"It's absolutely vital [for minority students] to have a place where we can call home and feel at home ..." said UI junior Marc Wallace, the secretary of the Black Student Union. "I know that all members of the BSU love the house, so it's interesting to see other people try to tell you how to be at home.

Members of the Latino Native American Cultural Center have expressed reluctance about possibly being forced to move their center, where the national charter for the Sigma Lambda Beta Fraternity, currently the largest Latino fraternity in the nation, was established in 1971.

Phillip Jones, the university vice president for Student Services, said last week he was disappointed that the Latino Native American center was the only group opposed to relocating.

Senior Sam Lindberg, the UI Asian-American Coalition treasurer, is optimistic about the effect that the new Asian-American Cultural Center will have on the university.
"I think it'd be cool," he said.

■ Some departments may have to reduce student employment, but Cambus will continue to hire.

> By Kellie Doyle The Daily Iowan

Every UI student - not just those in the pared-down workstudy program - may have a more difficult time finding a job on-campus as early as next week, university officials said Sunday.

Some individual departments may be hesitant to hire part-time student workers because they will have to pick up the entire cost of providing their salaries for the first time in several years, said Cindy Seyfer, the assistant director of Student Financial Aid.

That will be one result of the elimination of $500,000 in state funding for the work-study program for fiscal year 2002, which will begin July 1. The cut was an attempt by lawmakers to help cover a $300 million shortfall in the state's budget.

Rather than paying 35 percent of work-study students' wages, as has been done previ-

JERUSALEM — A Palestinian militant wanted by Israel was killed Sunday when a public telephone exploded while he was making a call in the West Bank city of Nablus, raising new questions about the strength of a Mideast truce. The latest killing came as Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon headed to the United States for the second time in three months to discuss the Mideast turmoil with President Bush.

Palestinians promptly blamed Israel for the death of activist Osama Jawabri, 29, calling it a flagrant violation of the ceasefire agreement brokered earlier this month by the Americans.

"Returning to the policy of assassinations shows that Israel insists on continuing its escalation and military plan to destroy the Palestinian Authority," said the secretary general of the Palestinian Cabinet, Ahmed Abdel Rahman.

The arrest of Palestinian militants suspected of involvement in attacks is a key Israeli condition in the cease-fire. Jawabri was included on a list of wanted suspects in attacks that Israel gave to the AREQUIPA, Peru — Peru ushed aid to cities and towns in the south Sunday, after a 7.9-magnitude earthquake on June 23 toppled adobe homes and stone buildings and killed at least 52 people, leaving thousands too terrified to return home amid recurring ftershocks.

In Arequipa, the country's econd-largest city, dozens of homes were flattened, and chunks of ornate stone architecture were strewn in the streets of the colonial center. One steeple fell from the city's historic cathedral — first constructed in 1656, then rebuilt after an earthquake in 1868 and large pieces of stonework

UI seniors Jess Hamm and Erin Cornelius sure hope so. The two are among several people in town who say they are becoming frustrated with the process of finding someone to sublease their domiciles for the fall semester.

Cornelius has decided to move out of her apartment for the fall semester, and she is faced with the challenge of finding someone who will pay her half of the rent as well as get along with her roommate.

"I'm starting to get worried," she said. "We've put up 30 posters so far, and only one person has responded. And we waited for her to show up today, and she never came."

Despite July 31 being more than a month away - after which 2000-01 leases expire it's apparent from the plethora of campus fliers that some students are getting an early start in what tends to become a last-minute scramble to find a roommate.

Like other subleasing-hopefuls, Cornelius and Hamm said they wanted to be creative with their advertising efforts. Afraid of having their custom-made poster become lost in a wallpaper of "Roommate Wanted" signs tacked to IMU hallways and

I.C. considers loan to peninsula project

Under a proposal, the city would loan $700,000 to the housing development's contractor.

> By Libby Tucker The Daily Iowan

Iowa City could soon see the beginning of its first mixedincome housing development if the Iowa City City Council decides to approve a loan of up to $700,000 for the project's head contractor. The loan to Terry Stamper of Troy, Mich., is necessary to begin laying water and sewer lines for the future peninsula neighborhood, located west of Dubuque Street near the Iowa council will vote on principles of the loan Tuesday. "I do expect the old Iowa City. majority of the council to approve it," said Councilor Steven Kanner. "Although I have some concerns." Stamper has had difficulty acquiring a loan from local banks because of a lawsuit filed by the Elks Club, whose golf course is located near the development, and because of the unconventional design of the peninsula neighborhood, said Karin Franklin, the city's director of planning and development.

