Fun in the sun (and bacteria)

While the state monitors the lakes in state parks, some other local lakes are not monitored.

By Luther Tucker

Although the Iowa Department of Natural Resources has been testing for bacteria in all of the state's public beaches, the quality of other public bodies of water is not guaranteed. These lakes maintained by Johnson County have no monitoring at all.

A beach monitoring program conducted by the SNH in the interest of public health and safety is a stepping stone for local government. Monitoring of beach quality in the state has been left to the discretion of the Department of Natural Resources, said A.D. Kesapsa, a water-quality monitoring specialist for the U.S. Geological Survey of Iowa State University.

As part of the National Lakeshore Conservation Board doesn't have the time or the resources to monitor the bacterial levels in the beach and water bodies, including the stillbirth Park on Highway 6 near Tiffin, and Harry Green Park, the beach director. The Kent Park, on the other hand, has been monitored by monitoring, including by treating algae, which is a necessary part of the process.

The monitoring program began three years ago, and since then, it has been monitored by the city only three times a year. In the last three years, the beach has been monitored at least once a year.

Shellfish monitoring at the Coralville Reservoir by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is conducted every two weeks, and John C. Quigley, the lake manager, has been a part of the monitoring process. Quigley has been monitoring the beach for over 10 years, and he said that he expects the water to be monitored more frequently. He said that the water quality in the lake has improved significantly over the past few years.

"There's no problem with the water quality or the fish. The problem is in the past few weeks. The water quality has improved significantly over the past few months. The water quality is now the best it's been in years."

"Prostate painless blood vessels in the tumor. The presence of these networks indicates certain aggressive treatments from working and cause the cancer to spread," said UI graduate student

Angela Hess, a member of the research team.

The treatments include using drugs that reduce the formation of new vascular networks, as well as treatments that attack the cancer and acidify the blood supply.

However, if a tumor is able to create new blood vessels and feed itself, the treatment will not work. Blood vessels are beneficial to the cancer, and if the treatment is not working, then it might be better to treat the cancer with chemotherapy.

This research is a new way to think about (melanoma) treatment," she said.

Researchers are calling this finding "a paradigm shift" in cancer research, indicating that new treatments are needed for melanomas, and it allows them to see the progression of melanoma in real time, which can help them diagnose the cancer earlier.

The legislation that Congress approved late last week was met with muted praise by many state officials, who were particularly pleased by the reauthorization of the federal Medicaid program.

In a statement released yesterday, the National Governors Association said the bill was “a ray of hope for states that have been struggling to make ends meet.”

And in a separate letter to President Obama, the governors called for the passage of an “emergency economic stimulus plan” to help states address their fiscal challenges.

The legislation also includes a provision to extend the deadline for states to submit their fiscal plans, which was set for March 15.

In the meantime, governors are urging Congress to consider additional measures to help states cope with the economic crisis, including increased federal funding for state education and health care programs.

Reinstate work-study

It is imperative that our legislature have the voice of those who have experienced the advantages of the work-study experience — university, students, and state.

Our state university profits from the dedication and hard work of those involved in work-study. Departments are able to hire students for up to 10 hours per week with supplying only the cost of the wages. The work then, does not use added staff support without announcing all of their limited resources.

The state stands to benefit from the students' work as well by offering educational and career-building resources such as work-study, it is possible for Iowa to increase its retention rate of college students. Thus, it is within the state, perhaps even at one of its universities, as a result of work-study experience.

Above all, the students find great opportunities within the work-study program. It benefits students both financially and educationally. Undergraduate receive financial assistance and pay off their work for the work they do. Though, in the experience they gain through working for and being dedicated to their field of interest.

State funding for work-study has been cut for the 2001-02 academic years. Nevertheless, the Legislature has promised to continue to fund the students' work for 2001-02. It is imperative that our legislature hear the voice of those who have experienced the advantages of the work-study experience — university, students, and state.

Narosa multinational is a foreign-owned enterprise, an important prong of the work-study program.

Reviews of the new albums from Blink 182 and Travis, as well as a glimpse at upcoming albums this summer:

Punking out on teenage angst

Blink 182

Actually, let us start at the beginning. Blink punk may be open to its own interpretation, but punk can make it a rule, with few exceptions, a rock band that sounds nothing like the rest. Punk has been around in some form or another for over a decade, and it is only now that it is gaining a foothold in the music industry. The band Blink 182 is a prime example of this.

The album's opening track has engulfed popular taste, becoming a hit. Although the band was not expected to be a hit, the album has sold over a million copies in the first week of release.

The band's music is a mix of punk and rock, and they have been able to maintain a loyal following over the years. The songs are short and to the point, with catchy hooks and memorable melodies.

