Ex-strongman Milosevic behind bars

■ The former Yugoslav leader faces charges that he stole $390 million from the treasury.

By George Jahn
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A haggard Slobodan Milosevic proclaimed his innocence of corruption charges linked to his dictatorial 13-year rule, as authorities questioned the former president Sunday and ordered him to be jailed for 30 days.

Though the Yugoslav government says it intends to try him at home for ruining the nation, the U.N. war crimes tribunal in The Hague, Netherlands, stepped up pressure for Milosevic to be handed over to face prosecution over alleged atrocities in Kosovo.

"We are expecting him soon. It will be Milosevic in The Hague in 2001," tribunal spokeswoman Florence Hartmann said Sunday. Another spokesman, Jim Landale, said Yugoslavia had a "binding obligation" to turn him over.

Milosevic's lawyer said the 59-year-old ousted leader, now in Belgrade's Central Prison, was exhausted and had been sedated after a 26-hour armed standoff in his besieged villa and a stormy night of negotiations that ended with his surrender to police before dawn Sunday.

Barricaded in his sprawling luxury villa in Belgrade, Milosevic had reportedly at one point brandished a pistol and threatened to kill himself and members of his family. He agreed to surrender after being assured he would not be immediately turned over to the Hague.

His lawyer, Toma Fila, said Milosevic told an interrogating judge Sunday that he was not guilty of "a single count of the charge sheet." The judge ordered Milosevic held for 30 days as prosecutors gather evidence — an order Fila said his client was appealing.

"He decided to defend him-

Second meth-lab bust raises concern

■ A couple is arrested in Coralville two days after an Iowa City man was busted.

By Tony Robinson
The Daily Iowan

The recent arrests of three Iowa City residents for their alleged involvement in the production of methamphetamine has brought local awareness to a steadily increasing statewide problem.

Tammy Sue Koehn, 38, and Michael Scott Dooley, 34, both of 328 B'jaysville Lane No. 2, were arrested on March 31 after allegedly purchasing materials needed to make the controlled substance at the Coralville Wal-Mart Supercenter.

Their arrests came just two days after authorities arrested the first methamphetamine laboratory found within the Iowa City city limits. Donovan Wyse, 31, was charged with producing methamphetamines in his residence at 2017 Keokuk St. No. 7. Wyse, Koehn and Dooley are all facing Class

Last Call on drink specials?

The Daily Iowan examines the new alcohol ordinance, which the council begins considering Tuesday.

■ The Iowa City City Council will act on the first of three readings of the alcohol ordinance.

By Megan L. Eckhardt
The Daily Iowan

The face of the Iowa City bar scene may be changing.

Drink specials and happy hours — and the advertisements for them — will taper off, more identification will need to be shown, and police presence in bars could rise. That is, if Tuesday night's five-part alcohol-ordinance vote goes as expected. The Iowa City City Council will act on the first of three readings of the proposal.

The purpose of the ordinance is to reduce the amount of underage and excessive drinking and to place an obligation on establishments to follow the law.

The city has discussed the issue of alcohol use in Iowa City for at least five years, said Mayor Ernie Lehman. Only in the last year did the council decide to consider an ordinance to try to curb the problem.

The council delayed drafting the proposal because of the timing of the discussion — near summer. Councilors wanted to allow for student input, Lehman said.

"It was not a good idea to do it in the summer without the kids having some input," he said.

Community and UI support was exhibited in numerous correspondence with the city. Officials received more than 200 letters and e-mails from parents of UI students last year alone, stating the council should address the problem, Lehman said.

The council questioned placing a restriction on the entrance age into bars last year, an interest iterated this spring.

"There is a universal concern that something needs to be done," he said. "Going 21 is always an option, but it's not the first choice."

The first choice is an ordinance prohibiting drink specials, such as

■ The city's proposed ordinance, if passed, would ban happy hours and certain drink specials.

By Nick Narigon
The Daily Iowan

Some establishments won't have difficulty sliding around the legal wording of an alcohol ordinance under consideration by the Iowa City City Council, said a local bar owner. But other bars may not still be around to find out, another bar owner added.

The ordinance, if passed, would ban 2-for-1 drink specials, unlimited drinks for a fixed price, happy hours and the advertisement of drink specials.

"There will still be drink specials," said Dave Moore, a co-owner of the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St., and College Street Billiard Club & Deli, 114 E. College St. "Instead of selling two bottles for $3, you can sell one bottle for $1.50."

If the ordinance passes and bar owners find a way to continue serving drinks cheaply, the council will look at making changes to the ordinance at a later date, said Mayor Ernie Lehman.

"I'm sure there are some innovative folks who will find a way to serve specials," he said. "What you really do is pass an ordinance and look at the effects and then make neces-

'Rain forest' museum garners new foe

■ The Iowa Citizens Against CHILD-ishness says funds should be used for something feasible.

By Mike McWilliams
The Daily Iowan

A new group opposed to the Iowa Child Institute's plan to develop an 85-acre rain forest/education complex near Coralville has formed in the last month.

The new organization, called "Iowa Citizens Against CHILD-ishness," was founded by former state Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones and local author

Robert Sayre. The two started the organization by sending a letter to more than 80 local and state officials, asking them to "be very cautious" about supporting the $293 million Iowa Child project.

Since sending out the letter on March 1, the group has garnered more than 30 sponsors, and it continues to grow every day, Lloyd-Jones said.

"As more people read the letter, more and more people are joining," she said. "It's a group that hasn't gelled yet."

The money used to finance the project should be used for something "more feasible," said Iowa City Councilor and organization-sponsor Connie Champion.

"I think there are an endless number of things that you can spend the money on that are already in Iowa," she said. Investing in school repairs and state parks would be better ways to spend the money, she said.

The new group also questions the accuracy of the projected 1.1 million to 1.5 million annual visitors that Iowa Child organizers are predicting the complex will attract. Lloyd-Jones called the figure "greatly exaggerated" because comparable facilities with much larger population bases attract the same number of or fewer visitors.

"For example, the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago only gets 1.3 million yearly visitors," she said.

Environmentally speaking, the group said in a statement released to the media, "we should be looking for ways to foster sustainable development and conserve resources, not more ways to waste them."

Iowa Citizens Against CHILD-ishness also does not like the implications behind selling the Iowa Child project as an educational venture. Lloyd-Jones said this sends the wrong message and that the children should be taught to preserve the natural resources in Iowa — not a fake rain forest.

But Iowa Child proponent and Coralville Mayor Jim Fausett said his main concern is that the members of Iowa Citizens Against CHILD-ishness are opposed to something they don't have all the facts about. He said that until the data presented by the project's consultants and architects can be refuted, it should be accepted.

Fausett also applauded the educational benefits that could be gained from the project.

"To see how a rain forest works, and how its components interact, is educational in itself," he said.

Greeks take to the lawns to aid elders

■ Greek Week kicks off with a spring-cleaning project.

By Mary Johnson
The Daily Iowan

Armed with rakes, brooms and cleaning supplies, members of the Greek community kicked off Greek Week Sunday morning by cleaning houses and doing yard work for local elderly citizens.

Approximately 65 students took part in the first-ever "Into the Streets Philanthropy" event, which was sponsored by the Order of Omega Greek honor society.

"It's great for our volunteers to get out into the community," said UI senior Beth Hummel, the president of Order of Omega. "We will be able to help people who may not have a lot of visitors. Maybe we can put a little cheer into their day."

Sixty-two-year-old Sharon Stubbs of Coralville received a visit Sunday afternoon from three Greeks who raked leaves and did other yard work for her. Stubbs has scoliosis, abnormal lateral curvature of the spine that prevents her from doing a large amount of physical movement.

"I have had to learn to accept the help," she said. "I was always a very independent person."

Order of Omega members organized the spring-cleaning day with the intention of promoting the event as noncompetitive, unlike other Greek Week events, Hummel said. The group plans to make the philanthropy an annual tradition, she said.

The service project was the first event of Greek Week, a time of celebration for Greeks on campus. All Greek chapters receive points for participation, and at the end of the week, the top fraternity/sorority pairing will be recognized.

"You can compare Greek Week activities with UI Homecoming week," said Alyson Green, a UI senior and the executive committee director. "We want to display a positive image of the Greeks to the outside communities."

Money raised from Greek Week will benefit the Elizabeth Glaser Pediatric AIDS Foundation of California for pediatric research and programs worldwide. The Greeks chose the organization because the foundation is well-recognized with plenty of celebrity sponsors, said UI junior Matthew Peasley, a member of the executive committee.

The biggest fund-raiser is Penny Wars, in which groups will collaborate to try to raise $10,000 by collecting 1 million we hope to inch our way closer."

N. Liberty-I.C. commuter train could become reality

■ Alliant wants to re-establish passenger service on the GRANDIC line.

By Eric Coop
The Daily Iowan

Some officials want to revive passenger rail service between Iowa City and North Liberty as a transportation alternative for residents of the towns.

Alliant Energy Transportation's proposal to re-establish GRANDIC passenger service would have train stops on the UI campus, near the Veterans Affairs Medical Center, in Coralville, on the UI Oakdale Campus and in North Liberty.

In light of rising gas prices and North Liberty's booming population, the train service would be a welcome development for residents who work in the Iowa City/Coralville area but live in North Liberty, approximately 10 miles away, officials say. The 2000 Census shows the town's population grew by more than 80 percent in the last 10 years.

But officials are still deciding whether the proposal is a realistic undertaking.

"At this point in time, we are in the very preliminary stages," said Paul Treangen, Alliant Transportation's vice president. His company has discussed the idea with Iowa City, UI and Coralville officials in order to find ways to fund the project, he said.

Officials will conduct a study to see whether the passenger line is viable, Treangen said. Then, the railroad would have to upgrade its tracks, construct facilities, and purchase rolling stock for the passenger trains, he said.

"We have a lot of possibilities for passenger cars," he said. "We could have cars that look like a bus on the rails and seat 100 to 200 people."

The new pedestrian bridge over Highway 6 near the VA Medical Center was built with the possibility of implementing a passenger rail service in mind, said John Yapp, the Johnson County transportation planner.

"We are still thinking about areas we can design for platform use, but it's still in the study phase," he said. "We look at the proposal as a positive thing."

The idea of having passenger rail service on the route has been around since train service between Iowa City and Cedar Rapids halted in 1953, Yapp said.

That service started in 1904 and ran from downtown Iowa City to Cedar Rapids, with stops in Coralville, North Liberty and Swisher.

But the proposed service would not go to Cedar Rapids, Treangen said. A feasibility study indicated such a service would not be able to compete with traffic on Interstate 380, he said. Service to Cedar Rapids could be considered in the future as a feeder for the Amtrak route through Iowa City that may begin as soon as 2003, he said.

'Survivor' Gray battles discrimination

Ramona Gray urges young women to shatter the barriers confronting them.

By Mary Sedor
The Daily Iowan

Repeating her mother's advice, Ramona Gray told a group of young women that they could break barriers and reach their potential.