"[Stamper's difficulties] would lead me to think there will be problems getting a loan to repay us," said Kanner, who is also concerned that the city's fiscal reserves will go down if the loan is

"However, we're getting a development close to our long-term plan" for the city, he said. The developer has set aside land that will be sold at a 10 percent discount to the Iowa City Housing Authority in order to build housing for low- and moderate-income families, he said.

The city will sell the property to Stamper over a period of years with an annual 6 percent inflation rate - which, Kanner said, is below market

"[This] is helpful, but perhaps we should have gotten a better deal," he said.

Stamper has 120 days to acquire private funding in order to repay the loan. The developer is looking at banks in Michigan to help finance the first phase of funding.

"Once the thing gets going, the local banks will get on board" for the other four phases of funding, Franklin

The neighborhood will be a dense development with a mix of housing for all income levels designed to focus on the front porch instead of the garage, Franklin said. Small commercial spaces will be available within walking dis-

"Many people don't want to take care of an old house,' Franklin said. "The new neighborhood will be new houses with an old neighborhood feel. "There's a lot of excitement from folks who have heard about it," she said. When the project began four years ago, the city received calls from people inside and outside the community who were interested in purchasing homes. As a result, the city has a "waiting list" of approximately 20 people, she said.

"You could spend your entire life in that neighborhood, theoretically," Franklin said. "You could move into an apartment as a young person, transfer to a house in middle age, and move into a condo as an old person."

there will be less money to go around.

"I do suspect that will be the case," UI President Mary Sue Coleman said Sunday. "It's hard to imagine that it wouldn't."

Employment decisions ultimately lie in the hands of each department, which will find out to what extent employment will be affected after each reports its salary allocations to the administration this week, Coleman

Employers whose staffs consisted primarily of work-study students may suffer if fewer workers are financially covered by the program. They may not be able to afford the cost of paying 100 percent of the salaries, and therefore may choose not to hire as many student workers, Seyfer said. Wages will not be affected, she said.

Work-study will stay alive at the university with the help of federal funding, but the disappearance of state money "will mean fewer work-study students employed by the UI," said Seyfer, though she was unable to suggest an approximate number. Federal funding amounted to $1.6 million and supported approximately 1,400 students during the last fiscal

Reducing the use of student hourly workers was one of several adjustments university officials said they would have to make to cover a $18.7 million budget cut, according to a report released this month.

Unlike other on-campus employers, Cambus will continue recruiting part-time workers aggressively, and in the fall, it will raise the starting wage by 50 cents — to $8.50 per hour to make the job more attractive, Cambus manager Brian McClatchey said.

The transportation service, which has struggled to fill each of its 140 part-time positions for the past three years, is not like other on-campus jobs. It cannot efficiently offer its service without the requisite number of employees, unlike some restaurants and other food-service businesses, he said.

We're in a continual hiring mode. Even with a financial hardship, we can't afford to not continue to work on that,'

McClatchey said. "We can't afford to adversely affect wages because we still don't have enough people."

The service is suffering a $200,000 deficit, which is partially due to the $60,000 reduction in state transit funding for the upcoming fiscal year. Despite the shortage, Cambus will operate under its regular budget using its reserve funds next fiscal year. This will allow it time to evaluate and make adjustments as needed to its services and revenues, McClatchey said.

aftershocks, some registering a 3-magnitude, had occurred since the initial quake.

A landslide blocked the main road into Moquegua, 62 miles southeast of Arequipa, hampering efforts to deliver emergency food and medicine to the devastated city, where 17 people were killed, 162 injured, and 80 percent of the houses seriously damaged or flattened.

There were conflicting reports about how many people died in the 7.9-magnitude quake, which rocked the region for more than a minute.

Civil Defense Peru's Institute on Sunday raised the death toll to 52 from the 38 deaths confirmed earlier in the day. He said rescuers had found 14 more bodies in Arequipa, 465 miles southeast of the capital, Lima, to bring the number of dead in that city to 28. Some 306 people were injured there.

The institute said another seven people were killed in Tacna, near the border with Chile, and some 200 people were injured.

A doctor in the small coastal town of Camana said 14 people drowned and more than 30 were injured after the quake caused a tidal surge that washed more than a half-mile inland over rice and sugarcane fields. But those deaths could not be confirmed and were not included in the total.

Dr. Neri Medina told radio station Radioprogramas the 14 had drowned. "Bodies are being found in the agricultural fields," he said.

Hundreds of people camped out in parks and in the streets of Arequipa overnight despite 41-degree temperatures, radio reports said.

Aftershocks "were coming every 15 or 30 minutes. Sometimes they rattled the windows and walls, and the light fixture was swinging from the ceiling," said Enma Verastegui, 40, as she prepared to join Sunday's Mass.

Arequipa lies 7,670 feet above sea level. Temperatures often drop below freezing at that altitude during this time of year, considered Peru's "winter" season.

