Bush, Gore camps gird for court battle

■ As manual recounts begin, the two campaigns marshal their legal forces for the Battle of Florida.

By Ron Fournier
 Associated Press

The legal skirmishing quickened in the overtime race for the White House, as Al Gore's lawyers argued Sunday night that painstaking election recounts have been allowed "since our nation's founding." Republicans said the practice exposes decisive Florida to political "mischief" and human error in Democratic-controlled counties.

Updated voting figures in Florida gave Republican George W. Bush a 288-vote margin out of some 6 million votes cast, with recounts under way in four counties. The vice president leads in the nationwide popular vote by slightly more than 200,000, but the Electoral College tally is so close that whoever takes Florida almost certainly will win the White House.

Both parties previewed their legal strategies for a federal court hearing today on Bush's request to block manual recounts. Top Bush adviser James A. Baker III, who described the five-day Florida standoff as "a black mark on our democracy and on our process," said the GOP legal team will argue that manual recounts in only four of Florida's 67 counties would constitute unequal treatment under the 14th Amendment.

Baker said Florida has no uniform standard for reviewing the ballots and suggested that Democrats who control the contested counties would play favorites. "It's all subjective, and therefore it presents terrible problems of human error and potential for mischief," he said. A statewide machine-operated recount has already narrowed Bush's lead.

Baker's rival, former Secretary of State Warren Christopher, portrayed vote recounts as a routine necessity of democracy. "If at the end of

UI profs weigh in on the presidential vote squabble

■ The professors say the debate on who will be the president should end in December.

By Erica Driskell
 The Daily Iowan

Legal disputes between Al Gore and George W. Bush are threatening to further delay the anxiously awaited verdict of who will become the nation's 43rd president, as the Bush campaign attempts to block a Democrat-requested manual recount in Florida today.

A federal judge in Miami will preside over a hearing today. Republicans are seeking to block a manual recount following Democrats' request for such recounts in four strongly Democratic Florida counties — Broward, Miami-Dade, Palm Beach and Volusia.

Meanwhile, Bush continues to consider asking for recounts in some smaller states, including Iowa, Oregon, New Mexico and Wisconsin. He could pull into the lead without Florida if he were to win three of the states.

As the battle rages on in the courts, people may perceive the lawsuits as a negative reflection on the candidates if the lawsuit is a protracted legal battle, said Arthur Miller, a UI political science professor, adding that taking the election to the courts is an acceptable way of settling controversies.

"There's nothing wrong with doing that, and usually that's an acceptable way to have things settled," he said. "The process is proceeding ahead, and everyone needs to step back and let it take place without the hyperbole."

Legal disputes must come to an end by Dec. 18, when the Electoral College votes, Miller said, although he foresees the controversy coming to an end on Nov. 17, when Florida will finish tabulating its absentee ballots, allowing the state to officially declare a winner.

"Both sides (Democratic and Republican parties) said they don't want to create a problem for Dec. 18," Miller said. "If the recount is not offset by the mail-in ballots, Gore will most likely concede at that point."

Tim Hagle, a UI associate political science professor, does not predict a concession on Gore's part; he foresees future legal situations delving into the Palm Beach County butterfly ballot. However, it is unlikely that a revote will occur because the intent of the ballot was not to deceive the voters, he said.

Bush, on the other hand, is likely to ask for recounts in smaller states with close outcomes such as Iowa and Wisconsin, Hagle said.

"The Bush people will look into smaller states as a fallback if they lose Florida," he said.

UI senior sees life at 24 frames per second

■ Greg Vass, who runs his own film company, has developed a passion for making movies.

By Jessi Todd
 The Daily Iowan

UI senior Greg Vass has learned so much about movies since owning and operating his own film-production company that his friends have to be coerced into watching a movie with him because he analyzes every aspect and spots every mistake.

Vass' passion for making movies began in eighth grade, when he and friend Mike Kromm, who now lives in Tallahassee, Fla., were tinkering with Vass' parents' home-video camera. They soon decided to produce a weekly news show for their junior high school in Rockford, Ill., Vass said.

Shortly after the show's debut, people began asking the pair to shoot birthday parties and weddings, inspiring the duo to form Vass Productions.

From there, Vass tried to learn as much as possible while experimenting with different techniques. In one wedding video, Vass attempted to capture the emotions and anxiety the family was experiencing by invading the dressing rooms of the bride and groom. One moment the groom would be laughing with his companions and then there was a shot of the bride checking herself out in the mirror with a smile of satisfaction.

"We had a lot of fun working together and then the money came, which made it even more fun," Kromm said.

As he received more equipment and investors throughout high school, Vass began shooting corporate training videos for companies all over the world.

"We'd have business meetings with presidents of companies, and they'd be asking us what to do," Vass said.

In 1997, Vass directed a series of videos for a St. Louis company called Bondex International. The videos had to be concise but still able to communicate the products in a way that would familiarize buyers and salesmen with them, said Robert Vogel, the vice president of sales and marketing of Bondex's paint products.

"He only had 10 days to complete this project, and he not only did it on time and under budget, but it turned out to be extremely professional but interesting," Vogel said.

Zach Boyden-Holmes/The Daily Iowan
 UI senior Greg Vass edits video in his home office Sunday night in Iowa City.

So satisfied with the job Vass did on the series, Vogel continues to refer him to other companies and hopes when he graduates that Vass will consider coming to work for the company full-time or at least part-time on future projects.

While he is currently concentrating on school, Vass, a communications major, is still shooting weddings and making videos for friends — even making an occasional corporate series with his camera and non-linear editing equipment.

"It's the greatest feeling in the world to see the reaction of people when they see the video you did of their wedding or kid's birthday party," he said.

"Creating emotions in people through my work is a really good feeling."

Vass plans to graduate in December 2001 and then enroll in an 18-month film school in Orlando, Fla.

"My dream is to direct feature films, but I could see myself doing commercials, sports or national news," he said.

The acclaimed film Shawshank Redemption, directed by Frank Darabont, was the fuel that initially sparked his love for feature films.

"I've seen Shawshank Redemption probably 50 times, and each time it emotes the

UI pulls recognition of Pi Kappa Alpha

■ The fraternity may also lose its house because of alcohol violations during Rush Week.

By Natasha Lambropoulos
 The Daily Iowan

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, 1032 N. Dubuque St., lost its UI recognition earlier this month for alleged violations of school alcohol-distribution policies during the Greek system's formal recruitment week in August.

While no longer considered a UI student group, Pi Kappa Alpha members still have to wait for word from the chapter's national headquarters to find out what will become of the fraternity and its privately owned house.

"When a chapter loses university recognition, that chapter loses its university housing benefits as well," said UI junior Jason Goslin, the Interfraternity Council president. "The national organization owns the house, and it is up to it to determine whether the members can continue to live in the house."

However, it is very seldom that Greek chapters who lose university recognition are approved to continue their charters, he said.

The charter is the official recognition of a fraternity by its national chapter. Pi Kappa Alpha International Fraternity representatives would not comment on the matter Sunday.

Phillip Jones, the UI vice president for Student Services, decided to revoke the fraternity's UI recognition for serving alcohol to prospective members in the chapter house, said Tom Baker, the UI assistant dean of students. He would not comment on how the UI became aware of the alleged misconduct.

Under UI recruitment policies, recognized student organizations may not serve alcohol to prospective members, Baker said. UI policies also state that alcohol is prohibited from all fraternities at the UI unless it is in the room of a member who is 21 or older and all others present in the room are 21 or older. Many students going through formal recruitment are incoming freshmen at the UI.

Allegations of alcohol disbursement to prospective members were placed against the

Getting high by staying dry on UI campus

■ A new non-alcoholic entertainment center is one of many goals for group of UI seniors.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

An unofficial UI student group, the United Voice for Alcohol Alternatives, wants to work with a local businesses to provide students with an alternative to alcohol through the creation of a bar-like environment.

The group, formed earlier this semester by UI seniors LaShelle Christensen, Chris Matthews and Dan Patterson, aims to combine with Planet X Family Fun Center, 115 Highway 1, to provide a center for recreation without alcohol and smoke, Christensen said. The organization is trying to accomplish its goal with Planet X, which may relocate to the second floor of the Old Capitol Town Center.

"We want to see people start to work together," she said. "People are just waiting for others to step forward."

The newly situated fun center would combine the entertainment it currently provides, including laser tag and miniature golf, with such additional attractions as a coffee shop and dance floor, Christensen said.

"We're entertaining the thought," said David Full, the owner of Planet X. "It would help the entire issue of downtown by giving students an excellent alternative."

Some projects that Iowa City and the UI have already launched are making the residence halls and Greek houses dry, questioning the legal age of entrance into bars and preventing bar specials that "will reduce but not remove the problem," according to a United Voices for Alcohol Alternatives petition.

Nov. 11 marked the organization's first attempt to chip away at the drinking problem, as Christensen posted a banner promoting drinking alternatives that stretched from the Pentacrest to the Pappajohn Business Building.

She created the banner late on Nov. 10 and into the wee hours of Nov. 11 with the help of Matthews.

The duo wrote on the banner the names of more than 450 UI students and Iowa City residents who pledged their support for the unofficial UI student group.

With the help of approximately 10 supporters, duct tape and some dowel rods, the Christensen and Matthews extended the banner along Clinton Street from Iowa Avenue to the parking garage entrance of the Pappajohn Building at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11.

One of the group's goals is to collect enough petitioned names to stretch the banner from the Pentacrest to the home of UI President Mary Sue Coleman, 102 Church St., Christensen said. The group's founders began sending out petitions through e-mails a month ago to everyone they knew, requesting that the e-mails be forwarded to the recipients' families, friends and co-workers.

"We aren't asking for them to partake in anything by petitioning," Patterson said. "We're just letting people know that the support is there to get the ball rolling on a lot of projects."

The group was not interested in conducting a rally but thought the banner would be a good way to make its cause more visible to the public, Christensen said.

"We're trying to get off the ground and get noticed," she said. "It's really important to get new voices involved."

Although United Voice for Alcohol Alternatives is not an official UI student group, it is looking into becoming one, Patterson said.

Experiencing the life of a local police officer

■ Area residents can learn what the job of a police officer is like through a local program.

By Tracy Nemitz
The Daily Iowan

Learning to collect evidence, prevent rape, and recognize the presence of gangs in a community will all be part of classes sponsored by local law-enforcement agencies this winter and spring.

Anyone over 18 may register for the Citizen's Police Program, which helps citizens gain a better understanding of what police officers do, said Lt. Ron Wenman of the Coralville Police Department.

