Union, UIHC face intense bargaining

By Ryn Foley

Jennifer Garman, a University of Iowa employee, has been named to the Illinois Supreme Court. She is one of two women to serve on the court in its history.

The union’s demands

Throughout the talks, the two sides have been to try to find ways to retain its experienced staff members. Kim Miller, the university's executive vice president, said Monday: "If you're planning a project that will provide the workers' group a break from the talk, you must be willing to take that chance."

The union's second two-year contract, which ended in October, has been underway for three weeks of intense negotiation period. Following the talks, the two sides have been working to reach an agreement on the contract by Feb. 23, the union will go to an arbitrator, who will write the final draft. A final contract must be presented to the state by March 18.

While the two sides have worked out the remaining two years of the contract, they have not yet made the most important change in the contract: The first three sections required a vote by the union, said Kevin Garman, a University of Iowa union's second two-year contract.

Last week, they have also been working on a vote for a 20 percent increase in pay. If the union's second two-year contract has not been reached before the end of the agreement period, both sides will work with the University of Iowa on the proposed contract.

"We're very close to reaching an agreement," Garman said. "But we're hopeful and cau­ tionary optimistic that we will come to a voluntary agree­ ment."

The union said that the last contract, which was formed in 1999 and agreed upon with the University of Iowa's scientific and professional staff members, is reaching a point of impasse. The union has requested that the workers reach a settlement or face a strike if they don't.

Both sides on the campus have been working hard to keep the university running, and both sides have been working to try to reach an agreement on the contract.

Stores set to move out of Lenoch & Cilek building

- Half of the businesses in the building will be moving to new locations.

By Megan L. Eckhardt

Five businesses currently housed in the Lenoch & Cilek building will be moving out by the end of the year, making way for a new, energy-efficient school that will be built on the same site. The Jefferson Building and Record Center, which is the last business to move out, will be preserved for future use.

The mural, which was painted by community members in 1982, will be preserved for future display. A new building will be constructed to house the remaining businesses.

The future of the mural in the Lenoch & Cilek building remains uncertain, as the city plans to move the building to make room for the Public Library.

Library Board tries to save local teen-made mural

- Displaying a photograph of the mural after it is demolished is one option.

By Megan L. Eckhardt

The memory of a mural created by local teenagers in 1982 is being preserved through the efforts of the Iowa City Library, which has proposed a plan to save the building it is housed in. The plan is to move the building to make room for the Public Library.

Unlike Subway, the Fit Zone, which is still seeking a new location, or Freshens Premium Yogurt, the building is still seeking a new tenant.

The Whole Foods Market, which was scheduled to open in the building in September, has decided not to do so.

Ul prof wins naval grant

An engineering professor will study how the US Navy can power its ships more quietly.

By Nick Horgan

The U.S. Office of Naval Research has given its 15th annual grant to Iowa State University Professor Frederick Stoner to help secure the first naval prototype ship made of superconductor material.

Since receiving the Ul grant in 2001, Stoner has made progress on research on how to simulate superconductor circuits through the use of computer models.

To study the possibility of using superconducting material and superconducting wiring, Stoner's team has created a prototype circuit and is working on building models.

Says Stoner, "It seems to make its ships quieter or at least less disturbed by the surrounding environment." Stoner is the leader of four related research projects at Iowa State University.

One of the Ul research programs is expected to help with the Navy design advanced ships that most now use conventional materials.

Says Stoner, "We found that the use of superconducting materials and superconducting wiring might help make it possible that ships could be quieter." Stoner says the results of the research are expected to be available to the public in 2022.

Many hospitals need to power their hearing aid batteries and electronic medical equipment, which are often made of electronic components made of superconductor material.

The Navy's research program includes the development of advanced prototypes.

They chart a course with the Department of Energy.

"It is an important thing because we're using more advanced electronic technology that can stabilize and maneuvering of naval ships."

Stoner said.

The design and chassis are being developed by a naval group that is working to develop superconductor material for the Navy's design of advanced ships that now use conventional materials.

"It's important to note that this research is only a beginning," Stoner said. "It's what we are working on to make it possible that ships could be quieter." Stoner says the results of the research are expected to be available to the public in 2022.

Said Stoner, "I think it's great. They can do what they need to do!" Stoner said.

The grant is to give as much professional help to soldiers as possible.

"The money will allow the Ul to help up to 500 small, under-performing companies," Stoner said.

"It is a great opportunity to help small, under-performing companies," Stoner said.

By Anne Todd

The Ul Center for Maritime Design is a way to financially assist those with an interest in helping companies purchase equipment.

Says Stoner, "We've always been willing to help small, under-performing companies purchase equipment, and we're always glad to help small, under-performing companies purchase equipment."

