said. "We will continue to work with the governor to find some common ground."

Last year, lawmakers and university officials did not find a common ground on funding, and K-12 education took a higher priority. This caused UI officials to delay some building projects and staff hiring because of a shortfall in funds. The shortfall was also the impetus, in part, behind the state of Iowa Board of Regents approving a 9.9 percent tuition/fees increase for the next school year — the largest such hike in 12 years.

UI President Mary Sue Coleman, who was out of town and unavailable for comment, said last month that a 9.9 percent tuition/fees increase would "send a powerful message" to legislators that UI

German media group to bail out Napster

■ Bertelsmann will help Napster develop a pay-for-play system.

By Seth Sutel
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Napster lives after all.

Media giant Bertelsmann said Tuesday it will join the embattled company in developing a membership-based music distribution system on the Internet that will guarantee payments to artists.

The German company agreed to drop its lawsuit against Napster once the new system is in place. It will also loan Napster money, make its music catalogue available, and gain the right to buy a stake in the company.

Both Napster and Bertelsmann are privately held and financial terms were not disclosed.

Bertelsmann is making a sharp break from other music industry giants, which have sued Napster in federal court for copyright infringement and sought to have the service shut down. A decision is pending.

Key details have yet to be worked out, including technological standards and whether files would be encrypted. Also unanswered is how much record companies would get and how much customers will pay for what they've been getting for free.

"Five dollars per month. That would be acceptable to me," said Ron van Zuylen, a computer engineer from Mountain View, Calif. But he said song quality must be top-rate and the transaction secure.

It's far from certain that other music companies will agree to join in the effort. Without participation from the other four major music companies — Sony, Warner,

Safewalk expands hours

■ Extended hours have volunteers hoping more students will use the service.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

After struggling to recruit volunteers at the start of the fall semester, Safewalk has managed to expand its staff to 47, allowing it to provide its escort service to UI students, faculty and staff during later hours of the evening.

A week ago, the student-run organization changed its hours from 7 p.m. to 2:30 a.m., Sunday through Thursday, partly as a result of the expanded Main Library hours. Previously, its hours had been 7 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Safewalk extended its hours not just for people studying late at the library but also for those walking home late from the bars or other locations, said Stephanie Soileau, a UI graduate student and the Safewalk coordinator.

It is important for students and faculty members to have at least one option if they are uncomfortable walking home late at night, especially now that the library is open until 2 a.m. and Cambus services do not run past midnight on weekdays, she said.

"No other source runs until 2:30 at night," Soileau

New cellular store rings in

■ Representatives from Wireless Store cite increased cell-phone use as one reason they are opening.

comfort of being able to make and receive calls from anywhere," Rush said.

UI senior Melissa DeSmet said she has thought on occasion about buying a cell phone.

"If I decided I wanted a cell phone, I would probably go (to Wireless Store) because it's close to campus and close to the downtown area," she said.

Some UI students don't see cell phones as quite so convenient, however.

"I wouldn't want to be able to be reached all the time," said Brad Davis, a UI sophomore. "I want time for myself."

UI sophomore Brett Jackson said he feels the Wireless Store isn't a worthy replacement for Kinko's, a 24-hour copy center.

"In the middle of the night when I was stressed and needed something copied or faxed, I depended on Kinko's because everywhere else was closed," Jackson said.

Iowa Wireless, 201 S. Clinton St. in the Old Capitol Town Center, is the only other Iowa Wireless provider in the downtown area. One employee says he doesn't feel at all threatened by the presence of Wireless Store.

"I think it's great," said Jason Zeman, the retail sales manager at Iowa Wireless. "It doesn't really matter where (cell-phone users) go — now they have more choices for accessories and stuff."

Madden: Gov't must rule by persuasion, not force

■ Madden has been endorsed by the Reform Party of Iowa but is running as a Libertarian.

By Erica Driskell
The Daily Iowan

Although U.S. representative candidate Russ Madden knows incumbents maintain their positions at a substantially high rate, he believes his message is still being heard.

Madden decided to run for the 1st District seat last fall when he no longer felt his interests were being represented. Madden said he views the role of government differently from his opponents — Republican incumbent Jim Leach and Democratic candidate Bob Simpson — because he believes the role of government should exist through persuasion rather than governmental force.

Madden, who recently received endorsement from the Reform Party of Iowa, said, "Even if I could at least get enough votes to let Jim Leach know he is heading in the wrong direction, that would be a step in the right direction."

From cutting taxes to minimizing government, Madden supports any stance that increases people's freedom.

Freedom is a right that every individual should procure, Madden said, stressing that freedom supports Libertarianism.

"Your life belongs to you. It is up to each individual to make up their mind and decide what they want to do with their money," said Madden, who is an instructor of communications and writing at Kirkwood Community College and Mount Mercy College in Cedar Rapids, as well as a freelance writer.

A misconception about the Libertarian Party is that it is against all government, Madden said. He said he supports a government that exists in order to defend citizens' rights, while most politicians perceive the Constitution as a joke and constantly pass laws to prohibit people from individuality.

"What Bob Simpson calls chaos, I call freedom and diversity," said Madden, who received his undergraduate and master's degrees at the UI. "I want people to vote for me, but more importantly, I want people to vote for their freedom and their rights."

Both presidential candidates offer hypocrisy by having admitted to past drug experimentation but advocating stricter punishments in the war on drugs — something

Madden firmly disagrees with. "You have to ask them (George W. Bush and Al Gore), 'do you think you would have benefited from spending 20 years in jail at 18 years old because of a foolish mistake?'" Madden said.

Christy Ann Welty, the Libertarian chairwoman for Johnson County, said she supports Madden's candidacy because of his stance on the drug war, as well as his stance on gun rights rather than gun control.

"His main stance is you own your own rights," Welty said.

Both Leach and Simpson share similar views, Welty said, who referred to the candidates as

"tweedle-dee" and "tweedle-dum" while saying Madden offers an alternative to the center-line politics of his opponents. "The major parties' purpose is to give power back to the people," Welty said.

Giving power back to the public can be done by reducing the role of government, which is why Bob Dostal, an Iowa City resident, said he, too, supports Libertarianism.

"I know what the Libertarians stand for," Dostal said. "I don't even know what the other candidates stand for, but the goal of both major parties seems to be to chain people to the wall and drain their pockets. I can now do something sensible. I can mark a ballot Libertarian."

Bouncers acquitted in nightclub death

■ The two defendants faced two years in prison if convicted in the Des Moines incident.

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Friends and relatives of a black man who died as he was thrown out of a Des Moines nightclub were despondent as a jury found two bouncers innocent of involuntary manslaughter.

"There's nothing in our hearts that is settled now," said Keona Ward-Taylor, a cousin of Charles Lovelady, who died outside the nightclub, Graffiti's, which has since been closed.

"They're free. They killed my cousin ... If we have anything at all, we have each other. We have to stick together," said Ward-Taylor.

Jeff Portman and Tom Dueber, who are both white, were accused of choking and stomping Lovelady as they tried to subdue him on Feb. 17.

Defense attorneys said Lovelady died of a heart attack. They said the two bouncers only scuffled with Lovelady after he had thrown a punch at one of them.

Dueber's roommate and fellow bouncer, Robert Harvey, said the acquittal shouldn't overshadow Lovelady's death.

"It's still a tragic situation," Harvey said. "But it's a huge weight lifted. It'll definitely give (all bouncers) something to think about. It's going to affect us no matter what we're doing."

As the verdict was returned Monday afternoon, District Associate Judge Douglas Staskal said he knew there were strong opinions and emotions about the case.

"You have the right to express your opinion and your emotions in this case about the verdict, but this is not the appropriate time or place," he said, cautioning people in the gallery to maintain decorum.

As he read the verdict, there was an audible sigh from friends and family sitting behind the bouncers in the courtroom. A stifled sob also could be heard.

Staskal then told jurors he would meet with them in his chambers, and people began filing out of the courtroom.

Dueber and his father left immediately for their Colorado hometown. Portman planned to return to his Missouri home.

Dueber's attorney, John Sandre, said his client was "relieved and drained" by the verdict.

"We're obviously delighted, just thrilled that the jury had the courage to do what was the right thing in this case. There's no question that the Lovelady family has suffered a loss. But this was not a crime, and the jury did the right thing," Sandre said.

"These two young guys were doing nothing other than just trying to hold on to Lovelady until the police got there," he said.

Joe Weeg, the assistant county attorney who prosecuted the case, said he was disappointed with the verdict but felt the jury did its job.

"It was a hard case," Weeg said. "I appreciate their work."

He said it is hard for the family to deal with the verdict.

"They're trying to get past it," he said.

Jurors began deliberating on Oct. 26 after a week of testimony. The state called nearly 20 witnesses. Neither Portman nor Dueber testified.

Each of the men faced up to two years in prison if convicted. Neither man had a previous criminal record.

Polk County Medical Examiner Francis Garrity and former State Medical Examiner Thomas Bennett were at odds over how Lovelady died. Garrity said Lovelady died of asphyxiation. Bennett contended Lovelady suffered a heart attack.

Government provides grant for biofuels

■ The Department of Agriculture hopes the program boosts the use of ethanol and biodiesel.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Department of Agriculture will provide $300 million to expand markets for agricultural commodities, ethanol and other renewable fuels made from corn, soybeans and other crops.

Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman said the program will help expand markets for agricultural commodities and promote use of biofuels such as ethanol and soy-based biodiesel.

"This program will help us tap into a huge domestic energy reserve — our family farms," said Glickman. "Encouraging the use of bioenergy benefits America's farmers, while improving our energy security and helping to protect the environment."

Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, applauded the announcement

Tuesday.

"This program is a win-win — it's good news for our family farmers, Iowa's economy and the environment," Harkin said. "The program will encourage smaller plants and farmer-owned co-ops that produce ethanol and other renewable fuels to expand production."

The two-year program, funded out of the USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation, will provide direct payments to plants and co-ops to offset the costs of purchasing more corn, soybeans and other commodities to expand production of ethanol and other renewable fuels.

The program would be available to about 58 facilities in 18 states.

Payments will be made at a higher rate to small and new producers, including co-ops, to encourage expanded domestic bioenergy output.

Iowa has five ethanol plants producing 441.5 million gallons per year.

There are also 16 plants in various stages of development.

CITY BRIEF

Southeast I.C. beauty salon damaged by fire

A Tuesday fire at 116 E. Benton St. left Ya-Ya's Beauty Salon out of business, but the owner says she will reopen by Nov. 6.

Lisa McDougall, the owner of the salon, was notified Tuesday around 4 a.m. about the fire.

Fire officials found the fire on the second floor in the northeast corner of the building, said Iowa City Fire Department Battalion Chief Elmer Brenneman. The fire was confined to the second floor, but smoke damage was found throughout the structure, he said. The beauty salon on the first floor only suffered smoke and heat damage.

The cause of the fire is unknown and under investigation by the Iowa City Fire Department, Brenneman said.

"Hopefully, by late tomorrow we'll know the cause," he said.

Fire officials from Coralville and West Branch assisted the Iowa City Fire Department in extinguishing the fire in 1 hour, 45 minutes, fire department officials said.

McDougall said an exact loss was not yet estimated and that the insurance company was still evaluating loss expenses.

However, fire officials estimate the damage at $50,000.

McDougall said she plans to assess the damages and rebuild as soon as possible.

No one was in the building at the time of the fire, she said.

Consumer confidence plummets in October

■ Experts cite the volatile stock market and rising oil prices as reasons for the drop.

By Adam Geller
 Associated Press

NEW YORK — Consumer confidence dropped sharply in October to its lowest level in a year, raising doubts about the strength of the coming retail holiday season.

The Conference Board said Tuesday that its Consumer Confidence Index stands at 135.2, a steep drop from the revised 142.5 reported in September and the record high of 144.7 in May and January.