"Not only do citizens get a better idea of what the police are doing, but officers get feedback from the citizens as well," he said.

The program, which will begin on Feb. 1, 2001, will meet once a week for a 12-week period at the Coralville Public Library, said Brad Allison, a crime-prevention officer with UI Public Safety.

Officers from the Coralville and Iowa City police, Public Safety and the Johnson County Sheriff's Office will teach the classes. They will cover a range of topics including defensive tactics, traffic enforcement with RADAR and domestic-violence issues, said Lt. Keith Slaughter of the Sheriff's Office.

In addition to classes, participants will have the opportunity to ride along with officers for an evening, Wenman said.

One of the highlights of the program will be when participants visit Iowa City police to spend time on the computerized firearms-training system, Wenman said. Through computerized scenarios, the system lets participants experience various situations a police officer might encounter. Armed with a simulated gun, people must distinguish whether situations warrant the use of the weapon.

"Many times people do not know what police officers do," Allison said. "This program gives people a real-life working idea of police work, rather than what is on TV."

After people complete the 12-week session, authorities hope that the participants will go out into the community and share what they have learned, Slaughter said.

The academy, which has existed for four years, has had approximately 100 participants, Wenman said.

"Participants have ranged from city councilors to students to homemakers," Allison said.

The academy, which accepts 25 people per session, will accept applications until Jan. 5, he said.

Applications can be picked up from the Iowa City or Coralville police, or from Public Safety, Allison said. The session costs $25 to cover materials and supplies.

"The program was very interesting and well-worth my time," said Coralville resident and program participant Tammy Osterhaus. "There was nothing I did not like about the program."

DES MOINES (AP) — Libraries around the state are trying to balance the prevention of obscene material on the Internet with First

Some libraries are installing computer filters that block everything from nude shots of Pamela Anderson Lee to information on breast cancer, alternative drug therapies and even some political candidates.

"No one short of a court authority can mandate a determination of obscenity," said Dale Ross, the chairman of the Intellectual Freedom Committee for the Iowa Library Association. "It's technically not legal for library officials to say it's obscene."

Library patrons viewing photos of scantily dressed people on the Internet can create a hostile environment that could result in sexual-harassment lawsuits, he said.

Notices posted at computer terminals in Ankeny's Kirkendall Public Library warn patrons they could be guilty of a serious misdemeanor for exhibiting obscene material.

The Fellowship offers myriad career opportunities; in fact, a Pulliam Fellow from our first class of 1974, Barbara Henry, now serves as president and publisher of The Indianapolis Star. Moreover, a new graduate of our year 2000 class has just been hired as a full-time staff reporter at The Indianapolis Star.

Now entering its 28th year, the 2001 Pulliam Journalism Fellowship helps build a bridge from the classroom to the newsroom. Fellows are assigned to The Indianapolis Star or The Arizona Republic in Phoenix for 10 weeks each summer as staff reporters. We award 20 fellowships annually. The stipend is $5,775.

Traditionally, our fellowships have been open only to graduating college seniors. In 2001, we will be expanding eligibility to include college sophomores and juniors as well as seniors pursuing a career in newspaper journalism. We will be accepting applications for our Summer 2001 program in September 2000.

Bloodhounds sniff out a crowd

■ The Philly-based Bloodhound Gang wows a crowd at the Union Bar with its zany fun.

By Anne Webbeking
The Daily Iowan

The Union Bar was packed Sunday night, as a pumped-up crowd kept noise levels high awaiting the Bloodhound Gang to take the stage.

Three brown monkeys with cream-colored stomachs and huge ears came out to the club, 121 E. College St., to see their favorite band, which they say is "off the wall." At the start of the show, the monkeys bodysurfed after the crowd started chanting "Bloodhound Gang." The five-member group took the stage and started off with the song "Mope" from its latest album, Hooray For Boobies. Lead singer Jimmy Pop, sporting a black coat and black baseball hat, screamed the lyrics of the song as the crowd went wild, yelling and jumping up and down.

The monkeys, Brad Kelly, 20, of Plover, Wis., and Cedar Rapdians Shannon Blazek and Mike Schulte, both 19, came to the concert dressed in their costumes, which are almost identical to the ones worn in the music video for "The Bad Touch," in hopes they could join the band on stage as they did in August when they saw the group in Des Moines.

The band's constant humor and crowd interaction are what the trio likes best.

"They're not out to impress anyone. They're just themselves," Blazek said.

UI freshman Ben Wise said he was looking forward to hearing the songs "You're Pretty When I'm Drunk" and "She Ain't Got No Legs."

"They've opened up a new door in the rap world. They provide comical lyrics while still using an innovative style of much," he said. "That, and they are really funny."

Matt Geist, 24, of Davenport has seen the band twice already and was very excited about seeing it a third time.

"If you don't like it when you get here, you'll like it when you leave," he said.

More than 700 people turned out for the show, which opened with Left Undone and Caviar, both of Chicago, said Anthony Crissie, the booking agent for the Union Bar.

"Ticket sales started out really hot, and we had a lot of last-minute ticket sales," he said.

Crissie wasn't surprised that the turnout was so good because the band is really big and gets frequent airplay on MTV.

"We wanted to do the show because it's a real show," he said. "It's more than a concert. They do a lot of crazy stuff."

'Carrot,' not stick for Calif. drug offenders

■ After California voters passed Prop. 36, the state must change course on its drug policy.

By Don Thompson
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — California, which jails more drug users per capita than any other state, now must quickly change course and implement the most ambitious drug-treatment program in U.S. history.

Last week's passage of Proposition 36, a sweeping initiative requiring treatment instead of imprisonment for an estimated 36,000 drug users each year, thrusts California into mostly uncharted territory.

But as counties rush to make the change by July 1, they can learn from San Francisco, which has bucked the state for years by diverting nonviolent drug offenders into treatment, and Arizona, where voters approved a similar initiative four years ago.

Arizona hands out movie and sporting-event tickets and holds picnics for drug offenders who complete treatment programs — anything to reward them for staying clean with the threat of jail no longer hanging over their heads.

"It's changed the whole way in which we kind of play the game," said Barbara Broderick, Arizona's state director of adult probation. "Now that you have this law, you really have to embrace it and figure out how to make an incentive-based program work without the hammer."

California's program likely will cost much more than the $120 million a year allocated by Proposition 36. But projections say much of the cost will be offset because treatment is cheaper than building and operating prisons.

CITY BRIEFS

DI staff receives awards

The 1999-00 staff of The Daily Iowan was awarded a national Pacemaker Award at the Associated Collegiate Press and College Media Adviser's 79th annual college media convention in Washington, D.C., Nov. 9 through Sunday. The Pacemaker recognizes general excellence and outstanding achievement in college journalism.

Associated Collegiate Press Director Tom Rolnicki called the award the Pulitzer Prize of college journalism. The DI was one of six newspapers in its four-year university daily broadsheet category to receive the recognition. The contest was judged by staff from the Washington Post. Laura Heinauer was the editor of the DI in 1999-2000; it is the first Pacemaker the DI has received.

Two other DI staff members brought home honors from the convention. In the Sports Photo of the Year category, Photo Editor Brett Roseman, a UI senior, received a third-place award for a photo of a Hawkeye wrestling match last season. DI Managing Editor Megan Manfull, also a UI senior, was awarded an Honorable Mention in the Sports Story of the Year contest for a profile on men's basketball coach Steve Alford.

Mugging reported near Benton Street

A man entered the Delimart, 206 E. Benton St., at 6:56 a.m. Sunday and reported that he had been the victim of a mugging.

The unidentified male called Iowa City police from the convenience store to report the incident, said police Lt. Matt Johnson.

The victim, who told police he was not from the area, said that as he was walking alone to a friend's house, where he was staying, he was accosted by two men. The unidentified assailants stole an undisclosed amount of money from him between 2:30 and 3 a.m. Sunday, according to police reports.

Police are currently looking for the two assailants, who the alleged victim described as young, black males. Police had no additional description of the alleged muggers, and Johnson would not disclose the amount of money or possessions the victim lost.

After the incident, the victim walked to the Delimart to telephone police, then waited there to give his statement.

The victim was unable to tell police the location of the robbery because he was visiting Iowa City and said he was not familiar with the area, Johnson said.

Barak holds little hope for peace on U.S. visit

■ The Israeli leader meets with President Clinton with low expectations of ending the Mideast violence.

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton made another appeal Sunday to end the violence in the Middle East, as he met at the White House with Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak three days after a visit with Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat.

Barak, whose trip was delayed after twice reversing his plane's course because of a hijacking crisis at home, has offered little hope the meeting could help to end the bloodshed, which has killed nearly 200 people in the past six weeks.

The Israeli leader, who arrived after nightfall at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland and went directly to the White House, was looking for Clinton to put heat on Arafat to make a public declaration that the Palestinians should not attack Israeli soldiers and civilians.

But Arafat was defiant at an Islamic summit conference in Qatar, where Saudi Arabia, considered moderate by the United States, joined in a call on Muslim nations to cut any ties with Israel.

Arafat said the Palestinians "are determined more than ever to continue their jihad and the resistance of the occupation."

The violence has shattered what remained of Clinton's hopes for a settlement before his term ends, in January.

Clinton had Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, Sandy Berger, his assistant for national security, and U.S. mediator Dennis B. Ross at his side in the Oval Office. Barak was assisted by close aides Gilad Sher and Danny Yatom, and Israeli ambassador David Ivry.

Clinton and Barak posed for pictures seated in front of a fireplace. They took no questions, and reporters were not permitted to attend the brief picture-taking session.

Arafat, who held discussions on Nov. 9 with the president, indicated afterward that he would consider another Middle East summit, with Clinton as host, provided it was well-prepared "to ensure its success." And that, the Palestinian leader said, meant on accord on both Jerusalem and refugees.

Barak has refused to turn over East Jerusalem to the Palestinians, but he offered them a larger role in running their daily affairs in Israel's declared capital. He has called a time-out in peacemaking until the violence ends.

Sunday's meeting was set for early afternoon but was pushed back into the evening because of the hijacking. A Russian airliner headed to Moscow on a domestic flight was seized by a Chechen man who surrendered after diverting the plane to Israel's southern desert.

Cole attackers tied to Islamic Jihad

■ A source says the bombing may have been controlled from the United Arab Emirates.

By Ahmed Al-Haj
Associated Press

ADEN, Yemen — Last month's deadly USS Cole attack was masterminded by an Arab man who telephoned the bombers from the United Arab Emirates, a source close to the investigation said Sunday.