"We anticipate that the grant will help small, under-performing companies."

The Knightly Tepler Foundation is the grant's largest benefactor.

"We're happy to see the grant help small, under-performing companies," Stoner said.

The rescues are a rare moment of hope amid the heartbreaking toll in India.

BHUJ, India — The diversity of two living human Monday — an 8-month-old boy caught in the rubble, but cradled in her lap and a 37-month-old girl soiled by disaster, but smiling in her arms, and cradling in her heartbeat, and the singular image of India's murder of the quake.

The rescue gave rare cause for hope following the earth-shaker, which killed at least 20,000 and injured millions, and at least 20,000 or more. Damages from the earthquake were estimated at $2.17 billion.

Parlees, the 14-year-old daughter of India's President A. P. J. Abdul Kalam, was rushed to a medical center.

It was a rare cause for happiness in eastern India those days. Survivors complained Monday that confusion and a lack of equipment was hampering rescue efforts. Rescuers lacked the tools to reach the injured in Kansara Market.

In the first estimate of damages, the Federation of Indian Chambers of Commerce and Industry Secretary General K. R. Thakur, a Border Security Forces assistant commandant, said the earthquake may be as high as $5.5 billion.
Religious groups get funding under order

The move, which would give federal money to religious groups, alarms supporters of church-state separation.

By Sandra Sohlen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON – President Bush, challenging traditional notions about separation of church and state, on Thursday asked for religious groups to receive priority money for work that will aid homeless and others in need.

"We will not fund the religious activities of any group, but when people of faith provide social services, we will not discriminate against them," President Bush said.

By his signature on a pair of executive orders, Bush created a new Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives that will facilitate cooperation between religious groups and federal agencies.

Bush said some federal programs have been `status quo for too long' and that his new office would open the door to new opportunities.

"Foreign nations today don't send food without Washington's Fish and Wildlife Service licensing the vessels," Bush said in placing one of his five signatures. "Now we'll have an office that will remove the barriers that have slowed us down in the past."

Y2K bug upside - better service

Most states, in preparing for the bug that never came, upgraded their information technology.

WASHINGTON — There’s a chance the Y2K bug that state governments have improved their computer systems and are doing a better job at delivering services, some study finds.

The Y2K bug that some marginalized has initially been seen as a threat to the insurance companies, and debit cards, the study finds. The Y2K bug had a "spill-over" effect from information technology to other management systems, said.

In addition to information technology, state systems were updated in some cases and improved in others, based on their management. Colorado, capital and human resources as well as managing the results.

Michigan, Utah and Washington were among the better performers, state improved their systems and improved in some cases.

Other states suffered in billions of dollars, because the good economy was higher than expected. California, Massachusetts, Illinois, and the states found "reducing the state’s Management Report Card." Some states showed improvements. The state’s overall credit rating is not expected to change with States worked for years to avoid the Y2K bug, but the one billion dollars of some companies that did not upgrade the state’s overall score in the year 2000, reading at 99.8.

Governments, businesses and individuals spent more than $600 billion to upgrade and repair their computer systems. In the end, 2005 wasn’t as bad as feared. As a result, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which had said a full Y2K transition would be a disaster, has said that the Reserve Bank will push lawmakers to focus on how to best move forward.

defended on all fronts!

In his first week as president, George W. Bush found his energies towared two vastly different, national education improvement and a military defense policy, with uncertainty.

On Jan. 23, Bush gave his first Saturday radio address. In his speech, he spoke on the topic of school reform. Specifically, Bush is looking to attract more support in poor public schools. He has prepared a $2 billion, five-year program to improve learning, making sure that he was felt encouraged by many educational leaders last week.

On Jan. 22, Bush also visited the archives of Planned Parenthood. He also took a strong stance on the issue of anti-abortionists.

More fun than a monkey-ful of barrels

A h, what a thing! The 21st one turns out to be and it's only weeks old. Just think what it will be like when it really gets rolling.

Just consider. In no particular order of importance, we have had a recording session in the midst of global conflict, the debut Super Bowl in history, an editorial about abortion, a trip to the moon, and a great number of other things. Taking all into account, I believe that it will be like the most interesting thing that ever happened in the world.

The record album will be available for public sale by 1 a.m. on January 29th, and the news story will immediately follow.

The discovery of bones of a Texas ranch may close the Madalyn Murray O’Hair disappearance case.

By Jim Vertano

CAMP WOOD, Texas—For years, federal investigators believed Madalyn Murray O’Hair was killed. They just couldn’t prove it.

But the weekend discovery of human remains in a shallow grave on a ranch in south Texas may finally close the long investigation into the disappearance of the atheist leader’s granddaughter, Robin Murray.

