State to sock UI with new round of cuts

By Grant Schulte
The Daily Iowan

A possible new round of budget cuts unveiled Wednesday would "put the university in a real bind" and cause Iowa's three public universities to fall short of salary needs while forcing the UI to put less-qualified students on a waiting list.

To cope with the proposed cuts, university officials said they will dig deeper into their financial pockets and possibly implement waiting lists.

"Enough is enough," UI President Mary Sue Coleman said of the proposed cuts. "We've taken an awful lot of cuts this year. It's disproportionate to the rest of the state."

The bills include a 3 percent reduction in educational appropriations, a 14 to 18 percent loss of economic-development appropriations, and a net loss of $12 million in demutualization funds.

Iowa lawmakers are expected to complete two bills today that cut funding from the state's three public universities. One bill takes $30 million from the state of Iowa Board of Regents demutualization funds, money reserved for employee salaries, to fund statewide salary increases. The state will then return $18 million of that amount to fund salaries at the UI, Iowa State University, and the University of Northern Iowa, falling $15 million short of the regents' need.

"That is, of course, a huge concern," said Greg Nichols, the regents' executive director. "We aren't really arguing that the state contributed toward that share. We're going to consider the possibility that we aren't getting enough back."

The regents will discuss how to handle the situation at an April 10 meeting in Council Bluffs.

Coleman proposed automatically admitting students of high academic standing while putting those who do not immediately meet admissions standards on a waiting list to curb heavy enrollment.

She proposed capping enrollment at last month's regents meeting in Ames, a measure the board might have to approve given Wednesday's newest cuts, said Regent David Fischer.

"We're running out of alternatives," he said. "If the budget keeps going South, something's going to give."

The omnibus bill cuts funding for educational appropriations, such as the UI's general education fund, in fiscal year 2003 by 3 percent, $8.9 million, from fiscal year 2002. Funding for economic development, which includes various research done at the Oakdale Campus, might be cut by 14 to 18 percent, Nichols said.

The third proposal, an infrastructure bill, provides $51.1 million to the three universities; approximately $13 million of which will go to the UI's new journalism building, slated for completion in 2004.

In fiscal 2002, the UI cut nearly $44 million from its budget, causing the postponement of technology replacement, deferral of projects, and faculty reduction.

Sharon vows to push on

Police officers and rescue workers take a body on a stretcher from an exploded bus on a main road near the port city of Haifa on Wednesday. Eight were killed in addition to the suicide bomber.

JENIN, West Bank — From a West Bank army base overlooking the scene of the deadliest fighting in Israel's 13-day-old offensive, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon on Wednesday delivered a blunt message: Israel will not pull back until Palestinian militias are crushed.

Despite his pledge to continue the offensive in the face of intense U.S. and international pressure to call it off, Sharon's defense ministry announced late Wednesday that troops were pulling out of West Bank villages of Yatta, Qabatya, and Samua.

Then, early today, Israeli forces and tanks rolled into the central West Bank town of Ber Zeit — north of the commercial center of Ramallah — and troops quickly occupied the police station and began doing house-to-house searches, witnesses said. The soldiers met no resistance, they said.

Yatta and Samua are near the southern city of Hebron, and Qabatya is near the northern city of Jenin, where some of the fiercest fighting has been reported.

The White House supported the withdrawal and said the Palestinians should respond.

"The burden isn't Israel's alone. All parties have responsibilities," spokesman Ari Fleischer said.

Also Wednesday night, Israeli soldiers killed two Palestinians armed with grenades and Kalashnikov rifles near the Kisufim crossing between Israel

Regents likely to OK new J-School, Burge food improvements

By Jennifer Sturm
The Daily Iowan

Construction for two UI proposals costing more than $29 million could begin this fall pending support from the state of Iowa Board of Regents and approval of a state-infrastructure bill that distributes funding for building projects at Iowa's universities.

The regents will most likely approve the proposals for a new journalism building and remodeling Burge Residence Hall food services after examining the facts and designs of the proposals, said Regent Clarkson Kelly.

"If the students want it and need it, I support it," he said. The new journalism building needs more than $15 million in funding, and remodeling the Burge food service will cost approximately $14 million. If passed by regents April 17, construction can begin on schedule, university representatives said.

UI officials said they have been planning the new journalism school for four years, and they are looking forward to seeing their vision take shape. Journalism students were moved out of the Communications Center in 1998; they are now housed in Seashore Hall.

Public power intrigues gov'ts

Coralville and Johnson County officials said they will likely join a study looking at the feasibility of a municipal electrical utility if Iowa City leads the way.

Representatives from the three entities and North Liberty met in a special work session Wednesday to discuss conducting a joint study that could take six months and cost Iowa City $75,000.

"If [Iowa City] does change, chances are we could tag along," said Coralville Mayor Jim Fausett, adding that Coralville's contract with MidAmerican Energy Co. doesn't expire for another four years.

Fausett said he wants more information on municipal utilities before committing to a feasibility study, which can cost anywhere from $20,000 to $75,000 depending on population, the scope of the study, and the number of cities involved. The study would determine if savings from publicly owned power would outweigh such costs as infrastructure improvements.

"There's a small, small gamble, but it's worth it," Iowa City City Councilor Steven Kanner said of the study. "If this is good for our citizens, we would think it would be better for their citizens as well."

Johnson County Supervisor Pat Harney shared Fausett's sentiments, but he said establishing a municipal utility could be expensive because service trucks might have to be replaced and confusion would arise over who owns "miles and miles" of transmission wire.

Ashcroft praises two-state anti-terrorism measures

By Mike Glover
Associated Press

DES MOINES — Attorney General John Ashcroft touted a two-state anti-terrorism effort Wednesday and warned against complacency in regions of the nation far removed from the Sept. 11 attacks.

"As we look back on Sept. 11, we know there were individuals who were involved in those attacks who were in cities far farther west than Iowa and cities smaller than Des Moines," Ashcroft said. "I believe that the threat still exists."

Ashcroft met with an anti-terrorism task force that covers southern Iowa, including state, local, and federal officials. That task force has met at the Rock Island Arsenal with a similar task force from Central Illinois to coordinate efforts.

"This kind of cooperation is exactly the model we need shared across the nation," Ashcroft said.

Law-enforcement agencies traditionally are noted for turf battles and competition, but he said threat of terrorism has put all that on the back burner and caused agencies across the nation and at all levels to work together.

"The importance of integrating our law-enforcement effort is we would sensitize law-enforcement officials to be aware of and to be keenly interested in things that might not have seemed as important in previous settings," Ashcroft said.

The attorney general spoke at a news conference after meeting privately with the anti-terrorism task force coordinated by Steven Colloton, the U.S. attorney for Iowa's southern district.

The stop was part of a trip through the Midwest that Ashcroft said was aimed at making the point that the threat of terrorism remains, and it's a nationwide threat not concentrated on the coasts.

"I believe that the threat still exists," Ashcroft said. "I think all Americans need to understand that the threat is a continuing one."

He pointed to Tuesday's announcement of the indictment of four people accused of helping jailed terrorists communicate with associates on the outside.

"Yesterday's announcement in New York underscores the persistence of the terrorist community," he said. "I don't believe they ran thousands of terrorists through al-Qaida training camps to stop with sending a couple of dozen to the U.S."

While Ashcroft said terrorism has become the top focus at the Justice Department, he said other anti-crime efforts are continuing.

"The major cases are continuing," Ashcroft said. The issue of resources is a very real, Ashcroft argued, because the immense amount of money being spent combating terrorism put pressure on the agency's budget.

"Anytime we devote resources to one area, there are fewer resources for other areas," Ashcroft said.

CITY & STATE BRIEFS

No more smokes at City News

City News, 113 Iowa Ave., is prohibited from selling cigarettes for a month starting today after being found guilty of two offenses of selling tobacco to a minor.

Katie Anthony, the store's manager, said cigarette products account for over half of the store's business. To cut back on costs, the shop will close daily at 6 p.m. instead of its usual 10 p.m. during the ban.

"We have always been strict about carding," she said. "This has just shown our employees what can happen if we don't card."

The store was caught selling to minors during a routine police sting. Typically, these operations are performed with three police officers and a juvenile who attempts to purchase tobacco products.

Under Iowa law, the first offense of a sale to a minor warrants a $300 fine. The second offense results in a 30-day suspension of a store's tobacco license.

Each City News clerk who sold the tobacco received a $145 ticket.

Backers drop plans to toughen OWI standard

DES MOINES (AP) — Key lawmakers said Wednesday they are dropping plans to find a compromise to toughen the state's drunken-driving laws and prevent the loss of millions of dollars in federal money.

Rep. Lance Horbach, R-Tama, and Rep. Frank Chiodo, D-Des Moines, withdrew a plan setting the blood-alcohol content required for an automatic conviction at 0.08 percent. The current threshold is 0.10 percent.

Without the compromise, the plan lacks the votes for approval, and leaders said they won't waste time in the Legislature's waning hours debating a measure that can't pass.

"At this point in time, I'm not planning on bringing it up," said House Majority Leader Chris Rants, R-Sioux City.

Lawmakers still must sort through contentious budget issues and new restrictions on the livestock industry before the end of the session, targeted for today.

While it's risky declaring any issue dead during the last-minute scurry to end the session, Horbach and Chiodo were the driving force behind the drunken-driving effort.

Congress has approved penalties for states which don't adopt a 0.08 percent standard, and Iowa could lose millions in highway-safety funding if lawmakers don't eventually act.

Most Iowa inmates 'nonviolent'

Associated Press

DES MOINES — Prison time served by criminals classified as nonviolent and convicted of the least-serious felonies in Iowa rose sharply in the past decade, state records show.

The average time served behind bars for nonviolent Class C felonies increased by 50 percent, from one year and four months in prison to two years. This includes crimes such as first-degree theft, second-degree burglary, and delivering drugs.

Prison stays for people convicted of nonviolent Class D felonies, such as forgery, third-offense drunken driving, and delivery of marijuana, have increased by 60 percent overall. Since 1993, the average prison term rose from 10 months to 16 months.

Iowa Corrections Director W.L. "Kip" Kautzky cited the findings of state criminal-justice researchers last week as he argued for changes in Iowa's criminal-sentencing laws.

Kautzky contends the prison system is being overused in an era when state lawmakers are having trouble finding money for education, health care, and other government programs.

Sixty percent of Iowa inmates are in prison for non-violent offenses, which range from car theft to prostitution, Kautzky said.

The Iowa Board of Parole decided nine months ago to shorten prison stays for some inmates, said board Chairwoman Elizabeth Robinson Ford, but the number of prisoners still hovers around 8,000 because admissions have remained extremely high — almost 500 offenders per month. The prison population has soared over the past decade because of a combination of several factors, including tougher sentencing laws and a crackdown on drug crimes.

States criticize welfare plan

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As President Bush's welfare plan began its trip through Congress, leading governors testified Wednesday that crucial elements of the plan would hamper successful state programs already in place.

House Republicans introduced legislation Wednesday that mirrors the White House plan. It would toughen work requirements, devote $300 million to promote marriage, and allow for a minimum of education, training, drug treatment, and other services aimed at qualifying welfare recipients.

The nation's system for aiding the poor has been transformed in the years since the 1996 overhaul; states have pushed people to find jobs, and the welfare rolls have plummeted by almost 60 percent. The GOP plan would make work requirements even stricter in hopes of weaning even more families off aid.

Rep. J.C. Watts, R-Okla., said that where Democrats defined compassion by how many people are in government aid programs, Republicans define compassion as how few are enrolled. "We've given them the means to climb the ladder of economic opportunity," he said.

Advocates for the poor complain that even people who have found jobs still earn too little to escape poverty and say the Bush plan does little to help them move up the economic scale. They say more money will be needed for childcare. And some question the spending of so much money to push marriage.

One of the biggest debates is shaping up around the work requirements.

States who have designed their own welfare programs are tentatively lining up with liberals as they resist mandates from Washington. The Bush plan, they complain, would prevent them from designing plans for individual welfare recipients.

"I can't think of any social innovation that has been as successful as changing welfare as we know it," said Gov. Howard Dean, D-Vt. "We have a saying in Vermont — if it ain't broke, don't fix it."

Specifically, both Bush and House Republicans would require large numbers of people collecting welfare to participate in welfare-to-work programs 40 hours per week. At least three days per week would have to be spent at a government-created or private-sector job.

"You can't get out of poverty without working," said Health and Human Services Secretary Tommy Thompson, who made a national reputation as Wisconsin governor for state welfare innovations.

But both Dean and Gov. John Engler, R-Mich., told the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday that states should retain the power to decide which plan is best for individual welfare clients.

Engler offered a list of existing state programs that do not fit into the Bush mold and said the best system would give the states maximum flexibility. The 1996 changes, he said, "succeeded because Washington focused on the overarching goals and left the strategies to the states."

"Give us the tools, and we can deliver," Engler said.

Fight set on embryo cloning

By Sonya Ross
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush pressed the Senate on Wednesday to ban cloning of human embryos for research, saying science must not rush ahead "without an ethical compass." Senators promised a fight, seeing great promise in cloning for cures of terrible afflictions.

Bush called medical researchers, ethicists, lawmakers, ministers, and disabled people to the White House to explain why he objects to embryo cloning and to embrace a ban proposed by Sens. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., and Mary Landrieu, D-La.

"We can pursue medical research with a clear sense of moral purpose, or we can travel without an ethical compass into a world we could live to regret," Bush said. "How we answer the question of human cloning will place us on one path or the other."

The president was looking to tamp down an evolving Senate compromise, crafted by Sens. Tom Harkin, Arlen Specter, Edward Kennedy, and Dianne Feinstein, that would outlaw cloning for reproductive purposes but allow it for research on illnesses such as cancer, Alzheimer's, and Parkinson's. "It would be a mistake for the U.S. Senate to allow any kind of human cloning to come out of that chamber," Bush said.

