It's probably a good idea if it's going to save us from laying off jobs. But if it's going to furlough everyone from the top down and include doctors, faculty — everybody. If they're not willing to do that, I'm going to fight it to the death.

Female juvenile delinquency remains high in county

by Ben Faison

For the third year in a row, the rate of female juvenile delinquency in Johnson County remains one of the highest in the state and the surrounding counties.

But the rate, which details the number of female arrests in Johnson County, did slip to 277 in 2002 after peaking at 297 incidents in 2001, according to county statistics.

Still, says Sarah Ann Johnson, the chief of juvenile court services for the 4th Judicial District, which includes Johnson County, "Although the number has dropped, it still remains alarmingly high, a concerning problem for community officials and the Juvenile Court.

'If we could have a number of female cases in 2003 it may be even worse than it actually is.""
1 year later, UI gets new registrar

By Peter Moro

The Daily Iowan

Almost a year after UI Registerin Carol Lakkord's retirement, a search committee has been formed. The University of Iowa's Associate Vice President for Staf-ning Services, Robert Dickey, who was in charge of the search for Lakkord's replacement, will take the position in June.

The search committee was created to find a prospective candidate. Several committee members in the university's Human Resources Department are involved in the search, along with several department heads and administrators.

Lakkord's former position has been vacant since she retired on Jan. 10. The search was originally scheduled to end at the end of the spring semester, but the search committee turned down the number of qualified candidates. The search committee's goal is to announce a new registrar by September.

Activities urge action on factory farms

By Mike Glavir

The Daily Iowan

Stomachs of community activists descended on the Iowa City City Council meeting Tuesday evening, while environmental regulators tried to explain factory farms to the residents.

The activists, largely members of the community-oriented environmental group "Farm-to-Table," are concerned about the $30,000-per-year minimum wage for factory farm operators.

"We will no longer tolerate a corporation making a tidy profit at the expense of the community," said Beth Kalbhofen, leader of the group.

Controversial Regulation

The City Council is expected to vote on a $50,000-per-year limit on factory farm operators next month.

Video captures scenes from the WTC cataclysm

By Stephanie Saul

NEW YORK — The first images from the ground zero tunnels, as they arrive at the burning north tower, are timed for release today with the start of a 911 memorial service at the National September 11 Memorial. Their eerie, surreal quality, framed by smoke and dust, is exposed to the nation today.

The morning will begin with an emotional address by New York City Mayor Michael Bloomberg, before the ceremonial lighting of a cauldron at the site. The event will be broadcast live on ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN and the Fox News Channel.

The first images were captured by a camera team from CNN, which was on the ground at ground zero on 9/11. They were transmitted to the newsroom in New York City by satellite, and then edited and produced for release.

The footage shows the interior of the north tower, where the first plane hit. The images are grainy, with a hazy quality, but they provide a glimpse of the devastation inside the building.

One image shows a stairwell, with smoke and debris filling the space. Another shows a door that has been forced open, with a man's body lying on the ground inside. A third image shows a room filled with ash and debris.

The CNN team also captured footage of the south tower, where the second plane hit. This footage shows the interior of the building, with smoke and flames visible.

The footage is part of a larger collection of images from the site, which is being compiled by the 9/11 Memorial and Museum.

The images will be used to create a 9/11 memorial website, which is scheduled to open in 2017.

Mother accused of drowning kids was very psychotic, attorney says

By Pam Easton

The family of Andrea Yates, who drowned her five children in a Houston bathtub in 2001, is seeking psychiatric care for her husband, Joseph Yates, who was acquitted of murder charges in the deaths of their children.

The Yateses lived in a suburban Houston neighborhood and had a history of mental health issues. Joseph Yates was estranged from his wife and had a history of substance abuse.

Andrea Yates, 36, was found guilty of capital murder in the cases of her five children, ages 19 months to 7 years. She drowned them in the family's Houston home on June 20, 2001, in the gas-powered garage of their home.

Joseph Yates, 41, was acquitted of all charges against him in the deaths of his five children, and the case became a national scandal.

The Yateses had a history of mental health problems, and a family member who lived with them said Andrea Yates had been diagnosed with schizophrenia and bipolar disorder.

Gov't must resign, Nepalese legislators say

By Rosh Gordon-Kayes

KATHMANDU, Nepal — In a motion marked by snaffles and easy recriminations, Nepalese legislators on Monday demanded that the government should resign over the worst violence in the Himalayan kingdom's 19 years of rule.

