Little joy in Mudville after defeat

By Nick Narigon
The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeyes' loss to the Iowa State Cyclones was a blow to UI morale and a disappointing finish for some fans after the football team's first winning season in four years.

The Nov. 24 game was the Hawkeyes' fourth-consecutive loss to their in-state rival. The defeat came just days after a blaze destroyed the dome of the Old Capitol, a university and state symbol, causing approximately $2 million in damages.

"[The game's outcome] brings down the morale of the players, and it brings down the spirit of the fans," said UI freshman Jon Hoyt. Fans will remember only the 14-17 loss to ISU, even though Iowa completed its first winning season since 1997, he said.

"When they look back, they won't see it as a successful season," Hoyt said. "This was the only chance for redemption."

However, some student leaders remain optimistic in spite of both the fire and the defeat.

"It won't ruin the morale of the university," said UI Student Government President Nick Klenske. "We're ready to move on to the basketball season and take on Iowa State then. It takes more than four games to change Iowa's heart."

— Nick Klenske,
UISG president

Klenske said he was glad to have the rivalry played out as a culmination of the season. The game was rescheduled from Sept. 15 to Nov. 24 because of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

UI senior Nick Schaub said he was disappointed that the Hawks didn't reproduce the success they had had over Minnesota and Northwestern in the previous two games, but he was glad the game wasn't a blow-out.

"It will make it that much sweeter when we do beat them next year," he said. "Iowa will never be the Cyclone state. We have the tradition in Iowa City."

But the Hawk's 6-5 record this season could still spell success for the team's future. Fans' previous assumptions that the team would be invited to a bowl game are now shaken, but some remain steadfast that the loss will not overshadow the winning season.

"It's definitely a turn for the better, considering the last few years," Schaub said. "How can you not be enthusiastic?"

Memmer receives two consecutive life sentences

Moments before family members of the woman Jonathan Memmer murdered could address him in court, a judge allowed the convicted killer to leave the room.

"You coward bastard!" one of the victims' family members shouted at Memmer as he left during the Nov. 21 sentencing. Judge David Remley ordered calm in the courtroom before the victims read their statements.

Memmer was convicted Oct. 22 of bludgeoning to death Maria Lehner, 27, and Laura Watson-Dalton, 29. Their burned and mutilated bodies were found in a South Van Buren Street apartment on March 19, 1999, following a fire that Memmer allegedly set.

Memmer was given two mandatory life sentences. Remley ordered them to be served consecutively because of the brutal nature of the crimes.

Remley allowed the 26-year-old Marshalltown native to leave the courtroom because the victims' statements are used primarily to help judges determine sentences.

Michele Lehner, Maria Lehner's sister, told the judge about her memories of the woman she and family members jokingly used to call "Bubba." She and her sister used to dress their pets in children's clothes; as adults, they would talk on the telephone while they watched the same television show, Michele Lehner said.

In his court testimony, Memmer admitted to burglarizing the apartment; he maintains that he did not commit the murders.

Three arrested on meth charges

Iowa City police arrested three people last week for allegedly operating a methamphetamine lab.

Officers from the Special Crimes Action Team allegedly discovered a meth lab at 505 S. Van Buren St. Apt. 10 at 1:30 a.m. on Nov. 21 while searching for a person missing from a substance-abuse treatment facility, police records said.

Casey Toomer, 19, of 740 Michael St. Apt. 5, Joseph Green, 21, of Washington, Iowa, and Shannon Swartzendruber, 19, of Riverside, Iowa, were arrested and charged with manufacturing methamphetamine, the records said.

Police allegedly saw paraphernalia associated with methamphetamine manufacture at the apartment and notified the Johnson County Multi-Agency Drug Task Force. The task force then obtained a warrant to search the apartment. The three suspects exited the building while officers were waiting to execute the search, police reports said.

Police evacuated the premises and sealed the apartment building. All three suspects are being held at the Johnson County Jail on $25,000 bond each.

The incident remains under investigation.

POLICE LOG

A woman was robbed by an unidentified man on the 1800 block of Boyrum Street at 2:15 p.m. on Nov. 23, according to police records. The suspect, described as a black man wearing a black coat, black pants, and white shoes, allegedly approached her from behind and stole a package she was carrying, the records said.

Police charged Theodore Newcomb, 18, with possession of methamphetamine and ephedrine as a precursor to methamphetamine at 11:45 a.m. on Nov. 22, at his 1921 Grantwood St. residence.

GOP pushes tax-stimulus package

By Scott Lindlaw
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With Congress returning this week, top Bush administration officials prodded the Democrat-controlled Senate on Sunday to act on an economic proposal and defended the president's emphasis on corporate tax cuts as a cure for the limping economy.

The Senate's top Democrat said he was troubled by the idea of corporate tax cuts when companies are laying off workers.

"They're letting people off in numbers that we've got to be concerned about," Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said on "Fox News Sunday." "I think it would be a tragedy if we left this session of Congress without helping the unemployed at all."

But White House economic adviser Larry Lindsey said, "We have to start creating paychecks instead of unemployment checks." He warned anew that President Bush will veto spending proposals he views as excessive.

"What we have to do is target tax relief to the sectors of the economy that need it most, that can use it most, put more money in consumers' pockets, and avoid this excessive spending binge that some people in the Senate seem to be on," Lindsey said.

The exchanges on the Sunday news programs, and gaping differences between Republicans and Democrats on how to revive the economy, preview a fierce struggle as Congress rushes to adjourn before the December holidays.

Bush and Democrats generally agree on the need to extend unemployment benefits, issue a new batch of tax rebate checks, and accelerate depreciation-tax write-offs for businesses. But Democrats have balked at the White House's call to accelerate the income-tax rate cuts approved earlier this year and repeal the corporate alternative-minimum tax.

The depreciation and corporate alternative-minimum tax measures would provide 300,000 new jobs, Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill said Sunday.

The alternative-minimum tax ensures that businesses taking many deductions and credits still pay some taxes. The administration believes that abolishing it and speeding up depreciation timetables would free up money for businesses, which could then hire more workers.

"What the president has recommended is really not about tax cuts for big corporations, it's about accelerating depreciation for businesses of all sizes," O'Neill said on CNN's "Late Edition." "Most businesses in the United States are small businesses. They would all have more cash to provide job security and job creation."

Company reports cloning of human embryo

By Jeff Donn
Associated Press

BOSTON — A research company reported Sunday it had cloned the first human embryo, a development it said was aimed at producing genetically matched replacement cells for patients with a wide range of diseases.

But the news from Advanced Cell Technology of Worcester, Mass., drew swift protests from religious and political leaders who saw it as a step toward cloning human beings.

Several states, including California, have banned human cloning, and Congress is considering such a ban. But company officials insisted their work is the first step in providing hope for people with spinal injuries, heart disease, and other ailments.

"These are exciting preliminary results," said Dr. Robert Lanza, one of the researchers at Advanced Cell Technology. "This work sets the stage for human therapeutic cloning as a potentially limitless source of immune-compatible cells for tissue engineering and transplantation medicine."

Lanza and the company's top executive, Michael West, said they had no interest in transplanting such early embryos into a woman's womb to give birth to a cloned human being, nor was it clear that their embryo would be capable of that.

But the Washington, D.C.-based National Right to Life

Committee wasted little time Sunday denouncing the announcement.

"This corporation is creating human embryos for the sole purpose of killing them and harvesting their cells," said the group's legislative director, Douglas Johnson. "Unless Congress acts quickly, this corporation and others will be opening human-embryo farms."

And a critic of the company who used to sit on Advanced Cells' ethics board said the company's announcement was premature and would serve only to encourage such harsh reaction against cloning.

Glenn McGee, a University of Pennsylvania bioethicist who resigned from Advanced Cell Technology's ethics advisory board, called the announcement "nothing but hype." He said the company's report lacks any significant details, including what cells company scientists actually grew from the cloned embryo. The paper doesn't say if Advanced Cell was able to derive any human embryonic stem cells from its cloning effort.

"They are doing science by press release," he said.

Gore's support for 2004 uncertain

By Will Lester
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The political team that helped Al Gore come within a few disputed ballots of the presidency cannot be counted on to help him again, a troubling omen for a former vice president contemplating another run for the White House in 2004.

Some supporters were angry or frustrated over the loss of a close election many think they should have won, say veteran Democrats. Several close advisers have long-standing ties to potential Democratic candidates other than Gore, and a few may not get involved in any campaign for personal reasons. Others lost favor with Gore, who unsuccessfully sought his party's nomination in 1988 and won it in 2000.

For whatever reasons, Gore may not have the help of some of the party's leading strategists in 2004 — a benefit he enjoyed as a sitting vice president. He still has the support of a core of loyalists.