The index, based on a monthly survey of some 5,000 U.S. households, is closely watched because consumer spending accounts for about two-thirds of the nation's economic activity.

Economists said stock market volatility, higher oil prices, the rise in jobless claims and interest rates, and the uncertainty of next week's elections contributed to the slump.

Jittery retailers concerned about the holiday season could offer more discounts and promotions, said Sung Won Sohn, the executive vice president and chief economist with Wells Fargo Banks in Minneapolis.

"I'm sure some of the retailers are sweating a bit," he said.

Even so, a separate report released by the Commerce Department on Tuesday showed that sales of new homes soared in September to the highest level in six months as cheaper mortgage rates encouraged buyers to lock in deals.

The 9.2 percent increase was not expected. Many analysts were predicting sales would fall by 0.7 percent.

"People may not be saying things are quite as rosy as they were, but I think they're still feel pretty good about the overall economic picture," said Gary R. Thayer, the chief economist for A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis.

Adjusting to life outside the UI mainstream

Stifling her own emotions, Rhodes was in every newspaper and on every TV station informing the state of the fatal shootings in which one of her best friends, T. Anne Cleary, was fatally shot along with three faculty members and one graduate student. Lu ended the spree by taking his own life.

"To see her, Ann, in front of those cameras, it must have been tremendous stress," longtime colleague Sam Becker said. "However, she calmed fears and made it clear that things were under control. She gave you a lot of confidence when you watched her."

It's that same poise that kept responsibilities piling on Rhodes' shoulders. She took care of it all — whether it was working with the Athletics Department, the nursing school, the Alumni Association or with financial matters.

This past April, however, Rhodes' once unwavering confidence broke.

When threatening e-mails were sent to minority students in the UI dental school last spring, Rhodes, along with many other UI officials, feared a repeat of the 1991 shootings.

For a month, she didn't sleep. She couldn't sleep. A bomb threat was e-mailed to the school, and Rhodes' anxiety increased. On April 20, Tarsha Claiborne, a black student in the dental school, admitted to sending the e-mails.

Rhodes held a press conference announcing Claiborne's arrest. She was asked whether she was surprised a black woman was arrested for the e-mails.

In a miserable attempt to break the past month's tension, she responded by saying, "I figured it was going to be a white guy between 25 and 55 because they're the root of most evil ... but what do I know?"

Her poor attempt at humor was placed on the Internet, drawing a backlash. In disgust, many people sent angry e-mails to the governor, members of the state of Iowa Board of Regents and the UI.

After answering thousands of questions during the past decade, this one changed her life.

"I think about it every day. I said something really stupid — unbelievably stupid," Rhodes said. "I remember I got a new job when I was 25, and my boss told me if I was ever tempted to say something funny, to bite my tongue off instead. I knew better. That's why it's so embarrassing."

"Other than something happening to my family, the worst thing I could imagine doing was bring shame on the university. I felt I really let down (UI President) Mary Sue Coleman and my colleagues. I decided then that I'd had the job long enough."

Lacking the confidence that made her a hero nine years ago, Rhodes was scared she might make the same mistake again.

She had contemplated resigning months before the fateful statement. Now, she regrets staying so long.

Prior to her announcement, Becker paid her a visit and told her he hoped she would not step down from her position.

"I told her I wouldn't do it," he said. "It seems to me there aren't that many good people in this world — it would be criminal to lose someone this good."

The support from Becker drew emotions from Rhodes that she needed at the time. "His statement made me feel better in the sense that he thought I was still OK," she said.

But it was too late to dissuade her, and she met with Coleman regarding her final decision.

Coleman would not comment on anything regarding Rhodes' resignation.

Rhodes' husband and three children were supportive, and her mother was relieved.

"Whenever people ask me if I was surprised Ann resigned, I tell them yes," said Rhodes' mother, Kathleen Rhodes. "I always thought she'd have a heart attack or be shot first."

Her mother's worries primarily started during the 1998-99 football and basketball coaching searches. Rhodes was the most high-profile member of the search committees led by Athletics Director Bob Bowlsby.

Rhodes received up to 75 e-mails each day criticizing the search that surrounded replacing longtime football coach Hayden Fry with Kirk Ferentz — a decision she remains confident was the right one.

Some of the e-mails requested she fire Bowlsby. Others told her that they wished she'd die. Bowlsby said he was receiving similar ones.

One read: "Hey Ann: In case you didn't realize, you are the most hated female in the state of Iowa ... At what point in your life did you start to emulate Napoleon? Why don't you quit trying to prove how big your balls are and mind your own business? You have no business being involved in determining who does and doesn't coach here."

The e-mails tapered off following the hiring of basketball coach Steve Alford. Now, in her removed office, they are almost nonexistent — though she still receives a handful every Monday morning following a football loss.

She's hoping people have just forgotten about her, though she knows the words that are triggered in people's minds when they hear her name.

"They think I'm an evil, wicked and humorless person," Rhodes said. "I was never associated with anything good, as a general rule."

Those who have worked closely with her would argue differently. They know she's been associated with many positives at the university.

"Because of the spokesperson role, she has to explain things, and sometimes you take the brunt of it because you are saying things people don't want to hear," said former men's Athletics Director Bump Elliott. "They associate you with the announcement."

"The university will miss her. Let someone else be the spokesperson, and see what happens."

More importantly to Rhodes, her daughters will back her character — a particularly good thing because they are now the central focus of her life. Instead of worrying for her family's safety, Rhodes is discussing the Harry Potter books over dinner. Her youngest daughter, 9-year-old Molly Miller, demanded she read all of them. They are also debating what recipe to send in for the Pillsbury Bake-Off, if Pillsbury decides to have one this year.

Elliott heralded Rhodes for her ability to "listen to all sides of an issue and come up with a responsible conclusion — and that would oftentimes be the smartest thing said at our meetings."

If he only knew what else that ability to analyze went toward. Last year, with the help of her sister, Rhodes broke down the last 10 years of Pillsbury Bake-Off winners by regions. She then divided them by types of food. After looking over the chart, Rhodes decided a dessert in Iowa had the best chance to win. She was right — unfortunately, it wasn't hers.

Winning the bake-off will come another day. In the meantime, she'll get her rewards from her family and from teaching. Next semester, she'll teach a leadership course in the nursing school. She earned her bachelor's degree in nursing at the College of St. Teresa before coming to the UI to earn her master's. From 1979 to 1982, Rhodes worked as a nurse at UIHC to put herself through law school. Ever since, she has written countless columns for medical journals and constantly kept up on advancements in the field.

"If people knew all the things she was doing, and doing well, I think they'd be shocked," Becker said. "I don't know where she finds time to do that — unless it was in the middle of the night. It's quite amazing."

Rhodes still doesn't sleep much — maybe it's out of habit. A few nights ago, she watched Chariots of Fire. Twice.

EMI and Universal — the service would not likely become an accepted standard.

Those companies issued statements cautiously welcoming Napster's willingness to start paying for using their music, but they stopped short of saying whether they would follow Bertelsmann's lead.

"There's still quite a bit of work to do" said Hilary Rosen, head of the Recording Industry Association of America. "For example, Napster is saying it wants to have a secure system, though it has been saying to the court that a secure system is unfeasible."

The recording industry has struggled to find a formula for music distribution that protects royalties — and no workable pay-for-play scheme has emerged based on encrypting music with digital keys.

Bertelsmann's BMG subsidiary sells music from hundreds of artists, including Britney Spears, Whitney Houston, Kenny G and Carlos Santana, through a series of labels that includes Arista, RCA and Ariola.

Company Chairman Thomas Middelhoff called Napster's file-sharing system an important model that could have implications for other parts of Bertelsmann's media stable, which also includes books, magazines and broadcasting.

"There is no question that file-sharing will exist in the future as part of the media and entertainment industry," Middelhoff said. "There is no way to deal with this fact but to develop a model to deal with file-sharing."

Analysts were not surprised that Bertelsmann was attracted to Napster, which has become equated with online music and claims 38 million users. Napster currently uses the open MP3 music compression standard, the most popular on the Internet.

"Everybody knows it's just a matter of time before everyone comes to the Web with the business of downloading music for money. So if Bertelsmann and Napster can agree to do it legally, why not be one of the first to try to profit," said Roland Pfaender, a media analyst with BHF Bank in Frankfurt, Germany.

Napster has taken off since being founded a year ago by then-college freshman Shawn Fanning, snarling college computer networks and sparking public debate over whether intellectual property can be protected in the digital age.

Napster CEO Hank Barry called the Bertelsmann deal the "right next step" for the company. Barry had said the company was thinking about charging monthly membership fees to users.

Several other online music sites, led by MP3.com, have embraced such subscription models. But none use the wildly popular peer-to-peer file-swapping method employed by Napster in which users share their music over the Internet while Napster serves as the clearinghouse.

MP3.com was also sued by recording companies for copyright infringement but has settled with all but Universal.

Gov. stresses K-12 funds

students have stepped up to the plate to fund their education, and now it is the legislators' turn to fund the universities.

Parrott said UI officials are unsure whether lawmakers have gotten that message, which is why they will work closely with them over the next few months to try to get that message across.

The UI Student Government has requested another meeting with the governor before he makes his budget recommendations, UISG President Andy Stoll said.

"The governor will be the primary focus of our efforts at the beginning," he said, because Vilsack's recommendation basically sets a cap on how much money the Legislature can set aside for the universities.

UISG is planning trips to visit with lawmakers in Des Moines this winter, Stoll said, to convey "the genuine interest students have in the future of higher education in Iowa."

"From our perspective, higher education is in danger," he said, citing the recent tuition/fees increase and some of the improvements that last year's shortfalls put on hold.

In January, Vilsack will release his fiscal year 2002 budget recommendations for K-12 and higher education, which will then go to the House Education Appropriations Subcommittee for revision. Once passed in the House, the bill will go to the Senate for final approval, typically in March or April.

ience, which community members and university students can appreciate."

Currently, the Capitol Street and Dubuque Street facilities have a system for monthly cards, which are used by roughly 350 patrons. The equipment that the city is purchasing includes new software, card readers at ramp entrances and exits, and a posting reader, which is used to validate the pre-paid cards. The software will allow users to be notified how much is remaining on the card when exiting. An upgrade and connection will cost approximately $15,000 for the two ramps and $12,000 for Clock Tower Place.

"We've had requests for it for a number of years," said Joe Fowler, the city parking and transit director. "We think we will be able to meet their needs now."

People can initially purchase the credit parking cards for $3. The cards can then be programmed to allow $25 or $50 worth of parking. The city will provide a separate lane for card-holders entering and exiting the ramps. Students who buy monthly parking passes will not be able to charge them and will instead have to be pay for them at the time of purchase.

"This system will be a lot more convenient for those who want to pay in one lump sum," Fowler said. "And it will be a lot quicker for those to exit the facility."

For the past three weeks, the UISG has also been working with the UI Department of Transportation, the city of Iowa City and the city of Coralville to discuss providing more efficient Campus and city bus services. UISG is also interested in working to reduce the costs of monthly bus passes, Linn said.

Passes may be purchased at the city transit center and IMU ramp.

But without the assistance of the 47 volunteers, the most the organization has ever had, Safewalk would not have been able to extend the hours, she said. Safewalk is continuing to recruit new volunteers for this semester and next spring.

Three volunteers work each two-and-a-half-hour shift, and most work one or two shifts per week, said UI senior Paul Micheli, who has been a volunteer for Safewalk since his freshman year.

"All of our shifts are full, and we have extras," Soileau said. "It's a good situation for the organization."

Micheli said he is also impressed with the dramatic increase in numbers, which he attributes to Safewalk's extensive advertising and a few events it has held at the IMU.

"It's nice to have substitutes to make sure the shifts keep running," he said.

Since the beginning of the semester, Safewalk has had close to 20 telephone calls. While on some nights it has two or three calls, a majority from women, it has also gone an entire week without receiving any.

