The workshop's total was 98 votes for Bush, 103 votes for Gore. Voting will continue through Nov. 3, when the museum will close.

Because children do not understand most of the issues on a real ballot, O'Connor and 10 seniors from Snow senior high school wrote a sheet of questions on which a child could vote by either coloring in a happy face or a sad face to signify "yes" or "no." They lacked index cards or printouts to enable them to make a more informed decision.

"The options are very broad," said 11th-grader Adam Mitchell, one of the students taking part in the project. "I think this is a way of showing parents what is happening in the world."

Groping a problem in downtown bars

Unwanted touching, which is considered assault, goes mostly unreported in Iowa City.

By Amanda Kerst

The Daily Iowan

Unwanted pinching, grabbing and groping are extreme environments in some downtown bars, but most people don't report the unwanted sexual advances.

Although this news media focuses on the thrashing music and crowded atmosphere of the establishments they frequent, what most students and locals don't realize is that the unsolicited touches, which often take place when people are dancing or ordering a drink, is a crime.

Iowa City police Sgt. Bill Campbell said touching that is intentional or permission falls into the realm of assault. Any act is intended to result in physical annoyance or discomfort and, in immediate form of being touched or offended by the touch can be considered assault, he said. For an incident to be considered assault, the person does not even need to be touched, he said. Intent and ability to execute the act can also be considered assault.

Although such assaults were frequently reported, they were not often reported. When you're dancing and someone comes up behind you or you're touching you, it's very easy to assume," said Allison Butzmann.

The shock that someone physically assaulted makes people whiten their face, she said. And sometimes the incident will be minimized in importance, or people will not report it to a person from reporting it to the police.

"This kind of sexual harassment is pervasive and needs to be touched, she said. In situations they feel the Jet hit Mike McConnell, the general manager of the Firehouse Restaurant and Bar, 111 E. Cal- lendar St., said they aren't often reported.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators remains unchanged.

By Amy Salvato

NEW YORK — The measure of U.S. economic activity remained flat in September, the latest sign that economic growth wasn’t slowing down.

The Index of Leading Economic Indicators was unchanged in September at 105.7, the New York-based Conference Board said Thursday. Wall Street analysts had predicted the index would fall by 0.1% in September.

The index, which attempts to forecast economic trends for the next three to six months, stood at 105.6 in August. Its year-to-year rise, though at 0.9% percent in March, the index has been flat or declining throughout this year.

"The indicators continue to point toward a modest pickup in U.S. economic growth," said Helen Martin, senior economist at Conference Board. "The index of coincident indicators, which gauges current economic activity, rose 0.4 percentage point in September to 115.4 after growing up 0.2 percent in August."

TOKYO — In Western Europe, the American presidency election. For Chinese newspapers, it's a chance to measure the West's true feelings about its most powerful ally. For Palestinians, it's a reminder of U.S. resolve.

The world — from Bogota to Brussels, from London to Lusaka, is waiting with increasing interest as the candidates George W. Bush and Al Gore come down to its final day.

People in Latin America are particularly interested, given the Bush family's legacy.

Alan Greenspan, former U.S. Treasury chief, is a frequent topic of conversation.

The Bush family generational wealth is also a factor.

The economic differences between the two candidates are not subtle.

Skies not so friendly for United

The airline still has problems: its mechanics suspend talks, and it's still the tardiest airline.

By镜头 Carpenter

Associated Press

BOSTON - United Airlines mechanics suspended contract talks Thursday, renewing the threat of labor unrest at the world's largest carrier. United officials said more senior company officials should be involved in the talks.

"Until this company gets serious and shows officials are willing and able to complete these negotiations, we're waiting out here," said Scotty Ford, the lead negotiator for the union representing 15,000 mechanics.

Richard Kaye, a mathematics professor at the University of Ulster in Northern Ireland, started playing Minesweeper.

"I'm always interested in games with math elements. Math and games go together brilliantly," Kaye said. "I realized there was probably some kind of game around that I didn't know what I was looking for.

Minesweeper, which is included with the Windows operating system, is a game in which players try to figure out where squares of a grid contain mines. Many number of such squares are in the squares around a mine.