"It's significant that many in the Gore team are not signed up with him," political analyst Stuart Rothenberg said. "It reflects some uncertainty about his future prospects."

While Gore cautiously

explores his options, his loyalists include close friend and adviser Peter Knight, veteran Democratic consultant Kiki McLean, Democratic strategists Carter Eskew and Mike Feldman, Reed Hundt, the former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, Katie McGinty, the former head of the Council on Environmental Quality, and advisers Philip Dufours, Lisa Berg, and Janice Griffin.

Fundraiser Lon Johnson and consultant Brian Hardwick have been helping with Gore's Leadership '02 political-action committee, formed in early October. They said recently they are leaving at the end of the year to manage congressional campaigns, though Gore associates say they hope to lure them back after 2002.

Johnson will return home to Michigan to run the re-election campaign of Rep. John Dingell. Hardwick is going to Colorado to manage the campaign of Democrat Tom Strickland in his try for the U.S. Senate.

Some high-profile consultants on the fence:

- Michael Whouley, a senior adviser to the campaign with longtime ties to Gore and Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry, who is already organizing for a possible 2004 run. Whouley has moved back to Boston and probably will be courted heavily by both camps.

- Tad Devine and Bob Shrum, two top advertising consultants in the Gore campaign, have long-standing relationships with North Carolina Sen. John Edwards as well as Gore and many other veteran Democratic politicians. Many Democrats say their firm has a very close link to Edwards, but they indicate they have kept their options open.

- Donna Brazile, Gore's campaign manager, says she plans to remain uncommitted for now for the 2004 campaign. Brazile, a prominent black Democratic consultant, will be heavily courted for her get-out-the-vote abilities and strong connections in the black community.

- Ron Klain, a Washington attorney, was a top adviser in the Gore campaign and managed the legal operation in the Florida recount. Democrats say Klain also has ties with Sens. Joseph Biden of Delaware and Tom Daschle of South Dakota.

"There's a lot of maneuvering but not a lot of signing up," Democratic consultant James Carville said. "I'm sure there's a lot of people saying, 'Keep your powder dry; don't do anything until you talk to me.'"

It is too early for any of the 2000 campaign operatives to sign on formally with a candidate. Still, plenty of signals are sent — just in case.

Potential candidates such as Gore, Kerry, Edwards, House Democratic Leader Dick Gephardt, and Connecticut Sen. Joseph Lieberman are laying the groundwork in case they decide to run.

Gore's state campaign chairman in New York in 2000, Robert Zimmerman, said Washington insiders sometimes place too much importance on the movement of consultants and strategists. Primaries, he said, are won by "the activists, the organizers, and the network of contributors around the country who feel a very personal commitment."

Gore's former campaign chairman, investment banker William Daley, is moving to a top post at a regional telephone company, but he says he would be supportive of future Gore efforts. Elaine Kamarck, a senior policy adviser who teaches at Harvard's Kennedy School of Government, also plans to stick with Gore.

Holiday sales meet low expectations

By Anne D'Innocenzo
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Lured by big discounts and fears that must-have holiday items will be in short supply, consumers crowded malls and shopping centers over the Thanksgiving weekend, snapping up video games, DVDs, and anything to do with Harry Potter.

However, the weekend's receipts won't be the bonanza some merchants hoped for.

Early-bird specials and other bargains from big chains such as Wal-Mart Stores Inc. attracted consumers who were already frugal before the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks prompted them to further curtail their spending. The come-ons worked, giving the value-priced retailers satisfactory sales.

But other merchants, particularly department stores and specialty stores that have been languishing for months, barely met their modest expectations for the weekend, the start of the holiday buying rush.

"Retailers pushed real hard. Traffic was strong, but sales were less strong," said Jeffrey Feiner, the managing director of Lehman Brothers Inc., who estimated sales at the 22 retailers he follows were at best unchanged from last year's Thanksgiving weekend.

In fact, Feiner said his holiday forecast of a 2 percent gain in sales of stores open at least a year might be too optimistic.

"Most stores entered the shopping period with low expectations, and many met those expectations this weekend," said Kurt Barnard, the president of Barnard's Retail Trend Report. "But deep down, they were hoping to get better than what they got. There was a lot of window shopping."

Barnard and others said sales were solid Nov. 23, but they cited a sharper-than-expected drop-off in sales on Nov. 24 and Sunday.

Meanwhile, TeleCheck Services Inc., a check-approval service, reported that sales paid for by check at stores open at least a year rose 2.4 percent on Nov. 23 from last year. Checks account for about a third of retail spending and remain second to cash as the most popular method of payment. The increase was in line with its forecast for a 2 percent gain.

The Thanksgiving weekend isn't necessarily a good indicator of how retailers will perform for the entire season. In the past few years, the weekend accounted for less than 10 percent of sales, according to the International Council of Shopping Centers.

Students allegedly planned school shooting

Associated Press

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — Police used bomb-sniffing dogs on Sunday to search a high school where three teenagers allegedly planned to use explosives and guns to kill fellow students.

The all-day search of the sprawling 3,300-student New Bedford High School by 38 police officers and five bomb-sniffing dogs yielded no new evidence of the alleged plot, said police Lt. Richard Spirlet.

"We didn't think we were going to find anything," Spirlet said.

"But we want to put the public at ease."

Police, school officials, and faculty members gathered Sunday morning at the school to discuss the events and to confirm that the school would open today.

Eric McKeehan, 17, and two juveniles who allegedly modeled themselves after the two students who carried out the Columbine High School massacre in Colorado were scheduled for arraignment today on charges that include conspiracy to murder.

The students were arrested at their homes early Nov. 24 after a school janitor found a letter outlining their alleged plans to detonate explosives in the school and then shoot fleeing students.

Police said the suspects planned to kill themselves when police arrived.

A search of the students' homes yielded bomb-making instructions, knives, shotgun shells, and pictures of the suspects holding what appeared to be handguns.

Two other students, described by police as part of the core of conspirators, were not in custody Sunday, but police had been in contact with them.

"The other two — they're known to us," Spirlet said. "They're not a threat."

He said he did not believe the two would attend school today.

Spirlet would not comment on whether police were seeking other conspirators, but he indicated that the group of suspects was small. "We're not looking at 20, 30 people," he said.

The three arrested students face charges of conspiracy to commit murder, conspiracy to commit assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, and possession of ammunition.

worried about the number of positions available, he said.

"Right now, we are just keeping an eye on things," he said, adding that the next step would be to file formal grievances, which could happen soon.

Teaching assistants in the theater department said they are concerned that budget cuts would force their employers to alter their positions, leaving them without benefits.

Graduate assistants are required to work at least 10 hours a week in order to qualify for in-state tuition, the UT's payment of 90 percent of health insurance, and COGS representation of grievances. If the theater department cuts hours, those assistants will lose benefits, Marchman said.

Alan MacVey, the chairman of the theater department, said he has heard no "solid" information from the Division of Performing Arts regarding budget cuts. MacVey said he will meet with graduate assistants this week from the department to tell them what little information he has.

Members of COGS are waiting to see which courses are cut and class sizes increased for the spring semester to plan for later action preventing job cuts next fall, Marchman said.

'Tis the busy season for chimney sweeps

CHIMNEY SWEEPS

"People sometimes wonder if I'm going to wear the big hat," Bennett said. "Which I don't. It's rare, but every once in a while you get a crack like that."

Instead, he prevents fires in part by pushing tubing connected to a red barrel-shaped vacuum a few feet into the chimney.

The machine whirs loudly as it sucks up most of the soot loosened by Bennett's brush.

Most jobs take less than an hour, and Bennett said he makes up to 15 house calls per week. The duties take him anywhere from a sorority house to a daycare center.

When chimney sweep Bill Crow cleaned a daycare center's chimney, the children prepped for his visit by watching the Walt Disney film Mary Poppins, starring Van Dyke as a dancing sweep.

"I've never seen so many disappointed kids," Crow said. "I didn't look like Bert. I don't sing, and I don't dance."

Crow, owner of Crow's Chimney Sweeps, 2920 Prairie du Chien Road, started his business in 1978 during his 20-year stint with the Iowa City Fire Department.

These days, the retired firefighter said he is so far behind that he can only book customers for January.

"Usually when the first cold spell hits, our phone will ring off the hook," he said. "People are surprised and disappointed. I feel bad too, because ... they want to use it for the holidays. But I can't say it's safe without examining it."

Crow said he makes up to eight calls a day and inspects every chimney from the roof so he can be certain it's connected properly.

