Green light likely for alcohol law

■ The Iowa City City Council has scheduled the final vote for June 12.

By Gian Sachdev
 The Daily Iowan

The fate of Iowa City alcohol regulations will likely change for good June 12, when the Iowa City City Council votes a third time on the alcohol ordinance.

A "yes" vote by at least four councilors next Tuesday is needed to officially enact the new ordinance, which would go into effect Aug. 1.

Councilor Connie Champion

said she is confident that the ordinance will get the votes needed to pass. However, like Councilor Mike O'Donnell, Champion knows it won't be a unanimous decision. She and O'Donnell said they plan to vote against the ordinance Tuesday, both believing it will affect responsible drinkers over the age of 21.

"I believe it to be a Band-Aid when sutures are needed," Champion said. "The new ordinance will affect too many people who aren't involved."

Champion, O'Donnell, and Councilor Steven Kanner voted against the ordinance at its last consideration May 1.

The new ordinance is the product of five long months of debate and re-drafting among city councilors, UI students, local residents, and owners of downtown alcohol establishments, who have all met to discuss concerns such as the ordinance's fairness and constitutionality. The council first decided to address the issue of curbing binge and underage drinking more than a year ago.

Originally, the ordinance eliminated "two-for-one" and "all-you-can-drink" specials and made it illegal for establishments to sell more than one alcoholic beverage to one patron at a time. Any person or establishment found selling alcoholic beverages to a minor would be fined $500. A $100 fine would go to any minor found purchasing or attempting to purchase alcohol or having it in her or his possession.

After revisions by the council and suggestions by Mayor Ernie Lehman in April 2001, the ordinance was changed to allow limited drink specials and the purchase of, at most, two drinks per patron at one time.

One local bar owner said that while the new ordinance will make it harder for bar-

Execution set for McVeigh

■ Attorney: No more appeals, McVeigh prepared to die for bombing.

By Catherine Tsai
 Associated Press

DENVER — His hopes dashed for the second day in a row, Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh abandoned all appeals Thursday and prepared to be executed Monday for the worst terrorist attack ever on U.S. soil.

McVeigh's decision came within minutes of his learning that a three-judge panel of the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that his lawyers "utterly failed to demonstrate substantial grounds" why he should not be put to death next week.

McVeigh could have petitioned the full appeals court or taken his case directly to the Supreme Court.

"We have informed Mr. McVeigh about the circuit's decision, and I would like to tell you that he intends to petition ... to the U.S. Supreme Court, but I cannot. Mr. McVeigh does not want to proceed any further in legal actions in order to try to stop his execution," said his lawyer Rob Nigh, who appeared shaken and close to tears.

McVeigh's stunning decision came exactly a week after he had agreed to let his attorneys file for a stay because of revelations that the FBI withheld thousands of pages of documents from the defense at his trial. Before those documents came to light, McVeigh had steadfastly refused to appeal and had sought a swift execution. He would be the first federal prisoner executed since 1963.

Attorney General John Ashcroft issued a statement in Washington, saying: "Today's ruling by the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals is a ruling in favor of justice. ... Timothy McVeigh is responsible for the brutal murder of 168 people, including 19 children, and he will now be brought to justice."

McVeigh also declined to ask President Bush for clemency, Nigh said.

"I think his resolve was clear. He takes this much more in stride than probably his lawyers do, most certainly," Nigh said.

He said McVeigh now would prepare to die by injection at a federal prison in Terre Haute, Ind.

"He has family and friends that he must say his goodbyes to. The kind of introspection and psychological preparation he has to go through only he can know and other people in his position can know," Nigh said.

He could take his final drive outdoors as early as Friday morning, making the short trip from death row to the execution chamber.

Though he has had months to consider his request for a last meal, even those plans haven't been finalized. Warden Harley Lappin said McVeigh has yet to make up his mind on

Iowa City residents packed into a meeting Thursday night to request changes to the city's possible northeast expansion.

Residents cited traffic, aesthetic, and environmental problems with plans to develop 127 acres of privately-owned land for residential use.

The Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission

deferred three requests, two voluntary and one involuntary, for the annexation of property on the northeast side of the city during its formal meeting Thursday night. The two properties to be developed, Plum Grove Acres and Southgate/Lindemann Farms, are east of Scott Boulevard and south of the Herbert Hoover Highway.

If both properties, currently serviced by the county, become part of Iowa City, the Hummingbird neighborhood would be almost completely surrounded by the city, creating an island of county land.

Professors' outside consulting scrutinized

■ Consulting is promoted by some officials, but others warn of conflicts.

By Bridget Stratton
 The Daily Iowan

Some UI administrators and professors are warning of potential conflicts of interest as the number of university professors engaging in outside consulting rises.

Approximately 35 percent of the UI's full-time faculty participated in outside consulting during 1999-2000, a 10 percent increase from the previous year, according to the state of Iowa Board of Regents. UI professors spend an average of three days each year consulting, according to university reports. Although some professors and one UI official agree that consulting has many benefits for both the university and students, they also warn that a conflict of interest could potentially arise.

They voiced concerns about the amount of time faculty spend working away from the university as well as any influence their outside employers may have on their research and teaching.

"In general, scholars are supposed to analyze powerful groups in society rather than be subsidized by them," said Jeffery Smith, UI professor of journalism and mass commu-

Rebate checks will be in the mail

■ Bush signs tax cut, says summertime rebate checks coming.

By Sandra Sobieraj

WASHINGTON — In a White House victory celebration, President Bush added his signature to the nation's first across-the-board tax cut in a generation on Thursday and promised American families rebate checks in time to help with September school bills.

He proclaimed the $1.35 trillion tax cut, most of which takes effect slowly over the next decade, the first achievement for a "new tone in Washington."

Such broad tax relief has happened just twice since World War II — President Kennedy's tax cuts in the 1960s and President Reagan's in the 1980s — Bush told a packed White House audience of near-giddy Republicans and some Democrats.

"And now it's happening for the third time," Bush said. "And it's about time."

Rebate checks, most between $300 and $600, will be mailed beginning July 20 to every American who paid taxes this year. Eventually, income

Democrats to Bush: Support ethanol

■ The president will appear near Des Moines today to promote his new tax plan.

By Mike Glover
Associated Press

DALLAS CENTER, Iowa — President Bush makes his third visit to Iowa on Friday amid Democrats' urging that he use the occasion to reject California's request for a waiver of clean air requirements, opening a huge new market for ethanol.

"There is no better place to do that than in Iowa," Sen. Tom Harkin said.

Harkin and other Democrats said Bush's visit to a farm just outside Des Moines is the perfect setting for such an announcement.

At issue is whether California must follow rules requiring the use of oxygenates in gasoline to reduce emissions in heavily polluted areas. Rejecting the waiver would open California — with 18 percent of the nation's population — to ethanol, providing a major boost to the industry.

"Iowans are patient people, but we have been patient long enough," Iowa Agriculture Secretary Patty Judge said.

John Whitaker, president of the Iowa Farmers Union, said Bush has offered vague statements of support for ethanol, but opening up the California market would be a real step.

"Empty pledges and visits to Iowa farms is not a commitment; it's a photo-op and a nice headline," Whitaker said.

For their part, top Republicans said Bush's repeated visits to Iowa this year show he has a major commitment to the state that dates back to campaigning for Iowa's lead-off precinct caucuses during the primary season.

