Police nab 6 on multi-state forgery

An incident involving more than a dozen states, false identities, state, national and federal agencies, and dead ends occurred at a Carmelita mental health center. The forgery ring, which has been in operation for nearly a year, was suspected to have been targeted at several banks,

Police say the, which is a state prison, was using stolen names and Social Security numbers, as well as state-issued driver's licenses. The case has now been expanded to include state and local law enforcement agencies.

In the meantime, the investigation continues.
Board mulls joining suit

By Tony Robinson

The Iowa City School Board today will enter into a legal battle as it seeks to recover $383,000 from borrowing $33.5 million for a new elementary school. The district had to go into debt when the state legislature appropriated only $1 billion for education in the state.

The school board voted to hire an attorney to settle the lawsuit it filed in 2011 against the City of Iowa City. The district alleges it was owed $383,000 for work done during the construction of the new elementary school.

The Iowa City Schools will be seeking contributions from the local government to help pay for the lawsuit.

Kirkwood Community College was notified of a fire in a building at 1113 Tower Road on Monday afternoon after a fire in the Building Center raised concerns.

The fire took 15 minutes to extinguish and caused approximately $1 million in damage. During the process, water damages were discovered in the Building Center.

A report said that the fire was caused by a malfunctioning vehicle that entered the Building Center.

The fire was contained to the building center and did not spread to any other location in the complex.

Early college admission attraction criticism

By Arlene Lounsberry

The University of Iowa recently launched its new Early College Admission Program, which allows high school students to apply to the university while still in high school.

The program has been controversial, with some parents and educators concerned about the impact on students' college experience.

The university has defended the program, saying it provides a valuable opportunity for high school students to get a head start on their college education.

However, some critics argue that the program is too competitive and does not benefit all students.

The program has been criticized for prioritizing students who are already academically successful, which some argue disadvantages students who are not as academically prepared.

The program has also been criticized for not providing enough support and guidance for students who are not as academically successful.

The university has responded by saying it is committed to providing support and guidance for all students who apply to the program.

The program is open to all high school students who meet the university's admission requirements.
U.S. sees success in treating AIDS

By Daniel G. Horne

Seattle — Doctors have been so successful in curing the disease of people with AIDS that the number of Americans with HIV is actually increasing, according to a recent government estimate. It is now approaching 1 million, up from 800,000 at the end of last year. It is the first time the number of Americans with HIV has actually increased since the disease was first identified more than a decade ago.

Experts estimate that 400,000 Americans reach HIV each year, a figure that has remained roughly stable for the last four years. However, until the turnaround in the disease, the number of AIDS cases and deaths had been growing at an alarming rate.

Now, AIDS deaths have plunged from a peak of approximately 20,000 in 1995 to 8,000 in 1999, according to the latest estimates from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. The decrease is largely due to the widespread use of highly active antiretroviral therapy, which has dramatically increased the life expectancy of people with AIDS.

The latest estimates show that an estimated 650,000 Americans are living with HIV, up from 400,000 in 1995. By 2000, the number of people living with AIDS is expected to reach 900,000. Although there are no signs of plateauing, the rate of increase is slowing down, according to the latest estimates from the World Health Organization.

AIDS is a chronic, treatable illness, and experts say it is becoming a serious health problem for many patients in the United States. The United States has the highest number of new cases of HIV in the world, with over 40,000 new infections each year. The disease has also spread to other countries, including Brazil, India, and South Africa.

The latest estimates show that an estimated 650,000 Americans are living with HIV, up from 400,000 in 1995. By 2000, the number of people living with AIDS is expected to reach 900,000. Although there are no signs of plateauing, the rate of increase is slowing down, according to the latest estimates from the World Health Organization.

The latest estimate of the number of Americans with HIV is probably right, according to a top government official. "We are seeing a dramatic increase in the number of people with AIDS," said Dr. Patricia Fleming, a top official at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "This is a big challenge for public health officials, and we need to do more to prevent the spread of the disease."
Tunnel hole near U.S. Embassy in Rome concerns authorities

By Frances D’Emilio
Associated Press

ROME — A hole discovered in a tunnel adjacent to the U.S. Embassy in Rome was large enough to enter through, and embassy officials said Monday that water pipes leading to the tunnel were still in place, forcing them not to yet know when the hole was made.

Italian police said they had received information that a man had been seen in the tunnel, but did not confirm this report.

Italy’s interior minister, Angelino Alfano, said in Rome that the U.S. Embassy had been informed of the discovery and that police were investigating.

The hole was found by workers who were excavating a tunnel that leads to the U.S. Embassy, according to a statement from the U.S. State Department.

The tunnel was discovered during construction work, and the U.S. Embassy was notified immediately, according to the statement.

The hole is believed to have been created by a man who may have been seeking shelter from the heat.

The tunnel is used for the transport of goods and materials, and it has been closed to the public.