A suspect now in detention in Yemen said the attackers received their instructions and finances from the Arab man, a veteran of the 1980s Afghan war against the Soviets, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity. He did not give the man's nationality.

The detained suspect admitted purchasing the attack boat used in the bombing in the Emirates, said the source. He also bought a video camera to record the attack, but he got nervous and left the city the day before the Oct. 12 boat bombing, the Yemeni source added.

The source did not say if the suspect met the mastermind while he was in the Emirates. He said the group worked in small cells of two or three people, and many suspects did not know each other.

Suicide bombers in a small, explosives-laden boat apparently approached the Cole while it was refueling in Aden harbor and detonated the explosives, ripping a 40-foot-by-40-foot hole in the steel hull. The blast killed 17 American sailors and injured 39.

On Sunday, the London-based Arabic-language newspaper Asharq Al-Awsat published a statement by Rifai Ahmed Taha, a former leader of the Egyptian Al-Gamma'al-Islamiya (Islamic Group), that said the boat used in the attack was locally made and powered by an engine cannibalized from a farm tractor.

Taha said the operation cost between $5,000 and $10,000.

The debris and the car which pulled the boat to the port were shipped Sunday to the United States for further forensic tests, a Yemeni official said.

Some 60 suspects remain behind bars after more than 20 were released, the official said on condition of anonymity. Police on Nov. 10 jailed an Islamic Jihad suspect they had been pursuing since Nov. 7. The suspect escaped from jail in 1993 after being convicted of blowing up two Aden hotels frequented by foreigners.

The Islamic Jihad was formed by Arab veterans of the Afghan war and is linked to Osama bin Laden, America's top terror suspect.

The Yemeni official said American investigators were allowed this week to interview witnesses and to show composite sketches to suspects and eyewitnesses.

Clinton finally goes to Vietnam

■ President Clinton will become the first U.S. president to visit Vietnam since the Vietnam War.

By Deb Riechmann
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — During the Vietnam War, a youthful Bill Clinton denounced the draft and avoided military service. Now, in the waning days of his presidency, he will become the first U.S. president to visit communist Vietnam since the end of a war that divided America.

As a college student, Clinton wrote a paper that called Selective Service "illegitimate." At age 54, the two-term president is playing conciliator, helping Vietnam further end its isolation and participate in the global economy.

"It's a step to heal wounds that have not healed within our country, remove rifts that still divide," said Douglas Eakeley, a classmate of Clinton's at Britain's Oxford University, where Clinton protested the war.

It was Eakeley who gave the president an English walking stick and cap at an Oxford party held to say goodbye to Clinton when he returned to Arkansas to answer the draft, or find a way around it. The stick and cap were gag gifts to help Clinton navigate the jungles of Vietnam, a country he finally will see this week.

Eakeley suggested that it is good that the United States is sending to Vietnam a leader who did not participate in a war in which 58,000 Americans and about 3 million Vietnamese died. "In some ways, it helps the reconciliation process," he said.

The president's three-day visit, which will begin Thursday, is largely symbolic.

It will involve talks about a trade agreement both governments still must approve, human rights and unfinished business from the war, which ended when communist forces captured the capital of South Vietnam on April 30, 1975. At that time, Clinton was teaching law at the University of Arkansas.

Nearly two decades later, as Clinton became president, America still had neither trade nor diplomatic relations with Vietnam. Under Clinton's watch, a trade embargo ended in 1994, diplomatic relations were restored in 1995, and the first postwar American ambassador — former POW Douglas "Pete" Peterson — set up residence in Hanoi.

In a Veteran's Day speech at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, the president said: "In our national memory, Vietnam was a war, but Vietnam is also a country, a country emerging from almost 50 years of conflict, upheaval and isolation, and turning its face to a very different world."

Hi Lisa,

This is a great question that affects a lot of women at the college level, whether they are freshmen or seniors. Although you shouldn't spend too much time obsessing about your diet, here are some simple things to remember when you sit down to a meal or grab a snack:

× Don't skip meals (including breakfast). Grab a granola bar, a container of yogurt, or a bagel if you don't have time to sit down and eat. Running on empty is bad for your metabolism and can adversely affect your ability to concentrate. In fact, eating five or six small meals (instead of two or three big ones) each day will increase your metabolism and help your body burn calories even if you're just sitting in class!

× Remember that fad diets don't work. Even if everyone in the dorm swears that the all-broccoli diet is the fast track to skinny thighs, remember that it's never a good idea to deprive your body of any food group. Eating in moderation is the key to a healthy diet.

× Do you suffer from bloating and cramping during your period? Sugar, alcohol, and caffeine have been shown to increase the severity of PMS and menstrual symptoms. To help you feel better during this time, make sure you drink plenty of water, snack on fruit, and eat nutritious foods. Another way to feel comfortable is to use Playtex tampons - they really are so comfortable you can't even feel them.

× A hamburger doesn't have to be a guilty pleasure. Red meat can be a healthy part of your diet as long as you don't eat it every day. Try turkey burgers or chicken tacos as an alternative.

× Try to have some low fat or skim milk once a day. Women are particularly in need of calcium during their college years to build bone mass and avoid osteoporosis (weak bones) later in life. If you don't want to drink a glass of milk, remember that yogurt or milk on your cereal counts as well.

× Always grab a piece of fruit or carrot stick when you're leaving the dining hall. Even if you don't want it right away, keep it in your room or backpack for a snack. Keep low-fat snacks like pretzels, graham crackers, trail mix, or raisins in your room for late night munchies so you won't be as likely to order pizza or raid the candy machine.

× Finally, there will be plenty of opportunities for late-night ice cream, between-class candy bars, and emergency fast food runs. You don't have to stay away from these things all the time, just listen to your body and keep your diet as balanced as possible.

UI senior 'survives' KRUI contest

■ Kenzie Soedt was named the winner by KRUI station listeners and fellow contestants.

By Leanna Brundrett
The Daily Iowan

As the KRUI ad said, "In the beginning, there were seven, and they appeared to be getting along." Then the fun began.

Seven UI students tried to last 48 hours in the KRUI station lounge over the weekend, competing in KRUI's "College Survivor Weekend." Listeners could follow the contest through periodic updates on the station, or by checking a Web cam on the station's Web site.

The weekend went well, said the KRUI marketing director, Brian Anesty. The station had a large response from listeners, who called into the station, checked its Web site, and came to the station to leave messages for contestants.

"I didn't think that this weekend was going to be as big as it was," Anesty said. "It's because it was run more on people-power than on money-power."

The weekend started out with seven strangers locked together in a 13-foot-by-13-foot lounge, but as the group got smaller, the students became closer, said sophomore Patrick Erdley.

Here are highlights from KRUI's College Survivor:

10 p.m. Nov. 10
Contestants gathered around a Double Dare-style Twister board for the first immunity challenge — a Twister tournament. Yams, jelly donuts, peanut butter and refried beans were placed on the circles to add to the challenge. The prize for winning the tournament was protection from being voted out of the station lounge in the first round of votes.

Although UI freshman Ramarti Amadeo Ottolina had never played Twister before, he won the first immunity challenge.

Midnight Nov. 10
Six hours into the 48-hour competition, UI junior Deanna Olsen was the first "College Survivor" to be voted out of the lounge.

"I was sort of expecting to be the first one to go," she said. "Everyone else acted really crazy, and I felt like I just didn't fit into the groove."

11 a.m. Nov. 11
UI senior Kenzie Soedt won the second immunity challenge, "Bobbing for Poop," in which each contestant stuck her or his head into a bowl of chocolate pudding, corn and Malt-o-Meal to find a miniature-sized Snickers bar.

Following the challenge, Amadeo Ottolina was voted out of the room.

"The only way I could have remained in the room longer was if I had won more immunity challenges," he said.

7 p.m. Nov. 11

UI sophomore Elaina Buzzell was the third person voted out after challenge No. 3: a trivia contest.

"As more and more people get voted off, it seems to be getting tougher and tougher to vote for people," Soedt said.

1 a.m. Sunday

Contestants were challenged to keep a straight face as KRUI staff member "Crazy Al" tried to make them laugh. Following the challenge, Erdley was the fourth one voted out. He said he was relieved to be blackballed because he wanted to go home, take a shower, and eat.

When reflecting on his "College Survivor" experience, Erdley said he learned that he is easy to get along with.

1 p.m. Sunday

As KRUI production staff member, John Bollwitt said,

"There are three survivors left, but like they say in Highlander, there can be only one."

The fifth contestant to go was UI sophomore Ryan Looyesen.

3 p.m. Sunday

The five survivors who had been voted off earlier in the weekend returned to hear the final pleas of finalists Johnson and Soedt. Their votes, along with those of 60 votes submitted via the KRUI Web site by listeners, were tallied to determine the KRUI survivor.

Soedt won and was awarded more than $800 in prizes, including a gift certificate to the Futon Shop, a guitar and a TV/VCR. It was an awesome weekend, she said.

"I feel very good to have won," Soedt said. "Now I can sell them to pay rent."

Federal Consumer Protection has confirmed the accuracy of the fuel saving claims in this advertisement.

Device May Increase Gas Mileage by 22%

BOSTON - National Fuelsaver Corp. of Boston has developed a low cost automotive accessory called the Platinum Gas Saver which is guaranteed to increase gas mileage by 22% while meeting all emission standards.

With a simple connection to a vacuum line, the Gas Saver adds microscopic quantities of platinum to the air-fuel mixture entering the engine.

Platinum has the unique ability to make non-burning fuel burn. With platinum in the flame zone, you increase the percentage of fuel burning in the engine from 68% of each gallon to 90% of each gallon, a 22% increase. Since unburnt fuel leaving an engine is pollution, this 22% of each gallon would normally burn when it reaches the platinum of the catalytic converter.

Unfortunately, the converter's platinum burns this fuel in the tail-pipe, where the heat and energy produced from burning this fuel cannot be harnessed to drive your vehicle.

But when the Gas Saver adds platinum to the air-fuel mixture, 22% more of each gallon burns inside the engine so that 22% fewer gallons are required to drive the same distance.

After studying this process for five years, the government concluded: "Independent testing shows greater fuel savings with the Gas Saver than the 22% claimed by the developer."

In addition to this government study, the Gas Saver has received patents for cleaning out carbon and raising octane, making premium fuel unnecessary for most vehicles.