"After playing the game steadily for a few weeks, Kaye realized that Minesweeper, if played on a much larger grid, has the same mathematical characterization as other problems deemed insolvable."

In fact, he said, Minesweeper could help in the quest for one of mathematics' white whales: the solution to what is known as the "P versus NP" problem.

"The problem attempts to determine whether questions that seem to be unsolvable within a reasonable period of time might actually have a relatively simple way of being solved, possibly by computer," Kaye said.

Kaye said that if someone were to figure out an algorithm for determining all combinations of large-scale version of Minesweeper, that person will have solved the "P versus NP problem."

Bush adds to DWI in 1976

The Republican presidential candidate said his 1976 arrest was to keep the incident quiet.

By Dan Raum

WASHINGTON — George W. Bush said Thursday he was arrested and plead guilty to drunken driving when he was 38 in 1976 and later concealed the arrest from college administrators and votes.

"I told no one, not government, not college officials, not campaign workers, not in the Senate — no one," Bush said.

Bush's statement Thursday was his first public acknowledgment of a 1976 arrest for drunken driving.

"I did not want to keep this quiet, but for a variety of reasons that I will talk about momentarily, I did not do it," he said.

Bush would not say how long the arrest had been concealed.

"The story of the Bush family is one of hard work, struggle, and achievement," he said.

"I always said I had made mistakes, and I was proud of the self that learned from those mistakes and went on to do great things," he continued.

In 1998, the Iowa City Public Safety Commission held a public workshop to gather input into the future of the First Avenue extension. Eleven of the residents who participated in the workshop decided not to extend First Avenue. The City Council decided to include the First Avenue extension into the Iowa City Capital Improvement Project. Residents were outraged.

An initiative is included on the November ballot to decline the extension from the project. If passed, the city would have to pay for the existing portion of the First Avenue extension, but the city would not have to pay for the extension to the county of an estimated $29 million.

If the referendum for the First Avenue extension fails, the Iowa City Police Department will continue to work with Captain Irish Parkway, extension from the project. If the extension is built, the road will intersect First Avenue and will become a maximum 7,100 lane street with a 6,000 vehicle/day peak hour, an extra 7,100 cars a day travel on First Avenue. If the road is expanded, the amount of cars that travel through Hickory Hill Park, the peace and quiet zone will almost triple. The park no longer will be the natural sanctuary that it is now. The park will be disturbed by noise from cars and the street will be filled with noise from the road.

The First Avenue extension will put the school in a maximum 7,100 lane street with a 6,000 vehicle/day peak hour. On Dec. 11, David Armstrong was writing a letter to the editor opposing the idea of allowing 18-year-olds to vote. He voiced his concerns about the potential risks associated with granting young adults the right to vote, particularly in the context of military service and the dangers they might face. Armstrong argued that 18-year-olds are not fully prepared to make informed decisions about military service, as they may lack the experience and maturity needed to understand the serious consequences of such a commitment.

Armstrong's letter highlights the broader issue of whether young people are ready to shoulder the responsibilities of adulthood, especially in high-stakes situations such as military service. He expressed concern that young adults, despite their enthusiasm, may not have the same level of understanding and preparation as older adults.

Although Armstrong's letter does not directly address the costs or benefits of a motorcycle accident or the potential impact of motorcycles on the community, it does underscore the importance of considering the maturity and readiness of young individuals before granting them full adult rights and responsibilities. Armstrong's letter serves as a reminder of the complex considerations involved in making policy decisions that have far-reaching implications for the lives of young people.
Finding the art of science fairs

A dozen participants will compete tonight at The Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry.

Although algae and oceanography may seem far removed from mammal art, sometimes even they need to be tied to their past for a sense of inspiration — the 12th Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry science fair may recreate that sense.

Each artist will take on or "experiment" at a table, and visitors can visit them as they work. The artist will work at the table until the crowd is gone, the art is finished, or the experiment fails. After the presentations are over, the crowd will be invited to vote for the best presentation — a first ever for the museum. The winner will receive a $50 gift certificate to Barnes & Noble.