Several issues may have affected what seems to be a lack of interest in the service, Soileau said.

"If it's because people feel safe on campus, that's a good sign," she said. "But I hope it's not that people don't know what Safewalk is or that our hours can't help them."

Soileau said she expects to hear the phone ring more because of the extended hours. But if it doesn't, she said, "Safewalk's policy is even if the numbers are low, at least we've made a big difference to those few people."

UI junior Anna Corona has four roommates, so studying at home can be challenging, she said. Although she doesn't live too far off campus, she also does not have a car, so walking home by herself is sometimes her only option.

"I definitely think (Safewalk) is a good idea," she said. "I never thought of actually having someone walk you home from the library during the week."

UI sophomore Kim Ernster said she would probably never call Safewalk because she does not plan on ever being out that late alone.

"I don't think I'd even feel safe having a stranger from Safewalk walking me home," she said.

L.A.-bound flight crashes in Taiwan

■ The Singapore Airlines jet attempts to take off in a storm; at least 77 are dead.

By William Foreman
Associated Press

TAIPEI, Taiwan — A Singapore Airlines jumbo jet speeding down a runway in darkness and rain slammed into an object before takeoff for Los Angeles and burst into flames Tuesday, scattering fiery wreckage across the tarmac, witnesses said. Seventy-seven people were killed and dozens more were injured, a Taiwanese official said.

It wasn't immediately clear what Flight SQ006 hit, but the collision wreaked havoc on the plane: Video footage showed the Boeing 747-400 spewing flames and thick black smoke despite the heavy rain. Afterward, parts of the blue-and-white fuselage were badly charred, with a gaping hole in the roof of the forward section.

The pilot "saw an object on the runway, and he tried to take off to avoid the object, and he hit the object," airline spokesman Rick Clements said in Singapore.

There were 20 crew members and 159 passengers on board. Clements said 47 U.S. citizens and 55 Taiwanese were among the passengers.

Taiwanese civil aviation official Billy K.C. Chang declined to comment on the cause of the crash until investigators retrieved the plane's "black boxes," the flight data and voice cockpit recorders.

"It felt like we bumped into something huge," said Doug Villermin, 33, of New Iberia, La., who was standing outside the Chang Gung Memorial Hospital, wrapped in a hospital gown and smoking a cigarette. "It looked like the front end just fell off.

From there, it just started to fall apart. I ran to the escape hatch with the stewardess, but we couldn't get it open. Two feet away from me, I saw flames.

"Everyone was just panicking," he said. "I tried to open the escape hatch on the top just a slit and saw a lot of smoke. The fumes were just incredible. But eventually we got it open. ... We were just all so scared it was going to blow up."

It was Singapore Airlines' first major accident in 28 years of operation, and it came in nasty weather: A typhoon packing 90 mph winds was whirling off Taiwan's southern coast Tuesday, lashing the island with rain and prompting officials to set up disaster-relief centers.

Chang said 77 people died, 54 were hospitalized and 48 suffered minor or no injuries. Earlier, Singapore Airlines Chairman Michael Fam said 66 people were killed.

Speaking in Singapore, Fam said the plane "crashed on the runway during the takeoff."

"We wish to express our sincere regret to all concerned," he said. "This is a tragic day for all of us."

Clements said Singapore Airlines would provide all families of victims with $25,000 immediate compensation.

"We should wait for the investigations, but the early indications are that it (the plane) did momentarily take off," he said.

Besides the Americans and Taiwanese, airline spokesman James Boyd in Los Angeles said there also were 11 Singaporeans on board, 11 Indians, eight Malaysians, five Indonesians, four Mexicans, four British, two each from Thailand, New Zealand and Vietnam and one each from Australia, Canada, Cambodia, Germany, Japan, Philippines, Ireland and the Canary Islands/Spain.

U.S. Gulf forces placed on highest alert

■ Officials say they have indications of terrorist threats in the Middle East and the Suez Canal region.

By Robert Burns
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait are on the highest state of alert following new indications of terrorist threats in those Persian Gulf countries, U.S. officials said Tuesday.

Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon cited "credible threat information," but he declined to be more specific.

U.S. officials also revealed that since the bombing of the USS Cole on Oct. 12 in Yemen, no American warships have used the Suez Canal — the fastest, and normal, route from the eastern United States to the Gulf.

The crippled Cole, with most of its crew still aboard in the Gulf of Aden, will take the long way home to the United States — around the Cape of Good Hope on Africa's southern tip — to avoid the Suez Canal, said Defense officials who discussed the matter Tuesday on the condition of anonymity.

The Defense officials said the Navy has been avoiding the Suez because of security concerns in light of escalating terrorist threats in the region. Bacon, however, denied there had been a decision to stop using the Suez.

The State Department's top anti-terrorism official, Michael A. Sheehan, declined Tuesday to divulge what investigators into the Cole attack may have found so far, saying, "It's not clear what happened." But, he added, "My guess is that it (the attack) was not state-sponsored."

Bacon said it probably will be several more days before the Cole begins its journey home. The 505-foot destroyer was in the process of being secured atop the main deck of the Blue Marlin, a Norwegian-owned heavy-lift ship. To accomplish that, the Blue Marlin submerged its huge deck and positioned the Cole on top before starting to fasten it in place.

The Navy originally had estimated this maneuver would take about 24 hours, but Bacon said extra time will be taken to test the stability of the destroyer on the Blue Marlin's deck. "They just want to be very careful," Bacon said.

At a Pentagon briefing, Bacon displayed U.S. Navy photographs of the operation, but none showed the Cole raised out of the water, where the full dimensions of the bomb crater in its hull could be seen. Bacon said such photos might not be made public.

At Arlington National Cemetery, one of the last of the slain sailors brought home from the Cole was buried Tuesday. Hull Maintenance Technician 3rd Class Kenneth E. Clodfelter, 21, of Mechanicsville, Va., was among the 17 victims.

"Kenneth won't be forgotten; the other 16 won't be forgotten; the Cole won't be forgotten," Clodfelter's father, John, said after the funeral.

Palestinian leader Arafat, calls for further resistance

■ Violent clashes continue in the Gaza Strip and West Bank, killing four more Palestinians.

By Greg Myre
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Stepping through the rubble of an Israeli missile attack Tuesday, Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat called for renewed resistance by young activists, "these children who throw the stones to defend Jerusalem, the Muslims and the holy places."

In a clash that lasted through the day and into the night, four Palestinians, ages 17 to 23, were killed by Israeli fire at the Karni crossing point along the eastern Gaza Strip, hospital doctors said. Thirty-four days of fighting have left 147 people dead, almost all of them Palestinians.

The Palestinians supplemented their stones and firebombs for the first time with machine-gun fire and anti-tank missiles, according to the army. At least 45 Palestinians were injured in three separate clashes in Gaza and two in the West Bank, doctors said.

Tuesday's fighting came a day after Israel rained missiles on several command centers of Arafat's Fatah movement in one of the most intense attacks since the fighting began. The Israeli raids, launched in response for the killing of two Israelis, were the latest escalation in the cycle of retaliatory violence and left Palestinians in a defiant mood.

"What happened here and elsewhere in the Palestinian territories will not shake one hair on the head of the Palestinian children," Arafat said as he examined the battered walls and broken concrete at a base for his Force 17 bodyguards at Khan Yunis in Gaza.

Israel says Arafat's comments have encouraged youths to take part in the daily confrontations. However, many youngsters say they do so with relish, needing no such prompting, while others participate out of peer pressure.

The Israelis have criticized Palestinian leaders, saying they cynically use the children — and the resulting casualties — in the ongoing public relations battle between the two sides.

Referring to the helicopter attacks, Prime Minister Ehud Barak warned, "The long reach of the Israeli army could be much more painful." Speaking to visiting Jewish leaders from around the world, Barak said he talked to Arafat briefly a week ago to explain Israel's position, "but to my dismay, the emergency situation continues."

More than a month of fighting has put the peace process on hold, but there were plans for a new round of high-level contacts.

Arafat and Israeli elder statesman Shimon Peres, who shared the Nobel Peace Prize in 1994 along with the late Israeli leader Yitzhak Rabin, planned to meet late Tuesday or today, Israel radio said.

Barak's top adviser, Danny Yatom, said, "We must settle this ancient conflict, not with violence, but with peace."

But harsh words on both sides were more the norm. Ahmed Qureia, a senior Palestinian negotiator, said the Israeli helicopter attacks "started a new stage of aggression against the Palestinian people."

"The Palestinian intefadeh (uprising) will continue as long as there is aggression," he said.

Bush airs negative ad; Gore counters

■ Vice President Gore questions Governor Bush's experience.

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

George W. Bush launched a tough new ad Tuesday accusing Al Gore of "bending the truth," setting the stage for a bitter climax to their closely fought presidential campaign. Gore said Americans need a president who will fight for them "and has the experience to do so."

Gore advisers jumped on Bush for challenging the vice president's character after promising to run a positive campaign. At the same time, the Gore team considered a last-minute ad questioning whether the Texas Republican was ready to be president.

A week before Election Day, each candidate struggled to pull away from the other — while a budget showdown in Washington and scores of close congressional races competed for voters' attention.

Ralph Nader, the presidential race's third-party wild card, upped the ante with a biting satire ad that cast the Bush-Gore race as a choice between "the lesser of two evils."

The negative turn on all fronts was further proof that neither major-party campaign was confident enough of victory to close the race in traditional fashion with high-minded positive ads. Analysts said both candidates could face a backlash — with little time to recover.

A number of Republicans privately said they were surprised that Bush would take the risk, suggesting his move belies the apparent confidence he and his troops are careful to keep on display.

The candidates chased each other across California and Oregon, two states Gore hoped long ago to lock up. Bush could win Oregon and its seven electoral votes, but California, the election's biggest prize at 54 electoral votes, is still a long shot.

In Oregon, Gore cast himself as the dragon-slaying populist in hopes of drawing Nader supporters back into the Democratic fold.

"You need someone who will fight for you and win and has the experience to do so," Gore said. The line came out of polls that show many voters still question Bush's credentials.

Bush has criticized Gore for playing "class warfare" in his tax-cut arguments. Gore turned that against the Republican, too, saying: "What he is actually proposing is a massive redistribution of wealth from the middle-class to the wealthiest few. It is, in fact, a form of class warfare on behalf of billionaires."

Americans warned against travel in Jakarta

■ The State Department says Islamic groups have been demanding U.S. citizens leave Indonesia.

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The State Department advised Americans to defer travel to Jakarta and other areas of Java, the most populous island in Indonesia.

In an announcement Monday, the department said intimidation and threats of violence had been directed at U.S. citizens in Jakarta, Solo and other parts of the island.

On Sunday, the department said, a number of groups identifying themselves as Islamic organizations visited hotels in the Solo area to demand names of American guests and to deliver an ultimatum that U.S. citizens leave Indonesia within 48 hours.

The travel announcement advised Americans to exercise "extreme caution" in their travels in the country.

Major tourist areas in Bali, Sumatra and North Sulawesi have been relatively calm, but unrest and violence can erupt without forewarning, the department said.

On Monday, U.S. Ambassador Robert Gelbard sharply criticized Indonesia's reform efforts.

Indonesian leaders responded by calling him an interfering bully. The U.S. Embassy closed its doors to the public. It will remain closed at least until Thursday, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday.

The closing was based on "credible information" that it was targeted for attack by terrorists.

Relations between the United States and the sprawling southeast Asian nation, the world's most-populous Muslim country, have been on a downward spiral for months.

Palestinian legislator calls for new peace brokers

■ Hanan Ashrawi says the U.S. "monopoly" on the peace process must end.

By Pauline Jelinek
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Charging the United States with a bias toward Israel, a leading Palestinian spokeswoman said Tuesday that new brokers are needed for a Middle East peace process long monopolized by Americans.