Joel Robinson, the developer, commented: "We have sold over 400,000 Gas Savers. To our surprise, as many people buy the Gas Saver because it extends engine life (by cleaning out the abrasive carbon deposits) as buy it to increase gas mileage or raise octane."

For further information call: 1-800-LESS-GAS 1-800-537-7427

Government Produced Test Data

Satan goes soft in Little Nicky

Film: Little Nicky
Director: Steven Brill
Writers: Adam Sandler and Tim Herlihy
Starring: Adam Sandler, Patricia Arquette and Harvey Keitel
Length: 93 Minutes

Hollywood hasn't been very good to Satan this year. The re-release of the 1973 horror classic The Exorcist managed to possess a few audiences, but after box office flops such as End of Days and Lost Souls, one has to wonder: Doesn't anyone care about the Prince of Darkness anymore?

Adam Sandler helps the devil make a comeback in his new comedy Little Nicky, a movie that provides a few laughs but will disappoint Sandler fans expecting to see Happy Gilmore or Billy Madison.

After 10,000 years of rule, Satan (Harvey Keitel) is faced with the unenviable task of picking a successor. Should it be his devious son Adrian (Notting Hill's Rhys Ifans), his brutish son Cassius (Tom "Tiny" Lister), who plans to have torture going "24/7" if he is chosen, or Nicky (Sandler), his ignorant but sweet son with the annoying speech impediment?

Given these options, it's no surprise when Satan decides to keep the throne for himself, prompting Adrian and Cassius to burst through the fiery gates to start their own hell-on-earth in New York City. To ensure his father's reign, Nicky has to go to the Big Apple to find his brothers and return them to the underworld.

Sandler plays Nicky with a hunched back and a strained, raspy voice that is funny for about five minutes but gets increasingly obnoxious as the movie progresses. He has wisely surrounded himself with a great supporting cast, including Robert Smigel as the voice of Beefy, the talking bulldog who serves as Nicky's NYC tour guide, and Peter Dante and Jonathan Loughran as a pair of misguided metalheads who become Nicky's disciples.

The movie also benefits from a stream of inspired cameos featuring "Saturday Night Live" alums such as Dana Carvey, Jon Lovitz, Michael McKean and Kevin Nealon. Quentin Tarantino even enters the mix as a blind street preacher who manages to inflict great pain on himself whenever he sees Nicky.

Other funny appearances include Reese Witherspoon as an angel who talks like a Valley girl, and Rodney Dangerfield as Nicky's grandfather Lucifer. (Even as the founder of hell he can't seem to get any respect.)

Despite these performances, the problem with Little Nicky is that it just isn't all that funny. Aside from a handful of big laughs — most of which you've already seen in the previews — the movie plods along like a prolonged SNL skit.

Like Nicky, who forsakes his evil in the end to "release the good," Sandler seems to have gotten softer with his recent comedies. Where's the crass, vulgar comedian we used to know and love from his R-rated comedy albums? The sentimental Sandler we see at the movies these days may bring in more money at the box office, but he sure isn't bringing in as many laughs.

The world laughs at the U.S.'s inability to decide ...

The biggest joke in history

The eyes of the world are on America. And the laughter of the world is ringing in our ears.

On the morning of Nov. 8, America awoke in the expectation of knowing its next president. What we found was mass confusion, anger in the two political parties that lead our country and an increasingly impatient public. Our fine country, so evenly split between Democratic and Republican, could now only anticipate protests and recounts around the nation.

The rest of the world, equally anticipating the appointment of our country's next leader, was met with the biggest joke in history. The greatest power on earth, the United States, is apparently incapable of holding a simple election.

We are indisputably the most intrusive, power-hungry, and confident country in the world.

It's not that America has to prove anything to anyone. We are indisputably the most intrusive, power-hungry and confident country in the world. However, the very basis of our government — democracy for the people, by the people — has failed us. That doesn't much aid our desire to be regarded by other nations as great and all-powerful.

Most importantly, when it is finally decided who should lead the United States for the next four years, that man will have a rough road ahead. The London Times said, "What can be described only as an absolute charade of an election will have given hope to dictatorships everywhere." We have lost respect around the globe, and as a result, our foreign relations will suffer. It is imperative for our next president to have the ability to restore our dignity worldwide, and that challenge will not be easily met.

It is important that our elections are fair, and, hopefully, one day that will mean election based on nationwide popular vote. Right now, however, it is equally important that our decision in this election be made quickly, if we are to walk away from this with any honor at all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bowlsby must recognize his mistake and save Iowa football

Bob Bowlsby can say that Iowa football is making progress all that he wants to, and it is not going to make it true. The dark reality that Hawkeye fans live in is one in which the Hawks are on the brink of suffering through yet another poor season. The Hawks are not even competitive in half of their games, and when the Hawks do compete, they usually lose by failing to make plays that they should make. Consecutive seasons with so many losses do not exactly give high school recruits the impression that the program is making progress, so, unless a change is made, things are going to remain the way they are before they get any better.

The bottom line is that, when a football program suffers through two consecutive seasons as poor as the Hawkeyes' 1999 and 2000 campaigns, someone needs to take the blame. I respect coach Kirk Ferentz as being a man who is knowledgeable about football and a capable assistant coach. He could be a good head coach, given time. The UI, however, is a great university. It does not deserve a good head coach, it deserves a great one.

Great coaches distinguish themselves by inspiring their teams to rise above their limitations. Great coaches transform poor teams into mediocre teams, mediocre teams into good teams and good teams into great teams. I recognize that, at this point, Iowa has poor talent, but that is no excuse for the way they are playing. If Ferentz were a great coach, he would have the Hawks playing inspired, competitive football.

An example of what a great coach can do can be found at Oklahoma. Bob Stoops, the man Bob Bowlsby should have offered the Iowa job to in the first place, has led the Sooners to the No. 1 ranking and a huge win over Nebraska. Oklahoma has nowhere near the amount of talent that Nebraska has (ESPN's "College Gameday" reported that NFL scouts at the game were scouting 12 Nebraska seniors and only two seniors from Oklahoma), but somehow Stoops has led Oklahoma to No. 1. As a great coach, Stoops has done what great coaches do — he has taken a good team and made it into a great team.

I recognize that Bowlsby has affirmed his commitment to Ferentz in the local media, so it is unlikely that this letter or any other vocal complaints by Hawkeye fans will make a difference, but I would still encourage Hawkeye fans that are fed up and tired of losing to speak their mind. Could it be that Bowlsby is scared to make a move because the public will view it as an admission that he really dropped the ball when he failed to hire Stoops? I cannot think of any school in the Big Ten where a coach has suffered through consecutively poor seasons and kept his job. Why should Iowa accept losing in this fashion? What does this say to recruits and fans about this school's commitment to winning?

It is time for Bowlsby to recognize his mistake and do what is best for Iowa football, and that is to ask Ferentz to step aside so that the Hawks can go out and hire the great coach that they truly deserve.

Gore is insulting the intelligence of the people of Florida by demanding a recount

I find it appalling that after all his campaigning in Florida, after all his statements of doing what is right for Florida, Al Gore does not trust us to count our own votes. Had Gore done his homework, he would have known that Florida law states that elections decided by a margin of less than 0.5 percent must be recounted. This means that no matter what, we would have recounted the vote.

With the election hinging on Florida and the polls predicting a dead heat, wouldn't it have been prudent for someone in the Gore party to research Florida campaign law? Apparently not. Apparently, the fact that we have a law to handle this situation was not good enough for Gore — he had to call for a recount. As if we Floridians would have brushed aside our own laws just because he was losing.

The truth here is that Gore has insulted the people of the state of Florida by demanding this recount. He has also embarrassed himself by conceding the election and then pulling his concession.

If Gore wins this race, we as Floridians and Americans should worry: What will happen the next time Gore doesn't do his homework? Will he be able to pull his decision in that situation? Or will America suffer grave consequences?

Using Hollywood babes to breathe life into TV oldies

The recipe for movie-making success, it appears, is more simple than one would imagine.

Take a well-tested concept (i.e., an old television show), update the premise, and toss in a few Hollywood babes for good measure.

Doubters of this formula need only witness the box office returns for Charlie's Angels. The movie, based on a mediocre '70s TV hit by the same name, pulled in $40.5 million during its opening weekend this month — the biggest non-summer opening in history, analysts say.

Certainly, viewers swarmed theaters to take in the impressive acting talents of bombshells Drew Barrymore, Lucy Liu and Cameron Diaz. Or something like that. From a purely tactical standpoint, though, there is something to the Angels phenomenon. The success of a movie such as this sends a clear message to movie producers — it's time to keep mining the TV vaults for more ideas. Here are some potential TV shows-turned-box office megahits:

• Webster 2000: You might remember the show, a quaint '80s sitcom featuring the spry Emmanuel Lewis as the wisecracking Webster. Well, the little guy is up to new tricks these days. Cuba Gooding, Jr., stars as Webster, now a 27-year-old airline pilot, whose plane has been hijacked by a group of international terrorists. A problem, you ask? Not for Webster, whose boyish charm and martial arts skills spell trouble for the villains.

• Charles in Charge Again: Last time we caught up with Charles, he had his hands full with Jamie, Sarah and the ever-mischievous

Adam. Now that supermodels Heidi Klum, Laetitia Casta and Gisele have moved into the house, more wacky high jinks are bound to ensue. My, oh my. What is a 20-year-old male housesitter to do? Featuring Scott Baio again as Charles, Sarah Michelle Gellar as Jamie and the models as themselves.

• The Golden Girls vs. Godzilla: Godzilla is back, this time wreaking havoc on the retirement communities of South Florida.

Exasperated and out of options, biological experts and military officials turn to Blanche, Rose, Dorothy and the quick-witted Sophia to rein in the monster. While Blanche subdues the 80-foot-tall lizard with her lusty charm, Dorothy and Sophia use their tae kwon do moves to bring the reptile down. Included are appearances by Michelle Pfeiffer and Jackie Chan.

• Mr. Belvedere 2K: Arnold Schwarzenegger stars as Mr. Belvedere, whose ability to cook and lend moral advice to the youngsters is still well appreciated by the Owens family. The gentle housekeeper's assistance is needed more than ever now, however.

Kevin (played by Mark Wahlberg) earned his college degree but now works as an exotic dancer, while the crafty young Wesley (Macaulay Culkin) is running from the Feds after hacking into military databases. Meanwhile, Heather (Katie Holmes) just can't decide what to wear to her sorority's formal. Their fates, once again, rest in the hands of Belvedere.