Kennedy, D-Mass., said it is Bush who is mistaken.

"We must not let the misplaced fears of today deny patients the cures of tomorrow," he said. "Congress was right to place medicine over ideology in the past, and we should do the same again as we confront the issue of cloning."

Specter, R-Pa., said the ban Bush advocates would criminalize legitimate research and cause "an enormous brain drain out of the United States to Europe."

"To tie the hands of medical science in the 21st century, in my opinion, is just not the right thing to do," Specter said. "There's going to be a real fight on the Senate floor. I believe we will find enough Republican votes ... to make a majority."

Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., urged lawmakers to heed a call from 40 Nobel laureates who support research cloning, and he said it is possible to bar ethically repugnant uses of cloned tissue without blocking the research.

"The president wants to ban it all, and I think he's wrong,"

Daschle said. "And I think the American people are on our side on this issue."

At issue is the production of embryos that are genetically identical to a donor human being. Bush voiced his opposition frequently last year, and in August 2001 he restricted federally financed stem-cell research to 64 existing stem-cell lines taken from embryos discarded by fertility clinics.

The House passed a ban on all human cloning in July 2001, but the Senate has not acted on it. Many senators object to the idea of cloning humans, but they are not averse to embryo research that could cure disease.

Brownback told an anti-cloning rally on Capitol Hill Wednesday that the ban was "clearly a winnable issue." Standing before a stack of petitions with 400,000 signatures, he said, "Cloning is wrong, period. Creating human life to destroy it is wrong."

But for many senators, the matter was more personal than political. Sen. Zell Miller, D-Ga., a conservative who has backed Bush on other high-stakes legislation, said he supports the Specter option because his son has juvenile diabetes and his late mother suffered from Alzheimer's.

NATION BRIEF

Prison population growth slows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people in prison grew last year at the slowest rate in three decades, the Justice Department reported Wednesday.

The total population in all prisons and jails rose a bit more than 1 percent, nearing 2 million, according to the annual report. As of June 30, 2001, one of every 145 U.S. residents was behind bars.

Tougher anti-crime policies, more facilities, and longer sentences are the reasons cited for the decades-long increase in the prison population. Most of the growth between 2000 and 2001 came in federal facilities.

"It appears the state prison population has reached some stability," said Allen Beck, a statistician with the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Crime rates are down, and parole violations have stabilized, while state legislatures in recent years have not enacted the kind of sweeping sentencing reforms passed in the early 1990s.

Beck said the federal system could continue to grow at its current pace as federal court caseloads swell with drug, immigration, and weapons prosecutions.

The trend "depends on federal law enforcement and prosecutorial discretion," he said.

Overall, there were 1,965,495 people in custody in federal and state prisons and local jails in June 2001, a 1.6 percent increase from the previous year.

Officer goes on rampage; 6 dead

By John Curran
Associated Press

DOVER TOWNSHIP, N.J. — A police officer shot five neighbors to death and wounded his boss, then committed suicide, shocking a seaside community still reeling from an almost identical rampage in February.

Authorities said Wednesday that Seaside Heights Officer Edward Lutes, 42, had apparently feuded with some of his neighbors in Dover Township. The authorities did not elaborate.

"There was a great deal of acrimony between Mr. Lutes and his neighbors," prosecutor Greg Sakowicz said. "Certainly, it wasn't a random shooting."

Some acquaintances portrayed him as the neighborhood grouch. They said he had gone through bankruptcy several years ago and had lost his girlfriend in a car accident about a year ago.

Lutes went on his rampage with a handgun and a semiautomatic assault gun called an MP5. He shot himself in the head in his car outside a Barnegat Township home not far from where he shot his boss Tuesday night. The body of the 15-year police veteran was found Wednesday morning.

"It's a tragedy of the highest order," said William Polhemes, a former Seaside Heights police chief who knew Lutes.

The shootings happened just a mile from where a retired Newark police officer, John Mabie, allegedly went from house to house, killing his granddaughter and three neighbors Feb. 21. He has pleaded not guilty.

"To do something like that, they snap," said Karen Picht, who decided to walk her 12-year-old daughter to a bus stop Wednesday morning as the manhunt was still under way.

Police said Lutes went to the home of neighbors Dominick Galliano, 51, and his wife, Gail, 49, killing them with the assault weapon. He also killed the couple's son, 25-year-old Christopher.

Lutes then went to another home and killed Gary Williams, 48, and his wife, Tina, 46. The couple's 23-year-old son jumped out of a window.

Lutes fled in his car to Barnegat Township and shot Seaside Heights Police Chief James Costello in the leg and the wrist. Police said the chief was leaving his home at the time after hearing about the shootings.

Costello was in satisfactory condition. From his hospital room, he said he could not explain the rampage: "I really don't know. He's a very close friend of mine."

Dover Township Police Chief Michael Mastronardy said Lutes and a neighbor were involved in an Oct. 30, 2001, criminal-mischief case. He would not give details.

However, 16-year-old neighbor Christine Woldanski said Lutes told a group of kids that night to throw eggs at the homes of two of his enemies. She said Lutes told them: "If you guys don't do it, I'm going to do it later."

The kids decided not to throw the eggs, Woldanski said. She said Lutes left the house and came back later with blood on his hand.

Thomas Aballo, a lawyer who represented Lutes and his father in separate bankruptcy filings several years ago, said the shootings took him by surprise. He recalled Lutes discussing problems with a department supervisor several years ago but said the officer did not pursue any legal action against the police.

"I never got the indication of anything but a dedicated officer and an overall good guy," Aballo said.

Seaside Heights Fire Chief Reece Fisher, who had known Lutes since the 1980s, said the officer was devastated when his girlfriend was killed. "He was able to come back to the job, but who is to say what was going on inside of him?" Fisher said.

Neighbors said Lutes lived with his 12-year-old daughter and other family members.

"He used to walk his dog down the street, and he'd say hello. He wouldn't go by without saying hello," Steve Rizzolo said.

Man indicted in hikers' deaths

By Laurie Kellman
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Six years and 15,000 tips after the murder of two women near the Appalachian Trail sent a chill through hikers everywhere, federal prosecutors say they have the killer and will prosecute the case as a hate crime.

Darrell David Rice of Columbia, Md., was indicted for the 1996 slayings of Julianne Williams and Laura "Lollie" Winans, the Justice Department announced Wednesday. Already jailed on an unrelated kidnapping charge, Rice told authorities the women "deserved to die because they were lesbian [expletives]," according to prosecution documents filed in court.

The bodies of Williams, 24, of St. Cloud, Minn., and Winans, 26, of Unity, Maine, were found bound and gagged June 1, 1996, at a creek-side campsite in Virginia's Shenandoah National Park, approximately a half-mile off the Appalachian Trail. Their throats had been cut. Williams' parents, Tom and Patsy Williams, of St. Cloud, Minn., said, "We are grateful that a suspect has been apprehended and indicted, but our focus has been and will continue to be on the life of our daughter."

Attorney General John Ashcroft, who met with the women's families Wednesday, said the murders denied the world their budding talents, "which would have been substantial."

"These families have suffered what Americans now know all too well — that's the pain and destruction wrought by hate," Ashcroft said at the news conference. "Hatred is the enemy of justice, regardless of its source. We will not rest until justice is done for Julianne Marie Williams and for Lollie Winans."

At a federal prison in Petersburg, Va., according to court papers filed by the government, Rice said he intentionally picked women to assault "because they are more vulnerable than men."

Prosecutors also said in the papers that Rice "hates gays." The Human Rights Campaign, a national gay and lesbian organization, praised the Justice Department. "With this indictment, the federal government has recognized the horrendous nature of this hate crime and that it should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law," said political director Winnie Stachelberg.

Rice, 34, was indicted by a federal grand jury Tuesday in Charlottesville, Va.; the indictment was announced Wednesday in Washington.

Federal authorities had automatic jurisdiction in the case because the slayings took place on U.S. government land. A federal hate-crimes law covers crimes motivated by race and religion, but not sex or sexual orientation. An effort to add those categories failed two years ago.

The Justice Department was able to push for a hate-crimes type of indictment in this case, however, because comments

Rice allegedly made in prison indicate he selected the women "because of the actual or perceived gender or sexual orientation" of his victims.

Rice was charged with four counts of capital murder.

• One count for each murder on the basis of Rice's motivation, which allows prosecutors to introduce more evidence than a straight murder charge.

• One conventional murder charge for each woman's death in case the "hate crime" charges are rejected by a jury, department officials said. Conviction on any of the charges could bring Rice the death penalty.

The murders were not Rice's first offenses against women, according to the government's court documents.

Prosecutors said they will present evidence that "the defendant's killing of the two women was part of an ongoing plan, scheme or modus operandi to assault, intimidate, injure, and kill women because of their gender," according to court filings.

NATION BRIEF

Will a pill replace huffing and puffing?

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a couch potato's dream: Instead of sweating and straining, people someday may simply pop a pill to get in shape, say researchers who have identified how muscle cells get stronger from regular exercise.

Researchers at Duke University and the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center have found the chemical pathway that muscle cells use to build up their strength and endurance.

With this basic knowledge in hand, it may now be possible to develop a pill that pumps up muscle cells without all that exercise, said Dr. R. Sanders Williams, the dean of the Duke University School of Medicine.

"That may be one of the possibilities," he said.

But, as a physician, Williams said the main target of the research is to help people with heart disease or other conditions that keep them from doing enough exercise to remain healthy.

"This could lead to drugs that will let people get the health benefits of regular exercise, even if they cannot exercise," he said. This could improve the health of patients with heart or lung disease, or lower the risk of diabetes II, for instance.

Spies haven't come in from the cold

By Judith Ingram
Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Russian successor to the KGB on Wednesday accused the CIA of trying to acquire military secrets, allegations that include such traditional spy tradecraft as invisible ink, secret drop points, and mind-altering drugs.

Russian television showed grainy footage provided by security services.

Mark Mansfield, a spokesman for the Langley, Va.-based CIA, declined to comment Wednesday. Agency officials routinely decline to discuss foreign allegations of U.S. espionage.

Despite the end of the Cold War, experts say the spy business is alive and well between Russia and the United States and that both sides have a healthy interest in trying to predict the other's next moves — even if they're now allies.

A spokesman for the Federal Security Service, the Soviet-era KGB's chief successor, said CIA officers posing as embassy officials in Russia and another, unidentified ex-Soviet republic had tried to recruit an employee at a secret Russian Defense Ministry installation.

The security service interfered at an early stage, and it was able to monitor the CIA officers' activities and prevent serious damage to Russia's security, the spokesman said on the condition of anonymity.

The service named two alleged participants in the operation: David Robertson, whose post at an unnamed embassy in the former Soviet Union was not described, and Yunju Kensing, reportedly a third secretary in the consular department of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. The Interfax news agency, citing an "informed source," said Kensing had already left Moscow.

It quoted the security service's press office as saying that Kensing, like other alleged American intelligence agents in Russia, had not met personally with her Russian contact or contacts. Instead, she used secret drop points and messages in invisible ink.

State-controlled ORT television showed grainy footage of a woman identified as Kensing walking with other Embassy employees. It also broadcast pictures of a plastic-wrapped package stashed among some bushes in what it identified as the Sokolniki region of Moscow and an interview in a darkened room with a man identified as a Federal Security Service operative.

He explained that the Russian Defense Ministry employee, identified only by his first name, Viktor, had gone to a U.S. Embassy in another former Soviet republic last spring to try to find information about a relative who was missing abroad. Embassy officers allegedly slipped him psychotropic drugs to get information, because he was found a week later wandering the streets in shock and with amnesia.

The ITAR-Tass news agency reported that only after psychiatric treatment had Viktor — whom a security service employee called a "real patriot" — been able to reconstruct the details of his visit.

Afghanistan arrests nine for attacks

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Afghan officials on Wednesday announced arrests in a rocket attack on international peacekeepers and a bombing that targeted the country's Defense minister.

The arrests came as factional fighting persisted within Afghanistan, and a U.N. envoy said establishment of an Afghan army and police force is the only way to ensure long-term stability.

Defense Ministry official Mir Jan said four people were taken into custody in the eastern city of Jalalabad, where a bomb exploded Monday near a convoy, missing Defense Minister Mohammed Fahim but killing five people.

Five people were arrested in a Kabul neighborhood where two missiles were fired Sunday at a German-Danish garrison of peacekeepers, said Gen. Din Muhammad Jurat, an Interior Ministry official. No one was injured.

Officials believed the rocket attack was part of a campaign to discredit interim Prime Minister Hamid Karzai's administration in the months preceding the loya jirga, a grand council that will meet in June to select a new government.

Meanwhile, crew members of two U.S. Army Apache helicopters suffered non-life threatening injuries when their chopper made a hard landing Wednesday at a remote site northeast of Kandahar, U.S. Central Command said. The cause was not clear, but Central Command said it was not because of hostile fire. A Canadian platoon was deployed to secure the site.

Fighting was reported in the western province of Nimroz, on the border with Iran. The Pakistan-based Afghan Islamic Press said forces opposed to Kabul-appointed governor Abdul Karim Brohi had seized areas along a major trade route. Brohi sent 500 reinforcements to bolster his position there, the agency said.

The Kabul government had no comment, although the U.N. refugee agency in Geneva spoke Tuesday of clashes in the area.