"We recognize that the U.S. is a superpower, but we need expanded participation," said Hanan Ashrawi, a Palestinian legislator and spokeswoman.

"This is not just a U.S. project," she said, adding that Europeans and Arab countries need to play a role.

Asserting that it is clear the United States "is taking sides," Ashrawi told a gathering of Middle East experts and journalists that in "its monopoly of sponsorship ... the United States excluded the United Nations, the Arab world" from the peace process.

Ashrawi did not refer to any specific U.S. statement. But her speech followed Secretary of State Madeleine Albright's call Monday night for more restraint from Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

Appearing on PBS' "NewsHour," Albright talked about the recent fighting between Israelis and Palestinians and said Arafat bears some responsibility.

Arafat has been saying things that "are very difficult to swallow in terms of wanting to keep fighting," Albright said. "I hope that he will exercise more control, and I'm sure that he can and that we can get back to a peace process."

She acknowledged that there is nothing particularly hopeful going on at present except that both sides are talking to the United States and with other countries that want to be helpful.

A political showdown at the IMU ...

Stars outshine sneers

An unusual phenomenon occurred last Sunday afternoon: Stars shone brightly in broad daylight. Their beams electrified local Gore-Lieberman supporters.

With the presidential election rapidly approaching, candidates spend the bulk of their time rushing from state to state, campaigning relentlessly. Since Al Gore cannot possibly visit every city he'd like to, the next best option is to recruit helpers in his fight for the presidency — advocates with mass appeal.

Boasting a dense lineup of high-profile celebrities, the IMU housed a spirited and encouraging rally for the Gore ticket Sunday afternoon. Rob Reiner, Martin Sheen, Christine Lahti, Alfre Woodward and Dulé Hill spoke persuasively in favor of Vice President Gore, prompting prideful fervor from fellow Gore enthusiasts and disension from a duo of Nader supporters. Considering the glamour of the event and the hostile and juvenile outbursts made by the pro-Nader

Bush and implored voters to understand that Nader votes secure Bush's election. While members of the celebrity panel voiced praise for Nader, they recognized the need to unite against a future of anti-choice measures, lackadaisical gun safety and economically detrimental tax cuts.

This event provided exactly what people need at this point in the campaign process. The public, by late October, knows the candidates and policies, the promises and gripes. But taking a step away from the candidates and listening to citizens, facts and, ultimately, gut instinct, leads to smarter voting. The rally effectively enriched Iowa City's political zest, urging people not only to vote, but also to consider the most valuable use of that vote in relation to how they envision the future of the nation.

ON THE BRIGHT SIDE

BY SETH BRIGHT

NOW THERE'S A GREAT COSTUME!! YOU GOT THE BADGE AND EVERYTHING!!

Do your civic duty: Please don't vote

Growing up, I was told that it was every red-blooded American's duty to vote.

I believed that, right up there with the Pledge of Allegiance, cheering against the Soviets and drinking 2 percent milk, every American was bound by patriotism to vote on Election Day.

Then I learned how to read, and the world seemed so clear to me: No, your civic duty is not to vote. The overarching responsibility of each American is this:

1. Ask yourself, "Am I a moron?"
2. If "Yes," then get the hell away from the ballot box.

Yes, I know that sounded elitist, but it's really just practical. Every election, some people spend months and months tirelessly sorting out the issues ... only to see their vote canceled out by some girl who read in YM that Candidate A has a "sweet bum."

In the public interest, I've complied a short quiz, one that I'd like to call the "Me go Vote? Me No Vote?" quiz.

1. Which of the following is the best source for cutting-edge political commentary?

- a) "The Late Show" with David Letterman
 - b) "The Tonight Show" with Jay Leno
 - c) "The Simpsons"
 - d) "Larry King Live"
- Obviously, the correct answer is (c). Letterman and

Leno have managed to turn the election into little more than a late-night parade of the idiot questions, while Larry King has proven to be the master of hard follow-ups like "Uh-huh?" and "Oh, really?" "The Simpsons," on the other hand, tackles tough issues such as, "What if Clinton and Dole were kidnapped by aliens?" and "When the United Nations becomes Lord of the Flies."

2. True or false: Your vote counts.

Answer: False. Well, it counts if your vote is the tie-breaker, but other than that, it makes no real difference whether you vote at all. Do the math.

3. Which of the following does not belong?

- a) Karl Marx
- b) Vladimir Lenin
- c) Ralph Nader

Answer: (b) Lenin. Neither Marx nor Nader were ever lifted to a position of political power. Beyond that, though, you can draw your own comparisons.

4. True or false: "The Supreme Court sure is on the line here."

Answer: False. If you think it makes a difference which one of the two "major" candidates selects to the Supreme Court, consider this:

- Justices Scalia and

Thomas, the two most conservative justices, were approved by Democrat-controlled Senates. Scalia's approval was unanimous.

- Justice Blackmun, who authored the Roe v. Wade decision, was originally seen as a lackey for conservative Chief Justice Burger.
- Three justices nominated by GOP presidents — Justices O'Connor, Kennedy and Souter — have supplied the definitive votes to uphold Roe over the last decade or so.

The super-tolerant Christian Coalition and those foxy ladies at NOW might want to scare you into thinking that abortion is still up for grabs, but let's face it, whether you're pro-life or on the other side, it's a non-factor in this election.

5. True or false: A vote for Nader is a vote for Bush.

Answer: True. Bush and Gore have a God-given right to your vote. In fact, it says so in the back of the Constitution or Bible or something, right after the part that says "Congress shall make no law abridging the Freedom of Speech, unless you're damn well asking for trouble."

And when someone challenges this right of the major candidates, all hell breaks loose, just like in 1992, when that odd-ball candidate showed up, stole all those votes away from one guy and threw the win to Clinton. I'm still ticked off that Bush the Older robbed Ross Perot of imminent victory.

'Increased marijuana use' in the dorms ...

Facts go up in smoke

The Des Moines Register reported Oct. 26 that according to university officials, marijuana usage in the UI dormitories — and at Iowa's other public universities — is on the upswing. The question however, is: How do officials know?

The only hard evidence that can be attained is the number of arrests by Public Safety for pot-related offenses in the dormitories. But more arrests do not imply increased usage of the drug. More likely, increased arrests are simply a reflection of a tougher stand on crime.

There are additional factors to take into account before jumping to the conclusion that marijuana use is on the rise. For instance, this is the first year the dorms have been entirely smoke-free — cigarettes, of course. With that comes the potential for Resident Assistants to crack down on any type of smoking. Picture this: An RA enters a room where he/she suspects students are smoking and discovers what they are smoking. The kids get busted, and they're left to wonder whether they would have been caught last year, when they were doing the same thing without the presence of trigger-happy RAs.

More arrests do not imply increased usage of the drug. More likely, they reflect a tougher stand on crime.

Jumping to the conclusion that marijuana use is on the upswing is analogous to saying that Iowa City has a bigger drinking problem than other cities in Iowa ... but based on what evidence? More tickets handed out for public intoxication don't necessarily mean a larger alcohol problem in Iowa City than, say, in Des Moines. It could just as easily mean that this is a college town with Public Safety eager to scour the area and hand out tickets.

It's the same with the suspected rise in the use of pot. What hard evidence does Public Safety have other than number of arrests? Brazenly claiming that a higher number of students are smoking pot on campus seems more like an attempt to justify additional Public Safety patrols than any kind of meaningful statement on America's war on drugs.

Renowned pianist, orchestra to play Hancher

■ Garrick Ohlsson and the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra will team up on the Hancher stage tonight.

By Jennifer Aistrop
The Daily Iowan

A change of pace is due after a weekend dominated by the Halloween craze.

Tonight, Hancher Auditorium will return to the classics with a performance by the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra with special guest pianist Garrick Ohlsson.

"Garrick Ohlsson has been a major player on the concert circuit for over a quarter of a century," said William LaRue Jones, the conductor of the UI Symphony Orchestra. "He has achieved and maintained a level of artistry that places him among the most celebrated pianists of his generation. His exceptional technique and depth of interpretive insights have made him a sought-after soloist."

Ohlsson's dedication to the piano has provided him with a long history of success. He won first prize at the 1966 Busoni Competition in Italy and the 1968 Montreal Piano Competition. More recently, he has performed with the Boston Symphony and the New York Philharmonic.

The critically acclaimed pianist is best known for his elegant performances of Beethoven, Chopin, Mozart and Schubert. He has been acclaimed by many as the leading pianist in the works of Beethoven.

will perform under the direction of Nicholas McGegan, a specialist in Baroque musical works. The group is also led by Creative Chairman Bobby McFerrin, famous in the pop world for his song "Don't Worry, Be Happy."

The executive duo works extensively at enabling the orchestra to preserve classical pieces while allowing them to try out works of living composers.

This commitment to musical knowledge ensures that the orchestra is continually working. Each year, it performs more than 150 concerts in the Twin Cities and on tour. The orchestra also broadcasts performances on Minnesota Public Radio and Public Radio International. In total, the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra can be heard on more than 160 stations.

The orchestra has performed at Hancher five times in the past two decades, Hancher secretary Tim Meier said. Most recently, it performed in April 1997 with Bobby McFerrin. Ohlsson has not performed here since March 1980.

Comic and talk-show host Steve Allen died Monday night.

TV host, author Allen dies at 78

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Allen, the droll comic who pioneered late-night television with the original "Tonight Show," composed more than 4,000 songs, and wrote 40 books, has died at 78.

He died Monday night at the Encino home of his son, Bill Allen, the son said Tuesday.

Allen also starred as the King of Swing in the 1956 movie The Benny Goodman Story. He appeared in Broadway shows, on soap operas, wrote newspaper columns, commented on wrestling broadcasts, made 40 record albums, and wrote plays and a television series that featured guest appearances by Sigmund Freud, Clarence Darrow and Aristotle.

His skill as an ad libber became apparent in his early career as a disc jockey in Phoenix. He once interrupted the playing of records to announce: "Sports fans, I have the final score for you on the big game between Harvard and William & Mary. It is: Harvard 14, William 12, Mary 6."

Allen's most enduring achievement came with the introduction of "The Tonight Show" in 1953. The show began as "Tonight" on the New York NBC station WNBT, then moved to the network on Sept. 27, 1954.

Illinois students want to silence Eminem

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — A small group of University of Illinois students is pleading with administrators to cancel a concert Thursday featuring rapper Eminem.

The students say the concert violates the university's policy against discrimination. Eminem, whose real name is Marshall Mathers, has come under attack for his lyrics depicting graphic violence, mostly against women and gays.

Student Nick Sakurai held a news conference Monday asking the university to publicly apologize for approving a contract for the concert.

"I believe this concert is an explicit form of harassment," he said. "This is the university profiting from hate masqueraded as entertainment."

University spokesman Bill Murphy said the school is obligated under contract to stage the show. Murphy also cited concerns about interfering with artistic expression.

DeGeneres sitcom signs 'Seinfeld' writer

LOS ANGELES — Ellen DeGeneres' new TV comedy series is getting some help from a former "Seinfeld" writer.

