AUI administrator called evidence of hazing at the Phi Delta Theta fraternity consisting of an on-campus shared living space taken at the face of ex-member accused his fraternity for using the microphone as a tool for its "long-term" and "long-term" to the fraternity's social activities. The student told police he had heard of a variety of other hazing activities. Police and university officials on Wednesday continued separate investigations into the fraternity, which has been under scrutiny by the national headquarters. The chapter adviser for the fraternity said it is a "false claim of truth with a lot of embellishment." A major problem in the whole system. The student said it's a common knowledge among the Greek system in the United States, and asked whether he would use the system in the future. 33 Mercy workers appeal for union vote

By Mike McWilliams

The Daily Iowan

Technical and maintenance employees who say they want a vote to form a union at Mercy Hospital participated in a late-night meeting Friday and Sunday that will determine their status in the future.

Three groups of approximately 2,000 hospital employees are seeking to participate in the election: service and maintenance, technical, and skilled maintenance.

In order to vote in the election, employees must be classified as 'a danger to themselves or others.' The program also serves citizens who exhibit signs of mental illness.

This is a very important request, because we have a responsibility to the people of the state of California first," said Lincoln Butler, Johnson County District Court clerk. "Sometimes, we forget that.

Because of a 4.3 percent across-the-board state budget cut, the program can no longer afford the reference, planning the responsibilities on Johnson County judges and keeping up the work bag and Johnson County officials.

"The program provides up to 30 mentally ill people a year," Butler said.

"The aim is to give them the money for a program," he said.

He said he did not know where the supervisors would find the money for the mentally ill, because he was not part of the process, but he would have to review the budget before making a decision.

"They're not sure," Superintendent Jim O'Neil said.

People will be put in jail on alcohol or drug charges and then, when they should have cleaned up, we realize it's a mental problem," Lehman said. "I think it's worth it to get them the money for a program."

U.S. steps up pressure on Arafat

Jerusalem - U.S. troops urged Yasser Arafat to arrest Hamas militants in the Palestinian territories on Monday, and Israel was observing a lull in violence to allow the Palestinian leader to show restraint, as it vowed to stick with its policy of supporting terrorism.

Palestinian Cabinet Minister Shafft said the PA's security officials say they now had 151 suspected militants in custody, including members of Hamas, Islamic Jihad, and a radical group called Islamic Nation of Support.

Arafat called me and said, "You must crack down on your people who are in the city, in the city, in the city," he said. "We have to cool down to make a step forward in the direction of cooperation - at least in the direction of sanctity and respect for the Palestinian people." He added that he had asked the PA's security forces to arrest Hamas militants who were operating in the city, and that they would also be instructed to arrest Hamas in the city.

Mentally ill criminal's extend our justice system beyond its means

Iowans' prisons are rapidly becoming overcrowded. But there is a trend that is even worse, one that should garner the attention of our correctional officials.

The number of mentally ill patients in Iowa's prisons is growing.

In 1995, approximately 47,000 mentally ill people were admitted to U.S. prisons each year. This is nearly eight times the number of seriously mentally ill, in the difficult situation prison officials are in.

In Iowa, the Justice Department is faced with an especially serious challenge. Because of state budget difficulties, there are too few resources available to do the necessary mental evaluation of the mentally ill.

The Justice Department is doing the best it can to handle the mentally ill, but the number of mentally ill admissions to the system is causing problems. The number of mentally ill admissions to the system is growing.

The Justice Department is in a difficult situation. It is not just a state trend. It is a national trend. The number of mentally ill admissions to the system is growing.

In opposition to the war in Afghanistan

The war in Afghanistan is immoral. We have been misled into this war by a president who has lied to the American people about the necessity of his policies.

The president has used terrorism as a justification for military action, but in reality, terrorism is being used as an excuse to further American interests.

The United States has a long history of invading other countries and intervening in their affairs. This is not a new phenomenon, but it is one that has been perpetuated by the current administration.

We must work towards a world where nations respect each other and can resolve their differences through diplomacy and dialogue. The use of military force is not the answer to the problems facing the world today.

U.S. plans support for new Afghan government

By Tom Raum
Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - The United States will take a first step toward diplomatic recognition of the interim government in Afghanistan by soon opening an unspecified amount of its Department of State funds for salary payments to Afghan officials, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The two nations administration has said will need a fast infusion of cash, and Powell promised its unimpressed amount of state Department funds. He also said the "interbellum-state" making NATO neighbors in Brussels this week did not put a join tag on the offer.

"We will be establishing a presence in Kabul," it said. "As the middle of the month, Powell told reporters traveling with him from Turkey. He spoke hours after negotiators in Germany reached an agreement on the shape of the interim government, which will engage in some negotiations with the Taliban.