PARKER'S recycling pledge not so sincere as Herbold's

At the USG Environmental Coalition meeting last Thursday, student PARKER's pledge to continue recycling on campus was met witheco-friendly skepticism among the audience. Still, Parker explained, he is trying to keep up with the momentum.

"Whereas we are currently working on the recycling program on campus, we are learning more about recycling every day," he said. "If we can do it, so can they."

Parker's pledge is not to be taken lightly, Herbold said. The former student president of the Environmental Coalition said that he doubts Parker's ability to continue recycling as much as he promised.

"I'm not saying he's not sincere, or that he's not trying, but I do think he's underestimating the amount of work involved."

Despite a 48-hour strike, in which the Iowa Student Press received a large number of complaints from students and faculty, the Iowa Student Press received a large number of complaints from students and faculty.

"I believe that he is sincere in his efforts to continue recycling," Herbold said. "But I also believe that he is underestimating the amount of work involved."
Uncertainty and making the bomb

By Kathryn Anderson

In the midst of World War II, a meeting between two men—one friend that many believe was destined to change the world—may have determined not only the fate of the war, but that of all mankind.

Nobody knows exactly what happened when Werner Heisenberg, working as a nuclear physicist for the German military, visited the US in late 1938 to see if it was possible to cultivate an avuncular image. Heisenberg, playing at Handel Auditorium today and Wednesday, tells the story of the meeting that also implicitly answers what would have happened if the Nazis developed a nuclear bomb and whether Pearlman has often been seen taking group photos that — or his downtown performance.

But now the Peace Commission of Jutland is investigating the poorly 150-year-old nuclear physicist and his Friends country's should be developing some of the most important technologies humans have ever faced.

"It's just sort of a way we express everything, it's such a fundamental physical law that we've..." said Heisenberg, "It's an incredible influential ethical dilemma that you're thrown into the middle of.

Despite raising ethical issues that often provide deep reflection and philosophical thought, the play also manages to keep everyone's breath away with suspense.

"It's almost like I experience that play, I experience that story," Burns said. "The way they move on stage, the music, the set... it's all part of the experience."

However, both the Blackstreet Boys and Will Smith secured Pearlman’s decision and shooting them out of money in lawsuits they filed several years ago to get out of Pearlman’s control. The lawsuit also had a pending suit with the group U2 that珍珠 w show "Making the Band."

Should pole vaulting be eliminated as an event?

Death and the sports world have crossed paths on numerous occasions, but the elimination of a sport or event has never been seriously considered. Rather, death has led to improved safety measures and innovations that prevent such tragedies in the future.

Kansas No. 1 for second-straight week

By Jim O’Connell

Kansas became the first team this season other than Duke to be ranked No. 1 in the AP basketball poll in three consecutive weeks.

The Jayhawks were announced as the No. 1 team in this week’s AP Top 25 poll, which was released Monday, Jan. 16. Kansas has been the No. 1 team in the final AP poll for the past three weeks, and it is the second-straight season it has been ranked No. 1 for three straight weeks.

Kansas is currently 17-1 overall and 7-0 in the Big 12 Conference. The Jayhawks have won 15 of their last 16 games, including a 99-64 victory over Texas Tech on Jan. 13. Kansas’ only loss this season was a 74-67 setback to No. 2 Texas on Jan. 4.

The AP Top 25 poll is based on votes from sports writers and sportswriters who receive surveys weekly. The top team gets 25 points, the second-best team gets 24, and so on down the list.

Kansas is currently riding a 13-game winning streak, which is the longest active streak in the country. The Jayhawks have won their last 13 games by an average of 18.4 points per game.

The AP Top 25 poll is released every Monday during the regular season and on selection Sunday, the day before the NCAA Tournament.

The Jayhawks are currently ranked No. 1 in the latest Associated Press Top 25 poll, which was released Jan. 16. Kansas has been the No. 1 team in the AP Top 25 poll for the past three weeks.

She broke Big Ten, Iowa, and Central College records with a 30-point performance on Dec. 15 against Colorado.

"I just thought I was on fire," Watson added. "I have a lot of experience in the lane and I've been shooting against a lot of people," she said. "I know what makes me better than the other girls."

Watson's success was due to her ability to make better than 50 percent of her 3-point attempts. She set a career record with 11 3-pointers in the game, breaking the previous mark of 10 set by Carolee Robinson in 1999.

"She's a great player," Central College coach Greg Wieczorek said. "She's very strong, determined, and she's a point guard."

Watson's performance was part of a larger trend for the team, which improved its record to 5-1 with the victory. The team's next game is scheduled for Dec. 18 against North Park University.

"I think we're really starting to gel," Wieczorek said. "We're playing well as a team, and we're playing well together."

The Big Ten season begins Dec. 27, and Watson is looking forward to the challenge.

"I think we're ready," she said. "We're ready to take on the best."