"We demand the resignation of the government that has committed crimes against humanity," said the main opposition Nepali Congress party, which has a majority in parliament.

In an interview with The Associated Press, an Afghan military spokesman said that the incident was not a firefight at the Kandahar base, but rather a gun battle in the region.

"We believe this was not a firefight, but a gun battle around the Kandahar base," said spokesman Tariq Arian.

A team of investigators said that Berenson's case is now closed, and that he has served his time in prison.

The New York native was found guilty of murder in 2004 for his role in the Tupac Amaru rebels' uprising in Peru.

"I would like to thank the authorities for their work," she said.

LOS ANGELES — It had never happened before. Three black women were running for the highest pinnacle of the biggest acting category for the first time ever. There were three women who were seeking to win the title of Oscar kingpin. That was for 1972. Though, it took a few more years for the moment to happen. Finally, it happened again — with Halle Berry in 2001, Sandra Bullock in 2010 and Denzel Washington in Passage Day getting nominations for 2020. Rarely a standard bearer for films, these Oscar nominations are a milestone in the career of three black women who have been looking to make history. Where is the in black America? I think it’s the responsibility of black performers and writers and directors to make that happen.

Bill Smith

By Dave Bradshaw

Before the infamous legal groundswell against the so-called “three strike” laws, some 20 years ago, blacks were routinely cast as the villain of the 15-minute film of the 1970s, while continuing to play roles in movie double-crosses, at least put more on the big screen.

In the 1980s and 1990s, black actors such as Eddie Murphy, Martin Lawrence, Snoop L. Rock and Diddy developed a new forcefully different from, and much stronger than, the narrow roles once reserved for racial stereotypes. This year, all three acting categories, nominated for an awards that happen.

Some say it could receive an honor for the NMCP. For an awards that happen.

This year, some may have earned the Black Filmmaker Hall of Fame. They’re aware of the ongoing debate in black performers and directors to make that happen. Though winning the band...Some say it could receive an honor for. Some say it could receive an honor for. Some say it could receive an honor for.

And Justice For All was the fourth installment in Metallica’s metal history. "Wouldn’t that be a great photo? A photograph of Ali, Jackson, and Rock developed...Some say it could receive an honor for. Some say it could receive an honor for. Some say it could receive an honor for.

Where Is the in black America? I think it’s the responsibility of black performers and writers and directors to make that happen.

Alford, Ryan meet again

By Todd Benslem

If the season were to end today, Bo Ryan would be the Big Ten Coach of the Year. No one, except Alford, thought so. Alford, who has been around the block, said, "I think Bo is doing a very good job. He has his very deep team, and his first year in the league, to be right there at: $8 and playing really well, and just the way his kids have competed all year, that's a great credit to him and his coaches as well."

Alford will rekindle his friendly rivalry with Ryan when Iowa meets Minnesota on Friday. The two adversaries know one another well, having met twice last season: Ryan won the Big Ten Coach of the Year, according to any number of voters. The Hawkeyes won both games last season against Iowa by 12 and 27 points, yet were passed over for a Big Ten Tournament bid. Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz was flabbergasted by Iowa's final season record of 14-16. "That's a good team, kid," Ferentz said. "You can't say he hasn't done anything, but they're short the year's season."

Bo Ryan, the Hawkeyes' coach, is preparing for his fifth season, and has the pursuit of the Big Ten Coach of the Year. Iowa, who was 14-16 last year, has a record of 21-7 this year. Iowa is 3-1 against the Big Ten, and is 10-2 against the non-conference. Ryan is, according to Alford, "doing a great job. He has a very deep team, and his first year in the league, to be right there at $8 and playing really well, and just the way his kids have competed all year, that's a great credit to him and his coaches as well."

Iowa Hawkeyes' coach, Bo Ryan, is the favorite to win the Big Ten Coach of the Year award. Ryan has been doing a great job, according to Alford, who is a fierce rival of Ryan's. Tampa Bay Bucs general manager Rich Scℎafer, who had been searching for a coach since the firing of Jon Gruden, one of the elite candidates they had sought all season, asked not to be named, but only was he the one who had talked to the coaches over the past two weeks. Scℎafer turned down an offer from the Buc’s to interview Gruden, and the Buc’s ended up interviewing an assistant coach from the Eagles, who had been with the Eagles for the past three years.

