Laurie Canady, Iowa City resident, lies still while Dr. Al Aly injects Botox into her forehead. Canady comes in every three to four months for the treatment, which paralyzes muscles in the forehead.

The fountain of youth in a syringe

By Lauren Smiley
The Daily Iowan

Laurie Canady will matter-of-factly reveal the secret to staying youthful: run 40 miles a week and lift weights every day. And don't forget to inject a chemical into your forehead to paralyze the muscles that cause give-away wrinkles.

"I call it a face-lift in a syringe. It's fun," said the 42-year-old mother of two.

Canady is one of 100 patients regularly injected at the UI Hospitals and Clinics with a chemical responsible, in large doses, for causing food poisoning. The Food and Drug Administration is considering whether to approve using the drug — dubbed Botox — for erasing facial signs of aging.

Analysts predict the use of Botox could increase by 50 percent within a year of its approval for Americans, who are aging while refusing to look older.

While it has been the most popular cosmetic procedure in the country since 2000, roughly only 10 percent of the injections were performed in the Midwest last year, according to the American Society of Plastic Surgery.

"This is something that is so prevalent in the world of plastic surgery that its approval is just a formality," said Al Aly, a UI assistant professor of surgery, one of two surgeons who have injected the drug for the last five years at UIHC.

Aly said he doesn't expect a deluge of new patients upon the FDA's approval because the department doesn't market the drug.

"It sells itself," he said. "We love Botox because patients love Botox."

Israel must withdraw, Arafat says

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press

RAMALLAH, West Bank — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat rebuffed Secretary of State Colin Powell's demand Sunday for a halt to violence, saying Israel first must withdraw its troops from the West Bank.

Sharon renewed his proposal for an international peace conference among Israel and Arab states including Saudi Arabia, Syria and Lebanon and the Palestinians, but not Yasser Arafat.

Sharon said the United States would lead the conference, and "I imagine that within a short time a conference of this sort will convene to debate the diplomatic arrangements in the Middle East."

Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat said the proposal was an attempt to "turn the clock backward."

A senior U.S. official said the idea was discussed "as part of a way to move forward politically," but more talks are needed.

Arafat, 72, appeared in good health as he met with Powell in his rocket-scarred headquarters that is surrounded by Israeli tanks and troops. Arafat has been under pressure that is "unreal for an old man like him," said Zeid Abu Shawish, a Palestinian doctor in the compound.

Powell was driven to the besieged compound in a motorcade of armored-plated SUVs, shielded by U.S. security personnel with sub-machine guns.

The headquarters showed the effects of Israeli bombardment. A gaping hole marred the facade, and the walls were blackened with bullet marks.

Erekat said Arafat stood by his commitments, including an end to violence. But, Erekat said after the three-hour meeting, that meant "once the Israelis complete the withdrawal, we will, as Palestinians, then carry out our obligations."

Arafat complained bitterly and extensively to Powell about Israel's military thrust into Palestinian-held towns and villages, especially about its actions in Jenin and a refugee camp in the town.

Once the Israelis complete the withdrawal, we will, as Palestinians, then carry out our obligations.

Ex-student back as Union owner

By Kellie Doyle
and Mike McWilliams
The Daily Iowan

After being forced to leave the Iowa City nearly a decade ago because of his parents' tax dispute, George Barlas has come back to own the largest bar in the Big Ten.

Barlas, 33, attended the UI in the early 1990s; he returned to his Mason City home when his parents encountered problems with the Internal Revenue Service for failing to pay property taxes on land they owned.

He and his brother Tom Barlas Jr., who was also forced to drop out when their parents were unable to fund their education, never returned to the UI, instead collaborating to open Mason City businesses, including a restaurant and sports bar.

Now, they're expanding to Iowa City, first to own a bar, and later to possibly pursue owning a restaurant.

"We're in our 30s, so we've grown up and out," George Barlas said. "We've always loved Iowa City."

TM&G Inc., of which George Barlas is president, purchased the Union, 121 E. College St., from Jim Pohl in early April for an undisclosed amount.

Herbert "Kip" Pohl, who had owned the Union for 10 years, said he wants to pursue other interests in Iowa City, including student housing and commercial building.

"It comes to the point when you have to decide if you want to commit to the future or find a qualified buyer to do... some exciting things," Pohl said. "We found that in Barlas."

