Quick work results in homicide arrest

Coralville Police Chief Barry Bedford (right) talks about the Donald Hebert homicide case at the Coralville City Hall Sunday evening, as Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White looks on.

Coralville police say they have arrested a local man in the death of Donald Hebert.

By Kellie Doyle
The Daily Iowan

Little more than three days after receiving the medical call that initiated a homicide case, local officials announced they have one man in custody and are searching for a second in connection with the July 20 death of an Iowa City resident. At a press conference held at the Coralville City Hall Sunday night, Coralville Police Chief Barry Bedford alleged that Bradley Joseph Hylton, 26, had admitted to robbing and killing Iowa City resident Donald James Hebert, 76. Hylton has been charged with first-degree murder. Officials have also issued an arrest warrant for Daniel Joseph Coop, 43, whom law-enforcement authorities believe was involved in the incident. Coop and Hylton each face forgery charges for allegedly stealing and using Hebert's credit card, and an investigation is underway to determine whether Coop was involved in the homicide. Coop faces pending charges for sexual abuse and lascivious acts with a child. Officials assume he fled the area on July 20. "This case has come together very quickly, which is abnormal for a case of this magnitude," Bedford said, attributing the swiftness to the unrelenting efforts of investigators. Hebert was found in his River Realty business, 2747 Second Street Apt. 2, with rope and tape binding his hands and feet and tape covering his nose and mouth, authorities said. He was found just after 3 p.m. in his office by business partner Joe Code. Hebert and Code's office sits fewer than 100 feet from Hylton's residence.

An autopsy performed by State Medical Examiner Julia Goodin on July 21 ruled that Hebert's death was a homicide. She said he died of strangulation and suffocation. "This investigation is not complete," Bedford said. "It's only partially complete. We certainly have a long way to go." Investigators learned that Hebert's credit card had allegedly been used at the Coral Ridge Mall and at Wal-Mart in Iowa City several times on the afternoon of July 20, according to reports. The credit-card company informed the Hebert family about "suspicious" purchases, Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White said. Officers used security videos and transaction receipts from

UI dorms search for space, find none

Late housing applications are pushing some students into a last-minute apartment search.

By Sara C. Konrad
The Daily Iowan

Some incoming UI students who waited until June to mail their university-housing requests are being forced to find accommodations in apartments on their own this year. All university residence halls, apartments, and temporary lounge accommodations will be full come fall semester. Students left without university housing were notified by mail last week, and the school is referring them to the Housing Clearinghouse at the Campus Information Center in the IMU.

"We operate on a first-come, first-served basis," said Dicta Schoenfelder, Residence Services' housing manager.

She attributed the shortage of housing to an estimated 200-student jump in enrollment and high demand for university housing. Applications for the housing have been arriving since August 2000.

Officials say referring students to the 25-year-old Housing Clearinghouse, which provides a list of housing vacancies in the area, is not an unusual practice.

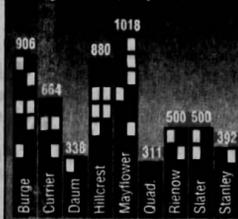

"The students [referred to the Housing Clearinghouse] are responsible for contacting landlords and visiting the apartments," said Penny Caldwell, the Campus Information Center coordinator. "We provide courtesy telephones, city maps, and bus route information to help students in their search for accommodations." The clearinghouse also refers students to the Tenant/Landlord Association. Both services help students familiarize themselves with signing a lease for an apartment.

"Many students are initially pretty anxious, because this may be their first time living on their own," Caldwell said. "They discover finding housing may take longer than they expected." Residence Services has, as in the past, set a cap of 200 students for temporary hous-

Gov't probe of UI research 'minor'

A UI official says a federal government investigation into human-research procedures is no cause for concern.

By George Pappas
The Daily Iowan

A governmental investigation into whether the UI has mishandled certain procedures while performing research on human subjects is simply the result of "minor administrative details" and not cause for concern, a university official said Sunday.

The federal government's Office of Human Research Protection's current investigation into the university is simply the result of an "administrative backlog," said David Wynes, the UI assistant vice president for Research.

The Food and Drug Administration cited university researchers for minor violations in 1992, 1995, and 1998. The most recent violations included omitting a researcher's first initial on documents and one copy of a consent form's failure to inform the subject that the FDA reserves the right to copy and review a subject's records, Wynes said.

These might sound like minor infractions, but the government is especially strict when it comes to documenting research conducted on humans. Consequently, the FDA forwarded its concerns about the university in 1999 to the Office of Human Research Protection.

After the university recognized and corrected its violations, the government left the investigation open, a common practice when dealing with universities, Wynes said. Nineteen months later, the Office of Human Research Protection recently decided to look into the case because it was still classified as open.

Investigators do not plan to visit the university, and officials do not expect to receive any punishment.

"You would think that if there were a problem, they wouldn't have waited 19 months to get back to us," Wynes said. "It's an open investigation simply because they haven't closed it. That's different from an ongoing investigation."

The inquiry comes at a time when a recent tragedy at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore has federal officials keeping close watch on human-research procedures.

Ellen Roche, 24, a medical student at Johns Hopkins, died from complications that arose from inhaling the drug hexamethonium, which has not been approved by the FDA, during an asthma study. The government cut off all funding for research on human subjects at Johns Hopkins, which receives the most federal research money of any university.

The UI has two review programs to help deal with problems and procedures involving human-research subjects to avoid such consequences.

Taking the ticket to court

UI students and staff can appeal parking tickets — and even avoid paying the fine, if they're lucky.

By Gian Sachdev

Former UI student Mike Martinson never bothered to appeal the tickets he accumulated for illegally parking in the lot behind the university's Main Library. In fact, he said, he didn't know it was possible.

But two university traffic appeals courts — one dedicated to student complaints, the other to concerns from faculty and staff — have offered all university members the opportunity to appeal UI parking violations for more than 20 years. "I didn't really know [the courts] existed, but if [my tickets] were becoming a continuous problem, I definitely would have used the courts," Martinson said.

The Student Traffic Court is the more heavily used of the two because of the

A large number of student complaints received by the Parking Services each year, said Patty Gereau, the Student Traffic Court supervisor.

The court does not get much publicity, Gereau said, but through word of mouth, the number of complaints — regardless of their validity — can greatly fluctuate. For instance, when one student publicizes winning an appeal to friends, there can be a domino effect.

It's not just Iowa; tuition skyrockets across the United States

Because of the economy, many state universities are facing tuition increases.

By Arlene Levinson

When the University of Tennessee trustees raised the school's tuition 15 percent, Angela Leonard got scared.

