Iowa crucial in today's close election

■ The vice president and the Texas governor spend some of their last pre-election moments here.

By Erica Driskell
The Daily Iowan

In an effort to secure the crucial Midwestern Electoral College votes, George W. Bush and Al Gore campaigned in Iowa Monday, giving the last of their stump speeches.

With various national polls showing that the presidential race is still tight, Iowa's seven Electoral College votes could be the determining factor.

Experts say that Iowa is still up for grabs, which caused both Gore and Bush to focus their last-minute campaign energies in the state.

"It should be clear how important the great state of Iowa is," Bush said while people waved miniature American flags in Davenport Monday afternoon.

"I've got two speeches to go."

More than 2,000 people packed into the Adler Theater, waiting for nearly two hours in dismal weather for a glimpse at Bush.

"It was worth the wait and the rain," said "ENDORSES" Davenport resident Greg Williams.

Gore also campaigned through rain and wind at a John Deere plant before dawn Monday, asking for workers' votes.

Speaking to a crowd of more than 700, Gore told the public he would be brief, but extended his speech to 10-15 minutes, including talk of what kind of Cabinet he would appoint after his election as president.

"I've been a part of creating the most diverse administration ever. I'd like to break that record," he said.

Afterward, Gore spoke with the overflow press corps and gave interviews by telephone and satellite to television and radio stations from a sidewalk in Waterloo.

Shortly after appearances in Iowa City from such celebrities as Rob Reiner and Martin Sheen in support of Gore, Bush garnered celebrity support of his own with actress Bo Derek and singer Wayne Newton in Davenport.

Derek told the crowd that Newton had just gotten off the phone with one of her undecided friends in an effort to sway her vote.

"If I can convince people in Hollywood, then you have no excuse here," she said.

America wants a president with the best leadership abilities, Newton said as he led the crowd in the singing of "America the Beautiful."

"I might be naive, but you know your neighbors. You know your family, don't you?" he asked the crowd. "What does that tell you about a man who can't even carry his own state?"

Final frenzy marks end of race

■ Both Al Gore and George W. Bush sprint to the finish, seeking last-minute momentum.

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — George W. Bush and Al Gore campaigned through the final hours of their run for the White House Monday, seeking last-minute momentum in a costly and exhausting race to become the nation's 43rd president.

The Texas governor said he trusted that Americans had "heard our message" — compassionate conservatism and a less intrusive government. The vice president urged a Democratic vote to maintain the nation's economic prosperity.

Gore anticipated a long count on Election Night and joked that his first meal as president-elect would probably be breakfast. "But I'm going to make it a Happy Meal from McDonald's," he told an Iowa audience.

In Florida, Bush was confident he would return Republicans to the presidency lost by his father in 1992. "We've laid the groundwork for victory," he said. "Now it's up (to us) to get people to the polls."

Candidates for the 107th Congress went through their final paces, Republicans and Democrats focusing their energy and money on four or five dozen highly contested races

Weather can't dampen jail protest

■ Opponents of the proposed new jail promise to continue fighting no matter the outcome of today's vote.

By Anne Webbeking
The Daily Iowan

Opponents of the new jail may have been soggy and drenched early Monday afternoon, but their spirits weren't dampened, as approximately a dozen people marched through the UI campus loudly chanting "vote no to the jail."

Gathering on the steps of the Old Capitol, the group handed out fliers about the jail, and members vocalized their message by shouting, "If they build it, they will fill it."

The chants continued as the UI students began their march around campus, through the Old Capitol Town Center, and then back to the Old Capitol. The protesters had originally planned to march to the Johnson County Jail, but they decided not to, feeling that no one would be outside in the neighborhood of the jail because of the weather.

UI senior Hollie Horn, a member of Entrepreneurs Against the New Jail, which helped organized the rally/march, said students should be opposed to the new jail because of the effect it will have on them.

"If we have a bigger jail, arrests will go up. More students will go to jail," she said. "Putting students in jail for drinking on the weekends doesn't really help."

The cost of living will also go up because of increased property taxes if the jail is passed, Horn said. She encouraged people to vote "no" so that the county will look at alternatives to a new jail.

New fire station adds to First Avenue debate

■ The fate of the location of the city's fourth fire station hinges on the First Avenue extension vote.

By Bridget Stratton
The Daily Iowan

When Iowa City residents vote today on the completion of the First Avenue extension, they will also be voting on the fate of a fourth fire station in Iowa City.

There is room in the city's Capital Budget Plan to build a fourth fire station in the vicinity of First Avenue, Captain Irish Parkway and Dodge Street, if First Avenue is extended to meet with Captain Irish Parkway, said City Manager Steve Atkins. The exact location of the fourth fire station is pending; however, many proponents and opponents of the extension believe the fire station will be put on the corner of First Avenue and Captain Irish Parkway.

FDA issues stroke alert on cold drugs, diet pills

■ The agency warns against using several popular over-the-counter drugs containing PPA.

By Luran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government warned Americans Monday to quit using dozens of over-the-counter cold remedies and diet pills because they contain an ingredient that could cause hemorrhagic strokes, especially in young women.

The Food and Drug Administration is preparing to ban phenylpropanolamine, or PPA, which is found in products from Dexatrim to Triaminic. But legal steps needed for a ban will take a few months, so the FDA asked manufacturers Monday to voluntarily stop selling PPA-containing drugs immediately and replace the ingredient with a safer alternative.

For consumers, the FDA's unusually strong health warning says: "We suggest you stop taking the drug immediately and use an alternative."

Consumers should look for PPA in the ingredient list of all nonprescription cold relievers — brand names and generic or store brands — and choose decongestant pills containing a safe alternative, pseudoephedrine, or use nasal sprays instead, said Dr. Charles Ganley, the FDA non-prescription-drugs chief.

There are no over-the-counter alternatives for diet pills, however, so dieters will have to consult a doctor about prescription-only alternatives, he said.

Some retailers and manufacturers moved Monday to take products off drugstore shelves. Don't use PPA-containing Contac 12-hour Cold Capsules, but five other Contac versions contain the safe pseudoephedrine, so check the label, said manufacturer

1st Ave. extension in spotlight

Iowa City residents delve into local politics with a passion unequal to that of the national scene.

By Chao Xiong
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City residents and UI students are finding their political voices, but it's not always talk of the presidential race heating up the streets or spilling from the tongues of local activists. Instead, such local issues as the First Avenue extension are absorbing residents in a political tug-of-war.

As the eve before the general election came to a close, some Iowa City residents mobilized for a final show of solidarity, while others refrained from last-minute appeals, content with the effort they had put forth.

Citizens for Common Sense Growth, an anti-extension group, harnessed the power of its members and Iowa City residents in a candlelight vigil along First Avenue Monday at 5:30 p.m. The vigil began with a procession of fifth- and sixth-graders from Hoover Elementary School, 2200 E. Court St., and came to a halt at the end of

First Avenue with approximately 100 supporters in tow.

"The people who worked for this campaign put in a tremendous effort to make people understand the importance and complexity of this issue," said Iowa City resident Jim Walters, the co-chairman of the steering committee for the group.

Members of the pro-extension Citizens for the Future of Iowa City retreated from the spotlight after one last appeal Monday morning during a call-in forum on radio station WSUI AM 910 and door-to-door visits Sunday afternoon.

"We think we've done everything we've been able to do," said Iowa City resident Bob Elliott, the chairman of the group. "At this time, we're always concerned with what people are campaigning for ... but we have to focus on what we've done."

A "no" vote will keep the project on Iowa City's Capital Improvement Plan. A "yes" vote will terminate the project.

The fate of 1,600 feet of concrete and asphalt that may connect First Avenue to Captain Irish Parkway has residents campaigning everywhere from the streets to the Internet.

Citizens for Common Sense

Kourtney Hoffman/The Daily Iowan

Citizens for Common Sense Growth gather at the corner of First Avenue and Rochester Street Monday night to celebrate community and raise awareness for a First Avenue "yes" vote.

Growth launched its official Web site, www.common-sensegrowth.org, three months ago, said Iowa City resident and group spokesman David Redlawsk.

"The power of the Web is ... its ability to give out information," he said. "When you want something, it's always there. That's tremendous power."

The Citizens for the Future of Iowa City decided not to launch a Web site of its own because of financial and time constraints, Elliott said. It instead invested its energy into mail-in brochures, TV commercials and an information booth in the Sycamore Mall.

"People's feelings are very strong," he said. "Those of us involved on either side find ourselves hip-deep in this. It does kind of take over ... and takes away from the national scene."

Foundation rebounds

UI Foundation earned $36.6 million in fiscal year 2000.

By Jen Provenzano
The Daily Iowan

After losing $5 million in investments in fiscal year 1999, the UI Foundation improved during fiscal year 2000 by spreading out its investments into more companies.

The foundation, the UI's fund-raising arm, earned $36.6 million on its investments in the stock market in the fiscal year 2000, which ended June 30. This brought in a 9.4 percent return rate to raise the foundation's total endowment to $444.6 million.

For the fiscal year 1999, the foundation incurred a 1.4 percent loss on its investments — $5 million.

Michael New, the UI Foundation president, said his group invested money in a wider range of companies to avoid a similar loss.

Puneet Handa, a UI associate professor of finance, said he agreed with the groups' tactics.

"They should basically stick to a well-diversified portfolio of United States stocks," he said.

While the group earned a significant return this year, it was still lower than past years' return rates, which have averaged 13.7 in the past five years.

The state's other public universities' return rates were higher than the UI's with the Iowa State University Foundation earning 20.5 percent on its endowment fund and the University of Northern Iowa Foundation earning 14.2 percent.

The UI foundation pays for over 5,000 aspects at the UI, New said. Contributions help fund many things — from building projects to student scholarships and cancer research.

"We accept gifts and encourage gifts to virtually every part of the university," he said.

Teachers-to-be face background checks

New state regulations require future teachers to undergo criminal-background checks.

By Andrew Bixby
The Daily Iowan

UI education students hoping to become teachers, administrators or coaches in Iowa will now have to be fingerprinted and pass a mandatory background check in order to receive their licenses.

The new state regulations affect those students preparing to enter the workforce. Those already working in the schools are not subject to the checks when they renew their licenses.

Bonnie Pryor, the UI coordinator of teacher education admissions, said the new regulations are part of a national trend towards ensuring the safety of children in classrooms.

"I don't know if this is warranted considering the low percentage of problems (in Iowa), but the state feels like it's under pressure," she said.

Currently, only the fingerprinting is required. The state will require a criminal-background check, which will cost each applicant $37, at a later, undisclosed date, Pryor said.