"It shows the depth of his commitment to Iowa," said Iowa Republican Party Chairman Chuck Larson. "He spent an enormous amount of time here."

Larson also saw a practical side to the visit, as Bush seeks to solidify his support in an early and important state in the re-election process.

Larson said Bush is building ties that will assure any challenger will not find support in Iowa.

"He will have a firewall here that's 20 feet high and maintained by Chuck Larson," Larson said.

Harkin said he had put in a call to the White House urging Bush to address the ethanol issue while in Iowa, but had no indication he would do so.

"I hope that he will do it," Harkin said.

Officials said Bush intended to use the appearance to tout the gradual ending of the estate tax, part of a $1.35 trillion tax cut package he signed on Thursday.

240 acres, a county 'asset'

■ County supervisors seek citizen input to decide what to do with the property.

By Deidre Bello
The Daily Iowan

County supervisors began discussing the future of 240 acres of property they call a county "asset" after receiving requests to develop the land on the southwest edge of Iowa City.

In their formal meeting Thursday, the Johnson County Board of Supervisors outlined plans to study the future uses of the county property, the location of a once self-sufficient community for the property.

Though the property, located west of U.S. Highway 218 and south of Melrose Avenue, are still in the early stage of discussion, supervisors said they want to begin outlining deadlines.

"We do want to put a time frame on what direction the board wants to take," said Supervisor Sally Stutsman.

Specific plans will be announced by the beginning of 2002, she said.

The Johnson County Historical Society made requests to preserve buildings on the property, particularly the structure that houses most of the equipment for the Secondary Road Department. Supervisors agreed to preserve the farm buildings, the cemetery, the still-functioning Chatam Oaks Residential Care Facility, and the now-vacant insane asylum located on the property.

Currently, the board is looking at opportunities for the property and possible limitations, said Board Chairman Mike Lehman. Chatam Oaks, a private organization, has expressed interest in possibly expanding its facilities, he said, adding that some of the property may remain farmland. The board is discussing future use, management, and the possible trade or sale of the property.

Jeff Davidson, Executive Director of the Johnson County Council of Governments, is studying the possible uses, subsequent rezoning, and concerns of nearby residents pertaining to the property. Davidson's findings will be presented to the board in the future. The existence of various pieces of infrastructure such as a sewer system and state roads make the property a valuable commodity, Davidson said.

Supervisors Pat Harney and Terrence Neuzil said they will meet with organizations that voiced concerns about the property.

Public meetings will be scheduled at undetermined dates in the future. Additional information will be available on a mailing list and the Johnson County Community Network Web site, www.jccn.iowa-city.ia.us.

"I want the meetings to be as inclusive as possible," Davidson said.

The property is located across from the site of the proposed Johnson County Jail, which was rejected by voters in November.

STATE BRIEF

Small towns to pay for protection

FAIRFIELD, Iowa — Small communities in Jefferson County without local police departments must begin paying the county sheriff for police protection.

Many of the towns have received protection from the Jefferson County Sheriff's department without paying.

Officials in Packwood, Batavia, Libertyville, Lockridge, Pleasant Plain, and Coppick are bracing themselves for what could be increases of as much as $20 per capita for law enforcement services.

"It's something that should have been done in the past, but we overlooked it until now," said supervisor J. Richard Simmons.

The supervisors voted in January to require formal police-protection agreements between the small communities and the sheriff's office. A 1997 Supreme Court decision requires communities to either provide police protection or contract for those services.

Sheriff Jerry Droz and county attorney Tim Dille have been meeting with mayors in the small communities. While most accept the inevitability of a cash payment for police protection, some communities could be hard-pressed to come up with the money.

BUSH'S TACTICS PRODUCE UNINTENDED CASUALTIES ...

Jeffords' split hurts Grassley

Charles Grassley is no longer the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee after holding that important position for barely four months. During that short time, Grassley managed to bring Congress to pass a major tax cut. After passage of his tax cut bill, Grassley gave credit to President Bush, saying, "President Bush planted the seed of tax cuts ... With cultivation in Congress, his seedling has thrived."

If the president is happy with his tree, even if it is smaller than he wanted, he ought to be very thankful for the Iowa farmer who grew it. Instead of gratitude, though, Grassley has received a demotion courtesy of the White House and GOP strong-arm tactics that pushed Sen. Jim Jeffords, I-Vt., out of the Republican Party and put the Democrats in the majority and in control of committees.

Grassley will no doubt refrain from publicly blaming the White House for the power shift, but he ought to do so. The White House engaged in petty revenge tactics with Jeffords for his vote against the Bush budget. This included threatening appropriations to Vermont, not inviting him to a ceremony honoring a teacher from his home state, and ignoring Jeffords on the Bush education plan — even though Jeffords was chairman of the Education Committee.

Grassley has received a demotion courtesy of the White House and GOP strong-arm tactics that pushed Sen. Jim Jeffords, I-Vt., out of the Republican Party and put the Democrats in the majority and in control of committees.

Grassley, a staunch Republican and at least as conservative as the president, found a way to compromise and win support for the tax cut from moderate Democrats and Republicans, including Jeffords. Most important, he cooperated and worked with the ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., to create a bipartisan bill by adding to the Republican proposal such items as a $300 rebate for every taxpayer and a moderation of some of the rate cuts.

Upon passage of the bill, the leaders of both parties congratulated Grassley and Baucus for the way they worked together. Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., stated: "There are a lot of us who say that the chairman and ranking member of committees should always reach out and try to work together and find a way to have a bipartisan agreement. In this case, these two gentlemen have done it." It makes one wonder which Republican promised "to change the tone in Washington" while running for office.

The tax cut and Sen. Jeffords' departure from the GOP have shown Bush to be a liar and Grassley to be a leader. It is unfortunate that Grassley had to lose his well-deserved position of leadership because of the dishonesty and pettiness of the president.

NASA'S MISMANAGEMENT OF FUNDS ...

Restructure before reducing

In a report released on June 5 by the Senate Government Affairs Committee, NASA was cited as the fourth-worst mismanagement problem facing the Bush administration.

Beating NASA as the top three mismanagements were a public infrastructure project, the "Big Dig," in Boston, the U.S. Department of the Interior of American Indian trust funds, and the Department of Defense.

While it is commendable that the administration is looking for inefficiencies in a year of high gas prices and other economic struggles, it is necessary that it seek to repair and restructure the current systems rather than reduce advancements within them.

The International Space Station, Zarya, was rated as NASA's No.1 budget problem.

While it is commendable that the administration is looking for inefficiencies, it is necessary that it seek to repair and restructure the current systems rather than reduce advancements within them.

Of the $20.8 billion designated by Bush for science, space, and technology funding in 2001, $13.6 billion was allocated for NASA activities.

Though this amount is set for a slight increase over the next few years, the Senate Government Affairs Committee has cited cost overruns on the space station, the failure of the Mars Polar Lander mission, and the cancellation of the X-33 experimental rocket as examples of NASA mismanagement.

Fortunately, even the Republican leader who headed the Affairs Committee seems to realize the importance of space exploration and technology. In a released statement, Sen. Fred Thompson (R-Tenn.) pointed out the need for "sufficient attention and planning" to avoid future cost overruns and failures.

