Learning the true meaning of college

Tim Dreyer will return to finish his degree next May.

By Peter Boylen
The Daily Iowan

More than 400 undergraduates will receive a UI diploma this spring at Banhorn Auditorium. Twenty-four-year-old Tim Dreyer will not be one of them.

Dreyer was slated to graduate this summer, but the econometrics class that he needed was dropped from the schedule of courses at the last minute. His advisor presented him with the option of returning to the fall, but Dreyer has decided to take a three-week class in May 2002 in order to avoid the hassle and additional expenses.

"I'm annoyed at the fact that I'm not graduating," he said. "It's something that I've had my eyes on for a long time. I need to be out of school by the end of April. It's time for the next step.

Dreyer came to the UI in the fall of 1995 and enrolled as an economics major like most college freshmen. The workload was not too positive.

"The thing that totally dominated my thought was that, until coming here, I had lived a pretty sheltered life," he said. "I was nervous, my basic concerns were establishing my own, self-sufficient life."

Home-rule changes hit road block

Proosed amendments to the Home Rule Charter may need revision, the city attorney writes.

By Ryan Foley
The Daily Iowan

A proposed amendment to the city bylaws requiring the city manager and police chief to face the voters for retention every four years does not comply with state law, said the City Iowa attorneys.

Further, two other amendments to the city's Home Rule Charter that backers hope will also find at least ballot status in the 2002 general election are not amendable, Eleanor Dilkes advised in a memo to city councilors Thursday.

Three local groups - Citizens for Accountable Local Government, Citizens for Alternatives to a New Jail, and Students for Local Politics - have been trying to gather the signatures needed to get the amendments on the ballot in an effort to "promote better police and greater accountability in government.

But Dilkes said, single-spirit referendum Thursday could dash their hopes of enacting the amendments this fall.

"We are extremely concerned," said Dilkes. "This may not be the last time that we are unable to present our arguments to the citizens of the city for how they should be governed by not only city administrators, but by police, police, police, police.

The opinions will not affect their efforts to present the signatures to the city clerk.

Affirmative-action search delayed

The search for a UI affirmative-action director will resume in January.

By Bridget Stilman
The Daily Iowan

The University announced Thursday it is seeking a new director of affirmative action - marking the second time this year the university has filled the vacant administrative position.

A 13-member search committee formed to find a successor to Susan Shaw after a process that lasted nearly three months. The committee, which was comprised of students, faculty, students, administrators including receiving 18 applicants and interviewing four candidates for the position, and committee Chairwoman Sue Kibbe, the university's associate vice president for Human Resources.

"This process is critical to the university," she said, "We are looking for leadership to do a creative job in doing the best practices of diversity and fairness on campus."

The director of affirmative action will be "a marvelous job," said Kibbe.

"It's a great position, a wonderful job," said Dilkes. "We thought it would be good to have the search completed before the spring, but I think as we get closer to the date we have, we're a little bit more comfortable.

The position was opened after the resignation of Susan Shaw in November 2001.

Dilkes, who is leading the search, said the committee has received 18 applications.

"We have a far better idea of what we want to do," she said. "We've changed the process to have three potential candidates and then interview them. We will continue the process on an open basis to make sure we have candidates that reflect the city at large.

Regent: I know what I want to do. I've been very involved in this. We've been talking for months. The position is almost filled.

Ruden: I don't know the status. I don't know if we have the right candidates.

Keitel: We're not going to close the search. We're going to put a stop to this because of the candidates. We will continue the process.

The university will announce the new director in January and the position will be filled in the spring.

Three sources have key legislators so far failed.

Sean O'Sullivan, director of the UI Graduate College, said the search process has been complex.

"The search, which involved hundreds of people, was thought to be a major effort," he said.

The process, which included searching for the ideal candidate, involved interviewing 32 people.

Scientists use fruit to stop cancer

A UI researcher and a collaborator are studying how a substance found in fruits can help fight malignant cells.

By Lisa Kaming

The Daily Iowan

Citrus fruits and cherries can be used for a lot more than just fruit salad. Ask Raymond Holl.

For the past six years, the UI researcher and associate professor of internal medicine, in collaboration with University of Wisconsin researcher Howard Farber, has led the search for a substance that is found in some fruits, or an abnormal protein found in cancerous cells.

Researchers have found that the alcohol, derived from such natural sources as lavender and orange peel oil, has shown promise as a potential in the production of abnormal proteins found in cancerous cells.

While conducting their research, Holl and Farber found that the alcohol’s ability to stop messenger proteins and free radicals used to make the abnormal protein may likely make the substance effective.

"There are many theories as to how [alcohol] works," Holl said, "but the actual process is not fully understood." He said that research will continue to aid in the development of new treatments for cancer.

United Action for Youth

United Action for Youth wants to expand by 10,000-14,000 square feet. By Deirdre Bell

The Iowa City Historic Preservation Commission recom­mended rezoning or purchas­ing properties to help United Action for Youth expand instead of undertaking recon­struction or relocation of the existing facility.

During the commission’s Monday night meeting, youth­service provider Rayn­ald Morris asked if there were any problems with moving one of the nonprofit organiza­tion’s two facilities, a 100-year-old Victorian house, to a new location.

The 424 Iowa Ave. bequest houses family counseling and youth­programming services. The Youth center sees nearly 100 patients a year and, in addition to counseling services to teenagers, offers Cydelle Bello, a prevention specialist with the youth center also has a second house next to 410 Iowa Ave. The center provides only family counseling and does not use the building as a dorm room.