Kip Pohl owns Etc., 118 S. Dubuque St., which Jim Pohl will now manage. Kip Pohl could not speculate whether he would ever sell Etc., but, he said, "Nothing's forever."

Suit claims UI scientist stole research

By Gian Sachdev
The Daily Iowan

A San Diego doctor claims a UI researcher stole and later lied about publishing four years of his research on a rare diagnosis of an African disease.

Roger Bitar, a partner in a California medical practice, has filed a civil lawsuit alleging that Louis V. Kirchhoff, a 13-year UI professor of internal medicine, unlawfully authored a report on West African sleeping sickness for the Central African Journal of Medicine.

Bitar said the lawsuit aims to force Kirchhoff to retract the article and agree to resubmit it under both researchers' names. It also seeks unspecified monetary damages.

"This has hurt me so deeply and caused me much stress," Bitar said in a telephone interview from his San Diego home.

Bitar hopes the court will rule that he owns the rights to some of the information, said his attorney, Peter Riley. After Kirchhoff responds to the allegations, a judge will decide whether the case will go to trial, he said. The lawsuit names the state and Kirchhoff as co-defendants.

"It's difficult if not impossible to put a money value on this thing," Riley said. "Before we begin to discuss damages, we have to wait for the state to file an answer and for Kirchhoff to respond."

Bush to campaign for Ganske

By Peter Rugg
The Daily Iowan

On President Bush's fifth visit to Iowa since he was elected, he will campaign for U.S. Senate candidate Greg Ganske and honor a 94-year-old volunteer known for her work in education.

Volunteer Maxine Phipps will meet with Bush this afternoon at the Eastern Iowan Airport in Cedar Rapids. She will also attend a round-table discussion with the president and General Mills employees.

Later, Bush will headline a Ganske for Senate fund-raiser at the U.S. Cellular Center.

Ganske campaign manager Bill Armistad said he expects the center will be filled to capacity as well as selling out a $250-a-plate dinner. He said he did not know what Bush would speak on during the fund-raiser.

"Bush's visit has definitely given us a lot of energy and excitement," Armistad said.

"Ganske has been supporting Bush since he was a governor."

Phipps said she was surprised to hear Bush would honor her.

"To tell you the truth, I don't feel worthy," she said. "There's so much going on right now. My work seems insignificant."

Phipps is a former schoolteacher from Cleveland who became involved with Community Builders project one year ago. The effort, which operates in conjunction with Wartburg College, facilitates reading with themes of citizenship and holding online discussions with students divided up into different "computer neighborhoods." Phipps leads the discussion for one of the computer sections.

Bush is honoring men and women who he feels have answered the call to service that he stressed in his State of the Union Address, calling on Americans to dedicate at least two years of service to their communities, country, and world.

A life-long Republican, Phipps said she has always been a Bush supporter.

"I just hope the war comes to an end soon," she said. "But I don't think it'll do too much good to talk to him about it. He's been doing an excellent job."

CITY BRIEFS

Police probe car robbery

Iowa City police are looking for a man who robbed an elderly man April 13 in a grocery store parking lot.

The incident occurred around 11 a.m. at Hy-Vee, 812 S. First Ave., when a 6-foot-tall white man in his mid-20s opened the elderly man's car door and allegedly threatened him with a knife. The robber then demanded money and ran away in an unknown direction with a "small" amount of cash, said Iowa City police Sgt. Brian Krei. The man, in his 70s, was not injured, and investigators are still seeking witnesses.

Police said the approximately 190-pound robber was wearing sunglasses, a big black hat, and a black coat. If caught, police will likely charge him with first-degree robbery because he used a knife while demanding money, Krei said. Anyone with information is encouraged to call Iowa City police at 356-5275.

3 ex-students plead guilty in pipe-bomb case

Three former UI students pleaded guilty April 11 to manufacturing pipe bombs in a residence hall last year.

Adam Fisher, 20, Nathan Krotz, 20, and Adam Ritchie, 19, each pleaded guilty to one charge of unauthorized possession of an offensive weapon. The charge is a felony punishable by up to five years in prison and a $7,500 fine.

The trio, however, is waiting to see if a judge agrees to defer their sentences if they complete probation requirements.

The three were suspended by the UI soon after authorities discovered three pipe bombs in Fisher's Burge Residence Hall room on March 21, 2001.

During the investigation, Fisher attorney Leon Spies asked the court to adjudicate the law, contending that the devices the defendants made were going to be used for fishing and were not offensive weapons. Johnson County District Judge Patrick Grady disagreed.