While the importance placed on space technology is not as great as it was at its genesis, the need for it still exists. In a time when fuel prices are high and alternative energy sources are sought, there is no way to better understand our world and what it can — or can't — provide for us than to explore the worlds around us.

Slash and burn, baby, burn

So the moment has finally arrived, and millions can breathe freely and easily once again — or at least as freely and easily as it gets in this fossil-fuel age:

It's the first week in June, and the Red Sox are still in first place, ahead of the damn Yankees.

Oh, you thought I meant the change of power in the U.S. Senate?

Nah. I was talking about something significant.

Politics should come with a warning label: For entertainment purposes only. Do not attempt this at home.

So, sure, it's been great fun to watch the right-wingers in the GOP (which stands for Grand Old Pooh-Bahs) get what's been coming to them. Euripides could've written the script.

It's been especially enjoyable watching former Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, the Mississippi mossback, stew and fume and generally have a hissy fit about a "coup of one" (that would be Vermont Sen. Jim Jeffords' defection from the Republican Party, which shifted the power in the Senate) and about "back-room deals."

Excuse me? Who elected Stealth President Cheney's administration?

Five Supreme Court justices, that's who. In their backroom.

It's also been interesting watching incoming Senate Majority Tom Daschle talk of conciliation and bipartisanship while Lott was muttering about political warfare. There, in the proverbial nutshell (which is not to say that Lott is a nutshell, because he's not a shell of a man at all), you have the main reason that the Republicans lost their grip on the Senate: slash-and-burn politics. It's the old my-way-or-the-highway hubris that the ancient Greeks knew quite a bit about, even though they didn't have highways.

But while fun and interesting and entertaining, I'm not entirely persuaded that having the Democrats control the Senate will change all that much in Washington.

They might be able to prevent some right-wing zealots from attaining federal judgeships. Can't argue with that, unless, of course, you're a right-wing zealot. In which case, you can argue till hell freezes over (which, given the pace of global warming, might be awhile yet), you're not going to get your comrades on the bench.

And the Democrats might be able to derail some of the Stealth President's energy policy, whose motto is, Burn, baby, burn.

In particular, they might put a damper on the Cheney administration's fascination with nuclear power, as voiced by the White House mouthpiece, his Shrubness:

By renewing and expanding existing nuclear facilities, we can generate tens of thousands of megawatts of electricity at a reasonable cost without pumping a gram of greenhouse gas into the atmosphere.

Not exactly, Georgie boy. As Mark Cohen points out in the May 23 Mother Jones, the uranium for those reactors must be mined, milled, converted, enriched, and packaged, all of which create enormous amounts of pollution and tons of greenhouse gases — actually, millions upon millions of tons. The enrichment process in particular produces enough gases to enable Cheney to put a greenhouse in every garage. "It requires a tremendous amount of electricity," explains Elizabeth Stuckie, a spokeswoman at the U.S. Enrichment Corp., the company in charge of altering the uranium for the reactors. To get that electricity, she says, "we are having to rely on fossil fuels."

And Christopher Sherry, who's in charge of research for the Safe Energy Communication Council, said U.S. uranium enrichment alone produces approximately 14 million tons of carbon dioxide per year.

Enough greenhouse gas to make orchids of us all.

I don't know exactly which kind of fuzzy math his Shrubness is using these days, but 14 million tons of greenhouse gas seems as if it might be a tad more than one gram of greenhouse gas.

And then there are other parts of Cheney's energy plan that could bear some scrutiny. As Paul Krugman of the New York Times reports, during the campaign last fall, one of his Shrubness' and Cheney's oft-repeated jabs at Al Gore was that Gore wanted to give tax credits to people who bought hybrid (gas-electric) cars. It was meant to demonstrate how laughable Gore's thinking was.

Fast-forward to Stealth President Cheney's plan, which includes a few conservation measures as a sop. Chief among them is — drum roll, please — a tax credit for those who buy hybrid cars.

Who'da thunk right-wingers could be so slapstick?

Stay tuned; it seems as though the Supreme Court has elected Laurel and Hardy.

Beau Elliot is a DI columnist.

Hole in vision leads to artwork

Exhibition of artist Lee Allen's work to begin at UI Museum of Art Saturday.

By Maggie Campbell
The Daily Iowan

Art and medicine reside in close quarters in the retrospective exhibition of work by Iowa City artist Lee Allen at the UI Museum of Art.

Beginning Saturday, the museum will feature an exhibit of Allen's work dating back to 1929. The show will include works made of oil, alkyd, acrylic, and watercolor paintings, medical illustrations, and a bronze relief.

"I wanted to not make everything look like it came from the same stew pot," Allen said.

The 90-year-old has always painted. He began his formal career as a painter under Grant Wood in the 1930s. He is one of only two still-living artists who studied with Wood.

He went on to work as an illustrator for the UI School of Ophthalmology from 1937 until 1976. After his retirement, Allen returned to painting full time and produced several types of work, including regionalist landscapes based on a combination of invented images and real life in Iowa.

In 1988, Allen self-diagnosed his own age-related macular degeneration and began to draw what he was able to see in order to further understand his disease and its development.

"During that time I was intending to make a book to publish what I was seeing. During that time I didn't paint," he said.

Though he was not diagnosed with the eye disease by his doctors until 1994, Allen's artistic and medical skills had already combined to produce a set of watercolor and pen and ink images explaining the development of his disease.

"The pen and ink drawing represents a cross-section of the eye at a certain level," he said.

Allen's book about his own age-related macular degeneration, The Hole in My Vision, was published last year and includes his drawings as well as his own and others' writing.

The exhibition will continue through July 29, after which it will be on view at the Brunner Art Museum at Iowa State University from Aug. 28 to Nov. 25.

Tomb Raider tunes offer high speed thrills

Speedy electronic tunes accent the majority of the soundtrack for this reworking of a videogame into a movie. The avant-garde of the music industry congregate in a vow to keep movie watchers interested and videogamers pressing buttons. This auteur-istic soundtrack is decorated by the likes of U2, the Chemical Brothers, Missy Elliot, Nelly Furtado, Outkast, Moby, and Fatboy Slim.

While U2, Nine Inch Nails, and Fatboy Slim provide relatively mediocre tracks, the remainder of the soundtrack is evenly distributed with a collective blend of intense high-speed chase anthems. In "Speedballin'" the dungeon family duo of Big Boi and Dre of Outkast produce yet another innovative musical gem with nasty, obnoxious breaks, feverish wildfire flows, and stompy Spanish tempos.

Remix queen Missy Elliot collaborates with Nelly Furtado in an exceptional rendition of "Get UR Freak On." The interaction of Furtado's flickering linguistics and tongue tickling with Missy's meticulous production and undeniably catchy chorus glimmer as the track receives yet another dose of flavor.

Electronic music entrepreneurs Moby and BT take a sledgehammer to the walls that divide rock and electronic music in Moby's "Ain't Never Learned" and BT's "The Revolution." And the soundtrack isn't without a set of downtempo tunes. Deterium's "Terra Firma" features some beautiful female vocals by Aude that are surprisingly overshadowed by a euphoric chant and a racy melody. Groove Armada continues the chillout ambience italicized through a sensuous symphony structure, heartfelt guitar picking and wavy bass blobs.

This soundtrack's electronic spunk will at the very least act as a driving assistant for those long highway roadtrips or for some hyperactive background music while videogaming.