Evangelina Yamoc, 70, wept as she stood in what had been her bedroom in her wrecked home in a dusty hillside settlement on Arequipa's out-

"It's a great opportunity for people to learn about Asian-American culture as well as Asian culture."

Currently, Asian-American students do not have a cultural center, which limits the group's ability to reach students. Asian Americans are the largest minority group at the university, which Asian-American students have brought to the attention of the university administration in an effort to establish a cultural center.

"Maybe this will give us a chance to be more established within the university," Lindberg

However, Lindberg expressed his disapproval of the university relocating any cultural center that does not want to give up its location because of its historical significance.

"I see what [the university is] trying to do, but these people have already been established at this house for many years, so I think it's bogus that they should be forced to move," he said. "I think the ones that have been established should

At the same time, he said, he is wary of committees getting together to make decisions that will directly affect the interests of minorities.

"We look forward to working with the university, and we are willing to come together to make everyone happy, as well as to achieve our own objectives," Wallace said.

Jones said last week that there is "no firm plan" set for the proposed West Side dorm and cultural centers, but he acknowledged the relocation will be controversial.

Powell expresses frustration about global AIDS fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Colin Powell has been frustrated over the bare trickle of donations from Europe to a global fund for fighting AIDS, and he pledged to ask Congress to fatten the United States' contribution and turn up pressure on the rest of the world to do the same.

In an interview with the Associated Press, Powell described the "mind-boggling" drop in African life expectancies because of AIDS. In Botswana alone, he said, it plummeted from 64 years to 49. And he expressed hope that this week's special U.N. session on AIDS will prompt the world community to ante up for the fight against this disease with a greater sense of urgency.

"Everybody should be coming up on this, every European country," he said June 23

The fund, kicked off with $200 million by the United States last month, now contains $582 million. France and Britain, former colonial powers in Africa, offered $127 million and $100 million respectively, with the rest coming from such private entities as the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, which matched the British contribution.

"That's not a bad start, but it is nowhere near meeting the need," Powell said. "I also don't think we should just restrict it to the big, affluent, former colonial powers. We really need to engage everybody."

U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan and some African leaders have estimated that the fund will need at least $7 billion annually to begin having an effect on the African AIDS pandemic. A report in the latest issue of Science estimated that the world's poorest countries will need $9.2 billion a year, half of which would go to sub-Saharan Africa.

Powell, who will address the U.N. session today, held no illusions that world nations will contribute enough money to make a big difference. But he said he envisions a "worldwide mobilization" that combines multinational dollars with charitable activities and in-kind giving.

For example, he pointed to the Coca-Cola Co.'s decision to incorporate AIDS prevention and education into its "huge retail establishment" on the African continent.

SEGREGATED GRADUATIONS SHOULD SET OFF ALARMS ...

Pomp and segregation

Recently, UCLA demonstrated what is becoming a concerning trend among a number of colleges. Students were divided not by academic discipline, but by color, ethnicity, and sexual orientation during the university's several commencement ceremonies.

UCLA is not alone; there are several universities across the country taking the same route. Some say they are giving students a chance for special recognition and these segregated ceremonies are not discriminatory but rather completed with pride. The students at UCLA decided on divided graduation ceremonies, saying it makes graduation more meaningful.

However, these divided ceremonies should concern those interested in integration and the civil rights that many have fought hard to achieve. These graduation ceremonies embody exactly the kind of segregation being fought against during the civil-rights movement. To choose to distinguish oneself in a manner that many lost their lives in order to abolish is a

That universities are reviving the same type of separatism of the not so long ago segregated South should be alarming. Recognizing this type of segregation as being acceptable is very dangerous. The students and the institution, if by some unimaginable chance the students were granted this request, would never get this accomplished without a great deal of negative publicity immense public outcry.

The segregated ceremonies are not only hypocritical in that they go against every-thing previously fought for, they are offensive and do not make sense. If ceremonies are so large that students are not able to receive the individual recognition they deserve, it makes much more sense to divide students by academic disciplines. This is not only nondiscriminatory, it is more logical to have students who share an academic discipline, and quite possibly many class experiences, go through commencement together.

The facts sprout glowing halos of refracted light when you're dealing outside of ordinary Time. I am currently conducting an investigation into this halo phenomenon, the results of which will be published in a prestigious scientific journal, if I make it out

Before a few of you eager young punks and worried old parents jump to too many conclusions (based on the previous sentence and the general muddled tone of the piece), let me clear one thing up about preconceptions concerning drugs and alcohol in the streets of European cities. They don't exist. The only person you'll ever catch stumbling down the streets of Florence or Nice with a bottle of cheap red wine in his cheap white knuckles is a big, fat, ugly American. What you will see is full-blown, non-alcoholic, hedonistic revelry of a caliber not known back in the States. You will see the night come alive.