Soldier accused of killing her kids

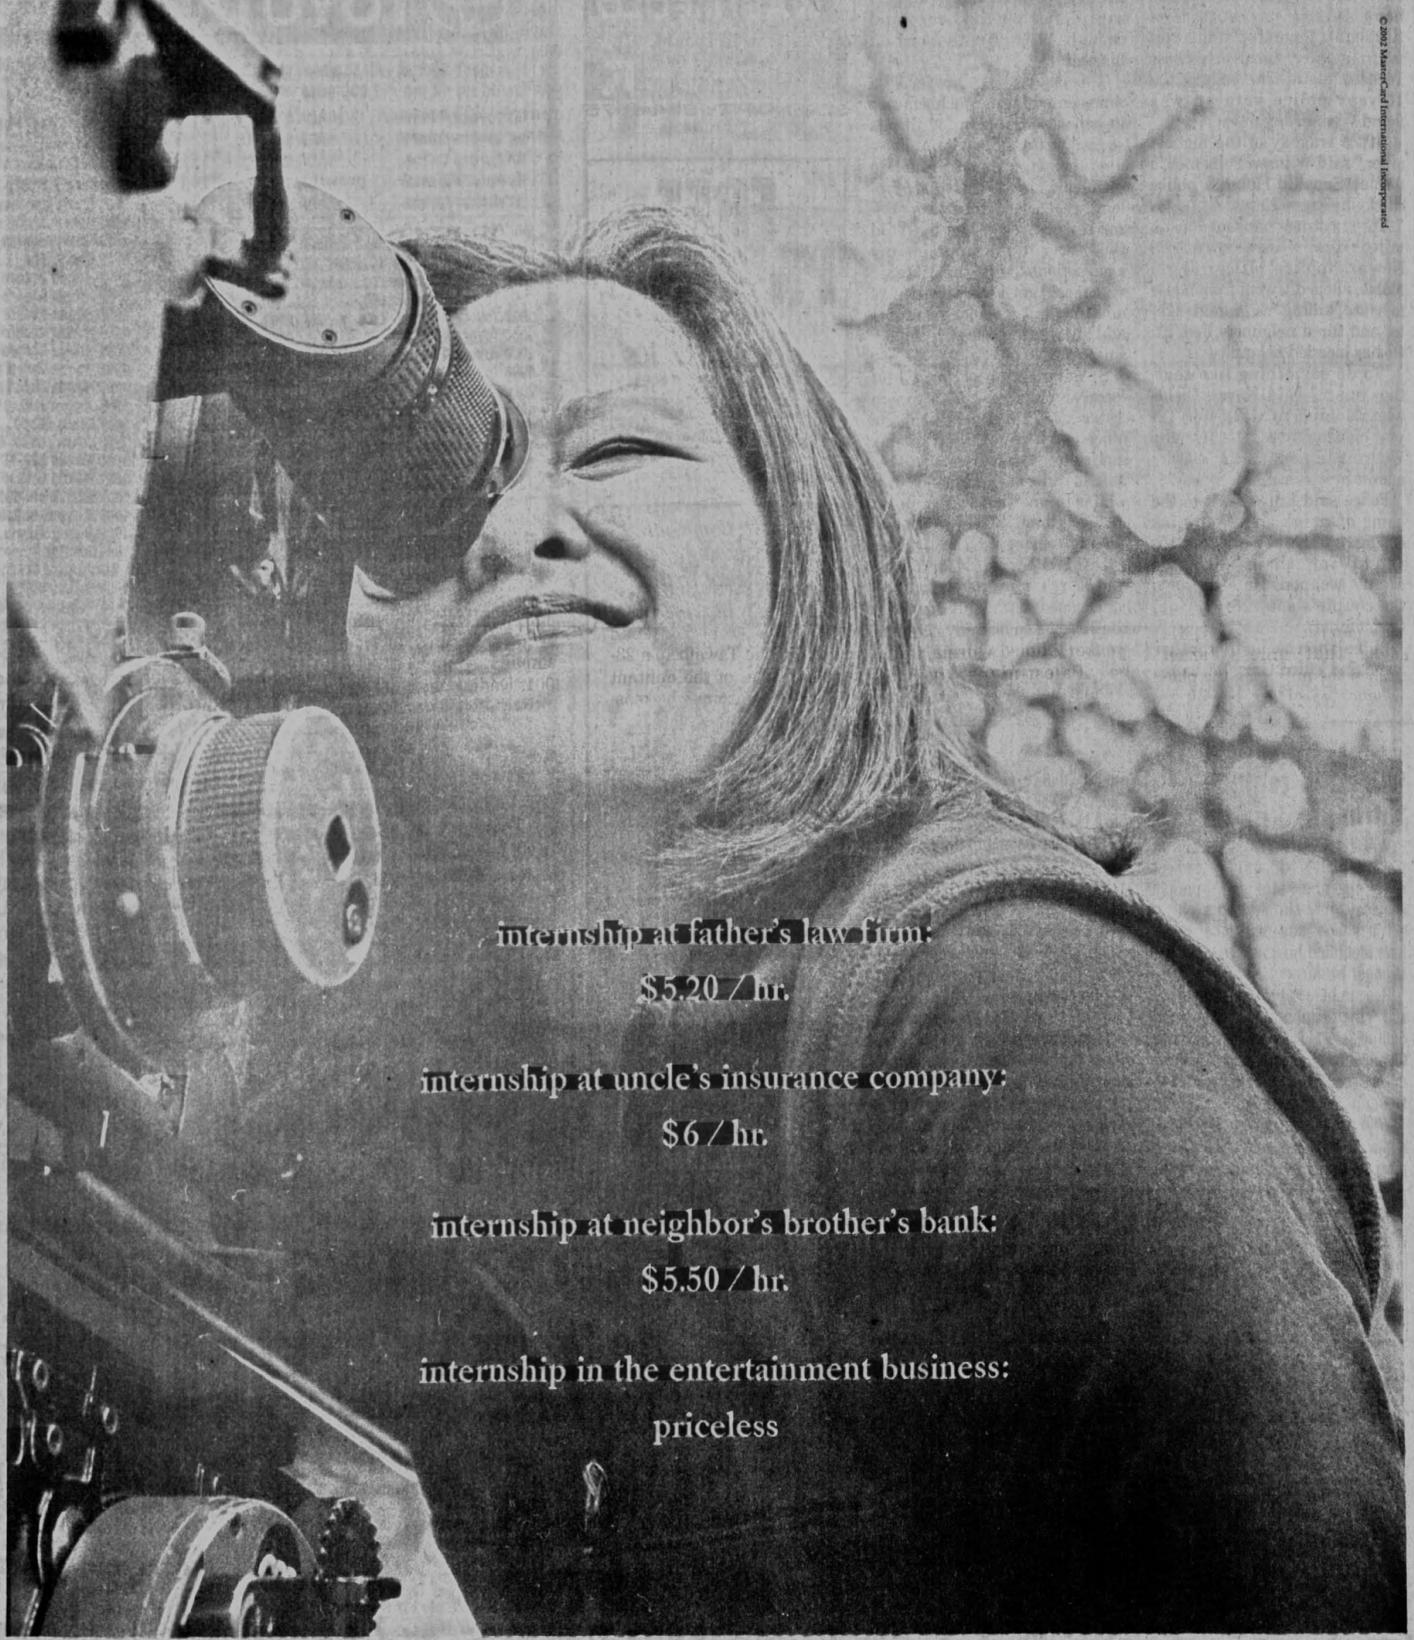

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP) — A U.S. soldier charged with murder in the drowning of her two young children suffered from mental illness but knew she was doing wrong, a prosecution witness told a court-martial Wednesday.

Dr. Park Dietz, a forensic psychiatrist who testified in the trial of Andrea Yates, the Texas woman sentenced to life for drowning her five children, said the primary motive of Spc. Lillie Morgan, 22, was to hurt a husband she thought was cheating on her.

"She knew she was drowning her children — she knew drowning them would cause their deaths," Dietz testified, disputing defense claims that the woman was too disturbed to understand her actions. "There was more than one motive, but the primary motive was revenge."

Morgan, of Marksville, La., has admitted in written confessions and courtroom testimony to drowning 3-year-old Joshua and 2-month-old Jazmin on Sept. 18, 2001, in her family's apartment in a military housing complex in Hanau, near Frankfurt.

Dietz's testimony in the trial, which began last week, followed three defense experts who said Wednesday that Morgan suffers from schizophrenia and was in a psychotic state at the time of the killing. Morgan has testified that she wanted to send the children to heaven so they would be better off.

Palestinian employees of the United Nations wait to be checked by Israeli soldiers before entering a yard with hundreds of Palestinian detainees that surrendered in Al Ain refugee camp in the northern West Bank town of Nablus on Wednesday. During the night, Israeli forces using tanks and helicopter gunships shelled the camp. After daybreak, soldiers using loudspeakers called on teenage boys and men to come out of their homes and surrender.

Sharon: Battle to continue

and the Gaza Strip, the military said.

Sharon's statement earlier Wednesday defied increasingly impatient U.S. demands for a withdrawal from Palestinian towns — to be delivered in person Friday by Secretary of State Colin Powell — and came hours after an Islamic militant blew himself up on a bus in northern Israel, killing himself and eight passengers.

Speaking to cheering soldiers at a post overlooking the battered Jenin refugee camp, Sharon said he explained to President Bush that "we are in the middle of a battle" which, if abandoned prematurely, would only require another round of fighting later on.

"Once we finish, we are not going to stay here," the former general said. "But first we have to accomplish our mission." He added that unless Israel crushed the militants, the phenomenon of suicide bombings "could spread like a plague around the world."

Earlier in the day, Israel's Security Cabinet affirmed the decision to continue the offensive. By nightfall, resistance was subdued in the Jenin camp — where fighting has raged for days and where 13 Israeli soldiers were killed Tuesday in a sophisticated Palestinian ambush — and in the old town of Nablus, the largest West bank city.

Powell insisted that his peacekeeping mission was not threatened by Sharon's refusal to halt the incursions. "My mission is not in the least in jeopardy," he told reporters in Spain.

Powell, who will arrive in Jerusalem late today, said he intends to meet both Sharon and Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat. Sharon said Powell would be making a "tragic mistake" in meeting with Arafat, who has been confined to his Ramallah offices by Israeli forces for the past two weeks.

Sharon has branded Arafat the leader of a "regime of terror" and has suggested he would no longer do business with him. However, Powell iterated Wednesday that the United States would continue dealing with Arafat.

Palestinian Parliament Speaker Ahmed Qureia said the Palestinians would demand that Powell secure an immediate Israeli withdrawal from Palestinian areas and that U.S. mediators come up with a timetable for carrying out a cease-fire.

Israel withdrew from two Palestinian towns earlier this week, but its forces remained in four others.

In the Jenin refugee camp, dozens of gunmen holed up in a small area fired sporadically Wednesday morning at Israeli troops advancing with bulldozers. A local leader of the militant group Hamas, Jamal Abdel Salam, quoted one gunman as telling him by phone: "We are in a group inside a house. They [the Israelis] are at the door, and they are coming to arrest us. Take care of my family."

Later Wednesday, approximately 300 camp residents, including armed men, women, and children, surrendered to Israeli troops. An Associated Press photographer driving through the camp saw many building façades with wrecking-ball-sized holes from Israeli shelling. Streets were deserted, and there was no sign of Palestinian resistance.

More than 100 Palestinians are believed to have been killed in the Jenin camp, and many bodies remain in the streets. Among those reported dead was Mahmoud Tawalbeh, a 23-year-old leader of the militant Islamic Jihad group who masterminded a number of suicide bombings.

In Nablus, rescue workers on Wednesday retrieved the bodies of 14 Palestinians, bringing the total of dead in the city since the start of the Israeli invasion to 60. The old city of Nablus, a warren of narrow alleys, had been the scene of fierce battles for days.

UI moves to block mass e-mails pany but would not confirm that he sent it himself.

ITS officials speculate that Damianos used computer software available free on the Internet to produce the message promoting his Las Vegas, Nev., company. They could not say when the new security measures would take effect.

Ificandream Inc. went too far with the e-mail, but the university should have done a more efficient job of protecting information on the Internet, said Damianos, a former computer programmer, from his Las Vegas office.

"They should restrict the number of returns from a people search on their Web site to 25 or fewer results," he said, adding that universities should only make the records available to on-campus computers.

All Big Ten schools supply full access to e-mail addresses in their online directories, and none have a block on off-campus computers. Only allowing people on-campus to access to the directory is not an option, said David Dobbins, the UI assistant vice president for ITS.

Current policy requires that Phillip Jones, the vice president for Student Services, authorize any mass e-mail sent to UI students.

"There is no way to prevent similar mass e-mails, but the university may resort to legal action for repeated violations of the policy," Dobbins said, adding that the university has filed complaints with Damianos' Internet service provider.

The university will issue a formal warning to Damianos, he said.

A similar mass e-mail from Damianos' company hit students at the University of Alabama. The school's spokeswoman, Cathy Andreen, agreed with Dobbins that there is no way to stop unauthorized mass e-mails.

Damianos said his organization would stop targeting universities for the campaign to sail from Australia to the 2004 Summer Olympics in Greece.

a good idea," he said.

Franchise operations, such as MidAmerican, now provide area communities with electricity. Iowa City's contract with the company expired in November 2001, leading the Public Power Initiative for Iowa City to investigate municipally owned power.

Group member Bob Welsh said a public-power plan would enable Iowa City to purchase electricity from providers, like MidAmerican, at wholesale prices.

"That means lower rates for the consumers," he said.

According to the Iowa Association of Municipal Utilities, approximately two-thirds of the 2,000 public-power systems in the United States buy from large providers. In Iowa, the reports states, MidAmerican residential customers pay 41 percent more than the average municipal utility rate.

"We would negotiate with general energy producers to get the best rate for our citizens," said Iowa City City Councilor Ross Wilburn.

The council plans to re-address the study at its May 6 work session. A second joint meeting between area governments is set for June 19 in North Liberty.

"It's nothing against MidAmerican," Kanner said. "It's protecting its interests; our interests are the citizens of Iowa City."

The state now has 137 public electricity systems.