Rufus Wainwright's sophomore slump

Piano man Rufus Wainwright sounds best when it seems like he has stumbled, drunk, into a confessional booth.

His sophomore album, Poses, suffers from a disease common among sophomore albums: a lack of intriguing material. Three tracks into the album, Wainwright sobers. His songs are no longer personally revealing or compelling.

The CD begins well with "Cigarettes and Chocolate Milk," which features the lyrics "Cigarettes and chocolate milk/ These are just a couple of my cravings/ Everything it seems I like it's a little bit stronger, a little bit thicker, a little bit harmful for me."

Then the album runs out of insight. Wainwright structures the album like another classically influenced piano man, Billy Joel, structured The Stranger. Like the title track of Poses. Perhaps an education in classical music makes them feel as though they have duties to carry themes.

Billy Joel's derivative style brings his music to listeners, but listeners must come to Wainwright, whose vocal delivery is so stylized and original that lyrics are hard to understand.

It is sad to see such effort wasted on the uninspired songs that make up most of Poses.

tenders and servers to run their establishments by always having to look over their backs, it is an important step by the council to curb the binge and underage drinking problem.

"The elimination of 'two-for-one' drink specials will be hard because they're a popular feature at the bar," said Dave Moore. "It will change the ways bars run their happy hours and specials."

Moore, owner of the Field House Restaurant and Bar, 111 E. College St., and College St. Billiards Club and Deli, 114 E. College St., has been vocal throughout the ordinance's development.

Councilor Irvin Pfab, a supporter of the new ordinance, said he believes the ordinance will pass Tuesday.

"I will be shocked if it doesn't pass," Pfab said. "I think the bar owners and the people who go to the bars have a responsibility to themselves and the public."

Outside consulting on the rise

FACULTY

nication.

Following a national trend, UI administrators are discussing drafting a revision to the UI's Conflict of Interest policy that would be more stringent on requiring professors to report when they are working for an outside institution, said Lee Anna Clark, UI associate provost for faculty.

The administration will be requesting faculty input regarding the policy change this fall.

To ensure that potential problems do not overshadow the positive aspects of consulting, the UI's current Conflict of Interest policy requires faculty to disclose consulting activities.

Professors must report any conflict of interest that may arise during their research and the amount of time they spend on outside professional activities to the head of their departments annually, Clark said.

The policy states that a professor must have any potential conflict of interest monitored by an outside group.

The amount of time spent consulting does not detract from a professor's other responsibilities, said Michael O'Hara, UI associate dean for research. Faculty consult because of the expertise they hold in their discipline, he said, adding that it is a service to the community, state, and nation.

"Faculty probably spend more time drinking coffee than running around consulting," O'Hara said.

Consulting allows faculty to stay active in their area of expertise and can improve their teaching, two reasons administrators of the UI Henry B. Tippie College of Business encourage their faculty to consult, said Robert Forsythe, senior associate dean of the college. The college of business has the highest number of full-time faculty reporting paid consulting during 1999-2000, 85.9 percent, which is partially due to the encouragement of outside consulting, Forsythe said.

"When a professor comes into the classroom, as opposed to just teaching theory, he is also able to apply real world examples from his consulting," Forsythe said.

Citizens dislike expansion

ZONING

According to state law, the city can annex the neighborhood without consent if an irregular boundary is created, said Karin Franklin, city director of planning.

Residents from the seven homes in the Hummingbird neighborhood expect to pay 30 percent more in property taxes should the area be annexed, although a provision in the city's laws would allow the rate to increase gradually over a five year period, Franklin said. Residents would also be expected to pay city sewer and water rates.

However, the area would see an approximate 10 minute increase in response time from police and fire services, which are currently dispatched from West Branch, resulting in a decrease in home insurance rates, said Robert Miklo, the city's senior planner.

Despite these incentives, Hummingbird Lane resident Greg Mulenburg said his neighborhood will pay more in taxes to the city than it will gain in services.

Developers, who modeled their plans after city concepts to speed along projects, will carry the brunt of expenses because the land is not city-owned.

Opposition to the proposed voluntary annexation was also raised by eastside residents. Plum Grove Acres Inc. plans to build a commercial center at the corner of Scott Boulevard and Rochester Avenue. The center would possibly include a bank and grocery and convenience stores to service the north-east side of town.

All 95 acres of the Lindemann property would become single-family residential neighborhoods with plans for a trail along the existing stream and wetland area, said Glenn Siders of the Southgate Development Company. The projects are still in the "preliminary stages," he said.

Public hearings will be held at undetermined dates in the future. If all goes well, Southgate may start "pushing dirt around" in September, Siders said, but full construction isn't expected to begin until next spring.

McVeigh puts stop to appeals

MCVEIGH

what he'll request. "He keeps changing it," Lappin said.

This much is certain: It can come from the prison or any restaurant in the Terre Haute area, but it cannot cost more than $20.

He has long pondered his last words. According to the recently published book American Terrorist: Timothy McVeigh & the Oklahoma City Bombing, McVeigh has chosen an excerpt from William Ernest Henley's 19th-century poem "Invictus."

"I am the master of my fate. I am the captain of my soul."

McVeigh's lawyers had wanted more time to review nearly 4,500 pages of belatedly released FBI documents for information they felt could have helped in his defense during the 1997 trial.

The lawyers argued that U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch was caught up in the horror of the Oklahoma City bombing and "lost sight of the demands of fairness."

On Wednesday, Matsch, who presided over the trial in Denver, denied McVeigh's request to delay his execution.

The appeals court also refused to reopen McVeigh's appeal, noting "our complete agreement with McVeigh's candid concession in his district court filings that the newly produced materials do not satisfy the standard."

In Terre Haute earlier Thursday, preparations for the execution continued. McVeigh's lawyer Nathan Chambers spent some time with the 33-year-old.

"He is well," Chambers. The bombing of the Oklahoma City federal building killed 168 people in April 1995.

McVeigh was originally scheduled to die May 16. Just days before, however, the Justice Department began turning over FBI evidence that should have been given to McVeigh's lawyers before his trial, and Ashcroft postponed the execution.

In Oklahoma City, execution witness Kay Fulton said she had expected to have at least one more month to prepare for the death of the man who killed her brother, 42-year-old Customs agent Paul Ice.

"In the last month and the last couple of days, a big heavy cloud is hanging over my head," Fulton said. "I tend to lose focus on what is important. The importance is Paul Ice and the other 167 victims. Once McVeigh, the monster, is out of the picture, I can focus on that."

Paul Howell, whose daughter died in the bombing, said he was relieved to hear McVeigh won't appeal to the Supreme Court.

"It's kind of like a burden lifted off my shoulders," he said. "I'm going to start preparing myself mentally for it now."

In the appeal, Nigh asked the appeals judges to set aside their emotions while reviewing the case.