• Loaded House: A "Full House" just gets fuller after the Tanners adopt 17 Korean children to replace the void left when D.J. (Mena Suvari) goes to college. Danny (George Clooney) finally ties the knot with Vicki (Julia Roberts), and Uncle Jesse is tabbed as Mötley Crüe's new lead singer. Joey, after learning the hard way that the comedy world just isn't ready for a suave Popeye impressionist, battles a lingering drug addiction. John Stamos and Dave Coulier reprise their roles as Jesse and Joey, while Heather Locklear stars as Jodi, the next-door neighbor.

• Family Matters: Urkel in Action: The Winslows are back, but narcotics traffickers have invaded their Chicago neighborhood. A frustrated Carl eventually turns to Steve Urkel to solve the problem. Chris Tucker stars as Urkel, whose job now is to kick butt and take names. Now married to Laura (Tyra Banks), Urkel is no longer the innocent bookworm that he used to be, much to the chagrin of Chicago's drug runners. Featuring Angela Bassett as Harriette and Ice Cube as Waldo.

Should Hollywood execs take my advice, these hits should be storming the theaters by Memorial Day. Keep an eye out for "Family Ties" and "Growing Pains" spin-offs as well, because this trend knows no boundaries. Any movie producer with his head in the right place knows this as well as you and I.

Jesse Ammerman is a DI columnist.

Village in shock after cable-car disaster

■ Up to 170 people may have died in a cable-car fire in an Austrian tunnel.

By Geir Moulson
 Associated Press

KAPRUN, Austria — Relatives and friends who had waited through the night in this Alpine village began to get word Sunday on whether their loved ones were among the dead in a cable-car fire that killed approximately 170 people in a mountain tunnel.

With the village hall draped in black and candles burning on shop steps, shattered townsfolk gathered in the Kaprun church for Sunday Mass. As they mourned, emergency crews tried to reach the spot where scores of people, many children and teen-agers, were killed on Nov. 11 by smoke and flames.

"We understand Christ's wail on the cross: 'My God, why have you forsaken me?'" priest Peter Hofer said in his sermon.

Others gave thanks after realizing their loved ones were safe.

"My son is, thank God, all right," said Gottfried Nindl. His boy had planned to go on the cable car with his friends but didn't because they had slept too late, he said.

The car, pulled on rails underground for most of the 3,200 yards up the Kitzsteinhorn mountain to a glacier region, stopped, blazing, about 600 yards inside a mountain tunnel on the morning of Nov. 11. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Rescuers could not reach the victims as the fire raged on. Passengers tried to flee through the deep tunnel, but most were felled by the thick smoke and flames. Eighteen people survived, mainly by fleeing downwards in the tunnel where the smoke was thinner, authorities said.

It was still unclear how many people were in the cable car, but officials believed that it was full — it had a capacity of 180 people.

The retrieval of the bodies was delayed by toxic fumes inside the tunnel and the need to secure the charred car. Chief firefighter Anton Brandauer said the tunnel was now almost smoke-free and that the retrieval of the bodies could begin.

But as night rolled in, other officials said the accident site remained too dangerous, suggesting recovery efforts could be delayed until today. Once the remains of the victims are brought into town, authorities plan to set up a large tent in the town center where relatives and friends can say final farewells.

Authorities said Sunday they had identified 155 of the victims with near certainty. Among them were 52 Austrians, 42 Germans, 10 Japanese, eight Americans, two Slovenes and a Croat. Authorities had not yet established the nationalities of the remaining 40 people. The victims were identified by eliminating those who had returned alive from a list of 2,500 people who had taken the cable car up the slope before the fire.

Three U.S. Army personnel were confirmed among the dead. The Americans were part of a group of mostly military personnel from Würzburg, Germany, and their families, said Maj. Drew Stathis, a member of the group.

September, Baker said. During various meetings with Jones and Baker, the executive members of the chapter "never disputed" the allegations against them, Baker said.

While the members of Pi Kappa Alpha did not directly admit to the UI's accusations, the UI finally determined alcohol was distributed because members did not profess their innocence in the matter, Baker said.

The situation was further investigated by Jones, which led to his decision in de-recognition of the chapter.

Jones was out of town and unavailable for comment.

With the loss of UI recognition, Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity will no longer be able to participate in UI-related events or use UI facilities.

Unless it regains recognition, the fraternity cannot engage in events with other Greek chapters on campus, such as Homecoming, Greek Week and fall recruitment, Baker said.

When a chapter loses university recognition, that chapter loses its university housing benefits as well.

— Jason Goslin,
 Interfraternity Council president

The fraternity may appeal Jones' decision to UI President Mary Sue Coleman. There is no deadline for appealing, he said.

"As far as I know, my office has not been notified of an appeal, although it goes to the president's office first," Baker said.

The fraternity's chapter president, Dale McCaw, was unavailable for comment. Other fraternity members refused to comment.

For the past three summers, Vass has worked on the sets of independent movies. Last summer, he spent three weeks in Florida with students from Florida State University who were shooting an independent movie called Earl Harris. He was a boom operator, the person who holds the microphone during scenes, Vass said.

"I learned more in those three weeks because of the hands-on, real-world experience than in the classes in the communication department," he said.

Another educational source for Vass has been Hollywood celebrities he met when they spoke at the substance-abuse treatment center his mother, Lynne Vass, works at.

Henry Winkler ("Happy Days") advised him to learn about business contracts, and Danny Glover (Lethal Weapon) discussed Vass' future plans, Vass said.

Winkler also encouraged Vass to study acting if he wanted to become a director, so Vass enrolled in basic acting at the UI. He said he has already "learned a lot."

Vass' father, David Vass, has no doubt whether his son will achieve his goals.

"He's very talented, self-taught, and he took on an incredible endeavor at such a young age there is no question he'll reach his dream," David Vass said. "His work burns a fire in his soul, and I'm very proud and very impressed."

The Battle of Florida goes to court

RECOUNT

the day, George Bush has more votes in Florida than we do, certainly the vice president will concede," he said, even while leaving open the prospect of court action if recounting ends with Bush still ahead.

Democrats filed court papers Sunday night on behalf of Gore arguing that Florida's manual ballot law is unconstitutional. Led by Harvard University law Professor Laurence Tribe, party lawyers also said Bush's complaints threatens Florida's right to run its own elections.

Bush is arguing against a system that "reflects an electoral practice — the hand-counting of ballots — in effect throughout the country since the nation's founding, yet here alleged to be unconstitutional and indeed to be vulnerable to a form of judicial intervention extraordinary in our federalism," the Gore reply says.

The marshaling of legal forces sets the stage for one of the most dramatic periods in American political history. A climax could come at the end of this week, when final overseas mail-in ballots will be counted and the trailing candidate would be forced to concede or push deeper into uncharted waters.

"By next Friday," said Sen. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., "the pressure on someone is going to be enormous to accept whatever results Florida has reached."

Their public financing drying up, both camps are raising money to pay rafts of lawyers and political operatives sent to every corner of Florida to examine county voting records and wage a campaign-style, poll-tested public-relations battle.

The Bush team dispatched an "urgent message" by e-mail Sunday asking supporters for up to $5,000 to help finance the recount campaign. Democrats are hoping to raise $3 million, with top Gore aides moving from his headquarters in Tennessee to Democratic offices in Washington.

Among the weekend developments:

- Palm Beach County, Fla., election officials added three dozen additional votes to Gore early Sunday in a mechanical recount. Leaders of the Democratic stronghold then decided to manually check each of the 425,000 votes cast. One top county official said he will try to block the move.

Officials said their manual recount of precincts representing 1 percent of the vote turned up 19 votes for Gore beyond a machine count. Carol Roberts, a county commissioner and a member of the Palm Beach County canvassing commission, argued that a manual recount of 100 percent of the precincts could potentially change as many as 1,900 additional votes — far more than the existing statewide margin between the two candidates.

- In Deland, Fla., Volusia County officials began a marathon manual recount of all 184,018 ballots, despite Bush's pending request to stop it. With Democratic-laden Daytona Beach included, Gore's team hoped to pick up more votes.

- Polk County, Fla., officials, rescanning ballots by machine for a third day, found an additional 104 votes for Bush and seven for Gore. Home to Lakeland, the county went for Bush.

- Democrats added Osceola County to their list of hand-recount requests. The Osceola canvassing board will meet today to weigh it. Gore had a small lead over Bush in the 54,000-plus votes cast in the county just south of Orlando. Latino voters alleged that they were required to produce two forms of identification when only one was required.

- Florida secretary of state Katherine Harris, a Republican who has campaigned for Bush, scheduled a meeting today with Christopher and Gore campaign Chairman William Daley as Democrats expressed concern that she might refuse to certify ballots uncovered in the manual count.

- Bush had a 17-vote lead in New Mexico, where state police have begun impounding ballots from the Nov. 7 election. Republican lawyers asked the courts to order protection for early voting and absentee ballots cast statewide.

A Gore-requested manual recount in Broward County, Fla., another Democratic bastion with Fort Lauderdale as its hub, was to begin today. A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday in Miami-Dade County, site of what Gore hopes will be a fourth manual recount.

Bush and Gore were in seclusion with top aides Sunday — Bush at his Texas ranch, Gore at his Washington, D.C., residence.

Bush has made several public appearances since Nov. 7, casting himself as a man preparing for the transition to power. Gore has lain low, wary that voters might interpret his legal challenge as a grab for power.

Profs proffer opinions on election

POLITICS

Although the courts are historically known for moving slowly, Hagle said, legal issues would most likely become expedited so that a decision could be reached before Dec. 18.

"At the strangest level, if the electors were not able to vote and a delay were required, it would be thrown to the House of Representatives, which could be used as scare tactic to move things quickly along," he said.

When looking at previous similar cases, a judge-ordered re-election is surprisingly possible in Florida but still unlikely, said Chris Liebig, a visiting law professor. It is also unlikely that a judge would stop the by-hand vote counts in the four Florida counties, he said.

"What happens at the end of the vote recount will be the deciding factor," Liebig said, adding that the election would be resolved before Dec. 18. "I don't see any election judge or official who would allow Florida to be precluded from the results."

Although he would like to see a change in the system, which could be as simple as adding voting machines to all counties in order prevent confusion and opportunities for fraud, Liebig does not see it as likely to occur.

"Change is expensive," he said. "I don't know if every county would be able to do that."