UI senior Lori Russell, an education major, said the new regulations make sense but that students shouldn't have to pay the fee.

"Parents need to know that the people teaching their children aren't criminals," she said. "But teaching is a service to the government, and it is junk that students have to pay

Before the Iowa Board of Education Examiners approved the new regulations earlier this year, background checks were only mandatory if applicants indicated they had a criminal history on their license applications, Pryor said. Although each background check is judged on a case-by-case basis, "simple crimes" such as underage drinking and drunken driving are not likely to prevent someone from receiving her or his license, she said.

So far, the transition has been smooth, and UI students have responded in support to the change, Pryor said.

"I've been very impressed with how the students have accepted this," she said. "It's an additional hardship on their careers, but most haven't protested or fought against it."

UI education majors who have gone to the UI Public Safety to be fingerprinted have been very cooperative, said Duane Papke, the department's acting associate director.

"There's been no griping from anyone complaining about why they have to do this," he said. "It's required, and they're following through with it."

Elizabeth Paulsen, a UI graduate student in education, said she supports the background checks but that fingerprinting makes her very uncomfortable.

"It seems too personal for me — they're not putting any faith in us," she said.

UI receives grant to probe substance abuse

Scientists will study substance abuse by visiting treatment centers in Iowa.

By Natasha Lambropoulos
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Practice Research Collaborative, made up of UI academic researchers and other abuse-treatment professionals in Iowa, announced this week that it won a $1.2 million federal grant on Oct. 1.

The federal Center for Substance Abuse Treatment will disperse the grant over a three-year period, allowing the Iowa Practice Research Collaborative to begin research on improving drug-abuse treatment, said Mickey Eliason, the co-director of the research collaborative and a UI associate professor in the College of Nursing.

With the grant, the UI research group will focus on three main areas, Eliason said. It will conduct studies in Iowa treatment centers on clients with both substance addictions and psychological problems, treatment services for women and children, and the criminal justice system involving substance abusers, she said.

Researchers will look into treatment modes for women and children because treatment centers generally focus on men and do not assess many female substance abusers, Eliason said. The project will also concentrate on people with substance-abuse problems and criminal records. It will aim to decrease crime while focusing on the alcohol- or drug-related problems, she said.

"This money will allow us to do research in treatment centers, which will help us answer questions counselors want answered," Eliason said. "It will mainly make research more practical and helpful to people in the field."

The Iowa Consortium for Substance Abuse Research and Evaluation is a branch of the UI that is administering the Iowa Practice Research Collaborative project, she said.

The program is made up of 13 individual research projects divided up into smaller pilot projects, geared to evaluate substance abuse throughout Iowa treatment centers, said Stephan Arndt, the UI director of the Iowa Consortium for Substance Abuse Research and Evaluation.

The main purpose is to improve substance-abuse treatment, as well as improve the care and provisions of services throughout Iowa, he said.

"It couldn't have been done without the grant," Arndt said. The Iowa project is just one of eight similar projects conducting research on substance abuse.

"The fact is that there are several of these projects throughout the country; we are going to be able to evaluate the factors that are associated with finding good ways of developing these collaborators," said Jack Barnette, the research collaborative external evaluator and an associate dean in the College of Public Health. "Researchers, practitioners and policy-makers are getting together to focus on solving a multi-faced problem. One group alone cannot solve substance-abuse problems."

Presidential candidate information

There are nine candidates for president on the Iowa ballot. Because of space constraints, only the four who are expected to have the greatest impact on who becomes the next president are included here. The candidates not profiled are Harry Browne of the Libertarian Party, James Harris of the Socialist Workers' Party, Howard Phillips of the Constitution Party, David McReynolds of the Socialist Party USA and John Hagelin of the Natural Law Party.

Al Gore Democratic Party

Higher Education - Promises $10,000 per student in the form of tuition credits to help middle-class families send children to school.

Budget Surplus - Institute $500 billion targeted tax cuts over 10 years. Eliminate the national debt by 2013. Strengthen Social Security and Medicare with more than $2.5 trillion set aside from 2001-2010.

Campaign Finance - Ban soft-money contributions and says the first bill he will submit to Congress is the McCain-Feingold campaign-finance reform legislation.

Gun Control - Limit handgun purchases to one-a-month and require a three-day waiting period for handgun purchases.

Abortion - Supports the right to an abortion, contending they should be safe, legal and rare.

Gay and Lesbian Rights - Supports equal legal protection for gay couples in civil unions, including the right to make medical decisions and enjoy certain tax breaks available to married couples, but opposes same-sex marriage.

Death Penalty - Supports the death penalty and the use of DNA testing: "We must take every possible precaution to ensure the integrity and fairness of the system when we apply this ultimate penalty." (Source: AP)

Defense - Invest in advanced weaponry and maintain military hardware to prevent it from becoming obsolete.

George W. Bush Republican Party

Higher Education - Let parents save up to $5,000 a year in new tax advantaged accounts, to use from K-12 to grad school. $1.5 billion in merit scholarships.

Budget Surplus - Cut taxes by $1.3 trillion over 10 years. Use the $2 trillion Social Security surplus to invest in the system and give individuals the option to voluntarily invest a portion of their Social Security payroll taxes in personal retirement accounts.

Campaign Finance - Supports a ban on soft-money contributions from union members and corporations. Increase the individual contribution limit per candidate from $1,000 to $3,400.

Gun Control - Expand the "instant check" background check system for pawnshops and gun shows.

Abortion - Supports a ban on abortion, except in cases of rape, incest or when the life of the mother is in jeopardy.

Gay and Lesbian Rights - Opposes same-sex marriage but believes each state should decide on its legality.

Death Penalty - Supports the death penalty and the use of DNA testing: "Any time DNA evidence, in the context of all the evidence, is deemed to be relevant in the guilt or innocence of a person on death row." (Source: AP)

Defense - Increase Defense research and development by at least $20 billion in the four years beginning with fiscal year 2002.

Ralph Nader Green Party

Higher Education - Proposes $35 billion in "unnecessary" foreign military spending cuts to provide every college-age student in the country with a free public higher education.

Budget Surplus - Expand existing government programs such as Social Security and create new ones such as universal health care.

Campaign Finance - In favor of publicly funded campaigns. Supports free broadcasting time in exchange for pledging not to take private money. Opposed to PAC money and soft-money contributions.

Gun Control - Advocates trigger locks, licensing of gun owners and strong law enforcement to keep guns away from criminals.

Abortion - Believes the government should not have a role in determining whether a woman receives an abortion.

Gay and Lesbian Rights - Believes homosexuals should have equal rights, including the right of civil union, which includes full marriage benefits.

Death Penalty - Opposes the death penalty, arguing on CNN that it "has been shown, in study after study, not to deter homicides; it has been shown to be discriminatorily applied to the poor and the defenseless."

Defense - Favors cutting back the Defense budget and using the money on domestic programs. Advocates the use of "preventive diplomacy and preventive defense."

Pat Buchanan Reform Party

Higher Education - proposes shut down of Department of Education and return of educational authority to the states and to the people.

Budget Surplus - Use remaining surplus for broad tax cuts, instituting a flat tax of 16 percent of earnings. Shore up Social Security.

Campaign Finance - Advocates politicians' limiting fund raising outside their district to 50 percent of the total raised. Favors banning corporate PAC money.

Gun Control - Pledges to uphold "the Second Amendment right of American gun owners to keep and bear arms."

Abortion - Advocates a full ban on abortion, calling it the "greatest evil since slavery."

Gay and Lesbian Rights - Opposes civil unions for gay couples and believes that the unions are a contributing factor to the moral decline of American society.

Death Penalty - Supports the death penalty.

Defense - Favors a national missile-defense system. Pledges to "restore funding to our hollowed forces, honor to our ranks, and safety to our shores."

Celebrity predictions for critical swing states

Political experts across the nation have agreed: In the end, the 2000 presidential race will not come down to the popular vote, but to the electoral votes of the 50 states.

What does matter is which particular states the candidates win. It is feasible that one major-party candidate could win the popular vote and the other will still win the office of president of the United States - a scenario that would cause more than a few voters to dig out the old high school civics book in a state of panicked confusion to remember how exactly this experiment in democracy we call America was designed to work.

What it all comes down to is the swing states - the states that neither major-party candidate has wrapped up yet - that could go to either Gore or Bush. The Daily Iowan has picked six states as swing states in the race. We asked a handful of local celebrities and pundits to offer their picks for the winner of each state. Encyclopedic political knowledge of the political race in each and every state was not a prerequisite. Some had it, some didn't. The point of the contest was to have fun. May the best (or luckiest) contestant win.

Johnson County Board of Supervisors

Tim Borchardt - Libertarian candidate opposed government intrusion and burden of taxation. Will fight to increase the value of the dollar and to decrease taxes.

Pat Harney - Democratic candidate who wants to help the area maintain its culture and diversity. He said the county needs to use the land-use plan as a guide, not a permanent plan.

Terrence Neuzil - Democratic candidate who encourages long-term managed planning and development in land use and the importance of human services and intergovernmental communication.

Myron Smalley - Republican candidate who wants to bring the voice of rural citizens to the board and maintain private property rights for citizens. He believes there needs to be more fiscal responsibility and a more wise use of tax-payer money.

Carol Thompson - Incumbent Democratic candidate who believes in human services and thinks it should be one of Johnson County's main priorities because the programs provide general assistance to residents and the mentally ill.

Constitution revision - Iowa voters are asked every 10 years, as required by Amendment 22 of the Constitution, if they will allow a convention for formulating amendments and revision of the Constitution. If the issue passes, voters will allow the General Assembly to elect delegates to propose changes and submit the results to the people for approval.

Iowa City library expansion - Calls for expansion of the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., westward, increasing from 47,000 square feet to 83,745 square feet. The referendum needs to be approved by 60 percent of voters to pass. The plans include the purchase of the Lenoch & Cilek, located at 130 S. Dubuque St.

U.S. Representative

Jim Leach - Incumbent Republican candidate who stands for increased college Pell grants and campus-based child-care services. He also supports increases in funding for medical-research schools and has sponsored efforts to ensure that patent rights are protected.

District 49 in Iowa House of Representatives - Steven Drahozal - Libertarian candidate who believes that reduction of crime associated with drug use can be alleviated through education and not more laws. Believes in giving more autonomy to local educational boards and to the schools.

Dick Myers - Democratic incumbent candidate who wants to simplify Iowa's tax form and protect privacy by prohibiting businesses from exchanging information about people and by placing restrictions on telemarketers. He also wants to improve educational and business opportunities so young people will stay and work in Iowa.