He said if the defense attorneys had more time to review the documents, they could show that the FBI suppressed credible evidence that other people played a significant role in the bombing. He said such information might have swayed the jurors not to sentence McVeigh to death.

horoscopes

Friday, June 8, 2001 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put your creative energy into your work. You'll attract controversial attention, which could result in a unique and exciting love connection. Don't keep your free-spirited thoughts to yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You'll be misled if you think that everyone is telling you the truth. Find out for yourself if you have any doubts whatsoever about any of the information that you're being fed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't even consider getting involved in joint ventures. Dead-end projects are apparent. You can look at contracts, but hold off signing anything until you get the go-ahead from your legal adviser.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Social activity will lead to romance. You can win the hearts of the children in your life if you show an interest in the things they enjoy doing. Your emotional partner may have second thoughts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll be frustrated if you can't accomplish your goals because of a co-worker's incompetence. Problems with your boss will surface if he or she thinks it's your fault.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You need to be somewhat drastic if you want to change your image. Take a long, hard look at yourself and set a goal that is sure to lift your spirits and attract other people's interest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Domestic issues will be perplexing. You'll have trouble getting a straight answer out of the party you're involved with. Be understanding, but don't put up with abuse or escapism.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Partnerships may not be as they appear. Find out exactly where you stand. You may be misreading the interest that someone has in you. He or she may only be concerned with your talent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make those career moves you've been thinking about for so long. If you need to make a move, start packing. You've never liked to stay in one place for too long, so quit procrastinating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone you love will not listen or believe what you have to say. Actions speak louder than words in this case. I suggest you give your partner whatever he or she wants to make amends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can be successful if you direct your efforts into financial ventures or professional accomplishments. Don't sit back waiting for others to do things for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Get involved in a cause. You have a special way of helping others. Don't let your abilities be wasted. Find something you believe in and make a difference.

quote of the day

Things have been passed around. I know I don't want to share my tights and I don't want to share my underwear.

— Gary Stevenson, a stilt walker at Walt Disney World, after workers that dress as characters such as Mickey and Goofy recently won the right to wear their own underwear to work. Disney had previously required them to share tights and jockstraps, which resulted in outbreaks of lice and scabies.

The Ledge

By Jesse Ammerman

What the Democrats are doing now that they've taken control of the Senate

- De-pantsing former Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott repeatedly, with hilarious results.
- Winking at Republicans and telling them, "Hey, I hear your wife's defecting to my side, too."
- Stomping on the floor in unison before floor votes and chanting, "We will rock you."
- Realizing that more legislative authority means more paper airplanes to throw at Republicans.
- Taking Trent Lott's Britney Spears posters down from the Senate walls.
- Urging Sammy Sosa to "defect" to their side in time for the Congressional softball tournament.
- Making TP-ing the White House a major part of their legislative agenda.
- Assuming full control of the newly created 'Drinking and Gettin' Laid' Committee, with Ted Kennedy as chairman.
- Refusing to support Republican plans for a missile defense shield unless it also thwarts really bad French movies in addition to other bombs.
- Waking and startling Strom Thurmond.

deep left and scored on Augie Ojeda's single with two outs.

That brought up Sosa, who smacked a hard liner that looked like it might be a homer. It hit the wall in right-center instead, but neither Jim Edmonds nor Kerry Robinson got close to it, and Ojeda scored easily to tie it at 3.

"Fatigue was starting to set in, but the adrenaline kicked in with the Sosa at-bat," Morris said. "I wanted to challenge him, but I got too much of the plate. Ojeda scoring from first with two outs was tough to swallow. I could have walked Sosa just as easily."

"I gave up about six hits in a span of three outs. It's amazing how the tide turns."

Padres 10, Giants 7

SAN FRANCISCO — Barry Bonds hit his 32nd homer, connecting in a losing cause as the San Diego Padres snapped an eight-game losing streak Thursday with a 10-7 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Bonds' 451-foot homer in the seventh inning against Brian Lawrence was the longest ever hit at Pacific Bell Park.

The two-run drive, which bounced high against the green backdrop in deepest center field, was Bonds' third in three games, but it came well after the Padres had enough runs to win.

Bonds, who has 526 career homers, went 2-for-3 with a walk and a fly ball that fell for a double when Mike Darr lost it in the sun. After taking the day off Wednesday, Bonds remained on the quickest home run pace in history by homering in each of the three games he played in the four-game series.

Red Sox 8, Tigers 1

BOSTON — Carl Everett returned to the Boston lineup and drove in five runs, leading Tim Wakefield and the Red Sox over the Detroit Tigers 8-1, Thursday night.

Everett sat out a day after playing all 18 innings and striking out four times in Tuesday night's 4-3 victory.

Everett hit a three-run double in the second and an RBI triple in the fourth against Victor Santos (1-2). He singled in another run in the two-run seventh.

Yankees 4, Orioles 0

NEW YORK — Roger Clemens struck out 10 and Todd Greene doubled twice and drove in three runs Thursday night to lift the New York Yankees to a 4-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Clemens (7-1) earned his 267th victory, moving ahead of Hall of Famers Bob Feller and Eppa Rixey for 30th place on the career list.

Clemens gave up three hits and walked two in eight innings. His first 10-strikeout game of the season was the 97th of his career, tying him with Sandy Koufax for third place on the all-time list.

Diamondbacks 13, Dodgers 9

PHOENIX — Steve Finley, mired in a season-long slump, homered, doubled and drove in three runs Thursday as the Arizona Diamondbacks outslugged the Los Angeles Dodgers, 13-9.

Junior Spivey, who hadn't had a major league at-bat before Thursday, was 2-for-3 with a home run, had two RBI and scored three times for Arizona.

Erubiel Durazo hit a three-run homer for the Diamondbacks, who split the four-game series to finish 13-4 in a stretch of 17 consecutive games against NL West opponents.

White Sox 5, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mark

Buehrle stretched his scoreless streak to 24 2-3 innings, and the Chicago White Sox beat the Kansas City Royals, 5-1, Thursday for their ninth win in 11 games.

Magglio Ordonez was 4-for-4 with two doubles and went 9-for-13 (.692) in the three-game series.

Buehrle (4-3), who gave up two hits in eight innings, hasn't been scored on since May 20 against Oakland and has allowed just nine hits during his streak. It is the longest scoreless streak by a White Sox pitcher since Alex Fernandez threw 25 2-3 consecutive shutout innings in 1995.

Marlins 5, Pirates 3

MIAMI — Kevin Millar hit a three-run homer off Josias Manzanillo in the eighth inning Thursday, rallying the Florida Marlins over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3.

Pittsburgh led 3-1 in the eighth when Luis Castillo singled, Alex Gonzalez was hit by a pitch and Cliff Floyd singled.

Castillo scored on a wild pitch and, two outs later, Millar connected on a 3-2 pitch by Manzanillo (1-2) for his fourth homer of the season.

Ricky Bones (2-1) won despite allowing a run in the eighth, and Antonio Alfonseca finished for his 12th save in 14 chances.

Stanford surprise team at College World Series

Tulane coach Rick Jones said.

Stanford won four elimination games during the first two rounds to get to the College World Series. The Cardinal lost their top three starting pitchers and have no seniors on their roster, making this year's trip unexpected — even to coach Mark Marquess.

"This is probably the biggest surprise that we've ended up in Omaha," Marquess said. "It's the youngest team I've ever had in my 25 years at Stanford."

The second game Friday night pits local favorite Nebraska (50-14), also in the CWS for the first time, against Cal State-Fullerton (46-16).

Huskers fans have firmly made their presence felt. A sea of red T-shirts, hats and shorts dominated the huge ticket line outside Rosenblatt Stadium on Thursday. Nebraska's campus in Lincoln is located about 50 miles from Omaha, and the Huskers are in the College World Series for the first time in the program's history.