Each presentation will feature a microscopic specimen relating to an original work of art, and each artist will comment on how he or she is connected. Those in the middle-school events, tonight's fair presents tough competition alongside multiple quality and enlightening demonstrations of the art of science fairs.

The brainchild of Melissa Kellie, a science teacher at Lincoln Park South, the IICM's first science fair was an attempt to tie the scientific community with real science.

Art is a result of this narrative; bizarre, hybrid, strange precision to be a great deal of variety in the presentations.

"There's a lot behind people's art that the public doesn't realize, and this is just putting it out there in a far way," Kellie said.

The Museum of Science and Industry science fair is sponsored by the Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry.

Tina Pardini's work will be on display this week at the 12th Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry science fair.

"This is my first time here," Pardini said. "I've had to develop a science project for a school science fair, but not on this scale."

Pardini, 23, said she is an expert in biochemistry, and her work will be based on that. The student said she will be working on a project that involves the use of molecular biology to identify potential cancer treatments.

"I'm really interested in cancer biology," Pardini said. "It's really fun to work with these cells and see how they work."

Tina Pardini's work will be on display this week at the 12th Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry science fair.

Bloodhound Gang sniffs out I.C. gig

The band known for its song about mammals on the Discovery Channel is coming to The Union Bar.

By Kellie Dorsey
The Daily Iowan

The Bloodhound Gang may set the roof of The Union Bar 121, 520 S. College Ave., off this weekend when the group brings its "ready, steady, whoa!" bar Moosehead beer. In celebration of the 12th Illinois Institute of Technology Museum of Science and Industry science fair, the band will be traveling with the fair coast to coast.

The group is known for its humorous songs, which often feature science-related topics. The band's hit song, "I'm Not a Photo," features lyrics about a student who is not a photo, and the song has become a popular topic for science fairs.

The band's latest album, "Bloodhound Gang," was released in 2005 and features songs about science, such as "The Bloodhound Gang's Greatest Hits." The album includes songs about the microscopic world and the universe, and it features the band's signature humorous style.

The band will be performing at The Union Bar, 121 S. College Ave., at 10 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 12. The show will be open to all ages, and tickets will be available at the door.

Tickets can be purchased through Ticketmaster or at the door for $15.

Info: "I'm Not a Photo" can be purchased on CD or throughTicketmaster at (800) 745-3000.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

In a news release, the Iowa City Police Department said they receive a call from a motorist who was traveling on the 1000 block of Maple Street around 10:30 p.m. Friday. The motorist reported a suspicious vehicle parked in front of his residence.

The police said they found a white SUV parked in front of the residence with its left rear tire deflated. The motorist reported that he had seen a man in a black hoodie and black sweatpants exit the vehicle and run into the residence.

The police said they are investigating the incident and are asking anyone who may have information to contact the Iowa City Police Department at 319-353-4040.

Sports Brief

Coach, college paper at odds over column accusations (AP) - Iowa football fans and selected university faculty members are pessimistic about the future of the university newspaper. They believe that the student newspaper, The Daily Iowan, may face financial problems as school administrators prepare to reduce the number of support staff on campus.

The Daily Iowan is a student newspaper that has been in operation since 1929. It is published weekly during the academic year and bi-weekly during the summer. The Daily Iowan is supported by student fees and advertising revenue. The paper has a circulation of approximately 10,000 and is distributed to students, faculty, and staff on campus.

The Daily Iowan has been accused of not being supportive of the university administration and its policies. The university administration has threatened to withhold press credentials from the university newspaper because of a negative sports column. The university administration has accused The Daily Iowan of not being supportive of the university's athletic endeavors.

The Daily Iowan is printed using an offset printing process, which is a type of lithography. The paper is printed on a four-color press, which allows for a wide range of colors to be printed on the same page. The Daily Iowan has a total page count of approximately 25 pages.

The Daily Iowan is published by the Iowa State University Student Media Foundation, which is a non-profit organization. The foundation is funded by student fees and advertising revenue. The Daily Iowan is distributed to students, faculty, and staff on campus.

Steelers finally will get tested drafted as an athlete, the Eagles' Brian Mitchell tells TTN.