District 47 in Iowa House of Representatives - Sally Stutsman - Democratic candidate who believes that investing in Iowa means investing in Iowa families. She said she would take steps to improve the child-care system and provide lifelong educational opportunities.

Barry Brauns - Republican incumbent candidate who supports phonics-based reading programs and rewarding Iowa's best teachers. Says he will be a strong advocate for farmers and has worked to make Iowa a more attractive place to create jobs.

First Avenue Extension

If it fails, First Avenue will be connected with Captain Irish Parkway and create another arterial street for the city. Proponents for the extension say the completion will increase emergency response time and encourage safer and more efficient traffic flow in the area. Opponents say First Avenue is not and can never be a safe arterial road and will jeopardize the peace and tranquility of Hickory Hill Park.

Russ Madden

Libertarian candidate who supports the end of the drug war. He also supports minimizing government to increase people's freedom and stands for gun rights rather than gun control.

District 46 in Iowa House of Representatives

Mary Mascher - Democratic incumbent candidate who wants to rebuild Iowa's infrastructure through the public schools, highways and state parks. She says she will help to preserve the family farm and strengthen schools.

Russell Lovetinsky - An Iowa Green Party candidate. The Green Party stresses environmental protection, a $10 minimum wage and ending the drug war.

New jail proposal

If the voters approve a new jail, to be located west of Highway 218 and north of Melrose Avenue, is a 256-bed facility will replace the current 92 bed jail. The new jail will cost $20.3 million. $19 million will be bonded from property tax, and the county will contribute $1.3 million. The new jail referendum needs to be approved by 60 percent of the voters in order to pass.

District 45 in Iowa House of Representatives

Vicki Lansing - Democratic candidate who wants to improve education at all levels. If elected, she will push for an increase in teachers' pay and other programs that will improve education in Iowa.

Paul Heyn - Republican candidate who says he will vote for the best interest of Iowa City, rather than along party lines. He wants to improve education and increase the number of businesses in Iowa so that UI graduates will stay in the state.

NATION BRIEF

Industry money surges into campaigns

NEW YORK (AP) - In industries from agriculture to autos, this year's election is about more than just choosing the nation's next president - the results could shape the future of business.

Automakers fear government-mandated deadlines for developing costly technology to make cars more fuel-efficient. Pharmaceutical companies are anxious about Medicare reform and prescription-drug price controls. For telecommunications, the election could decide the rules for competition in the local and long distance markets.

The concern is evident in the surge in campaign donations: In the 1996 elections, donations from industry totaled $653.4 million, according to the nonpartisan Center for Responsive Politics. This election, donations had reached $841.8 million by June 30, and they continue to soar, the group said.

"Business wants to make sure that no matter what happens on Nov. 7, they've got friends in Congress who will listen to their concerns in the future," said Steven Weiss, a spokesman for the Center for Responsive Politics.

In many industries, those friends are Republicans. Executives bet a Bush administration and Republican Congress would be less likely to regulate commerce or pursue antitrust litigation.

likely to determine control of the House and the Senate.

The airwaves were a blizzard of campaign advertising, with an advantage to Bush. From the start of his run through mid-October, the Texas governor had spent $138 million, including $56 million on radio and TV ads, according to the Campaign Study Group. Gore was at $94 million overall, including $41.5 million for broadcast ads.

The polls gave Bush a small edge in the popular vote, a position he gained after overtaking Gore in public-opinion surveys during October. But the decisive Electoral College seemed less predictable. It takes 270 electoral votes, a majority, to win the White House. Key swing states included Florida (25 electoral votes), Pennsylvania (23) and Michigan (18), and an aggressive Bush campaign bid as well for Gore strongholds such as California (54) and Tennessee (11).

Some aides worried that Green Party candidate Ralph Nader would damage the vice president's chances of succeeding Bill Clinton by diluting the Democratic vote in such swing states as Oregon and Wisconsin. Under pressure from Democratic liberals to back off, Nader countered: "...The only wasted vote is for someone you don't believe in."

Gore expressed no concern, saying, "I think by tomorrow, particularly with the election this close, most people are going to want to participate in the main choice."

The candidates' itinerary and pace told the story on the final day of a long and costly campaign.

Gore embarked on a 30-hour nonstop journey beginning in Iowa, then heading to Missouri, Michigan and Florida before flying home early Tuesday morning in Nashville, Tenn.

"I think that what is involved in this race is whether or not we are going to have policies that keep our economic good times rolling and extend them to the people who've not yet shared in those good times," the vice president said in an early morning interview on NBC's "Today."

"I have a passion to do what's right for your family," he said later in Flint, Mich., touching on issues ranging from health care to campaign-finance reform to targeted tax cuts.

Bush's schedule projected his confidence: From Gore's home state of Tennessee, he flew to Wisconsin, Iowa and Arkansas, four states that Clinton carried twice, before returning to his residence in Austin, Texas.

"My opponent vows to carry his home state," Bush said in Chattanooga, Ga. Gore "may win Washington D.C., but he's not going to win Tennessee."

Later, in Green Bay, Wis., as he has in hundreds of stops in the past year, he said a Republican victory would mean "a fresh start after a season of cynicism" in Washington.

One survey suggested that Bush headed into Election Day with his supporters more enthusiastic than Gore's backers, a potential advantage in a close race. The poll, by Pew Research Center, found that 32 percent of Bush's voters said they strongly support him, compared with 26 percent for Gore's supporters.

Pat Buchanan, an asterisk in most polls, sounded like a man writing his own campaign's obituary.

"I've been able to influence, I think, over my career of 35 years... a lot of policies and a lot of decisions," he said. "But this does not appear to be the best format to do it."

Just beneath the presidential line on the ballot, some of the most memorable congressional campaigns in years were nearing an end. Democrats need to gain eight seats to wrest control of the House and five in the Senate.

The most-watched Senate race in the country roared through its final hours Monday, with Hillary Rodham Clinton holding rallies in cities across the state, and Rick Lazio campaigning for votes in the suburbs.

In three new polls released Monday, two showed the race very close, and the third showed Rodham Clinton with a double-digit lead over her Republican rival.

Among the new polls, the Quinnipiac University Polling Institute had the first lady leading the Long Island congressman 51 percent to 39 percent, with a margin of error of plus or minus 3 points.

A poll from Marist College's Institute for Public Opinion had Rodham Clinton at 49 percent and Lazio at 45 percent — a gap within the poll's margin of error of plus or minus 4.5 points. A New York Post poll out Monday had Rodham Clinton at 48 percent and Lazio at 46 percent. The poll, conducted by Zogby International, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 points.

In next-door New Jersey, investment banker Jon Corzine tested the limits of self-financing. Dipping into his own pocketbook for a record $50 million or more, he faced a surprising challenge from Rep. Bob Franks.

Half a continent away, Gore made a pitch for the late Missouri Gov. Mel Carnahan, whose name remains on the ballot for a Senate seat. "You know what we say, keep the fires burning," the vice president said in St. Louis. "It means to vote for Mel Carnahan and send his partner, who shares his hopes and values, to the United States Senate." Carnahan's widow, Jean, has said she would accept appointment to the Senate if her late husband is victorious against Sen. John Ashcroft today.

GORE-LIEBERMAN 2000 THE BEST IS YET TO COME.

- PUTTING PATIENTS ABOVE PROFITS.
Al Gore will fight for a real Patients' Bill of Rights that would take medical decisions away from insurance companies and HMOs and give them back to patients and their doctors.
- TAKING ON BIG DRUG COMPANIES. MAKING PRESCRIPTION DRUGS MORE AFFORDABLE.
Al Gore will expand Medicare to help seniors afford prescription drugs. His plan is voluntary. All seniors are covered under Medicare, if those choose to participate. And seniors choose their own doctor.
- SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY FIRST.
Al Gore believes saving Social Security should be our first priority. Gore believes this is more than a fiscal responsibility. It is a profoundly moral responsibility. All Americans created the budget surplus — and almost all Americans paid into Social Security. It must be there for every generation.
- MAKING REVOLUTIONARY IMPROVEMENTS IN OUR SCHOOLS.
Al Gore will bring revolutionary improvements to the nation's public schools. He will put a qualified teacher in every classroom by recruiting one million new teachers and raise teacher salaries in exchange for higher teacher standards. His plan reduces class sizes, wires every classroom to the Internet, and makes voluntary universal pre-school available to all four-year-olds and many three-year-olds.
- CUTTING TAXES FOR MIDDLE-CLASS FAMILIES.
Al Gore will make responsible, targeted tax cuts to help working families pay for health insurance, child care, care for aging relatives, and education and job training (including a $10,000 tax deduction for college tuition).
- PROTECTING OUR ENVIRONMENT AND OUR PROSPERITY.
It is time to abandon old ways of thinking that hold us back. Al Gore knows we must not accept the inevitability of dirty power plants, or electricity generators where energy is wasted and consumers have to foot the bill. It is a new, bold way of thinking to invest in cleaner, more reliable power and pass tougher safeguards for our air and water.

Swimming against the beer & circus tide

■ An author praises the UI's efforts to stop binge-drinking, although they have had no effect.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

The UI has waged "the single most ambitious anti-binge-drinking campaign ever conducted at an American university" over the past few years, an Indiana University author said Monday. Murray Sperber, a professor of English at Indiana, spoke about his fourth book, Beer and Circus: How Big-Time Sports is Crippling Undergraduate Education, to a crowd of approximately 75 at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St. Sperber's book is a harsh critique of major college athletics programs and the institutions that run them. Sperber argues that many major universities, which no longer make undergraduate education a priority, promote the party scene surrounding their athletics teams — what he calls "beer and circus" — to keep undergraduate students happy and the tuition revenue rolling in. One university that does not follow the rule is the UI, said Sperber, who devotes approximately seven pages of the 322-page book to discussion of the UI.

While the UI's efforts to combat high-risk drinking are noteworthy, he said, they have "not yet dented" the amount of binge-drinking in Iowa City. "He's probably right," said Julie Phye, the director of the Stepping Up Program, which tries to combat the harmful effects of drinking. She noted that surveys show the amount of binge-drinking on the UI campus has not decreased in the past few years.

"We're not looking for a quick fix. We're looking for a long-term change," Phye said. Sperber commends the UI for accepting an $830,000 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and the American Medical Association to create Stepping Up. Many universities turned those grants down because they were afraid of poor publicity, Sperber said. The author also compliments UI officials for rejecting a Miller Beer advertising contract in the summer of 1999 because they explained it would contradict their commitment to reducing binge-drinking. "The UI is very unusual," Sperber said Monday night. "I actually had the opportunity to be kind to a school ... It should be congratulated."