The factory worker's daughter saw her 2001-02 tuition jump $422, to $3,234, when the board made its decision July 18. That pushed student loans past $9,000 for the incoming senior, who already works nearly full time as a waitress, baby-sitter, and lifeguard to support herself.

Her career goal is public relations. Now she worries about the price she's paid for an education to get into that field: "What if I don't get a great job starting out?"

Leonard's worries are shared by many college students and families around the country, as tuition hikes at some public institutions hit double-digit percentages for in-state students. Out-of-state students are paying costs that rival private schools.

While annual increases in college bills have become the norm, it's particularly acute this year in part of the country suffering most from the nation's economic slowdown, experts say.

Iowa's universities, including the UI, hiked tuition/fees by 9.9 percent for the coming year. And when the state of Iowa Board of Regents sets tuition for 2002-03 in October, some officials have publicly speculated it could

Street battles rage at Genoa summit

More than 428 people have been injured in two days of protest at the G-8 summit.

By Laura King Associated Press

GENOA, Italy — Street battles flared up for a second day July 21 despite pleas for calm from global-summit leaders and protest organizers alike.

At least 228 people were hurt, in addition to the more than 200 injured the day before, and dozens of protesters were detained, some facing charges as serious as attempted murder.

The violence hopped through Genoa's downtown, a narrow swath of land sandwiched between mountains and the blue Mediterranean.

Much of the fighting took place well away from the city's medieval center where the leaders were meeting for the Group of Eight gathering of industrial powers.

Clouds of tear gas billowed into the air, as riot police fought running battles with a hard core of militants who broke away from a peaceful mass march.

The clashes began at a sunny seaside piazza, where Genoese bathers were swimming just a few hundred yards away, then at a downtown intersection approximately a mile from the main summit venue, an ornate 14th-century palace.

The militants smashed windows, torched cars, and set fires, leaving parts of the city so battered that, during a meeting July 21 with municipal officials, Italian Premier Silvio Berlusconi promised government aid for repairs.

Caught between the combatants were thousands of nonviolent marchers who scrambled up stone stairways and ducked into alleys to flee baton-wielding police. Some were not quick enough to escape a clubbing by police whose ranks — unlike the day before — included a large contingent of plainclothes officers who initially blended with the crowd, then sprang into action when the fighting began.

Protesters who hurled paving stones and firebombs at riot police "were 500 people in a peaceful march of thousands," said 31-year-old demonstrator Simona Tatarini, nearly weeping from frustration and the acrid stench of wafting tear gas.

Some of those trying to keep the demonstration peaceful scuffled with the so-called "black" group of violent protesters, mainly men in their early 20s, hooded or masked, dressed in black, carrying iron bars or wooden clubs, and wearing motorcycle helmets or construction hard hats.

Ugo Nassa, from the Italian city of Bologna, was punched in the face when he tried to stop a group of youths from setting fire to a trash bin. "These people are destroying our march," he said, his face swollen from the blow.

Summit leaders renewed their expressions of sorrow over the July 20 death.

"I'm very concerned about the violence. It's a tragic loss of life," President Bush said. But he repeated his contention that "those who claim to represent the voices of the poor aren't doing so. Those protesters who try to shut down our talks on trade and aid don't represent the poor, as far as I'm concerned."

The clashes erupted as a peaceful procession of up to 100,000 people — most of whom came to Genoa to express concern over social, economic, and environmental fallout from what they view as too-rapid and indiscriminate globalization — moved along a seaside boulevard.

The clashes trailed off by nightfall, when at least 228 people, including 73 police and several journalists, had been hurt, authorities said. At least 85 people had been picked up on various charges over the two days, and of that group, nearly 70 were booked on a list of charges including attempted murder, assault, and unauthorized weapons possessions.

Police said the severity of injuries to police led authorities to level the attempted murder charge, which carries a penalty of up to 25 years in prison. The bulk of those arrested were Italians, but also included protesters from Germany, France, Spain, Switzerland, Greece, and the United States.

Meanwhile, Italian authorities said they were contemplating manslaughter charges against a 20-year-old paramilitary officer in connection with the shooting of a 23-year-old protester a day earlier — though officials said he apparently acted in self-defense. The policeman was hospitalized for shock.

The umbrella group that organized the massive street protests, the Genoa Social Forum, demanded the resignation of Italy's interior minister, who oversees the security forces.

While the protest organizers decided against scaling back the marches July 21, some individual groups pulled out, citing the dangers. "After the violence of yesterday's demonstrations, we can no longer guarantee the safety of our demonstrators," said Andrew Pendleton, a spokesman for the British branch of the group Christian Aid.

The shooting provoked sympathetic demonstrations in Canada, Greece, Germany, Spain, France, and Sweden.

Putin, Bush agree to cut nukes

The two nations plan to tie weapon reductions to tough talks over missile defense.

By Ron Fournier Associated Press

GENOA, Italy — Seeking a post-Cold War formula for arms control, President Bush and Russian President Vladimir Putin pledged Sunday to pursue deep cuts in their nuclear arsenals and link the offensive-weapons talks to tougher negotiations over Bush's missile-defense plans.

While their differences are still deep, both leaders hailed the surprise announcement in this medieval Mediterranean port city as a step toward forging a stronger U.S.-Russian relationship.

Bush has ambitious but untested plans for a defense system that could protect the United States and its allies from missiles launched by Iraq, North Korea, or other "rogue" states. He has sought to link offensive and defense weapons strategies since early in his presidential campaign.

"The two go hand-in-hand in order to set up a new strategic framework for peace," Bush said at a news conference following their second one-on-one meeting. "I believe that we will come up with an accord."

By agreeing to discuss deeper cuts in offensive nuclear missiles in tandem with talks on missile defense, Bush is hoping to win Russian acceptance of his anti-missile ambitions without getting drawn into a tangle of protracted arms negotiations.

The challenge for the Bush administration will be to limit the depth of detail in these talks. Its philosophy is that because the United States and Russia are not adversaries, as they were before the fall of the Soviet Union, they need not constrain each other with strict arms controls.

It's not clear the Russians see it the same way.

A Russian defense analyst, Pavel Felgenhauer, said Sunday it was unlikely the Genoa deal represented a softening of Russian opposition to missile defense. "There will be consultations, not negotiations," he predicted. "People in the Kremlin believe that any negotiations with the United States on missile defense would be a betrayal of national interests."

"What we are not interested in doing is replicating the old arms-control process, in which it takes 15 years to come to an agreement," Condoleezza Rice, the president's national-security adviser, said Sunday after Bush and Putin announced in Genoa, Italy, that Rice would go to Moscow this week to work out a timetable for talks.