Chimneys that aren't securely connected to the roof can rain ash into a home's attic, Crow said. Points of contact between the metal pipes in modern chimneys and the wooden frame of houses can lead to fires.

Iowa City homes sometimes take Crow to new heights. Fraternity and sorority houses have chimneys up to 70 feet tall from basement to roof. Such jobs require special skills and the ability to pay attention to detail, Crow said.

"You can't be afraid of heights," he said. "It takes some physical agility and the ability to be very conscientious."

Dancing is optional.

First Ave. extension remains closed

FIRST AVENUE

North Dodge Street resident Kenneth Wessels said that even though he opposed the extension, he will likely use the road. He said he hopes it will reduce the amount of traffic on Dodge Street.

"I can see where it's a strange sort of embargo, and I can see where people will be disturbed by it because it's putting off the inevitable," he said.

Once sidewalks bordering the extension are completed, the city will open them to pedestrians and bicyclists, said City Manager Steve Atkins in a recent memo to the City Council. After the extension is opened to drivers, the council will work toward placing an embargo on large trucks using the road, Atkins wrote.

Stronghold falls; U.S. Marines pour in

Abdul Jabbar, an anti-Taliban Afghan tribal official in Pakistan, said his colleagues in Kandahar confirmed that U.S. troops were on the ground there.

The Marines, numbering in the "low hundreds," were to be followed by several hundred more from Navy ships in the Arabian Sea, the U.S. official said in Washington, on the condition of anonymity. The Marines landed by helicopter southwest of Kandahar, the official said.

The fall of Kunduz, which came two days before talks were to begin in Germany on forming a broad-based government, leaves the Islamic militia with only a small share of Afghanistan still under its control, mostly around Kandahar.

Thousands of Taliban troops as well as Arab, Chechen, Pakistani, and other foreign fighters linked to Osama bin Laden had been holed up in Kunduz, which the alliance said fell almost without a fight.

Pro-Taliban fighters including foreigners fled Sunday toward the town of Chardara, to the west, with alliance troops in pursuit, the alliance's acting foreign minister, Abdullah, said by satellite telephone from the north of Afghanistan.

While some chose to make a run for it, thousands of others surrendered by the thousands as Northern Alliance troops moved in. Under a pact negotiated earlier between the alliance and the Taliban, Afghan Taliban fighters were guaranteed safe passage out of the city, but the foreigners were to be arrested pending investigation into possible ties to bin Laden.

International organizations had voiced worry over the prospect of atrocities involving captured fighters. Earlier this month, the United Nations reported the apparent reprisal killings of at least 100 captured Taliban fighters in Mazar-e-Sharif.

Pakistan had appealed without success for some guarantee of protection for any of its nationals captured when Kunduz fell.

The United States had strongly opposed any deal that would have allowed the foreigners to leave Afghanistan. As a surrender accord for Kunduz was being brokered last week, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld said he hoped the foreign fighters would be killed or captured, not allowed to go free.

The head of the Northern Alliance, former president Burhanuddin Rabbani, said earlier Sunday there would be no slaughter of foreign troops.

"We will discuss their fate as far as international law is concerned ... They should have no concern for their safety," he told journalists in Kabul.

The capture of Kunduz was reported hours after alliance troops gained a small foothold inside the besieged city, then overran a town on its eastern flank.

Near the town of Khanabad, approximately 10 miles east of Kunduz, alliance troops spread across ridgetops held by the Taliban a day earlier and fanned out across fields to check mud buildings for enemy fighters. Later, the alliance announced the fall of the city itself.

Hundreds killed in Afghan prison uprising

By Burt Herman
Associated Press

MAZAR-E-SHARIF, Afghanistan — Hundreds of Osama bin Laden's foreign legion were killed after staging an uprising with smuggled arms in a Northern Alliance prison Sunday, officials said. U.S. air strikes helped quash the daylong insurrection.

A U.S. special-forces soldier inside the fortress was taped by a German television crew saying an American may have been killed, but the Pentagon said later that all U.S. forces in Afghanistan had been accounted for and that no one had died.

The U.S. Central Command, which oversees the war in Afghanistan, declined to say whether U.S. forces were inside the Qalai Janghi fortress when the fighting began.

The fighters, approximately 300 Chechens, Pakistanis, and Arabs who surrendered on Nov. 24 from the besieged city of Kunduz, had smuggled weapons under their tunics into the fortress and tried to fight their way out, Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Dan Stoneking said.

The alliance said most of the prisoners were killed.

The uprising began about 11 a.m., witnesses said. Alliance spokesman Zaher Wahadat said the prisoners seized other weapons from their guards and captured an ammunition depot, using its contents to fight the troops sent in to put down the revolt.

Yahsaw, a spokesman for Northern Alliance commander Mohammed Mohaqik, said the prisoners broke down the doors and tried to escape.

As outnumbered guards perched on the compound's walls fired wildly down at the prisoners, a U.S. special-forces soldier could be seen in footage by a German television crew using a telephone to call in air strikes and reinforcements.

"There's hundreds dead here at least," the man, who identified himself only as David, can be heard saying on Germany's ARD television network.

"I don't know how many Americans there were. I think one was killed, but I'm not sure," the U.S. soldier said in the footage. "There were two of us at least, me and some other guy."

The Taliban soldiers appeared to have planned the battle, Central Command spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Dave Culler said, describing it as an apparent "suicide mission."

For several hours, the firefight continued between the hundreds of prisoners and what ARD said were only 100 guards.

"There was general pandemonium," said Simon Brooks, the head of Red Cross operations for northern Afghanistan, who was at the prison to check on the detainees' condition. He escaped by climbing onto the roof with Northern Alliance commanders.

Gen. Rashid Dostum, who controls the compound but was overseeing the surrender at Kunduz when the uprising began, returned several hours later with tanks and machine guns. Stoneking said 500 troops accompanied him.

The air strikes began about the same time, witnesses said. American warplanes streaked overhead, dropping bombs onto the southern part of the compound, where the prisoners were.

Some fighters limped away from the compound. Brooks said he met up with three seriously wounded fighters making their way toward Mazar-e-Sharif after the air strikes began and sent them to a hospital. It wasn't clear whether they were escaped prisoners or alliance fighters.

By 6 p.m., Wahadat said, the compound was under control, and most of the prisoners were dead.

"They were all killed, and very few were arrested," he said.

But Sunday night, explosions could still be heard in the area, and gunfire crackled on the streets of Mazar-e-Sharif, 10 miles to the east.

The prisoners had surrendered Nov. 24 outside the nearby city of Kunduz under a deal aimed at ending a two-week siege by the Northern Alliance. The alliance said it took Kunduz late Sunday.

A difficult week for all Hawkeyes

Thanksgiving break is supposed to be restful, a week of relaxation before buckling down for the semester's end.

For Hawkeyes across the state, last week was anything but.

From a fiery catastrophe to last-minute let-downs, just about everything that could go wrong in Hawkeye country did.

The biggest event, of course, was waking up the morning of Nov. 20 to the Old Capitol dome engulfed in flames. The sight of a symbol of all of Iowa burning out of existence shocked all, and even drove many to tears. While the cause of the inferno is still under investigation, a charred skeleton of scaffolding remains to remind us of what once was.

A day after the tragic loss of our state-wide symbol, Iowa basketball did little to help Hawkeye morale. After battling a strong Missouri Tigers basketball squad for 39 minutes, the Hawks folded (or were folded up by poor officiating and a strong press, some argue) in the last minute. They lost not only a heart-breaker, but also the Guardian's Classic Tournament championship, in the last second.

And then there was the state of Iowa's version of "The Game" in Ames on Nov. 24. With the chance of a 7-4 record and a bowl berth on the line (to say nothing of the opportunity to regain state bragging rights for the first time since 1997), the Iowa football team failed to play football for the first half. Then, after raising Hawkeye hopes in bars and living rooms across the state, they fumbled it all away, and Iowa State left the field victorious, once again.

But despite all this disappointment, the Hawkeyes do have something to be thankful for, even as finals approach. The Old Capitol fire was contained to the dome section, thanks to foresight in renovations 25 years ago. More importantly, no one was hurt. The basketball team will soon face Missouri in a rematch. And the football team, with a little help, will likely still go bowling.

A restful and relaxing Thanksgiving? Hardly. But there's always something more to be thankful for.

Letter to the Editor

Where's Ammerman?