Gray, an original contestant on "Survivor," was the keynote speaker at the third-annual Sister Connection Conference at the IMU on March 31.

"My mama always told me I could do anything I put my mind to," she told the audience of approximately 50. "Now, I'm telling you."

As the only African American and one of only three women in her division at Merck & Co. Inc., a pharmaceutical company that develops health products for humans and animals, research chemist Gray said she knows what it is like to break barriers; her field is generally dominated by middle-aged white men.

"On one hand, as an African American, it is an honor to be the only one. I see myself as a trailblazer," said Gray, who earned her undergraduate and master's degrees from Howard University, in Washington, D.C. "But that is not good enough. Now, I have to reach back to bring people up to where I am."

During the speech, she talked about on the obstacles that women of color face at their job, in their community and even in their self-image.

"Every day, I face sexism and racism, and anyone who says these don't exist has blinders on," she said. "It is hard not to be aware of the differences, but if we concentrate on what we have in common, more people could open their eyes."

Kim Kennedy/The Daily Iowan

Ramona Gray, who was on the TV show "Survivor," speaks at the Sister Connection luncheon in the IMU Richey Ballroom on March 31.

By dealing with such difficulties, Gray said, she has learned to open her eyes to the similarities among races and of the need to be colorblind.

The Sister Connection Conference was geared toward, but not limited to, female students of color. It was sponsored by the Women's Resource and Action Center and other UI departments and community organizations.

Nadeja Wesley, a UI alumna, said she came up with the idea for the conference while doing graduate work in the School of Social Work. Monique DiCarlo, the WRAC director, helped to start the conference.

"I saw the need for women of color to find some way to tap into the university," Wesley said.

Participants of the conference were able to attend three sessions of workshops facilitated by professors and graduate students from the UI and area colleges. The workshops covered a variety of topics, including volunteerism, achieving financial security and developing spirituality.

Gabriela Rivera, a conference chairwoman, hoped that the workshops and speakers would inspire the participants and give them the opportunity to attain leadership roles.

"The conference provides a space for them to learn about potential resources they need to succeed," she said. "This give them the opportunity to work with other women of color on campus, which may not happen otherwise."

Possible fire only burned food

Upon receiving a call about a possible fire at the Hawkeye Court Apartments Sunday afternoon, UI Public Safety and the Iowa City Fire Department arrived to find that it was nothing more than smoking food.

Firefighters were forced to break out a window of Apt. 449 when no one responded to their calls and knocks, said Public Safety Sgt. Mike Hanks.

No one was injured, and the broken window was the only damage, he said.

Firefighters emerged from the smoke-filled apartment with a burned pot that had been left on a hot stove, said Brian Finley, 15, an upstairs neighbor. No flames were present, and no water was used.

Jean Finley, Brian's mother, said she heard the fire trucks and immediately wondered if she and her son would have to evacuate.

"We heard fire guys breaking through the window downstairs," she said. "We wondered if we should leave, and if so, what we should take."

Burned food is the cause of most fire calls that turn out to be false alarms, Hanks said.

Pilot OK after emergency landing

After his plane lost power, Ronald Ulbrich of Santa Fe, N.M., was forced to make a somewhat bumpy landing at the Iowa City Airport Sunday evening.

The pilot was able to establish contact with tower employees at the Cedar Rapids airport. The airport employees then notified the Iowa City police that he would be attempting an emergency landing.

By the time officers arrived at the scene, the plane was on the ground, with only minor damages, according to police reports. Though an ambulance was available, Ulbrich, who was on his way to Cedar Rapids from Santa Fe, declined treatment and reported no injuries. There were no passengers in the plane with Ulbrich at the time of the incident, said Sgt. Kevin Heick.

While mechanical problems were responsible for the crash, as of Sunday there were conflicting reports on what exactly was wrong with the plane. Employees at the Cedar Rapids Airport said engine problems, while Iowa City police reported that it was nose or front-landing-gear problems.

Sex offender living in area

The Iowa City police are informing the public that a convicted sex offender is living in the area.

Adam L. Bush, 18, is a registered sex offender residing at 1250 Dover St. He was convicted of indecent exposure on Dec. 15, 2000. His victim was a 20-year-old female.

Bush is a 5-foot-6 white male, weighing 140 pounds.

After a Iowa Department of Public Safety assessment, he is considered at "moderate risk" to re-offend.

Police say the notification is to serve only as a means for members of the public to protect themselves. Action taken by anyone against him, including vandalism, threats of physical harm or physical assault can result in arrest and prosecution.

Not a likely drinking oasis

Iowa City bars probably won't lose business to Coralville, say officials and tavern owners.

By Jen Brown
The Daily Iowan

Coralville officials say some Iowa City bar owners' worries that they will lose business to Coralville establishments because of the proposed alcohol ordinance is likely unfounded.

Coralville Chief of Police Barry Bedford said he doesn't foresee a "switch" in Coralville's current bar clientele.

"I don't think it will make that big of a difference at this time," he said.

Bars in Coralville have a different feel, and people enjoy the personality of their favorite bar regardless of drink prices, Bedford said. Young people go to bars to socialize and prefer establishments with walking distance, he said.

Some Iowa City bar owners aren't convinced.

"Iowa City is business-unfriendly," said Dave

Moore, a co-owner of the Fieldhouse Restaurant & Bar, 111 E. College St. "You are going to see customers going out to Coralville."

And some Coralville bars are hoping for a bit of an increase.

"We're expecting we will get some more business," said Andrew Black, the bar manager at the Vine Tavern & Eatery in Coralville. "I certainly wouldn't mind more business. It's a market that we're certainly going to try to get in to."

Black said the Vine won't implement more drink specials to lure Iowa City residents, but it will promote more of the specials the bar already has.

A clientele "switch" may occur if a new bar catering to students is built in Coralville or if existing bars go out of their way to attract students, Bedford said. But Coralville bars are very successful with their current clientele, he added.

"The bars here are a shade different," agreed Coralville City Councilor Diana Lundell, adding that many Coralville bars have fewer drink specials and often serve food.

Coralville residents might not appreciate Iowa City patrons, she said.

"If you like your place for certain reasons and things change, it might cause some bad feelings," Lundell said.

Though she doesn't foresee Coralville bars catering to students, she said that if it begins to present a problem, the Coralville council will consider enacting constraints similar to Iowa City's proposed ordinance.

Carol Belding, the owner of Charlie's Bar and Grill in Coralville, said most of the clientele at given bars travel within their own neighborhoods.

"Most of the people who drink in Coralville live in Coralville," she said.

Some UI students, including sophomore Drew Annis, agree.

"I don't think people will go to Coralville to drink," he said. "I think, in general, people will pay more for the convenience of being able to walk to their drinking destination."

2-for-1 drinks, all-you-can-drink offers and "happy hours." The proposal also bans out-of-sight sales, allowing only one drink per person to be purchased at a time. Pitchers, wine bottles and carafes must be directly served at table-side and all the patrons must verify they are of legal age.

Increasing the amount of alcohol without increasing the price of the drink, alcohol as a prize in bar-sponsored games and dispensing alcohol directly into a person's mouth would also be prohibited.

The proposal would fine bars violating the ordinance $500 for the first offense and increase the penalties for future convictions. If authorities discover that an establishment is permitting underage drinking and/or selling to intoxicated people, it would have to face the council directly in a hearing.

Establishments would be policed by the presence of undercover officers and trained personnel.

Three public readings of the proposal are required for adoption. The ordinance is scheduled to go into effect June 1.

Steve Parrott, the director of university communications, has written the city in the past in support of the alcohol proposal. He said he believes it has the possibility to reduce drinking and the number of people affected, but he thinks it's not the only method.

"Too many people drink too much and then hurt people. We have a right to try to control that," he said. "It's been proven that if access is reduced, it reduces the amount of drinking. It doesn't say it eliminates it, but it reduces it."

Along with enforcing new laws, offering alternative activities may also play a part in decreasing alcohol consumption, Parrott said.

"That's not the only way to address the problem. There's no one solution," he said. "All those things are needed to help solve the problem."

Nancy Davin, an Iowa City resident and mother of two teens, said she is pleased that the council is sary changes."

Because the Airliner, 22 S. Clinton St., admits only 21-year-olds after the dinner hour and serves drinks directly to the table, the ordinance could have positive results for the restaurant by putting some of its competition out of business, said Randy Larson, a co-owner of the establishment.

"If they pass something that is actually effective, we will see a lot of closings," he said, referring to bars that won't be able to afford to remain open if the ordinance is passed.

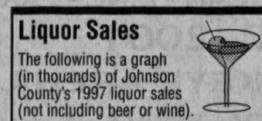

The proposed ordinance could really hurt business at bars that get a majority of their business from underage drinkers, Larson said.

"I think anything that decreases the amount of underage drinking helps us," he said.

The ordinance could have a positive effect on bars because they will have to sell alcohol at a higher price, thus earning more revenue, Lehman said.

But to stay competitive, said Matt Wilson, a manager at the Sports Column, bars will actually have to lower alcohol prices across the board.

"As far as we are concerned,

The following is a graph (in thousands) of Johnson County's 1997 liquor sales (not including beer or wine).

Wilson predicts that sales will drop if the ordinance is passed. Other aspects of the ordinance, which stipulate that pitchers and carafes can only be served to tables where all patrons are 21 and over, will hurt local bars, Moore said.

"Twenty-one-year-olds won't be able to have pitchers with friends without being harassed," he said.

Tourism from visiting students will die off if the ordinance is passed, Moore said. Football fans visiting from Ohio State during games don't want to be harassed by bartenders and will go to Wisconsin to watch the Buckeyes take on the Badgers instead of the Hawkeyes, he said.

UI sophomore Brent Robinson, who will turn 21 on May 16, said the ordinance will not solve binge drinking and will only cause opposition among students. Students will find other places to get cheap alcohol if drink specials are limited, he said.

"I hate this town," he said. "I'm going to transfer to Iowa State."

The Chamber of Commerce said it is not good business to serve drink specials, said Mark Phillips, the chairman of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, but the group is opposed to making bars 21-only. Following results from a task force the chamber assembled last summer on the alcohol situation in Iowa City, something needs to change, he said.

Either the city or the bar owners need to find a way to curb unlimited drinking for fixed prices, he said.

City Councilor Connie Champion said she doubts whether the ordinance will drive bars out of town.

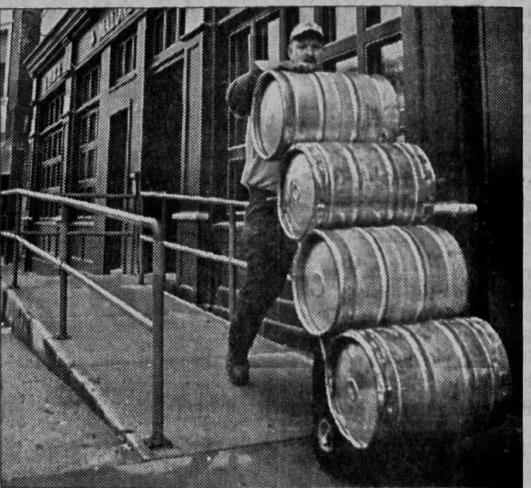

"I think (the bar owners are) whining because they are going to have to have more control, maybe hire more help," she said.