Phye said the praise "is flattering." The UI's attempts to combat binge-drinking is largely a result of UI President Mary Sue Coleman's commitment to fighting the problem, she said.

Council gives go-ahead on Englert plan

■ The theater group will begin renovations after the council unanimously OKs its payment plan.

By Megan L. Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

Acknowledging the support for saving the Englert Theatre, the Iowa City City Council unanimously agreed to allow a local group to buy the theater from the city in increments.

The proposal will allow the Englert Civic Theatre Inc., a nonprofit organization, to spread payments for the Englert property over a four-year period instead of paying $500,000 in one lump sum. City officials estimated that the city will lose nearly $65,000 in interest revenue, adding to the $58,000 already lost through interest and property taxes. Mayor Ernie Lehman said the losses the city faces will be the equivalent of 25 cents per Iowa City resident for each of the four years.

The Englert group's proposal includes a paying the city approximately $100,000 each year, without interest. If the group isn't able to make the payments, the theater will be turned back over to the city. Six months ago, the city agreed to sell the property to the Englert group if it could raise the funds could be raised by Nov. 8; a method of payment was not specified. The Englert group is now requesting the four-year proposal because of the lack of cash in hand. To date, the group has raised approximately $600,000, but not all of it is in cash, Treasurer LaDonna Wicklund said, so the group cannot pay the city in one lump sum. A portion of the $600,000 raised is in pledges, which the Englert group will use to pay the city over the four-year period, board member Dick Summerwill said.

Because of the support from the council, the group can put a $100,000 down-payment on the property and start the renovation process. "It's incredibly important that we start putting money

It's incredibly important that we start putting money into the restoration.

—Dick Summerwill, Englert group member into the restoration," Summerwill said. "It doesn't do anybody any good in this city for it to sit in the dark."

The group members were very pleased with the council's decision and will sign an agreement with the city today or Wednesday.

Although the council supported the idea, councilors said they were skeptical about receiving the money invested if the theater group weren't able to make the payments.

"With that kind of community support, I don't see why it shouldn't work," Lehman said. "But if there's a problem, I want to make sure we recover every nickel we lost."

The Pulliam Journalism Fellowship

Jump-start your newspaper journalism career with a solid program that boasts four Pulitzer Prize winners among its alumni - the Pulliam Journalism Fellowship. The Fellowship offers myriad career opportunities; in fact, a Pulliam Fellow from our first class of 1974, Barbara Henry, now serves as president and publisher of The Indianapolis Star. Moreover, a new graduate of our year 2000 class has just been hired as a full-time staff reporter at The Indianapolis Star.

Now entering its 28th year, the 2001 Pulliam Journalism Fellowship helps build a bridge from the classroom to the newsroom. Fellows are assigned to The Indianapolis Star or The Arizona Republic in Phoenix for 10 weeks each summer as staff reporters. We award 20 fellowships annually. The stipend is $5,775.

Traditionally, our fellowships have been open only to graduating college seniors. In 2001, we will be expanding eligibility to include college sophomores and juniors as well as seniors pursuing a career in newspaper journalism. We will be accepting applications for our Summer 2001 program in September 2000.

Visit our Web site at <http://www.starnews.com/pjf> or e-mail Fellowship director Russell B. Pulliam at russell.pulliam@starnews.com for an application packet. You also may request a packet by writing:

JAIL

Tim Borchardt, the Libertarian candidate for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors. He said he opposes the new jail for numerous reasons, including cost, the fact that the jail will hold people who are picked up for nonviolent offenses such as public intoxication and because he believes there was a lack of community involvement in the process of putting the issue on the ballot.

"The community does not feel that the entire community was involved with discussing this issue," Borchardt said.

Supervisor Jonathan Jordahl helped pick the committee of community members who decided to put the issue on the ballot. He said that all community members were welcome to apply to be on the committee, but fewer than 20 did. The board selected 12 Johnson County residents with very diverse backgrounds, Jordahl said.

Currently, the jail's maximum capacity is about 70, but on an average night, the jail holds 96 people, he said.

"The jail is still full, and we still need to do something about it," Jordahl said.

Despite the low number of participants and the bad weather, UI senior Sarah Walker said, she felt the rally was a success.

"I feel like we've gotten our message out," she said. "Maybe we didn't reach more than 100 people, but we reached somebody. Everybody's vote counts."

UI senior Joseph Milton said he will continue to fight the new jail even if it passes, and he will push leaders to look into jail alternatives if it fails.

"The issue isn't going to stop," he said. "We're going to continue to push the issue."

New fire station hinges on First Avenue vote

FIRE STATION

based upon the premise that First Avenue is expanded," Atkins said. "If it is not expanded, I am not sure what will happen next."

As it is now, response time from Fire Station One, 410 E. Washington Street, to an emergency in the First Avenue and Captain Irish Parkway area is 10-12 minutes, depending on the time of day, said Iowa City Fire Chief Andy Rocca.

The Iowa City Fire Department uses a computer-model system developed by Flame software to determine response time, he said. The department has been using this system for three to four years and believes it is an accurate assessment.

If a fourth fire station is built, the program predicts response time from that station to the area would be four to five minutes, Rocca said. Extending First Avenue would allow response time from Fire Station One to improve response time to four to eight minutes, depending on the time of day, he said.

The extension of First Avenue and the city's proposed fourth fire station would provide the best response time, despite what opponents to the First Avenue extension believe, Rocca said.

Although he agrees a new fire station is necessary for the First Avenue and Captain Irish Parkway area, Mike Finley, a resident of First Avenue and member of the anti-extension Citizens for Common Sense Growth, said the proposed site is inadequate.

"Putting a fire station on the corner of Rochester Avenue and Scott Boulevard would give the best response time to all areas, including the new developments on the South and East sides," he said.

For David Redlawsk, a representative of Citizens for Common Sense Growth, extending First Avenue is not the way to improve fire response.

"We need a fire station now, not three years from now," he said. "The extension of First Avenue will not provide a better location for another fire station."

Bob Elliott, the spokesman for pro-extension Citizens for the Future of Iowa City, said voters should look at fire safety as an issue in the First Avenue extension debate.

"Response time for the area is not what it should be," he said. "The expansion of First Avenue would improve that."

If a fourth fire station is built, it will employ nine firefighters, three for each 24-hour shift, just as fire stations two and three do, Rocca said. The new fire station is scheduled to be built by July 1, 2002, he said.

Citing stroke risk, FDA warns against drug element quit shipping PPA-containing Dimetapp Monday. New liquid Dimetapp formulas that don't contain PPA will head for store shelves next week, with pill versions to follow later. Also, check Robitussin-CF — some stores are selling PPA-containing versions, and some are selling a new non-PPA formula, in boxes flagged with a yellow band.

"Customers that are looking for an alternative should ask one of our pharmacists or ask their doctor," said Michael Polzin of Walgreen Co., which began pulling all PPA-containing products from its 3,200 stores in 43 states.

CVS Pharmacy announced Monday that it also was removing products with PPA from the shelves of its 4,100 stores in 25 states and the District of Columbia.

Even though manufacturers learned three weeks ago that the FDA's move was coming — when the agency's scientific advisers declared PPA unsafe — many spent Monday scrambling to decide what to do.

Top-selling manufacturers that refused to reveal their plans include Novartis Corp., maker of PPA-containing Triaminic and Tavist-D, Bayer Corp., maker of Alka-Seltzer Plus cold medicines, and Chattem Inc., maker of Dexamtrix diet pills.

Approximately 6 billion doses of PPA are sold in this country each year, the vast majority without a prescription. However, there are a few PPA-containing prescription decongestants, and the FDA asked their makers to stop selling them while it moves to ban prescription use as well.

The risk of a hemorrhagic stroke, or bleeding in the brain, is very small to an individual user.

"Not to be alarmist — it's clear this is a very rare event," Ganley said. "But even though it's rare, it's an irreversible event."

These are often deadly strokes, and survivors can be left disabled. With millions of Americans swallowing PPA daily, the FDA estimated it could be to blame for 200 to 500 strokes just in people under age 50.

Hemorrhagic strokes typically occur in the elderly and are extremely rare under age 50. Yet the first warning sign about PPA came in the 1980s, when medical journals cited several dozen young women who suddenly had strokes days after taking their first diet pill.

The FDA's records show 44 cases of hemorrhagic stroke among PPA users in the past 30 years. Most were women; the median age was 35 — including a few who died while using diet pills even though medical records showed they weren't overweight.

horoscopes

Tuesday, November 7, 2000 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Co-operating with co-workers will lead to a better working relationship. Romantic encounters will be stressful if you haven't been completely honest about your past commitments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Attend a social event and focus on meeting those who can help you get ahead. You will have to be careful not to forget your loved ones. Neglect will lead to upset.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your best efforts will come through work. To accomplish the most, it is best to work with your peers. Love interests may develop through work-related events.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your interest in learning something new may lead you back to school. You will benefit through the courses you take, regardless of whether you use your new skills to make money.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get busy turning your home into the place you want to live in. Don't let jealousy lead to an unpleasant situation. Unusual investments will lead to profits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You will meet new romantic partners while on vacation. Your ability to converse with knowledge and wit will attract intelligent individuals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't take financial risks. Losses are evident, and joint ventures appear to be totally unreliable. Matters pertaining to your career will be most favorable. Look into the possibility of a better position.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get in touch with yourself. You need to do some soul-searching and make the necessary adjustments to your attitude. Self-realization and creative projects can be satisfying and enlightening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't avoid the truth. You can make alterations that will ease the tension at home. Look into moving to larger quarters. You can benefit financially through real estate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You need a change. Join groups that will spark some enthusiasm in you. Don't be in a hurry to blame your loved ones for things they possibly had no part in. Do a little research.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't waste time. You can make changes that will lead to a better professional position. Go for interviews or talk to your boss about a promotion.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your thirst for knowledge will lead you down exciting new avenues. Try not to disagree with colleagues. Work quietly behind the scenes, and refrain from pushing your beliefs on others.

The Ledge

How to spice up your voting experience on Election Day

- Wear something skimpy and exotic. Explain that you needed something to get you "in the mood."
- Shout phrases such as "Damn right!" and "Woo-hah!" after you check off each name.
- Write in your favorite pro wrestler for county sheriff.
- Ask people if George W. Bush happens to be related to the former president. Express disbelief with each reply.
- Talk trash to other voters while at the polls. Use plenty of derogatory references to their mothers, as this might lessen their general state of confidence.
- Write in Bush or Gore for East Central Regional Library Trustee. Boy, won't they be surprised about that one.
- Explain matter-of-factly that you're there to "rock the vote." Put on an air guitar performance if necessary.
- Keep peeking at the person in the booth next to you. Say that you need help on a couple of the answers.
- Announce proudly that you're voting for Walter Mondale.
- Before you turn in your ballot, ask, "So what's in it for me?"
- Tailgate outside your nearest polling station. Be sure to have a grill, drinks and plenty of body paint.