Sentencing is scheduled for early June.

Study: Build levee for Davenport water plant

Associated Press

DAVENPORT — With last year's flooding along the Mississippi River a memory, a new study says only the city's water-treatment plant is a feasible candidate for permanent flood protection.

Protecting the rest of downtown would cost more than the expenses it would prevent.

According to a draft report from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, a levee system around the Iowa American Water Co. plant would cost $3.1 million. That compares with $1.1 million in 1982, when Davenport declined to partner with federal authorities to build flood protection along the city's riverfront.

For each dollar spent to protect the water-treatment plant, the new report says, more than $4 would be returned in benefits, including flood damage and temporary flood-protection costs. In 1982, the Corps estimated that only $1.67 in benefits would be returned for each dollar spent to protect the plant.

During floods, the water plant's staff, assisted by National Guard troops and others, has had to quickly throw up temporary barriers to keep river water from inundating the plant, said Brock Earnhardt, the plant's vice president and general manager. "Unfortunately, we've gotten very good at it," he said.

Earnhardt said the cost-to-benefit ratio of protecting the plant shot up from 1982 to the present because the Corps now has a good example to study — Des Moines.

During flooding in 1993, approximately 250,000 people in Des Moines were left without water at their homes for roughly two weeks when the Raccoon River overwhelmed a levee and contaminated the city's water-treatment plant.

Iowa American is willing to pay the 25 percent non-federal match that the Corps would require if a levee system is built around the Davenport plant, Earnhardt said.

The draft report says protection of the water plant is "technically, economically, and environmentally feasible and in the federal interest." Assuming the city is willing to go ahead with the project, the Corps recommends that the levee system be built.

The rest of the downtown did not fare so well.

The draft report says "there is no federal interest" in building permanent flood protection along the rest of the city's riverfront.

Construction costs for that portion of the project rose from $30.1 million in 1982 to $52.2 million today, according to the Corps' estimates.

As high waters lapped at the downtown last year, a debate raged over whether the city should have in place permanent flood protection, especially to keep water out of the downtown.

Over the decades, as the city has battled repeated floods, it has gotten smarter about what is allowed in the flood plain, said Dee Bruemmer, Davenport's public-works director.

William J. Bryce, 21, 490 Iowa Ave., was charged April 10 with possession of a scheduled II controlled substance. Two officers searched Bryce's residence April 9 and allegedly discovered three tablets of the prescription drug methylphenidate, court records said.

Bryce allegedly did not have a prescription for the medication, police said.

Michael Francis Koenighain, 31, of Oxford was charged April 4 with domestic abuse causing injury. On March 31, an oral altercation between Koenighain and a female allegedly took place when the two traveled to Koenighain's residence, police said. Koenighain then allegedly choked and beat the victim while preventing her from leaving, court records said. The female told officers she waited three days to report the incident out of fear of Koenighain, police said.

Sniper slays Ky. sheriff

By Roger Alford
Associated Press

SOMERSET, Ky. — A sniper shot and killed a rural county sheriff who had just spoken at a political rally while seeking his fifth term. A man who left the rally on a motorcycle was charged with the slaying early Sunday.

Sheriff Sam Catron, whose police chief father was shot and killed on duty 38 years ago, was shot in the face April 13 at the combination political rally, fish fry, and fire department fund-raiser.

"The senseless murder or assassination of our sheriff, who always had a smile on his face and dedication in his heart, is devastating to the community," former county attorney Fred Neikirk said.

Catron was killed by a single rifle bullet as he was leaving the rally at Shopville, a small town approximately 70 miles south of Lexington among Pulaski County's rolling farmland and wooded hills.

The suspect left the rally on a motorcycle owned by one of the sheriff's rivals in the election. Police said the rival was not a suspect.

State Police Capt. Paul Hays said the shot came from "a considerable distance." Police said a rifle was found, but they would not give details about the weapon.

Hays would not comment on a possible motive.

Catron, who had held office for 17 years, had given the campaign speech and bought two cakes. He had walked back to his police car with the cakes and was opening the trunk when he was shot, Shopville-Stab Volunteer Fire Department Chief R.J. Riley said Sunday.

"The cake was still sitting on the car, on the trunk lid," said Darrell Beshears, the Pulaski County judge-executive.

Catron was in uniform and was wearing the bulletproof vest he routinely wore because his father, then-Somerset Police Chief Harold Catron, had been shot and killed in 1964.