Blink 182's Take Off Your Pants and Jacket received a 3.5 out of a possible 5 from music reviewer Dan Writmore.

Cardinals roll over Cubs, 6-2

ST. LOUIS — Mark McEwen's three-run home run in the first inning put the exclamation point on a day in which the Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs for the fifth time in six games. McEwen's three-run blast came on a 2-2 pitch off Cubs reliever Enrique Wilson. The Cards scored three runs in the first inning as they took advantage of two errors by Cubs pitcher John Tudor to lead 4-0 after one inning.

The Cubs scored twice in the second inning, but the Cardinals added two more runs in the third inning and never looked back.

McEwen's home run was one of four for the Cardinals on the afternoon.-Jerry Presley also homered for the Cards, who improved to 25-17 on the season.

The Cubs were 0-6 in their last six games before losing to the Cards. They are now 10-14 for the season.

first 10 holes, and faced with a rough lay on the slope to the 18th green, Goosen removed any risk. By forcing his drive about 100 feet back in the fairway, he made 8 for his round of 88.

The putter was well on the ball. All of his birdies left two putts from 6 feet to win. Sound familiar?

Goosen wanted to avoid a repeat of Tiger Woods's heroics. His hero lay put and dropped in the heart of the Iowa City golf course. Woods then made 6 out of 7.

"I wasn't going to run it back by myself," Goosen said. "I knew I was going to make 4 from where I was. I just wanted to make 6 and get out of here."

He knows as the U.S. Open champion no one can ever expect. This was expected to be about Tiger Woods giving for a fifth-straight win on the course this year, beginning with the U.S. Open and ending with the PGA Championship.

The 2001 Open was a new era for Goosen, who played the last 10 years of his career in the PGA until he retired in 2012 at the end of the Open. Goosen made his first 12 putts into the 18th green and scored 6 for his round of 68.

"I had to work hard for this," he said. "I was 3 under after nine. It was a long, long, stroke; it seems like a year, but it was only a month ago now."

Goosen earned $100,000, nearly as much as he would have in the European tour, and because only the second international player to make the 20 years to win the U.S. Open, he would be in the top 10 of the world. He was an African and a good friend Emo

SPORTS

PIT season kicks off

By Aimee Gable

The 15th season of Prince Time League baseball got underway Monday night at the Community Center, and fans got to see a glimpse of Iowa’s incoming talent.

In the 4:30 p.m. game, Iowa newcomers Erik Hennessy and Marlin Sommerseth, both forwards, competed head-to-head. Sommerseth, who plays for the Hawks’ Under-20 team, competed against his former teammate, who also had six boards and two assist. Hennessy outscored Minn-Dak, Mart. His 14 points helped the Hawks to a 66-50 victory.

Playing director Randy Lawson was pleased with the display, attributing the full house to the fresh faces on the court.

"One of the great things about this league in all the years that he has been here is VHS has seen these people playing basketball from an extra level of excitement to the games," he said.

In the 6 p.m. game, Duo-Transferred transfer point guard Kyle Reiner and Cortney Scott, both forwards, competed head-to-head. Reiner scored 19 points for Community and five boards. Henderson contributed 13 points and five boards. Henderson scored 19 points and seven rebounds for Lepic-Kroeger.

"I thought it was a great night to watch," said he and Leslie have said about their relationship.

The Seattle Mariners are the biggest surprise of the year; they lead the AL West. The Twins, who lead the AL Central, are also doing well. Barry Bonds is hitting homers at a pace never seen before. With no-hitters on the rise, it has been interesting to see all the Cubs fans coming to the games. A-Rod and Griffey have been able to enjoy relative success, while the Yankees and other big-budget teams have struggled.

Several seasons ago, when there weren't as many stars on the field, the game was quite different. Now that there are so many big-name stars, it's hard for players to make a name for themselves. However, it's not all bad news for the fans. With fewer stars on the field, the game is more exciting and unpredictable. Fans get to see different players every night, and there are more opportunities for up-and-coming players to make a name for themselves.

I'm a fan of many runs. Although no-hitters are impressive, they don't spark the same excitement as a game with a lot of scoring. However, it's still a thrill when a no-hitter is thrown. The way the game is played now is quite different from the way it used to be. With more stars on the field, the game is more exciting and unpredictable. Fans get to see different players every night, and there are more opportunities for up-and-coming players to make a name for themselves.

Wrigley Field changes will be unnoticeable

By Nancy Arnone

The North Side baseball club wants to expand and renovate its historic stadium.

"Our goal was to design a proper home for the fans," said the team's PR director, who was responsible for the stadium's look and feel.