"We get to take this road to Omaha a lot, but it's usually to catch a plane to head South to play," Nebraska coach Dave Van Horn said.

The Titans, the tournament's top seed, started the season 8-8 but have gone 38-8 since.

"I was kind of wondering if we'd even get to the playoffs," coach George Horton said. "But something happened with this group of young men. They got better, they got confident. But the one constant we've had is very solid pitching."

Right-hander Kirk Saarloos has won 15 straight decisions, struck out 150 and walked just 23 in 144 1/3 innings as the ace of the staff.

In Saturday's games, Southern California (44-17) plays Georgia (47-20) and Miami (49-12) takes on Tennessee (46-18).

The Trojans are no strangers to the College World Series.

Their 21 appearances rank second to Texas' 28. Right-handers Mark Prior and Rik Currier give USC perhaps the best starting duo in the nation.

Prior, the No. 2 pick by the Chicago Cubs in Tuesday's draft, is 14-1 with a 1.50 ERA and has a school and Pac-10 season record 189 strikeouts. Currier is 12-2 with a 2.39 ERA and is the school and conference leader with 444 career strikeouts.

Georgia coach Ron Polk is just the second coach in NCAA history to bring three schools to the College World Series. He brought Georgia Southern to Omaha in 1973, Mississippi State five times and is back in only his second year at Georgia.

Iverson: L.A. will have to bring A-plus game to win beating up on everybody, sweeping guys, while we've been going through wars every single game," Iverson said.

"I don't know if the guys they were playing against before were scared, but now they know they have to come with their A-plus game every night. If not, we're going to have a chance to win."

Oddly, the very same oddsmakers who made the Lakers 11 1/2-point favorites for Game 1 have made them an 11-point favorite for Game 2.

Jackson said the Lakers would take away some of the ballhandling chores from Bryant and give them to Fisher and Tyrone Lue, thereby allowing Bryant to devote more of his energy to scoring.

Bryant shot just 7-for-22 and had 15 points in becoming the latest star to learn than Aaron McKie isn't just a strong sixth man, he's also a great defender.

McKie has guarded Bryant, Glenn Robinson, Ray Allen, Vince Carter, Jalen Rose, and Reggie Miller during the playoffs.

Jackson said the Lakers need O'Neal to shoot better from the free throw line, where he was just 10-for-22 in Game 1 — including 1-for-6 in the fourth quarter.

"That game, if you look at the stat sheet, was won by us in almost every category but that one," Jackson said.

O'Neal scored 44 points, 14 of which came in the final six minutes of the third quarter after Dikembe Mutombo sat down with three fouls. Mutombo played O'Neal straight-up for most of the night as Philadelphia opted not to send a second defender. Most NBA teams routinely double- and triple-team O'Neal.

"I think I did a great job," Mutombo said. "If there's a little adjustment I have to make, that would be between my coach and me, and we have to work on that."

Borque one win away from ultimate goal

quit yet, as evidenced by his strong words after Game 5. Then, not ready to concede his "Mission 16W" was over — the 16 representing the wins needed to claim the cup — he said, "We are going to go to New Jersey and we are going to get it done."

They did, and now it's 15W down and 1W to go for Bourque, who has played far more games — 1,825 — than any NHL player who has never won hockey's biggest prize.

During the two-day break between Games 5 and 6, Bourque never backed off an inch from his prediction. And Roy, whose careless journey from the net allowed the tying goal to score in the Devils' 3-2 comeback win in Game 4, never wandered from the net even once.

With the Avalanche already ahead 1-0 on Foote's goal late in the first period, they made the third period all but meaningless by taking a 3-0 lead in the second period.

With Bobby Holik off for roughing, Niemenen got his stick on Martin Skoula's shot from the top of the slot for his fourth of the playoffs, 2:26 into the period.

Drury's goal, probably the highlight reel goal of the finals, came at 18:27. He carried the puck into the Devils end, put a move on Colin White, deftly peeled back toward the blue line then powered a shot that deflected off White's stick and past Martin Brodeur.

Iverson playing every game like it's his last

■ The Philadelphia 76ers guard has led his team not only to the finals, but to a 1-0 lead over the Lakers.

By Jim Litke
 Associated Press

Leave it to the little guy to shrink one of the biggest play-off upsets in NBA history to a sound bite — and an inspirational one at that.

"We've got heart," Allen Iverson said. "We play with that first. We'll play with talent second."

He still looks like a hard case, but more and more, Iverson comes off sounding like a Hallmark gift card. He is always talking about heart. But until Game 1 of the finals, too many people wouldn't look past the cornrows and the tattoos that covered his body like upholstery to see what Iverson was really made of.

They believe him now because there is no other explanation. This was supposed to be a mismatch of historic proportions. Iverson's 76ers are nowhere near as talented as the Lakers and besides, they're twice as beat up. But put the rosters side by side, measure the disparity and you get a sense of how life looked to Iverson from Day

One all the way through Wednesday night.

He was always matched against somebody bigger, stronger, better off. It wore down most of the kids and every one of the basketball players on the streets where Iverson grew up. But not him. Somewhere along the way, he learned to play every game as if it was his last.

Maybe that's why almost every time coach Larry Brown talks about his star, he couches it in terms of a journey. He learned to appreciate how far the kid has come.

At the start of the season, Iverson and Brown were miles apart, the selfish young superstar and the old-school coach. Iverson asked to be made team captain and Brown answered that leadership was more about purpose than talent. Challenged in those terms, Iverson started showing up to practice on time, showing his coach and his teammates respect. Today, he and Brown are soul mates, little guys whose hearts are synched to the same beat.

"Everyone said we can't do it," Iverson said, "and that drives us."

The 76ers did not win two Game 7s, against Toronto and Milwaukee, or the opener against Los Angeles, with mirrors. Most of what they accomplished, the points, rebounds, assists, and steals, are easy enough to find listed in black and white. What the box score doesn't cover is how. That's where Iverson's heart comes in. It has become the motor that propels not just the little guy to amazing heights, but an entire team of overachievers.

"The most impressive thing about him right now is his stamina," said Isaiah Thomas, the Indiana Pacers coach and former NBA great. "That, plus his energy and talent, makes him quite a handful."

Thomas, the last great "little man" in the NBA, was almost the anti-Iverson. It wasn't just his image, but the way he played. Thomas was smoother, more analytical. He led the Detroit Pistons using his head, finding holes in an opponent's defense and exploiting them with clever passes and freeing up teammates for open shots.

But even he is mesmerized by Iverson's helter-skelter brand of basketball madness.

"He's going to have peaks and valleys because of the way he plays," Thomas said from Chicago, where he is scouting prospects at the NBA pre-draft camp. "But he is definitely on a peak right now."

That part surprises no one. What should is how Iverson has dragged Philadelphia's ragtag army along with him. NBC put a graphic on the screen during Game 1 using bright yellow dots to highlight the various ailments Iverson is playing through. By the time the graphic was complete, you couldn't see the 6-foot, 155-pound wisp through all the dots.

That explains why Eric Snow played the end of the Milwaukee series with a stress fracture, and soldiers on even now. Ditto for Aaron McKie. It's why Dikembe Mutombo was too embarrassed to mention his broken finger at first — because he thought it was insignificant alongside the multiple hurts Iverson and just about everyone else on the 76ers was enduring.