On the Verbena de Sant Joan, a rollicking citywide festival in Barcelona this past weekend, it occurred to me that the world is slipping further and further into the gaping mouth of artificially lit night, fireworks and bonfires blazing to keep the path just barely bright enough to

Like kids who want to stay up for no other reason than to see what it is their parents do, we refuse to call it quits. We think that falling asleep is a form of giving up in the current youth party culture. It's not that there's anything actually going on at night; it's just that what if

Cartoon in bad taste I was disappointed that you chose on June 17 to publish a cartoon that used racist stereotypes of Arabs to make a misguided point about the Middle East conflict. Palestinians were depicted as ugly, scruffy, stupid killers, willfully misinterpreting a ceasefire order from Yasser Arafat.

It is inconceivable that The Daily lowan would publish such offensive material about any other ethnic group, but it seems that Arabs are fair game in the current media climate in this country. The implication that Palestinians are somehow congenitally disposed to violence allows many to ignore the real causes of the conflict, the continuing injustices imposed by the 34-year military occupation of the West Bank, Gaza Strip, and East Jerusalem.

Since the "cease fire," Israel has suspended only the most visible acts of brutality, such as bombing civilian areas with F16 warplanes and Apache helicopter gunships. Shootings of unarmed demonstrators, house demolitions, and mob violence and vandalism by settlers all continue. Also largely unaffected is the siege of Palestinian areas. which, according to the Israeli human rights group B'Tselem, is responsible for the deaths of numerous vulnerable people by denying them access to medical care. So many West Bank residents have been fleeing the intolerable conditions that the Jordanian authorities have been forced to impose restrictions on entry to avoid a repeat of the refugee catastrophes of 1948 and 1967. Your cartoon belongs to an ignoble tradition of propaganda that seeks to blame the victims of violence for their plight.

Sleepless in Ann Arbor

Charles Baxter's muchacclaimed The Feast of Love is a modern-day love

> By Tracy Nemitz The Daily Iowan

On a night like any other, Charles Baxter once again finds himself unable to sleep. He ventures into the night, walking around the quiet neighborhoods of Ann Arbor, Mich., to fill the last few hours before dawn breaks. Along the way, he encounters his friend, Bradley, who is also suffering from sleeplessness. Bradley begins to tell Charles the first in an intricate web of stories concerning love, life, and human relations — and thus is laid the scene for an enchanting novel titled The Feast of Love. Author (not the character) As a writer, I'm restless, as Charles Baxter writers must be. I'm plagued said he wrote the book par- with sleeplessness, and it's as him tially in reac- if these characters are tion to a belief held by some in literary world that the time for the love novel has ended.

"Some believe it is historically too late to write a novel of love. One theory on the novel of love is been there, done that too often,' said Baxter, who will read at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., today at 8 p.m. "It is an interesting theory, and I wondered if you could still write a book of love.

He succeeded in doing so, as demonstrated by The Feast of Love's numerous accolades. It was hailed by many as one of the most spectacular novels published in 2000. The novel was Award Finalist and a New York Times Notable Book.

Many have described the novel as a modern version of William Shakespeare's A Mid-summer Night's Dream, but Baxter said the comparison is not quite accurate.

"The plots are different. There's no Puck, no amateur theatricals in Feast," he said. "My novel is about midsummer moonstruck love-madness in its various forms, and it's an oral history, this story: All the people are talking all of the time, talking their heads off, just like a play happening in front of you maybe in your own home town."

Just like a Shakespearean play, Baxter's story hosts an array of characters who move in and out of each others' lives as friends, enemies, and lovers.

There is Bradley, the recently divorced artistturned-coffeeshop owner, whose ex-wife, Kathryn, left for woman. Bradley's sec-

within me, clamoring for the ond marriage, to a woman - Charles Baxter, named Diana, is doomed by author her inability to open herself up to him. Chloé and Oscar, Bradley's employees at the coffeeshop, share a classic, moving romance despite their body piercings, drug use, and at times, outrageous behavior. Ester and Harry Ginsberg act as a wise couple in the book, offering sound advice to those swirling around them, despite personal turmoil with their youngest son, who constantly threatens to take his own life.

Baxter, who is renowned for his short stories, found the novel format allowed him to bring the also named a National Book inner workings of all these characters to life.

"Novels allow me to create a community of family and of community groups and explore the way that community comes together and breaks apart," he said. "My works are like mosaics, though. Feast of Love is a series of short stories disguised as chapters within the novel."

When one learns that the subject matter of a book is love, it is easy to assume that the prose will be syrupy, filled with overly sweetened exchanges and an endless array of contrived clichés. Baxter, however, was able to overcome the sentimental nature of love to create relationships and dialogues between his characters so honest that it is easy for the reader to forget that this is a work of fiction.