EDITORIALS

Choose America's 43rd president wisely ...

Vote for Al Gore

Democrats, Republicans, independent voters and American citizens concerned with the future of the nation: Today, you must unite. Today, the nation calls upon you to step forward and exercise your constitutional right to preserve the dignity of your country. Today, you must help Albert Gore Jr. secure the presidency.

The president of the United States of America holds supreme world power. The leader of the free world must not shrink away from loaded interrogation or hide behind skillfully crafted statements of vague generalization. This leader must speak articulately, intelligently, knowledgeably and confidently about powerful issues. Moreover, a righteous president requires experience, understanding of the issues and the drive to get things done once and for all.

This election, the closest since Kennedy vs. Nixon, will determine the future of the country far beyond the next presidential term. Therefore, look beyond party affiliations today; such labels hinder our vision. Realize your vote's impact. Vote to protect a woman's choice and to erase unfair earnings gaps. Vote to invest in the improvement of all schools, the hiring of teachers and reduction of class sizes, for updating technology in classrooms. Vote for child safety locks on guns. Vote to preserve the longest-running economic expansion in U.S. history. Take a moment to consider how much you know about George W. Bush's record and composure under pressure in threatening national circumstances.

Then consider Al Gore's 26 years of solid, respectable experience in Congress, the Senate and the White House, and follow your intuition.

True, the flaws of all candidates come flying to the forefront during along the campaign trail. The worst takes what he's doing; he has worked his way up the political ladder to get to this point. His success thus far suggests a future with many more victories. Bush has come across as suspiciously unknowledgeable about the issues. His future remains shadowy.

Al Gore
The best candidate

When you vote today, consider that Gore never offers the weak validation of "I'm a leader" for the reason people ought to choose him. His credentials speak for themselves. Think about the type of country in which you want to live, the environment in which you feel secure. Think about it, and then vote Gore-Lieberman.

Iowa deserves firm representation in Congress ...

Support Bob Simpson

With such issues as education, gay and lesbian rights, and abortion on the table, this year's congressional elections are extremely important. With his liberal stance on these issues, the Democratic candidate, Bob Simpson, is Iowa's 1st District's best choice for Congress in 2000.

Simpson's No. 1 priority is education. In Iowa, education should be the most important issue, because Iowa has a long history of educational excellence. First of all, Simpson wishes to make tuition expenses a tax deduction. Second, he supports pay raises for teachers. Although most teachers are not in it for the money, pay raises are an excellent way to attract talent. Most important, Simpson completely opposes school-voucher schemes. Although it may seem tempting to send our children to private schools at the government's expense, vouchers are actually an attempt by conservatives to subsidize religious schools in an effort to mix church and state. Is it not a better idea to use that money to improve our public schools?

Simpson also supports a woman's right to govern her own body. He wants women to have access to safe and legal abortions. The importance of safety cannot be overstated. If abortions were made illegal, it would force women to have them illegally, which puts the woman's life at risk. Our elected officials should protect our rights, not seize them from us.

Simpson's stand on civil liberties is also commendable. He supports an amendment to the Iowa Constitution prohibiting discrimination in all forms. It is high time for the government to step in to protect gays and lesbians who have been persecuted for decades. Whether homosexuality is right or wrong is not the issue. What is the issue is that it is wrong to discriminate against anyone for any reason. To deny people their basic civil and human rights is criminal and should not be tolerated anymore. This year's election could be one of the most important in a long time. Religious freedom, reproductive rights and basic civil liberties all hang in the balance. So many politicians these days assume a morally superior position and try to legislate their own views onto everyone else. Instead of standing on a pedestal of righteousness and casting scorn and shame while slowly stealing our freedom, Simpson has taken a strong constitutional stand to protect our rights. This pro-freedom stance, along with his dedication to strengthening our educational system, makes Bob Simpson the best candidate for 2000.

Bob Simpson
A voice for Iowans

Iowa City needs a bigger jail

All of the measures suggested by Carol deProse — home monitoring, probation, treatment, fines instead of jail time, etc. — have already been maximized. The jail is reserved for repeat or dangerous offenders. Charles deProse seems to assume that there are innocent or harmless persons housed at the jail. In fact, the jail is full of very mean and harmful individuals, will we be safer if they are housed in schools or treatment centers?

are running for president what I care about but also makes it clear to any candidate running for any public office — local, state or federal — what I care about. If Nader loses the election, at least those in government will know that a large number of people want what Nader is pushing for, and they'll remember that the next time they try to get elected. So voting for Nader is something I can feel comfortable with because I know that it is not a wasted vote.

A vote for Nader is exactly what it is: a vote for Nader. If Al Gore can't embrace some of Nader's ideals, he doesn't deserve my vote.

Neil Stone
UI junior

A vote for Nader is not a vote for Bush

I want to talk about something that I am tired of hearing — that a vote for Ralph Nader is a vote for Bush. This statement holds absolutely no truth, except maybe for Democrats who are too weak to vote on their principals. To them I say, yes, Nader is taking votes away from Gore, and it's because Gore is too conservative and stinks more like a Republican every day. But voting for him certainly is not a vote for Bush. If either Bush or Gore were willing to address more issues that mattered to me, I might vote for one of them. Nader is willing to address the issues that matter to me, and a vote for him not only tells other candidates who

Expand the library

Everyone who visits the Public Library recognizes that something must be done about the inadequate space and overall condition of the facility. There is no disputing this.

There seems to be no opposition to the library itself, rather differing opinions about the solution. The Library Board — along with library staff, users and City Council and staff, has studied dozens of ideas and determined that this is the best alternative.

The branch library issue will be addressed — but by necessity not until the space crunch at the main library is resolved. Given duplication of operating expenses, experience of other libraries with branches and advice of library consultants, a branch is not practical right now.

Cost comparisons to schools/homes are not appropriate. This project is at the average cost nationally for library construction. The idea that infrastructure costs could be reduced because of the eventual demise of books is far-fetched. According to a recent national survey, 75 percent of Internet users also use libraries to access books and "traditional" information sources. There is no evidence that this will change in the foreseeable future.

Please vote yes for the future of our Iowa City Public Library. For more information, visit www.yeslibrary.org.

Vote for Al Gore

I am voting for Al Gore because I like what Ralph Nader says. The Oct. 26 newspapers ran headlines on new evidence that we humans are causing global warming. Ralph Nader has been warning of global warming for years, and so has Al Gore. Al Gore has a specific global-warming plan that will direct tax policy and research and development toward more wind power, more alternative fuel for cars and power plants and more solar power.

Under Al Gore's leadership, Iowa would have more wind machines and more jobs servicing them in our rural areas. We would be harvesting crops for fuel and making switchgrass a new crop for our farmers. Ralph Nader would agree with that policy but he can't win the election. Ralph Nader could, however, take the election away from Al Gore and hand it to George W. Bush.

Bush actually ridiculed solar power in a speech after the new global-warming report came out. He is either too uneducated or too much in the pockets of the oil companies to realize the impending disaster of global warming. If you agree with Ralph Nader on global warming, please vote for Al Gore.

Vote Bush for president

I am an active voter writing in support of George W. Bush's campaign for president of the United States. He is a man uniquely qualified to serve in the White House. He has displayed insight and leadership in proposing reforms that will bring higher standards and accountability to our schools, keep the federal budget balanced, eliminate the marriage penalty on taxpayers, assist every working family in America to acquire health insurance, and preserve and protect Social Security for our current and future retirees.

I encourage other voters to support George W. Bush and to help him to work to make our country truly prosperous. He is working to make sure the American dream touches every willing heart. Please learn more about his vision for America at www.georgewbush.com. Make sure you vote for George W. Bush for president on Nov. 7.

Vote Neuzil for County Board of Supervisors

Terrence Neuzil is a candidate for the Johnson County Board of Supervisors, and he should get one of your votes in the Nov. 7 general election. I work in public safety and have seen the challenges new growth and development are bringing to our county. I believe Terrence will provide the resources to assist county departments. He has already addressed the need to work with the Secondary Roads Department and developers to design subdivisions that decrease emergency response times. He will also work to see roads engineered safely and correctly. Terrence is in full support of prevention methods supported by our county attorney and the Department of Human Services to reduce the amount of crime among young people. He also will promote more citizen and neighborhood involvement, and he wants to find ways to increase intergovernmental communication to keep county department costs down. Terrence has supported young disadvantaged kids as a board member and past chair of Maximize Your Employment Potential, a Johnson County United Way agency. He is a member of the Johnson County SAFE Kids Coalition and has served on a special Iowa City City Council Beyond 2000 Task Force on public safety. He has the knowledge and experience to help our county address public-safety issues.

Vote YES to stop the First Ave. Extension

Those who advocate extending First Avenue say it will reduce traffic on Dodge. Then why is the city planning a $6.5 million widening of that road?

The city engineer stood before council last spring and said it would cost $2.4 million to $3.1 million to widen First Avenue south of Rochester.

Taxpayers be warned: You are being set-up for millions of dollars of future road construction. I live on the West Side, on Sunset Street by Benton. This issue involves all Iowa City citizens. Stop developer welfare: Vote YES to stop the First Avenue extension.

Shrubbing towards America

And then the Big Day finally arrived ...

... And the citizens were so, so excited that, as they lined up to vote for the Shrub or for the Bore, they all had to wear bibs to contain the drool of their enthusiasm.

Well, OK, so maybe not. Except for the part about the bibs on the Shrublets.

It's been a curious campaign. George W. Gore is running as a member of the administration that has presided over the most successful economic surge in U.S. history, and he is running against the most bumbling, oaf-like candidate since Michael Dukakis — the same Dukakis who once clambered onto a tank and donned an Army helmet that came down to his chin, all for a photo op. Or photo oop, as it quickly became known.

And yet Gore cannot put the Shrub away. That speaks volumes. This election should have been a cakewalk for Gore — his Shrubness can't even ... speak English. In the 11 counties in Iowa that have passed English-only laws, he'd be verboten. Demonstrating his intelligence over and over and over, he massacres the language with his "Families is" and "Children is" and "I knowed a man." It's as if he's taking an Uzi to verbs and saying, Death to conjugation.

Or maybe he thinks conjugation is immoral.