The aches and pains didn't go away, but the 76ers got the best medicine they could sitting in the visiting locker room some 15 minutes before the tip-off for Game 1. A few hundred yards away, surrounding the court at the Staples Center, they heard a raucous crowd chant "SWEEP! SWEEP! SWEEP!"

That put Iverson in his element.

"We've been in wars all season, games where we proved to ourselves we could win if we played the game like it's our last," he said.

Italian cycling stage canceled after a police drug raid.

ROME (AP) — Cycling faced another drug scandal Thursday when police raided the hotels of riders in one of the world's top races and seized what they said was a large amount of banned performance enhancers.

The pre-dawn raids in the northern city of San Remo forced cancellation of the day's stage of the Giro d'Italia and raised new questions three years after a drug scandal at the Tour de France threatened to destroy the sport.

Race director Carmine Castellano called off the 142.6-mile stage through the Alps after some riders were kept awake into the early hours during police searches of the hotel rooms and vehicles of the 20 teams.

Investigators reportedly found banned substances and used syringes.

The completion of the tour — a three-week event that ranks behind only the Tour de France in prestige — was in doubt until the racers agreed to continue Friday with the final three stages. The race ends in Milan on Sunday.

"There was a moment last night when we had decided that was enough," Massimo Strazzer, a racer for the Mobilvetta team, said Thursday on RAI television. "But out of respect for the sport and for the race, we have decided to continue. We made the mature decision."

Saints sign draft picks Davis and White to 3-year deals

NEW ORLEANS — The New Orleans Saints signed draft picks

Ennis Davis and Mitch White to three-year contracts, team officials said Thursday.

The 6-foot-4, 308-pound Davis was drafted in the seventh round out of Southern California. He started 35 games at defensive tackle for USC and was a second team all-Pacific 10 selection by the Associated Press.

The 6-4, 311-pound White was taken in the sixth round out of Oregon State. He started all 23 of his games for Oregon State at right tackle.

Financial terms were not disclosed.

Scotty Bowman will return as coach of Red Wings

DETROIT — Scotty Bowman, the NHL's winningest coach, is returning to the Detroit Red Wings for his 30th season behind the bench.

"I've always felt I'll know when I'm ready to step aside," Bowman said. "This season, the season ran well. Obviously, the playoffs didn't."

There had been speculation that the 67-year-old coach might retire after having knee-replacement surgery and an angioplasty that caused him to miss the early part of the 1998-99 season.

When Bowman coached his 2,000th game in November, Red Wings owner Mike Iltch said job security never will be a problem for Bowman in Detroit.

"He can coach here as long as he wants," Iltch said. "If he feels OK and he has a cane."

Detroit's 2000-01 season came to a disappointing end with a 3-2 overtime loss at Los Angeles on April 24. The Kings won the best-of-seven first-round series, 4-2, after losing the first two games.

Showdown scheduled at Belmont

Monarchs and Point Given are favored, but the rest of the field could give them a run for their money.

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The showdown between Kentucky Derby winner Monarchs and Preakness winner Point Given is what's expected in the Belmont Stakes on Saturday. John Ward, Monarchs' trainer, fears a different scenario. "To me, we're both set up to get beat," Ward said Thursday. The last Kentucky Derby winner to win the 1 1/2-mile Belmont was Thunder Gulch, Point Given's sire, in 1995. The last Preakness winner to win the final race of the Triple Crown was Tabasco Cat in 1994.

The quality of the other seven 3-year-olds could get in the way of a Monarchs-Point Given race for the wire.

"This is one of the better ones," said D. Wayne Lukas, who has won the Belmont four times and has Buckle Down Ben in this field. "This is a good bunch. The winner that comes out of this race is a legitimate Belmont winner."

Mark Lennihan/Associated Press

Monarchs looked sensational in winning the Florida Derby by 4 1/2 lengths, but then finished second in the Wood Memorial in a performance Ward called a perfect prep for the 1 1/2-mile Kentucky Derby.

It was Monarchs, making a big move from 10th place with a half-mile remaining, won the Derby by 4 1/2 lengths in 1:59 4-5, second only to Secretariat's 1:59 2-5 in 127 runnings of the race.

In the 1 1/2-mile Preakness, Monarchs finished sixth.

"I watched the Preakness again the other night and I think our mistake was taking him back," Ward said, explaining that the colt should have been closer to the early pace.

Point Given opened his 3-year-old campaign by winning the San Felipe, then won the Santa Anita Derby. The favorite in the Kentucky Derby, the huge chestnut colt was second, only a head behind stablemate Congaree with a quarter-mile remaining, then faded to finish fifth.

In the Preakness he made a move on the final turn and won by 2 1/2 lengths.

"Gary had a plan in his head how he was going to ride in the Derby," Baffert said. "In the Preakness he let the horse decide on his own."

Frazier and Ali ready to fight tonight

It's just like old times with Ali taunting Frazier — only this time it is the daughters.

By John Kekis
Associated Press

VERONA, N.Y. — The months of taunting are over. Madame Butterfly and Sister Smoke are set to go.

"I'm ready to get this over with," Laila Ali said as she prepared to meet Jacqui Frazier-Lyde in an eight-round bout Friday night at Turning Stone Casino. "I can't wait. She's been doing a lot of talking about how I'm going to be running, so I'm just hoping that when I start busting her upside the head that she has another plan."

"She's avoided me for so long," Frazier-Lyde countered. "Laila's having nightmares of me. I'm not going to have a problem nailing Laila Ali's head. I know you're going to run, but I'm going to track you down."

Seems like old times as the daughters of former heavyweight champions Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier rekindle what once was boxing's most bitter rivalry.

It's been 30 years since "Smokin' Joe Frazier won a brutal 15-round decision over Ali in "The Fight," the first of their three memorable bouts, the last two won by Ali. The animosity that was created by Ali's punches and taunts never vanished.

"Yeah, there's still bad blood," said trainer Lou Duva, now 79. "It's been an ongoing thing. They know each other. They speak about each other nowdays. But he's done nothing for Joe and Joe's done nothing for him, and for 30 years they've done nothing for each other. They could have really been an institution. They were so popular that they could have had a traveling road show."

Whether the two men would travel to see their daughters fight remained in question. Frazier is expected to attend, but Muhammad Ali has a prior commitment with NASCAR in Michigan and probably will miss it, said his daughter, who made her pro debut at the casino 20 months ago.

"I've kind of left it alone because I don't want that (her father) to be my focus," she said. "I've heard rumors that I'm going to be surprised and all that. After the fight, if he's there, cool. If he's not, it's cool, too. We'll talk on the phone."

The bout between the two unbeaten fighters has attracted substantial attention worldwide, with more than 300 media credentials issued. It will take place in an 8,000-seat tent promoters have erected on a parking lot behind the casino. Just over 5,000 seats had been sold by midweek, with the best at $300 each. The fight also is available on pay-per-view.

Avs push series to Game 7

Colorado blanks the Devils, 4-0, in New Jersey.

By Alan Robinson
Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Ray Bourque's guarantee was as good as Adam Foote's goal — the Colorado Avalanche are going home for Game 7 of the Stanley Cup finals.

