Two freshmen face one world divided

U.S. freshmen Lisa VanDeusen is a dyke. "I'm proud of me, and my sexuality is a part of me," said the 18-year-old Naples, Italy, native, "I identify as a dyke. By calling myself a dyke, I'm identifying myself and instead of being othered." VanDeusen acknowledges that several derogatory terms are used to identify her sexual identification as a lesbian. But using those terms to describe herself challenges their stereotypes and erases their ability to impose, she said.

VanDeusen is a member of a Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender caucus working with the Iowa Coalition Against Domestic Violence to research and develop curriculum to help improve shelter support for GLBT domestic-violence cases. Her involvement in the activities altered her world view, she said. "I'm realizing the fact that I have the potential to change things. VanDeusen said, "I feel like I'm working on a bigger picture of my life. Her role in an effort to challenge stereotypes the rights has brought her her prize and reward. "The opportunity that came to her was as a social-work major, she said.

Symbool of Old Capitol endures

By Jennifer Storv

The UI will continue aggressively marketing an image that no longer exists on campus: the silhouette of the Old Capitol's golden dome that was destroyed in a November fire.

Officials estimate that the cost open UI million for printing the image on marketing materials. Marketing officials say the dome should remain a symbol of the UI.

It's frustrating to see the dome destroyed around the state as the symbol of UI. "Parravu said. "Companies need Michelle in an attempt to create a symbol of the UI."

Mercy nurses vote down unionization

By Nick Nartgon

A last-ditch effort by Mercy Hospital nurses to unionize failed after a union campaign curtailed enthusiasm, employees say.

The hospital had a workers call and listened to our concerns," said Karin Bowers, a Mercy staff nurse who voted for the union. The hospital received some of the issues in question, such as wages, which were raised by a percent last summer. Hospital officials, who were unavailable for comment, said they are considering a package to improve perceived health benefits, said Bowers.

"The union isn't interested in solving the nurses' largest problem - staffing shortages, said Jansen, who voted against joining the union. "We desperately

Muslims celebrate end of Ramadan

Miranda Littigennon of Cedar Rapids

MIAMI — Approximately 10,000 Muslims of all ages and from different parts of the world gathered off South Beach on March 28, clad in prayer rugs, and bowed in prayer at a Miami stadium to kick off the festival of Eid al-Fitr, one of Islam's holy days, which marks the end of the month-long fast of Ramadan.

"It's a very happy day with a very happy heart," said Safa, 12, who chose a name that means "abiding" in Arabic and kneeled to the ground and listened to the worshippers chanted "God is greatest," as Muslims of all ages and across the country celebrated the end of Ramadan.

The celebration was one of many Muslims across the country marked the end of the Islamic month of Ramadan, the Islamic month of fasting, prayer, good deeds and forgiveness for the month of fasting.

Muslims celebrate the end of Ramadan by praying at the end of the month of Ramadan, which began Nov. 16. During the month, observant Muslims abstain from eating, drinking, sex, and sexual intercourse outside of marriage, as well as from smoking and gambling.

Many Muslims believe that the Koran, the Muslim holy book, begins to be revealed in March during Ramadan 14 centuries ago.

This year's observance has been clouded by fighting in Afghanistan and the worsening Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

At the Capital Gate Center in Boston, Ms. Washington, Maryland, Maqbool Jan, a 33-year-old Muslim from Pakistan, shared food and gifts with his friends during the month of Ramadan.

"My heart is with the hearts of Muslims in areas such as Palestine and Afghanistan who might not be able to celebrate," said Mike Roblan, a Muslim-

Cuba travel ban cases back up; 357 pending

By Ken Guggenheim

WASHINGTON — Nine years after Congress granted the right to sue foreign governments anyone accused of violating the Cuba travel ban, no judgments have been issued and no harsh penalties have been levied.