I've done my best to bite my lip about the embarrassingly bad tripe served up as "The Ledge" five times a week. But one can remain silent only so long. In his Nov. 20 "effort," author Scott Morgan recommended that, on days when they are "so mad they could break things" (sadly, one of his least idiotic topics so far), readers should "Read a column on the Opinions page — laugh at how dumb people can be (except Beau, naturally)." This example of Morgan's gleeful ignorance of reality was the first funny thing to appear under his byline all year. Perhaps he should stop worrying about the Opinions page (which has been consistently well-written, however begrudgingly this former Opinions editor admits it) and start worrying about how he's going to top such witty offerings as "What to do when you're so mad you want to break things." Honestly, couldn't the DI have coughed up a couple of extra bucks and paid Jesse Ammerman to stick around? Or is this your fiendishly ingenious way of ensuring that he'll be forever missed?

A tale of true thanksgiving

Every year, it was the same. Her parents had Thanksgiving at their home in a small, sleepy Iowa town. The rest of the family — aunts, uncles, cousins, and grandparents — came for dinner, bearing food and their own little burdens. The relatives came complaining. They ate, they complained some more, someone always started a fight, and someone always left angry. It happened that way every year. She thought, with all of the terrible things that had happened recently, leaving so many people visibly less fortunate than her family, that this year might be different. She thought her family members might somehow find it within themselves to be truly thankful for their own blessings this Thanksgiving. But she was wrong. This year was exactly the same as last year and the year before, and most likely, every year in the foreseeable future.

Amanda Mittlestadt

in from that far-away country would have made them all a little more thankful for the peace in which they conducted their daily lives. But it didn't. While there were people losing their homes as bombs fell from the sky overseas, her relatives grumbled about trivial home-maintenance projects such as a leaky faucet or a broken stair. She had hoped that the recent threat of widespread biological terrorism would have made her family members more grateful for their comparatively good health. Instead, her cousin sought sympathy for a sore throat, and her grandparents complained of the aches and pains of old age. Never did they give thanks for the wisdom of their maturity or for being alive to know their children's children. The girl, however, realized all for which she had to be thankful. She would not make the mistakes her relatives made in overlooking the things most important to her. She was thankful for her parents' home in the small Iowa town. It was the home in which she had grown, known unconditional love, and developed her passion for life. Her parents had never once pushed her to do anything she didn't want to do, but had allowed her to uncover her own aspirations. For this, she was grateful. She was thankful for her younger sister, in whom she now found an enduring friendship. She was indebted to her friends — especially that one true friend — whose doors had always been open, whose ears had always been willing to listen, and whose strength and wisdom were always there when hers were lacking. She was grateful for a peaceful end to a two-year relationship that was headed nowhere. She realized that sometimes such relationships run their course, and that more often than not, we are the better for having had them. Finally, she was thankful for the excitement that new love brings — for the pleasure in a soft kiss and the safety of a warm embrace. She loved the anticipation of hearing his footsteps on her stairs and the way it felt to laugh again. For him, she was thankful, because he was unexpected and wonderful, and because he reminded her that life is always a taking and giving, a losing and finding, a being and becoming. And at every end, there is an exciting, new beginning.

Rick (Jason London) and his friend Jenny (A.J. Cook) get ready to snowboard in the new movie Out Cold.

Technique? Style? Who needs 'em? Certainly not Out Cold, a wonderfully unpretentious snowboarder flick whose characters take jabs at "classic cinema" as well as the resort developers infringing on their lovely, lackadaisical lifestyles.

Believe it or not, Out Cold has more guts than you'd expect. Sure, the movie's an excuse to film drunken stunts, sexy ski bunnies, and plenty of downhill showing off by real-life snowboarder stunt doubles. And yes, as the media have already pointed out, the plot just mashes together Animal House and Caddyshack.

OK, so what?

Out Cold isn't shy about ripping off other movies. Like a mischievous teenager, Out Cold is as smart-ass as it can be, lifting its romantic sub-plot from none other than the Humphrey Bogart/Ingrid Bergman classic, Casablanca.

Rick Ram-bis (Jason London), an employee at Alaska's Bull Mountain ski lodge, spends his days snowboarding and his nights drinking away memories of Anna (Caroline Dhavernas), the enchanting French girl who loved him and abruptly left him last Spring Break. When Anna shows up in Bull Mountain with her father, resort developer John Majors (Lee Majors), Rick tries to regain his lost love and stop Bull Mountain from becoming a yuppie haven.

Out Cold even helps itself to dialogue from Casablanca, which London delivers in mock-dramatic fashion. After Anna's arrival, Rick moans "Of all the bars in all the ski towns in Alaska, she had to walk into this one." Later, after Casablanca's Paris flash-back sequence is turned into a tacky Spring Break montage, Rick tells Anna, "We'll always have Carlos O'Hornys."

Granted, the characters are basically trash. Rick surrounds himself with the drinker, Luke (Zach Galifianakis), the stoner, Pig Pen (Derek Hamilton), and the token black guy, Anthony (Flex Alexander). There's even Jenny (A.J. Cook), Rick's long-time friend who's just waiting for Rick to realize her romantic potential.

What's more, if you've seen Animal House, Caddyshack, or even Casablanca, you're certainly not wondering how the movie's going to end.

But does any of that really matter? Out Cold isn't shooting for originality. In fact, it celebrates the familiar. The best moments in the movie come when Rick and the rest of the Bull Mountain locals gather at the El Matador pub to assure themselves that life is as it has always been.

Complaining about a movie as hackish and mindless as Out Cold won't make it a better movie, but embracing mediocrity can at least be a damn good time. Don't worry if snowboarders appear for no apparent reason. Don't worry if Anna is French, her sister is Swiss, and her father is American. Just raise a beer to Out Cold and try not to think.

ARTS BRIEF

School not enchanted by Potter's wizardry

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — He's cast a spell on millions around the globe, but boy wizard Harry Potter has failed to enchant a Christian school in southern Australia, which has banned the popular novels.

The Seventh Day Adventist primary school in the Melbourne suburb of Nunawading has stopped students from bringing the stories by British author J.K. Rowling to class, saying they promote witchcraft and the supernatural.

"Some people say they are fantasy works, but they open a door to the spirit world," school Principal Jean Mack said Nov. 23.

Mack said she also disapproved of the Harry Potter novels because they cast adults in a bad light.

"I am concerned that [in the books] adults are held up to ridicule and children have power over them. I don't like that," she said.

The novels would not be stocked in the school library, and parents, children, and teachers decided at a meeting that the Potter novels would not be allowed in the school, she said.

Last year, the series appeared on the list of the 100 books that parents most wanted removed from library shelves in the United States.

Iowa seniors in disbelief as fourth-straight victory goes to the Cyclones

By Melinda [Name obscured]

AMES — Last night, the Hawkeyes were disgusted.

By the time the game was over, the way to the Jack H. Hamilton exit following Iowa's 14 victory on Nov. 20, thousands of Cyclone fans gathered in the zone. They were dancing around the field, riding it like a roller coaster, and using expletives toward the football team.

"I was pretty disappointed," said senior [Name obscured] after the game we should have won and we didn't."

Four-straight losses to the school stinks, but the Hawkeyes have been in the hands of in-state opponents as Betts almost always has.

Iowa has 19 straight losses have spent their time at Iowa. None of them have beaten the Cyclones, an unfathomable fact for many fans.

"It's almost unbelievable," said senior [Name obscured]. "Not to them. They're the best football team, but with the best football team, they should win. Obviously weren't playing football."

Instead, the Hawkeyes' offense was held to a maul in the first half. They were unable to sustain a drive against a swarming defense determined to stop consistent pressure. Quarterback Kyle McCaffrey was intercepted by Kyle McCaffrey.

On defense, the Hawkeyes' teams, miscommunication, and indecisiveness were a team in itself. The season cost them half points. Iowa's touchdown was Seneca Wallace's interception to receiver Campbell. The Cyclones' offense was held to a maul in the first half.

IOWA STATE 17, IOWA 14

Total letdown

Iowa seniors in disbelief after their fourth-straight loss to the Cyclones

By Melinda Mawdsley
 The Daily Iowan

AMES — Ladell Betts was disgusted.

By the time he worked his way to the Jack Trice Stadium exit following Iowa State's 17-14 victory on Nov. 24, thousands of Cyclones fans had gathered in the north end zone. They were either slam dancing around the goalpost or riding it like a horse, directing expletives toward his Iowa football team.

"I was pretty mad," he said. "I definitely felt like it was a ball game we should have won, and we didn't."

Four-straight defeats to any school stinks, but the drought the Hawkeyes have suffered at the hands of in-state rival Iowa State renders a veteran such as Betts almost speechless.

Iowa has 19 seniors. Sixteen have spent their entire careers at Iowa. None of them have beaten the Cyclones, and that's unfathomable for a Hawkeye.

"It's almost like you can't believe it," Kahlil Hill said. "Not to them. They are a good team, but with us playing our best football, there's no way they should win. But we obviously weren't playing our best football."