Putin did not say he was willing, in exchange, to accept Bush's plan to develop and deploy a network of defenses against long-range ballistic missiles. The Russian president has said in the past that such defenses could upset the strategic balance and trigger an arms race. His emphasis has been on offensive reductions.

AP correspondent Robert Burns in Washington contributed to this report.

Global warming splits G-8 leaders

The leaders work together on the Middle East and other spots, but global warming remains divisive.

By Ron Fournier Associated Press

GENOA, Italy — Under siege, President Bush and other world leaders defended global trade and economic policies that sparked a second day of searing protests. Their talks failed on July 21 to bridge gaping divides over climate-change policies.

Leaders of the world's seven wealthiest nations, plus Russia, plunged forward with a crowded foreign-policy agenda that included the Middle East, the Korean peninsula, and Macedonia.

They called violence in the Middle East "a grave danger" and voiced support for the use of monitors to oversee a yet-to-be-secured cease-fire. The leaders agreed to a Bush administration position that Israel and Palestinians must accept the concept, officials said.

Blocks away, in a haze of smoke and tear gas, police clashed with protesters marching against Western policies and globalization that demonstrators say hurt the poor. Passions were stoked when police shot and killed a young protester July 20. Sympathy demonstrations ignited across Europe and Canada.

Sealed off from the crowd by miles of fence-and-concrete barricades, Bush condemned the violence and said democratically elected leaders had a right to meet.

"Those who claim to represent the voices of the poor aren't doing so," the president said during a picture-taking session with French President Jacques Chirac.

Said Chirac: "We have all been traumatized by the events."

In a joint statement, all eight leaders meeting safely behind the solid walls of a 14th century palace committed their nations to helping "the poorest parts of the world." They also expressed regret at the protester's death.

The global-warming issue underscores a growing divide between the United States and its allies.

The leaders held spirited private conversations about the 1997 Kyoto climate-change treaty rejected by Bush.

Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi urged his counterparts, including Bush, to work within the treaty's framework toward compromise.

Hylton's apartment was one of two police obtained search warrants to investigate July 21. Officials have not concluded whether the second apartment, Apt. 7, is related to the homicide. Hylton was taken into custody and later allegedly admitted to robbing and killing Hebert during an interview with the Coralville police and the agents from the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation.

Although investigators feel they have an idea of a motive, neither Bedford nor White would provide specifics.

Authorities also reported that Hebert's 2000 Toyota Camry LE had been stolen.

The vehicle was recovered in a UI Hospitals and Clinics parking ramp on the morning of July 20, after a maintenance worker recognized the car's description. Authorities say they have since learned that a second vehicle — a gray Pontiac Grand Am — was used to pick up the driver of Hebert's vehicle near the ramp. They have also learned that at least one by-stander, whose identity is unknown at this time, may have spoken with the driver of the second vehicle between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on July 20, reports said.

Hebert was well-known in the area and will be missed by many, said White, who once met Hebert while shopping in his former St. Clair's clothing store.

One such board, the Human Subjects Office, was established by the vice president for Research in order to provide administrative support for the other, the UI Institutional Review Board.

While the review board's main purpose is to consider proposed research on human subjects, the Human Subjects Office serves primarily to provide information and guidelines on the human-subjects review process in general.

"The charge of the review board is to decide if the benefits [of testing human subjects] outweigh the risks," said Charlotte Talman, the director of the university Clinical Trials Office.

The subjects' office contributes by conducting informational workshops for investigators and their staffs. It has developed an informed-consent document, which outlines the basic informational requirements that must be provided to potential human-research candidates.

Parkinson's shouldn't stop Reno's governor run, M.D.'s say

MIAMI (AP) — Janet Reno's doctors say her mild form of Parkinson's disease should not prevent the former U.S. attorney general from running for Florida governor.

Reno, who was diagnosed with the disease in November 1995, says she plans to decide by mid-September whether to seek the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Reno, 63, told the St. Petersburg Times she would release her medical records if she enters the race to take on Gov. Jeb Bush, President Bush's brother.

"I don't feel any adverse effect," she said. "I didn't feel it on my abilities as attorney general or what I'm doing now."

Parkinson's disease causes progressive degeneration of brain neurons that control muscle movements. It makes Reno's hands and arms tremble.

Her doctors said she takes two medications daily and has not shown any side effects. One of her neurologists, Dr. William Koller of the University of Miami, said she responds well to medication and is healthy.

"We always tell patients, one, they need to stay active and minimize the effect of the disease. When they're engaged and have goals, they just do better in general," Koller said.

People with Parkinson's also need to avoid pushing themselves too far, he said.

"She has a lot of energy and a lot of common sense," he said. "I think she knows when it's time to rest."

The doctors caution that the disease is unpredictable, the newspaper reported Sunday.

"There's a tremendous variation in what happens to people, and currently, there's no test that can predict what's going to happen to anybody," Reno's lead physician, Dr. William Weiner of the University of Maryland, told the newspaper. "Someone like her comes to me six years into the disease and I say, 'This is good. You're going to have progression, but it's probably going to be slow like in the past.'"

Poll shows many blacks want to be business owners

WASHINGTON (AP) — A significant number of America's blacks dream of owning their own businesses rather than joining a law firm, a medical practice, or an established corporation, a poll shows.

More than two-thirds of those surveyed said they would like to be entrepreneurs, one sign of economic optimism found in the National Urban League's annual review of black America.

The wide-ranging survey, set for release Wednesday, finds that many blacks believe rap musicians are bad role models. A majority said they are unconcerned about getting AIDS.

Despite the enthusiasm for business ownership, only 10 percent of the respondents now work for themselves.

"It's very American to be one's own boss," said Roderick Harrison, an analyst with the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies. "When you're sitting at home at night tired from work, you can think of that — or of winning the lottery. That's largely dreaming."

The number of minority-owned businesses increased steadily in the 1990s, to 2.8 million — or 15 percent of American businesses in 1997, according to Census data. The 30 percent growth rate of minority businesses outpaced the 7 percent increase for all businesses over a five-year period, though they did not do as well financially.

"In 1960, you would have said, 'I could run a barbershop, a corner grocery store.' [Now], there are opportunities that did not exist in the 1960s at all," said William Spriggs, the director of the Urban League's Institute for Opportunity and Equality.

But Spriggs warned, "The door is cracked, it's not wide open."

"There's a sense that the world is our oyster; there will be no more boundaries," said entrepreneur Karla Ballard of Wilmington, Del., a 30-year-old consultant. "The appeal is definitely independence, the sense of trying to get some control back in your life."