As of September, 357 cases were pending, some of which were as old as 10 years. Of those, 34 of the cases are against 1980s-era Cuban officials, and 17 are suits against Cuban agents who were serving as Cuban agents at the time. The suits typically have been brought by relatives or friends of Cuban officials who are accused of having committed some sort of crime.

Mike Roblan, an economist with the Economic Policy Institute, said that there's been a concerted effort by the U.S. government to avoid making decisions that might lead to the deaths of foreigners who are accused of having committed some sort of crime.

"There hasn't been a lot of activity, but there are a lot of cases that are pending and it's hard to say that they are being handled effectively," he said. "The U.S. government has made some efforts to avoid making these decisions, but there are still cases that are pending and it's hard to say that they are being handled effectively."

MIAMI — More than 1,000 Baltimore police off-duty officers might have been hired by the city to get a new hearing under the terms of a federal consent decree.

In 1980, the city of Baltimore was ordered to pay $1.3 million to settle a class-action lawsuit brought by 1,600 off-duty police officers who claimed they were paid less than full-time officers.

Israel paralyzes Palestinians

TEU, West Bank — On a dirt road a few miles south of Nablus, Palestinian and Israeli guards were blocking a road to Nablus, the largest town in the West Bank near the Jordan River. Roadblocks — donkey-cart taxis. Roadblocks — donkey-cart taxis.

“Don’t ask us how many fell down this hill when it rained,” said one man. “I saw one of them.”

Approximately 20 miles north to the south, in the town of Jenin, Israel’s most widely despised inmates, Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, refused to meet with the Palestinian Authority’s chief, Yasser Arafat, to discuss progress since the September 28 cease-fire.

The trip to Jenin is one of the South Scontro's, the Palestinians' autono­ mous government in the West Bank. The trip is a demonstration of the difficulties of the peace process.

For example, thePalestinians' National Council, the Palestinian Authority's governing body, has yet to pass a law granting equal rights to Israeli citizens.

“TOKYO — Public attention about the multibillion-dollar aid package that has been promised to the Palestinians, is needed to prevent attacks on its citizens that have been carried out by the Israeli military. The package is to be used to support the Palestinian economy and to help its people. It is a long-term solution to the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians. The package is urgently needed to prevent attacks on its citizens that have been carried out by the Israeli military. The package is to be used to support the Palestinian economy and to help its people. It is a long-term solution to the conflict between Israel and the Palestinians.”

“Sometimes drivers helped push cars down this hill when it rained,” said one man. “I saw one of them.”

“When we met, the President of the Palestinian Authority, Yasser Arafat, said that the Israeli military had used excessive force against the Palestinian people. He also said that the Palestinians’ leaders had not done enough to prevent the conflict.”

“The trip to Jenin is one of the hardest tasks for the Palestinians. They have been trying to build a Palestinian state for many years. But the Israeli government has not been willing to negotiate with them. It has refused to recognize the Palestinian Authority and has continued to occupy the West Bank and Gaza. This has made it very difficult for the Palestinians to build a viable state. The Israelis say that they will not negotiate with the Palestinians until they agree to give up their claims to Jerusalem and the West Bank. This is unacceptable to the Palestinians.”

Iowa gets reeled on No. 2 Mike with 83-65 blowout
By Jim Lachicotte
COLUMBIA, Mo. — Iowa is not a big enough house to hold Missouri in the second half. The Hawkeyes have lost an average of 24.5 points per game to the Tigers since 1994.

"He felt like the win was the first time, but we won it," Iowa coach Fran McCaffery said. "Iowa, we don't have to read anything that perfect.

COLUMBIA, Mo. — No. 1 Missouri is no more; the Tigers are now No. 1.

Missouri's unseren 83-65 victory over No. 2 Missouri on Dec. 15 in Carver-Hawkeye Arena marked the first time this season the Tigers have been toppled, and it was a miracle of sorts, considering the amount of talent that Missouri had been losing through injury.