In all fairness to the Shrub, his father didn't seem to have all that good of a grasp of English or ideas, either. In a speech once, President Bush moved the date of the Dec. 7 Pearl Harbor attack to Sept.

7, stunning a convention hall full of World War II vets. President Bush was, of course, a World War II vet himself.

And President Bush, slackjawing yet another hall of vets, said he and President Reagan had had sex together. Linguists are still trying to decode what he actually meant to say.

It's apparently genetic in his Shrubness' family that, despite the brush with a Yale education, the mouths work faster than the minds.

Given the evidence so far, that doesn't take any quickness of tongue, really.

But enough of this dwelling on being able to speak your alleged native tongue. The Shrub is a doer, not a thinker. What would his Shrubness do as president?

Well, when he became the governor of Texas, the state had its largest surplus in its history. He promptly gave it all away in the form of tax cuts, 60 percent of which went to the wealthiest 1 percent of the population. Nothing went to education, health care or child care.

Sound familiar? That's because his Shrubness would like to do the same thing with the federal surplus.

It should sound especially familiar to UI students; Iowa once had a budget surplus. The Republican-dominated Legislature gave it away in tax cuts, and, voilà — now, UI students face a 9.9 percent tuition/fees hike.

And then there is the death penalty. It's not just that Texas has more or less automated executions under his Shrubness, giving rise to one of his nicknames: Governor Death.

There's the case of Karla Faye Tucker, who underwent a jail-house conversion to Christianity, according to the Shrub's fundamentalist Christian buddies who argued for sparing her life. His Shrubness didn't merely ignore their pleas — in an interview with a conservative journalist, he mocked her, imitating a woman's voice in high falsetto like guys do when they're being really, really clever. Please save me. Please save me. he fawned.

And then there's appellate court Judge Edith Jones, who almost made it to the Supreme Court under the Shrub's daddy. Clarence Thomas got the nomination instead. Jones is a right-winger who follows in the footsteps of Thomas and Antonin Scalia, and she would be on the short list should the "Twilight Zone" scenario of his Shrubness appointing anyone to the high court occur.

Jones made the news recently when she ruled that it's quite fine to execute a man whose attorney slept through most of his trial.

It was a Texas case, of course. So the Big Day is here. There's only one thing to remember: Just because the Shrub can't think doesn't mean that, well, you needn't.

IOWA BRIEF

Hawkeye tennis happy with showing

When the powers that be seeded the players for the women's tennis ITA Midwest Championships this weekend in Ann Arbor, Mich., they had done their research. The UI women's team found that fact out when their top singles player and doubles team ran into the tournament's No. 1 seeds in the quarterfinals.

Iowa sophomore Cassie Haas pounded her first three opponents in the opening rounds of the main draw of the tournament, but the Texas A&M transfer fell to the tournament's top seed, senior Michelle Dasso of Notre Dame, 6-4, 6-4.

The Hawkeyes' top doubles team also made a bid into the quarterfinals by winning its first two matches of the main draw, but the Hawk duo was ousted by another top seeded squad from Notre Dame, 8-2.

Despite the losses, Coach Paul Wardlaw was optimistic about his team's showing in the final tournament of the fall season.

"We had a great tournament," Wardlaw said. "You have to remember that these are all No. 1 players in this tournament. We had four singles players qualify for the main draw, and none of the other Big Ten teams qualified more than four."

The Daily Iowan

For the first time since 1983, Penn State is not headed for post-season play. The loss to Iowa moved the Nittany Lions' record to 4-6 and ensured that the best they can do is finish an even 6-6 — not good enough for a bowl-game invitation. It marks only the fifth time in Paterno's 35 years as head coach that his team will miss a bowl.

With construction underway to increase Beaver Stadium seating to more than 102,000, including dozens of expensive luxury boxes, the Nittany Lions are in the midst of one of their worst seasons under Paterno.

"The only way we can look at the rest of the season is that someone knocked us out of a bowl, so now it's our turn to knock someone else out of a bowl," said senior safety James Boyd.

A new tradition

Perhaps the Iowa football team has found a new Friday-night tradition.

The night before the Hawkeyes took the field against favored Penn State in State College, Pa., the team went to the movie Remember the Titans, an inspirational movie about a football team working through differences to come together and ultimately play as one unit.

Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said he was behind in his work and couldn't go, but after his team's success, said he'll make sure he gets to the theater to watch it.

Junior defensive back Matt Stockdale, who made his first start on defense this season against Penn State, said a night at the movies was a great idea.

"It was an awesome experience for the whole team to see it together. It kind of unified us

A season of ups and downs

■ The Iowa soccer team says it is not disappointed with its season overall.

By Laura Podolak
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa soccer team's season could be best explained as an outstanding roller-coaster ride.

The team hit heights of greatness, beating Wake Forest and going on a three-game winning streak to close out the Big Ten season.

But, as all roller coasters must do, it fell.

The Hawkeyes hit some devastating lows, losing to Ohio State on the road and falling out of the Big Ten Tournament in the first round.

Although the season didn't bring a Big Ten championship, or a bid to the NCAA tournament, for the most part the team summed up the 2000 season on good terms.

"I am not disappointed," junior Linzy Wolman said. "I am happy how we changed during the season. We worked through some difficulties and came out on top."

Many of the team members mentioned the last three games as the highlight of the season.

"Definitely the last three games of the Big Ten season was the most positive point, because we were playing the best," sophomore Sarah Lynch said.

The bitter ending of the season didn't only come with a 2-0 loss to Michigan in the first round of the Big Ten Tournament but during the bids for the NCAA Tournament. Iowa watched its preseason goal of an invitation go to 48 other teams.

It wasn't so much that the Hawkeyes expected to get in, but it was hard to watch which teams did get in.

"After seeing the selections, there was sort of a bitter taste," Iowa coach Wendy Logan said. "A game here or a game there, and we would still be in the NCAAs."

The Hawkeyes beat two of the four Big Ten teams who went in, Illinois and Wisconsin, and also Wake Forest. Penn State and Michigan also received bids coming out of the Big Ten Conference.

Logan said watching the selections and seeing three of the schools her team had defeated earlier in the year get in was difficult.

"It gave us a taste of how close we are," she said.

Although Iowa's season was cut shorter than it had hoped, there were many positive aspects to it.

Logan recognized seniors Kate Walse and Sarah Keifer, Lynch and junior Linzy Wolman as the four players who had the most notable seasons.

Walse leaves as Iowa's leading scorer and goes out on her best season ever as a Hawkeye. She finished the year ranked third in the Big Ten in scoring with 29 points and second in goals scored with 12.

Keifer also had a solid year. She finished second in the conference in assists, recording nine. This was the first year that she did not sustain some type of knee injury — so for her, the season was a success simply for finishing it in one piece.

"This was the best season so far," Keifer said. "It was nice to get to play the whole season."

Being a senior is a "unique feeling," she said. Every game, Keifer said, she just went out to play for herself and for the team.

As a team, the Hawkeyes ranked fifth in the Big Ten in scoring and first during conference play in scoring by period. Offense was their strong point. The players were experienced and talented — next season the tables will turn.

With Walse and Keifer graduating, the Hawkeyes lose their team captains and also two very talented offensive weapons. Almost all of

Mickelson's big year overshadowed by Tiger

■ Phil Mickelson's four Tour wins are still taking a back seat to Tiger Woods in the media.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

ATLANTA — The finest of his 17 career victories was barely one hour old when Phil Mickelson stared at the microphone inches from his chin, then glared at the person asking the question.

How satisfying is it to beat Tiger Woods?

Mickelson rolled his eyes and turned up his palms. "Do you want to rephrase that question?" he shot back tersely.

Winning is not enough, even four times in one year.

Mickelson's two-stroke victory over Woods in the Tour Championship culminated his best year since turning professional in 1992. He won four times, twice beating Woods down the stretch. He earned over $4.7 million and locked up second place on the money list.

He was by far the best player on the PGA Tour this year, with one exception.

"I know that Tiger had a great year," he said. "But to have the best year other than his meant a lot to me, too."

That's what this year came down to — Tiger, and everyone else.

The year is not over for Woods. He will defend his title in the World Golf Championships at Valderrama along the southern coast of Spain this week, a chance to become only the fourth player in PGA Tour history to win at least 10 times in one season.

If he fails?

"If I don't accomplish the 10 wins, then obviously that will be disappointing because I was close to doing it," said Woods, who has finished third and second the past two weeks. "But the fact that I won three majors in one year is not a bad thing, either."

Ed Reinke/Associated Press

Tiger Woods is still the subject of media attention, even when other golfers win.

Nor is the fact Mickelson won "only" four times. Ernie Els became the first player to finish runner-up in three consecutive majors, was twice a runner-up to Woods in regular tour events and won the International. Hal Sutton and Jesper Parnevik were two-time winners, despite fighting injuries half the season.

David Duval wondered why the media spent so much time knocking other players, "not based on poor play, but based on the exceptional play from someone else."

"That doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me," Duval said. "You should appreciate the talent of everybody, and then marvel at the talents of Tiger."

More than his four victories, Mickelson likely will be remembered in 2000 for stopping two Woods streaks — beating him in the Buick Invitational to end his string of six straight victories, and beating him Sunday at East Lake Golf Club to end a streak of 19 consecutive tournaments in which Woods led after three rounds and went on to win.

Miami snubbed by BCS

■ Despite being the only team to beat Florida State, the Hurricanes are still behind the Seminoles.

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

Miami may be ranked No. 2 in the media and coaches polls, but Florida State is second in the ratings that count most — the BCS standings.

The Seminoles, despite a 27-24 loss to the Hurricanes last month, were in second place behind Oklahoma in the Bowl Championship Series released Monday, a scant .39 points ahead of Miami.

The teams that finish 1-2 in the final BCS standings released Dec. 3 will play in a national title game in the Orange Bowl on Jan. 3. The standings are based on a formula that incorporates the AP poll plus the coaches' poll, eight computer rankings, schedule strength and number of losses.

Florida State (9-1) came out ahead of Miami (7-1) this week based on a stronger computer rating.

In the eight computer rankings used, the Seminoles (third last week) had an average rating of 2.14, while the Hurricanes (fifth last week) were at 3.57. On Saturday, Miami beat a then-second-place Virginia Tech 41-21; Florida State defeated a then-13th-place Clemson 54-7.

Next week, Miami could pull ahead with an impressive win against Pittsburgh (5-3). Florida State plays Wake Forest (1-8). But schedule strength could help Florida State in the end — the Seminoles close against Florida (8-1), fifth in the BCS standings, while Miami has games against Syracuse and Boston College.