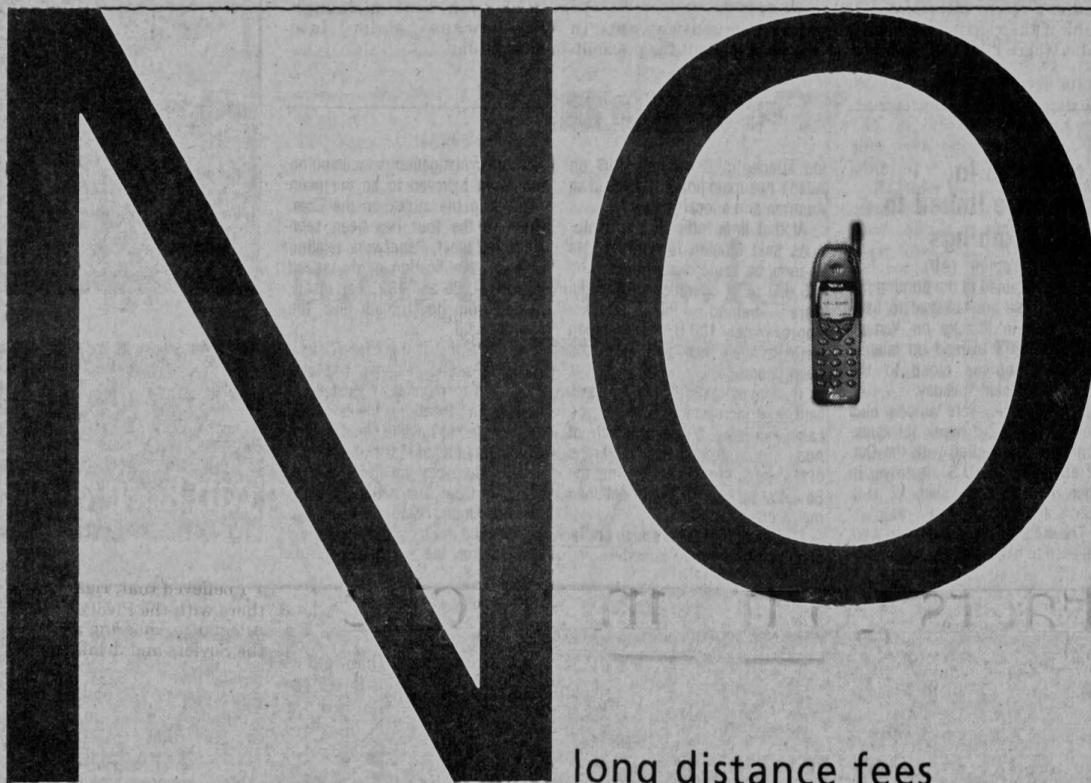

Carol Leifer has been added as an executive producer to the new CBS show.

CBS committed to the new DeGeneres show in 1999 and ordered six episodes. It originally was envisioned with a storyline in which DeGeneres would play a television variety-show host on camera and off.

But Leifer created a new concept in which DeGeneres will play a big-city woman who moves to a small town. It could begin airing next spring.

ABC canceled DeGeneres' "Ellen" sitcom in 1998, as ratings dropped in the year after the star's character came out as a lesbian. DeGeneres accused Disney-owned ABC of sabotaging the show.

The lead character's sexual orientation on the new show has not been discussed.

Control of Senate down to wire

■ Democrats still have hopes of taking over the body while Republicans dismiss the idea.

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A fall in Delaware, a plane crash in Missouri and a modest resurgence in Virginia are injecting late suspense into the battle for control of the Senate, where Democrats are nursing fragile hopes of a takeover.

Republicans dismiss such talk, saying they may yet top off Election Night by defeating Hillary Rodham Clinton in New York and the Democrats' $50 million man, Jon Corzine, in New Jersey.

With one week remaining until the election, as many as a dozen seats remain competitive out of 34 on the ballot, say strategists in both parties, enough to swing control either way.

"We are increasingly encouraged by the competitiveness of so many of the races," Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle said in a recent interview. "We think if the election were held today, there is at least a 50-50 chance of taking back the Senate," said the South Dakotan, who would become majority leader if the Democrats gain a majority.

"The two keys for us are Nevada and Virginia," said Stuart Roy, a spokesman for the GOP senatorial campaign committee. "If we win those two states, it will slam the door shut on the Democrats' opportunity to take control of the Senate," he said, adding that they are "two states where Democrats hold the seats, and we hold the lead."

Republicans hold a 54-46 edge in the current Senate, and they will be defending 19 of the 35 seats on the ballot next Tuesday.

The election arithmetic is so complicated that it's possible the Senate's makeup won't be known until well after Nov. 7.

Sen. Joseph Lieberman, Al Gore's vice presidential running mate, is coasting to a new term from Connecticut. But he would give up his Senate seat if Democrats win the presidential race, giving Gov. John Rowland, a Republican, the chance to appoint a replacement.

And a seven-way race in Georgia holds out the possibility of a run-off in December. Sen. Zell Miller, a Democrat, leads Republican Mack Mattingly in a race to complete the unexpired term of the late Sen. Paul Coverdell. Republicans are hoping to hold Miller below a majority, triggering a run-off in late November.

A few seats have become more predictable in recent weeks.

GOP Sen. Rod Grams, elected in the Republican landslide in 1994, remains behind in the polls in his bid for a second term in Minnesota, and many strategists in his party concede Democrat Mark Dayton is poised to defeat him.

Democrats acknowledge they are likely to lose a seat in Nevada, where former GOP Rep. John Ensign is running. And in Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, where Democratic strategists had once hoped to mount strong challenges, GOP Sens. Lincoln Chafee and Rick Santorum appear comfortably ahead.

In Florida, Democrat Bill Nelson has been ahead consistently in the polls against GOP Rep. Bill McCollum for a GOP-held open seat, although Republicans claim late momentum.

WORLD BRIEF

2 detained in Cole case linked to hotel bombings

LAHEJ, Yemen (AP) — Two Yemenis detained in the bombing of the USS Cole are believed to have taken part in attacks on Yemeni hotels in 1993 blamed on Islamic militants, sources close to the investigation said Tuesday.

The Yemenis were among nine men detained last week for questioning in connection with the Oct. 12 attack on the U.S. destroyer in Aden harbor that killed 17 U.S. sailors and injured 39 others.

The sources said the two were believed to have taken part in bombing attacks in December 1993 on Aden's two main hotels that killed an Austrian and a local janitor.

At that time, officials and diplomats said Muslim fundamentalists angered by Yemen's support for the U.S.-led relief operation in Somalia were behind the attacks. Approximately 100 U.S. servicemen were in Aden then as part of the relief operation.

The investigation, the sources said, was increasingly centering on Lahej, an area 20 miles north of Aden and a stronghold of veterans of the war in Afghanistan against the Soviets. It said all nine detained men were from Lahej.

The sources — who spoke on the condition they not be named — also said the investigation is focusing on four men believed to be the main plotters in the attack on the Cole. None of the four has been seen since the blast. Paperwork relating to four identification cards issued between 1996 and 1997 has disappeared from government files, the sources said.

At least one of the cards is fake and was issued in Lahej. The card was used to register at least three houses and locations the bombers are believed to have used as well as a small boat used in the attack.

The suspects received money transfers from Gulf nations, including the United Arab Emirates. The sources did not have details on how much money the men had received.

OU Regents double Stoops' salary

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma football coach Bob Stoops got a giant pay raise Tuesday, three days after his Sooners knocked off No. 1 Nebraska to move into the top spot for the first time since 1987.

The university's regents, meeting in Tulsa, gave Stoops a five-year contract with a guaranteed $1.4 million salary, up from $675,000. University President David Boren said the salary puts Stoops in the top five nationally among college coaches.

Boren said it was important to reward Stoops' success and ensure that he stays at Oklahoma. Stoops is in his second year with the Sooners. "He is the right person for our university," Boren said.

At his weekly news conference in Norman, Stoops said the administration has shown its commitment to making the Oklahoma job one of the best in the nation.

"I've said it a bunch of times, I believe it's a privilege to be the head football coach at Oklahoma because of what we have here and the great tradition and history, and I'm confident in the leadership here," Stoops said.

PSU's Casey acquitted of charges

Charges against Rashard Casey for allegedly beating up a cop have been dismissed.

By Dan Lewerenz
Associated Press

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. — Penn State University President Graham B. Spanier lashed out at reporters Tuesday after a New Jersey prosecutor said assault charges have been dismissed against Penn State quarterback Rashard Casey in the beating of an off-duty policeman.

"Virtually every newspaper in the state erroneously reported last week that Mr. Casey had been indicted," Spanier said. "Shame on the news media for their atrocious handling of this story. Shame on the sports columnists and editorial writers for their condemnation of the university over the past several months for how we have handled this matter. And shame on the e-mail and letter writers for the threatening and damning messages that they have sent."

Casey and high-school teammate Desmond Miller had been accused of assaulting Patrick D. Fitzsimmons as the officer left a bar in Hoboken, N.J., on May 14.

Terry Hull, first assistant prosecutor for Hudson County, would not confirm or deny reports Tuesday that the grand jury had taken more than one vote and that a vote last week had been in favor of indicting Casey.

Ed DeFazio, deputy first assistant prosecutor for Hudson County, N.J., said the grand jury did not find probable cause to return an indictment against Casey but returned a third-degree assault charge against Miller.

Spanier said he was told the grand jury chose neither to indict Casey on lesser charges nor to refer the case to a lower court, effectively ending the case against Casey. However, the quarterback still could be called as a witness against Miller, DeFazio said.

Spanier said the university judicial system still would look into the case, "but given the information that we have, I would anticipate that the matter is probably closed."

Casey's lawyer, Dennis D. McAlevy, said he had not yet

McCann to start Saturday

Freshman quarterback Jon Beutjer's ankle is still bothering him.

By Jeremy Schnitker
The Daily Iowan

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz announced Tuesday that Kyle McCann would again be his starter as the Hawkeyes travel to Penn State this weekend to take on the Nittany Lions.

Freshman quarterback Jon Beutjer, who injured his ankle during the Ohio State game on Oct. 21, has not practiced yet this week and is not likely to play.

"It looks like right now that Beutjer will miss again this week," Ferentz said. "Unless there is some kind of sudden turn, I wouldn't anticipate him playing. Unless Jon can get out on the practice field tomorrow and get in a good day of work, I don't see him playing."

McCann, a junior, played poorly during the first half of last week's game against Wisconsin but came on late in the game. McCann finished the day 13-27 passing with two interceptions, one touchdown and 122 yards.

Ferentz said he liked the progress McCann made Saturday. He also said that he never seriously considered putting in backup senior Scott Mullen, who started Iowa's first four games.

"I thought of putting him maybe, for a fleeting moment," Ferentz said. "But, you have to be very careful about how you evaluate things. A lot of it is feel. Kyle's situation was like Jon's when he took over — neither played a whole lot before, the games they started. You have to give a guy a fair chance. As the game went on, I think Kyle caught up with the game and made some real good plays."

Ferentz

In addition to Beutjer, freshman safety Chris Smith also will not play Saturday. In his place, freshman Bob Sanders thrived, earning a team-high 16 tackles last weekend.

"We're real pleased with Bob," Ferentz said. "We really like his mentality. As far as Bob is concerned, he's back in Erie, Pa. I'm not sure he knows the difference other than the stadium looks a little different. He acts like he belongs out there; he's not wide-eyed. He's got a knack for timing things up."

Possibly coming back from injuries this week are fullback Jeremy Allen and Aaron Greving. Ferentz said offensive lineman Sam Aiello has a 50-50 chance of being ready to play Saturday.

Ferentz, whose son Brian is an senior offensive lineman on City High's football team, will attend City High's playoff game against Cedar Rapids Prairie tonight, but he will be there strictly to watch as a parent. NCAA rules do not allow Ferentz to be in contact with any possible recruits playing in that game.

"I'm allowed to go to that, as a parent," Ferentz said smiling. "I just go and watch. I don't talk to many people, just my wife. It will be good to get out of the office at night."

FIELD HOCKEY • BIG TEN TOURNAMENT • FRIDAY, NOV. 3

It's tournament time for Hawks

Iowa takes on Michigan in its first tournament game Friday.

By Roseanna Smith
The Daily Iowan

Iowa goalkeeper Saleema Rogers says Big Ten tournaments are about going out and giving everything because you never know when you'll be done.

The Iowa field-hockey team plans to do just that when it travels to the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor for its first tournament game Friday. The tournament is played in single-elimination format, with winners advancing to play in the semifinals Saturday and the championship on Nov. 5.