"I made a conscious effort to draw close to what seemed sentimental, but then stopped and moved back," he said. "The nature of love is also dark. Sex can equal violence, obsession, pornography. So that is there too, as an antidote to the 'sweetness and light' stuff."

Despite the true-to-life air of his story, little of it is based on actual experiences.

"As a writer, I'm restless, as writers must be. I'm plagued with sleeplessness, and it's as if these characters are within me, clamoring for the expression," he said. "The odd thing is how these stories come out of nowhere. They come out of nowhere, and then they start to seem more real to you than your own actual

Mementos of things past

Director: Christopher Nolan Starring: Guy Pearce, Carrie-Anne Moss, and Joe Pantoliano Length: 116 minutes Rating: R *** 1/2 out of ****

By Adam Kempenaar The Daily Iowan

A man holds a Polaroid of a dead body. In the background, the actual body lies face down on the cold basement floor. The man shakes the picture up and down, but instead of coming closer into focus, the image slowly disappears, until it is gone completely as if time is somehow moving backwards.

This is the first shot in Memento's stunning opening sequence, and writer/director Christopher Nolan wastes no time in showing you that what you are about to experience is like nothing you've ever experienced before. Not only is time moving backwards, but your memories may not be real, and you may not be who you think you are. As the fading image illustrates, Memento isn't going to expose the truth. It's only going to make it harder to see.

The man holding the photo is Leonard Shelby (Guy Pearce), a former insurance-fraud investigator searching for the man who raped and murdered his wife. Leonard was also injured in the attack and now suffers from a curious condition that prevents him from developing new memories. He can't remember which hotel he is staying at, or which car is his, or who his so-called friends are, without relying on a Polaroid or some scribbled note.

With its disjointed narrative - the entire film is told backwards, each scene showing what happened before the previous one — one might be tempted to write Memento off as a clever gimmick. However, its slick tracy-nemitz@uiowa.edu structure doesn't just serve to manipulate the audience. Rather, Nolan employs the reverse chronology as a means toward better understanding his main character's predicament. Just as Leonard must continually ask himself, "Where am I? How did I get here?," the audience, too, must have that same jolt of fear from scene to scene the recognition that we have no clue where we are or how we got here and now must start putting the puzzle pieces together. Nolan also shows considerable skill as a director by not letting his visual artistry overshadow the work of his talented group of actors. As Leonard, Pearce shows his mastery at portraying a walking contradiction. He captures the anguish of a man destroyed by the loss of his wife, desperately seeking revenge even though he won't be able to remember it. At the same time, he carries himself with a certain complacency, as if he is somehow comfortable with the knowledge that his life has meaning as long as the guy who ruined it is still out there.

Carrie-Anne Moss (The Matrix) is convincing as the femme fatale who lures Leonard with sympathy but is really just exploiting him. And the underrated Joe Pantoliano (also from The Matrix) plays one of the film's most intriguing conun-drums. Despite being a total slimeball, his character, Teddy, might be the only person Leonard can trust.

With its first-rate cast, sharp visual style, and inventive narrative structure, Memento is so hypnotic that upon leaving the theater, the world outside feels slightly different, as if any minute things could start moving in reverse. It's a rare film that works on both an emotional and intellectual level - one that you're likely to ponder for days, or even weeks, after seeing.

ATLANTA - Never mind what the label says. The new brands of energy drinks are aimed more at marathon partiers than serious athletes. And that has health officials

"A couple of years ago, they were sort of an underground drink, served only at clubs. Pretty soon they're going to be every-where," said Max Rodriguez, a marketing manager for the Edge Co., which imports Atomic Energy Drink from Brazil. They enable you to practically stay up all night and not get really drunk."

Rodriguez suggested consuming energy drinks only once or twice a day. But he swears there's nothing better for an allnight party or curing a violent

"It's like drinking coffee," he said. "No, it's like coffee squared."

The energy kick is delivered by a cocktail of stimulants. Many of the drinks contain caffeine and guarana, a South American plant used as a stimulant, plus a long list of herbs and vitamins promising better health and athletic perform-

"They definitely deliver a buzz or a jolt," said John Sicher, the editor and publisher of Beverage Digest. "They're generally party drinks. A very large percentage are consumed in bars or restaurants and used as mix-

"It gets you drunker quicker, if you can stand the taste of it,' said Brent Isbell, 30, of Annis-

Fans say the drinks help them guzzle alcohol without passing out at the table. But dietitians warn that fatigue is the body's way of saying it's had enough to drink and that energy mixers may fool people into thinking they're not as drunk as they are.

"What you'll be is, a wideawake drunk," said Chris Rosenbloom, the head of the nutrition department at Georgia State University. "It's dangerous, this false notion that if I take this energy drink, I'm alert and OK."