Local bars have had ample time to fix the problem but have done nothing, she said.

While the city has good intentions, Moore said, ordinance will not cut down on binge or underage drinking because alcohol is still available to minors at house parties.

"If you can still go to Quik Trip or Hy-Vee to buy a keg or bottle of Jack Daniel's, nothing will be solved," he said.

popular, as some have speculated, business could be more prosperous for John's Grocery Inc., said store manager Grace Jordan.

"If there were a rise in house parties, we would sell larger quantities of alcohol," she said.

Students for Local Politics has scheduled a rally outside City Hall for Tuesday night. The ordinance will hurt UI students as well as the Iowa City community, UI Student Government President Nick Klenske said.

"We feel the parental role they are taking only turns off and angers students," he said. "Limiting drink specials will not solve the problem of binge drinking. Instead, this excessive drinking will occur in houses."

UI business, medical and law schools see rankings increase the Tippie College of Business is ranked among the top 50 business schools, in a six-way tie for 35th. Jumping three spots, the College of Medicine ranked 29th, and the College of Law moved up one spot to No. 20.

Each year, the magazine evaluates five major disciplines: business, education, engineering, law and medicine. US News determines the rankings based on factors specific for each discipline.

For example, law-school rankings measure the quality of students, student-faculty ratio and money devoted per student. When ranking business colleges, 40 percent of the weight comes from the school's academic reputation, which is based on surveys conducted in the fall.

Business Dean Gary Fethke said he was not surprised that the business school suddenly reappeared in the top 50. He feels the school is really no different from what it was last year, besides having an increased placement rate.

The school doesn't always do well with the reputational criteria, he said, because the UI is one of the smallest schools included in the top 50.

"Because Iowa is such a rural state, we don't have a large number of corporate employers, which makes us always struggle compared with more populated states," Fethke said.

Law Dean N. William Hines said he doesn't specifically know why the school moved up, because the rankings are often mysterious.

He said some reasons might include the 100 percent placement rate in the class of 2000, the law library's current rank of No. 2 in the country and a low student-faculty ratio, fourth among the top 25 law schools.

"I think too many people take these much too seriously. For better or for worse, this is a currency used to evaluate law schools all over the country," Hines said.

Out of the five major disciplines judged, none of the UI standings dropped in the report.

Individual programs within each category were judged as well. Some did not place as high as they did last year, such as the College of Medicine's Primary Care Program, which fell two spots to No. 8.

Fillmer appeals abuse conviction

■ The Iowa City man had been sentenced to 25 years in prison.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man sentenced to 25 years in prison in March after being convicted of sexually abusing his daughter's grade-school friends will appeal.

Dominic Fillmer, 29, filed his appeal notice on March 29 for his sentencing on two counts each of second-degree sexual abuse, false imprisonment and indecent exposure, one count of lascivious acts with a child and one count of dissemination and exhibition of obscene materials to a minor.

The appeal is an attempt to reverse or modify the decision of the Johnson County District Court — a process that, on average, takes between nine months and one year, said Fillmer's attorney, Crystal Usher. The Iowa Supreme Court will decide whether to review the case.

"He's appealing the factual findings of the court and the evidence supporting those," Usher said. "He has always said he did not do it."

Allegations regarding sleepovers at the Fillmer house first arose in the fall of 1997, and they continued through 2000.

On one occasion, Fillmer made his 6-year-old victim touch his genitalia by disguising it as a plant. He did not allow the child to leave until she did so. Fillmer's daughter was present during at least one of his acts, but she testified that she did not see anything.

Also on March 29, Fillmer entered an Alford plea — not admitting guilt but acknowledging the likelihood of his being convicted on the charges — to accusations of indecent contact with a child and dissemination and exhibition of obscene materials to a minor as part of an agreement with the state.

The agreement allows Fillmer to serve "the best sentence possible — one that would not affect his appeal," Usher said.

He will serve one 365-day prison term for the charges concurrently with his 25-year sentence. In one month, he will have already fulfilled this additional yearlong sentence because he has been in custody since May 2000, Usher said.

Senate poised to pass soft-$ ban

■ Campaign-finance reform foes eye their opportunities in a Senate-House conference committee.

By Brigitte Greenberg
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senators from both parties predicted Sunday they will pass campaign-finance reform, while opponents held out hope of derailing it if the House and Senate must compromise between competing versions of the legislation.

If the Senate passes the bill today, as expected, the House could then reject it, go along with the Senate version word-for-word, or pass its own measure. The last option was seen as mostly likely, lawmakers said Sunday.

In that case, a small number of senators and House members would be appointed to a conference committee that would work to resolve differences in the two versions and send a compromise back to both chambers for passage.

Those negotiations may offer an opening for foes of the legislation.

"Clearly the conference ... is a time to negotiate with the (Bush) administration and see if we can come up with a bill that actually improves the system," Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., a leading Senate opponent of campaign-finance reform, told "Fox News Sunday."

President Bush has been circumspect about whether he would sign the bill into law. He said last week that he would sign any legislation that "improves the system" now in place.

McConnell already has said that if the bill passes Congress, he plans a lawsuit to challenge it as an unconstitutional infringement on the right to free speech.

Navy plane, Chinese jet collide

■ The U.S. surveillance plane lands in China; the Chinese fighter crashes, and its pilot is believed missing.

By Joe McDonald
Associated Press

BEIJING — A U.S. Navy surveillance plane collided with a Chinese fighter jet sent to intercept it over the South China Sea Sunday and made an emergency landing in China. The Chinese government said the fighter crashed and its pilot was missing.

China quickly blamed the U.S. aircraft for the collision off the southern Chinese island of Hainan. But the commander of U.S. Pacific military forces said that the slower U.S. plane was more likely to have been hit by the nimble Chinese fighter. "It's pretty obvious who bumped whom," said Adm. Dennis Blair in Hawaii.

The incident comes at an uneasy time in U.S.-Chinese relations. The Bush administration has taken a warier attitude toward Beijing, and the president is reportedly leaning towards selling Taiwan much of the high-tech weapons it seeks — a sale bitterly opposed by China.

The American EP-3 plane landed at a military airfield on Hainan. None of the 24 crew members was injured, said Col. John Bratton, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command in Hawaii. The status of the crew and control of the plane on the ground were unclear.

Chinese officials assured the United States that the crew was safe, and American diplomats were going to Hainan to see them, said U.S. Ambassador Joseph Prueher. He said he had talked several times with Secretary of State Colin Powell. President Bush was briefed on the episode Sunday morning, an administration official said.

The U.S. plane was on a rou-

NATION BRIEF

Energy prices pump up firms' rankings

NEW YORK (AP) — Surging U.S. energy prices gave oil, gas and power companies new fuel in their climb through the ranks of the annual Fortune 500.

Oil giant Exxon Mobil Corp. posted its highest-ever revenue of $210 billion in 2000, boosting it to No. 1 on the list from its 1999 ranking as No. 3. Automaker General Motors Corp. had revenue of $184.6 billion and fell from No. 1 to No. 3.

Other energy companies also fared well in 2000, with Enron Corp. rising to No. 7 from No. 18 and Duke Energy Corp. shooting to No. 17 from 69. Both companies were among the major purchasers of California's power-generating plants. Reliant Energy Inc. also rose, to No. 55 from 114.

The list of the largest publicly held companies, ranked by fiscal year revenues, has been compiled annually since 1955 by the editors of Fortune.

Energy companies benefited from a surge in revenue brought about by falling supplies, utility deregulation, soaring natural-gas prices and OPEC's maneuvering to keep oil prices high. In the past year, crude oil has sold for as much as $30 a barrel, and gasoline cost more than $2 a gallon last summer in some parts of the United States.

Something like really bad TV

Film: Someone Like You
Director: Tony Goldwyn
Writer: Elizabeth Chandler
Starring: Ashley Judd, Greg Kinnear and Hugh Jackman
Length: 93 minutes

Someone Like You seems more like really bad television than a movie. Complete with annoying voiceover, clever titles to divide scenes and fantasy sequences in which characters talk directly to the camera, the film reminded me of "Frasier"-meets-"Ally McBeal," minus the charm or wit — just the short skirts and man trouble.

Ashley Judd plays Jane Goodale, a talent booker for a wanna-be-Oprah daytime talk show. Jane falls in love with the show's attractive new executive producer, Ray (Greg Kinnear), only to be dumped inexplicably a few months later. To make matters worse, Jane is now out of an apartment, having given up her place to move in with Ray. (The moral: Don't give up your Manhattan apartment unless you are absolutely sure he or she is the one.)

Now desperate, Jane moves in with Eddie (X-Men's Hugh Jackman), her sluttily coworker who treats women like queens — for a night. Of course, Eddie isn't really a bad guy; this is a romantic comedy, after all. Eddie just uses casual sex as a way to prevent any further heart-break because he, too, has been hurt before. (Do you see where this is going?)

Jane can't figure out why she keeps losing guys like Ray, until one day she stumbles on her answer — the Old Cow, New Cow theory. This theory suggests that men are like bulls, which will mate with a female cow once, lose interest, and move on to a new cow.

The plot takes a twist when Jane's friend, Liz (Marisa Tomei), asks her to explain her views in a magazine column under the pseudonym of a 65-year-old Ph.D. named Marie Charles. The mysterious Dr. Charles becomes a hit, as jilted women everywhere start subscribing to the new-cow theory.

In a movie filled with thankless roles, Judd's is the most demanding. She turns in a winning performance, despite having to cry every 10 minutes or so, whether it's because of a broken heart or a broken heel. But her cute expressions and determination provide some laughs even when the script ne enough romantic comedies; otherwise, she'd know it never pays to be the other woman.

And poor Tomei. If Kate Hudson is depressed about losing the Oscar for Best Supporting Actress, she need look no further for support than the downward spiral that is Tomei's career. The former Oscar winner (for My Cousin Vinny) is reduced here to playing the stereotypical role of the brash, overly dramatic best friend who claims to have all the answers but is really just as clueless as everyone else.

As Eddie, Jackman's stern demeanor provides a nice counterpart for Judd. It's too bad the film's clunky script couldn't give him some better lines. In an early scene he is told by a freckle-faced intern that he can't smoke on the set. His response: "Blow me."

Clever, huh? Screenwriter Elizabeth Chandler and director Tony Goldwyn have their hearts in the right place, and Someone Like You features two fine lead performances, but if intelligent romantic comedy is what you want, there's no need to go to the multiplex — just turn on the TV.

Gabe's, March 31

Musician Jonathan Richman, best known for appearing briefly in the movie There's Something About Mary, was a star at Gabe's on March 31. He captivated the audience with his style and kilowatt smile. Richman's songs featured his own type of humor; his comedy was less-aggressive but no less odd than that of the movie.