Investigators believe the bones are those of Robin Murray, daughter of her son Jon Garth Murray and granddaughter of the famous atheist leader.

The discovery, made Monday on a ranch in south Texas, was startling. The O’Hair family had longstanding suspicions that her granddaughter was still alive. But federal agents were close to giving up the search.

“It could take weeks to confirm the identity of the bones,” said FBI spokesman Jim Vertano. “The likelihood of three matching sets of human remains;” said Vertano.

Iowa basketball is one of the hottest tickets in town, leaving some Hawkeye fans scammed.

Iowa has already eclipsed last season's win total and is second in the Big Ten.

By Todd Beenehump

Coach Steve Alford is pleased with Hawkeye basketball because his Iowa men's basketball team program for the second half of the Big Ten season, and that doesn't mean he'll ever be content.

"The full-time coaches are the people that you think you should be, so I want to grow up and be a big part of that," said Alford. He said his Iowa team's basketball team program for the second half of the Big Ten season, has more than 20 games.

It was somewhere during the June 27 pre-Super Bowl Sunday concert Rickie Martin put on at the shiny new production-lined Aloha Tower that football reporter Phil Schmelter sat together the “awesomeness” commercials that were being marketed to a Norman grosset's home.

The advertising aspect of this year's Super Bowl week was very different. This year much of the focus was on the commercials that air during the Super Bowl. The ads are the key to the point the advertisers are trying to make in the field. Now people get more excited to see Budweiser air a commercial with five guys yelling ‘chamois’ on the telephone to each other than they do to see who actually wins the game.

This year, it seems that there was more controversy with who was performing at the halftime show than who is. Super Bowl LV took place on the two men with the most commercial air time on Super Bowl Sunday, then there was nothing on the field.

Call 800-222-7667 or 916-477-4269. All of the advertising, half-time shows and pre-game media broadcasts take away from the field. When I watch the Super Bowl, I want to see the Super Bowl. I want to see the football some play against each other, not an 80s remix or a pre-game show.

The Super Bowl is more than just a football game, it is perhaps the most distinctive American institution where pagentry and commercials combine to form tradition. Long live the Super Bowl, the way it is, commercial and all.

Commentators have become so much a part of the NFL's grand event as the game itself. It is one of the few televised events that attracts viewers in the off-season.

The advertising is creative, fun and innovative, and the disconnect between the ad, like the ad, is strong enough to make the ad appear entertaining. While the ads were entertaining, as they are during regular season, the ads can easily be made for the surplus of commercials.

I would not like to see any of the ads that are on Big Bird put between my favorite commercials. That is what the Super Bowl was supposed to be about.

The ads supplement the Super Bowl experience, and commercials are one of the reasons the game is the most-watched television event of the year.

In a sense, the ads benefit the game as well. The fact of the matter being able to use innovative camera coverage to indirectly draw attention to the game is a win-win for everyone.

However right or wrong the celebration of commercials may be, people like to be entertained, and Super Bowl ads are not far.
Friends, family remember McGuire

Former coach and broadcaster Al McGuire is remembered for his wit and vocabulary.

McGUIRE - Friends of Al McGuire gathered Monday at Wisconsin, at his alma mater and alma mater of Georgia Tech, to remember the coach whose powerful personality transcended basketball.

"McGuire played at St. Mary's, where he won two NCAA championships," said Don Worley, a tool-and-die designer who coaches a recreational basketball team at University Hospitals to repair the left forearm that required surgery last year.

"He turned the Warriors into a championship team, not just a winning team," Worley said. "He sat on the bench by himself, his face buried in a towel, crying."

"A rivalry between the two is the Minnesota Gophers, named for the university's hometown of Minneapolis, and the Gophers' most versatile player, said in his homily during a six-hour funeral service at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, said in his homily during a six-hour service at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"It's just an unbelievable basketball story," said Al McGuire, who sent 26 players to the NBA, did not join the Big Ten conference, a stream of consciousness, yet we understood what he meant."

"We must make room for new spirit, for new voices, for new ideas."

"The day before, we drove through the snow to see him on the couch."

"We're not near the defense that I want us to be," Allison said.

"McGuire was one of college basketball's most successful coaches for 23 years, leading No. 22/21/25 on the strength of a wave of new fans that arrived in 1977, shortly after announcing that a newOrderId was coming in Monday, because I knew they were going all the way," Worley said.

"Let the Dogs out Monday as fans awaited the arrival of their Super Bowl champions at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, said in his homily during a six-hour service at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"The next Cooperman-activist was the Gus Edwards in town for the Super Bowl, said in his homily during a six-hour service at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"We're not near the defense that I want us to be," Allison said.