Instead, the Hawkeyes' normally efficient and balanced offense was held scoreless in the first half on Nov. 24, unable to sustain drives against a swarming Cyclone defense determined to apply consistent pressure on quarterback Kyle McCann.

On defense and special teams, miscommunication and indecisiveness uncharacteristic of a team in its 11th game of the season cost Iowa 14 first-half points. Iowa State's first touchdown was set up by Seneca Wallace's 39-yard completion to receiver Craig Campbell. The Cyclones' sec-

Bowl plans unclear for 6-5 Hawkeyes

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

AMES — UI Athletics Director Bob Bowsby is constantly trying to sell people on Iowa athletics. Be they donors, administrators, or coaches, his job is to present the school's program in the best light possible. Now Bowsby must sell the Hawkeyes to another group: bowl representatives.

"We'll be aggressive, trying to present our best case," Bowsby said following Iowa's 17-14 loss to Iowa State on Nov. 24.

Despite the loss to the Cyclones, Iowa finished the season 6-5 and became bowl-eligible for the first time since 1997. A bowl trip would be the best sign of progress yet for coach Kirk Ferentz and his staff since taking over the program in 1999. However, Ferentz declined to discuss his team's bowl chances after the loss.

There are a lot of bowl-eligible teams this year, many more than in the past. It gets pretty crowded down at the bottom.

— Bob Bowsby,
 on Iowa's bowl chances

"I really don't know much more than I did last week," Ferentz said.

Neither do many others, for that matter. Several Web sites have predicted Iowa will play in bowls ranging from the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas, to the Humanitarian Bowl in Boise, Idaho. Bowl bids are determined

Hawks lose to Drake in OT

By Roseanna Smith
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's basketball team wanted to prove it could beat coach Lisa Bluder's former Drake squad. Unfortunately, it wasn't quite that easy.

After a scrappy two halves, with 12.3 seconds remaining and the Hawkeyes down by two, Jennie Lillis tied the score at 65 after a steal by Lindsey Meder. Hearts raced as Drake point guard Stephanie Schmitz missed a lay-up with seconds remaining, taking the game into overtime.

The Bulldogs used a combination of tough defense and crucial shots from All-American center Carla Bennett to overpower Iowa, walking away with a 75-72 victory.

"We feel like it's too bad somebody had to lose this game," Bluder said. "It was a great collegiate basketball game. We had the chance to win it and didn't execute."

In overtime, Bennett scored five points for the Bulldogs to maintain the Drake advantage. Jerica Watson drove around Bennett, who had four fouls, for a lay-up with 50 seconds remaining, to cut the Bulldog advantage, 73-72.

After a time out, point guard Kristi Faulkner missed a 3-pointer that would have gained the lead with 18.2 seconds left. Schmitz picked up the rebound for Drake, sealing the win with two points from the free-throw line with 1.8 seconds left.

Time ran out before the Hawkeyes could execute a final play, which Bluder said was supposed to be a skip pass to Meder down low.

Drake coach Lisa Stone said she was proud of her team for maintaining poise and staying tough.

"I'm proud of our kids for hanging in there," she said. "We had to make a huge defensive stand late and get a rebound we weren't getting too often."

Off the boards, the numbers stood in favor of the Hawkeyes,

Two season-ending losses befall Iowa

By Tyler Lechtenberg
The Daily Iowan

Penn State and Ohio State put a damper on the Iowa volleyball team's Thanksgiving holiday, handing the Hawkeyes a pair of weekend losses.

The No. 16 Nittany Lions swept the Hawkeyes on Nov. 23, 30-21, 30-28, 30-16, to improve to 21-7 overall, 14-6 in the Big Ten. On Nov. 24, a 12th-ranked Buckeye squad defeated the Hawkeyes, 3-1, ending Iowa's season at 6-23 overall, 3-17 in the Big Ten. Ohio State improved its record to 25-3 overall and 17-3 in the Big Ten, placing it second in the conference behind Wisconsin.

Meyermann

Hawkeye senior Sara Meyer, the Big Ten kills leader, paced the team in both contests with 23 and 19 kills in her final collegiate matches. Meyer ended her Iowa career seventh on the school's all-time kills list, with 1,368 in her four-year career.

Iowa coach Rita Buck-Crockett had nothing but praise for the humble and coachable Meyer.

"Sara's been an exceptional superstar," she said. "She didn't have to talk the game — she played the game, and that's why she's as good as she is."

Meyer's guts and determination led a late Iowa rally against Ohio State that Buck-Crockett said was indicative of the fight her youthful Hawkeye squad showed all season.

"We're working for next year," she said. "They never let down. The season was not the way we wanted it to go. Being young takes its toll, but it can be a positive. They put their heart in it because they were Being young takes its toll, but it can be a positive. They put their heart in it because they were playing for the future.

— Rita Buck-Crockett, Iowa head coach

Ohio State took the first two games, 30-22 and 30-26, creating a sense of urgency for the Hawkeyes after intermission. In a back-and-forth third game, Iowa trailed, 26-23, before it ripped off seven of the final eight points, winning the game, 30-27. Iowa collected 25 digs in game three.

Iowa showed the same grit and hustle in game four, but fell, 30-27, dropping the match, 3-1.

Sophomore Carolyn Giese racked up a career-high 16 kills to go with Meyer's team-leading 19 kills and 16 digs. Sophomore setter Renee Hill led the Hawkeyes with 32 assists and added 14 digs. Ohio State senior Anne Botica blitzed the Hawkeyes with 36 kills.

Meyer, who will try out for the U.S. National Team on Dec. 15, said playing in her final collegiate game made everything just a little bit more urgent.

"I had a lot of anxiety last night," she said. "I wish I played like that all the time — I felt like I would go after anything."

A little more nostalgic about Meyer's final hurrah in the black and gold was Hill, Meyer's setter of the last two years.

"I get to say when I'm 40 years old that I got to set for Sara Meyer while she was at Iowa," Hill said with pride.

Norman nabs $1 million in Skins Game

By Tim Dahlberg
Associated Press

INDIO, Calif. — Greg Norman had all the odds in his favor as he stood over a bunker shot next to the 18th green Sunday at the Skins Game. No one had won a dime yet, but Norman was about to earn a bundle.

The only question was how big that bundle would be.

Norman ended up making it a cool $1 million, making a routine par on the 18th hole and adding a birdie on the second extra hole to sweep all the money.

Norman's win in a new format made him the biggest winner in the 19-year history of the event. It also made losers out of Tiger Woods, Jesper Parnevik, and Colin Montgomerie, who all went home empty-handed.

"Any win is a great win, whether it's a Skins Game or a regular tournament," Norman said. "It's very satisfying to do it. Whenever you beat the caliber of players like that, it's good."

Norman, after making a birdie on the 17th hole to win all the previous skins, needed to only par the 18th to become the big winner. That was because a new rule forced a player to at least tie for low score on the next hole after winning a skin.

He did it with a conservative sand shot and two putts that allowed him to cash in 17 skins worth $800,000. Still at stake, though, was the $200,000 skin from the 18th hole, which Norman added for good measure on a 5-foot-er for birdie on the second playoff hole.

"I've never had to make a par for $800,000 in my life," Norman said. "It was hard trying to figure it out."

Norman set himself up for the big payoff when he made a 10-footer for birdie on the 17th hole that also snatched $630,000 from the pocket of Parnevik.

"Greg came and stole it from me on 17," Parnevik said. "That hurt a little bit."

Woods, meanwhile, didn't make a birdie on the back nine on a cool, breezy morning and was shut out. Woods was then eliminated from the playoff when he failed to make birdie on the first playoff hole.

"To walk away with no skins isn't exactly a good feeling," Woods said.

Woods had a fleeting chance to deny Norman his skins, but his 4-iron second shot on the 18th hole rode the wind all the way into the water short of the green.

"I'm disappointed I didn't give myself a chance on the last hole," Woods said.

Norman's birdie putt on the 17th hole not only set up his win, it also cost Parnevik $630,000 he seemed poised to win after making a birdie on the previous hole.

Parnevik chipped to two feet for what would have been a

Another Kostelic stars at World Cup

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Ivica Kostelic, brother of Croatian skiing great Janica Kostelic, stunned the competition with his first World Cup triumph Sunday in the season-opening men's slalom. Kostelic, whose career had been stalled by four serious knee injuries since 1998, had never finished better than 21st. He skied out of the 64th position in the first run, then was fastest in the second run to win in 1 minute, 38.81 seconds. This was the latest starting position for a slalom winner and second-latest in any event in World Cup history.