Regents expected to OK new building

FUNDING

The regents authorized the UI to begin planning the project's three-story, 42,600 square-foot structure in January 2000. The design calls for 14 classrooms, as well as broadcast studios and laboratories. The facility will also house offices, meeting spaces, and the DI.

The new building will be located between the Becker Communications Studies Building and the CRANDIC Railway tracks, near the Main Library. A second-level walkway will connect the building to Becker. University officials expect construction to be finished by July 2004.

The plans for the new structure are on hold pending approval of the state infrastructure bill — a $51 million fund for new regent projects that would allot $13 million to the university for the project.

Legislators could pass the bill before the regular session ends, which might be as soon as this afternoon, said Joe Shannahan, a spokesman for Gov. Vilsack.

Construction could begin in November, said Doug True, the UI vice president for Finance.

Designs for the remodeling of the Burge food service will allow the 70,000-square-foot area to provide eating services similar to those in the Hillcrest Marketplace. The facility will be able to accommodate 5,800 meals daily.

Funding for the remodeling will partly come from room-and-board fees, said George Hollins, the UI director of design and construction services.

"Burge is more than 30 years old and is very much outdated," he said. "The style needs to be improved."

Raising kids for free

Lisa Livermore's two-part series on welfare recipients does a great disservice to mothers everywhere, and to low-income women in particular. It perpetuates the lie that raising children is not work, as well as the myth that the underprivileged are lazy. Raising children IS work, albeit UNPAID labor. This fact is obvious. When a mother enlists with an employer for wages, she must hire someone else to care for her children.

When a woman raises her own children, she earns no wage. If she provides surrogate care for someone else's children, she can earn slightly more. The state of Iowa values child rearing somewhat, paying childcare providers $2 or less per hour, for a full day of work raising a child.

Until the labor of raising a child is recognized and honored for the rewarding and demanding work that it indeed is, we will be continually forced to strike the best deal possible for ourselves and our children, in a misogynistic patriarchy.

When the double standard no longer divides women into "good girls" vs. "fallen women," we will be free to choose motherhood without fear of reprisal.

Death penalty not the answer to Moussaoui

Zacarias Moussaoui, who has been awaiting an answer since August 16, 2001, on whether the United States will seek the death penalty in his case, has received his answer — on March 29, the government announced it plans to seek the death penalty for the French-born man of Moroccan descent believed to be the 20th hijacker in the Sept. 11 tragedy.

Moussaoui was arrested August 16 after officials at a flight school in Minnesota that he was attending tipped off the FBI. He had aroused the suspicion of his instructors because his attitude was belligerent, he was evasive about his personal background, he declined to speak French with an instructor who knew the language, and he paid the $6,300 fee in cash. He also reportedly did not want to learn how to take off or land, only how to steer a jumbo jet while it was in the air.

He now faces six counts of conspiring with Osama bin Laden, four of which are punishable by death.

The death penalty may seem like a just way to deal with a person who may have planned to inflict damage upon United Pursuing the death penalty for an international terrorist will not deter future attacks, nor will it provide a full sense of revenge or closure so many Americans expect.

States. When terrorists attacked the World Trade Center, many people cried out for retribution and revenge. As of yet, no one has been punished for this crime. Moussaoui's mother contends that he is a scapegoat for the entire event, and she reminds Americans that her son was in jail on Sept. 11 and had been for some time.

Many European countries disagree with the U.S. decision to seek the death penalty, especially the French, who abolished the death penalty two decades ago. They frown upon other countries that use it and may even refuse to cooperate by withholding documents needed to convict Moussaoui. Furthermore, suspects being held in Europe may not be extradited to the United States if it is believed that they will face the death penalty.

In addition to Moussaoui being seen as a scapegoat for the attack on America, enemies of this country would likely see his execution as a cause to call him a martyr. Terrorists are willing to die for their cause, and they believe that they will certainly go to heaven when they do. Moussaoui's death would not be the deterrent to terrorists that the United States would like it to be; it will simply give them a hero to celebrate and yet another reason to strike again.

Much of the Arab world's loathing of the U.S. stems from inconsistencies within and between our foreign and domestic policies. While we push for human rights in Asia, we continue to support brutal regimes in South America and employ capital punishment on our own citizens. Employing it on others will only make matters worse.

Defend Israel to defend freedom

Israel is the freest state in the Middle East. Whether one uses the Wall Street Journal's Index of Economic Freedom or Freedom House's Freedom of the World report to indicate levels of freedom, Israel is far ahead of its neighbors. That is why defenders of liberty ought to be on the side of Israel in its struggle against terrorism.

Admittedly, Israel is not a utopia. It is less free than the United States and many other developed nations. While property rights are generally secure, expropriation does occur in the occupied territories. People living in the occupied territories do not enjoy full property rights and civil rights.

If that were the end of the analysis, we could blame Israel for being an unjust government. However, we live in the real world. The choice for us is not between Israel and the ideal free society. Our choice is between Israel and the Palestinian Authority.

We could use neighboring Arab states as a model of what the Palestinian Authority might become if allowed to reach statehood. The comparison is generous, because a terrorist runs the Palestinian Authority, whereas monarchies run most Arab states.

We could begin with Jordan, perhaps the most liberal Arab state. According to the Index of Economic Freedom, Jordan is only slightly behind Israel when it comes to economic freedom. According to Freedom House, Jordan is "partly free," whereas Israel is a "free" state. One might have room to defend a Jordan-like state in the occupied territories. Despite its shortcomings, it is hardly the type of state Palestine would be. In 1970, Yasser Arafat's PLO tried to overthrow Jordan's government. Apparently, Jordan is so liberal that it is worth revolution to Arafat. Of course, when we look past Jordan, Islamic states are among the most vile governments in the world. According to Freedom House, the 11 worst states are filled with Arab nations. Syria, Saudi Arabia, Iraq, and Libya all make the list. There is little reason to believe that a Palestinian state will be anything less than another Syria. Syria is a socialist junta that has squashed freedom of expression and actively supports terrorist organizations. Which would you prefer? On one hand, there is a long road towards peace with occasional Israeli abuses eventually ending with full annexation of the occupied territories or the birth of a moderate Arab state. On the other is the creation of a rogue state run by terrorists who reasonably believe that terrorism solves problems.

James Eaves-Johnson

IN DEFENSE OF LIFE, LIBERTY, AND PROPERTY

After all, if Israel backed down now, it would be backing down after the largest increase in terrorist activity in the recent two-year intifada. While Israel should be more careful to avoid collateral damage, its response to terror is appropriate. Israel has every right to engage in self-defense. Israel targets military objectives. Palestinian bombers, many of whom have connections to Arafat, target innocent civilians. There should be no question that Israel has the moral high ground in this conflict.

A single terrorist attack on America has caused our government to engage in broad use of racial profiling. Our government has taken over a country halfway across the globe and installed a new government there. Many of those in power have talked about starting a war with Iraq. We already have troops in a variety of nations believed to have ties with various terrorist groups. This is our response to a single attack.

Israel has been attacked repeatedly. It has been attacked multiple times by multiple foreign governments. It has seen streams of terrorists blow themselves up in crowds of civilians. They have seen terrorists target civilians who were celebrating the holiest Jewish holidays.

If Israel's response were equivalent to ours, the occupied territories would not exist. Arafat would be dead. There would be a single unified Israel and no terrorists operating in Ramallah or Bethlehem.

In 1948, Palestinians had the chance to have a Palestinian state. Israel would have been a divided nation with no access to Jerusalem. Arabs tried to drive the Jews into the sea rather than allowing Israel to exist. In 1956, Arafat joined the fight with his Fatah movement. Every time Israel offered peace to Arafat, his forces responded with more violence. We all want a freer Israel. However, denying Israel its right to self-defense will only bring more tyranny.

Iowa's closed-file adoption law needs reconsideration

The Supreme Court has refused to give information about his birth parents to a Coralville man who was adopted 30 years ago by a Solon couple. He has been looking for his biological parents for some time, and he had hoped that a court of law would provide some assistance.

The adoption laws in Iowa are cut-and-dried — adoption records are sealed and can only be opened by a court of law. Even then, courts will usually only open them for medical emergencies. With more than 300 adoptions successfully completed a year by the Iowa branch of American Adoptions, this law may need to be more closely examined.

The courts wish to uphold the "parents' right to be left alone"; they don't want to infringe on one person's rights while upholding another's. It is a sticky situation that leaves adopted children on their own to find their parents, while the parents are unaware of their child's efforts. One need only to look on the Internet at the lists of people searching for their parents to see that with so many adoptions, a closed-file policy should be re-evaluated.

It is difficult to imagine that after 30 years, the parents of the Coralville man still feel strongly about their right to privacy. Most adopted children likely wouldn't be looking for parental guidance in their biological parents, because they were provided that by their adopted parents. They are probably just looking for a face to put to a name.

Other states have several choices available for adopted children. In Florida, adopted children 18 years of age or older can petition the court to open the records. In Colorado, an 18-year-old can ask the courts to contact the parents for her or him. If the parents consent, they can meet. Unless Iowa's current law is revamped, adopted children in this state will have to continue to do their own work to find their biological parents.

Determining what's cool by watching TV

When I was a kid, I wanted to be a TV star. I wanted to be as confident as Michael P. Keaton, as suave as Sam Malone, and as respected as Dr. "Hawkeye" Pierce. And if anybody picked on me in school, I wanted to turn 8 feet tall and green like The Incredible Hulk.

I think that most of us wanted to be TV stars when we were kids, though. They were our role models. They taught us how to live, how to love, and most importantly, how to be cool.

And maybe that's why I wanted to be a TV star. If I were a TV star, I would have achieved ultimate "coolness."

Everyone on TV is cool. They'd have to be, or else people would stop watching their shows. Who is going to tune into a show without cool characters? Am I right?

Even "Seinfeld" and "Friends" have "cool" characters. Even though they are the most selfish, sad people I've ever seen, their coolness is so cool that they earned $1 million per episode.

Cool. So, in my juvenile state of mind I decided that if I wanted to validate whatever "coolness" I think I have, I need to be on TV. And this past weekend I got that chance. "Big Brother" auditions were held at the Coral Ridge Mall. Of course, I could not resist the opportunity to validate my cool.

Now, "Big Brother," for those of you who don't know, is a show in which several strangers have their lives taped while they live together in the same house (like "The Real World"). They then have to complete challenges ("Fear Factor") to avoid being voted out by the other contestants ("Survivor").

And because it's a reality show, CBS wasn't looking for people who "act" cool. They were looking for genuinely cool people.

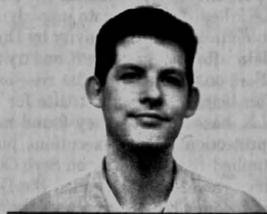

When I got to Coral Ridge Mall, the CBS folks asked me for two photographs. I guess they wanted to make sure I looked cool.

Then they gave me an eight-page application to fill out. I guess they wanted to see how cool I am on paper. The questions they used to figure that out were interesting. Here's a sample:

- "What do you think would be the hardest thing about living with 11 strangers?" (I wrote: "Nothing, if they aren't stupid and loud.")

- "Do you have any food allergies?" ("I can't eat anything gross.")

- "Have you ever held any interesting jobs?" ("Aside from being a graduate student, and a newspaper columnist, the only real interesting job I've ever had was as a crack-addict, but I think that's more of a lifestyle rather than a job.")

Jim Trammell

Next, I had to be videotaped for two minutes while I explained to the folks at CBS why I am a perfect candidate for "Big Brother." I can't remember what all I said, but I know that the more I talked, the more I realized I'm not as cool as I'd like to think I am.

"Uh, I'd, uh, be like a, uh, good 'Big Brother' contestant because, uh, like, I don't like a lot of people. Especially stupid, loud people. Uh, and uh, in my spare time, uh, I, uh, like to, you know, watch TV." And then my mind went completely blank.

I realized two important things that day. First, when a camera is on me, I turn into Butthead.

Second, the reason I couldn't justify why my life was cool enough for TV is because it ISNT all that cool. I mean, c'mon. I said I like to watch TV!!! How sad can you get?

There is a reason that too many of us watch too much TV. It's because most of our lives are so pathetic that we have to turn to TV characters to at least feel cool. We know we aren't cool, so we watch TV so that we can consume some cool.

If we can't be the Fonz, at least we can hang out with him. (That's why Richie seemed cool, remember?)

And if we were cool enough for TV, there would already be TV shows about our lives. How many TV shows resemble your pathetic life? Probably none. (And if you said that World's Wildest Police Videos or Girls Gone Wild captures the essence of your life, you really need help.)

And besides, cool people don't watch TV, anyway. Don't believe me? Consider how many of our favorite cool TV characters actually watch TV. None! No one on TV watches TV, because watching TV isn't all that cool.

Consider the few exceptions who DO watch TV on TV: Homer Simpson, Al Bundy, and Beavis and Butthead.

Really, who wants to grow up to be like those losers? Huh-huh-huh. Cool.

WORLD BRIEFS

Powell ignores Israeli objections to meeting

MADRID, Spain (AP)— Secretary of State Colin Powell said Wednesday he would push ahead with his peacekeeping mission in the Middle East despite Israel's refusal to halt military incursions and its objections to his meeting Yasser Arafat.

Powell brushed aside Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's assertion that the Arafat meeting this weekend would be "a tragic mistake." The secretary said his mission was "not in the least in jeopardy."

He said he hoped Sharon would help the meeting take place and also ease restrictions on Arafat in Ramallah to help him communicate more readily with other Palestinian leaders.

"He is the partner whom Israel will have to deal with," Powell said after his peace mission was endorsed in Madrid by the European Union, the United Nations, and Russian Foreign Minister Igor Ivanov.

Powell will face daunting challenges as he tries to persuade Sharon to pull back, Arafat to speak against terror, and both sides to get back to the peace table.