By Rob Maag
Associated Press

Philadelphia - the Eagles' Brian Mitchell cannot wait to get back on the field.

"I'm so excited to play against the Steelers,"
the Eagles' second-leading receiver said.

Mitchell, who missed the first half of the season with a sprained ankle, is excited to play against the defending Super Bowl champion.

"I'm just really looking forward to getting back on the field," Mitchell said.

Mitchell is one of the Eagles' top receivers.
He has 42 catches for 520 yards and five touchdowns this season.

The Steelers are the only team in the National Football League that has not lost a game this season.

Mitchell is eager to test the Eagles against the best.

"I think it's going to be a good game,"
Mitchell said.

He said he will be ready to play Sunday against the Steelers.

The Eagles need to win their last two regular-season games to make the playoffs.

"We know we can't afford to lose,"
Mitchell said.

The Eagles (9-3) need to win to keep their chances alive of winning the NFC East.

"We're just going to have to go out there and play our best game," Mitchell said.

The Eagles' offensive line will face a stiff test against the Steelers, who have the league's fifth-best defense.

"They have a good defense," Mitchell said.

The Eagles have lost three straight games to the Steelers.

"We're just going to have to do our jobs and play well," Mitchell said.

The Eagles have not beaten the Steelers in Philadelphia since 1999.

IOWA HAWKEYES VS. PENN STATE NITTANY LIONS

11:10 a.m. Saturday Beaver Stadium • TV: KGAM • Radio: 66.5 FM and 800 AM

OFFENSE

If you're looking for the best of both worlds, you should consider attending this event. It promises to be a thrilling match-up between two of the top teams in college football. The Iowa Hawkeyes, known for their aggressive defense and powerful running game, will face off against the Penn State Nittany Lions, who boast a strong offense and a solid defense. This game is a must-see for any football fan, and it's sure to be one for the ages.

INTANGIBLES

Penn State is Penn State, and they never lose a game to anyone. The only teams they've lost on their home turf are Penn State. Normally, Penn State doesn't lose, but they are a difficult team to beat. The Iowa Hawkeyes enter this game with momentum and confidence, having dominated their recent opponents.

Who has the edge?

COACHES

I don't even want to elaborate on this one.

SPECIAL TEAMS

This is about the only part of the game where the underdogs could make a difference. They have solid return men, with Mitch Tyson being one who has scored some big returns.

DEFENSE

Penn State's defense is formidable and the team is top-notch, especially at the line. The Lions are superior here.

"I'm not in love with his speed, and I hope he's not in love with his speed," Riley said. "But at the moment, there's no time for statistics.

No time for Riley to savor win

Pat Riley's 1,000th appearance was a winning one, as the Heat beat the Spurs 109-101.

By Steve Wine

MIAMI - When the final horn sounded at the Palace of Auburn Hills, Riley felt he had checked off the box. But he also knew that his team still had a long way to go.

"I'm doing a whole lot better," Riley said. "I'm doing a whole lot better than I was on Dec. 1, but I'm not done yet." Riley's Heat will begin the season off on a strong note. The Heat are 4-4 this season and have a 1-2 record in the conference.

Despite the win, Riley said the Heat will have to improve in many areas. He said the Heat have been a "jumbled" team and need to find a way to get back to their winning ways.

Riley said the Heat will need to improve their defense and offense, as well as their overall play. He said the Heat will need to work on their consistency and get more out of their young players.

"We're still a young team," Riley said. "We're still a young team. But we're learning. We're learning." Pimper said.

The Heat will face the Magic in Orlando on Sunday night. The Magic are 2-5 this season and have a 2-4 record in the conference.

"They're a good team," Riley said. "They're a good team. We played them last week and we lost. But this time, we're going to be ready." Pimper said.

The Heat will need to be ready if they want to win this game. The Magic have won five of their last six games and are currently on a four-game winning streak.

"We have to play our best," Riley said. "We have to play our best. We can't afford to have any lapses in our game." Pimper said.

Riley's Heat will need to step it up if they want to maintain their high standards. They will need to continue to work on their defense and offense, as well as their overall play.