Giorgio Rocca of Italy was second in 1:38.93. Reigning world slalom champion Mario Matt of Austria finished third in 1:39.00.

The course, with fresh snow atop a soft man-made base, became more difficult as the afternoon wore on.

Still, Kostelic maneuvered down the Aspen Mountain course in 49.31 seconds on his second run to move from a tie for seventh after the first run into the lead.

He had moved into contention with a first-run time of 49.5 seconds despite starting near the end of the 75-man field. The 22-year-old Croatian trains with his sister, the reigning World Cup overall champion and 12-time World Cup winner who is recovering from a knee injury.

Starine wins Matriarch, gives Frankel 15th Grade I win this year

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Starine came from off the pace to beat Lethals Lady by 2½ lengths in the $500,000 Matriarch on Sunday, giving trainer-owner Bobby Frankel his 15th victory in a Grade I stakes this year.

Jockey John Velazquez guided Starine over 1½ miles on the turf in 1:50. The victory was Velazquez's fourth major stakes win of the weekend.

Velazquez swept three big races Nov. 24 at Aqueduct, then flew to Hollywood Park.

"I had to come out and ride this filly. She's been very good to me," he said. "She ran a great race. It was a little bit soft, but she handled it perfectly. She was very aggressive."

Frankel arrived about noon on a flight from Japan, where he saddled Timboroa to a last-place finish in the $2 million Japan Cup, and Lido Palace to an eighth-place finish in the Japan Cup Dirt.

"It's been two days since I slept," the unshaven Frankel said. "The victory was Frankel's 46th in a stakes this year, including 29 in turf races."

Reaching the 1,000-yard rushing mark is a milestone worthy of note. Doing it for two consecutive years is more than impressive. Yet Iowa's Ladell Betts did not dote on the subject following Iowa's gut-wrenching 17-14 loss to Iowa State.

With his sterling 150-yard performance against the Cyclones, Betts was the lone bright spot in a stuttering Iowa offense. His numbers in the Nov. 24 game also pushed him to a total of 1,056 yards on 220 carries. The accomplishment was of little consolation for the senior, who was never able to beat Iowa State.

"All those yards for nothing," he said. Betts also reached the 1,000-yard plateau in 2000, when he rushed for 1,090 yards on 232 attempts. During the 2001 campaign, Betts not only reached the mark in fewer attempts, he also did it in less time. Iowa played a 12-game schedule during the 2000 season.

While Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz was happy for Betts, he said he doubted whether reaching the mark was more important to Betts than a victory over Iowa State would have been. "I doubt he really cares a lot about that right now," Ferentz said.

More of the same

Iowa's loss to Iowa State was another in a line of disappointing close defeats this season.

The Hawkeyes finished the year 6-5, losing all five contests by a meager 27 points combined. Iowa's worst defeat of the year came at the hands of Purdue by just nine points, 23-14. Iowa's other losses were by six to Wisconsin and Michigan and by three to Michigan State and the Cyclones.

First-half failure

When the Iowa Hawkeyes headed for the locker room at Jack Trice Stadium trailing, 14-0, they found themselves in unfamiliar territory. It marked the first time this season the Hawkeyes had failed to score in the game's first half. Iowa's previous low had been seven points against the Boilermakers.

The Hawkeyes had entered the game outscoring their opponents by a margin of 207-111 in first-half play.

consecutive game in an Iowa uniform Nov. 24 but failed to enter the record books as Iowa's all-time leading receiver.

Hill finished the season with 53 catches for 792 yards, giving him a career total of 146 receptions for 1,843 yards. His 146 receptions tie him for second on the all-time list with Ronnie Harmon and Danan Hughes, but leave him 11 snafes shy of Kevin Kasper's 157 receptions.

Hill's career numbers are made even more impressive, given that he was suspended for the entire 1999-00 season.

Hawks help set record

The presence of the Iowa Hawkeyes in Ames helped push Jack Trice Stadium to a all-time high for single-game attendance.

A record crowd of 51,042 was the single largest crowd under the stadium's current configuration. The previous record of 50,402 was set against — surprise — Iowa in 1999.

Special teams and untimely mistakes caused Iowa's post season possibilities to be tarnished on Nov. 24 with its loss to Iowa State. The Hawkeyes finish the season 6-5 overall, 4-4 in the Big Ten. Bowl bids will be announced in the upcoming weeks.

I think we all felt we should have won this game and walking off the field, me being a senior, I've lost to them four times. I can't even tell you how much that hurts.

Up next

Iowa now has to wait and see if it is chosen for a bowl game. Although the Hawkeyes are bowl-eligible with a 6-5 record, they are not ensured an invitation. With a couple of Big Ten teams still in action this week, the Hawkeyes will probably not find out about a bid until after this week-end's games conclude.

Miami-Florida seem Rose Bowl bound

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

All the national championship controversy is behind No. 1 Miami — for a change.

A win over No. 14 Virginia Tech on Saturday means the Hurricanes (10-0) clinch a spot in the Rose Bowl with a chance for a fifth national title.

The opponent may be argued about forever thanks to a pair of mind-boggling results that knocked Nebraska, then Oklahoma out of contention.

For now, though, it looks as if No. 2 Florida (9-1) possesses the strongest résumé to out-point a handful of other one-loss teams in the BCS standings and end up in Pasadena.

How does Miami vs. Florida for the national title sound?

"That's what the people want to see," running back Clinton Portis said after Miami's 65-7 win over No. 19 Washington on Nov. 24. "They see that Florida puts up a lot of points, and they see that we put a lot of points. People want a shootout."

"But we've got to get there. Florida's got to get there. We've got to take care of business."

Miami fans don't need reminding how tough that can be. Last season, the one-loss Hurricanes were left out of the national title game in favor of one-loss Florida State. The Seminoles' lone loss? Miami.

Fans of the HuskerNation, then the SoonerNation got a dose of title turmoil over the weekend.

• Needing a win over Colorado to move into Saturday's Big 12 Conference title game, Nebraska (11-1) was clobbered 62-36, Nov. 23 and fell out of the title chase.

• Needing a win over lowly Oklahoma State to move into the Big 12 title game against Colorado, Oklahoma (10-2) was stunned, 16-13, and lost a chance to repeat as national champion.

Enter Florida. And Tennessee (9-1), Texas (10-1), and Oregon (9-1).

Afterthoughts before the weekend, the Gators, Vols, Longhorns, and Ducks are back in the race. And it's so close it might come down to a hundredth of a point in the final Bowl Championship Series computer tabulations to separate who plays for the title and who doesn't. We'll find out on Dec. 9.

"I guess everyone anticipates what could happen," Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops said, "but that's why you play the game — give players a chance to make plays and see who can do it."

In today's BCS standings, expect Miami to be first, with Florida second. After that, it's too close to call.

The pack is so tightly bunched it's likely that four major-conference champions could finish with one loss and not play for the title — Maryland (10-1) of the ACC, Illinois (10-1) of the Big Ten, Texas of the Big 12, and Oregon of the Pac-10.

Nonetheless, here's what it will take for the top contenders to reach the Rose Bowl (odds in parentheses):

- Miami (1-1). Beat the Hokies in Blacksburg.
- Florida (3-1). Beat the Vols at home, then beat Saturday's Auburn-LSU winner in the SEC title game Dec. 8.

• Tennessee (6-1). Beat the Gators in The Swamp for the first time since 1971 (0-7 since), then win the SEC title game and hope for a friendly BCS computer bounce.

• Texas (10-1). Beat Colorado in the Big 12 title game, then hope for Miami or Florida — or both — to lose. Then, hope for a friendly BCS computer.

• Oregon (15-1). Beat Oregon State on Saturday, then hope two teams from the Miami-Tennessee-Florida pool lose.

Serious shake-up in AP poll

By Richard Rosenblatt
Associated Press

Losses for Nebraska and Oklahoma turned into big gains for Florida, Texas, Oregon, and Tennessee in the AP media poll.

While Miami (10-0) was a near-unanimous choice at No. 1 in the Associated Press Top 25 on Sunday, Florida moved up to No. 2, Texas to No. 3, Oregon to No. 4, and Tennessee to No. 5.

Nebraska (11-1), beaten by Colorado 62-36 on Nov. 23, fell four spots to No. 6, while Oklahoma tumbled seven places to No. 11 after its 16-13 loss to Oklahoma State on Nov. 24.

The Hurricanes, who close out the regular season on Saturday at Virginia Tech, collected 71 first-place votes and 1,799 points from the 72 sports writers and broadcasters on the AP panel. Miami defeated Washington, 65-7, on Nov. 24, dropping the Huskies (8-3) seven places to No. 19.