The crux of Powell's two-step plan is to try to arrange a cease-fire between Israel and the Palestinians and then steer them into negotiations that would culminate in a Palestinian state on land Israel now holds.

But Sharon pledged on Wednesday to maintain the offensive until Palestinian militias are destroyed.

Even if Powell gains a cease-fire, many in the region question how well it might hold if there are more Palestinian suicide attacks. Further, mistrust would make talks about future borders and a Palestinian state difficult, with the constant threat of a wider war in the region.

Venezuela's oil exports in trouble

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Venezuela's government and its opposition engaged in an escalating game of brinkmanship Wednesday that jeopardized the country's oil exports and triggered scattered street violence in several cities.

Interior Minister Ramon Rodriguez Chacin said Molotov cocktails had been found at the offices of the opposition Democratic Action party. He accused the party of planning to distribute them to incite unrest and provoke President Hugo Chavez's government. He warned that authorities would do what it takes to ensure security.

Labor boss Carlos Ortega warned that his Venezuelan Workers Confederation — already on strike — would call an indefinite walkout if Chavez declared a state of emergency to quell violence and purge dissenters from the state oil monopoly.

But Vice President Diosdado Cabello said the government was not considering a state of emergency or "any other extraordinary action." He also denied a claim by a National Guard general, Rafael Damiani Bustillos, that Chavez had ordered the guard to remove thousands of protesters maintaining a vigil outside oil monopoly headquarters.

A 48-hour strike appeared to be losing steam Wednesday, but oil officials acknowledged for the first time that a slowdown at Petroleos de Venezuela was creating supply problems. The conflict erupted after Chavez angered longtime employees by naming new management at PDVSA, one of the world's largest oil companies.

"Shipments will be delayed and the situation obviously is not normal," PDVSA Vice President and board member Jorge Kamkoff said.

Afghan soldiers push into poppy country

MARJAH, Afghanistan (AP) Armed with assault rifles and fistfuls of American dollars, government agents drove deep into Afghanistan's biggest poppy-growing region Wednesday to begin enforcing a plan to eradicate the opium-bearing crop.

As soldiers with Kalashnikov rifles and grenade launchers looked on, tractors chewed up fields of poppy in one part of Helmand province, which produces most of Afghanistan's opium. Farmers said they had little choice but to accept state compensation money.

"They have gunmen, they have cars, they have force," said Durjan, a 23-year-old farmer who planned to plant beans where poppies once stood. "We have no option."

At the urging of the United Nations and foreign governments, the weak Afghan government is rushing to wipe out the crop that provides the raw material for heroin just two weeks before most farmers harvest the plant.

Afghanistan was once the source of 70 percent of the world's opium. The Taliban successfully banned poppies in 2000, but farmers quickly planted them again as the U.S. bombing campaign helped push the Islamic militia from power late last year.

Srebrenica report derided as 'whitewash'

By Anthony Deutch
Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — A six-year study of the 1995 slaughter of thousands of Muslims by Serb troops in the Bosnian "safe zone" of Srebrenica spread responsibility for the debacle among the Dutch government, its army commanders, and the United Nations. But relatives of victims castigated the report as a whitewash.

The 7,600-page report commissioned by the Dutch government, a historical reconstruction of the worst massacre in Europe since World War II, immediately set off a political firestorm in the Netherlands and angry reactions in Bosnia.

Some 7,500 Muslims in the U.N.-declared safe haven were killed during one ferocious week of bloodletting in July 1995. Most were slain after being caught trying to flee the Serb onslaught, but many were killed after being taken from a Dutch-manned U.N. base where they had been promised protection.

Although the report implied that the Dutch battalion, or Dutchbat, could have done more to protect the Muslims, it set out so many mitigating arguments that a delegation of victims' relatives stormed out during a presentation of the summary.

"It's very simple. Dutchbat was complicit in genocide," said Hassan Nuhanovic, who was then a translator for the battalion and whose father and brother were among the victims. "They should investigate properly any accusations of criminal activity by Dutchbat, indict them, arrest them, and try them in court."

The researchers of the Netherlands Institute for War Documentation said they found no written orders for mass executions, but put primary responsibility on Serb Gen. Ratko Mladic, who persuaded the Dutch to let the Serb army evacuate the enclave.

The report also said no evidence was found linking the Serb leadership in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, to the killings and that links to then-Bosnian Serb President Radovan Karadzic were "unclear." It blamed former Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic, who was extradited to The Hague in June, 2001, for trial, only "for the violent nature" of Yugoslavia's disintegration in the 1990s.

Released just five weeks before national elections, the study prompted calls from opponents of the three-party governing coalition for a parliamentary inquiry that would require Cabinet ministers to testify under oath.

"The politicians must accept the consequences," said Jan Peter Balkenende, the head of the Christian Democratic Alliance, the leading opposition party.

Parliament scheduled a debate on the report for April 25. In Bosnia, the Foreign Ministry summoned the Dutch ambassador to a meeting Thursday to explain the findings.

Iowa wins first under lights

The Hawkeyes beat Northern Illinois in their first-ever home game at night

By Jeremy Shapiro
 The Daily Iowan

Appropriately enough, both teams lit up the scoreboard in Iowa's 11-9 win in the first official night home game in 112 years of Hawkeye baseball. Down 6-2 in the bottom of the fourth, Iowa battled back with some timely hitting, scoring three runs in both the fifth and sixth. They added insurance runs in the seventh and eighth, but it went down to the last batter before the lights went out at Duane Banks Field. Freshman Jeff Gilmore was brought in to pitch the top of the ninth. After a strikeout, NIU's Pat Kerrigan hit a line drive that just cleared the left center fence to cut the lead to two. After another strikeout, the next two Huskies singled and doubled to put the tying run at second. Gilmore blew away pinch hitter Mike Brown on three pitches to end the game. He struck out the side, but not before making fans nervous. "We are grooming him for that," said Iowa coach Scott Broghamer of his ninth inning role. "He's got the stuff to come in and close ballgames. He got the job done tonight. Of course, it's nice to have more than one run lead before that." The key offensive hit was a three-run homer by designated hitter Andy Jensen in the fifth, evening things up at six. Jensen got a hold of a Knick Davis offering and drilled it to left, giving the Hawkeyes the momentum. "They called time, and because they just had a wild pitch, the Iowa coaches didn't want me to bunt anymore," Jensen said. "It was a slider, and I made contact. That gave us some good momentum." The scoring began in the bottom of the first, when Brad Carlson drove in two with a two-out single. Carlson was thrown out trying for second, but the runs were important because Iowa has had trouble getting the offense going early in past games. The Huskies came right back with two runs in both the top of the second and the top of the third, chasing starter Tim Gudex. Chris Maliszewski came in but didn't fare much better. With one on and two out, Northern Illinois' Greg Larson homered to give the Huskies a 6-2 lead. A based loaded single by Brad Husz in the bottom of the fourth got one of those runs back. However, Davis got of the jam by striking out John Cappellano and getting Jeff Gremley to harmlessly fly out.

Super-sized

With renovations this year, Augusta National is bigger than ever

By Doug Ferguson
 Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The hype over the Masters is no longer about the possibility of a grand slam. This time, it's the punishment expected from a grand course.

Augusta National has undergone many changes since Tiger Woods left in April 2001 after completing his unprecedented sweep of the four biggest tournaments in golf.

Starting today, Woods will try to defend his title on a super-sized version of Augusta, a course that has been stretched to nearly 7,300 yards and figures to provide the 89-man field with the toughest test in Masters history.

"It's just not as much fun as it used to be to come here and play," Bob Estes said. "You'll still have great champions, but you won't have as many opportunities to make birdies and eagles."

Chris DiMarco, the 36-hole leader last year in his Masters debut, added: "If we don't have any rain, it's going to be brutal. A couple under [par] could win the tournament."

The final swing from Woods last year was a 75-yard lob wedge from the 18th fairway. He made birdie from 15 feet for a 16-under 272, the fourth-best score in Masters history and two strokes shy of his record 270 when he won his first green jacket in 1997.

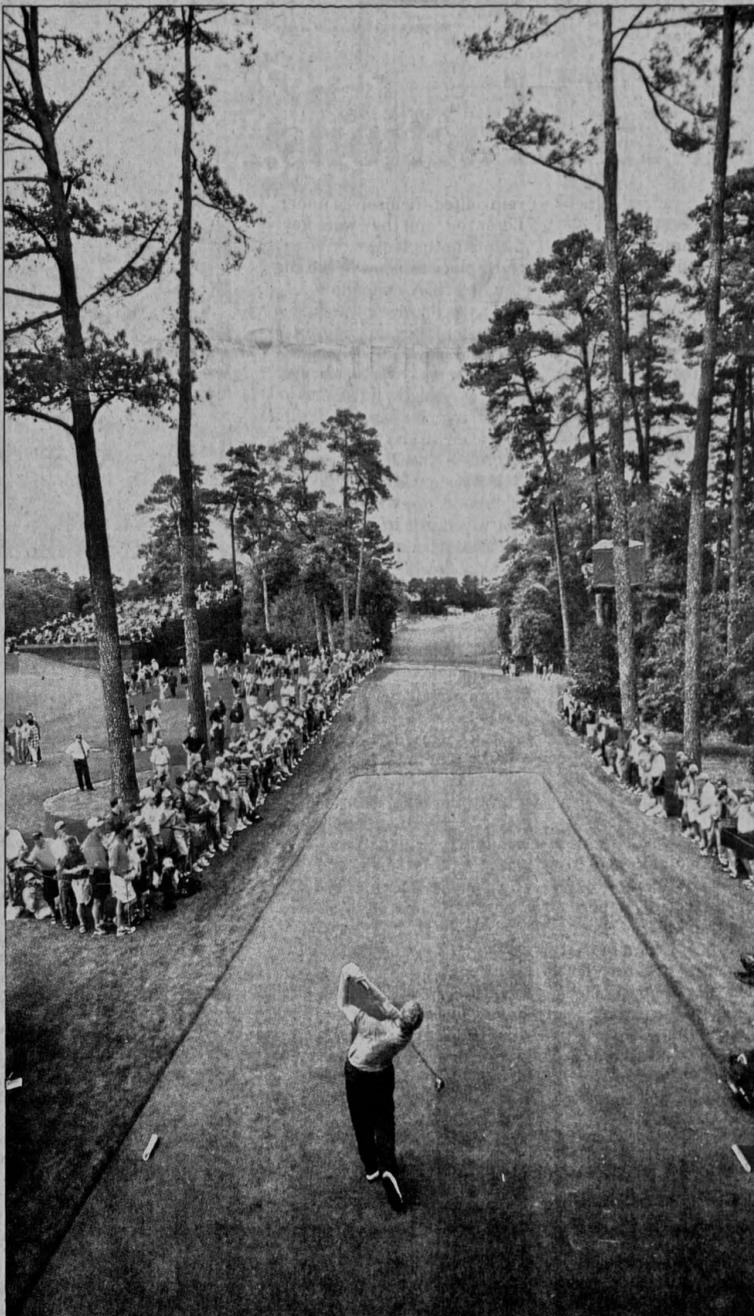

Now? Woods expects to have anything from a 5-iron to a 7-iron for his second shot in the 18th. He didn't even have that much club for his second shot on some of the par 5s.

Even his preparation has changed. Woods used to watch videos of past Masters to see if he could detect peculiar bounces along the fairways and breaks on the green.

"That doesn't happen anymore, because these are all new holes for us," he said. Well, not all of them.

Only half of the 18 holes were changed during the largest renovation project in the 70-year history of Augusta National.

Bulldozers cleared out

David J. Phillip/Associated Press

Colin Montgomerie of Scotland hits his drive from the 18th tee at the Augusta National Golf Club during a practice round for the 2002 Masters, Tuesday in Augusta, Ga.

Georgia pines to make room for a tee box that is 60 yards farther back on No. 18. The club had to buy land from adjacent Augusta Country Club for a new tee on the par-5 13th. David Duval used to reach that green with a 5-iron. Now, he has put a 7-wood in his bag, which goes about 235 yards.

What does it all mean? The player with the lowest score will slip into a green jacket at the end of the Masters, of course. What remains to be seen is what kind of score it will take. "I don't know what kind of number you put on the increased difficulty of the golf course," Duval said. "I think you'll see a lot of 70s each day, 71s, scores that are more reflective of the other majors." The scores were never a source of irritation for Augusta National Chairman Hootie Johnson when he announced the sweeping changes last year. The clubs players were hitting into the green on the par 4s were what bothered him. "We just hated that time after time, they were pulling out a sand wedge or pitching wedge," Johnson said. A sand wedge into the renovated par 4s will probably mean a player has hit into the deep bunkers or crowded trees and had to pitch out. Booming tee shots are no longer as helpful unless the

Hawkeyes wreck Drake on road

By Todd Brommelkamp
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team extended its current win streak to an even dozen contests with a pair of victories over intrastate rival Drake Wednesday afternoon in Des Moines. Iowa, which has not lost a game since March 27, tallied 26 hits en route to earning 10-0 and 12-3 wins. "We're at a good point right now, but we just need to work on getting better at a lot of the little things," head coach Gayle Blevins said. A pair of Iowa errors in the sixth inning of game two was all that kept the Hawkeyes from notching back-to-back shutouts against the Bulldogs. The errors allowed Drake to post three unearned runs in the final frame to spoil a shutout for Lisa Birocci. Birocci, a Des Moines native, settled for a complete game, two-hitter, and eight strikeouts in her return home. Elisha Huse, a freshman catcher noted primarily for her defensive work behind the plate, notched her first collegiate home run in the third inning. Huse usually occupies the 10th spot in the lineup, meaning with the designated player, she usually does not hit. "She's not had a lot of at bats, so it's fun to see someone like Elisha make the most of her opportunities," Blevins said.