Nebraska (8-1) is in fourth place this week.

Florida State coach Bobby Bowden, naturally, was thrilled with the new standings.

"It makes us very happy," he said. "We're apprehensive about the future, but it makes you feel like if you can win the rest of your games you've got a great shot of getting into the championship game."

Miami coach Butch Davis took the keep-winning, things-will-work-out approach.

"We told the kids winning is the only thing we have control over and we'll let the results speak for what needs to be spoken for," Davis said. "You just want to give yourself a chance to be in position to play for a national championship."

If Miami is upset, how about Washington? The Huskies (8-1) beat the Hurricanes 34-29 on Sept. 9 but are in sixth place.

POINTCOUNTERPOINT

Should Iowa State receive a bowl bid this season?

Any team that wins six games in a major conference will probably get to a bowl — that is just the way the bowl system is structured these days in the NCAA.

Iowa State will benefit from a bowl system that rewards any team with a trip to some exotic location (such as Boise or Detroit) if the team finishes with a winning record.

The Cyclones have already done this and because they play in a major conference, they should get in.

With the addition of two new bowls this season, 44 Division I-A teams will play a post-season game. With two games left for most teams in college football, just over half of the 115 teams in Division I even have winning records. This includes small-conference powers such as Cincinnati, Central Florida and UAB, which would not be invited to a bowl anyway because of their weak schedules.

So by this rationale, a team from a conference that sports two top-10 teams and still has a winning record should be a shoo-in for a late December game.

Even though Iowa State has only beaten one team with a winning record, any team with seven wins in the Big 12 deserves to get one of the many bowl bids available.

— by Mike Kelly

If the Iowa State Cyclones make a bowl this year, they will be one of the worst college football teams playing in a bowl game ever. Even that they are considered for a bowl game is a travesty.

First of all, the 'Clones have beaten only one team with a winning record — Ohio U. It's 5-4 and plays in the Mid-American Conference. Other than Ohio, the combined record of teams the Cyclones have beaten is 12-39. North Iowa Area Community College could go 6-3 with that schedule.

As if their playing nobodies isn't bad enough, let's take a look at what happens when they play good teams. Against ranked opponents Nebraska, Texas A&M and Kansas State, the Cyclones have lost by a combined score of 133-44. Iowa State is a case of a team that has mediocre talent, that plays an incredibly easy schedule, and gets their butts kicked by good teams.

Should they be rewarded with the school's first bowl berth since 1980?

No. Even if they win their last two games against Colorado and Kansas, they still will have finished the season without beating a team with a winning record. The only post-season appearance the Cyclones are going to make this year is the westillsuck.com bowl.

St. Louis Rams quarterback Trent Green, subbing for the injured Kurt Warner, threw for 431 yards in a loss to Carolina Sunday.

No depth equals no wins in the NFL

■ St. Louis is 1-2 with Trent Green filling in for the injured Kurt Warner.

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

Orlando Pace saw Marshall Faulk warming up before the Rams' game with Carolina. But when the St. Louis left tackle took the field, someone named Justin Watson was lined up behind him at running back and Faulk was in street clothes on the sideline.

"I didn't know he was going to be out until they announced the starting lineups," Pace said of Faulk after the Rams lost 27-24.

Even though Trent Green, subbing for the injured Kurt Warner, threw for 431 yards, St. Louis gained just 31 on the ground without the NFL's best rusher. It proved once again that in the salary cap era, when few teams have depth at many positions, the key to any team's season is keeping its most important players healthy.

The Rams are the perfect example. The defending Super Bowl champions were 7-0, when Warner broke the little finger on his throwing hand. They're 1-2 since, although Green has played well.

Faulk is considered the key to the NFL's most prolific offense ever, the likely league MVP before he started being bothered by the loose cartilage that required arthroscopic knee surgery Monday.

Now, the Rams will be without him as they enter the roughest stretch of their schedule — at the Giants (7-2), home to the Redskins (6-4) and home to the Saints (6-3), who now trail by just a game in the NFC West.

The injuries to Faulk and Warner, who is likely to miss two or three more games, weren't the only reason the Rams lost at home for the first time in 16 games. The injury to Jeff Wilkins, the kicker, may have hurt even more.

Pete Stoyanovich, signed to replace Wilkins, missed a 37-yard field goal attempt. He also missed from 51, while Carolina's Joe Nedney made all four of his kicks, including a 46-yard game-winner with 40 seconds left.

"We can't feel sorry for ourselves," Pace said.

No, they can't. Last year, the only major injury, to Green's knee in the preseason, proved to be the key to the Rams' Super Bowl season. Warner replaced him and won both regular-season and Super Bowl MVP awards.

Tennessee has been struggling with injuries all season, particularly at wide receiver, where Kevin Dyson has been lost for the season and Yancey Thigpen and Carl Pickens have combined to miss seven of 18 games and have just 15 catches between them.

But the Titans just seem to muddle through. They're 8-1, tied with the Raiders for the best record in the NFL. And while they don't win pretty, they win — 9-7 Sunday over Pittsburgh on Al Del Greco's 29-yard field goal with four seconds left.

Lions coach Ross resigns

■ Gary Moller will take over for Bobby Ross who quit after a tough loss to Miami Sunday.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Detroit Lions replaced a burned-out coach with one who wore out his welcome less than 70 miles away.

Bobby Ross, mentally and physically drained after 3 1/2 years, resigned Monday and was replaced by assistant coach Gary Moeller, who was fired as Michigan's coach in 1995 days after his arrest during a disturbance at a Detroit-area restaurant.

"I really think I can put less pressure on myself," Moeller said Monday after signing a three-year contract. "But I'm not sure, you know what I mean? You get into it, things start to tighten and the screws start to tighten. ..."

"This honeymoon is going to end tomorrow, probably in two or three hours. I think I can deal with that and deal thoroughly with it."

Ross' resignation is the third coaching change in the NFL this season, but it's the first with a team that is having a relatively successful season.

The Lions are 5-4 and have a chance to earn a playoff berth.

Two weeks ago, Arizona fired Vince Tobin and replaced him with Dave McGinnis.

On Sept. 25, Bruce Coslet resigned in Cincinnati and was replaced by Dick LeBeau.

Ross has one year remaining on his five-year contract with the Lions. Vice president Chuck Schmidt said details of the contract buyout have not been determined.

Schmidt said Ross had thought about resigning before Monday.

"This isn't the only time he felt this way," Schmidt said. "He doesn't get too high, but he gets down pretty low."

"I can't say I talked him out of it before, but has he thought about this? Sure."

In his fourth year with the Lions, Ross compiled a 27-30 regular-season record and an 0-2 mark from playoff appearances in 1997 and last season.

The 63-year-old Ross, who did not attend the news conference, submitted a letter of resignation to owner William Clay Ford.

War of words in Buffalo

■ Rob Johnson says he is "ticked off" about an article where teammates question his character.

By John Wawrow
Associated Press

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Long-standing tension between Buffalo Bills quarterbacks Doug Flutie and Rob Johnson boiled over Monday. At issue: comments in Sports Illustrated.

Angry that his character was questioned, Johnson accused Flutie of being the source behind unattributed comments published in the magazine last week.

"I was pretty ticked off, oh yeah," Johnson told reporters outside the Bills' training facility. "It's not a performance thing at all, it was a character thing. And that's what really bugged me — that it came from a teammate that wouldn't put his name to it. It's, I mean, one of the worst things that I've ever seen."

Flutie acknowledged being interviewed for the article, but added: "I said absolutely nothing about Rob. I said nothing derogatory towards Rob. And that's that."

At issue are comments attributed to two unidentified Bills offensive players.

One player is quoted as saying: "All Doug thinks about is helping the team win and how he can do that. Rob seems distracted by things, like wanting everyone to like him."

Another player is quoted as saying: "(Johnson) would rather get pummeled by four guys than throw the ball away."

Johnson said he angrily confronted Flutie regarding the comments and that Flutie told him he never mentioned Johnson's name, but admitted making references to a quarterback's rating.

Asked about the relationship he has with Johnson, Flutie replied: "We have a working relationship and that's the way it's always been."

Tensions between the two have been high since they joined the Bills before the 1998 season, centering on their roles as starter and backup.

Johnson, who began the season as the starter, has been out since separating his right shoulder on Oct. 15. He began throwing in practice last week and said he's not sure if he'll be healthy enough to play when the Bills host Chicago on Sunday.

Flutie, 2-1 since taking over, maintains he's merely filling in until Johnson is healthy.

Asked what will determine Johnson's status, coach Wade Phillips said: "Obviously, his health is the No. 1 thing. There's no other factor."

Asked if that means Johnson will start when he's healthy, Phillips replied: "I didn't say that. You didn't hear me say that. ... I said Rob is going to play when he comes back."

Phillips then referred to Flutie, saying: "I'm not going to downgrade the quarterback I have and say, 'Well, this guy's coming back and you're not going to play anymore.' I'm going to put the quarterback I have on a pedestal and say, 'Hey, we're going to win with this guy right here.'" all more. Maybe that was the trick," he said, laughing. "Maybe we should go to Friday night cinemas every time before the game."

Seniors excel

Ferentz wanted to award a game ball to each senior following Iowa's 26-23 double-overtime win, the first overtime game in Iowa history. He continues to point out the determination that they play with every week, despite the disappointment of ending their careers minus a winning record and bowl berth.

Two seniors that continue to excel are Kevin Kasper and Jason Baker. After breaking Keith Chappelle's 1980 record for most single-season receptions with 65 on Oct. 28, Kasper followed up that performance with a six-reception, 96-yard afternoon. His six catches increased his career total to 146, tying him with Danan Hughes and Ronnie Harmon for most career receptions in Iowa history.

Baker entered the Penn State contest averaging almost 43 yards a punt, third in the Big Ten. He legged it out once again Saturday afternoon, averaging slightly more than 50 yards a punt and twice pinning the Nittany Lions inside their own 20-yard line. Penn State started only one drive outside its own 30-yard line, and that came off an interception.

"I think Jason Baker was just outstanding," Ferentz said. "What a tremendous job he did all day long."

Bob comes home

Freshman Bob Sanders hails from Erie, Pa., and he was excited about returning to his home state. Against Wisconsin on Oct. 28, Sanders recorded a game-high 16 tackles in his first start. Nittany Lion coach Joe Paterno singled Sanders out as a key man on Iowa's defense in the days leading up to the Nov. 4 contest.

Penn State didn't recruit Sanders. He said the school didn't even invite him on a visit. With his family in the stands, Sanders responded with eight tackles.