"We limit temporary housing because we can usually place 200 students in permanent housing by six weeks into the first semester," she said. "Keeping students in temporary housing for longer than that is not conducive to their academics, because it is temporary, and there is anxiety involved."

In an attempt to offer more university housing, Residence Services is filling rooms to capacity on four floors of Burge Residence Hall. The hall was built for double- and triple-occupancy rooms, but in recent years, it has been used for singles and doubles.

"We always keep some floors [under capacity] as long as possible in order to even out number and sexes in a hall," said Maggie Van Oel, the director of Residence Services. "The closer we get to opening, the more we know about the students who will be living there."

The increased need for university housing somewhat surprised officials, who had predicted occupancy in the residence halls to drop from 5,494 to 5,442 during the coming academic year.

According to residence services' 10-year plan released last March, student demand for dorm space is "anticipated to remain steady, and the demand not housed will remain manageable" based on earlier enrollment projections. Officials point to the housing shortage as a possible impetus to build a new West Side residence hall, for which the university has received permission from the state of Iowa Board of Regents to begin planning.

"The money for everything we do comes out of the students' pockets," Van Oel said. "We will have to wait to see whether this higher enrollment will be a pattern. We've never had to turn away enough people to warrant a new building."

The two traffic courts allow students and university employees the opportunity to appeal tickets without worry, said Dave Ricketts, the university parking director.

"It separates UI officials from appeals," he said. "This way, students don't feel intimidated to take action if they have people their own age deciding the fate of the ticket."

The court's committee, a group of 10 university students who meet once a month, has four options when reviewing a case. It can uphold a fine that has been issued, suspend the financial portion of the ticket while retaining the violation on a student's official records, dismiss the fine officially and financially, or reduce the amount due.

Over the years, Gereau said, she has handled a wide variety of cases, which are dealt with on an "individual" basis. Her most frequent complaints relate to meter or handicap-parking violations, most of which are generated at the IMU, she said.

"An expired meter is an expired meter," she said. "But I think the large number of violations is an indication that there aren't enough spaces downtown, especially with the Iowa Avenue construction."

The most bizarre case Gereau recalls involved a university student who left her car unattended for an entire semester. The student alleged that she forgot the car was hers and filed an appeal stating she shouldn't have to pay the hundreds of accumulated tickets, which totaled nearly $400 in fines. The student was forced to pay the fines, Gereau said.

However, traffic court justice Matt Buchanan said student complaints are often valid. Buchanan, in his second year with the court, said some complaints are written in detail while others are merely stated in person to committee members.

"Sometimes the wrong color of parking paint is responsible for a large number of unnecessary tickets issued," he said. "I remember one year when UI officials mislabeled a parking space, and a lot of students complained when they received tickets."

The beginning of the fall semester and end of spring semester are the two busiest seasons for parking officials, Ricketts said.

"One increase we see is after Spring Break, when many people bring cars back to campus and finally decide to study," he said. "Most tickets are issued when people either don't know the rules or pretend to not know the rules."

UI not alone; tuition jumps across United States

reach 15 percent, a result of a slowing economy that has left a $300 million hole in the state's budget.

Schools across the nation are facing hikes just as bad or worse as Iowa:

- Clemson University trustees last month raised annual tuition for all students at the South Carolina school by $1,500 — a 42 percent leap for state residents. The board later retreated on in-state tuition, cutting the increase to $900, for a total of $5,090. Out-of-state tuition will still rise as planned, to $11,284.

- University of Minnesota tuition is going up 13.3 percent, ranging from $4,626 to $6,141 at its four campuses. Tuition at the state's less-expensive state colleges and universities is rising an average of 10.9 percent, to $2,538.

- Mississippi's eight public universities hiked tuition 15 percent to as much as $3,626 at the University of Mississippi.

- Washington's research universities got a green light to raise tuition a total of 12.8 percent in two-year increments.

Higher tuition bills aren't universal; California, New York, Massachusetts, and Virginia public institutions are keeping in-state tuition unchanged from last fall.

But in many states, health insurance, faculty salaries, the constant need to upgrade of technology — and for some, energy — pushed up costs at a time when state revenues dropped. An economy that looked uncertain in January had taken a turn for the worse by spring budget season.

"In some states, things looked considerably uglier than they had been predicted to be in January," said Travis Reindl, the head of state policy at the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

Historically, when state money is tight, tuition goes up, he said.

Indonesia to dump leader

The National Assembly, defying the president's order to dissolve, opens impeachment hearings.

By Geoff Spencer
Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Indonesian legislators opened a hearing earlier today to impeach their president, defying an emergency decree he had issued in hopes of heading off the ouster. The legislature was set to replace him with the vice president.

The military and police also refused to obey President Abdurrahman Wahid's pre-dawn order to shut down the National Assembly and the proceedings. Instead, troops and tanks were deployed to protect legislators in the capital of this troubled Southeast Asian nation.

Vice President Megawati Sukarnoputri arrived at the heavily guarded Parliament building just minutes before the hearing started. She was warmly applauded by lawmakers as she entered its main chamber and took a seat at the front.

Megawati is the daughter of Sukarno, the country's founding leader and former president, who was dumped as president after he was impeached by the Assembly amid political turmoil in 1966. Many observers have said the United States was behind the move.

Assembly Chairman Amien Rais predicted that Megawati could be installed as president by midday (11 p.m. Sunday CDT).

"Abdurrahman Wahid will be dismissed by the [Assembly] because he has violated the Constitution, especially by declaring a state of emergency," said Parliament Speaker er Akbar Tandjung. "We will elect Megawati as president." There were no signs of protests in Jakarta or elsewhere in the country.

Following Wahid's decree to shut down the legislature, at least six ministers quit his Cabinet in protest.

Among those who announced their intent to resign were Security Minister Agum Gumelar, State Secretary Marzuki Darusman, and Attorney General Marsilam Simanjuntak — who was one of Wahid's closest advisers.

Wahid has steadfastly refused to step down over allegations of corruption and incompetence, warning that moves to oust him could trigger protests and riots and provoke several provinces to break away from the troubled Southeast Asian nation. Wahid remained at the presidential palace early today.

Grisly exhibit marks China ban

The government notes the second anniversary of a Falun Gong prohibition.

By William Foreman
Associated Press

BELJING — China is marking Sunday's anniversary of the banning of Falun Gong with an exhibit of gruesome photos of alleged members of the meditation group who torched themselves, attacked others, or went insane.