The Gators (9-1), off over the weekend, received the remaining first-place vote and 1,716 points. Florida plays host to Tennessee (9-1), with the winner advancing to the Southeastern Conference title game.

Texas (10-1) moved up two places following its 21-7 win over Texas A&M, and advanced to Saturday's Big 12 Conference title game against Colorado. The Buffaloes (9-2) improved five spots to No. 9 after their big win over the Huskies.

Oregon (9-1) did not play; it closes the regular season on Saturday against Oregon State. Tennessee defeated Vanderbilt, 38-0, on Nov. 24.

After Nebraska, Atlantic Coast Conference champion Maryland (10-1) was No. 7, followed by Big Ten champ Illinois (10-1), Colorado, and No. 10 BYU (11-0).

In the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, the top five were Miami, Florida, Texas, Tennessee, and Oregon.

The Hurricanes and Gators were expected to be first and second in the Bowl Championship Series standings today. Nebraska was first and Miami second last week, with Florida fourth behind Oklahoma.

The final BCS standings on Dec. 9 will determine which teams will play for a national title in the Rose Bowl on Jan. 3. The standings are based on a formula that incorporates the AP media and coaches' polls, eight computers, strength of schedule, won-lost record, and bonus points for big wins.

Oklahoma was No. 11 in the AP poll, followed by No. 12 Stanford, No. 13 Washington flourish that ended in an interception, the Hawkeyes appeared completely devoid of emotion.

An Iowa team that had worked so hard to regain Floyd of Rosedale the previous week looked as if it had nothing to play for on Nov. 24. For all the talk, swagger, and bravado that surrounded this game, how could what happened actually happen?

For one, Iowa's solid defense was schizophrenic. The Hawkeyes held the cocky Ennis Haywood to just 71 yards rushing and quarterback Seneca Wallace to 11 yards on the ground. However, they allowed the Cyclones and Wallace to dictate the game through the air.

As with the majority of Iowa's games this season, the defense rarely used the blitz, even though Wallace is the type of quarterback who needs to be pressured. While blitzing may open the door for a big play now and then, giving up chunks of yards at a time is just as deadly.

Wallace's stat line after the game was sickening. He completed 20 of 27 passes for 228 yards. How he did it was even more nauseating. All day, Wallace threw the ball into marshmallow-soft zone coverage to receivers who would not even be on Iowa's three-deep roster. At points, it appeared as if Iowa's linebackers and secondary were literally standing around and waiting for Iowa State to catch the ball.

On offense, the Hawkeyes mimicked their performance against Wisconsin, starting slow before attempting to claw back into the game.

With two quarterbacks to mix things up, the Iowa staff stuck to Kyle McCann despite the fact that the offense has looked its best when both he and Brad Banks take snaps. During Banks' few moments in the game, it was clear the Cyclone defense was at least forced to make adjustments. McCann allowed Iowa State to concentrate on other areas of the offense, rather than possibly opening things up for Iowa by blitzing.

Following the game, offensive coordinator Ken O'Keefe stood with his hat pushed back on his head sipping a Coke, looking eerily similar to a third-grader just given a simple long-division problem to solve at the chalkboard. O'Keefe or not, the Hawkeyes were out-coached. Iowa's play calling at times was as pitiful as the outcome of the game itself. Calling a timeout at the end of the first half to take a knee? Handing off to Jeremy Allen and having him run to the outside during Iowa's final possession?

From Ferentz to the players, no one could account for Iowa's play Nov. 24, or the number of questions and mistakes that left Iowa fans, much like O'Keefe, scratching their heads and wondering, "Why?"

The collective performance of Iowa's defense, offense, and coaching staff, was enough to make anyone clench his fists in anger. It's just hard to imagine how fans could show so much emotion and the players so little.

Hot Redskins win their fifth straight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Washington Redskins could go from worst to first — in the same season.

Ki-Jana Carter scored his first touchdown in two years, and Washington shut down Donovan McNabb in a 13-3 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday.

The Redskins are the first team in NFL history to win five straight games after starting the season 0-5.

Raiders 28, Giants 10

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Oakland's Rich Gannon threw two of his three touchdown passes to Tim Brown and set up another TD with a 20-yard pass to Jerry Rice.

The loss was the second-straight and fifth in seven games for the Giants (5-6).

Steelers 34, Titans 24

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Kordell Stewart threw for two touchdowns and ran 48 yards for another score as Pittsburgh won for the first time in five trips to Tennessee.

Stewart tossed touchdown passes of 4 yards to Plaxico Burress and 25 yards to Amos Zereoue. Stewart's TD run gave Pittsburgh its first lead — 17-14 in the third quarter.

49ers 40, Colts 21

INDIANAPOLIS — San Francisco scored 23 points off turnovers, Garrison Hearst ran for 106 yards and two touchdowns, and Jeff Garcia threw for two scores to lead the 49ers.

It was the third-consecutive loss for the Colts (4-6) — their fourth straight at home — and this one was of their own making.

Ravens 24, Jaguars 21

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — Elvis Grbac drove Baltimore 74 yards in the final 90 seconds, and Shannon Sharpe made a beautiful, foot-dragging catch in the back of the end zone for the winning points.

Sharpe criticized Grbac last week after the quarterback's five-turnover performance in a loss to the Cleveland Browns.

Dolphins 34, Bills 27

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Jay Fiedler threw three touchdown passes, including a 32-yarder to Chris Chambers with 48 seconds remaining, to lead Miami.

The Dolphins overcame a 27-17 deficit in the final eight minutes, helped in part when Patrick Surtain recovered Nate Clements' fumble on a kickoff return, setting up the winning score.

Patriots 34, Saints 17

FOXBORO, Mass. — Tom Brady threw four touchdown passes in New England's first game since coach Bill Belichick made him the starter for the rest of the season.

Antowain Smith ran 111 yards on 24 carries for New England, the third time in four games he's gained at least 100.

Cards 20, Chargers 17

SAN DIEGO — Rookie Bill Gramatica's 42-yard field goal with 1 second left helped Arizona overcome Doug Flutie's two touchdown passes in the fourth quarter.

Falcons 10, Panthers 7

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Atlanta stopped Carolina 6 inches from the goal line early in the game, then held the Panthers an inch short on a key fourth-down stop with under 2:00 to play.

Browns 18, Bengals 0

CLEVELAND — Phil Dawson kicked four field goals, and Cleveland got its first shutout since returning to the league.

The Browns (6-4) forced seven turnovers, five on interceptions, and got just enough offense to handle the Bengals (4-6).

Chiefs 19, Seahawks 7

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Trent Green, who came in with the most interceptions (16) and lowest quarterback rating (62.6) in the league, was 16-of-26 for 256 yards and did not get picked off.

Seattle (5-5), which had won two in a row, lost in Kansas City for the 10th time in 12 games. The Chiefs (3-7) won for just the first time in five outings in noisy Arrowhead Stadium, where they once felt nearly invincible.

Bears 13, Vikings 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Buddy Ryan and his "46" defense are long gone, but the Chicago Bears are back to their old ways: not budging when they don't have the ball.

Chicago's defense held the Minnesota Vikings' often-potent offense without a touchdown Sunday night in a 13-6 victory. It was the first time in 98 regular-season games the Vikings did not get into the end zone. The last time the Vikings went without a TD was last January — a 41-0 defeat to the New York Giants in the NFC championship.

Big third quarter not enough for comeback

IOWA-IOWA STATE

ond-quarter score was possible after Hill fumbled the football while trying to field a punt in 20-mph winds.

"It wasn't a good decision on my part," Hill said. "I thought it hit my foot, so I tried to get it."

ISU's Ellis Hobbs fell on the ball first. Four plays later, with 57 seconds left in the half, senior Ennis Haywood stormed across the goal line, earning six points for the Cyclones and a flag for excessive celebration.

But it appeared as if Iowa may have the last laugh at the outset of the third quarter. Following coach Kirk Ferentz's halftime address to the team, the defense forced Iowa State to punt on its first possession.

The Hawkeyes marched 86 yards in nine plays, capped off by Betts' 14-yard touchdown reception. Less than four minutes later, Betts, who rushed for 150 yards on the afternoon and more than 1,000 yards during the season, scored again on a 42-yard dash down the east sideline to even the score at 14.

Cyclone kicker Tony Yeik put his team back in the lead at the outset of the fourth quarter with a 32-yard field goal. On their next possession, the Hawkeyes forced the turnover they had been waiting for when sophomore linebacker Grant Steen intercepted ISU quarterback Seneca Wallace.

As Steen charged down the middle of the field, Campbell, the receiver Wallace intended to find, chopped the ball away from behind. Steen said both he and Haywood had a hand on the ball. The official awarded the football and all the momentum back to the Cyclones.