IOWA WRESTLING

Four expected to sign with Hawkeyes

By Ali Noller
 The Daily Iowan

Wednesday marked the first day of the spring signing period for the college wrestling world, and Iowa coach Jim Zalesky said he expects by the end of this week to have received the letters of the four wrestlers who have orally committed to be Hawkeyes. Todd Meneely, Mark Mueller, Jeff Pfaffinger, and Ryan Fuller headline the Hawkeye's recruiting class, with Fuller being the most recent addition to a recruiting corps that boasts more than 10 state titles. Fuller, a heavyweight, orally committed to Iowa assistant coach Tom Brands on Tuesday night and said that he is ready to duke it out with his new practice partner, Steve Mocco. Mocco finished as runner-up at both the Big Ten and NCAA championships this past season. "I'm excited, because I think [wrestling Mocco] will do nothing but good for me," Fuller said. "I'll get better if I'm wrestling the best." The Lisbon native joins Mueller as the other in-state recruit, and he said that living in close proximity to Iowa City was a big factor in his decision. A lifetime Iowa wrestling fan, Fuller said he hasn't missed an Iowa home wrestling meet in the past 10 years and that he has always emulated Iowa's intense style of wrestling. Out-of-state recruits Meneely of Omaha, Neb., and Pfaffinger of Blue Earth, Minn., round out Iowa's class.

Gymnasts frustrated with fractions

Jeremy Shapiro

Fractions seem so unfair. Personally, I never minded fractions. I was fascinated when my second grade teacher, Mrs. Warner, would talk about $\frac{1}{2}$ or $\frac{3}{4}$. My favorite was $\frac{1}{2}$, to tell you the truth. As long as I'm being honest, I enjoyed a good times test, too.

The Iowa women's gymnasts probably hate fractions. Detest them, actually. One-eighth has got to be the worst. You see, if not for a stinking $\frac{1}{8}$ of a point, the GymHawks would, for the first time ever, be preparing for the NCAA championships April 18-20 in Alabama.

It seems so unfair. Not to discredit Michigan or Nebraska, the two teams advancing from Iowa's bracket to the Terific 12 in Tuscaloosa (a great name for a rock band), but it seems hard to believe that Iowa didn't somehow deserve to go instead.

Does anyone remember what the headlines were for women's gymnastics just three short years ago? "Team gets caught drinking." "Half the team suspended." "Players and families raise coup against coach." "Coach resigns amid controversy."

Not so warm and fuzzy. The program was in absolute shambles.

Three years later, the GymHawks sat a stinking $\frac{1}{8}$ point away from realizing a dream. "Alabama or Bust" was on their team poster. This time, the bust had nothing to do with drinking.

Iowa coach Mike Lorenzen deserves a good chunk of the credit for turning around a program that had nothing going for it. Why on earth would anyone come to Iowa for gymnastics?

Metaphorically speaking, this is akin to turning the L.A. Clippers into a team that narrowly lost Game 7 of the Western Conference Finals to the Lakers.

Still, Lorenzen's recruiting and training methods could only take the team so far, and ultimately the gymnasts had to produce. Halfway through the season, they weren't. The team resembled Humpty Dumpty with all its falls off the beam and bars. Admittedly, I wanted to refer to them as the FallHawks.

Still, watching the meets, you could feel the team coming together. This group is one of the most tightly knit teams you will find in college athletics. Their support for one another was unmatched by any of the seven teams I've covered at Iowa.

They cheered wildly when their teammates did well; if they happened to fall, there was a line of hugs and condolences waiting.

The story lines were fascinating. Stephanie Gran comes back from injuring both ankles. Doctors don't know if she ever can compete again, yet miraculously she's back by March, competing in all four events and even earning a perfect 10 on the vault, only the fourth such mark in school history.

Annie Rue brushed off her soft-spoken character and shy nature and performed with the kind of energy and vigor needed to get high scores from the judges. She will be one of the first two Hawkeyes ever to compete as individuals at the NCAA championships next week.

Janna Alexandrova has taken a long, winding road to Iowa, but she has become one of the top balance-beam performers in the Big Ten. She holds the school record in that event, and she will return for her senior year in quest of a perfect 10.

Seniors Corynne Cooper and Michelle Ford witnessed firsthand the rocky times in GymHawk land. Both have reinvented themselves under Lorenzen, and they were key factors in the team's drive to third-place finishes in the Big Ten and NCAA regionals.

Finally, there is Iowa's first true gymnastics superstar in Alexis Maday. The sophomore won flowers at every meet; she always seemed to finish first in something. She won the Big Ten floor exercise and tied former Olympian Elise Ray in the NCAA regionals for first in the all-around. She will travel with Rue to compete in Alabama with a realistic shot at a top-10 national finish.

The GymHawks led most of the way during its NCAA regional. Sadly, they could not hold the lead and watched as slightly more talented Nebraska and Michigan squads passed them by a fraction. Perhaps it's more disappointing coming so close and seeing it slip away.

Still, the team members have no reason to hang their heads. Their turnaround the past few years has been nothing short of amazing. I've been proud and honored to cover them the past two years, enjoying it more than a good time test.

Next year at this time, I have a feeling that the GymHawks won't need to worry about stinking fractions.

Storm eyeing UConn's standout Sue Bird

SEATTLE — Everything is telling Seattle Storm coach Lin Dunn to take Sue Bird with the first pick of next week's WNBA draft.

Bird, who helped lead Connecticut to three-straight NCAA championships, can pass and score. She can run a team. She has good size and can play more than one position.

But Dunn hasn't made up her mind. She's hearing plenty of offers from other teams to trade the No. 1 choice for players or another high draft selection.

"It would have to be an awfully, awfully good offer, because Sue Bird is awfully, awfully good," said Dunn, also the team's general manager. "I don't know how often in a lifetime you get point guards who can score like she can."

Rush to enter draft

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Kareem Rush said Wednesday he will skip his senior season at Missouri and enter the NBA draft.

At a news conference with coach Quin Snyder at his side, Rush didn't completely rule out a last-minute decision to stay at Missouri. But he made it clear that's not something he plans to do.

"I'm going to go after this 100 percent," Rush said. "I look forward to giving this my all and playing in the league next year."

Rush hasn't hired an agent, a move that would have prohibited his return under NCAA rules. He has until a week before the June 26 draft to change his mind. He backed away from earlier statements in which he said he would enter the draft only if projections indicated he would be a lottery pick.

"I plan on being one [a lottery pick]," Rush said. "I'm going to go out there and prove I should be one."

The 6-6 Rush is a two-time All-Big 12 pick who averaged 19.8 points this season in helping lead the Tigers to the NCAA Tournament's West Regional final, where Missouri lost to Oklahoma, 81-75.

ISU to push Wallace for Heisman

AMES — Let the hype begin. Iowa State feels it has someone special in football quarterback Seneca Wallace, and the university wants to make sure Heisman Trophy voters know about him.

The Athletics Department is putting together a campaign to promote Wallace for the Heisman. Though details still are being worked out, coach Dan McCarney said, there's one sure way to get Wallace recognized around the country.

"Win games," McCarney said. "There is no doubt about it. All that other stuff is completely secondary to winning football games."

Still, a little extra publicity can't hurt. Iowa State's campaign is expected to include a Web site with updates on Wallace's season, videos, and Wallace for Heisman notepads. It will not include a Times Square billboard like the one Oregon put up last year for quarterback Joey Harrington.

McLaughlin moves from QB to receiver

LINCOLN, Neb. — Nebraska freshman Mike McLaughlin has moved from quarterback to receiver.

McLaughlin, who went to the same high school as Eric Crouch and has drawn comparisons to that quarterback at Nebraska.

"You kind of have to put your pride aside and look what's best for you in the future and the team in the future," McLaughlin said.

Although Nebraska lacks experience at quarterback, the Huskers have plenty of young candidates. Curt Dukes, who finished high school early so he could practice with the Huskers this spring, and sophomore-to-be Mike Stuntz have emerged this spring as the top backups to junior Jammal Lord, leaving McLaughlin and several others too low on the depth chart to expect to play in the near future.

Farnsworth breaks foot; out 4-6 weeks

CHICAGO (AP) — As if the Chicago Cubs needed more trouble, reliever Kyle Farnsworth broke a bone in his right foot Wednesday and is likely to be sidelined for four to six weeks.

He was scheduled to be put on the 15-day disabled list today. The Cubs didn't announce who will take his spot, but it will likely be either Scott Chiasson or Carlos Zambrano, among the last relievers cut in spring training.

Farnsworth, the right-handed setup man, was warming up in the bullpen in the seventh inning when he felt something "pop" in his foot. X-rays showed a stress fracture in his right foot.

"I was just warming up, and I felt a pop. Just a freak thing," said Farnsworth, who left Wrigley Field on crutches and with his foot wrapped in gauze and in a walking boot.

His injury could be a costly one for the Cubs. The hard-throwing reliever had a 2.74 ERA last season, and he has a 0.00 ERA with two strikeouts in 1 1/2 innings this year.

Griffey could return in 3-6 weeks

CINCINNATI — A re-examination of Ken Griffey Jr.'s injured right knee led the Reds' team doctor to conclude the center fielder could return to play in three to six weeks.

"Junior has a full range of motion, and after examining him today, I am convinced he is right on target to return in three to six weeks," Reds physician Dr. Timothy Kremchek said Wednesday. "There was vast improvement since Sunday."

Griffey began twice-daily physical therapy sessions on Monday.

He partially tore the patella tendon and partially dislocated his right kneecap during a rundown in Sunday's game against Montreal. The All-Star center fielder was placed on the 15-day disabled list and stayed behind in Cincinnati as the Reds began a road trip in Pittsburgh.

Gonzo says he'll chew again

PHOENIX — Luis Gonzalez apparently won't have to give DNA samples after all. No more gumshoe detective work will be necessary.

The Arizona Diamondbacks All-Star reportedly has decided to end any controversy over the legitimacy of a piece of already-chewed-by-Gonzo gum being sold at auction on the Internet.

Gonzalez said he would chew a new piece of gum while on a Tucson radio program via telephone Thursday morning, according to Johnjay of the "Johnjay and Rich" show on station KRQ.

Gonzalez will then place the new gum in an envelope and ship it either to the collector of the original gum, Jason Gabbert, or to the high school that is to get the proceeds from the Internet bidding, Johnjay said.

The highest bid so far is $3,275 by Dave Pierce, a student at Indiana University of Pennsylvania. That edged out the $3,200 bid by The Topps Co., which manufactured the gum Gonzalez allegedly chewed.

Eighth-inning homers power Mets past Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Roberto Alomar homered for the first time with the Mets, and Mike Piazza followed with a home run of his own to give New York a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs on Wednesday.

The back-to-back homers in the eighth inning spoiled a solid outing by Kerry Wood, who struck out 10 and scattered four hits over seven innings. Chicago was trying to win consecutive games for the first time this season.

With the Cubs leading 2-1, Jeff Fassero (0-2) relieved Wood to start the eighth and got two quick outs. But Alomar, who had been 1-18 against lefties, put the first pitch he saw into the right-field bleachers. It was the first NL homer since Sept. 17, 1990, for Alomar, who was acquired by the Mets from Cleveland in December.

Cardinals 6, Brewers 5

ST. LOUIS — Eduardo Perez homered with one out in the 11th inning as the St. Louis Cardinals rallied from a five-run deficit to beat the Milwaukee Brewers, 6-5, Wednesday night.

Perez hit a 2-2 pitch from Luis Vizcaino (1-0) over the wall in left-center field to give the Cardinals their second-straight victory in the three-game series by the same score.

It was the first hit of the season for Perez, who had been 0-for-7 in a reserve role.

Phillies 7, Braves 5

PHILADELPHIA — Pat Burrell's two-run homer in the 11th inning lifted the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves on Wednesday night.

It was Burrell's second walk-off homer in four games. His solo shot in the 11th beat the Florida Marlins, 3-2, Sunday.

The Phillies, who finished two games behind Atlanta in the NL East last season, won their second-straight for the first time this season.

Scott Rolen's two-out homer in the ninth off John Smoltz sent the game into extra innings.

Indians 9, Twins 3

CLEVELAND — Jim Thome busted out of another April slump with a grand slam and five RBIs Wednesday night as the Cleveland Indians won their seventh-straight, 9-3, over the Minnesota Twins.

Thome's bat had been about the only thing missing so far this season for the Indians, 8-1 after winning the first three games of their four-game set with Minnesota.

Thome came in batting just .143 and hadn't hit a homer before connecting in the second inning off Rick Reed (1-1).

Blue Jays 9, Yankees 7

TORONTO — Jason Giambi hit his first two home runs for the Yankees but the Toronto Blue Jays ended New York's seven-game winning streak with a 9-7 victory Wednesday night.

Giambi homered in his first two-bats but then struck out in his final three as Andy Pettitte failed to hold a 5-2 lead.

After Giambi struck out with the bases loaded in the seventh, Jorge Posada's two-run double tied the score 7-all.

Felipe Lopez hit a tiebreaking homer off Ted Lilly (0-1) in the bottom half, and Carlos Delgado homered off Steve Karsay in the eighth.

Sanderson adjusting to celebrity status

By Chuck Schoffner
Associated Press

DES MOINES — One day he's wrestling Tom Arnold in a sumo suit, another he's addressing the Iowa Legislature and bringing its business to a halt. Fame certainly is keeping life interesting for Iowa State's Cael Sanderson, the only wrestler to go unbeaten while winning four NCAA championships. Sanderson has been on the go constantly since earning that fourth title in Albany, N.Y., on March 23 to finish 159-0 in his career. He has been to Chicago, Los Angeles twice, and Spokane, Wash. He has signed so many autographs he's in danger of developing writer's cramp. There have been book and movie offers. Iowa State coach Bobby Douglas, Sanderson's brother, Cody, and the ISU media-relations staff spend a good portion of their days handling all the requests associated with Caelmania. Wednesday found Sanderson receiving three standing ovations in the Iowa House, which had to go into recess because so many pages, staffers, and lawmakers were waiting in line to get his autograph.