Beshears said people in the crowd pointed at someone leaving on a motorcycle.

Police said a sheriff's deputy and firefighter caught Danny S. Shelley, 30, of Eubank, approximately five miles away when he wrecked a motorcycle that belonged to Jeff Morris, one of four people challenging Catron, 48, in the May 28 Republican primary.

Hays said Morris, who had been at the rally, hadn't reported the motorcycle stolen. State Police Lt. Lisa Rudzinski said Morris was not a suspect.

Asked if Morris and Shelley knew each other, Hays said, "that's part of the investigation that we're following up on."

Morris did not return phone calls to his home.

Somerset Mayor J.P. Wiles said Catron was known for dedication to his job and that it was not unusual to find the sheriff, who was single, still out on patrol with his deputies at 2 a.m.

"Law enforcement was Sam's life," Wiles said. "That's what he lived and breathed and did well."

Catron had trained as a pilot so he could search in a helicopter for plots of marijuana plants.

In September 2001, Catron announced more than 70 drug arrests on 129 indictments in what he said was Pulaski County's biggest drug sting. Lately, he had been combating an outbreak of methamphetamine labs, officials said.

Catron also had appeared on a segment of "America's Most Wanted" that aired April 13 about a former militia member who is wanted by police in eastern Kentucky. Rudzinski said authorities had no reason to believe Catron's shooting was related to that case.

Past haunts 100 gov't M.D.s

By Matt Kelley
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than 100 federal government doctors have been convicted of crimes or disciplined by state medical boards, including one physician now treating veterans who was convicted of helping a terrorist group, an Associated Press review of medical licenses has found.

Federal agencies are required to check the backgrounds of doctors they employ, but they are not prohibited from hiring those with criminal records, revoked licenses, or medical punishments.

All a doctor needs is a medical license valid in one state to get a government job.

Dr. Suzy Melkonian, who is paid $48 an hour as a blood-cancer specialist at a Veterans Affairs hospital in Los Angeles, was convicted 21 years ago in Switzerland of extorting money for a group that staged terrorist bombings and assassinations.

Melkonian was reprimanded five years ago by California for failing to disclose her Swiss conviction when applying for a medical license.

Despite Melkonian's conviction, VA managers believe her training and patient care are good and "she'd be a qualified member of our staff," said Dr. Dean Norman, the chief of staff for the Los Angeles VA hospital.

An AP review of medical-board disciplinary records identified at least 118 federal doctors who have worked for the government in the past two years who were convicted of crimes or punished by state authorities for offenses ranging from sex and drug abuse to incompetence.

Three of those doctors have been fired in recent months: one whose conviction for attempted child molestation should have legally barred him from getting his job and two who had relapses of conduct that prompted earlier punishments.

In all, 0.5 percent of the more than 20,800 doctors employed by the government have been convicted of crimes or punished, the records showed. Nationally, the rate is 2.6 percent.

But advocates say the government's choice of doctors should be better than the public at large, particularly because federal physicians serve the vulnerable, the underprivileged, and those who fought to keep the country safe.

Panel: Overhaul death penalty

By John O'Connor
Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Two years after Illinois Gov. George Ryan halted executions, saying he couldn't trust the state's criminal-justice system, a panel who he named to examine the process is ready to recommend changes aimed at keeping innocent people off death row.

Abolishing capital punishment isn't among the proposals to be announced today, but the commission's report will include approximately 70 other recommendations for judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys, and police, co-chairman Frank McGarr said.

"Many states and national leaders will look to see the recommendations that Illinois comes up with as a model for what else needs to be done in other states," said Richard Dieter, the director of the Death Penalty Information Center in Washington, D.C., which researches capital punishment but takes no position on it.

Ryan imposed the moratorium on capital punishment in January 2000 after several cases in which men were freed from death row because new evidence exonerated them or there were flaws in the way they were convicted. Since the 1977 reinstatement of the death penalty in Illinois, 13 men have been freed, 12 have been executed.

"This is an issue that's larger than Illinois. Illinois has had 13 cases, but most of these cases are outside of Illinois, and there are problems in those places as well," McGarr said.

McGarr, a retired federal judge, is not raising expectations about what will come of the commission's recommendations.

"The Legislature will have to decide whether it's going to adopt our improvements," he said.