Thousands of soldiers, students, and workers have viewed the massive display during the past week at Beijing's Military History Museum, state-run media say in daily reports praising the show. With cartoons, video footage, text, and photos, the exhibit tries to convey a simple message to a broad audience: Healthy people who begin practicing Falun Gong go crazy and harm themselves and their families.

Falun Gong dismissed the show as a crude smear campaign.

"It's all lies. It's all propaganda," said Gail Rachlin, a New York-based Falun Gong spokeswoman. "The reality is that this [Chinese government] is a totalitarian regime relentlessly persecuting millions of its own people."

Sunday marks the second anniversary of China's banning of Falun Gong, which advocates its own form of meditation and light exercise. The Communist Party apparently saw the group's organization and growing ranks — which included several party members — as a threat to its monopoly on power.

Many of the group's leaders have been arrested; its founder, Li Hongzhi, lives in exile in the United States.

Since the ban, China's police and state-run media have not eased their fierce campaign to stamp out Falun Gong. The efforts appears to have been successful in driving the group deep underground. Protests are fewer, and Falun Gong followers appear more desperate.

"We're close to completely wiping out Falun Gong. There are just a few hard-core members left," said Zhao Chongxing, an official in the news office of the State Council, China's Cabinet.

Police blamed in Japan fest deaths

Ten people, mostly children, are killed when thousands mob a bridge at a fireworks show.

By Mari Yamaguchi
Associated Press

AKASHI, Japan — The call from a private security company was frantic: Thousands had mobbed a pedestrian overpass after a fireworks display in western Japan, and lives were in danger.

Then came the police response — let's wait and see.

In those crucial minutes 10 people — most of them children — were killed, and 117 others injured when a crowd surged onto the overpass July 21 in Akashi, a suburb of Kobe, approximately 390 miles southwest of Tokyo.

The accident — the worst overcrowding tragedy in Japan in decades — has focused intense scrutiny on allegedly lax crowd control at the site and what critics say was a lag-gard response by police.

Witnesses said officials seemed unprepared for the crowd of 130,000 people who showed up for the fireworks, and a report by a security company hired for the event said guards called the police for backup and were turned down. Akashi police official Kazuaki Sakaki confirmed that version of events.

"Right before the accident, there was a proposal asking for a group of police to go up to the bridge," he told reporters in Akashi on Sunday. "But the decision was to wait."

Sakaki, however, defended the police, saying that security companies had been hired to monitor traffic atop the pedestrian overpass and police were not responsible for that area.

He also said that plainclothes officers had checked out the situation a little while before and said it was "nonviolent."

Witnesses, however, said they could see trouble brewing from the start.

Backstreet Boys: Larger than Life

7 p.m. on MTV
The pop sensations' special features clips from their shows at the Staples Center in Los Angeles, as well as footage from their early days.

Our summer of cinematic discontent

DI movie critic Adam Kempenaar previews five films that could save a dreary summer.

OK, I admit it. Summer is not my favorite season for movies. Forget the car chases, MTV-style editing, and eye-popping explosions; I want subtitles, angst-ridden characters who stare oppressively at each other as if to say, "Life is so cruel, I can't speak," and scenes that have been edited with all the exuberance of a funeral procession.

With that said, even a snob like me occasionally enjoys spending a sultry summer day in a dark, air-conditioned theater, escaping into a mindless world of fantasy and adventure. The problem is, one need only to compare some classic summer hits with their pale 2001 imitations to see that Hollywood just ain't making 'em like it used to — from Raiders of the Lost Ark to the passionless Lara Croft: Tomb Raider; Ghostbusters to Evolution; and Clueless to Legally Blonde.

Audiences seem to agree. Despite a record-setting boost early on from The Mummy Returns and the likable animated comedy Shrek, Hollywood's mammoth blockbuster machine had been sputtering before being bailed out this past weekend by the toothy grins of Julia Roberts and a bevy of velociraptors. (See the Weekend Box Office Report.)

Projected to be the biggest hit of the summer, Pearl Harbor was bombed by the critics, and it sank well below expectations at the box office. Michael Bay's overly long, overdone World War II love story had been predicted to gross at least $250 million domestically, but it will now probably finish closer to $200 million — not so hot for a film that cost upwards of $140 million to make.

Usually a sure thing, Steven Spielberg also disappointed people this summer. A.I. Artificial Intelligence, his eagerly anticipated, beyond-the-grave collaboration with Stanley Kubrick, was met with mostly tepid reviews, and it is doubtful to earn even $100 million after a respectable opening weekend take ($29.4 million). Box office numbers aside, A.I.'s visual grandeur couldn't compensate for its emotional hollowness or its misguided marketing tag as the "E.T. for the new millennium."

Ironically, the best movie of the summer — think quality, not quantity — can't even legitimately be labeled a summer movie. Memento, Christopher Nolan's hypnotic film noir twist, was originally released last October, but didn't play in Iowa City (thanks to the Bijou) until June. Besides, when was the last time you heard the phrase "hypnotic film noir twist" used to describe a summer blockbuster? Independence Day it isn't.

Another unlikely summer gem was John Singleton's provocative Baby Boy, the story of a 20-year-old black male (Tyrese Gibson) struggling to leave the nest and accept his adult responsibilities. At times uncomfortably honest, with a masterful performance by Gibson, Baby Boy is Singleton's best work since his 1991 debut, Boyz n' The Hood.

But if a backwards tale of revenge or an unflinching urban melodrama doesn't sound like your idea of summer amusement, here's a glimpse of five films to look forward to before Hollywood trots out its Oscar contenders in the fall:

• Friday
Planet of the Apes — Tim Burton's "don't call it a remake" of the 1968 sci-fi adventure classic stars Mark Wahlberg as an astronaut who crash-lands on a planet on which humans are ruled by hostile apes. The ideal project for a visionary director such as Burton (Batman, Sleepy Hollow), featuring a sturdy ensemble cast, including Helena Bonham Carter as an ape who befriends Wahlberg, and Tim Roth in yet another charmingly evil turn as the ruthless general Attar.

• Aug. 3
Rush Hour 2 — The sequel to 1998's blockbuster reunites Wednesday, and they felt it was important to get her up and walking," he said.

If all goes well, Hepburn will be sent home today, Battaglio said. She lives in Old Saybrook.

Hepburn's past health problems include arthritis, pneumonia, and Parkinson's-like tremors.

During her 60-year career, Hepburn was nominated for a record-tying 12 Academy Awards and won for Morning Glory (1933), Guess Who's Coming to Dinner (1967), A Lion in Winter (1968), and On Golden Pond (1981).