I was hoping to pick him up and twirl him around a little bit.

— Cael Sanderson, on wrestling Tom Arnold

And to think all Sanderson wanted to do after the NCAA meet was go fishing.

"I don't think the fish are really hitting right now," he shrugged. "Not the ones I catch, anyway. I have to hit 'em right at the peak, or I don't catch any."

The demands on Sanderson's time started the moment he beat Lehigh's Jon Trence, 12-4, in the 197-pound championship match in Albany. He couldn't even get off the victory stand because so many people wanted to have their picture taken with him and get his autograph, many of them security personnel who were supposed to keep the area clear.

Not long after that, Sanderson flew to Los Angeles to appear with Arnold on the "Best Damn Sports Show Period." During the show, Sanderson and Arnold donned those bulky, inflatable sumo wrestling suits and had a brief go at each other.

"I wanted to wrestle him without the suits," Sanderson said. "I was hoping to pick him up and twirl him around a little bit. But the suits were fun, too. I've had a real good time, a lot of great opportunities."

Sanderson was supposed to sing "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" at Wrigley Field on Sunday and got up at 5:30 a.m. for the drive to Chicago, only to have the game rained out. His appearance there is being rescheduled.

From Chicago he flew to Los Angeles to meet with representatives of an athletics-equipment company and was back in Ames on Tuesday. After his appearance at the Legislature on Wednesday, Sanderson returned to Ames to work out, then went back to Des Moines to speak at the Dowling High School wrestling banquet.

A scriptwriter has contacted Sanderson about a movie, and President Bush wrote to congratulate him. He's also getting offers for a book deal.

Old winners beginning to fade out at Masters

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Arnold Palmer's slashing swing, full of bravado, sent the ball careening toward an all-too-familiar spot — a bunker at Augusta National. The gallery groaned. The King nearly whiffed on his next shot, failing to extract the ball from the sand. Palmer shook his head. The crowd moaned again. "He sure looks old," a patron said, with a heavy dose of sympathy. "He looks like Johnny U. limping around his last season." If the powers-that-be have their way, this sort of pitiable scene won't be repeated in future Masters. Already, three former champions have been phased out, and it's certain that more — even a revered figure such as Palmer — will soon be relegated to ceremonial roles. "I'm not worried about that too much," Palmer insisted. "I'm going to play this week and just hope to scrape something together."

event that guaranteed lifetime playing privileges for its past champions. But the fudging began a few months ago, when Augusta National Chairman Hootie Johnson sent letters to Doug Ford, Gay Brewer and Billy Casper "recommending" they give up their spots in the field. From a competitive standpoint, the decision was a no-brainer. The 79-year-old Ford, who won in 1957, had gone 30 years without making the cut, and last year he was a downright farce. He scored a 2 — hitting two shots on the first hole, then heading to the parking lot without even bothering to retrieve his ball. Brewer and Casper, both 70, haven't fared much better. Brewer, the 1967 champion, had not played on the weekend since 1983. Casper, who won his green jacket in 1970, was sent home on Friday 13 times in a row. "We made those decisions based on what we thought was in the best interests of the tournament," Johnson said Wednesday.

Big hitters could excel on new, bigger Masters course ball goes where players are aiming. Hitting it long and straight won't mean much without a good week of putting. "It puts a huge premium on driving the ball," said Woods, a heavy favorite to join Jack Nicklaus (1965-66) and Nick Faldo (1989-90) as the only repeat Masters champions. "And no matter who wins this tournament, their short game is going to be tested." Still, renovated Augusta National figures to be an advantage for big hitters.

"Any time anybody hits the ball farther than another person and can do things to a golf course that somebody else can't do, they're going to have an advantage," Nicklaus said. "Power is a very big issue on this golf course." That's why Nicklaus, a six-time Masters champion who is not playing this year because of a bad back, was pleased with the changes. But simply adding 285 yards and stretching half of the holes produces another set of dynamics. "It does eliminate part of the field," Nicklaus said, referring to the short hitters.

Players and coaches say they liked playing at night

Carlson's homer tied it up, but John Brock homered in the top of the sixth, and the Huskies regained the lead, 8-6. Again, the Hawkeyes fought right back. With Cappellano on first, Gremley hit a sharp liner to center. He proceeded to try to take second but was caught in a run down. Cappellano waited for the right moment to break for home. The throw came late, and Cappellano scored with Gremley safe at second. After an Andy Cox walk, Ian Mattiace doubled in Gremley. Carlson's sacrifice fly later scored Cox.

Dyson Miguel came in to finally shut down the Huskies' offense. Miguel pitched two scoreless innings before turning the ball over to Gillmore in the ninth. Broghamer and Jensen both said they enjoyed playing a night game at home. Attendance soared to 202 for the game. "It was a different aura playing at night," Broghamer said. "It was nice to see more people in the stands, and the kids liked it because they didn't just get out of class." Iowa will play two more night games this weekend as part of a four-game series with Ohio State.

Hawkeyes rely on power hitting and pitching in wins

SOFTBALL

"That also has to do a lot for the old confidence level." Christina Schmalz and Sarah Thomson also homered, with Kristin Johnson just missing one during her first at bat when the ball hit the top of the outfield wall. Johnson settled for a triple on her way to her second 3-4 performance of the afternoon. Johnson ended the day 6-8 at the plate with six runs scored, exactly what Blevins expects to see from the leadoff spot. "She just has a lot of confidence going for her right now," Blevins said of her table-setter. "She really helps make us go at the top of the order." Power and pitching prevailed for Iowa in game one as well, as Jessica Bashor went 3-4 with a home run and four RBIs. Schmalz also had a home run in the first contest. Even though she hurled a perfect game for three innings, Blevins removed starter Kristi Hanks in favor of Sarah Thomson, who earned the victory. Blevins had planned on using the pair of games to experiment with the lineup and pitching rotations, and she did not deviate from that strategy. "It's tough taking someone out of a perfect game, but we already knew what we wanted to work on coming over here," she said. "But Kristi, being the team player she is, knew what we were doing and did what she knew was best for the team." With its 12-game winning streak, Iowa returns to Pearl Field and conference play this weekend with games against Ohio State and Penn State.

New wrestling class ready to start training in Iowa singlets

Pfaffinger wrestled with Hawkeye brothers Luke and Ty Eustice in high school. Luke Eustice, this year's Big Ten and NCAA runner-up, will likely be Pfaffinger's practice partner in the Iowa wrestling room — a familiar routine for the pair. Both Eustice brothers and Pfaffinger won Minnesota state titles in 1999. "He really fits Iowa's mold," Eustice said of Pfaffinger. "He works hard during the season and in the off-season and has the killer instinct of Iowa wrestling, of never letting up. He really embodies what Iowa wrestling is about." In addition to the four oral commitments the Hawkeyes have secured, various Iowa talents are still under consideration, including City High's Jacob Smith, Anthony Watson, and Johnny Galloway. When all the technicalities and restrictions are straightened out, this class of recruits are ready to start training for their careers as Hawkeyes. "I think [the coaches] brought in a great class," Fuller said. "It's going to be something good to be a part of, to see how our hard work pays off in the next four or five years."

Iowa man back at the Masters golf shop

SIoux CITY (AP) — Tiger Woods is back at the Masters. So are David Duval, Ernie Els, Sergio Garcia, and Davis Love III. And Mike Fiddelke, too. Just don't look for Fiddelke on the fairways.

SPORTS BRIEF
For the past 25 years, the pro at Landsmeer Golf Club in Orange City, Iowa, approximately 30 miles northwest of Sioux City, has spent the week working at the on-site golf shop at the Augusta National. When he first worked at the shop, it was located in a Quonset hut and had three cash registers. Now it's in a permanent building with 8,000 square feet on two levels. There are 16 checkout lines, each with three registers. "Anything you can put a Masters logo on, they'll sell," Fiddelke said. "It's the greatest retail-merchandising event ever." We'll lock the doors to the store 20 minutes after the course opens because the store is full already.

horoscopes

Thursday, April 11, 2002 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stay calm and do your best, but ignore anyone who tries to put you down. You will have great ideas today, so don't second-guess yourself. Try to be patient with others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Dealing with institutions or government agencies, or other people for that matter, will be annoying. You are better off to do your own thing and avoid discord.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can be the life of the party if you use your quick wit and intellect to dazzle those you meet at social events or meetings. Put your money in a safe place so that you aren't tempted to spend on luxury items.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may find your position a little daunting today. Don't make decisions that could be difficult to reverse. You may not be thinking too clearly when it comes to matters of a personal nature.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Travel for business or pleasure, and you will make the connections required to get ahead. You will encounter interesting individuals who will help to inspire future adventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Don't let others cost you money. Contributing to someone else's cause will not sort out your own problems. Purchases made today will not be satisfactory.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New and exciting relationships can develop if you get out and take part in events that are of interest to you. Your intellect will bring you attention.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your mind will be on professional concerns. Progress can be made financially if you are determined to get others to listen to your ideas. Your reluctance to admit defeat will bring you the success you're looking for.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You'll be ready for anything that comes your way today. Get involved in physical activities with friends, and you will be sure to have a blast. You can learn a lot about yourself in a competitive situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may have some difficulties at home today. You must not let your emotions interfere with your professional integrity. Someone you care about may let you down. You must do what's best for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friends and colleagues will stand behind you today. Your ability to share your ideas and to creatively help others develop their own ideas will result in popularity and support.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can make money today, and you will have the added energy to far exceed everyone's expectations. Give advice, not cash, when asked, and you'll feel much better at the end of the day.

quote of the day

I wasn't the best player on the ice, but it felt good.

— Saku Koivu,

a hockey player for the Montreal Canadiens, who returned to the ice seven months after being diagnosed with abdominal cancer. He played only eight minutes but was greeted by a roaring crowd who gave him an eight-minute standing ovation.

Ways to raise bail money

- Who needs plasma?
- Throw a kegger with Icehouse.
- Have a "bake" sale.
- Tell a police officer he looks good in those pants.
- Auction yourself off in a sorority house.
- Volunteer your services on "Drag Night" at the Alley Cat.
- Sell all of your Phish CDs (wait a minute; already did that).
- Have a garage sale, selling only your roommate's cats.
- Tell mom and dad your girlfriend just dumped you and you need money.
- Nevermind, bail is for pansies. Just bite the bullet and spend a couple weeks in jail. I hear they give you Frosted Flakes for breakfast.

NO REPRESENTATION WITHOUT VIRTUALIZATION

By Kathryn Anderson
The Daily Iowan

One of the most experimental film festivals in the world will continue to push the envelope of creativity and free expression when it serves as a venue for the unveiling of the newest, most experimental political party in the United States this weekend.

The Experimental Party will launch its message of "representation through virtualization" Saturday during the 2002 Thaw Festival of Film, Video, and Digital Media. In its seventh year at the UI, Thaw continues to expand boundaries and challenge conventional forms of expression, much as the Experimental Party plans to work toward new ways of thinking and bringing artists' messages into the political process.

"We simply encourage the public to examine their choices, and historically, Thaw has embraced the avant-garde and experimental projects," said Thaw Digital Director Adam Burke. "It seems to be a perfect fit."

The Experimental Party, an artist-based coalition, has chosen to announce its formation in Iowa because the state holds the first presidential caucuses and is the first stop for many aspiring presidential candidates, Burke said. Also, like the Thaw festival, the Experimental Party is anti-corporate.

An extension of the U.S. Department of Art and Technology, the Experimental Party's formation will be announced by Randall Packer, the department's secretary and national co-chairman of the newly formed Experimental Party Steering Committee. The Experimental Party proposes to truly engage the American voter, bring artistic inquiry into the broader culture, and end binary elections and corporate control of media.

Thaw Director Caitlin Horsmon said it is unusual for festivals such as Thaw to be without corporate sponsors and run by volunteers only. Independence is vital to Thaw's purpose of experimentation and free expression, she said.

"It allows [Thaw] to maintain engagement with work that's outside what mainstream festivals would consider," Horsmon said. "The festival tends to be about showing new work that's not easily available and has an aesthetic that people involved in experimental art don't usually consider. It's not only about new things, but also emerging things."

To accomplish Thaw's non-corporate, nonprofit mission, all events are free of charge, unlike nearly every other film festival in the United States. Featuring international film, video, and digital media, Thaw has no boundary of format, often screening video next to film and DVDs alongside Web sites. Pieces ranging from 30 seconds in length to almost an hour will be shown on miniDV, VHS, PAL, Super 8, 16mm, 35mm, CD-ROM, DVD, audio, Web sites, and CD. The Thaw Digital Show will also run through today at the UI Museum of Art.

"Very few festivals in the world have such a program," Burke said. "Since the beginning, Thaw has been dedicated to the idea that art shouldn't be limited by its format or medium. You will not see this work together anywhere else."

Regardless of hosting the Experimental Party, Thaw remains nonpartisan. Horsmon said Thaw does not have a political agenda, but the "interesting and challenging pieces will provoke discussion and make people think about things."

Some of the pieces at Thaw, however, are political, such as the video "No Power to Push Up The Sky," about the 1989 Tiananmen Square massacre and "Import/Export," a piece that comments on American strategies in world trade. Others are more personal, such as the video "Black Opals No. 2," about the artist's experience of going blind in her right eye. Still, others like "Enter The Devil," a video about the danger of words, transcend the personal and political and stretch into the philosophical realm.

"Thaw provides a unique blend of pleasure and pain, guaranteed to excite the viewing body like no other festival," said former director Jason Livingston. "Thaw brings in crazy, beautiful, indescribable, weird shorts from around the world. Our festival ... is gaining recognition around the world for its dedication to truly independent media."