Details of the report weren't released before today's announcement, but proposals that were recommended by reform advocates and were likely to be mentioned include:

- Standards of experience for lawyers who represent defendants in capital cases. Research on Illinois cases has turned up embarrassing examples of incompetent lawyers bungling cases.
- Requiring videotaping of police interrogations. One man,

Ronald Jones, confessed to murder but later said he made up the story to get police to stop beating him. He was exonerated by crime-scene DNA.

• Limiting testimony from "jailhouse snitches" and single eyewitnesses. Cellmates have sent men to death row by testifying they heard the men confess to crimes. But these witnesses often get leniency in their own cases, and some have proved unreliable. Cases that rest on single or questionable eyewitnesses also have fallen apart because of the unreliability of memories that fade.

Ryan's panel might get a cooler reception in the Illinois General Assembly than it would elsewhere in the nation. Ryan is a lame-duck governor weakened by a four-year federal corruption probe that brought indictments earlier this month against his campaign committee and two former top aides. He has not been accused of any wrongdoing, but he decided not to seek a second term.

Arafat and Powell meet

President Bush has demanded a pullback immediately, but Sharon refused to provide a timetable when he saw Powell on April 12 in Jerusalem. They met again briefly Sunday night in Tel Aviv.

Powell, in a short statement to reporters, called his meeting with Arafat useful and constructive.

A senior U.S. official said Powell's "clear message" to Arafat in a 45-minute presentation was "the bombings have to stop, that it was a major barrier" to progress toward a security agreement or on negotiations that Powell has said should lead to establishment of a Palestinian state.

Powell and Arafat directed top aides to meet today on "a variety of ideas." He provided no details.

Arafat saw Powell to the door, and they shook hands, but Arafat did not emerge. "Arafat did not come out for security reasons," Erekat said.

Gesturing to the building next door, where Israeli soldiers peered out of half-open windows, Erekat said, "You see the Israeli snipers all around. We are not going to take that risk."

But the senior U.S. official, who briefed reporters on the condition of anonymity, said, "They did not complain about the personal situation."

Palestinian Parliament Speaker Ahmed Quriea, who attended the meeting around a second-floor dining room table, told the Associated Press: "We told Secretary Powell that we shall not discuss any subject before Israel pulls out" from towns and villages that it has occupied since March 29.

"We told him that it's time to speak about a Palestinian state along the lines" that existed before Israel occupied land seized during the 1967 Mideast war, the Palestinian official said.

He said Arafat and Powell were expected to meet again Tuesday.

Kirchhoff, who is conducting research in South America, was unavailable for comment.

A professor of internal medicine, Kirchhoff is an expert on infectious disease. He started a business, Goldfinch Diagnostics Inc. at the UI Technology Innovation Center as a spin-off of his research on Chaga's disease. He also chairs the UI's Institutional Biosafety Committee, which is responsible for ensuring research on DNA follows federal guidelines.

According to the lawsuit and Bitar:

Bitar diagnosed a patient in 1993 with West African sleeping sickness 12 years after the man contracted it in Equatorial Guinea. The disease, which, together with East African sleeping sickness, kills approximately 55,000 people per year, is spread through tsetse fly bites. The diagnosis was rare because of the length of time the patient remained in remission, and the case sparked interest in the medical community.

After Kirchhoff inquired about the case, Bitar sent him samples of the blood and brain fluids to test and a report and video he created using data collected from various physicians.

Kirchhoff was unsatisfied with the initial manuscript. In 1997, Kirchhoff sent a revised version to Bitar to publish.

Bitar said he was unsatisfied with the revision, and Kirchhoff published the report in 1998 under his own name unbeknownst to Bitar.

Bitar asked Kirchhoff to collaborate on the revised report two years later, but Kirchhoff said he was no longer interested because it had "been too long." In April, Bitar discovered the article in the medical journal. Bitar's latest attempts to publish related material have been denied because of the similarity to Kirchhoff's piece.

"Kirchhoff thinks he had a role in the diagnosis of this patient and therefore has a right to publish my information," Bitar said. "But I have proof that he wasn't involved in that aspect, and this shouldn't be allowed to happen at a university."

Grainne Martin, the UI senior associate counsel for Research, said she had heard of the case but policy prohibits her from commenting. University officials conduct inquiries to determine if there's enough evidence to investigate allegations of academic fraud, she said. A committee is formed to review the evidence and decide whether sanctions are warranted.

UI Hospitals and Clinics media coordinator Tom Moore and David Skorton, the university's vice president for Research, refused to comment directly on the case.