BOX OFFICE

1. Jurassic Park III, $50.3 million.
2. America's Sweethearts, $31 million.
3. Legally Blonde, $11.05 million.
4. The Score, $10.75 million.
5. Cats & Dogs, $6.77 million.
6. The Fast and the Furious, $5.3 million.
7. Scary Movie 2, $4.4 million.
8. Dr. Dolittle 2, $4.35 million.
9. Final Fantasy: The Spirits Within, $3.5 million.
10. Kiss of the Dragon, $2.86 million.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't envy others. That will get you nowhere. Please yourself, and you won't feel that everyone else has more than you. Unleash the creativity within. You have a lot to offer; let go of your inhibitions. This is your time to shine, and don't you forget it.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't let those you live with hold you back. Jealousy is probable. Follow your dreams and your heart. Speak your piece and make the necessary changes. Be your own person and let others follow you, rather than vice versa. Maintain a healthy diet and improve your self-image.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Don't let delays discourage you. You're really in no hurry. Be careful if you have to deal with government agencies or authority figures. They will be out to get you. Try to be completely honest with yourself as well as with others.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Focus on your career and moneymaking efforts. Keep your priorities in line so that you don't get sidetracked. If you do, there's no turning back. Don't be alarmed if your place of employment is making changes. Go with the flow.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It will be hard to control your feelings. Let it all loose for a change. Don't let others take advantage of your vulnerability. Think of yourself first. If you aren't happy, how can you expect to make others content? Do what is right for you and you won't regret it. Spend some time outdoors.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stay out of those situations that don't appear to be on the up-and-up. You may end up trusting someone who will lead you astray. Don't let your heart be captured by someone you can't trust. Try out some new endeavors to divert your attention from current troubles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Don't become involved in joint financial ventures today. This is definitely not the time to be doing that. Work quietly behind the scenes on those domestic jobs that you've been ignoring. You will thank yourself later.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Slow down; you are probably feeling tired and run-down. Problems with equipment and machinery can't be helped. Use the delay to rejuvenate. Worry will only cause weariness. If you've been neglecting your lover, then it is time to spend some quality time together and reduce friction.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Love is likely. Stay busy with friends who can introduce you to possible love interests. You need to look into travel that will be relaxing and entertaining. Take some time away from work to enjoy yourself.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money will be an issue if you become involved in a financial scheme that is questionable. Try not to worry. The best way to recovery both financially and physically is to keep busy.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your lover may need some heavy-duty attention if you wish to keep your personal life running smoothly. Your lack of desire has probably caused some doubt in your relationship. Turn things around with a romantic night on the town.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Put your efforts into your work. You can make professional changes or advancements if you are willing to give that extra effort you're so well known for. Don't sit back. Watch what you say to others at the workplace; your ego and lack of inhibitions might get you in trouble.

Signs that you're an alcoholic

- It is customary for you to enjoy a drink or two, or 12, after a hard day of work.
- It is customary for you to enjoy a drink or two before a hard day of work.
- During your last hospital stay, you sabotaged your IV bag and filled it with Miller High Life.
- The bartender's asking you for drinks.
- Your frat was unable to convince the cops that those 17 kegs were actually just for you.
- People mistake your drunken stumble for a permanent disability.
- You still insist that Budweiser is the fifth food group.
- On most nights lately, you have trouble remembering those pesky little details, such as your name or where you live.
- You were a little too excited to learn that your cousin would be having an open bar at her wedding reception.
- Your parents just had to guide you toward a Hollywood career as a child, didn't they?
- You're enrolled at the University of Iowa.

Garciaparra continues rehab

CHICAGO (AP) — A string will not delay Garciaparra's comeback. Garciaparra, recovering from off-season wrist surgery, his right hamstring injury, pregame infield practice at Comiskey Park. Garciaparra, who has this season, isn't overly with his leg. "Right now we're more about the wrist than the leg," says manager Jim Riggs. "We're taking batting practice, but we're not hitting. We'll make tomorrow or the next day that's rehab or what, I don't know."

ST. LOUIS — Jimmy A. took a shutout into the ninth and Keith Osik snapped a tie with an RBI single in the ninth. The Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-0 Sunday. Osik, making his first start since July 8, was hitting .152 and for-36 slump before his 6th hit off Mike Timlin (3-5). Osik, through after getting hit in by a backswing from Edgar in the bottom of the eighth.

Marlins 11, Reds

MIAMI — A.J. Burnett third straight start and the Marlins had 15 hits Sunday defeated the Cincinnati Reds. Charles Johnson, Dave Derrek Lee, and Eric Owe had two RBIs for Florida, 8. The All-Star break. Luis Casanova pitched for the Reds. Mike Lowell had three hits.

Padres 4, Brewers

SAN DIEGO — Tony Gwynn two-run double, and Bobb pitched five-hit ball for innings to lift the San Diego Padres to a 4-0 win Sunday over the Milwaukee Brewers. Ryan Klesko had a hit.

Garciaparra continues rehab
CHICAGO (AP) — A tight hamstring will not delay Nomar Garciaparra's comeback. Garciaparra, recovering from offseason wrist surgery, tweaked his right hamstring July 21 during pregame infield practice at Comiskey Park. Garciaparra, who hasn't played this season, isn't overly concerned with his leg. "Right now we're more concerned about the wrist than the leg after four days of taking batting practice," Garciaparra said. "Tomorrow I'll wake up, see the trainers, and see how I feel. We'll make a decision tomorrow or the next day. Whether that's rehab or what, I don't know." Boston manager Jimmy Williams said the club was not ready to make a decision about when to activate Garciaparra — or where the shortstop would go on a minor-league rehab assignment.

Armstrong in command as he leaves mountains
LUZ-ARDIDEN, France — Lance Armstrong descended from the wooded peaks of the Pyrenees on Sunday wearing the leader's yellow jersey and on course for a third-straight Tour de France title. Barring sickness or accidents, the Texan is almost certain to be the champion again when the race ends July 29 in Paris, thanks to his dominating mountain rides the past week. In Sunday's last mountain leg he was fourth, finishing just behind main rival Jan Ullrich of Germany. Armstrong leads the overall standings by 5 minutes, 5 seconds, with six stages left. In these flat stages it is difficult for riders to take a big lead. "This year, he is stronger than ever," said Ullrich, the runner-up last year. "Simply unbeatable."

One dead, several injured after crash
AMHERST, Ohio — Two race cars jumped a guard rail and hit a section of bleachers at a track near Cleveland, killing a wheelchair-bound woman and injuring at least 11 other spectators. Authorities said Sunday that four people were taken by helicopter to MetroHealth Medical Center in Cleveland.