Wax Cannon opened, with guitarist Jay Miller and drummer David Murray sharing vocals. The duo rocked hard, performing with energy and stamina.

Vocalist/guitarist Richman and drummer Tommy Larkin followed, wearing black blazers over T-shirts. Richman's performance was opposite that of Wax Cannon, which employed loud, chord-driven melodies and indistinguishable lyrics. Richman's performance on acoustic guitar was precise, and his lyrics were clever and central to his show. His smooth, authoritative voice was full of expression.

Richman's vocal inflections highlighted the comic aspects of songs about Van Gogh, guitars and the Velvet Underground. Songs were based on simple rhymes, such as this one from "Nineteen in Naples": "When I was 19, I went across the sea/And I found myself in Italy."

He introduced most guitar solos by stepping away from the mike and shouting, "guitar" (or "guitarra" in songs with Spanish lyrics). He often stepped back to dance, contorting as wildly as if he were learning to roller skate.

Larkin provided musical variety by regularly changing the implements with which he played his glittering silver drum set.

Richman performed with sophistication and style but without pretentiousness. That would be a tough role for a professional actor, but Richman's performance appeared effortless.

Rebecca's Statue
The Q Bar, March 31

Whether it was the inspirational way dreadlocked bassist Chris Gangi was carried away by the music or the explosive guitar and keyboard solos of Mike Grill and Ben Nusbaum, something was definitely special about Rebecca's Statue's performance at the Q Bar on March 31. For, as the evening progressed, the focus and intensity of the band members grew to such a point that it was hard to tell whether they were playing the music or the music was playing them.

Rebecca's Statue's emphasis throughout the night was on its instrumental talents, with both guitarists showing off their chops on a number of occasions and drummer Marshall Greenhouse demonstrating the intelligence of a jazz musician with the power hits of a hair-banded heavy metalist. The Chicago-based quintet used its finely tuned abilities on a number of original songs that covered a wide range of genres, including R&B, folk and blues. Also mixed into the two-hour set were a few covers, including the Allman Brothers Band's "Whipping

Post" and Stevie Wonder's "Superstition."

The next time Rebecca's Statue visits Iowa City, it's a show that shouldn't be missed. If you'd like to hear more from the group, it just finished recording "Suzy Greenberg" for the upcoming Phish tribute album that features Blues Traveler, Little Feat and Los Lobos.

Ashcroft reaches out to critics

■ The much-criticized attorney general works to improve his civil-rights image.

By Karen Gullo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As if to say "Take that!" to his critics, Attorney General John Ashcroft has spent his first months at the Justice Department pounding out civil-rights initiatives, assembling a racially diverse group of senior deputies and reaching out to groups that opposed his confirmation.

After a bruising Senate confirmation in which Democrats piled on criticism about Ashcroft's conservatism and record on racial matters, the former Missouri senator seems to have gone out of his way to show a gentler side.

Ashcroft says his actions reflect his beliefs and are not designed to turn his critics around.

His efforts have earned tepid praise from his critics. But they say his early initiatives are not as robust as they could be.

"There's no question that there is an extensive public-relations campaign going on, but we have to wait and see if there's real substance to what's he's proposed," said Ralph Neas, the president of the liberal People For the American Way, which opposed Ashcroft's nomination.

Ashcroft has pleased his conservative audience, too.

He went after the entertainment and video-game industries for contributing to what he said was an "ethic of violence" that leads youngsters to lash out with guns. Ashcroft also reaffirmed his position that more gun laws or government programs will not solve the problem of violence in schools.

He is fond of reciting the "Humpty Dumpty" nursery rhyme to illustrate his point that the "king's men" — meaning government — cannot do what is the responsibility of parents, schools, teachers and communities.

Ashcroft declined to reopen an investigation into the case of Amadou Diallo, the unarmed African immigrant gunned down in 1999 by New York City police officers, and he refused to back down on his opposition to the nomination of Missouri Supreme Court Judge Ronnie White, a black, for a federal judgeship.

"He has taken tremendous first steps in cleaning up the Justice Department," said Lori Cole, the executive director of the conservative Eagle Forum.

Ashcroft has kept alive the investigation of former President Clinton's pardons, albeit at arms length, putting U.S. Attorney Mary Jo White of New York, a Democrat, in charge of looking into all money-for-pardons allegations.

"We all know that the president's authority is a very broad authority, but I don't think anybody argues that the authority of the president, though, is to sell pardons," Ashcroft said last week, quickly adding that he was not suggesting that's what Clinton did.

He stumbled, though, last week when, during a news conference, he talked about weighing the death penalty in espionage cases when asked about whether the government would seek the death penalty for former FBI agent Robert Philip Hanssen.

Lawyers for Hanssen, accused of spying for Moscow for 15 years, complained that Ashcroft violated Justice Department guidelines barring federal prosecutors from threatening to seek the death penalty in plea-bargain negotiations.

Ashcroft aides said the attorney general was speaking in general terms, not specifically about the Hanssen case.

Experts worry about surge of older gamblers

■ Experts warn that casinos are targeting those 65-and-over by making them feel welcome.

By David Cray
Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The chartered bus from Brooklyn was just one of hundreds that roll into the depots of Atlantic City's huge casinos each day. The passengers disembarked, some spry and feisty, a few inching down the steps with their canes.

Past the Showboat Casino's reception desks and uniformed greeters awaited slot machines by the thousands — the playthings of choice for legions of elderly Americans.

Group leader Lola Kendzierski was ready for action. For most of the 2½-hour bus ride, she had been busy calling out numbers over a microphone as fellow members of her Brooklyn senior center played small-stakes bingo. Toward noon, as the bus came within sight of the high-rise casino hotels, she finally had breakfast.

"I bring two rolls with me, so I can go a whole day in Atlantic City and never eat," said Kendzierski, 77.

Twenty years ago, Atlantic City and Las Vegas were America's two gambling meccas, but casinos have now spread across the nation. A federal study found that the percentage of 65-and-over Americans who gamble jumped from 20 percent in 1974 to 50 percent in 1998, a surge unmatched by any other age group.

Experts on compulsive gambling are alarmed. They worry that senior gamblers, many of them on fixed incomes, are more vulnerable to financial devastation than younger gamblers and less willing to seek timely help for addiction.

"A 30-year-old can make it back. If 75-year-olds lose everything, they're dead in the water," said Ron Karpin, a specialist in senior gambling with the Council on Compulsive Gambling of New Jersey.

To Kendzierski and her friends, however, monthly outings to the casinos are a much-anticipated break in their routines. "I don't smoke; I don't drink," she said. "My worst vice is ice cream."

Even critics of the gambling industry concede that casinos make seniors feel welcome. Surveys indicate that casino outings are the most popular type of day trip for retired Americans.

"The gaming industry has provided for older adults what we as a society have not done," said Pat Fowler, the executive director of the Florida Council on Compulsive Gambling.

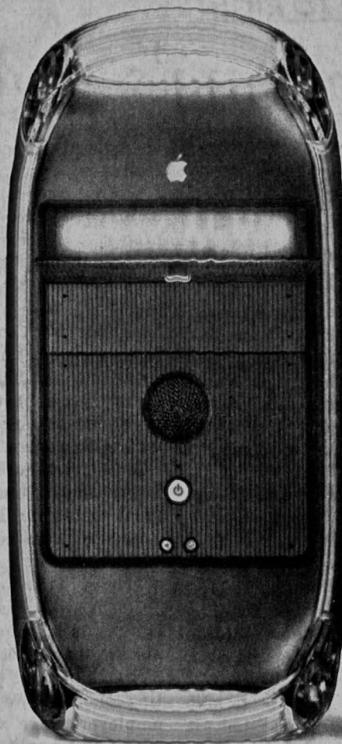

"For most of them, it's an exciting, safe, user-friendly outing," she said. "The message is, 'We value you; come on in. We'll get the wheel chair, we'll bring the refreshments to you.' They can't find that kind of reception in many areas in our society."

Kendzierski, negotiating the maze of slot machines and gaming tables at Showboat, marveled that the casino welcomes even gamblers who are blind or mentally disabled. "This is the most democratic place I know," she said.

Regardless of the addiction rate, experts such as Karpin and Fowler believe that senior gamblers merit special attention because the consequences of compulsive gambling can be so severe.

"I know the pain associated with this disorder in this age group," Fowler said. "They are thinking, 'How could this happen to me?'"

Power to burn.

Presenting the new Power Mac G4 — the first personal computer that creates custom DVDs playable in ordinary DVD players. This unprecedented feat is made possible by two Apple breakthroughs: the aptly named SuperDrive, an industry-first DVD-R+CD-RW drive that burns both DVDs and CDs. Plus iDVD, Apple's revolutionary new software that lets you create DVD titles so simply it's, well, revolutionary. Together with iMovie or Final Cut Pro (sold separately), you've got your own Hollywood production company. And to burn your own soundtrack CDs, there's Apple's new iTunes — the world's most advanced yet easiest-to-use digital music software.

Of course, there are other significant changes on the Power Mac G4 to help you take advantage of this amazing technology. Like an NVIDIA GeForce2 MX graphics card, a dramatically faster system bus, five slots (one super-fast AGP 4X graphics and four high-performance PCI slots), built-in Gigabit Ethernet, plus AirPort, FireWire and USB ports.

All this is combined with a phenomenally powerful G4 processor. With sustained speeds of up to 5.5 gigaflops (performing up to 57% faster than the new Pentium 4), the new Power Mac G4 has more than enough power to burn CDs, DVDs and — oh, yeah — Pentiums.

BIKINI CONTESTS EXPLOIT WOMEN ...

Stripped of their dignity

It's about time local bars realize that its strip teases masked as bikini contests are nothing but a cancerous sore for the community.

The Union Bar has been accused of a number of serious charges that could possibly result in $3,000 in fines and suspension of its liquor license. If these accusations turn out to be true, then this establishment deserves its swift punishment.

The Union held a bikini contest in February that resulted in allegations of indecent exposure and serving alcohol to a minor. During the contest in which the winner could garner $1,000, $2,000 and $3,000, some people said women in the contest exposed themselves to the crowd. Though the women were supposedly told by bar workers not to flash the crowd — because it would result in disqualification — the women did, to the unstifled approval of the crowd.

It was reported that in the third round of the meat-market exposure, the women were allowed to flash the crowd without fully removing their tops. What a wholesome and wonderful activity to have women participate in. It's nothing more than a cheap strip club, but not all of the women were paid.

There has been controversy regarding this degrading event for a while, and now it has escalated into a legal matter. There can't possibly be anything good coming from an event meant to arouse the audience at the expense of intoxicated women.

Many of the contestants were under 21 but allegedly were served alcohol prior to competing. The incident is still being investigated, but the bar owners still think they have done nothing wrong (DI, March 28).

Perhaps they find it OK to allow trashed 18-year-olds to dance half nude, occasionally in front of a crowd of people. If that is OK in these bar owners' minds, than perhaps they should change their venue to a strip club instead of a bar.