"I just didn't put it away," Steen said. "In my eyes, that was the play that put it away for them. I was pressing a little too hard to make a play after the pick. I should have just taken a knee when I saw guys around me."

Neither team scored again, and Adam Runk prevented an Iowa comeback when he intercepted a McCann pass with 2:04 left in the game. Forced to watch Haywood, who was held to 71 yards rushing, dance around on the field, frustration swept across the Hawkeyes' sideline.

As time ran out, the contents of the student section and the Cyclones' sideline spilled onto the field, as the victorious team lifted the Cy-Hawk trophy towards the overcast sky.

"As a guy from Iowa, the biggest pain you can ever feel is seeing the team you hate the most take something that is yours," Steen, a native of Emmetsburg, Iowa, said.

At 6-5, the Hawkeyes are uncertain of their bowl status. A win would have sent them to a Big Ten-affiliated bowl. Now they must wait.

"We'll keep our fingers crossed," Ferentz said.

Iowa not likely to get Big Ten contract bowl

BOWL HOPES

by how a team finishes in the standings and the number of teams with eligible records, Bowsby said, and this year those factors only serve to cloud the picture.

"There are a lot of bowl-eligible teams this year, many more than in past years," Bowsby said. "It gets pretty crowded down at the bottom."

The bottom is exactly where the Hawkeyes find themselves in terms of teams that are bowl-eligible. The Big Ten is guaranteed five bowl spots with the BCS series and other agreements. Illinois (BCS), Michigan (Citrus), and Ohio State (Outback) are most likely locks for three of those five. There could be as many as four other teams, including Iowa, vying for the final two guaranteed spots in the Alamo and Sun Bowls. Along with Iowa, Purdue is 4-4 in the conference and 6-5 overall, with one game against Notre Dame remaining. Michigan State and Penn State are each 5-5 and need wins next week with one game remaining. Penn State is tied with Iowa and Purdue in the Big Ten at 4-4. Michigan State is 3-5.

"It's going to be a struggle for us to access one of the contract bowls," Bowsby said.

If Iowa doesn't land a spot in a Big Ten contract bowl, it may wind up looking for an at-large bid to either the Humanitarian Bowl or the Silicon Valley Classic. Bowsby said with the number of eligible teams this season, even an at-large bid is not a sure thing for a school such as Iowa.

Another option may be landing a bid to a bowl and negotiating a trade with another school. That situation is rare, according to Bowsby, but can happen if both schools fit better elsewhere.

"We would have to find a win-win situation for that to be a factor," Bowsby said.

Iowa's players feel that at 6-5, the Hawkeyes deserve a bowl bid, no matter what the circumstances.

"I hope there's a bowl out there that realizes what this team has been through," defensive lineman Aaron Kampmann said.

Drake's defenders clamp down on Meder who pulled down 41 rebounds to Drake's 36. But the challenge for both teams remained down low, between Bennett's size and strength for the Bulldogs and speed from Iowa's Watson and Lillis.

"Trying to stop Carla Bennett is a huge problem that a lot of teams that face Drake this year are going to have," Bluder said. "We just don't have the height to battle with Bennett, so we tried to do some different things. It's too bad we couldn't draw that fifth foul on her."

Bennett played much of the second half with four fouls, and the Hawkeyes held her to two points until the last three minutes. She picked up a game-high 18 points and pulled down 10 rebounds for the Bulldogs.

Stone said her team faced a problem down low from Watson, who scored 16 points for the Hawkeyes, along with five assists and 11 rebounds, in her first start this season.

"We had a lot of difficulty with Jerica Watson," Stone said. "She's still up in the sky. She can jump out of the gym."

Drake kept close tabs on all of Iowa's outside shooters. Meder, who led the team earlier in the week and was named the Great Alaska Shootout's Most Outstanding Player, scored only three points. Leah Magner and Faulkner scored just three and seven points, respectively.

"They shadowed her [Meder] all over," Bluder said. "Lindsey didn't have an open look all night, and that's to Drake's credit."

The lead bounced back and forth in both regulation and overtime, with Drake's greatest advantage four points in the first half; Iowa's was five in the second.

Midway through the second half, Mandy Kappel sank a 3-pointer for the Bulldogs, playing in her first game since having a benign tumor removed from her brain last year. A 3-pointer from Erin Richards was also key to the Bulldogs overtime success, but she said she never worried.

"I think there is so much confidence in our team, we never really doubted it, no matter how small our lead."

Full-court pressure proved successful in the second half for Drake, and while Bluder said the Hawkeyes handled it well, the press forced turnovers when her team tried to rush the offense. Iowa committed 21 turnovers in the game, 11 in the second half.

The Hawkeyes move to 2-1 overall with the loss; they will face Southwest Missouri State on Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"I think we will really prove we can bounce back from this kind of loss," Magner said. "It's going to be a hard loss, but if we focus and execute, we'll be OK."

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Iowa's weekend far from a Kansas City masterpiece

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Steve Alford and the Iowa Hawkeyes were very thankful to escape the Guardians Classic with only one loss last week. That doesn't mean Alford and the No. 9 Hawkeyes are pleased with their pre-Thanksgiving trip to Kansas City.

Iowa defeated No. 11 Memphis, 75-71, on Nov. 20 to advance to the championship of the Guardians Classic, where the Hawks fell to No. 5 Missouri, 78-77, the next evening in a tightly contested battle.

"When you do all the right things, it doesn't mean you're always going to come out on top," Alford said following Iowa's one-point loss to Missouri.

With the Hawkeyes leading, 77-71, with 42 seconds remaining, Missouri's Kareem Rush hit a 3-point basket. On the ensuing inbound play, Iowa's Luke Recker lost the ball in a tangle of Missouri players, which led to a jump ball. It would be one of several key calls by officials down the stretch.

After losing the tip, Missouri's Rickey Paulding nailed a 3-point basket with 23 seconds left to knot the game at 77. Glen Worley missed a lay-up on a drive to the basket on Iowa's final possession, then fouled Missouri's Clarence Gilbert on an off-balance jumper at the other end of the court as time expired. Alford successfully argued that time should be added to the clock, but he got just 0.8 seconds added before calling two successive time outs in an attempt to rattle Gilbert.

Gilbert missed his first attempt but was successful on the next one to provide the winning margin. Iowa's Hail-Mary inbounds pass was tipped away to preserve Missouri's victory.

"We led this game from start to absolute finish," Alford said. "Through everything that's happened, this is going to make us a better team."

The Iowa coach was clearly displeased with the officiating in the final minutes of the game, especially on the jump-ball call and both Worley's shot and foul.

"All you've got to do is go back and look at the tape," he said.

The closing minutes of the game tarnished a strong effort by the 4-1 Hawkeyes. Iowa led, 34-30, at halftime, paced by Recker's 11 points. At one point in the second half, Iowa was 11 for 12 from the free-throw line and 6-8 from the floor in building a double-digit lead.

Reggie Evans led the Iowa effort with 21 points and 11 rebounds, while Recker finished the game with 17 points. Both were named to the All-Tournament team.

The two teams will meet again in Columbia, Mo., on Dec. 15 for a nonconference game.

Iowa advanced to the championship round by holding off No. 11 Memphis the previous night, 75-71.

"That was a war," Memphis coach John Calipari said. "I'm exhausted; it was hand-to-hand combat, and it's only November."

A young and inexperienced Memphis team clearly struggled with the physical Hawkeyes early, shooting just 34 percent from the field in the first half and just 16 percent from 3-point range. However, the Tigers did manage to tie the game with 3:25 remaining in the first half, but Iowa answered with a nine-point run.

Evans had nine points and eight rebounds at the half, and Recker had 12 points as the Hawkeyes led, 36-30.

Led by talented freshman Dajuan Wagner, Memphis was able to fight to the finish with a strong second half. The game was not out of reach until Worley hit two free throws with three seconds remaining.

All but three of Iowa's 28 shots from the floor came from inside the lane as Evans and the Hawkeyes pounded the Tigers down low. Evans finished the game with 19 points and 15 rebounds, while Recker added 20; Worley had 10.

Wagner finished with a game-high 26 points but could not lead the Tigers to victory.

"I told my team it looked like we were standing around waiting for [Wagner] to score 40; I told them at the half to go play," Calipari said. "Look at Reggie Evans. He played 40 minutes, and he played as hard in the 40th minute as he did in the first."

After two tests against top-ranked opponents in which Iowa broke even, the Hawkeyes now must take on No. 1 Duke in the ACC/Big Ten Challenge Tuesday at the United Center in Chicago.