Florida schools are 2-3-4 in AP poll

Now it's a trio of Florida schools chasing No. 1 Oklahoma. The Sooners remained atop the Associated Press Top 25 for the third straight week, and it's Miami, Florida State and Florida running 2-3-4. A final count of the ballots Sunday had Oklahoma with 70 first-place votes and 1,774 points from the 71 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP panel. The Sooners (9-0) rallied for a 35-31 victory over Texas A&M on Nov. 11. Miami (8-1), a 35-7 winner over Pittsburgh, held the No. 2 spot with 1,690 points.

Hawkeyes on a roll

Iowa wins its second game in a row with an upset win against Northwestern.

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

Kirk Ferentz took a cold Gatorade shower Saturday afternoon, then he and his team wove their way through the thousands of bundled-up fans that stormed the Kinnick Stadium field.

Some players were crying, and some were laughing, but all were part of Iowa's first winning streak in three years. For the first time since 1997, the Hawkeyes have won two straight — a 26-23 win over Penn State on Nov. 4 and a 27-17 victory against No. 12 Northwestern on Nov. 11.

Eighteen seniors were recognized prior to the Nov. 11 game. Eleven of those men began their Kinnick Stadium careers with a win four years ago against Northern Iowa in 1997, and they ended in the same victorious fashion Saturday.

"This is the greatest feeling in the world," senior Kyle Trippeer said. "I didn't want to leave that field. You start to grow on the field like the grass. You are out there. You see the fans. It's something I'm going to miss dearly."

Iowa came out charged from the opening kickoff. Though the offense didn't put any points up until Nate Kaeding's field goal at the 1:20 mark in the first quarter, the Hawks remained efficient and scored 13 first half points, including a Kyle McCann 11-yard touchdown pass to Kahlil Hill with just 35 seconds left in the half.

Meanwhile, the Hawkeye defense was busy shutting down Northwestern's Big Ten leading, no-huddle offensive attack. The Wildcats scored only one first-half field goal. Without Damien Anderson's 28-yard run in the closing seconds of the second quarter, the Wildcats would have amassed only 182 total yards before the half.

The 13-3 half-time score was the same as the Penn State score on Nov. 4, but unlike the Penn State game, Iowa came and continued to control the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball, scoring on its first possession of the third quarter — a five play, 70-yard drive that ended with a beautiful spiral that hit senior Kevin Kasper in stride as he ran towards the end zone.

Northwestern responded with a touchdown drive sustained by two Iowa penalties later in the third, but the Hawkeyes remained confident and posted another touchdown in the fourth quarter, when McCann ended a five-minute drive himself off a one-yard quarterback sneak.

For the day, the junior quarterback completed 17 of 27 passes for 250 yards and two touchdowns. He also rushed for one touchdown and was sacked only twice, compared with the six sacks and seven other tackles for a Northwestern loss that the Iowa defense recorded, lead by junior linebacker Roger Meyer's game-high 16 tackles.

"We knew the second half was going to be tough," Ferentz said. "To me what it came down to was that our guys attacked and played tough and physical. We're seeing our guys grow weekly with maturity,

Few surprises at Iowa's wrestle-offs

Matt Anderson and Gabe McMahan are the only returning starters to lose at wrestle-offs.

By Jeremy Schnitker
 The Daily Iowan

For the most part, everybody who was expected to win did during the Iowa wrestling team's wrestle-offs on Nov. 11.

National champion Eric Juergens won the team's top 133-pound spot, along with All-Americans Jody Strittmatter, T.J. Williams, Doug Schwab and Mike Zadick.

However, two NCAA qualifiers from last year's team didn't win.

Matt Anderson, who placed sixth at Big Tens last year, lost to Ben Shirk, 3-1, at 165 pounds. Senior Gabe McMahan, who placed second at Big Tens last year, fell to freshman Tyler Nixt, 11-8, at 174 pounds.

Iowa's two spots vacated by departed seniors were replaced by two freshman twins from Decorah. Ryan Fulsas edged out David Spangler, 10-3, at 197 pounds. His brother, Randy Fulsas, beat Josh Liddle, 7-5, at heavyweight.

"We had a couple of surprises today, a couple of guys who knocked off guys that were favored," Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said. "I think Shirk really came through at 165."

With a senior-heavy team, the Hawkeyes did see some encouraging performances from their younger guys.

Freshman Luke Eustice (125) and Cliff Moore (133) gave Strittmatter and Juergens a run for their money. Strittmatter couldn't pull away from Eustice until the third period, and Moore hung tough with Juergens, who went undefeated last year.

"Some of the younger guys looked tough — redshirt freshman out there competing really hard," Zalesky said. "I think the top guys may have been a little rusty, but I also think those younger guys are pretty tough. In order to make the team, most of them have to beat the No. 1- or No. 2-ranked

Hawkeye women swimmers split wins

Iowa beat Ohio State but lost to Purdue at the Field House pool Saturday.

By Julie Matoia
 The Daily Iowan

An all-out battle between the Iowa women's swimming and diving team and Purdue University came down to the very last race on Nov. 11.

Tension suffocated the Field House pool, as fans waited and the relay squads from the schools fought it out.

Iowa entered the last two events of the meet ahead of competitor Ohio State and with a one-point advantage over Purdue. The final result dealt Purdue the favored hand, leaving Iowa splitting the double-dual meet. Iowa defeated Ohio State 165-132 and slid behind Purdue 155-142.

"I am very happy with the team's performances," said head coach Garland O'Keefe. "Seventy-five percent of the performances were in season-

Iowa shines in opener

Luke Recker scores 32 in his Hawkeye debut as Iowa knocks off Athletes in Action, 101-70.

By Mike Kelly
 The Daily Iowan

Sure, it was only Athletes in Action, but if the Iowa men's basketball team plays like it did on Nov. 10, this season could be a gem.

Iowa jumped out to a 36-point first-half lead, and Luke Recker poured in 32 points in his Hawkeye debut, as Iowa defeated the touring team, 101-70, in the exhibition opener for the Hawkeyes.

Ball movement and balance defined the Iowa win. Eleven of 12 Hawkeyes scored in the game, and 10 of 12 Hawkeyes hit double digits in minutes. Only Rod Thompson, who is battling injury, and backup guard Jason Smith did not see more than 10 minutes in the game.

"It was great to be out there," Recker said. "I have waited a long time for this — the fans, the smell of the popcorn — it was exciting to get back out there."

Recker

In a sense, the game was a tale of two halves. Iowa outscored Athletes in Action, 56-22, in the first half, then proceeded to lose the second half, 48-45. Iowa coach Steve Alford said he was not happy with his team's lack of defensive intensity in the second half.

The second-year coach said he wanted his team to keep up the pace after jumping out to such a big lead but that instead the Hawks became complacent in the second half.

"It was as good a script as could be written in the first half," Alford said. "But we did a poor job defensively in the second half."

The Hawkeyes' starting five consisted of Dean Oliver, Recker, Duez Henderson, Reggie Evans and freshman center Jared Reiner.

Evans and Henderson both hit double-digits in scoring, pulling down 16 and 10 points, respectively.

Out of the five freshman, Glen Worley and Brody Boyd had the most successful games offensively, chipping in nine points apiece. Worley, a player who can play both on the perimeter and inside, made great assists on three occa-

SPORTS

Iowa 27, Northwestern 17

Iowa fans just may get used to this team winning

thebottomline
The Iowa defense shut down Northwestern's league best offense, and the Hawkeye offense, behind the solid play of Kyle McCann, played mistake-free football en route to a 27-17 victory in Kinnick Stadium on senior day.

GAME ANALYSIS

You'd think that after two wins this season, the students would stop rushing the field. Saturday, after Iowa's second home win of the year, they didn't. They charged the field, they danced — partied like it was 1985 all over again. After all, the Hawkeyes played like it was 1985, or 1991 or 1981 — any year other than the last two. They spoiled a Rose Bowl-bound team's hopes, putting a wrench in the league's best offense en route to a 27-17 win. Even the public-address announcer had to feel a little stupid for telling students not to rush the field at the end of the game. He had to realize this win was huge. Iowa fans just saw their Hawkeyes do two things they haven't done in three years: beat a team ranked in both polls and beat teams in consecutive weeks.

It had not been since 1997 — the Tavian Banks and Tim Dwight era — that Iowa completed both of those feats in the same season. The ranked team they beat was then-No. 18 Purdue. The team they beat to get the consecutive wins was Indiana — the week after the Purdue game.

This time, Iowa beat the No. 12 team in the country. A team that, with a win, would have all but secured a Rose Bowl bid. The team they beat the week before were the Penn State Nittany Lions, in Happy Valley. A little more impressive than a win over pre-Antwaan Randle El Indiana.

So I'm saying that these Hawkeyes are better, right? Well, not exactly — they've still lost eight games. But, these two wins, as impressive as they are, show that this team is heading the right direction. They also say that bowl-game talk for 2001 isn't as far-fetched as it looked three weeks ago. Put this Iowa team on the field against Indiana, Western Michigan and Wisconsin — maybe bowl-game talk for 2000 wouldn't be far-fetched.

I'm getting way ahead of myself here, though — back to what actually happened.

The Hawkeyes stuffed the no-huddle, spread offense that gave everyone else in the Big Ten fits. They didn't do it fancy, they didn't re-vamp their defense, they didn't put in six defensive backs. They played straight up, and players made plays on their own.

"We were as vanilla as you can get," defensive coordinator Norm Parker said. "You couldn't go to the ice cream store and get any more vanilla than we were."

"The players just came out and played the defense. It's not that we did anything special; I just think we came out and played hard."

It's encouraging to hear that Iowa didn't have to pull out tricks to stop the best offense in the Big Ten. Benny Sapp, Roger Meyer and the rest of the defensive gang can handle things just fine on their own, I guess. Oh yeah, for all of you who haven't seen him yet, Bob Sanders hits like a truck.

The offense, albeit against a poor Northwestern defense, looked swell as well.

Kyle McCann, Iowa's once-forgotten quarterback, played as well as any Iowa quarterback has played in years. Completing 17-27 passes for 250 yards and throwing two touchdowns, rushing for another and not throwing any interceptions — he was the star on offense.

The offensive line gave up only two sacks all day. Vice versa, Iowa's defense sacked Wildcat quarterback Zak Kustok seven times.

This game was more than just an upset — take away that late fourth-quarter touchdown by Northwestern and it was almost a blowout.

Northwestern was never really close, as Iowa's lead was up to 17 in the second half.

For a university that has been deprived of football success for three years, it might be a while before students stop rushing the field after home victories.