"When you have the No. 1 team in the country for the past two years, and you lose the starting center, two guards and your starting forward, you have to question whether you can win," Missouri coach Frank就好 said. "But we knew we had a lot of young talent and we believed in our system, and we believed we could win."

Missouri had not beaten Missouri for the past 21 seasons, but the Tigers have come close. This time, they did it.

"It's a great victory for our program," said Missouri center Jordan Hill, who had 13 points and 15 rebounds. "We've been working hard and we've been playing well, and we finally got the win we were looking for."

The Tigers now lead the Big 12 and are No. 1 in the Associated Press Top 25 poll. They will next face No. 3 Kansas on Saturday in the Round of 32 championship game in New York City.

"We're just going to enjoy this moment," Hill said. "We've worked hard and we've earned this."

Iowa gets revenge.

Thanks to a big night from Tyler L. Miller and a solid performance by forward Tyler L. Miller and a solid performance by forward Kyle L. Miller, the Hawkeyes defeated the Tigers 85-65.

"Iowa played a great game tonight," said Iowa coach Fran McCaffery. "They're a good team and we knew it would be a tough game. But we came out ready to play and we were able to put the game away in the second half."

Kyle L. Miller led the Hawkeyes with 20 points, while Tyler L. Miller added 17. Iowa also got 11 points from Guard Dustin Manchio (UNI) and 8 from Forward Aaron Smith (UNI) for a team total of 26 points.

"Kyle and Tyler played great tonight," said McCaffery. "They really stepped up for us and helped us pull away."

Iowa's defense was also key, holding Missouri to just 65 points. "We got into them early and we were able to dictate the pace of the game," said McCaffery. "Our defense was really solid tonight."

Duke pours it on North Carolina A&T

By John Marshall

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — After a blowout of itself and a showdown with Kentucky just two days ago, top-ranked Duke could have really had a field day against North Carolina A&T.

Jason Williams hit six 3-pointers and scored all 19 of his points in the first half, and Duke put up North Carolina A&T early in the second half to win 88-45.

Duke (17-0), which hadn't scored a point in the second half against Michigan State on Dec. 10, scored another 28 points in the second half, leading the Blue Devils to a 33-14 advantage over the Aggies in the second half.

"I think every team wants to go out and score, but we're just not going to let that happen," Chris Duhon, who scored 18 points, said.

"We're not going to let them score, and we're going to fight for every cut at the rim, every rebound, every ball."

Williams, who had seven 3-pointers and had a career-high 28 points against Northern Iowa, was 6-for-6 from beyond the arc in the first half. After the conference North Carolina A&T, 10-11, returned through the first half, the crowd actually chanted "we want a penalty!"

Williams finished 6-for-10 from the field, 6-for-9 from beyond the arc and had 17 points, including 10 in the second half.

"I've had a lot of people ask me what it's like to come out and play against North Carolina A&T," Williams said.

"I've been in the conference for a couple of years now, and I've played against some really good teams."

"But you can't underestimate the team you're playing against, and you have to be ready for every cut at the rim, every rebound, every ball."

UNI season marred by loss in final game

MISSOURI, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri was left in a state of shock after its football team lost a heartbreaker in its final game of the season.

Picked to finish fifth in the league, Missouri was knocked out of the race for the championship on Saturday night when it lost to Kansas State, 24-20, in a game that had been postponed due to severe weather.

The loss ended the Tigers' hopes of winning a share of the Big 12 title and ended their season with a 6-6 record. Missouri had been led by sophomore quarterback Matt Cassel, who had thrown for 2,200 yards and 16 touchdowns in seven games.

The Tigers had been hoping to continue their recent success, which had included wins over Texas Tech and Iowa State, but were unable to put together a winning streak.

"We're just a young team," Missouri coach Gary Pinkel said. "We've got a lot of年轻 players who are still learning. We're just trying to get better each week.

"We've got to keep working hard and preparing for each game. We've got a lot of young players who need to improve their skills. We're just trying to get better each week."