It's about time these bikini contests come to an end forever. Women will never be treated seriously if sponsored peep shows keep surfacing, reducing the value of the person to what can be stuffed into a bikini. Hopefully, other bars will learn from the Union and clean up their acts.

Mary Mroch is a DI editorial writer.

Nudity's all right by me

So the cops, apparently, have this thing against nudity at local bars.

As a result, the Union currently faces charges stemming from a series of innocent bikini contests that it held during the cold, bitter — yet so swimsuit-favorable — month of February. "Allowing indecent exposure" and "providing alcohol to minors" are among the allegations recently levied at the bar, and the suspension of its liquor license appears to be a grim possibility for the Union amid the commotion.

Now, everybody keeps talking about drunkenness, debauchery and the casual baring of flesh as if these are bad things. Not once has any public figure stepped forth and mentioned the economically and culturally beneficial aspects of naked, booze-laden revelry on the local scene. Instead, what we have is a series of finger-pointing, scapegoating and bickering that will serve to get us, as a community, nowhere.

This is a time to unite, not to divide. Rather than focus on the so-called "illegal" facets of public mischief, it is necessary to look deeper and uncover the enlightening purposes that these bikini contests have served and could continue to serve in the future.

As an aside, it must be mentioned that the Union is not necessarily being singled out here. This brand of uninhibited tomfoolery has never really been bar-specific anyhow. For its part, meanwhile, the Union specifically instructed its female contestants not to remove their clothing and did not aim to drive them to blurry inebriation by setting up a "complimentary beverage table." After all, this was merely a competition set in place to discover which of the contestants displayed the best summer swimwear, with cash rewards set aside for those whose fashion tastes were deemed highly satisfactory by the audience.

As is the case with many a bikini contest, of course, it wasn't just about swimsuits. It was about kinship, honor, class, and the struggle for personal achievement that has defined America. Now I, uh, wasn't there for any of this. Nope. Of course not. But my very reliable sources informed me that one of these contests proved quite interesting in terms of the amount of cheap beer coursing through the crowd and the, er, competitive nature of the contest on stage.

Here, hundreds of males of varied backgrounds and interests bonded to form such chants as "Take it off!" and "Show us your ..."

— you know the rest. Amazingly, as if possessed by a supernatural emotive link with their bleary-eyed spectators, or by a ton of liquor, the participants generally complied with these requests. It was, indeed, something special. Well, it was something. Soon enough, though, the intrusive arms of law enforcement disrupted the harmony, an act that was quickly followed by several ridiculous rumors and media reports branding the contests as "distasteful." The use of words such as "immature" and "illegal" — rather than "purposeful" and "educational" — in regard to these bikini competitions consequently lent a negative stigma to the Union and to the contests in general.

Which is unfortunate, because the solution to most of Iowa City's problems lies, writhing and wiggling, in the form of the very events that the law seeks to banish. The key to the downtown area's revitalization, long an issue of concern for local residents and storeowners, would of course be to conduct more of these swimsuit-comparison demonstrations.

Business owners who complain of lagging sales, obviously, have not recently held any bikini contests. Educators who complain of complacency and lack of interest by students have clearly never hosted any strip-o-ramas in the lecture halls or libraries. And politicians who complain of apathy on the part of 19-year-old males have yet to include bikini-withdrawal procedures as part of televised debates.

The solutions to these problems are simple, because the attention of the collegiate male is not difficult to gain. The Union and other bars are aware of this. Sadly, however, this important lesson is being cast aside in favor of blame-casting and crafty legal maneuvering.

The time has arrived for the local community to find productive solutions, cooperate, and just take it off.

A DUPLICIOUS APPROACH TO RIGHTS ...

Respect everyone's rights

On March 31, the Netherlands took the first step toward equal rights before the law for homosexuals. Four couples were married immediately after midnight in the first legal marriages between homosexuals in the world.

This country has largely seemed schizophrenic on the issue of gay rights. In many localities, it has no problem forcing private people to give their private property to homosexuals. This has largely taken place in the form of equal-employment laws for homosexuals. Although these laws are well-intentioned, they violate fundamental human rights by taking an employer's property rights without the employer's consent.

At the same time, the nations has prohibited gay men and women from exercising the same contract rights as the rest of us. Before the law, marriage is a special contractual relationship between two people. It is a relationship that is permitted for a man and woman but not for two people of the same sex. These laws violate fundamental human rights because they prevent one person from transferring private property rights to another.

We should let employers and homosexuals exchange their property with whomever they wish.

Instead of violating the property rights of homosexuals and employers, it is time that we learn to respect the property rights of all. That means we should let employers and homosexuals exchange their property with whomever they wish.

If an employer is to pay wages to a homosexual, it should be his choice because the wages start out as the property of the employer. Similarly, if a man wants to arrange his property rights with another man through a marriage contract, it should be his choice because common property in marriage starts out as one man's property.

Society has forgotten that allowing a person to do with her property as she wishes is fundamental to human rights. After all, without property rights, we can have no property right in our lives, the media of communication or the privacy of our homes. Our forgetfulness has come at great cost to our liberty.

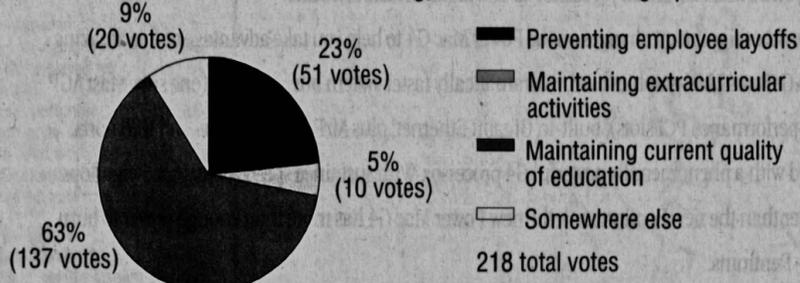

Society persecutes homosexuals with its marriage and sex laws. Instead of fixing the problem, we violate employer's rights to help homosexuals. We should not correct one rights violation by committing another. We should let employers hire whom they wish. We should also follow the Netherlands and let homosexuals marry.

Police bust 2nd alleged local meth lab

METH

B felonies, which carry a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison. Dooley was also charged with possession of methamphetamines.

Koehn and Dooley were arrested after a Wal-Mart employee alerted police that the couple had allegedly bought ingredients for making methamphetamine, according to police reports.

Police quickly arrived at the scene and immediately blocked in a red station wagon owned by the couple, police reports said. One of the suspects was inside the car, while the other was apprehended walking away from the store, according to Coralville police records.

During a later search of the suspects' apartment, police records show that officers allegedly found more materials to produce the drug, including aluminum foil, bleach, camp fuel, pseudophedrine tablets and steel wool.

Police are still determining if the two busts are related.

"I'm not sure if this is becoming a trend in the area, or if the two events happened coincidentally," said Iowa City police Sgt. Kevin Heick. "But we are concerned."

The two recent busts are signs of a continuing trend in Iowa. According to the Iowa Narcotics Division Web site, 658 labs capable of producing methamphetamine were busted in 2000, up from 502 in 1999. The organization says that methamphetamine remains the "major drug of choice in Iowa" because of the ease of manufacturing and drug cartels that have flooded the market.

The cost of the drug has remained relatively steady over the past five years, with an average price of $1,200 per ounce, according to the Web site.

"Meth use is on the rise nationally and in the state of Iowa," Coralville police Sgt. Bill Searls said.

Following an apparent rise in methamphetamine trafficking use in 1991, the Iowa Department of Public Safety established the Clandestine Laboratory Emergency Response Team, a collection of specially trained officers from the Division of Narcotics Enforcement, the Iowa State Patrol and the State Fire Marshal's Office, as well as chemists from the Division of Criminal Investigation. The group provides assistance to city and county law-enforcement officers throughout the state, and all members are certified in the investigating, dismantling and removal of clandestine laboratories.

The organization discovered eight methamphetamine labs in Iowa during its inaugural year in 1995; that number increased dramatically to 391 in 2000. Of those, three of the clandestine laboratories were located in Johnson County. The largest number of laboratories busted in a county occurred in Polk County — 38 last year.

self. He will speak up and tell the truth," Fila said.

Prosecutors allege that as president of Serbia and later Yugoslavia, Milosevic conspired with four top aides to steal approximately $390 million in Yugoslav dinars and German marks from the country's treasury.

The charges carry a maximum of five years in prison on conviction. More serious charges could be raised over the months ahead, possibly including involvement in a series of political assassinations. The questioning was to resume Tuesday.

Last year, the State of Iowa voted to underfund the University of Iowa by $10 million, leading to a 10% tuition increase. This year, the legislature is considering underfunding the University by nearly twice as much.

State Budget Cuts for the University will lead to =

- Fewer faculty members and larger class sizes
- Cuts in program offerings
- Fewer journal subscriptions for the University libraries
- Delayed renovations to the Phillips Hall
- FURTHER DOUBLE DIGIT TUITION INCREASES

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your anger will be impossible to contain if you get into heated discussions with family members. Direct your energy into physical work rather than discord. Be productive.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romantic involvement will lead to a serious union. You should make plans that concern your future together. Travel should be on your agenda.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Problems that older relatives face will become your dilemma. Try to do what you can to help, but don't let their troubles disrupt your personal life. If you lend money, you won't get it back.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Plan carefully if you want to dodge the obstacles that others have put in your way. You've taken on too much, and now you're going to have to become a juggler to meet your deadlines.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't be too vocal about your intentions. Colleagues may try to pass the buck by putting the blame on you for a poorly done job. Pay attention to details and keep your boss informed as you go along.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't push your luck when dealing with friends or children. Your criticism may not be taken too well. This is not the time to be negative. The backlash will put you in a lonely position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your nerves are shot, and your patience is deteriorating. It's time to make changes to turn your life around. Residential moves may be necessary if you wish to eliminate the problem.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You need to put the spark back into your life. Things have become stale, and you need to regenerate yourself with new information. Start doing some avid reading or sign up for courses.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Chronic health problems are likely to surface if you are ignoring your problems. Get proper medical attention and confront the situation that is causing all the stress.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romantic connections can be made if you open your eyes and recognize that special person watching you from a distance. You need to start enjoying life a little more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your disciplined approach to work will bring praise from those in higher positions. Don't be afraid to present your ideas or go after your goals. The time to get ahead is now.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your need to experience different cultures and philosophies will lead you to sign up for unusual courses being offered in your community.

Storied programs meet in finals

■ Preseason polls had it right when they picked Arizona and Duke as the best teams in the land.

By Jim O'Connell
Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Before a game was played this season, Arizona and Duke were considered the best teams in the country.

After more than 4,500 regular-season games and another 63 in the NCAA Tournament, the season ends tonight with those two teams playing for the national championship.

"It's fitting, I think, that the two best teams are meeting to play for the national championship. That's the way it should be," Duke forward

Shane Battier said Sunday. "The true champions should have to beat the best teams."