Virginia Wyleth, 65, was pronounced dead early Sunday, a nursing supervisor said. Her hometown was not available, but the county sheriff's department said. The accident occurred about 11:30 p.m. July 21.
Sluman beats Gow, wins B.C. Open
ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Jeff Sluman made an 8-foot birdie putt on the second hole of a playoff with Australian rookie Paul Gow to win the B.C. Open on Sunday. After squandering a two-shot lead on the final hole of regulation, Sluman took advantage of Gow's misfortune on the second extra hole. Gow's tee shot hit a tree, bounced across the 18th fairway, and rolled into a concrete, water-filled ditch.

ST. LOUIS — Jimmy Anderson took a shutout into the ninth inning, and Keith Osik snapped a scoreless tie with an RBI single in the ninth as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-0 Sunday. Osik, making his first start since July 8, was hitting .152 and in a 3-for-36 slump before his go-ahead hit off Mike Timlin (3-5). Osik came through after getting hit in the head by a backswing from Edgar Renteria in the bottom of the eighth.

Woods has worst major finish in four years sixth American in the past seven years to claim golf's oldest championship. Caressing the claret jug, Duval scanned the names on the trophy and found his right below Woods. "When you beat him and the other players on that board, you could look at maybe as how the players felt beating Jack Nicklaus or Tom Watson," he said. "They know they've beaten the best player. I beat them all this week, and it feels really good. It feels wonderful." Meanwhile, another major championship passed without

Woods in serious contention. Like so many others, Woods couldn't make enough birdies on a firm, fast links course littered with pot bunkers. He took triple bogey on the par-3 12th and wound up nine strokes behind in a tie for 25th, his worst finish in a major in nearly four years. "I'm not thrilled that I wasn't able to contend down the stretch, but I had my chances out there," Woods said after a 71. He wasn't alone. Darren Clarke of Northern Ireland was at 8-under par and rolling — until his tee shot rolled into a pot bunker on No. 17 and he took double bogey. Miguel Angel Jimenez of Spain also got to 8 under until he fell back with back-to-back bogeys. The only other American to make a move was Billy Mayfair, who finished with eight-straight pars and wound up in the group at 278. All of them had their hands full trying to catch Duval. From the time Duval holed an 18-foot birdie putt on No. 3, then birdied the back-to-back par 5s to take a two-stroke lead, he never gave anyone else much hope. It certainly didn't start out that way. This was anyone's Open on a sunny, breezy day off the Lancashire coast. The stage was set for an 18-hole shootout with

GAME TIME LEAGUE

Championship game set

■ Cullen Painting and Goodfellow Printing will fight for the title Tuesday.

By Laura Podolak
The Daily Iowan

Lopsided victories defined the first round of the Game Time League playoffs Sunday.

Top-seeded Cullen Painting/Bob's Your Uncle Pizza Cafe assumed its position as the best team in the league, defeating Union Planters Bank, 98-81.

Four members of the Cullen squad found themselves in double figures. Iowa's Jennie Lillis and Drake's Stephanie Schimtz mirrored each other in points for the second game in a row, both scoring 22. Lillis also notched 11 rebounds.

Mary Berdo and Leah Magner were the other two Cullen members in double figures; Berdo had 19 points, and Magner finished with a double-double of 14 points and 10 rebounds.

"I felt the win was important, because we were the best team," Berdo said. "So we wanted to make the championship game."

Erin Richards and Stephanie Rich performed best for Union Planters. Richards had 18 points; Rich had 17 points and 8 rebounds. Erin Fantroy also had a solid game, recording 11 points and 10 rebounds.

Union Planters failed to win a game during the league's inaugural season.

Berdo was pleased to be playing in the earlier game and not in the later matchup between the second- and third-place teams.

"I think that whoever had the No. 2 seed had the tougher game when looking at the standings," she said. "I kind of want to face the red team, because they blew us out last time we played."

In the later game, Berdo received her wish.

A close game was expected between No. 2 Goodfellow Printing/Imprinted Sportswear and No. 3 HawksNestOnline.com, but it didn't end up that way. Goodfellow Printing advanced into the championship with a 109-80 win.

The game stayed close throughout the early minutes, but Goodfellow Printing slowly started getting ahead. With only one minute remaining in the first half, Lindsey Meder splashed back-to-back 3-pointers to give her team a 14-point lead.

Sharp passes and exact shooting made the game exciting to watch until Goodfellow Printing began to pull away in the second half.

Kary Dawson led her team in scoring with 22. Close behind her were Iowa teammates Meder and Beatrice

PTL semis action getting underway

■ Fitzpatrick's will bring a four-game winning streak to this evening's games.

By Tyler Lechtenberg
The Daily Iowan

The Prime Time League whittled the playing field down to four teams, but don't expect the quality of play to diminish for tonight's two semifinal games at the North Liberty Community Center.

In the evening's first game, second-seeded Merrill Lynch/Nike takes on upstart Fitzpatrick's, which defeated No. 3 seed Lepic-Kroeger Realtors/Active Endeavors, 86-84, in a first-round match on July 19.

Fitzpatrick's, seeded No. 6, rides a four-game winning streak into tonight's semifinal. Its point guard, incoming Iowa freshman Pierre Pierce, said playoff games are set apart from the regular season because of a sense of urgency.

Pierce
Iowa freshman

"Now if you lose, you are through. I want to keep playing as long as I can," he said.

Merrill Lynch will try to put a stop to the Fitzpatrick's winning streak using a very strong team concept. Instead of counting on one player for scoring, Merrill Lynch uses a committee, with Monte Jenkins, David Kruse, and Greg Danielson each carrying the load on any given night.

Injured Merrill Lynch guard Brody Boyd liked what he saw as he watched first-round action from the bench.

"Our team looked really good. Coach [Randy] Larson has been doing a heck of a job," he said.

Larson, the league's director, is not new to the playoff atmosphere; he coached last year's Merrill Lynch team to the championship.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Houston shuts out Cubs, 3-0

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros first shutout at hitter-friendly Enron Field couldn't have come at a better time.

Shane Reynolds and two relievers combined on Houston's first shutout in 1½ seasons at its new home as the Astros beat the Chicago Cubs, 3-0, Sunday.

"Really? Wow. That's good," Reynolds said after being told it was Houston's first home shutout since Oct. 2, 1999 — the second-to-last regular season game at the Astrodome.

"Everybody knows this is a hitter's ball park, but there have been some good games pitched against us, and we've pitched some good games."