New bar owner plans remodeling

UNION

In February, Kip Pohl sold Malone's Irish Pub, 121 Iowa Ave., to John Morain of Des Moines.

The Union was sanctioned for incidents connected with bikini contests it staged in February 2001 — events that Barlas called "old news." The bar was charged with serving alcohol to minors and indecent exposure after contestants exposed themselves.

Barlas emphasized his desire to focus on the bar's improvements rather than its missteps. He said the Union is different from many other Iowa City bars because of its multiple dance floors and stage for live music performances, which gives underage patrons a legal alternative to stay at the bar.

Before a grand opening in the fall, Barlas said, he has plans to remodel the building's interior this summer in addition to updating its stereo and lighting equipment. The bar will stay open during the projects, he said.

Iowa City City Councilor Connie Champion said bar owners need to hire more employees to watch underage patrons. In 2002, Iowa City police issued 158 citations for possession of alcohol under the legal age at 34 local establishments.

"If someone can make an effort to control [underage drinking] before I can, as a councilor, then I wish him the best of luck," said Champion, who has said she would support making bars 21 and over if underage consumption continues to be a problem.

The face-lift in a needle

Approximately 90 percent of patients return every four months when the results wear off. They pay $400 dollars each visit. Most of the patients are middle-aged women, but one out of three are college-aged females seeking to lift the arch of their eyebrow.

"In our society, youth is highly prized, and beauty is not a matter of vanity but a matter of necessity," Aly said.

A Botox user for two years, Canady chatted with the surgeon as he routinely injected Botox in three areas of her face last week. Paralysis in between the eyebrows erases vertical brooding lines. Injections in the forehead prevent horizontal frown lines, and ones by the outside of the eye halts so-called smile lines.

In all, the 37 and a half units that are injected fall far short of the 3,000-unit lethal dose, said Aly.

Canady, won't be able to control those muscles by nighttime, said Botox "opens her face." Her friends simply think she had a good night's rest.

The area will not feel numb, and her features won't be altered. But her ability to express herself facially is impaired, she said.

"I go to frown at my kids and I can't. I'm like 'Don't do that,' and I have a cheery face," she said. "My dog doesn't know if my eyebrow is up or down, and he knows when I'm mad."

Canady, whose husband is a UIHC plastic surgeon, got a nose job 20 years ago and says she'll consider a facelift when Botox treatments no longer control nature's clock. But she shrugs off any stigma associated with plastic surgery.

"I don't think of myself as an air head," she said. "People will lie about this and say they haven't gotten it done. What's the big deal?"

The FDA has approved the drug for other purposes, but it was initially against using Botox cosmetically. In 1994, the agency called the treatment "an egregious example of promoting a potentially toxic biologic for cosmetic purposes." Scientists are

If you think [Botox] is going to change your life, it's not.

— Laurie Canady, Botox user

now reviewing clinical trials and are expected to approve of its use, allowing the drug's manufacturer, Allergan, Inc., to advertise.

While being able to easily distinguish which television personalities have get Botox treatments is a perk, Canady said the main benefit is boosting her self-esteem.

"My face is my face. It's important, but it's not my life," she said. "If you think [Botox] is going to change your life, it's not."

Of power chords & Boston mania

By Richard Shirk
The Daily Iowan

Why is it that bands from Boston rock so much?

After nurturing such bands as the Pixies, the Cars, and Mis- sions of Burma, the commonly held theory is that it's the tap water. If so, Helicopter Helicopter apparently doesn't own a Brita, as is evident on the band's third album, By Starlight (Lunch Records) — a streamlined rock gem composed entirely of songs predestined for college-radio greatness and fantastic indie-rock car tapes.

If there is a reason to venture out to Gabe's on a Monday night, this band is it.

Most distinctive is the formula that Helicopter Helicopter borrows from fellow Boston rockers the Pixies and the Dambuilders — the two-part harmonies of Julie Chadwick and Chris Zerby (so cute that repeated listens cause sugar headaches) over the pedal-heavy crunch of their guitars.

This dynamic is the first thing apparent from the strong lead track "And Just Once" — a well-posed questions to the Easy-Mac masses of college slackers (a theme also in standouts "Unfortunate" and "Afterworlds.")