"We're in Afghanistan by early December," the United States official said, "in order to start the process of building confidence among the Afghan people and to begin to think about a transition to a democratic government." Powell said that "the two nations" had talked to the Taliban, and that "we have every reason to think that the Taliban can respond positively." Upsets in November aren't a rarity in Iowa athletics, especially when you're talking about college football. But after last week's stunning loss to Northern Iowa on Saturday, you'd think that the Hawkeyes' season was over. But it's not. It's not even close.

It's a rare occurrence, so why are the Hawkeyes still in the mix? Well, the answer is simple: there's still football to be played.

Every team is going to give you their best shot, and the Hawkeyes are no exception. They have the talent to win, and the desire to do so.

Whether it's the defending NCAA champion or a Missouri Valley Conference team, the Hawkeyes are going to give their all. And that's what makes this season so special.

The Hawkeyes weren't preordained as the best team in the country, but that's the truth. They've proven themselves time and time again, and they're not going to stop now.

So, let's all breathe a sigh of relief, and let's get ready for what's to come. The Hawkeyes are going to be a force to be reckoned with, and they're not going to let anyone get in their way.

Let's all enjoy the ride, and let's make every game count. The sky isn't falling, yet.

Bluder, team excited to return to Carver-Hawkeye for three games

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

A three-game winning streak and a confident home court advantage have provided Iowa women's basketball coach C. C. Bluder and his Hawkeyes with a lot to look forward to.

"We're excited to be back home and preparing for three good games this weekend," she said.

Bluder's first stop will be Colorado, which is in the midst of a three-game losing streak. The Buffaloes are currently 2-8 overall and 0-5 in the Big Eight Conference.

"I believe in tough losses," Bluder said. "In the past, we've lost to good teams, but I believe it's a good way to learn and grow.

Returning home will provide the Hawkeyes with a much-needed boost.

"We really want to have a good home crowd, and I think we'll get that," Bluder said. "The home court will be a factor in our success this weekend.

It's show time.

It's been a grueling four weeks, and it's all down to tonight. Five local bands, five judges, and one decision to make — who will be the 2001 Local Band of the Year.

We had a little research for you so you'd be more prepared by the time you get to the show. So do your homework, dig up the cushions of your couch, and we'll see you at the show.

Mainly, Bee Wellington is a rack of all trades. Not to be talked about in the pre-game reviews because he is a complex and resourceful individual, but to the point where you would be justified in saying that he is a legend.

At some point in his long career, he was the lead singer for a band that became extremely popular. He then branched out into the music industry as a solo artist, releasing multiple albums. Bee Wellington is also known for his frequent collaborations with other musicians, particularly during his time in the band.

The first song on the CD, "Black Standards," is a very soft and romantic piece, with a lot of piano and string elements. The lyrics are evocative and poetic, with themes of love and longing. Wellington's vocal delivery is gentle and soothing, with a slight twang to it. The overall sound is quite soothing, with a lot of space and openness.

"Hostile" is another powerful song from the album. Wellington's voice is strong and commanding, with a lot of passion and intensity. The music is a bit more aggressive, with a lot of electric guitar and bass. The lyrics are about holding onto your dreams and not giving up on your aspirations.

As a whole, the album is a mix of soft and intense tracks. Wellington's voice is the constant throughout, with a lot of emotion and depth in his delivery. The music is well-produced and arranged, with a lot of attention paid to the dynamics and flow of the songs. Overall, "Black Standards" is a very impressive album, with an incredible range of emotions and sounds.

Listen to Bee Wellington's music and explore his career to get a deeper appreciation of his talent and artistry.

Today at 7:30 p.m., Iowa City will not just look the part but also be the part: at center stage in the UI Theatre Center's Mary Schlosser Theatre, the audience will get to witness the world premiere of "Rita's Land Drive." The play, which is a cross-genre work created by 19-year-old Iowa City resident, Camilla Mulholland, is said to be a true reflection of the city and its residents.

Camilla, the writer and director of the play, is a senior at Iowa City High School. She is also a co-founder of the Iowa City-based theater company, "Small Miracles," which aims to provide a platform for young writers and directors to showcase their work. The company was founded by Camilla and her friend, Ethan Bade, who is also a co-founder of "Small Miracles" and a student at the University of Iowa.

"Rita's Land Drive" is a multimedia work that combines elements of drama, music, and visual art. The play is set in the Iowa City neighborhood of Gaylen Park and follows the story of a young woman named Rita, who is struggling to make ends meet in the face of economic hardship. The play is a tribute to the resilience and determination of the people of Iowa City and their ability to overcome adversity.

"Rita's Land Drive" is the first production of "Small Miracles" and is a testament to the talent and creativity of the city's young artists. The play was created in collaboration with the Iowa City Community School District and the University of Iowa's School of the Arts.

"Rita's Land Drive" will be performed at the UI Theatre Center's Mary Schlosser Theatre. The show is free and open to the public. For more information, please visit the Iowa City community website or contact Camilla Mulholland at camilla.mulholland@gmail.com.