Another dietitian, Cynthia Sass of the University of South Florida, said several stimulants, when put together, can amplify each other and become dangerous.

Fugitive Peruvian spy chief nabbed

CARACAS, Venezuela - After a tense stakeout, Venezuelan secret police captured South America's most wanted man, Peru's ex-spy chief Vladimiro Montesinos, accused of amassing a fortune by dealing drugs and weapons.

The capture, announced Sunday by Venezuela's president, ends an eight-month chase for the man who many Peruvians say effectively ran their country for years with a network of corruption. His scandals led to the downfall in November of President Alberto Fuilmori.

Montesinos was seized inside a Caracas safehouse late on June 23, a beaming President Hugo Chavez announced during a summit of Andean leaders in the central Venezuelan city of Valencia.

"Fortunately, we have captured Vladimiro Montesinos alive,' Chavez said, adding that the spymaster would be deported to Peru "faster than a rooster crows.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Spend time with someone who has been intriguing you lately. You need to experience new activities and cultures to grow. Don't be reluctant to take a chance or make a change.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Someone you love may be trying to make you feel guilty. You must look out for your own best interests. Don't give in to idle threats, and be aware of empty promises.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Social activities should include family and friends. You can meet interesting new people through the ones you already know. Creative projects will be more fun than you thought.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Don't overspend. You will have an unrealistic view of your financial situation. You need to tighten your belt until you get yourself completely out of the red.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your emotions will be up and down. Try not to let loved ones play games with your heart. You need to know where you stand, but not at the risk of heartbreak.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be careful not to let too many people know what your plans are. You need time to yourself to sort through your ideas. Be prepared to face some opposition. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It's a good idea to mingle with those who can benefit you in some way. Look into courses that will provide added knowledge and expand your peer group. Philosophy will interest you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your inability to express emotions will cause some grief with loved ones. You can make profitable purchases if you shop wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel opportunities will delight you. Take time to savor different cultures. You need a change to feel alive again. Boredom is your mostdreaded enemy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Look closely into minor health problems. You may find that your cholesterol or blood pressure is out of control. Don't take chances; get a check-up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your personal relationships may be experiencing difficulty. Don't blame yourself entirely. It takes two to tango. A good heart-to-heart talk is in order. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't overspend on luxury items for your home. Lending or borrowing among friends will ruin the connection. Put your time into work-related projects that will help you

Webb becomes youngest to win Grand Slam

■ The 26-year-old wins the LPGA Championship

By Doug Ferguson Associated Press

WILMINGTON, Del. - No one ever won a career Grand in as quickly as narrie Webb, or made it look so easy.

Webb delivered an early knockout Sunday with three straight birdies, then ignored a late charge from Laura Diaz to win the LPGA Championship by two strokes and become the youngest woman to complete the Grand Slam.

Despite bogeys on the last two holes that she could afford, Webb closed with a 2-underpar 69 and walked off the 18th green at DuPont Country Club wiping tears from her eyes.

"It's very overwhelming," Webb said. "It happened so quickly. This is the dream of all dreams. One day, it will sink in, but right now I'm at a loss for words.

Her play spoke volumes.
Coming off an eight-stroke victory in the U.S. Women's Open just 21 days ago, Webb led by as many as six strokes early in Sunday's round and was never seriously challenged. She finished at 270 and earned $225,000.

It was another dominant performance by Webb, who has won her last four majors - including consecutive U.S. Opens - by a combined 25 strokes

The 26-year-old Australian became the fifth woman to win the LPGA's four majors. The others are Juli Inkster, Louise Suggs, Pat Bradley, and Mickey Wright, who was 27 when she won the career Grand Slam in 1962.

"To do it a year ahead of Mickey Wright, at a time when the depth of talent is the best it's ever been, will ultimately go down as one of the biggest achievements in women's golf," LPGA Commissioner Ty Votaw

Tiger Woods is the youngest player to complete the slam, doing it last year at St. Andrews when he was 24.

But no one has won all four in such a short period of time.

Only two years ago, Webb was getting annoyed by questions of when she would win her first major. Just like everything else in her career, the response was swift and decisive.

It took her only eight majors to complete the Grand Slam -Woods went 15 majors between the first and final leg.

Webb now has won five of the last eight majors, the most golf since Wright won five of six from 1961-62. Even more shocking is the way she has overwhelmed the best fields on the best courses.

"As far as pure golf, she's the best I've ever seen," said Inkster, who won the U.S. Open and LPGA Championship just 21 days apart in 1999 to complete the slam. 'She makes it look so effort-

Inkster never competed against JoAnne Carner in her prime and never saw Wright

"But I can't believe anybody could be as good as Karrie,' Inkster said. "If she keeps up this pace, she's going to shatter all the records.'