Then again, if Iowa keeps winning games like these, students will be more adjusted to a winning football team. Fans might get back to the old tactics of just going back to their tailgating after a win. If things keep going as they have been, a win over Northwestern won't be considered an upset anymore — it will be expected.

Whoa, just got ahead of myself again.

Iowa seniors swim strong in loss to Purdue

Coach Jon Davey said senior Nick Hinz had a great meet.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's swimming and diving team was handed a tossed salad of emotions this weekend in an early season senior meet and a loss to Purdue.

After a tough fight against the Boilermakers, the Hawkeyes were reminded why a group of accomplished seniors will continue to provide leadership in the team's journey to move up in the Big Ten.

"This meet goes to Nick Hinz," said head coach John Davey. "He swam four events, and all four were great swims. This was the best dual meet of his life."

Along with Hinz, two other Hawkeye seniors showed star performances in their final competition in the Field House pool. Ales Abersek led the Hawkeyes with two event wins in the 100- and 200-meter butterfly with times of 49.88 and 1:49.25 respectively. Senior Jay Glenn won the 200-meter freestyle with a time of 1:39.84 and placed second in a close finish in the 100-meter freestyle. The senior class had a strong showing after a tough defeat, with a final score of 111-171 in the dual meet.

"Purdue was ready to swim this weekend and showed this in its times," said senior Jay Glenn. "This shows what we will be going against at Big Tens. I hope we can use all our efforts from practice and show this off next weekend."

One competitor whose efforts proved beneficial to the Hawkeyes was sophomore diver Roberto Gutierrez, who won both the 1-meter (262.20) and the 3-meter competition (276.90).

"I am happy because I won this weekend," he said. "I am trying to help the team as much as possible. I am also trying to be a little more consistent and solid competing next weekend."

Look for Jason Snider to continue to be a key contributor in the rest of the Hawkeye season. The freshman, happy with his two personal-best times so far this season, had solid contributions this weekend. Snider had a second-place finish in the 200-meter IM event behind Abersek, who won the event with a time of 1:54.24.

The fact that the seniors competed in the Field House pool for the last time was far from their focus. The Hawkeyes' season focus is set on the Big Ten Championships in the end of February.

"Our times were good, and we are getting faster; we need to keep getting faster," Davey said. "Next weekend the Minnesota Invitational will be a great test for Big Tens because it is a rehearsal for the big meets: Big Tens and NCAA Nationals. It is a championship meet format."

The Hawkeyes will be on the road next weekend with the majority of the season ahead, when they travel to Minnesota for the most important meet of the fall season.

Men's cross country

The Iowa men's cross-country team could smile after a meet of nothing but improvement in their final race of the 2000 season. After hoping for all runners to achieve their best races in unison, meet after meet, throughout the season, the Hawkeyes found their rhythm on the perfect weekend. All Hawkeyes finished with season-best times, good for a sixth-place finish in the NCAA Midwest Regional meet on Nov. 11.

"I am very proud of the team," said head coach Larry Wiczorek. "This was definitely the best race of the season, and they did a great job. They learned a lot and finished on a positive note, knowing they can be a NCAA qualifying team next year."

Oklahoma State finished first with a score of 68 points, while Iowa finished in front of Iowa State with a total of 158 points. Iowa entered the meet ranked 10th in the region and moved up four places in the 23-team meet. The Hawkeyes were only two points away from the fifth-place finisher, Nebraska.

Sophomore Trent Corey was Iowa's top finisher, crossing the finish line 19th with a time of 31:07. Corey was named All-Regional Team member with the other top 25 individual finishers. Joe Welter followed with a 27th place finish in 31:15.

Senior Paul Sarris completed his final cross-country season with a 36th place finish in 31:27. The rest of the team will return next fall, but for now, the team will move towards training for the indoor season.

"We went after the meet and ran with the leaders," Wiczorek said. "We ran a terrific race to send the team off into the track season on a positive note."

Women cross country

The Iowa women's cross-country team pushed through undesirable conditions to hang onto a 12th-place finish in the 2000 NCAA Midwest Regional Championships. The Hawks held their position in the 23-team competition on Nov. 11 despite unexpected health problems.

"We were a little disappointed in our finish," said head coach Sara Swails. "We did have some setbacks this weekend. Sarah Arens found out she had anemia along with other team member health situations."

Arens battled anemia to tie her season-best time and lead Iowa with a 35th-place finish in 21:59. Teammate Ericka Roberts followed and ran her season best in 22:37, good for 62nd place.

Kansas State stole the top two spots in the individual rankings and won the meet with a total of 61 points. Iowa wanted to move up from its seventh-place finish last year but landed in 12th with a score of 367.

"Everyone gave a really good effort, their best effort," Swails said. "We did not have good luck this weekend, but it was not a lack of effort."

quarterbyquarter

The beginning of Saturday's game was fairly uneventful. The teams exchanged two possessions without putting themselves in scoring position.

Northwestern's offense didn't come out firing as it went 3-and-out on its first series. Its second drive went for only 30 yards.

Iowa established something of a running game early after Ladell Betts went for a 16-yard run on Iowa's first possession.

The scoring started on Iowa's third possession of the game. Kyle McCann hit Kevin Kasper on a slant to put Iowa at the Northwestern 38. Five plays later, McCann hit Kahlil Hill for a 14-yard gain, setting up Nate Kaeding's 42-yard field goal.

Northwestern early in the second quarter put a scoring drive of its own together. Zak Kustok and Jon Schweigert for 15-yards to set up a 27-yard Long 34-yard field goal, tying the game.

Two possessions later, Iowa, behind a McCann to Hill 14-yard hookup, got three more points. Kaeding kicked a 46-yard field goal.

Iowa forced the Wildcats to punt on their ensuing possession, and Iowa got the ball back on its 27.

With 2:39 left, McCann hit Ryan Barton for a 14-yard gain, putting Iowa on the 11-yard line. Three plays later, McCann hit Hill on a quick pass, and Hill juiced two defenders and extended the ball over the goal line for a TD.

The Hawkeyes came out gunning in the second half. After holding Northwestern to a punt on the first possession of the half, Iowa got the ball on its 30-yard line.

McCann hit Hill for a 26-yard reception on second down. Four plays later, McCann sent one receiver in the middle for Kasper, who caught the ball in the end zone. The play encompassed 42 yards, and gave the Hawkeyes a commanding 20-3 lead.

In their last possession of the half, Northwestern had two 11 yard runs by Damien Anderson put itself on the 1-yard line. Kustok punched in a touchdown on a quarterback sneak, putting the Wildcats within 10.

Iowa held Northwestern on their first possession after Jerry Montgomery had a sack on Kustok.

Iowa got the ball on its own 41-yard line and went back to work on offense. On a crucial third-and-long, McCann hit tight end Kevin Tripper for a 13-yard completion and a first down. After driving to the 1-yard line, McCann dove in the end zone to get the ball keeper, putting Iowa up 27-10.

Two possessions later Northwestern put a drive together in the last five minutes of the game. It scored off a 10-yard pass from Kustok to Schweigert. Iowa got the ball back with 2:29 left and ran out the clock to hold on to the victory.

Titans lose first game at home

It took two rare gaffes by Al Del Greco for someone other than the Tennessee Titans to win at Adelphia Coliseum.

Trent Dilfer passed to Patrick Johnson for a 2-yard touchdown, and Matt Stover's extra point gave the Baltimore Ravens a 24-23 win over Tennessee, ending the Titans' NFL record of 12 games without a loss at a new stadium.

The Titans (8-2) also had an eight-game winning streak broken. They pulled ahead 23-17 on an 87-yard interception return for a touchdown by Perry Phenix with 2:30 left, but Al Del Greco missed his first extra point in 229 tries, a streak that started in 1993. Del Greco also sent his 43-yard field-goal attempt wide right on the game's final play.

Baltimore (7-4), which until last week had gone five games without a touchdown, pulled within 1 1/2 games of the Titans in the AFC Central.

Saints 20, Panthers 10

Ricky Williams hit the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the Saints (7-3), but broke his left ankle on the play and will be out 6-8 weeks. The defense held Carolina (4-6) to 53 yards on the ground.

"He is a good player, a good back; I mean he got 1,000 yards today," Saints coach Jim Haslett said. "But he is out and we will have to move on."

Keith Mitchell returned a fumble 90 yards for a touchdown, and the Saints forced five turnovers and had eight sacks to win their sixth straight.

Vikings 31, Cardinals 14

Daunte Culpepper threw touchdown passes to Robert Smith, Randy Moss and Cris Carter, and ran for a fourth TD as the Vikings (8-2) remained unbeaten in the Metrodome after two road losses. Smith gained 117 yards on 20 carries to give him 1,025 yards rushing for the season.

MarTay Jenkins had a 98-yard kickoff return for Arizona (3-7), the first for the Cardinals since 1979.

Eagles 26, Steelers 23

Two 42-yard field goals by David Akers and a recovered onside kick gave the Eagles one of their more improbable victories in years.

Akers kicked a game-winning field goal 4:16 into overtime after tying it with a hurried 42-yarder on the final play of regulation for the Eagles (7-4).

Bills 20, Bears 3

After being pulled for Rob Johnson on the Bills' final series of the first half, Doug Flutie returned in the second half to help the Bills win. Flutie has now gone 3-1 as a starter for Buffalo (6-4) after replacing Johnson when he separated his shoulder, but coach Wade Phillips plans to go back to Johnson as his starter.

Eric Moulds caught five passes for 89 yards, tying a franchise record by going 43 straight games with a catch. Keion Carpenter had two interceptions. The Bears (2-8), lost quarterback Jim Miller, who tore his left Achilles' tendon 10 minutes into the second quarter.

Lions 13, Falcons 10

Gary Moeller won his first game as Detroit's coach in place of Bobby Ross, who resigned, as the Lions (6-4) kept their playoff hopes alive against Atlanta (3-8).

Moeller was booed when he went for the tie when the Lions had the ball inches from the goal line on a fourth down with five minutes left in the game. Jason Hanson's 18-yard field goal tied it at 10.

But Danny Kanell's pass was intercepted by Corwin Brown, who returned the ball 10 yards to the Falcons 29 with 2:13 left. Four plays later, Hanson kicked a winning 44-yarder.

Browns 19, Patriots 11

Phil Dawson kicked a career-high four field goals, and Doug Pederson efficiently moved the ball as the Browns snapped a seven-game losing streak. They improved to 3-8, one more win than in their initial season. New England dropped to 2-8.

Cleveland's defense recovered three fumbles and intercepted a pass from New England quarterback Drew Bledsoe, who was questionable until gametime after jamming his right thumb last week. Bledsoe finished 21-of-35 for 212 yards and one TD.