Jeff Bagwell hit his sixth homer in 10 games as the Astros moved within two games of the first-place Cubs in the NL Central. The four-game series ends tonight, one of 11 games remaining this season between the Cubs and Astros.

"These games are all low scoring. I think it's going to be like this when we go back to Wrigley," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "I don't see Don Baylor being able to sit back, and, cross his legs, and relax, or that I will either."

Mariners 6, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Mark McLemore had four RBIs, and Paul Abbott took a two-hit shutout into the ninth inning as the Seattle Mariners won their third-straight over the Minnesota Twins, 6-3, Sunday.

Abbott (9-2) improved to 7-0 in 11 starts since May 28. He was bidding for his first shutout in 113 career starts before David Ortiz's two-run single in the ninth.

Jeff Nelson allowed one hit, an RBI single to A.J. Pierzynski, and got three outs to complete the six-hitter.

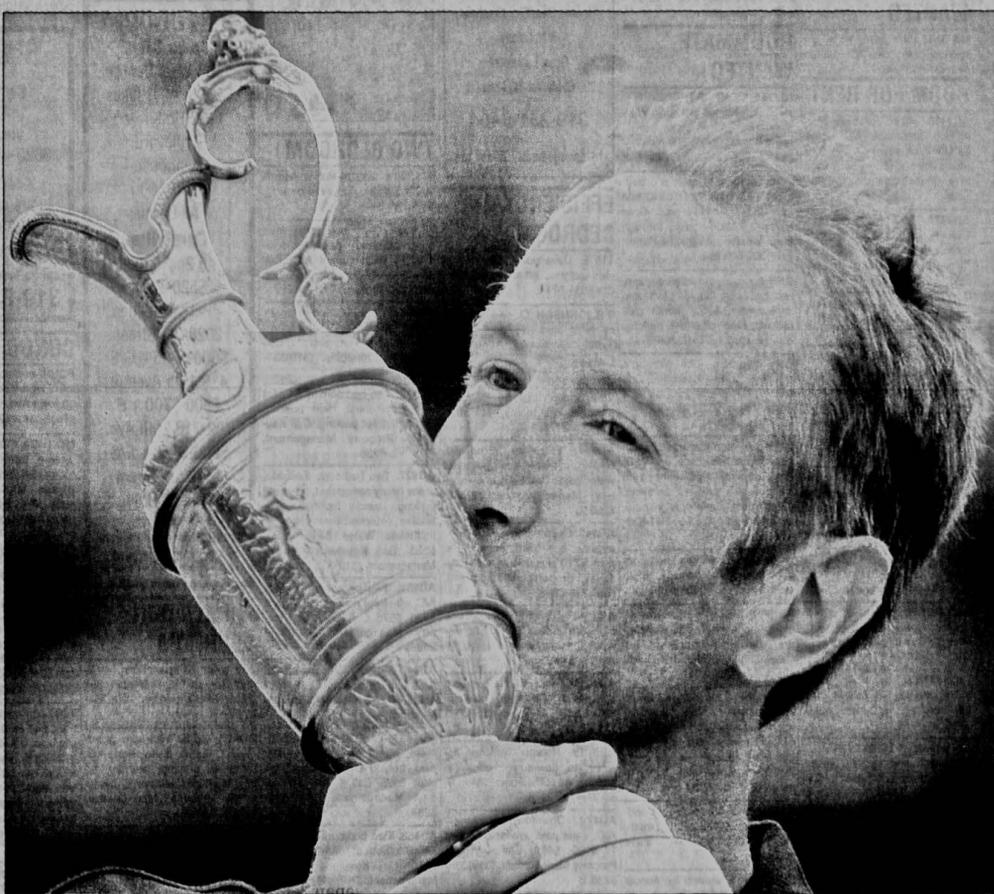

White Sox 13, Red Sox 8

CHICAGO — Paul Konerko homered for the third-straight game, and Carlos Lee hit a three-run homer as the Chicago White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox, 13-8, Sunday.

Dante Bichette hit a three-run homer for the Red Sox, who lost for the third time in four games and dropped out of a first-place tie with the New York Yankees in the AL East.

Tim Wakefield (6-5) had trouble controlling his knuckleball and lost his third-straight start, allowing six runs — five earned — five hits, and five walks in three-plus innings.

David Duval kisses the trophy after winning the British Open Golf Championship at Royal Lytham and St. Annes golf course in England Sunday. It is the first major tournament Duval has won in his career.

Sweet victory

■ David Duval gets first major win at the British Open Sunday.

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England — The massive crowd that swallowed up David Duval walking up the 18th fairway in the British Open didn't faze him.

He had seen it all before — only it was always someone else's party.

Tiger Woods and Vijay Singh at the last two Masters. Woods at St. Andrews last year, when the closest Duval got to the silver claret jug was on the flight home.

On Sunday, a celebration long overdue was all his.

"It's a wonderful experience," Duval said Sunday. "I'd go through it again."

Duval refused to let the British Open turn into the 18-hole shootout everyone expected, seizing control with a rock-solid game that carried him to a 4-under 67 and gave him the prize that had eluded him the past four years.

He never looked at a leaderboard through those wraparound sunglasses. He didn't have to. Duval always believed he had the mettle to withstand the pressure of golf's sternest test, and the silver claret jug he held aloft was the greatest proof of all.

"I did everything I needed to do," he said. "I feel really good about that."

The stoic expression hardly ever changed until the last putt fell. Only then did Duval peel off the shades and blink in the bright sunlight over Royal Lytham & St. Annes, finally able to call himself a major champion.

"I don't know if I can savor this any more than I do now," he said. "I imagine what it would do is intensify my desire to do it again."

Duval finished at 274 for a three-stroke victory over Niclas Fasth of Sweden, the only one among a long list of proven players who sustained any kind of challenge.

Former Masters champion Ian Woosnam might have been one of them. But after nearly making an ace on the opening hole, the Welshman realized he had an extra club in his bag and was assessed a two-stroke penalty.

"I did not really get out of my head all the way around," Woosnam said. "Everything seemed to be going against me."

Haunted by the costly mistake, Woosnam finished with a 71 and was four strokes back at 278, along with five others.

Three of them were major championship winners — Woosnam, two-time Masters champion Bernhard Langer and two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els.

Duval takes his place among them.

The only player besides Woods to be ranked No. 1 in the past three years, Duval expected to be there all along.

"It's kind of a big relief," he said. "It's so pressure-packed in major championships, and then you put it on a golf course like this, where any minor mistake is magnified and it makes the pressure even greater. You just can't let up, and I didn't let up today."

He won for the first time this year and became the