Gruden nabbed by Bucs

By Fred Goodall

Tampa Bay Bucs general manager Rich Scℎafer, who had been searching for a coach since the firing of Jon Gruden, one of the elite candidates they had sought all season, asked not to be named, but only was he the one who had talked to the coaches over the past two weeks. Scℎafer turned down an offer from the Buc’s to interview Gruden, and the Buc’s ended up interviewing an assistant coach from the Eagles, who had been with the Eagles for the past three years.

Iowa Hawkeyes' coach, Bo Ryan, is the favorite to win the Big Ten Coach of the Year award. Ryan has been doing a great job, according to Alford, who is a fierce rival of Ryan's. Iowa is 11-1 in the Big Ten, and has a record of 22-6 this year. Iowa is 10-2 against the non-conference, and is 10-2 against the Big Ten. Ryan is, according to Alford, "doing a great job. He has his very deep team, and his first year in the league, to be right there at $8 and playing really well, and just the way his kids have competed all year, that's a great credit to him and his coaches as well."

U.S. Olympians take medal holiday

By Larry McManus

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SALT LAKE CITY — And on Monday, the Americans, who failed to win a gold, silver or bronze medal Appr poten sufficiently strong to make any impact on their group and meeting second in the standings, showed it may help add to the medal haul of their team still playing with nine-straight days at its first Olympics ever.

The U.S. team scored five goals in the second period, led by two goals from Dorothy Hamill, who won the women's figure skating. She is the only American with more than eight medals in the Olympics.

Fleming, Hamill, and the other American Olympians — 18 in all — will be unfulfilled if that goal is scored.

It was a revolutionary scoring system proposed by a team of experts, acting as a consultant to the American figure skating union vice president. Fleming, who is 30, said she is still a fan of the old scoring system.

But Fleming, Hamill, and the other American Olympians — 18 in all — will be unfulfilled if that goal is scored.

The young American team scored 22, but it was the only American with success in the men's figure skating. She had never won a World Cup event before.

On Monday to reduce the chance of swapping.

Beginning with today's short program, what better way to do it than with Michelle Kwan of the United States with 18 (silver), 12 (6) from Russia, and 10 (5) from Canada — four medals. with an 8-1 victory Monday.

The Czechs, who were the best of the best, were the only American with more than eight medals in the Olympics.

Gruden agrees to five-year contract

Then they failed to reach an agreement with the Buccaneers on a deal for Gruden, so he is now an unrestricted free agent. If he signs with another team, he would have to wait until the new leagues start in July to play, as is the case with自由球员. He is currently still on the market, as is his former team, the Kansas City Chiefs.

The Buccaneers have reportedly offered Gruden a five-year contract worth $18 million, plus a $5 million signing bonus. The Raiders are also reportedly interested in Gruden, and are reportedly willing to pay $20 million over four years. However, Gruden has reportedly indicated that he is unlikely to sign with either team, as he is still considering his options.

The Buccaneers have been searching for a new head coach since Bill Parcells retired last month. Parcells had been the team's head coach for the past five seasons, but was fired after the team finished 8-8. The Buccaneers have lost 14 of their past 16 games, and are currently in last place in the NFC South.

Meanwhile, the Raiders have been searching for a new head coach since Al Davis fired Art Shell earlier this month. Shell had been the team's head coach for the past two seasons, but was fired after the team finished 8-8. The Raiders have lost 12 of their past 16 games, and are currently in last place in the AFC West.

The league has reportedly set a deadline of March 1st for teams to make their picks, and teams will begin to hold their first-round picks in early April.

Raptors snap Wizards’ home streak

WASHINGTON (AP) - Cuttino Mobley had 11 points and Steve Francisco, questionable before tipoff with a niggle, scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half as the Houston Rockets dealt the Washington Wizards their first home loss, 102-99, Monday night.

Francisco, Mobley and Tony Delk scored the first 11 points of the game in the fourth quarter.

Rockets coach Kevin McHale said that with the Wizards without Tim Legler, they had the advantage in the second half.

Grudens, who were fired Jan. 14, began in high school, others are from big college programs. The roster contains players with experience for all of us, and it's just a matter of time before we make the team.

The team is looking for a new coach because they need someone who is capable of leading the team to the playoffs. The team has had a lot of injuries this season, and they need a coach who can handle the pressure.

The Wizards have lost 21 of their past 25 games, and are currently in last place in the East. They have lost 31 of their past 40 games.

The Wizards have been searching for a new coach since Flip Saunders, who was fired after the team finished 12-50, stepped down late last season. The team has been searching for a new coach ever since.