This is the fourth time the top two teams in the preseason poll, which started in the title game. Each of the three previous meetings were won by the team ranked second.

So, the historical edge goes to Duke, which was No. 2 in the preseason but comes into this game ranked No. 1, the third-straight season the Blue Devils (34-4) held the top spot entering the tournament.

Arizona (28-7) was fifth in the final poll, but the Wildcats know something about beating the best teams. When they won their only title in 1997, they became the first team to beat three No. 1 seeds in a

David Wells believes it's time his old team took a fall. "Everyone's picking the Yankees, but I don't think they're going to do it this year," he said. "If they win their division, someone is going to bump them off."

Wells, now pitching for the AL Central-champion Chicago White Sox, might get his chance in October. In the meantime, there's a lot of baseball to be played.

A day after Texas and Toronto started the major league season in Puerto Rico, almost everyone else on the mainland was set for opening day today.

Well, most everyone. Derek Jeter, Nomar Garciaparra, Kevin Brown and John Smoltz were some of the stars already on the disabled list, with Ken Griffey Jr. and Greg Maddux among those ailing.

"Everybody wants to play opening day. You don't want to miss games," said Jeter, sidelined by a strained right quadriceps.

In other places, enthusiasm was building as 10 games were scheduled. At Coors Field, the Colorado Rockies are eager for a close-up look at newcomer Mike Hampton when he pitches against Mark McGwire and St. Louis. At Camden Yards, Pedro Martinez and the Boston Red Sox are excited to welcome Manny Ramirez to their lineup.

At Jacobs Field, Wells gets ready to pitch — and perhaps take advantage of those high strikes that umpires plan to call — against Cleveland's recent arrivals, Juan Gonzalez and Ellis Burks.

And at Yankee Stadium, New York take aim at a fourth-straight World Series championship. Yet even after adding Mike Mussina, the Yankees were not about to celebrate too early.

"When it comes down to it, there's only one day a year when we allow ourselves to get giddy — the parade," Yankees center fielder Bernie Williams said.

Roger Clemens is supposed to start for the Yankees against Kansas City, though rain and sleet are in the forecast.

In Cincinnati, the traditional opening-day parade will lead to Cinergy Field, where a 40-foot wall in center field is part of the reconfigured ballpark.

The Reds and new manager Bob Boone face Atlanta, which will start John Burkett because Maddux has a bad toe. Burkett will pitch an opener for his fourth team, having done it for San Francisco, Texas and Florida.

"Not too many guys have done that with an 85-mph fastball," Burkett said.

Because of schedule logistics, the Braves and Reds will play only one game. On Tuesday, Pittsburgh will visit Cincinnati, while the Braves will be home against the Mets.

At Florida, new Philadelphia manager Larry Bowa will send Omar Daal, who led the majors with 19 losses last season, against the Marlins.

"I just can't wait for Monday," Daal said. "There's a lot of responsibility with being an ace, but I think I'm smart enough to handle the part."

A great day for the Irish

■ Ruth Riley's two free throws with five seconds left carry Notre Dame to a national championship.

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — Notre Dame pulled off yet another comeback, this one for the biggest prize of all.

The Irish clawed and scratched their way back from deficits time after time and beat Purdue 68-66 on Ruth Riley's two free throws with 5.8 seconds left to win their first national championship.

Notre Dame trailed by 12 points in the first half and was down 66-64 with a little more than a minute to play when Riley, the team's unanimous All-American and national player of the year, came through.

"I can't even describe it," Riley said. "This is the only thing I wanted. To be able to share this with my teammates is unbelievable. We worked so hard that it was fitting to end the season this way."

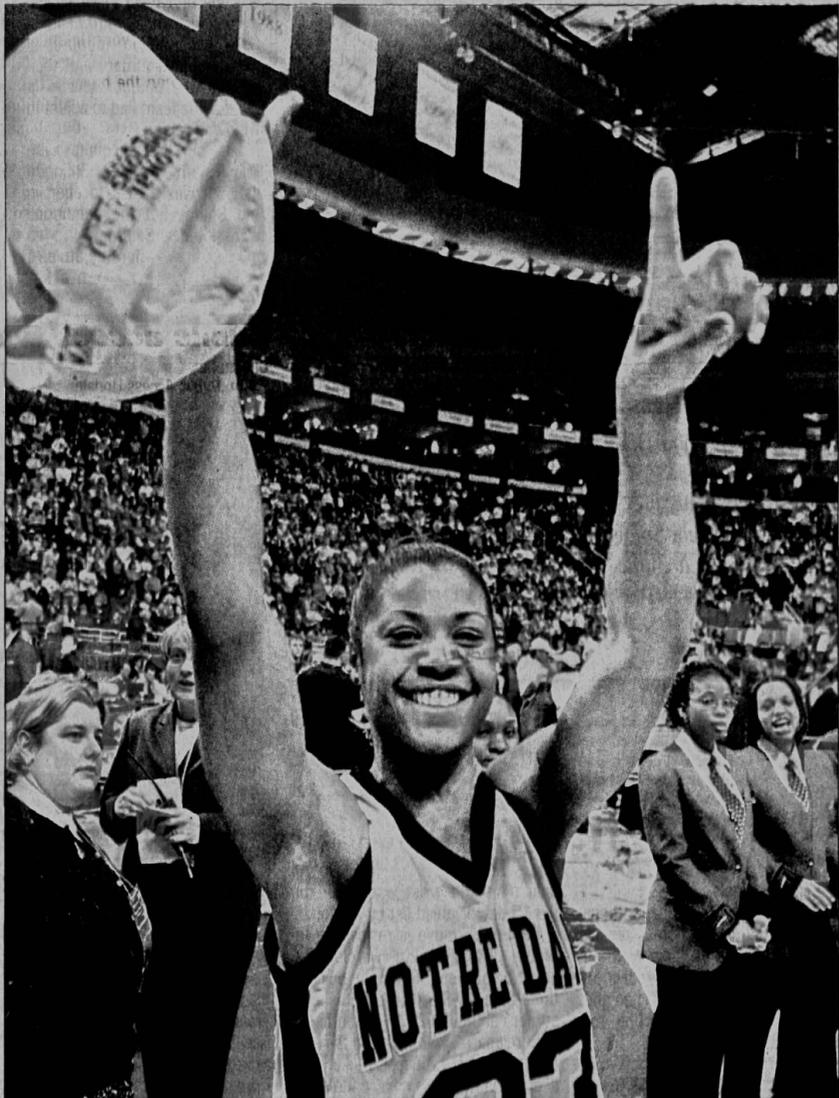

It ended the way it did in large measure because of Riley.

First, she scored in the lane to tie it at 66 with 1:01 remaining. Then, she rebounded a miss by Purdue's Shereka Wright, enabling the Irish to set up a late shot.

They got the ball to Riley — who else? — and she was fouled by Wright. She made the first throw, returned to the line after a Purdue timeout and calmly made the second.

"It's definitely euphoria," Notre Dame coach Muffet

Hawkeyes salvage one game with OSU

■ Iowa snaps Ohio State's 17-game winning streak with a win Sunday.

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa baseball team managed to snap No. 23 Ohio State's 17-game winning streak Sunday afternoon. Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes, the run of victories stood at 14 before the Buckeyes arrived in Iowa City.

The Hawkeyes rode a stellar pitching performance by freshman Ryan Mentkowski to a 7-1 victory in the second game of a double-header Sunday. The win broke a five-game losing streak for Iowa and allowed the Hawkeyes to salvage one victory against the Buckeyes in their four-game set. The win, Iowa's first in Big Ten play, improves Iowa's record to 9-10 overall on the season.

Mentkowski, who redshirted last season, went the distance for Iowa, allowing eight hits and one run. The southpaw struck out three while walking two to pick up his second victory of the year.

"It was good for me to get a good outing in," he said. "I just got in the zone, looked at the glove, and got locked in."

Ohio State's defense helped the Hawkeyes as much as strong pitching. Iowa capitalized on three Buckeye errors to advance runners into scoring position and let the offense do the rest.

The Hawkeyes got on the board early in the bottom of the second, when Greg Prenger nailed Iowa's Lance Guyer

IOWA BRIEF

Women's track

Although the premier sporting event of the weekend in Springfield, Mo., was watching Jackie Stiles and company lead Southwest Missouri State into the women's Final Four, there was some exciting track action for sports fans to check out as well. The Iowa women's track team competed at the SMS Invitational on March 31. While team scores were not kept, Iowa had 19 top-five finishers, including a gold-medal performance by sophomore Sarah Steffen. Steffen won the 100-meter hurdles in a time of 13.9, narrowly edging teammate Colleen Prendergast (14.0), who was competing for the first time since last year's outdoor season. Steffen also earned a bronze in the 400-meter hurdles. Senior Gina Shannon had one of the two best pole vaults with a 10-0. Although she was not happy with her performance, Shannon thought the team performed admirably, considering its stiffness from an eight-hour bus ride. "We were in pretty good spirits afterwards," Shannon said. "The runners had a lot of events, so at the end we were relieved to be done. Still, we're feeling pretty good about the performance, considering the conditions." Although the competition was not as strong as what Iowa will face later on in the season, this was the first meet in which the team had to deal with weather. Having competed indoors in January and February and then opening the outdoor season in Florida, the team had to adjust to wind and rain. "It's our first encounter with Midwestern weather," Shannon said. "It was a treat to open in the South, but the conditions were not ideal Saturday." —Jeremy Shapiro

SAY WHAT?

You earn throughout your life, and you should be prepared for your life. If you just look at the start of your race, it being so financially lucrative, then maybe the end of the race isn't as much. Someone who takes care of the whole race might have a chance to do it a whole lot better.

Griffey out of Reds' opening lineup

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ken Griffey Jr.'s pulled hamstring will keep him out of the Cincinnati Reds' opening day lineup.

The hamstring injury that Griffey sustained a week ago prevented him from running hard during a workout Sunday and prompted manager Bob Boone to drop him from the starting lineup.

Griffey will be available to pinch-hit during a game against the Atlanta Braves. He agreed that it was better to get the hamstring healed rather than risk aggravating it on a cool afternoon.

"If it's going to mean me missing a couple of games, I'd rather do it now than have it like last year," said Griffey, who was bothered by a hamstring much of last season. "I'd rather take care of the problem now."

Women's Final Four schedule could change

ST. LOUIS — The women's national championship game Sunday night ended a long, rewarding season for Notre Dame and Purdue.

If only they could have had a little time to savor making it to the Final Four. That had to wait until later because the current schedule doesn't allow it — only three days between March 26 regional championship games and on March 28 national semifinals. The four teams that won those regionals had to fly home, repack and dash off to St. Louis on March 28, with no time to reflect on that they had just accomplished and hardly any time to practice for Friday's games.

"The turnaround was hard," said Notre Dame coach Muffet McGraw, whose team returned to South Bend early Tuesday after winning the Midwest Regional in Denver.