"A lot of pressure was on me. I had to come out and play hard," he said. "A lot of guys came up to me and said 'Welcome home,' but I was like 'Yeah, I'm back home, but I am going back to my real home with a win.'"

Iowa soccer loses five

the graduating class plays on the offensive side of the ball.

Key forwards Jenny Sturm and Shelly Batra graduate from the front line, as does mid-fielder Marcy Danaher.

Logan will try to fill these vacancies through recruiting and hard work during the off-season, she said.

The Hawkeyes defense, on the other hand, will no longer be able to use the excuse of inexperience and youth. Goal keeper Liz Hendle had a solid year, finishing second in the conference in saves with 134.

The back defensive line also saw some considerable time. This season gave needed experience to sophomores Suzanne Rivers and Jamie Jorgensen and juniors Michelle Mobily and Stephanie Lynch.

Next season, the defense will be looked upon for leadership and experience as a new offense takes hold.

Offensive returnees Linzy Wolman and Sarah Lynch are optimistic about next season. Both said next year could be as successful as, if not more successful than, this year because of the added time to learn Logan's system of coaching and new offensive formation.

Sarah Lynch said the most important aspect for the team to overcome is finding new leaders on the team.

"People need to step up into their (Walse and Keifer) positions," she said. "They need to step up to the next level."

Although losing Walse, Keifer and other significant seniors will hurt Iowa, Logan hopes to use the upcoming off-season as a time to concentrate on player development.

"I am a big believer in the off-season," she said. "The players will understand the importance of this time for player development."

Logan said that during the spring, the Hawks will look to schedule some difficult teams to see where they stand. The goal of her program is to be among the top three in the Big Ten and top 20 in the nation, she said. With committed players, she believes they have the ability to reach those goals.

For now, the Hawkeyes approach the off-season, a time out of the spotlight, a time for concentrating on developing the program they hope to become.

Frankly, my dear, music supporters give a damn

■ Messenger Records' tour will provide a venue for local bands.

By Shawn Sebastian
The Daily Iowan

Who gives a damn about local music anyway? The "No One Gives a Damn About Your Band" tour, that's who.

The tour, organized by Messenger Records in association with MP3 player MusicMatch.com and online resource site for musicians StarPolish.com, will bring a concert to Iowa City, but Iowa City will provide the music for the concert with local bands such as the Bassturd, Liberty Leg, Garland Briggs and Naked Hasselhoff.

Messenger Records provides information about and opportunities for local bands to expand their fan base and possibly score a record deal.

The idea for the tour originated in the dorm room of Brandon Kessler, the head of Messenger Records, when he noticed how many talented local bands toiled in obscurity for years without getting a break.

"In the music industry today, about four or five companies control 90 percent of the music," Kessler said. "Most of those big record companies just brush people off, so it's easy for a local struggling band to think that no one gives a damn about it. We wanted to show those acts how they can help themselves in order to get ahead."

The 30-city tour consists of three main components to reinvigorate the local music scene at college towns across the country. The first event in Iowa City will be an open forum with music industry professionals at 6 p.m. on KRUI. Experts will give advice to aspiring bands on how to get distribution, how to utilize online resources and how to turn their fan base into a grass-roots marketing force.

"One of the biggest misconceptions that musicians have is that all they have to do is play their music," Kessler said. "The fact is, music is a business, and bands have the responsibility not only to play but also to promote."

Jason Gorski, a UI freshman and member of a small rock group out of Rockford, Ill., SpoonfulJC, is planning on listening to the radio show to get some ideas for how to promote his band.

"I'd like to hear what kinds of tips they have," he said. "There are a lot of acts out there that don't get discovered, not because of lack of talent, but just because they don't know what to do."

After the radio program, Messenger Records heads to Gabe's for the main event of the tour: the concert. The concert will give local bands more exposure and provide an opportunity for students to hear the talent that has been working right under their noses.

Dan Butler (the Bassturd) will play at the "No One Gives a Damn About Your Band" tour. "There is a huge music scene in Iowa City that not many people know about," he said. Tonight's tour will highlight these bands.

the concert because he says that many of the bands in Iowa City don't have many chances or places to play their music.

"A lot of the clubs around here already have their own niches," Butler said. For example, the Green Room mainly plays jazz and blues, the Q Bar has a lot of reggae acts, and the Mill tends to play folk.

"There are only a few places where a rock band can play," Butler said. "Local acts tend to get shuffled off to the side a lot in favor of nationally recognized acts."

The third component of the tour is a possible demo deal for a local band. Messenger Records encourages all local acts (whether or not they are playing in the tour) to submit their demo tapes to the record company. They will include the best acts on a compilation CD and those chosen will receive a cash prize that can be used to produce a high-quality representation of their music.

As if a radio show, a concert, and the opportunity to win money wasn't enough, Messenger Records will also be giving away free T-shirts, CDs and stickers to anyone who attends the concert.

Most of those big record companies just brush people off, so it's easy for a local struggling band to think that no one gives a damn about it.

— Brandon Kessler
head of Messenger Records

Kessler and Messenger Records go to such lengths because they realize the importance of supporting local music.

"Without people supporting their local music scenes across the country, there would be no national music scene," he said. "If that happens, we all lose."

So although the name of the tour is "No One Gives a Damn About Your Band," it is clear from all its efforts to mobilize and educate local acts that Messenger Records certainly does give a damn.

Arizona edges Duke as preseason basketball No. 1

Arizona, with all five starters back from a team that was a top seed in the NCAA Tournament, edged Duke on Monday as the No. 1 team in the Associated Press college basketball poll.

The Wildcats, who were the preseason No. 1 in 1997 after they won the national championship, had a sizable lead in first-place votes from the national media panel but finished with just four more points than the Blue Devils.

"This one has fewer question marks than probably any team that we've had," Arizona coach Lute Olson said of the group that features the sophomore backcourt of Jason Gardner and Gilbert Arenas and junior forwards Richard Jefferson and Michael Wright.

Senior center Loren Woods, who missed the end of last season with a back injury, has been impressive returning from off-season surgery.

"We've got everything," Gardner said. "We've got an inside game. We've got an outside game. We've got quickness. We've got strength. It's going to be hard for anybody to match up with us."

Arizona, which finished 25-7 last season and lost to Wisconsin in the second round of the NCAA tournament, had 37 first-place votes and 1,753 points.

Duke, which has four starters back from the team that was No. 1 in the final poll and lost in the round of 16, was first on 29 ballots, and its 1,749 points were 260 more than defending national champion Michigan State.

The Spartans, who lost three starters from the team that won it all, received five first-place votes and was just two points in front of Stanford.

Maryland received the other first-place vote and was followed in the Top Ten by North Carolina, Kansas, Illinois, Tennessee and Seton Hall.

Florida, which lost to Michigan State in the championship game, was 11th, followed by No. 12 Kentucky, No. 13 Utah, No. 14 Connecticut, and Arkansas and Notre Dame, which tied for 15th.

UCLA was 17th, followed by Cincinnati, Wisconsin, Wake Forest, DePaul, Oklahoma, Southern California, Virginia and Iowa State.

The big conferences dominated the voting with eight leagues supplying all 25 teams.

Six conferences had at least three teams each with the Atlantic Coast Conference's five — Duke, Maryland, North Carolina, Wake Forest and Virginia — leading the way.

Last year's preseason No. 1 was Connecticut, while Michigan State was third in the opening poll. The only teams to be ranked in the Top 10 all last season were Arizona, which got as high as No. 2, and Cincinnati, which was No. 1 for 12 weeks.

Four of the schools in this year's poll weren't ranked at any point last season.

Arkansas and Wisconsin were both in the Top 25 during the 1998-99 season, while Virginia was last ranked on Dec. 2, 1996.

Notre Dame was out of the rankings the longest. The last time the Fighting Irish were in the Top 25 was the first regular-season poll of 1989-90.

Prosecutors must say why they exclude blacks from Carruth jury

■ A judge ruled the prosecutors must say why they excused a black man from the jury.

By Paul Nowell
Associated Press

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — A judge ruled Monday that prosecutors in the Rae Carruth murder trial must explain why they are excluding blacks as jurors.

"The court wants rebuttal evidence from the state," Superior Court Judge Charles Lamm said after defense attorney David Rudolf renewed his claim that the jury selection process has been biased against blacks, particularly black men.

Rudolf objected after lead prosecutor Gentry Caudill used the state's 12th pre-emptory challenge to excuse a middle-aged black man who works as a detention officer in the Mecklenburg County Jail.

No new jury members were selected Monday. So far, 11 jurors have been selected; one more juror and four alternates must be seated before testimony can begin.

Carruth, 26, a former wide receiver for the Carolina Panthers, is charged with first-degree murder in the death of Cherica Adams, 24. She was eight months pregnant with his child when she was shot Nov. 16 as she sat in her car. She died a month later, but the baby boy, named Chancellor, survived.

If convicted, Carruth, who is charged with masterminding a plot to kill Adams, faces life in prison or the death penalty.

Rudolf said prosecutors have challenged eight of 11 blacks who said they could impose the death penalty. The eight includes all four of the black men who said they could impose the death penalty, he said.

Of the 11 jurors chosen, eight are white and three are black — all women. Seven jury members are men, and four are women.

Lamm recessed court until Tuesday to give prosecutors time to respond to his order. He wants them to give him their reasons, other than race and gender, for striking the prospective jurors who are black.

Rudolf said he wanted to question the last juror who was dismissed Monday, saying he might have been satisfied with him even though the man told Caudill he had contact with Carruth and three other co-defendants in the course of his duties at the jail.

"I didn't see any reason why he couldn't be fair," Rudolf said. "He hadn't formed an opinion."

In another development,

Rudolf complained to Lamm about recent news leaks that he claims could prevent Carruth from getting a fair trial.

Over the weekend, The Charlotte Observer ran two stories based on transcripts that had not previously been made public. The first report, which appeared in Saturday's editions, included the complete 12-minute call made Nov. 16 by Carruth's mortally wounded girlfriend.

During the call, Adams told emergency dispatchers Carruth was at the scene when she was shot and drove away moments later.

Carruth maintains he was miles away when she was shot. On Sunday, the Observer reported that Carruth told a family friend he didn't kill Adams but also thought about having the woman attacked early in her pregnancy.

The friend, Wendy Lovette Cole, drove the car in which Carruth left Charlotte after learning that Adams died Dec. 14 of gunshot wounds. Carruth was discovered the next day in the trunk of Cole's car, which was parked outside a Wildersville, Tenn., motel.

Cole spoke to Charlotte-Mecklenburg police investigators Jan. 12. The Observer said it obtained a copy of the 79-page transcript.