Next up for Webb is the Women's British Open, which has replaced the du Maurier Classic as a major championship. Webb won the British at Sunningdale in 1995 as a 20-year-old, the first glimpse of a career that has exceeded even her own expectations.

SPORTS BRIEFS

De La Hoya has a new title and big plans

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya has a title, and he has a plan. All he needs now is some big-name opponents who are as cooperative as Javier Castillejo turned out to be.

De La Hoya issued a call for just that June 23 after beating Castillejo to win the WBC 154-pound title. He can only hope that Shane Mosley, Fernando Vargas, and Felix Trinidad are listening.

"It's all about just making the fights," De La Hoya said. "My next fight I want a big fight. It has to be a big opponent."

Eager to regain his stature among boxing's elite, De La Hoya knows he can get there only through possible rematches with the two fighters who have beaten him or against Vargas. He wants to fight one of them in November, a task complicated by the fact that De La Hoya believes his popularity means he should call the shots for any future fights. "I have this world championship title, and I'm in the driver's seat," he said. "That's just the way it's going to

Not so fast, says Mosley, who beat De La Hoya last June and believes he has nothing to prove by doing it again.

"I'm supposed to jump up and fight Oscar? On his own terms? I don't think so," Mosley said.

Islanders add Peca, Yashin at draft

SUNRISE, Fla. — The New York Islanders made significant improvements during the NHL draft, and they did it without making a single pick in the first three rounds.

A day after trading for Alexei Yashin, the Isles got another disgruntled center Sunday when they made a deal with the Buffalo Sabres for Michael Peca. "It puts us in a great position to move forward," Islanders general manager Mike Milbury said. "These two guys alone bring a lot to the table and make it an exciting team . We have a lot of pieces in place to be a seriously competitive team this

The Islanders' moves highlighted two busy days - which included about 40 trades - at the National Car Rental Center.

On Sunday, the New York Rangers traded veteran forward Adam Graves to the San Jose Sharks for two prospects - forward Mikael Samuelsson and defenseman Christian Gosselin.

The Calgary Flames made two substantial trades June 23, getting center Rob Niedermayer from Florida and goaltender Roman Turek from St. Louis. Pittsburgh's Jaromir Jagr and Philadelphia's Eric Lindros, two dynamic scorers who have asked to be traded, remained with their teams. "If Eric wants to continue to try to pick the team he wants to play for, he won't play next year," Flyers general manager Bob Clarke said. "I don't (care) if he plays or not."

Defending champ not ready to retire

WIMBLEDON, England - Pete Sampras walked down the stairway to the parking lot after practice Sunday, hoping to stick around Wimbledon for the two weeks of this year's tournament and beyond.

A day before opening defense of his fourth consecutive title on the grass courts where he's virtually unbeatable, Sampras said he planned to keep playing "as long as I'm still enjoying it."

Sampras smiled after practicing for an hour under sunny skies. He didn't seem upset over a newspaper report that he could "call it a career" if he wins Wimbledon this year for the record eighth time.

"Total misquote," he said of the report in the Sunday Telegraph of

Blue Jays 5, Red Sox 2

BOSTON - Homer Bush's tiebreaking single in the eighth inning led the Toronto Blue Jays to a, 5-2, victory Sunday over the Boston Red Sox and their first three-game sweep at Fenway Park in nearly 12 years.

The last time the Blue Jays, who have won four straight, swept the Red Sox on the road was Aug. 14-16,

Twins 14, Tigers 5

DETROIT — Cristian Guzman hit his first grand slam and drove in a career-high six runs to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 14-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Sunday.

Minnesota won for just the second time in 10 games and snapped Detroit's four-game winning streak. The Tigers committed four errors and had two passed balls in the game.

Devil Rays 5, Yankees 4

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. - The Tampa Bay Devil Rays won for the first time when trailing after seven innings, rallying for four runs in the eighth inning to beat the New York Yankees 5-4 and end an eight-game losing streak Sunday.

Andy Sheets had a RBI double in the second and drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly off Mike Stanton (5-2).

Braves 8, Mets 4

NEW YORK - Brian Jordan hit a tiebreaking three-run homer in a seventh-inning rally that began with Rafael Furcal's bunt double, and the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Mets 8-4 Sunday for a three-game

Furcal went 4-for-5 for the first four-hit game of his career, scored three runs, and stole a pair of bases. The Braves took advantage of catcher Mike Piazza by stealing four bases in six tries, including a swipe of second by Furcal on a third-inning pitchout.

Expos 11, Pirates 4

PITTSBURGH — Peter Bergeron had four hits and Mike Mordecai had two of his three hits in a sevenrun Montreal sixth inning and the Expos, helped by three Pittsburgh errors and a major defensive gaffe beat the Pirates, 11-4, Sunday.