Smoltz feels pain in elbow

KISSIMMEE, Fla. — Atlanta Braves pitcher John Smoltz had another setback Sunday in his comeback from elbow surgery, leaving a minor league exhibition game after two innings because of pain.

"There are good days and there's bad days," Smoltz said. "I just chalked today up as it wasn't one of those good days. Tomorrow, the next couple of days, could be really good and that's really all I can focus on."

The right-hander, who missed all of last season following ligament replacement surgery in the elbow, gave up two earned runs and three hits working in relief during a game against mostly Triple-A players at the Braves' spring-training complex.

Red Sox place Garciaparra on 15-day disabled list

BALTIMORE — Nomar Garciaparra, who didn't get into any spring training games because of pain in his right wrist, was placed on the 15-day disabled list by Boston.

Saturday's move is retroactive to March 22, meaning Garciaparra could be activated Saturday, but the three-time All-Star is likely to have surgery and miss 2 1/2-4 months.

Garciaparra, who has won the last two AL batting titles, is likely to decide within the next couple of days, Red Sox spokesman Kevin Shea said Sunday.

Mets prospect killed in car crash

SNEADS, Fla. — Brian Cole, among the top prospects in the New York Mets' farm system, died when he was ejected from his SUV after it crashed in the Florida Panhandle.

Cole, 22, was not wearing a seat belt when his Ford Explorer overturned as he drove home on March 31 from spring training in Port St. Lucie to Meridian, Miss., with his cousin, Ryan Cole, a Florida Highway Patrol accident report said.

Strawberry still missing

TAMPA, Fla. — Darryl Strawberry could end up in jail if and when the troubled baseball star surfaces from his latest break from house arrest, authorities said Sunday.

his last violation," said Pam Bondi, an assistant state attorney. "We certainly haven't changed our opinion."

Strawberry, 39, disappeared March 29 night from the residential drug treatment center where he was serving two years of house arrest. The suspended New York Yankee never returned from a drug counseling session to the apartment he shares with a roommate at the facility.

Texas Tech officials quiet on Knight's moves

LUBBOCK, Texas — The first and last word on Bobby Knight's decision to kick three players off the Texas Tech basketball team came in the form of a three-paragraph news release.

The players involved are still searching for answers. "We're not going to say anything beyond what's been said," Athletics Director Gerald Myers said on March 31. "They're not going to be on the team next year."

Tech President David Schmidly said the dismissals were based on "some violation of team rules."

Starting guard Jamal Brown, who averaged 10.6 points last season, and freshman reserves Brannon Hayes and Rodney Bass were cut Friday. Ronald Hobbs' request for a release was granted.

Purdue's Douglas misses last shot, Notre Dame wins

NOTRE DAME-PURDUE

McGraw said. "I don't know when I've been this excited. What can you say about Ruth Riley? What clutch on the free throw line, to make both of those free throws!"

It still wasn't over because the Boilermakers (31-7) had the last shot. But All-American, Katie Douglas, missed an 18-foot shot at the buzzer, the ball hitting the front of the rim and bouncing off the backboard as the game ended, touching off a wild celebration at center court by Notre Dame.

"We designed a play and got out there and didn't execute it," Douglas said. "I had a good look at the basket and it didn't go down for me."

Riley, who had only one point in the first 8:23, finished with 28 to lead all scorers and grabbed 13 rebounds. Erika Haney, St. Louis native Niele Ivey and Kelley Siemon also scored in double figures for the Irish (34-2).

That turned out to be enough to offset the inspired play of Purdue freshmen Wright and Shalicia Hurns and another solid performance by Douglas. Purdue won the 1999 national championship and certainly had its chances to win this one, but Notre Dame would not be denied.

So now add the names McGraw, Riley and Ivey to those of Rockne, Leahy and Montana in Notre Dame's rich athletic lore. The title came in McGraw's 14th season as coach and in her second trip to the Final Four. She also got Notre Dame there in 1997.

In the first one, the Irish were just happy to be there. They came determined to win this time after being ranked No. 1 for five weeks this season — and they got it done.

"I always dreamed of this moment, and then to have it happen in my hometown," Ivey said. "I'm totally blessed."

Haney finished with 13 points for Notre Dame, Ivey scored 12 and Siemon had 10.

The Irish, the best three-point shooting team in the nation, won despite going 1-for-10 from behind the arc. Alicia Ratay, the nation's best individual performer, was 1-for-4.

Douglas came through with 18 for Purdue and had the Boilermakers' final points, converting a three-point play off a steal and layup to give Purdue a 66-64 lead with 1:22 remaining. Then Riley, named the outstanding player in the Final Four, took over and denied Purdue a second title.

Wright and Hurns, athletic players who have bright futures with the Boilermakers, each scored 17. Douglas also had seven rebounds, five steals and five assists as her brilliant career came to an end. She was a starter on the '99 championship team.

The other starter Purdue had back from that team — center Camille Cooper — was dogged by fouls and finished with just six points while playing only 23 minutes.

"I knew it would be a battle," Douglas said. "Ruth played a great game."

Notre Dame trailed 19-7 early and was down six at halftime. But the Irish have this comeback thing down pat. They rallied from 16 points down in Friday night's semifinal to beat Connecticut — the biggest comeback in the 20 years of the women's Final Four. And they did it again.

Riley had four points as Notre Dame started the second half with an 8-0 run to take its first lead at 34-32. It didn't last long. Purdue came back with a 10-3 run that included 3-pointers by Douglas and Kelly Komara to go up 42-37.

with a pitch with the bases loaded. John Cappellano followed by clearing the bases with a single; he moved to second on a throwing error. Kurt Vitense then brought Cappellano across the plate with a base hit.

"Baseball is a crazy game," third baseman Ian Mattiace said. "We got up early, and that was it."

In the bottom of the fifth, Iowa added two more runs on a pair of RBI singles by Mattiace and Alex Dvorsky. The Buckeyes touched Mentkowski for one run in the top of the sixth but could not muster a bigger rally.

"There's a fine line between winning and losing," Iowa coach Scott Broghamer said.

Nothing illustrates his point more than Iowa's first three games with the Buckeyes. Iowa lost the opening game of the series on March 30, 7-4, leaving four runners in scoring position.

On March 31, Ohio State received a complete game from Kevin Goodrum to down Iowa, 8-1, in the first game of the scheduled double-header before rain postponed the second game. In the first game of Sunday's double dip, Iowa took a 5-4 lead on a single by Andy Jansen in the bottom of the fifth inning before losing, 6-5.

"We put them in situations, and they were able to execute," Broghamer said of Ohio State's three victories.

The Hawkeyes will rest up today before hosting Iowa State at Duane Banks Field Tuesday.

tournament. Their last two wins have been over No. 1 seeds Illinois and Michigan State, and now comes Duke, a No. 1 seed for the fourth-straight year.

"I think it's something that should be done if you're going to win the thing," Arizona coach Lute Olson said. "You should have to go through the best teams to do it."

Duke went through this city to win its last national championship. In 1992, the Blue Devils became the first team to repeat since the UCLA dynasty of the 1970s with a 20-point win over Michigan.

Duke's Mike Krzyzewski has a chance to join his college coach, Bob Knight, in third place on the career list with three titles. John Wooden won 10 at UCLA, and Adolph Rupp won four at Kentucky.

"It's a different team each time, different kids," said Krzyzewski, entering his seventh national championship game. "The fact that I've been here, and I'm sure Lute would say the same thing, you kind of live the season through the kids on your team, which is what makes it exciting."

Olson, who won his only championship game with that 1997 Arizona team, would become the oldest coach to win it all. He is 66, two months older than Phog Allen was when Kansas won it all in 1952.

Arizona has one game left in its emotional season. Olson's wife of 40 years, Bobbi, died of cancer on Jan. 1.

"As far as this team is concerned from the very start of the year, their focus has been on getting to this Monday night game and having a chance to win the national championship," Olson said.

"There have been some difficult times along the way, which I think have been documented enough. I just think when you're having a chance to play for the national title, it's a special situation, and I think we've looked at that from the start."

Both teams expect to be at full strength despite some injuries on March 31.

Arizona guard Gilbert Arenas, the Wildcats' leading scorer at 16.3 points a game, was being treated Sunday morning after taking a shot to the chest in the 80-61 win over Michigan State.

"He should be able to play. We don't envision any problems with it," Olson said. "He had it X-rayed immediately, and that's why he came back on to the court as soon as he did."

Elsewhere today:

• Rickey Henderson and the San Diego Padres visit San Francisco. Henderson needs three more walks to break Babe Ruth's record total of 2,062.

• Tim Lincecum, 41 and back in baseball after a year off, and the Montreal Expos play the Chicago Cubs at Wrigley Field.

• Oakland plays at Seattle, where seven-time Japanese batting champion Ichiro Suzuki is part of the Mariners' lineup.

Hawkeyes go 3-1 against Big Ten foes

Iowa picks up two wins over Ohio State and splits with Penn State.

By Melinda Mawdsley
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team opened the Big Ten season 3-1, splitting a weekend series with Penn State while taking two contests from Ohio State on March 30.

In game one against the Buckeyes, the Hawkeyes (27-7) came out the aggressors, scoring all four of their runs in the first three innings on the way to a 4-2 win.

Freshman Sarah Thomson was the story of game two.

The young Iowa pitcher threw her first career no-hitter, helping her team to a 2-0 victory.

"Sarah threw a great ball game," Iowa coach Gayle Bleivins said. "She did a good job of keeping the Ohio State hitters off balance."

After falling to Penn State 3-0 on March 31, the No. 12 Hawkeyes rallied Sunday for an extra-inning victory over the Nittany Lions in University Park, Pa.

Iowa's Katy Jendrzejewski tied the game at 1-1 in the fourth inning with her fourth home run of the year, and teammate Lisa Rasche tacked on two more for the Hawkeyes with an RBI single in the fifth.

But a pair of doubles brought the Nittany Lions back into the game.

Iowa had an opportunity to finish off Penn State in the bottom of the seventh but were unable to plate a runner with bases loaded and two out.

The Hawkeyes had another shot in the ninth, but Jendrzejewski was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second on a Christina Schmaltz single.

Iowa finally took advantage of its base runners in the 10th, when Kristi Hanks, who relieved Thomson in the fifth, recorded the game-winning RBI, scoring Kristin Johnson from third.

Hanks was also rewarded with the win on the mound, improving her record to 18-4 on the year.

The Hawkeyes will return to action Tuesday, when they travel to Cedar Falls to face Northern Iowa in a double-header scheduled to begin at 3 p.m.

Seniors lift Hawks in weekend split

Iowa defeats William and Mary March 31, but falls to Notre Dame March 30.

By Nick Firchau
The Daily Iowan

As coach of the youngest team in the Big Ten, the last thing Paul Wardlaw wants to worry about is the play of the few upperclassmen he has.

Wardlaw had no concerns about his team's veterans on March 31, as Iowa's two seniors fueled a 4-3 victory over William and Mary on the campus of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.

"What was the most impressive was how the upper class played," he said. "It's very encouraging to see that level of play and success from players that have been with the program for three years."