A panel of jurors — all past participants in the festival — will view the Thaw program along with the public, create awards, and distribute prize money. The three judges, all artists whose work challenges the conventions of their chosen media, will also have the opportunity to present their work in special festival screenings.

"The juror's show is going to be really outstanding," Horsmon said. "It's a great opportunity for them to show their work."

"The Traveling Eye of the Blue Cat" is a surreal, fairy-tale-style film that tells the story of a girl awoken one morning by a mysterious sea gull. The girl discovers the edge of the world after she follows the bird into a garden. The 16-minute film will be shown with two other films, "Self Portrait Post Mortem" and "Dream Work," in the 35mm competition show, April 13 from 8-8:45 p.m.

The presence of many of the artists whose work is featured in the festival is even more evidence that Thaw is fulfilling the goal set by its founders in 1996. That goal was to enrich both the university and local community by providing a forum for artists' visions and voices that would not usually be acknowledged in the area.

"Quite a few of the filmmakers are coming, which adds to an atmosphere of dialogue and discussion," Horsmon said. "To have the people in town that make the work to have dialogue with — that's a really exciting moment."

Smokers have the right to kill themselves

I seriously can't handle the anti-smoking commercials anymore.

Don't get me wrong, I'm against minors smoking cigarettes, and I'm more than aware that toxic chemicals contained within cigarettes cause lung cancer and kill people. But cigarette smoking is a conscious choice, and more than that, it's legal.

I don't want to watch a 15-year-old boy sit on an examination table and tell me that he has spots on his lungs, that it might be cancer, but that he can't stop smoking. Horseshit. He's 15; he can quit smoking. I know he can.

I don't want to watch a bunch of smart-ass teenagers sneak into a hotel and hang informational cards from the door handles of every room. That's trespassing. Plus, it's just plain annoying.

Smoking is bad for you. It's a stupid choice to start smoking in the first place. Smoking is disgusting, and annoying, and a total financial burden. People who have made the smart decision not to smoke are constantly being assaulted by the disgusting smell of smoke. All of this, I know.

And I assume you know it, too. And if parents are doing their job as role models and teachers, most kids also know. We all know cigarettes are bad and kill people. Cigarettes are bad. Evil. Boo.

Which leads me to my next point. Big Tobacco is not to blame for the deaths of cigarette smokers. The commercial I hate the most is the one that shows kids holding pictures of family members who have died from lung cancer, emphysema, or other cigarette-related illnesses. They've lost someone they love, and their lives will never be the same, but it doesn't make any sense for them to stand there and blame tobacco companies.

I'm sure, once upon a time, people couldn't be 100 percent sure that cigarettes were causing lung cancer, but did anyone really think that all that gross shit they were inhaling into their lungs and blowing out was healthy? How stupid are we?

The Marlboro Man and Joe Camel are not to blame for cigarette-related deaths. Full-color billboards and ads in magazines showing successful, beautiful people smoking cigarettes are not to blame. Tobacco companies, which employ hundreds of thousands of Americans and produce millions of dollars in revenue a year, are not to blame for manufacturing and selling a legal product.

Yes, we're all against advertising campaigns that appear to market cigarettes towards kids. And yes, it sucks that people are losing years from their lives because of a horribly addictive and harmful product. But these people have no one to blame but themselves. They never should have started; they should have quit when their bodies weren't completely dependent; they should have listened to the pleas of their family and friends. If they didn't want to do that, then they should take responsibility for their actions.

Drew Bixby

AFTER FURTHER REFLECTION

And why are we still letting cigarette smokers sue tobacco companies for ridiculously large amounts of money? And why are they winning? Is anyone really convincing a jury of 12 people that big, bad Philip Morris tricked them into smoking cigarettes for 50 years? Since when does not using common sense, self-control, and determination entitle someone to millions of dollars?

And I do know what it's like, if you were thinking that I don't. I've been addicted to cigarettes — I understand the cravings and the withdrawal. My grandfather will most likely die of lung cancer before I graduate from college — I understand the emotional distress that this causes family members. But I'm still not naive enough to blame someone other than the smoker. And I still hate those commercials, regardless of how educational they are.

Aw hell, and as long as I'm on the subject, the new ban on smoking in restaurants is so stinking lame. I can agree with the supporters who want to be able to eat without their food tasting like an ash tray, and I realize that, more often than not, smoking sections really don't work, but why are we not allowing people to smoke after the kitchen closes? Restaurant/bars, especially those that host live music, are suffering because smokers want to smoke while they drink and watch a band or musician. And smokers who can't smoke will go somewhere that they can.

So the only thing that this new smoking ban will do (and has already done) for Iowa City is create more bars. And if there's anything this town doesn't need, it's more bars.

Love Is Strong As Death

By David Wenzel

Part 11 of 16

Grady cleared the dirt beach in front of his cabin of all the rocks and sticks that bothered him underfoot. He knew other pebbles and branches would wash up on shore in time, but he wanted to feel good that he had done a job full and well. Nature brought new clutter and order when she was good and ready, and he figured the best you could do was clear things up now and again before they got out of hand.

He used his bare hands to smooth the dark brown dirt that was sprinkled with white of some other long ago crushed stones. The dirt felt fine under his fingers, and it smoothed easily and evenly. He liked the feel of the loose dirt under his hands. But it also reminded him of the too many funerals he had already been a part of in his life.

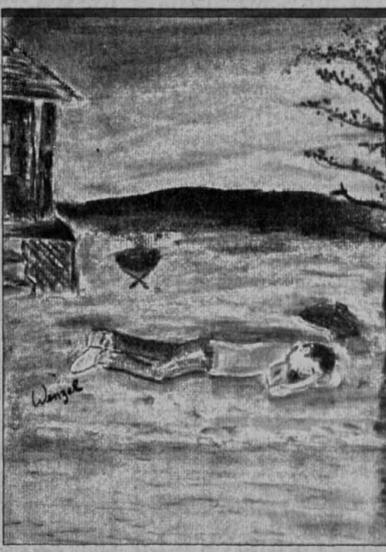

Grady O'Grady had thrown his handful of dirt on Murph's casket. He had twice thrown his handful of dirt on his sister's casket. Once she was inside, and once she was not. Grady had thrown his handful of dirt on his wife's casket, and he had cried very hard when he had done that. He had fallen to his knees and cried and thrown handful after handful of dirt from the pile next to the open grave, and then he had leaned into it with both arms spread out and his chest against the pile. He had pushed again and again until most of the earth had filled the hole and he had scattered the rest flat. No one had stopped him, and he was glad at least for that. Grady didn't think anyone had a right to tell a husband how to be when his wife had died and left him alone at such a young age.

He thought of those times, and Grady realized he was again on his knees in the dirt with earth coloring him dark and tears in his eyes. He sat up and rested on the back of his heels with his head hung back and the tears running off the side of his face. He was sad for those he had lost. He felt sad for himself. But mostly he felt sadness because someone close to him needed help, and he wasn't sure if he could do anything about it. He cried there on his beach of dark dirt because he was very tired of feeling helpless. He hated to watch the trouble come. He didn't want to just watch things go ugly then worse this time.

Grady cleansed his hands and his face with the water of the lake. He walked back to his cabin. All he would remember is the bill of the baseball cap before the sharp pain that brought the black.

The sun was almost down when Grady came to, and a light rain fell on and around him. The wind had come with the rest of the bad weather, and Grady felt cold and achy. He sat up, and he could feel two kinds of wetness on his face. One was hot, and one was cold. He put his hands to his face, and then he felt the sting of the open wound. His hands were full with blood when he took them down. The sight of the baseball cap came to him, and Grady searched all around him, but he was alone.

The only thing near Grady on the lawn was the round, black metal cover of his outdoor grill.

Week in Movies

Reviews by Adam Kempenaar, Aaron McAdams, and Nate Yapp

Movie	Theater	Rating	Description
40 Days and 40 Nights	Coral Ridge 10	★★1/2 out of ★★★★★	A mostly enjoyable romantic comedy about a 20-something dot-comer who vows not to have any sexual relations for Lent and ends up falling in love. The one-joke premise grows tiresome, but Josh Hartnett shows surprising range as the slightly goofy, confused lead character. (AK)
A Beautiful Mind	Coral Ridge 10	★★★★ out of ★★★★★	The true story of a mathematician whose genius was matched only by his debilitating schizophrenia. Despite being conventional and loose with some of the facts, Ron Howard's intelligent, affecting biopic is Hollywood filmmaking at its finest. (AK)
Big Trouble	Campus 3	Not yet reviewed	Adapted from the Pulitzer Prize-winning humorist Dave Barry's best-selling novel, Big Trouble tells the story of a mysterious suitcase that brings together a divorced dad, an unhappy housewife, two hitmen, a pair of street thugs, two lovestruck teens, two FBI men, and a psychedelic toad.
Blade II	Cinema 6	★★★1/2 out of ★★★★★	A vampire hunter teams up with his mortal enemies to face creatures who threaten both the living and the undead. Incredible action sequences and stellar production design make this an action-horror hybrid that you shouldn't miss. (NY)
Clockstoppers	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	A scientist invents a mechanism that speeds up any target it hits to 25 times its normal speed, effectively making it seem to that person like time is standing still. The race is on to find a way to reverse the effects when his son is zapped.
Death to Smoochy	Coral Ridge 10	★★ out of ★★★★★	The comic tale of Rainbow Randolph, the costumed star of a popular children's television show who is fired because of a bribery scandal and replaced by Smoochy, a puffy, Barney-esque rhinoceros. Randolph plots his revenge soon thereafter.
E.T.	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	The re-release of Steven Spielberg's 1982 classic about the friendship between an alien and a boy. Includes new features and footage.
Gosford Park	Cinema 6	★★★ out of ★★★★★	When a hunting party at an English country manor turns murderous, gentlemen, ladies, and servants are all suspects. While the murder case itself isn't a tough one to crack, the comedic performances by the all-British cast and the well-managed, interlocking story lines carry the film. (AM)
High Crimes	Coral Ridge 10 Moves to Cinema 6 Friday	Not yet reviewed	A happily married woman is shocked to learn about her husband's hidden past as a classified military operative. He is accused of committing a heinous war crime, and she must wrestle with her own doubts about his guilt as she defends him.
Ice Age	Cinema 6	Not yet reviewed	During the onslaught of the new Ice Age, a dim sloth named Sid, a moody woolly mammoth, a devilish saber-toothed tiger, and an acorn-crazy saber-toothed squirrel come together in a quest to return a human infant to his father.
Kissing Jessica Stein	Campus 3	Not yet reviewed	After a dating spree, New York Journalist Jessica Stein finds an intriguing personal ad whose only drawback is that it's in the "women seeking women" section. She answers the ad and ends up clicking with the woman.
The Lord of the Rings	Coral Ridge 10	★★★1/2 out of ★★★★★	The first installment in J.R.R. Tolkien's popular trilogy follows Frodo Baggins and his eclectic band as they battle to save Middle Earth. Finally, an epic-sized Hollywood spectacle that lives up to its hype. (AK)
Panic Room	Cinema 6 Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	Trapped in their New York brownstone's panic room, a hidden chamber built as a sanctuary in the event of break-ins, newly divorced Meg Altman and her young daughter, Sarah, play a deadly game of cat-and-mouse with three intruders during a brutal home invasion. But the room itself is the focal point because what the intruders really want is inside it.
Resident Evil	Campus 3 Ends Today	Not yet reviewed
The Rookie	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	The extraordinary real-life story of Jim Morris, who had to drop out of minor-league baseball because of an injury to his pitching arm. Twelve years later, inspired by the boys on the championship-winning high-school team he coaches, Morris is persuaded to fulfill his own dream and try out for a professional team.
National Lampoon's Van Wilder	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	Van Wilder (Ryan Reynolds) is starting his seventh year at Coolidge College, but graduation is the furthest thing from his mind. When his father refuses to pay for any more tuition bills, Van turns to party planning to make money and soon becomes the subject of an exposé by school journalist Gwen Pearson.
Showtime	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	A no-nonsense LAPD detective (Robert De Niro) is forced to star on a reality-based TV show with a frustrated actor-turned-LAPD patrolman (Eddie Murphy). Their lives are turned upside down by a powerhouse producer (Rene Russo) and her intrusive camera crew.
We Were Soldiers	Cinema 6 Ends Today	★★1/2 out of ★★★★★
Changing Lanes	Cinema 6	Not yet reviewed	An arrogant lawyer and a down-and-out businessman become involved in a minor traffic accident in Manhattan. As a result, the two men accidentally swap briefcases, the contents of which cause a heated battle with legal as well as financial repercussions.
Iris	Campus 3	Not yet reviewed	The real-life story of the enduring love between author Iris Murdoch and her husband John Bayley, which lasts throughout her struggles against Alzheimer's disease.
Sweetest Thing	Coral Ridge 10	Not yet reviewed	Sexy and bold Christina Walters, after years of avoiding meaningful relationships with men, unexpectedly meets her perfect match one night. When she finds out the next morning that he's suddenly left town, she and her friend Courtney set out to find him on a wild road trip.
Bijou
Blue Angel	Bijou	Not yet reviewed	A seminal film within the German canon, Blue Angel is an exciting and ingenious film from the earliest days of sound. Marlene Dietrich glitters with glamour while exposing both her talents and the decline of the German vaudeville market.
The Business of Strangers	Bijou	Not yet reviewed	Starring Stockard Channing and Julia Stiles, this film delves into the politics of the business world. Two women, one a high-powered executive and the other a young free-wheeling temp, start a relationship, which ends in the usual friendly ways of blackmail and psychological torture.
Jung: In the Land of the Mujaheddin	Bijou	Not yet reviewed	In this documentary, we get a real look at Afghanistan today. An Italian journalist, an Italian surgeon, and a British nurse join forces to set up a hospital in a country that has had to cope with various wars for the last 20 years.