Cowboys 23, Bengals 6

Tim Seder, a 26-year-old rookie kicker, took a pitch from holder Micah Knorr on a fake field goal and ran untouched for a 1-yard score for the Cowboys (4-6). Seder finished with 17 of Dallas' points, including field goals of 43, 35 and 42 yards.

Akili Smith threw for just 68 yards for the Bengals (2-8).

Seahawks 28, Jaguars 21

Seattle (4-7) stopped Jacksonville at the 1-yard line with no time remaining to hang on. Jon Kitna threw a 4-yard pass to Ricky Watters with 2:01 left for the winning touchdown.

Seattle's Reggie Tongue was called for pass interference in the end zone with no time left. That brought the ball to the 1 and extended the game by one play. Mark Brunell looked for Alvis Whitted, but the two got their signals crossed and the ball fell harmlessly in the corner of the end zone to drop the Jaguars to 3-7.

49ers 21, Chiefs 7

Lance Schulters knocked down the Kansas City Chiefs, and Charlie Garner ran over them.

Garner rushed for 102 yards and a touchdown, and Schulters led an inspired defensive effort as the San Francisco 49ers snapped their five-game losing streak with a 21-7 win over Kansas City on Sunday.

Improbably, San Francisco's defense the league's worst in six statistical categories — thoroughly dominated Kansas City's offense, which had scored 109 points in its last three games.

Rams 38, Giants 24

The St. Louis Rams didn't need Kurt Warner and Marshall Faulk to score a lot of points against one of the NFL's best defenses.

Trent Green threw four touchdown passes and scrambled for another, and the Rams used three turnovers and a couple of big plays on special teams to beat the New York Giants, 38-24, on Sunday.

Bucs 20, Packers 15

Martin Gramatica and Tampa Bay's swarming defense are a hard combination to beat.

The Bucs knocked Brett Favre out of the game and Gramatica, nicknamed "Automatic" in college, extended his streak of consecutive field goals to 12 with fourth-quarter kicks of 54 and 51 yards to beat the Green Bay Packers 20-15 Sunday.

Dolphins 17, Chargers 7

Dan Fouts was cheered. Ryan Leaf was booed. And Lamar Smith did what he does best, finding the end zone with ease.

On an afternoon when the San Diego Chargers honored their past, Smith and the Miami Dolphins added to the team's current misery, winning, 17-7, Sunday to send the Chargers to an 0-10 start.

Lewis wants to fight Mike Tyson

■ After beating David Tua, Lennox Lewis is looking forward to a defense against the former champ.

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Lennox Lewis still doesn't want to pick on someone his own size. Now he wants Mike Tyson.

The 6-foot-5 WBC-IBF heavyweight champion made $8.5 million for dominating David Tua, who at 5-10 is about Tyson's height. Lewis can make a lot more for fighting Tyson.

Lewis thinks a Tyson match can be made, despite his being under contract to HBO and Tyson being aligned with Showtime.

Such a match is the most attractive in a heavyweight division short on attractive fighters.

It would be a highly anticipated fight, but so was Nov. 11 night's bout in the Mandalay Bay Events Center, which Lewis won on a one-sided decision. It was a boxing clinic. The fans had wanted a brawl.

Lewis, jabbing and moving, shooting occasional right leads and crisp combinations, did what he had to do — keep the challenger at a distance and off balance.

In his two previous fights, Lewis scored second-round knockouts over 6-7 Michael Grant and Francois Botha, also 6-foot-plus.

The champion has admitted that in the past he's had problems with shorter opponents. So against Tua, he came up with a game plan that reduced his risks and drove the challenger to the point of frustration. Tua never got inside long enough for Lewis to even attempt his effective right uppercut.

"I felt the amount of punches I threw was sufficient," said Lewis, who was always aware of Tua's vaunted left hook and refused to take risks.

"He was winning the fight sufficiently with his left jab," said Emanuel Steward, Lewis' trainer. A CompuBox punch analysis credited Lewis with landing 213 jabs, while Tua's total of jabs and power punches landed was only 110.

Efficient is what Lewis was.

Lennox Lewis is a great champion.

— David Tua
heavyweight boxer

Lewis' only loss came when he was knocked down and stopped in the second round by Oliver McCall after he had thrown a long, lazy right hand in 1994. Lewis said he learned a lesson in that fight, and that lesson seems to be in the back of his mind every time he enters the ring.

"I kept my right hand up," said Lewis, who made Tua, who counts on the hook, into a one-armed fighter.

Tyson is anything but a one-armed fighter. He can take out an opponent with either hand. But Tyson probably doesn't take as good a punch as Tua, who has never been down as a pro, and Tua was hit with numerous stiff jabs and several solid rights.

"Lennox Lewis is a great champion," Tua said.

What Lewis is, is big, strong, intelligent, efficient. In the current heavyweight division, he is dominant.

Weir edges Tiger to win tourney

■ Tiger Woods fails to get his 10th win in the final tournament of the season.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

SOTOGRADE, Spain — One of the greatest years in golf ended with a bang, just not the kind Tiger Woods had planned.

As Mike Weir of Canada rapped in his final putt Sunday to win the American Express Championship, Woods twice slammed his foot into his golf travel bag while changing to leave Valderrama Golf Club.

Just like last year, the diabolical 17th hole took the best shot Woods had to offer and deposited the ball into a pond.

Only this time, Woods never got a second chance to win in a playoff. And his spectacular season ended without a perfect 10 — the first $10 million man in golf, the first player in 50 years to win at least 10 times on the PGA Tour.

"I played well for most of the day," Woods said.

But not good enough to catch Weir, who played better than anyone on the weekend and came away with a two-stroke victory in the World Golf Championships event.

Having watched another horror show unfold before him on the par-5 17th, Weir found dry land and made a deft par save from behind the green. That allowed him to coast in for a 3-under 69 and a two-stroke victory over Lee Westwood.

"It's a huge win, a world championship," Weir said.

Eduardo Abad/Associated Press
U.S. Golfers Tiger Woods and Mark Calcavecchia prepare for their next shots during the American Express Championship Sunday.

"With the quality of the field, that's what makes it so special. Any time Tiger plays in the tournament you win, it makes you feel great because he's far and away the best player in the game right now."

Weir finished at 11-under 277 and earned $1 million.

Woods will have to settle for a year that even one crazy hole at Valderrama can't spoil — nine victories, more than $9 million in earnings, three straight majors, the career Grand Slam, and the lowest raw scoring average — 68.24 — in PGA Tour history.

And there was one other winner.

With the $500,000 for finishing second, Westwood moved ahead of his good friend Darren Clarke on the European tour money list and claimed the Order of Merit, ending the amazing seven-year reign of Colin Montgomerie.

"It's more emotional than I have ever been," said Westwood, who finished $346,000 ahead of Clarke, plus a British pound from a bet they made with each other in August. "It was a very, very long day out there."

Woods was emotional, too. He needed a birdie on the 17th, a green he can reach in two with an 8-iron, but put his drive into the trees and couldn't advance it out to the fairway.

Bang! He slammed his club into the side of his bag. Weir had yet to play the 17th, a hole that produced four double bogeys and two triple bogeys, a par by Woods would leave him some hope. His fourth shot landed a foot behind the hole — and then spun back, gathering just enough speed to reach the front of the green and trickled down the shaved slope into the water.

Bang! Woods kicked his bag again in the scoring tent, having signed for a double bogey on the 17th and a bogey on the 18th, where he had to hole a 6-foot putt for his 72, extending his streak to 51 rounds at par or better.

"Every ball I've hit in the water has been good shots," he said. "It's not a very well-designed hole."

The only consolation was that the American Express is moving to St. Louis next year, so Woods and everyone else won't have to come back to Valderrama.

"We're not going to come back ever again," he said with a smile.

SPORTS BRIEF

Favre leaves game with sprained foot

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Brett Favre's streak of 135 consecutive starts, an NFL record for quarterbacks, may be in jeopardy.

The three-time league MVP left Sunday's game between the Packers and Buccaneers with a sprained left foot that could sideline him for a week or more. He limped off the field after being sacked by Warren Sapp in the third quarter and did not return as Green Bay lost, 20-15.

"I anticipate him to be out for at least the next week and maybe longer," coach Mike Sherman said. "It's too early to tell. He's not able to walk at the present time, so I anticipate him to be out for a little while."

Favre completed 14 of 25 passes for 117 yards and no interceptions. He didn't need assistance getting off the field, but was later taken to the locker room on a cart with his foot wrapped in ice.

Green Bay kicked a 42-yard field goal on the next play and trailed 14-6 when Matt Hasselbeck replaced Favre on the Packers' next possession. The backup went 9-for-18 for 93 yards, including a 27-yard touchdown to Bubba Franks on a fake field goal play.

Hasselbeck, a second-year pro, will make his first pro start if Favre is not able to play at home against Indianapolis next week.

"I'm glad it's at home," Hasselbeck said. "I think it's a lot easier to play at home in front of the fans at Lambeau. I don't know. I have no idea what Brett's situation is. So, I'll be happy one way or the other."

Cold weather tips for students

- When lit, textbooks and coursepacks provide excellent sources of heat.
- Be sure that all of your undergarments are made of Gore-Tex. You'll thank yourself for it later.
- Do not, under any circumstance, go outside while naked and dripping wet. It is NOT as comfortable as your friends might tell you.
- For guys, a thick beard will serve well in protecting against the elements. Not to worry, girls — fake beards can be found at most novelty shops.
- You might be a legal adult now, but snowsuits and mittens aren't a thing of the past. Wear them frequently.
- Don't go outside. Problem solved.
- Showering in freezing rain isn't as clever a way to cut down on the water bill as you think it is.
- Encase yourself in durable plastic to shield against the wind.
- Shoving snow down peoples' pants might seem funny at the moment, but is generally not a healthy practice.
- Ski masks — they're not just for burglars anymore.
- Add an extra layer of clothing for every 2.6 degrees that the temperature drops.

First

The Nov. 7 will not end the fight of opponents of the extension.

By Erica D The Daily

As First Avenue "yes" and "no" voters begin to dislocal laws a new election, opponents extension say the far from over.

Opponents hatched the next action, but David Redlawsk, a UI assistant professor of political science and a member of the anti-extension Citizens for Common Sense Growth, said the group's watchdog so remains priority least.

"Right now, it's going to be done sure it is done in way that affects a number of people," he said in the Nov. 7