Foote had a goal and two assists and Patrick Roy, never straying an inch from the net, turned aside a flurry of early New Jersey shots as the Avalanche prevented the Devils from clinching the cup with a series-tying 4-0 victory Thursday night.

Just as Bourque predicted, the Avalanche rebounded from their worst game — a 4-1 loss at home Monday in Game 5 — with a determined, dominating effort to force the first Game 7 in the finals since the New York Rangers beat the Vancouver Canucks in 1994 and only the fourth since 1967.

The Devils, clearly frustrated by Roy's errorless play after they had a succession of good scoring chances in the first 10 minutes, can win the cup on the road for a second successive season.

However, they had plenty of margin for error last year before winning Game 6 at Dallas, with a Game 7 at home if necessary. Now, they won't repeat unless they become the first team since the 1971 Montreal Canadiens to win Game 7 on the road. That was the last time a team rallied from a 3-2 deficit to win the cup.

The Avalanche, also getting goals from Ville Niemenen, Chris Drury and Alex Tanguay, became the first team since the 1964 Toronto Maple Leafs to win a Game 6 on the road when trailing 3-2 in the finals.

Roy was spectacular, stopping 24 shots in his record 19th career playoff shutout, his record-tying fourth this season and his second of the series. The Avalanche won 5-0 in Game 1 — so far, their only victory in three home games.

If they can get a second, the Avalanche will win their second cup since 1996, deny the Devils a second straight Stanley Cup, and finally give Bourque the prize he has chased for 22 seasons — and may stop pursuing after this season, if the 40-year-old retires.

Bourque clearly isn't ready to

COLLEGE WORLD SERIES

Dave Weaver/Associated Press

Mike Brown puts the finishing touches on the 2001 College World Series logo at Rosenblatt Stadium Wednesday June 6 in Omaha, Neb. President Bush is expected to throw the first pitch of the 2001 CWS on Friday.

A presidential opening

Teams are preparing for what they call the "pinnacle" of college baseball.

By Dennis Waszak Jr.
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — For the eight teams in the College World Series, Omaha is a college baseball paradise.

Some — like Nebraska and Tulane — are experiencing the event for the first time, while others — like Stanford, Southern California, and Miami — have been here many times. They all agree there's no place they'd rather be.

"Something I hear at practice from our players is the word 'Omaha' at least once every day," Miami coach Jim Morris said. "It's something our players talk about and think about from Day 1."

The road to the College World Series has gotten increasingly difficult, with teams having to win a double-elimination regional and best-of-three super regional to get to Omaha.

"This is the pinnacle," Southern California coach Mike Gillespie said. "It's been our experience that it's hard to get here. This is not a given. This is not easy. This is not to be taken for granted. This is special."

The event will also have a special fan, President Bush, who will throw the first pitch in Friday's College World Series opener between Stanford (46-16) and Tulane (55-11). Opening ceremonies and the home run challenge were Thursday night.

Tulane, the nation's winningest team, spoiled retiring Louisiana State coach Skip Bertman's bid for a sixth national title in 11 years by beating the Tigers in the super regionals. Now, the Green Wave are having their own Omaha experience.

"To have the opportunity to advance and get to the College World Series is a thrill for me, but a feeling of euphoria for our fans,"

Lakers look to solve Iverson's riddle

Los Angeles vows to regroup for a crucial Game 2 against the Sixers.

By Chris Sheridan
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Shaquille O'Neal got a kick out of the way a foreign journalist pronounced the word "Goliath," playfully mocking the man by repeating the mispronunciation "Goalie-eth. Goalie-eth," O'Neal said.

Goliath, aka the Los Angeles Lakers, certainly didn't sound or look the same Thursday, a day after David, better known as the Philadelphia 76ers, came away with an overtime victory in Game 1 to end the Lakers' 11-game postseason winning streak.

The 76ers now have the edge in the NBA Finals and the Lakers are dealing with the first Game 1 defeat of the Phil Jackson era.

"Now that we know what we're going up against we can adjust and get some of the other talk out of our system," O'Neal said. "I think that's the best they can play, and we'll be a different team tomorrow."

The shock of losing Game 1 brought a new dynamic to a series that many thought would be a walkover.

There is now a tremendous amount of pressure on the Lakers to win Game 2 on Friday night before the series shifts to Philadelphia for Games 3, 4, and, if necessary, 5. "We talked a lot this morning about finding ways to hold it together," Jackson said. "It's about the team as a group and how we support each other, and that's what makes us good."

This is the eighth playoff series the Lakers have played under Jackson but the first one in which they've lost Game 1. So instead of wondering how their opponent is going to adjust, the Lakers faced some unfamiliar scrutiny of their shortcomings — O'Neal's poor free throw shooting, Kobe Bryant's decision making, and Derek Fisher's goose egg in the box score.

The Sixers, meanwhile, were trying to hang onto their underdog label.

"Out of the 100 percent of the people who thought we couldn't win, now probably 99 percent of those people still think we can't win again," said Allen Iverson, who led Philadelphia with 48 points Wednesday night. "Everybody thinks we snuck one game and that's it, now we're going to roll over and die. Nobody respects us."

Iverson said he heard the Staples Center crowd chanting "SWEEP, SWEEP" 15 minutes before tipoff and used it as motivation.

"For the first time all playoffs they felt they were in a war. Everything has been kind of easy for those guys. They're

Chicago sweeps St. Louis

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs are so hot these days they think they can win every game, even when the opposing pitcher is flirting with a no-hitter in the seventh inning.

Sammy Sosa tied the game with a double in the eighth inning, then scored the winning run on Rondell White's single in the 10th Thursday as the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-3.

The victory was the 15th in 16 games for the Cubs. It also gave them a three-game sweep of the Cardinals and extended their division lead to five games — their largest since the end of the 1989 season.

"It's real sweet," White said. "We're playing great baseball and we're having a lot of fun. The pitchers are pitching great, we're getting clutch hits, and we're on a roll now."

It was Matt Morris who was on a roll early, taking a no-hit bid into the seventh inning. But he got into big trouble in the Cubs' eighth, as pinch-hitter Todd Dunwoody doubled to

Capriati tops Hingis for berth in French final

She reaches her first French Cup final ever.

By Steven Wine
Associated Press

PARIS — A triumphant Jennifer Capriati pumped her fist, bowed to the crowd, and blew a kiss to her family. Then, as steady rain began to fall, she grabbed her tennis bag and jogged off the court, her radiant grin a welcome contrast to the gloomy weather.

"That smile — I love that smile," said her mother, Denise. "It's awesome."

An hour after beating Martina Hingis, 6-4, 6-3, Thursday in the French Open semifinals, Capriati was smiling still.

"I just want to scream at the top of my lungs," she said. "I'm just like really excited."

There has been plenty to shout about this year for Capriati, the former child prodigy and troubled teen who won headlines and hearts in January with a surprising run to her first Grand Slam title at the Australian Open.

That achievement was hailed as the culmination of her comeback, but she keeps winning. And in her first French Open final Saturday against 18-year-old Kim Clijsters, Capriati, 25, will be a heavy favorite.

"Right now, I'd say she's the most consistent, hottest player on the tour," Hingis said.

Capriati was touted as a future French Open champion 11 years ago, when she reached the semifinals at Roland Garros as a 14-year-old in her first major event. She lost that match to Monica Seles and hadn't been back to the semis — until Thursday.