The seven-run inning was the Expos' biggest of the season, but it was yet another defensive blunder by the Pirates — their 68 errors are the second most in the NL — that helped Montreal to a 4-1 lead in the fourth inning.

White Sox 8, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — James Baldwin

nitched six effective innings as the Chicago White Sox finally got back to the .500 mark, defeating rookie Josh Towers and the Baltimore Orioles, 8-2, Sunday.

Royce Clayton, Jose Canseco, and Ray Durham had two hits and two RBIs apiece for the White Sox, whose 14 hits matched a season high.

Indians 4, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - John Rocker earned his first American League save Sunday, pitching a perfect ninth inning in the Cleveland Indians' 4-2 win over the Kansas City Royals.

Phillies 9, Marlins 3

MIAMI - Bobby Abreu went 3for-5 with three RBIs and an insidethe-park homer as the Philadelphia Phillies rebounded with a 9-3 win over the Florida Marlins on Sunday.

After being outscored 20-2 in the first two games of the series, the firstplace Phillies won for just the seventh time in 20 games to avoid the sweep.

Monday because of long rain delays at the Westchester Country Club on June 21 and June 23, when the third round was pushed back to Sunday. Though the forecast for Sunday was iffy, the day turned out breezy and mostly sunny.

Garcia's best stretch Sunday came on the front nine, when he birdied Nos. 5 and 6 and nearly drove the green on the short par-4 7th. He flopped a wedge shot from about 20 yards on to the green and it trickled into the cup for an eagle-2.

He also birdied the 9th, 17th - a chip-in from about 20 feet and 18th to finish strongly after bogeys at 12 and 16.

Iowa senior Jerica Watson continued her hot play in the Game Time League Sunday night in North Liberty. Behind her 33-point performance, HawksNestOnline.com smothered Union Planters Bank, 120-70, in the second week of league play.

Watson, who scored 36 on June 19, was almost as impressive Sunday, combining both solid defense and a soft shooting touch. She was tore down 13 rebounds.

"I'm getting better," she said. "I've been working on my rebounding. Since the season ended, I've been reflecting on last year and been working on things that I didn't do well."

Watson had assistance from Zoey Artist of East Kentucky, who chipped in 20 points in the winning effort.
Anne O'Neal, who will attend Iowa State next year, led Union Planters Bank in scoring with 15 points.

With the HawksNestOnline.com remains undefeated in Game Time play.

"We played with a lot of intensity tonight, and we're trying to have fun," Watson Bullock chipped in 19 points.

In the early game, Iowa sophomore Jennie Lillis and former Hawkeye Mary Berdo led Cullen Printing/Bob's Your Uncle with 25 and 23 points respectively in a 94-82 victory over Goodfellows Printing/Imprinted Sportswear. Lillis, who is from Des Moines, also added seven rebounds. Berdo, known for her long-range shooting, was 4-10 from 3point land on the evening.

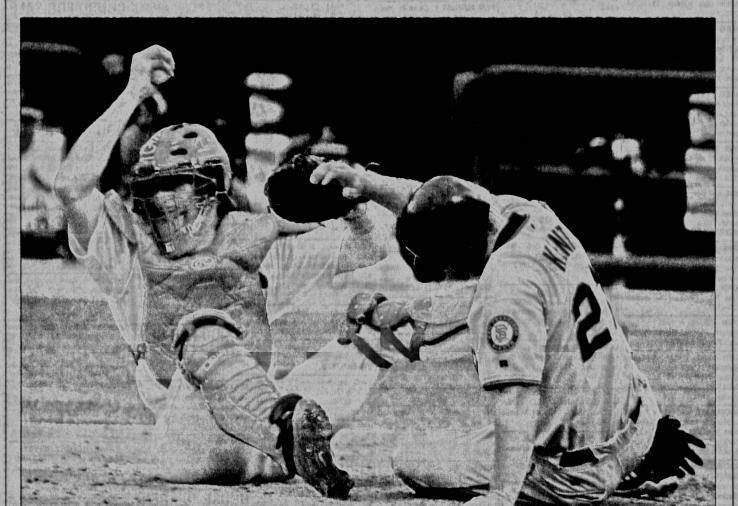

For the losers, Iowa's Lindsey Meder put up 23 points on the evening. She finished the night 8-12 from field goal range and was 2-for-3 from beyond the 3-point arc. Hawkeye teammate Beatrice will continue today in North Liberty at 4 p.m., with Fitzpatrick's and Community Center Motors/Goodfellaz kicking off the evening. Duez Henderson and Chauncey Leslie will try to look for their first win for Fitzpatrick's. Also, today will mark the first