The win didn't come easy for the Hawkeyes, who won the doubles point and three singles matches to earn the victory. The No. 2 doubles team of Kearney and freshman Jody Scheldt had to fight off three match points before rallying to steal a 9-7 win. The team of Johnson and sophomore Steffi Hoch then posted a 9-7 win at the No. 3 spot to earn the doubles point for the Hawkeyes.

Johnson, Kearney and freshman Jennifer Hodgman all grabbed singles wins at the fourth, fifth and sixth spots respectively to seal the key road victory for Iowa.

"With a team like this one, coaches usually tend to focus on the younger players to make sure they're improving and playing well," Wardlaw said. "It's nice to have the older players stepping up when we need them to, and we needed them to do it this weekend."

Before Iowa's win over William and Mary, the No. 32 Hawkeyes (8-6, 2-2 in the Big Ten) dropped a 6-1 loss to No. 7 Notre Dame on March 30.

Hodgman was the only Hawkeye to earn a win against the Fighting Irish by defeating Katie Cunha in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4. With her two wins over the weekend, Hodgman improved her record to 10-3 on the season at the No. 6 singles spot.

"We had some trouble with Notre Dame, which we expected," Wardlaw said. "I wouldn't say they're way ahead of us in terms of level of play, but they just practice and play at a different level."

The Hawkeyes will return home Saturday, when they face off with Illinois at the Klotz Tennis Center at 11 a.m.

Hawkeyes get hard fought Big Ten victory

Iowa picked up a 4-3 win over Penn State in State College, Pa.

By Nick Firchau
The Daily Iowan

For the first time in quite a while, the Iowa men's tennis team found itself on the winning side of a hard-fought Big Ten dual meet.

The Hawkeyes (10-5, 1-3 in the Big Ten) used four singles wins to outlast Penn State on March 31 in University Park, Pa., to earn their first conference win of the season. The 4-3 victory was a welcome change for the Hawkeyes, who lost their first two conference meets to Indiana and Purdue, both in a heartbreaking 4-3 fashion.

Against the Nittany Lions, the Hawkeyes lost the doubles point for the third-straight conference meet but rebounded with singles wins from senior Tyler Cleveland and sophomores Stuart Waters, Hunter Skogman and Eric Kozlowski.

"This was sort of the exact opposite of our loss to Indiana," Hawk coach Steve Houghton said. "It all came down to Eric again, and he really had to fight after losing the first set. It was just one of those long, dramatic wins."

The Hawkeyes also traveled to Ohio State over the weekend, where they suffered a 5-2 loss to the No. 24 Buckeyes in Columbus, Ohio.

"This was a very long and demanding trip for us," Houghton said. "You have two very tough conference opponents on the road, and the drive in between the two sites was five or six hours. That's tough on any team."

Cleveland and Skogman were the only Hawkeyes to earn wins against the Buckeyes, at the No. 1 and No. 3 spots, respectively.

Cleveland, who was named Big Ten Player of the Week last week, upped his record to 14-1 on the season with this weekend's two road wins.

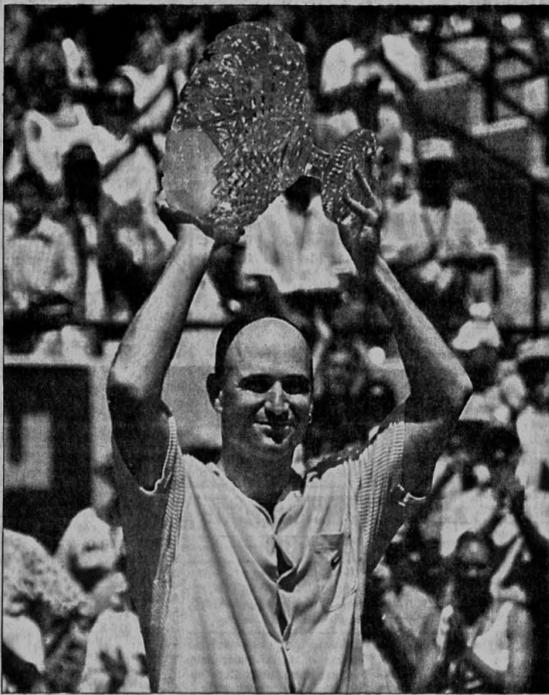

Cleveland's only loss was a 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 defeat on Feb. 11 to Notre Dame's Casey Smith.

"The way Tyler is playing is amazing," Houghton said. "This is probably the best I've ever seen him play. He's only lost once this season, and the way he's playing right now, I think he could beat that guy if they played again."

Following the strong singles performances against the Nittany Lions, Houghton said, his top concern has become the doubles lineup. Senior Jake Wilson returned to the lineup in the No. 3 doubles spot, but Houghton said he has not made any decisions about how Wilson will affect the lineup in the future.

The Hawkeyes will next travel to Evanston, Ill., Saturday to face off with Northwestern.

Andre Agassi celebrates with his trophy following a victory over Jan-Michael Gambill in the men's finals match Sunday at the Ericsson Open in Key Biscayne, Fla.

smacked a forehand winner and service winner on the final two points to take the set.

The men and women both staged all-American finals for the first time since the inaugural year of the tournament in 1985. Venus Williams overcame eight match points to edge Jennifer Capriati 4-6, 6-1, 7-6 (4) for the women's title on March 31.

Agassi and Venus Williams win Ericsson

KEY BISCAZYNE, Fla. — Perhaps the only player at the Ericsson Open who could have given Andre Agassi any difficulty Sunday was watching from the president's box: Rod Laver.

Even Laver would have had his hands full, partly because he's 62, and partly because Agassi is playing the best tennis of his life. The latest evidence: a 7-6 (4), 6-1, 6-0 drubbing of Jan-Michael Gambill in the Ericsson final.

"I don't think anybody in the world could have beaten him today," Gambill said.

Agassi has won the three biggest tournaments so far this year — Key Biscayne, Indian Wells two weeks ago and the Australian Open in January. He's the first man to sweep all three since Pete Sampras in 1994, and he's a runaway leader in this year's ATP champions race.

"This is a great point to be right now," said Agassi, who heads into the clay court season hoping to make a run at his second French Open title. "I just hope that I continue to be at my best and make somebody play well to beat me and get a little lucky every now and then."

Seeded third, Agassi became the first four-time men's champion at Key Biscayne. After surviving a close first set, he dominated every phase, serving well, keeping Gambill away from the net and controlling the baseline rallies to sweep the final nine games.

A gracious Gambill raved about his opponent's ability to keep points going.

"I have a lot to learn from Andre," Gambill said. "He fielded some balls that I just can't even fathom how he does it. I'll hit a ball 100 mph and somehow he fields it back and I'm running for the next one thinking, 'How does he do that?'"

The No. 19-seeded Gambill recovered from an early 2-0 deficit, serving well to reach 6-6. But he committed two unforced errors in the tiebreaker and Agassi seized the opening. A deft drop volley put him up 4-3, and he

IOWA MEN'S TRACK

Allen sets personal record in discus throw

The Hawkeyes split up their squads this weekend.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

Just one weekend, in which various Hawkeyes visited two warm locales, turned into a double success for the Iowa men's track-and-field team.

Iowa's throwers continued to keep up with the nation's best, while the rest of the team members had a successful outing in their second competition of the outdoor season.

Senior throwers Jeremy Allen and Arno van der Westhuizen made the trip to San Diego to compete in one of the top competitive meets for the throwing events. Allen provisionally qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Championships in the discus on March 31 after throwing a career-best qualifying mark of 192-0 to place 13th in the event. He also wound up third in the shot put after a reaching a distance of 58-7 1/2.

"We had a pretty good meet," said coach Larry Wiczorek. "Jeremy did great and performed his best-ever in the discus."

Runner-up in the hammer throw was earned by Iowa's Westhuizen with a mark of 212-11, and a seventh-place finish in the shot put completed his meet with a toss of 55-6 1/2.

The rest of the Hawkeye squad also experienced success over the weekend in West Lafayette, Ind., with an abundance of impressive performances led by three wins and two runner-ups.

Iowa's freshman Adam Kunkel emerged this weekend as he led the Hawkeyes with his three wins at the Purdue Open. Kunkel won the 100- and 200-meter dashes, crossing the line in 10.96 seconds and 21.78 seconds, respectively. The first-year Hawkeye went on to help Iowa to a third win in the 4x400 meter relay, in a time of 3:13.73.

"We had a good meet at Purdue with our top performances by Adam," Wiczorek said. "This is very impressive for a freshman."

In the 1,500-meter race, junior Adam Thomas ran a season-best time of 3:54.97 to earn a close second-place finish. Bill Neuman captured Iowa's other second-place finish after his throw of 65.78 meters earned him the position.

Other solid performances included Kevin Wise's third-place finish in the long jump with a distance of 6.79 meters and Brad Daufeldt's third-place discus throw of 49.74m.

"Weather was great last weekend," said Wiczorek. "We had excellent conditions and an overall good meet. (There were) many positive performances."

Rowers fight nasty winds against Kansas

Iowa coach Mandi Kowal says her team is now motivated.

By Julie Matolo
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's rowing team fought through strong winds in the Jayhawk Invitational to produce three wins and four runner-up finishes.

After Kansas' course was shortened and re-routed because of the circumstances, the Hawkeyes completed the races with mixed feelings about their performances.

"In the last two races, we came out with a lot of victories, but (we) still have a lot of work to do," said coach Mandi Kowal. "We have had frustrations with water conditions here, and we are looking forward to productive rowing in the next several weeks. The team is very motivated to make changes, and that is where you want to be right now."

Iowa's 1st Varsity 8 won two races, and the Hawkeyes 1st Novice 8 also finished first. The 1st Varsity 8 crossed the finish line in 4:09.7 in the morning session to defeat Massachusetts. In a back-and-forth battle between the two schools, Massachusetts grabbed the first lead. With 200 meters to go, the lead shifted back and forth until finally Iowa edged out four seats ahead to leave Massachusetts in second place in a time of 4:12.1.

"UMass has a really good history, so it was exciting to beat them," Kowal said. "We have a lot of respect for the program they have built."

The Iowa 1st Varsity 8 then topped Kansas State in the afternoon session, finishing in 4:06.5, while the Wildcats crossed the finish line in 4:15.0.

The Hawkeyes' 1st Novice 8 crossed the finish line in 4:32.3

to place in front of Kansas State (4:37.8).

Iowa's 2nd Novice 8 (4:46.5) and 1st Novice 8 (4:51.1) brought home second-place honors in the morning session, while the Hawkeyes' Varsity 4 (4:56.0) and 2nd Varsity 8 (4:15.1) finished second in the afternoon session.

Kowal was impressed with improvements from the morning session to the afternoon session.

"The great thing about the weekend was another great competitive experience," she said. "We had improved starts and had some really good close-racing experiences."

This weekend, the Hawkeyes will send one Varsity 8 boat to Boston to increase the Hawks' exposure in the national scene of rowing competition.