Last year's team blazed straight through the regular season, finishing with a record of 19-3, 9-1 in the Big Ten. The Hawkeyes racked up 10 consecutive wins, stumbling only once in the middle of the season and losing their first conference game to Michigan. The team pulled together to win the last six and breezed through the Big Ten Tournament, only to lose once again to the Wolverines in the championship.

That performance sent the Hawks to the NCAA Regionals in Iowa City, where Iowa came up with a 3-2 win over Kent State and 2-0 shutout of North Carolina, advancing to the Final Four.

Determination is key to Arens' running

Sarah Arens is nearing the conclusion of her second season of running success on the Iowa women's cross-country team. The sophomore has been the top finisher for Iowa in every cross-country meet except one during her Hawkeye career. Arens finished her first three meets of the season with top-five finishes, and in the Chili Pepper Invitational, Arens placed 10th out of more than 150 top runners. After a 27th-place finish at Big Tens last weekend, Arens and the Hawkeyes will travel to NCAA Regional Championships in less than two weeks. DI reporter Julie Matolo spoke with Arens about her Iowa career and a disappointing team finish at Big Tens.

DI: What is your main goal to accomplish during your career as a Hawkeye?
Arens: I would like our team to make a good appearance at Nationals. It is really exciting because with the young team we have, we have time to do it, and I believe it is definitely an option for us.

DI: You have been the top finisher for Iowa in every cross-country meet in two weeks. What has been your key to consistency?
Arens: I would have to say a lot of determination. It is just a matter of knowing what you are capable of doing and continuing to improve. If I am improving and my teammates are improving, then we are all doing our part. It is easy when you have good teammates and everyone works really hard in practice, making it fun. Consistency is loving what you are doing and working hard.

DI: After a disappointing team finish at Big Tens, what will be your team's approach for the NCAA regional meet in two weeks?
Arens: We are looking at this race to go out and do what Iowa can do. We have seen all these teams before, and we know whom we can beat — so now we just have to do our part, and we should finish really high. Last weekend was a real eye-opener for us to buckle down and give our last run a great shot.

DI: What is your favorite aspect of running?
Arens: I would say it is a great reward finishing and knowing your hard work has paid off. Running is very rewarding, and you feel really rejuvenated after a great run. Running is a mental game. It is a barrier to run that hard, that long, and to come out strong — it shows you are tough.

DI: If you were not a runner, what do you wish you were doing?
Arens: I am from a very small high school, and I miss playing the club sports. I played volleyball, softball and basketball in high school, so I kind of miss those. I miss getting involved in service projbeen able to tell his client the news because Casey was at practice Tuesday afternoon. "He never hit anybody," McAlevy said. "There's no question in my mind that the chief of police of Hoboken knew that, and he's the reason that this happened," McAlevy said. Jeff Nelson, the Penn State sports information director, said neither Casey nor Penn State coach Joe Paterno would comment. Two weeks ago, Paterno said he thought Casey was innocent and that the case would not affect Casey's standing with the team. "I honestly have gone with the premise that I think Rashard didn't do it," Paterno said. "I honestly believe he didn't do it." Hoboken Police Chief Carmen LaBruno said he was "somewhat surprised" at the grand jury. "Our system of criminal justice is such that the jury made its decision, and I must respect that decision, but that it is inconsistent with the facts," LaBruno said. The chief said three eyewitnesses said they saw Casey strike the officer. In addition, two of Casey's friends heard him utter a racial slur at the officer, while a third friend said Casey was involved in a "verbal altercation" with the officer, LaBruno said.

Also, the medical evidence showed three separate injuries to the officer, showing he took more than one blow, the chief said. Responding to criticism from Casey's lawyer, the chief said, "Dennis McAlevy is an embarrassment to himself, the profession, and the New Jersey bar." It is not yet known if the officer will be able to return to duty, LaBruno said. McAlevy praised the grand jury for not indicting Casey. "They looked at five days of testimony and rewarded my faith in Rashard, and Joe Paterno's faith in Rashard," McAlevy said. McAlevy said they will continue to defend a civil suit filed against Casey by Fitzsimmons, who seeks an unspecified amount of money as compensation for "severe and painful injuries." Police said Casey punched Fitzsimmons, and that Casey and Miller kicked Fitzsimmons repeatedly in the head after he left a bar. Police said the men were angry that Fitzsimmons, who is white, left the bar with a black woman. No phone listing could be found for Miller. A message left for his lawyer, Alfonso Robinson III, was not immediately returned Tuesday night. The university's sports information office said Tuesday that both Casey and Paterno were at practice and could not immediately be reached for comment.

McCarney doesn't want to talk contract

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State football coach Dan McCarney says a contract extension is the least of his worries now. McCarney said Tuesday he has not talked to anyone in the administration about extending his contract, which expires after next season, and won't until after the regular season.

The coach who will produce Iowa State's first winning regular season since 1989 also indicated he was not looking to leave. "I know this much. I love this place," McCarney said. "I think I've shown a lot of loyalty to this university."

Competition should be fierce at tournament

Eventually, Iowa fell to national champion Maryland in double overtime, 2-1. After the season, six of the Hawkeyes' key players graduated, leaving the team a little lighter in a few areas. This year, the team enters the tournament ranked third, with a season record of 11-7 and 3-3, quite a change from its former domination of the Big Ten. "We had to realize we were losing an amazing class," junior forward Gina Carr said.

"All we could ask for was to give everything we had, because it was such a big class. It's sad losing your first game to teams you would've never lost to last year." Carr said that while some of the losses have been hard for the team to swallow, the weekend is a big opportunity for the team to show the conference what it can do. "Coming in with such a low record makes us the underdogs, and no one ever expects the underdogs to win. We've got to come up from underneath," she said. Teammate Rogers agreed. "This weekend is a big opportunity for us to show teams that we're out to play and that we're ready to play," she said. Senior midfielder Natalie Dawson thinks it's more of a change of scenery and some mystery. "It's kind of a good feeling because you don't know what's going to happen," she said. "Any time you come off a year like last year, when nothing went wrong, you have to change your mindset and accept that it's a different year." Dawson said that while not winning as consistently has been disappointing, partially as a senior and partially because the score didn't always reflect the game, it made her appreciate winning more. "With all the teams fighting to remain alive, the competition will be fierce in Ann Arbor. Even with the structural and physical changes of the team, senior Susan Gibson has confidence going into the final games of her collegiate career. "We've seen what people on this team can do, and that's what I think we should focus on. I'm glad I'm going into this tournament with the team I have," she said. DI sports writer Roseanna Smith can be reached at: roseanna-smith@uiowa.edu

as I did in high school. I don't know what I would do without running though — I love it. Even if I weren't running competitively, I think I would still be running on my own. DI: Who has had the greatest impact or influence on your life? Arens: I am really motivated by my mom, who right now is going back to get her degree in theology. I look at her as she has been raising three kids, going to college and doing a full-time job, and I really admire that. She will be teaching theology, something she really loves, which is not a moneymaker. She really has a passion for it, which has taught me to shoot for my dreams no matter how difficult they are. DI: Describe the greatest thing about competing as a Hawkeye. Arens: I have wanted to be a Hawkeye since I was tiny. I remember growing up watching B.J. Armstrong and other athletes, and I have wanted to be a Hawkeye my whole life. Getting the opportunity to run here has made it that much greater. I just wanted to go to school here, but to actually compete is amazing. DI: Which is your favorite season to run: cross-country, indoor or outdoor? Arens: I would have to say outdoor. I love doing the mile and the shorter distances. It is fun because you run with all teams from track: cross country, fielders and sprinters. It is fun running with everyone and traveling to farther places. It is really motivating with so many people on the track. DI: You seem to be a busy person. Does this describe your personality? Arens: Yes. I would describe myself as extremely involved, and I like to be because if I don't, I don't know what to do with myself. I put a lot of effort into what I do. I don't want to do something if I cannot go all the way through with it. DI reporter Julie Matolo can be reached at: julie-matolo@uiowa.edu

After 19 seasons, Gwynn taking first swing at free agency

■ Tony Gwynn says he thinks he is finished with the Padres.

By Bernie Wilson
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Tony Gwynn is taking his first swing at free agency after spending 19 seasons with the San Diego Padres. Saying he thinks he's finished with the Padres, Gwynn, a member of the 3,000-hit club and an eight-time NL batting champion, filed for free agency on Tuesday. The move has been expected since Oct. 4, when the Padres said they weren't going to pick up the right fielder's $6 million option for next year. The Padres would still like the future Hall of Famer back for next season, but as they chop their budget, perhaps below $40 million, they would re-sign him only at a much lower price. "It's different, but it's not surprising," Gwynn said from his home Tuesday. "It's business. Everybody wants to be nostalgic, but business is business. As we've seen, the Padres have made some business decisions, and this year I happen to be one. Filing is the first step. We'll just wait and see what happens." Gwynn, who broke in with the Padres on July 19, 1982, has 3,108 hits and a .338 career average. He led the Padres to their only two World Series appearances in 1984 and 1998 and collected his 3,000th hit at Montreal on Aug. 6, 1999. Gwynn will turn 41 on May 9. He had surgery on his troublesome left knee on June 27 and didn't return, and the Padres say they're not willing to pay $6 million to someone they don't think will be an everyday player again. The left-hander will receive a $2 million buyout from the Padres. His contract for 2001 would have become guaranteed if he made 502 plate appearances but the knee surgery limited him to just 127 at-bats in 36 games. He hit .323 with 17 RBIs and one homer. So is Gwynn's Padres career over? "Probably, I would say. It just doesn't look good. I think I'm better than just a pinch-hitter. For the first time, I've got to look at my own situation and see what's best for me. "You never know. Nobody might offer me anything. I'll keep an open mind, go about my business, and hopefully my phone will ring, and I'll get an opportunity." Comfortable with his family life and his baseball routines, Gwynn had always taken the so-called San Diego discount, signing multiyear deals for less than what he could get on the open market. Gwynn grew up in Long Beach and played at San Diego State. "I think there will be a lot of interest in Tony," said his agent, John Boggs. "There isn't any magic number; it'll be a Indiana's Jermaine O'Neal fends off San Antonio Spurs' David Robinson during the first quarter of the season opener for both teams at the Alamodome in San Antonio, Texas, Tuesday.

San Antonio tops the Pacers

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — David Robinson scored 22 points, and Tim Duncan added 16 as the San Antonio Spurs beat the Indiana Pacers, 98-85, Tuesday night and spoiled the NBA coaching debut of Isiah Thomas.

Reggie Miller had 27 points and eight rebounds for the Pacers. Thomas, a Hall of Fame player with the Detroit Pistons, replaced Larry Bird, who announced he was resigning before taking the Pacers to the NBA Finals last season.

The Spurs, who are expected to challenge the NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Division, got a solid game from Robinson, who led the Spurs' offense on a night when Duncan got in foul trouble.

Austin Croshere, an Indiana reserve moved into the starting lineup this year, added 17 points, while Jermaine O'Neal, acquired from the Portland Trail Blazers over the summer, had 16 points and 10 rebounds.

76ers 101, Knicks 72

NEW YORK — The first game of the post-Ewing era was total humiliation for the New York Knicks.

Allen Iverson scored 25 points, Toni Kukoc shot 10-for-12 in adding 23 and the Philadelphia 76ers did as they pleased Tuesday night in a 101-72 thumping of the Knicks.

The game was a complete debacle for New York, which played a slow, sloppy brand of basketball and had its worst defeat ever in a season-opener. The fans started booing in the second quarter as the Knicks fell behind by 10, and the humiliation reached a peak late in the third quarter as the crowd chanted "Pat-rick Ew-ing" as the home team fell behind by 26.

Pistons 104, Raptors 95

TORONTO — Jerry Stackhouse scored a career-high 44 points as the Detroit Pistons began the post-

Grant Hill era with a 104-95 victory over the Toronto Raptors on Tuesday night.