The building’s condition is discussed in the current commission meeting, including recording of their music in a music studio.

The state building commission’s next meeting will be on July 29th. Holl said that the state commission will meet in July to discuss the building’s condition.

If the property is not maintained, the building, recreation space and the property’s condition would become a problem for the commission.

"It’s important to us that the building be maintained," Holl said. "We have tried to explain the conditions, but the building is not maintained."

One of the most important things to consider is the building’s condition. The building, recreation space and the property’s condition would become a problem for the commission.

The Jesus Christ of boy bands has arrived. No more Backstreet Boys or NSYNC. Goodbye 98 Degrees and BBMak.

Last summer, in a small Utah town, an idea was born that revolutionized the music industry. The灵感 of the America's Second Amendment Rights Foundation (ASARF), which required all citizens to own a firearm, was impossible to enforce but also a dream come true for programmers willing to risk alienating a portion of their audience. Moreover, these organizations would be given the same rights as religious organizations to promote their beliefs.

Under Bush's plan, religious organizations would be allowed to use tax dollars to fund religious organizations to mainstream religions. Additionally, Virgin has now attempted to mandate church and state, and it wants all its donors and to create my own duo act.

Eddie Thomas (Cusack), "America's Sweethearts". So much for Linda LONDON (AP) — Sir Paul McCartney and his former wife, Linda, have both said they won't have their first child for another three years. The couple was engaged to be married Monday. McCartney, a 50-year-old pop star, said Wednesday that he wants to marry Linda by the end of the year. Linda recently gave birth to a baby girl in a Los Angeles hospital.

Lee, a former Beatle, announced his plans with Linda, a 36-year-old American TV star, during a one-hour-long interview Wednesday in a Paris hotel. McCartney's fiancee, Linda, has already given birth to his first child, a baby girl named Stella, in February.

Facilities Services Group looks for a plan

The Facilities Services Group hopes to improve its services by adopting a new strategic plan.

By Dan C. Kerr

The US Facilities Services Group recently turned to an outside consultant to help the university in improving its services. The consultant is focused on the university's service center.

But Larry Gins Gans of Gans Consulting says that facilities services—which oversees the planning, design, construction, operation, maintenance, and repair of university buildings, grounds, and equipment—are in urgent need of a strategic plan.

"Although the university is doing very well, they are not doing as well as they could be," Gans said. "The university needs to make sure that they are providing the best possible service to the students and faculty."
Don't be a Superwoman. And that's no offense to Superwomen — which is to say, women who say, 'Yes, I can do it all.' The problem is, sometimes they do, and only because we're not around to help them. We say, 'Yes, I can do it all.' And that's a good thing. But it's also a good thing to have someone else around to help us. Because if we're not careful, we'll end up doing too much and not being able to do what we need to do. And that's not a good thing. So, let's say no to Superwomen. Warner is antsy for season to begin

"It's just not over," Pat Burrell, said. "That's all I care about. I'm not going to let 30 minutes off the clock change anything." Burrell, a three-time All-Star and the team's leading hitter and slugging leader, is ready for the season to begin.

NFL turn to 'reality TV'

The NFL is trying to draw new fans by dipping into another promotional vein, one that succeeds with the television's craze du jour.

"It comes at a time when the NFL is trying to create the best television experience possible," said Mike Martz, the team's coach. "It's a way to get people interested in the game without having to watch every minute of it." Martz said he was ready for the concussion to happen.

Memory of cancer forever present for survivor Armstrong

Armstrong is angered by the fact that him and cancer survivor are nothing alike.

"I'm just happy that I got out of the game in a relatively short time," said Armstrong. "I'm not going to come back and take risks, but I'm going to try to get back to it in the future." Armstrong said he was going to try to take on more responsibility in his life.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's coach, Butch Davis, was on his way from Baltimore to Florida when he was released Thursday, five days before the start of training camp.

The Seminoles, who have had a bit of a rough summer, are still looking for a quarterback to lead the team.

Davis, 61, had a 55-23 record at Miami before being fired last season.

The Seminoles are now 1-1 against Florida State.

Former Hawkeye Mary Berdo realizes dream of meeting Michael Jordan as a counselor at his camp.

By Nate Thompson/The Daily Iowan

Former Iowa basketball player Mary Berdo stands with some of her collection of 23 pairs of Jordan basketball shoes. "Most of them I've never worn, so that makes them worth more," she said. "If I ever need to I could sell, but so far I've never had to, and I don't ever see me ever using them."

"When Jordan erupted onto the basketball scene in 1982, Berdo was just beginning to discover her love for the game. As her brothers finished the chores on her family's farm near Washington, Iowa, she would sneak out to the old hoop in the driveway," Berdo said. "I was walking in and saw his hand band, I didn't know what it was - pitch myself, laugh, or say," she said.

The camp is an opportunity for campers and counselors alike to spend four days with one of the best-known athletes on the planet.

But that was no more the straggle-free man than could get.

Merrill Lynch took control for good with a 13-run spread-off by a three-point-play from Gary Smith that put the score at 86-45.

Cardinals beat the Expos, 2-1, when McGwire hit two home runs to back the curtain.

"It's a bit of fun, there's nobody who wants to take the spotlight," he said. "So let's just do it on a team with myself."