Stackhouse, upset that Detroit is being taken lightly this season, scored 19 points in the third quarter as the Pistons led by as many as 19 points in the quarter.

With Hill having signed with Orlando as free agent, Stackhouse has become the leader of the Pistons.

Vince Carter had 26 points for Toronto.

Stackhouse and Carter, who played at the University of North Carolina, guarded each other for most of the game. Carter fouled out with 1:19 remaining.

Magic 97, Wizards 86

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Tracy McGrady and Grant Hill show got off to a successful, if not spectacular, start in Orlando.

McGrady scored a career-high 32 points and grabbed 12 rebounds in his debut for his new team Tuesday night, leading the revamped Magic to a 97-86 victory over the Washington Wizards.

Hill, still hobbling after offseason ankle surgery, was held to nine points, on 3-for-6 shooting but finished with 10 assists, five rebounds and two steals before limping to the bench for good with 4:06 to go.

By then, the Magic were in command — thanks to McGrady, who led a 15-4 run that enabled the Magic to pull away from a 66-66 tie.

McGrady, who played in the shadow of Vince Carter in Toronto the past two seasons, was 11-of-25 from the field and 8-for-11 at the foul line. He also had four assists and blocked three shots.

Cavaliers 86, Nets 82

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Lamond Murray hit a twisting shot in the lane to hold off a late New Jersey rally, and the Cleveland Cavaliers spoiled the coaching debut of Byron Scott by defeating the Nets, 86-82, on Tuesday night.

Kenyon Martin, the overall No. 1 pick in the NBA draft, also bombed in his Nets' debut, scoring 10 points on 4-of-16 shooting. He fouled out with 38 seconds to go on Murray's clutch layup.

In a game pitting two also-rans from a year ago, neither team gave their fans much hope that they would turn things around this season.

Murray led the Cavaliers with 17 points, while Matt Harpring had 16 and Bimbo Coles added 15, including 10 in the fourth quarter when the Cavaliers took the lead for good. Clarence Weatherspoon also came up with a key offensive rebound and two free throws with 11.5 seconds left to ice the game.

Mavericks 97, Bucks 93

DALLAS — Michael Finley scored 26 points to lead the Dallas Mavericks to a 97-93 victory over Milwaukee on Tuesday night and snap a seven-game losing streak to the Bucks.

Ray Allen scored 26 points to lead the Bucks, whose winning streak over Dallas included sweeps the last three seasons.

Finley leaped high for a rebound that he shoveled in for a basket in the last two seconds of the third quarter, giving the Mavericks an 81-73 lead going into the last 12 minutes.

Tim Thomas scored on a drive and a 12-foot jumper, starting a 7-point run that cut the Mavs' lead to 81-80 with 8:46 to play.

Kings 100, Bulls 81

CHICAGO — Sacramento didn't need Jason Williams on Tuesday night as Predrag Stojakovic and Chris Webber each scored 23 points, giving the Kings a 100-81 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

Williams, the point guard with the spectacular passes and playground-style game, is suspended for the first five games of the season for failing to comply with his drug treatment plan. But Webber and Stojakovic easily filled the void.

VT's Vick not expected to play

■ Virginia Tech coach Frank Beamer says Dave Meyer is likely to start against Miami Saturday.

By Kia Shant'e Breaux
Associated Press

BLACKSBURG, Va. — An injured ankle is expected to keep Michael Vick on the sideline for the start of second-ranked Virginia Tech's showdown with No. 3 Miami on Saturday.

Coach Frank Beamer said Tuesday that he planned to start Dave Meyer at quarterback against the Hurricanes "and that's how we're going to practice this week."

But Beamer didn't rule out the possibility that Vick, the Hokies' marquee player, would at least see some playing time.

"My mindset right now is Dave Meyer will be our starting quarterback in the game against Miami," he said. "Then after that, let's see what else happens."

Vick sprained his right ankle against Pittsburgh last weekend and did not practice Tuesday. Meyer, a fifth-year senior, replaced Vick late in the second half and was 7 of 13 to lead the Hokies', 37-34, comeback over the Panthers.

Though Meyer got the win, there's little question the Hokies would rather have Vick against the Hurricanes, who are expected to present Virginia Tech's greatest challenge of the season.

The winner of the game will likely claim the Big East title and have a shot at the national championship.

"Our backs are against the wall. That's the way it's been the last few ball games, and that's the way it is this week," Beamer said. "We're going to Miami to play a really great football team."

Beamer said it was important for the team to have direction and not get caught up in "what ifs."

"I don't want to 'what if.' I think what's important for our football team is to say, 'OK, this is what we've got. Now let's go play,'" he said. "Everybody is going to say, 'Who's going to play? Who's not going to play?' To me, that's not the issue ... The issue is whoever's going to be in there is going to play their very hardest, their very best."

Vick, who's not putting any weight on his ankle and is using crutches to walk, gave himself a Wednesday deadline to determine whether he'd start Saturday. He said he thinks he'll have to practice by then to be ready to start. A special brace that Vick could wear on the field was expected to arrive by today.

Beamer said Meyer did very well last week, despite not having much playing time. He said Meyer would be an even better quarterback if had got more chances with the first team.

Of course this is Mike's team, but if he's not able to play, we have Dave. Dave has proven he can get the job done."

"He's tall, he's athletic. He can throw the football. He's smart," Beamer said. "I think it's obvious he's not quite as quick as Michael. He doesn't throw the ball quite as quick. His release is not like Michael's and he probably doesn't throw quite as far as Michael."

Meyer said he's prepared to start if need be.

"I'm ready," he said. "From week to week, I prepare to start whether I'm the backup or the starter."

Hokies starting flanker Andre Davis also is listed as questionable for Saturday.

Regardless of who starts at quarterback, the Hokies are preparing for a fierce battle against the Hurricanes.

"Either way, it's going to be a war," senior tailback Andre Kendrick said. "Of course this is Mike's team, but if he's not able to play, we have Dave. Dave has proven he can get the job done."

SPORTS BRIEFS

Former major leaguer Andujar Cedeno dies

NASHUA, N.H. (AP) — Former major league baseball player Andujar Cedeno, a member of the Atlantic League champion Nashua Pride, has been killed in a car crash in the Dominican Republic.

Cedeno, 31, was killed last weekend, team spokesman Ken Cail said.

The infielder joined the team late in the season and did not play in the Atlantic League championship series because of an injury.

Cedeno played parts of seven seasons in the majors with Houston, San Diego and Detroit. He had a .236 career average with 47 homers and 223 RBIs.

His best season was with the Astros in 1993, when he hit .286 with 11 homers and 56 RBIs.

Charity hockey game ends in brawl

CALGARY, Alberta — A charity old-timers' hockey game between Calgary firefighters and Edmonton police ended in a brawl that forced the referee, former NHL star Eddie Shack, to call the game.

As fellow star Marcel Dionne left the ice in disgust, upset parents were left to explain to their kids that this was not what hockey is all about.

Bill Clark, who played for the Edmonton Faded Blues police team in the "Battle of the Badges," has blamed the game-ending fight on one hot-headed firefighter.

The Oct. 27 was supposed to be played under old-timer rules with no hooking or cross-checking.

"From our point of view, the Calgary firemen got a little chippy," Clark said. "With two minutes to go, one guy speared our guy between the legs, cross-checked him into the net and then he punched him in the head. With that, our guys came into the scrum, and the game was called."

Clark was upset it was the second time in two years the game against Calgary firefighters had ended in a fight.

BIG LEAGUE MANAGERS RECEIVE NEW CONTRACTS

Piniella gets three more years

■ Seattle manager Lou Piniella says he will be "well taken care of."

By Michael J. Martinez
Associated Press

Douglas C. Pizac/Associated Press

SEATTLE — Lou Piniella, who managed the Mariners to the American League championship series this season in the final year of his contract, agreed Tuesday to a three-year deal with Seattle.

Financial terms were not disclosed, though Piniella, reached by telephone at his Tampa, Fla., home, said he was "well taken care of."

Last week, the Mariners offered a new contract worth about $6.5 million to $7 million over three years, according to several reports. Piniella reportedly earned $1.3 million last season.

"We had a very successful season in Seattle, and we're looking forward to building on that," Piniella said Tuesday. "I've been in Seattle for eight years, and there's a lot of loyalty there."

Mariners general manager Pat Gillick praised Piniella's work in getting Seattle to the playoffs this season.

"As he demonstrated again this year, Lou is one of the most talented managers in the game," Gillick said. "He's passionate about winning and about helping to make the Mariners one of the premier organizations in baseball."

Under Piniella, the Mariners have been to the playoffs three times in the past six seasons. They won a franchise-best 91 games this year and beat the Chicago White Sox in their AL division series before losing in six games to the New York Yankees.

Piniella received permission this week to talk with the Cincinnati Reds, the team he managed to a World Series title in 1990. Media reports had Piniella going to Cincinnati if the Reds could match the Mariners' offer.

Piniella said he thought Cincinnati was "a great baseball town" and voiced his support for Reds general manager Jim Bowden.

"There's a lot of good things about the Reds organization, and I wish them the best of luck," Piniella said. "I'm just happy to get this situation done. I had to make a decision."

Piniella said his top priority would be signing All-Star shortstop Alex Rodriguez, who became a free agent Monday and will likely break baseball's record for average salary, a mark currently held by Toronto's Carlos Delgado at $17 million.

"We've got to get Alex signed," Piniella said. "Everything else will be handled as the winter goes on, but that's the first thing we have to do."

Piniella praised Seattle's fans, his staff and Safeco Field, the Mariners' new ballpark, and said he looked forward to the next three years.

"I enjoy working with the people in Seattle, and the fans in that town have been great," he said. "We have a great ballpark and a great club, and we'll get it to the next level."

Valentine, Phillips make amends

■ A World Series berth helps the Mets come to an understanding with Bobby Valentine.

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

Ed Betz/Associated Press

NEW YORK — Bobby Valentine and Steve Phillips insist they have learned to work together.

Putting stock in a détente reached during a season that saw the New York Mets reach the World Series for the first time since 1986, the team agreed to three-year contracts with manager Valentine and GM Phillips.

"What's happening here is a sign of some stability," Valentine, the only manager to take the Mets to the post-season in consecutive years, said Tuesday. "It's a lot of weight off my mind. We're going forward absolutely together, absolutely on the same page. Steve and I are going to demonstrate that this is a team effort."

Valentine had been under contract until midnight Tuesday. The Reds reportedly were denied permission to talk with him during the playoffs, and there are three other managerial jobs open.

Phillips and Valentine have had a rocky relationship.

It might have bottomed out in June 1999, when Phillips fired three of Valentine's coaches. All of the current coaches' contracts are up now.

"The one thing we've both

had to deal with is forgiveness," Phillips said. "There have been times either one of us has felt offended by the other, by something said or something done. We've probably both held on to some things longer than we should have."

Division is nothing new for Mets management.

The team's co-owners, Fred Wilpon and Nelson Doubleday, hardly speak. Wilpon wants a new ballpark, while Doubleday prefers that Shea Stadium be refurbished.

Neither Wilpon nor Doubleday was at Tuesday's news conference to announce the signings. Phillips said they were at the major league owners' meeting in Chicago.

A turning point for Phillips and Valentine seemed to be the fallout from a speech Valentine made in April at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Business.

A Penn student, who later apologized for making some things up, posted on the Internet critical comments about the Mets attributed to Valentine. Phillips canceled a scouting trip to fly to Pittsburgh, where the Mets were playing.

"He let some stuff out. I let some stuff out," Valentine said of their talk about what Phillips called "Whartongate."

"When you do that, it's always easier to go forward," said Phillips. "I think we had a cleansing. That made it a much smoother ride...."

"We've had ups and downs, things we've agreed and disagreed on. Sometimes in New York, the issues become bigger, but we got through that one, and we're going to get through the next one."

Valentine is 379-301 during his four-plus seasons in New York, second to Davey Johnson's 595 in victories with the Mets. Valentine is 960-906 overall in the majors, having also managed the Rangers.

He thought he should be compensated at least as well as Dusty Baker, who just signed a $5.3 million, two-year deal with San Francisco. The new deals for Valentine and Phillips contain team options for 2004.

"Bobby's players play extremely hard for him. He keeps them hungry and sharp," Phillips said. "He's able to balance the goals of short term with the long term — winning today while keeping in mind he has to grind it out over 162 games."

Iowa State names athletics director

■ Oklahoma assistant AD Bruce Van De Velde will take over for Gene Smith.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

AMES — Bruce Van De Velde, an Iowa State graduate and the senior associate athletics director at Oklahoma, will be introduced Wednesday as ISU's new athletics director.

Iowa State sources who asked not to be identified confirmed Van De Velde's hiring on Tuesday. The Daily Oklahoman in Oklahoma City and the Tribune in Ames also reported that Van De Velde was the choice.

Van De Velde worked at a number of universities, including Iowa State and Iowa, before joining the Oklahoma staff in July 1999 after a stint as athletics director at Utah State.

"We really felt fortunate to get him here," said OU football coach Bob Stoops, who also worked with Van De Velde at Kansas State. "He's made a big difference."

"He's a great leader. He knows what it takes to win and what you need to have a successful athletic department. I believe Iowa State is getting an outstanding person," Stoops said.

Iowa State did not make an official announcement Tuesday, other than to say a news conference was scheduled for 2 p.m. today to introduce a new athletics director.

Van De Velde was one of three public candidates interviewed on campus in the university's search for a successor to Gene Smith, who resigned in July to become the athletic director at Arizona State.

The others were Dave Martin, senior associate athletics director at Oklahoma State, and Paul Griffin, athletics director at South Florida. Martin also is an Iowa State graduate.

"I wish Bruce the best of luck on his new venture," Martin said. "I've always said I have a great job at Oklahoma State, and I still do."

During his interview, Van De Velde said the Iowa State job interested him because of his ties to the state. He is a 1981 graduate of Iowa State, and his family lived Iowa for 15 years.

"Both my mother and father grew up on family farms, and I have a big spot in my heart for the people here and the institution," he said.

Stoops said Van De Velde's Iowa connections will serve him well. Van De Velde was a graduate football assistant at Iowa State under Donnie Duncan and was Hayden Fry's recruiting coordinator at Iowa from May 1988 to July 1991. Dan McCarney, Iowa State's current football coach, was on the Iowa staff for part of that time.

"He's good to be around. The people of Iowa will love him," Stoops said. "I know he already knows a lot of the high school coaches through his time at Iowa. He'll fit in really well."

At Oklahoma, Van De Velde's responsibilities included overseeing football, men's basketball and men's and women's golf. He also was responsible for fund-raising, marketing and promotions, ticket operations, media relations and radio and television packages.

Van De Velde was Utah State's athletic director for a year before moving to Oklahoma. At Utah State, he was responsible for developing a $10 million renovation and expansion of the football stadium and oversaw fund raising and construction of a $4.5 million indoor training center.

He also was associate athletics director for development at Missouri, spent five years as director of football operations at Kansas State and worked at Tulane, Nebraska Wesleyan and Dana.

One of his first tasks at Iowa State will be deciding whether to extend McCarney's contract, which expires next year. With a 6-2 record, Iowa State is assured of its first winning regular season since 1989.

McCarney said Tuesday he felt all the candidates understood the importance of football.

"I was very impressed with all of them," he said. "Whoever they name is going to be an outstanding athletics director."

Palmer endorses illegal club

■ Golf legend Arnold Palmer will not face USGA repercussions from the endorsement.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The U.S. Golf Association was shocked and dismayed when Arnold Palmer, a longtime USGA advocate and chairman of its Members Program, sided with Ely Callaway by endorsing the illegal ERC II driver for recreational play.

But it's not about to kick out the King.

David Fay, the executive director of the USGA, met with Palmer last week in what he described as a "frank" but friendly conversation on the issue.

"I would never expect anybody to have exactly the same opinions as I have on all issues of the USGA," Fay said. "There have been times over the last 25 years we've done things in which Arnold has a difference of opinion. That doesn't override the fact we want him as our national chairman of the Members Program."

When Palmer appeared at Callaway's new conference to unveil the ERC II and the conforming HawkEye VFT driver, the USGA issued a statement that it was "puzzled" by his endorsement.

"This stance contradicts his long-standing opinions on this subject," the USGA said.

Palmer does not advocate using a nonconforming driver in competition but says it would appeal to the masses — something he has done throughout his career.

Then again, he also has been a staunch supporter of the USGA throughout his career.

"I know one thing," Fay said. "Arnold Palmer, whenever he speaks, he's doing it for what he thinks is in the best interest of the game. One can interpret his comments on various elements, but I don't think they can question his loyalty to the game."

NELSON OR BUST: Tiger Woods is ending his remarkable season the same way he started — chasing Byron Nelson.

With two tournaments left, Woods has a good chance to break the actual scoring average of 68.33 set by Nelson in 1945.

Woods' actual average is 68.10 going into the Tour Championship at East Lake

Golf Club, a par 70. Next week is the American Express Championship at Valderrama, a par 71.

He needs 561 total strokes to break the record — an average of 70.125 a round, or a combined 3-under for both weeks to finish at 68.32.

Typically, that's not good enough for Woods.

"I would like to do something a little bit lower than that," he said Tuesday. "I have a goal in mind. I haven't quite got there yet, but I'm sure you could probably figure it out."

His goal is to break 68 for the year, and that's going to take some work. He would need 536 strokes the next two weeks, an average of 67 per round or 28 under.

Woods has essentially wrapped up the Vardon Trophy for lowest scoring average, which uses an adjusted number that compares a golfer's scores with how the rest of the field fared. His is 67.68.

Earlier this year, Woods completed a string of six straight PGA Tour victories, stopping five short of Nelson's "untouchable" record of 11 in a row set in 1945.

One other Nelson connection — the last time Woods failed to shoot par or better was the first round of the Nelson Classic in May, a streak of 39 straight rounds on tour.

Baseball owners approve Fox deal, umpires' agreement

■ Owners did not talk about the impending end of their collective bargaining agreement.

By Rick Gano
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Baseball owners approved a new TV deal with Fox and also gave OK to a contract with the new umpires union Tuesday but deferred a vote on the proposed sale of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Commissioner Bud Selig spent a good portion of the three-hour meeting giving owners a state-of-the-industry talk. Selig said there was no discussion of the collective bargaining agreement that expires in exactly one year, which could lead to baseball's ninth work stoppage since 1972.

"We have some real problems to solve in the industry, but I have said for many years we had eight work stoppages in my baseball career, and we need to find different ways to solve those problems, and I mean that. So we will get to that later," Selig said.

"I think everybody understands what the problems are, and now we have to find the solutions."

Fox, a division of Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. and the majority owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, agreed Sept. 27 to a $2.5 billion, six-year contract that gives it rights to the playoffs, World Series, All-Star game and a game-of-the-week package through 2006.

The deal is about a 50 percent increase from the previous five-year contracts, in which Fox and NBC split television rights. It was approved with one abstention.

Following six months of negotiations, the new umpires' union agreed Aug. 31 to a five-year labor contract calling for retroactive raises of 10.2 percent to 14.9 percent this year.

Owner approved that deal unanimously Tuesday.

Approval of the Blue Jays' sale was deferred, but Selig said he sees no problem and expects it to move forward. The delay was not related to Toronto signing Carlos Delgado to a $68 million, four-year deal right before the World Series, a spokesman for the commissioner's office said.

"It's an excellent group. I have every confidence we will move expeditiously on this, but there was some material we needed to redo," Selig said.

Rogers Communications Inc.

agreed Sept. 1 to pay $112 million to buy 80 percent of the Blue Jays from Interbrew SA, which became the team's controlling owner in 1995, when it purchased Labatt Brewing Co.

Interbrew would retain a 20 percent interest. The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, which has owned 10 percent, would sell its shares.

Selig said the day after the Delgado deal was announced that "it raised more than my eyebrow." Asked then if he was concerned the contract was agreed to by an ownership group that had not yet been approved, Selig responded:

"Let's just say that is an interesting situation."

SPORTS BRIEF

Riley goes for win No. 1,000 tonight

MIAMI (AP) — Pat Riley begins the season one victory from a milestone achieved only by Lenny Wilkens. Riley will try for his 1,000th NBA coaching win when his Miami Heat play the Orlando Magic tonight. "It's a lot of wins, but it's also a lot of years," said Riley, who begins his 19th season as an NBA coach. "I'll keep the ball, I'll guarantee you that, I'll put '1,000' on the ball." With the Heat's preseason dominated by the loss of center Alonzo Mourning to a kidney disorder, Riley's impending achievement has received little attention. He had a chance to reach it in April, but Miami lost an otherwise meaningless final regular-season game. Wilkens, who on Tuesday opened his first season as the Toronto Raptors' coach with 1,179 victories, said he'll be glad to see Riley reach 1,000. "It was nice being the first one," Wilkens said. "Any coach who gets here, this is rarefied air." Riley, who has coached 1,433 NBA games, will reach 1,000 wins in fewer games than any coach or manager in any sport. The fastest previously was Fred Clarke, who did it in 1,578 games nearly a century ago as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Wednesday, November 1, 2000 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Confusion reigns if you try to make sense out of the emotional problems facing you. Keep your ideas to yourself. Deception at work will turn into a series of bad events.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Travel will not be as you planned. Don't be mesmerized by people who push their philosophies on others. You must come up with your own beliefs and not follow somebody else's.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't overspend on children or luxury items. You need to look into how you can help older family members. Take care of paperwork that will affect your investments.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your partner may not be completely honest with you. Take your time deciding what to do about the situation. Consider the possibility that your nagging may be the reason for the problem.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Colleagues may try to make you look bad. Be careful not to give them any ammunition. You need to keep your personal thoughts to yourself. Secret affairs could easily become public.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't overspend on products that lead you to believe they can do wonders for you. False beliefs could easily lead to disappointment. Discuss your intentions with those knowledgeable first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be prepared to deal with overindulgent individuals on the home front. Be careful not to leave the house without checking the essentials: stove, furnace lights, etc.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Delays will result if you get confused while traveling. Take precautions, and let those at your destination know that you'll be late. You will need to be careful how you word things today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't get involved in joint ventures. You will lose money if you decide to invest in a risky financial scheme. Gambling will most definitely be out of the question.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be honest with yourself. You may have to take a harder look at your ulterior motives regarding a partnership. New relationships are apparent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't get involved in love triangles. Secret affairs will come back to haunt you. Confusion while traveling will result in unusual experiences. Don't abuse medications or other stimulants.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Unsavory financial dealings are apparent. Don't lend money to friends. Organizations may not be up-front about their motives. It is best to keep your cash for a rainy day.

The Ledge

By Jesse Ammerman

Signs the campaign season has dragged on for way too long

You have a recurring dream involving Al Gore, your high-school gym teacher and Ralph Nader in a purple marching-band outfit.

You're seriously thinking about changing your middle name to "W."

You constantly tell your friends that you'll give them a tax cut if they buy you a drink.

You now refer to your roommates as "fellow Americans."

You're subconsciously slipping "Gore" into nearly all of your spoken sentences.

You're convinced that some clouds in the sky bear a remarkable resemblance to George W. Bush.

"Wonderful World of Golf" has become an appealing alternative to more TV coverage of the campaign.

You have pictures on your wall of Al Gore's daughters.

You keep accusing your friends of "misleading the public" every time they speak.

You find yourself interrogating your professors about their stands on health care and abortion.

You've become nostalgic for the days of endless Monica Lewinsky coverage.

You comprehend the finer details of George W. Bush's $1.6 trillion tax cut.