There is no shortage of power chords on By Starlight. "Moveable," "Trembling Gods" (Chadwick's vocals on this one are cause for panic for anyone diabetic), and "Bottom of the Ocean" break all U.N. sanctions on fuzz-rock, as Zerby and Chadwick's guitars buzz away in unison. Even with the guitars high in the mix, the efficiency of the arrangements and the lack of solos keeps H2's music bopping along at a steady clip.

Besides the exuberant guitars and the male/female vocals, lyrics about space, deep-sea critters, and cars on the freeways fill in real estate usually left for predictable power-pop breakup songs.

With a smiling pop-sensibility and more hooks than Velcro, Helicopter Helicopter should prove a bright end to an undoubtedly bleak Monday. The group will be joined by Hella and Xiu Xiu.

Bringing that earthy soul down-home

By Dave Strackany
The Daily Iowan

Toting four acclaimed folk LPs, and most recently a live double disc, Live Wide Open, Martin Sexton is set to present his earthy, soulful songwriting onstage at Gabe's Tuesday.

Throughout the last 13 years, the New Yorker turned Boston coffee-shop phenom has tirelessly worked to prove himself one step above the countless working singer/songwriters hopping from outdoor mall to outdoor mall. With vocals comparable with Jeff Buckley and guitar-work similar to that of John Mayer and Keller Williams, Sexton has been repeatedly hailed for his expansive vocal range and inventive playing.

Though his major-label releases, The American and Wonder Bar, were bogged down with bland arrangements and trite ornamentation, his performances are nothing but the real deal. Sharing the stage with no one, Sexton proves in concert that beneath any interpretive problems he faced in the studio, his songwriting is top-notch.

In addition, Sexton possesses a natural talent for performance that rivals his instinct for pleasing structure and melody. He deftly adorns his arrangements with thumbed bass lines, mimics brass phrases or guitar solos with an unearthly register, and woos roomfuls with his sweet, down-home persona.

Sexton last visited the UI during the 2001 fall semester, when he conquered a crowd at the IMU Wheelroom. His fun, intimate approach to live shows, in addition to the quality of his songs and obvious skill, make Sexton one of the premier solo performers out there. His concert at Gabe's should prove a treat for those interested in what a man with an acoustic guitar and a voice can do.

Psychological cat-and-mouse

Film: The Business of Strangers
Director: Patrick Stettner
Writer: Stettner
Starring: Stockard Channing, Julia Stiles, and Fred Weller
Length: 84 minutes
Rated: R

I don't understand women. Now, that's probably the obvious statement of the year, but it needs iteration in light of The Business of Strangers, the savvy drama from first-time director

FILM REVIEW BY NATE YAPP

Patrick Stettner. Just when some kind of comprehension of the opposite sex starts to form, movies like this rip it right out of my confused mental grasp.

It all comes down to one night in a hotel airport and a mind game played between two women: stressed-out exec Julie (Stockard Channing) and the young, impetuous temp Paula (Julia Stiles).

After an initial misunderstanding, the two quickly become friends and enjoy an evening of revelry. However, their fun and games become nastier as they enact vengeance against masculinity, with an unwitting businessman as their toy. Inevitably, the game turns inward, and their initial camaraderie turns into a vicious play for personal power.

Although ostensibly a thriller, The Business of Strangers is really a character study with a twist, an anthropological examination of women in the wild. Both of the main characters have reason to believe that they are the masters of their own existence, but only one of them is truly in control of the situation, and the other one — despite claims to the contrary — is simply a pawn.

In a film like this, the acting is really the key to effectiveness, and the lead actresses don't disappoint. Of course, I had little doubt whether Channing would be excellent — she usually is. It's Stiles who is really surprising, though, as she gives depth and resonance to Paula, and, much like her character, she holds her own against Channing's experience and wisdom.

Stettner's direction is stylish, almost too much so. A story like this almost tells itself, especially with such dynamic leads, and it would work most effectively with a more understated style. Instead, we get some very odd shots, a few weird angles, and quick-pace editing that sometimes doesn't suit the scene. Ultimately, his stylishness slights the story, and the narrative loses some power.

Despite a few foibles by the director, the actors are willing, as is the script. Plus, any film that forces you into further states of confusion and bewilderment is certainly worth something.

Tom Phulery dropped the ball

Dear Mr. Tom Phulery,
This is regarding your story in the April 1 DI.

I was very disappointed when I read your article concerning Snoop Dogg.

When I read this article, I was shocked, and then after I found out that it was all a big joke, I was very angered.

Fans all over Iowa City were disappointed that the university officials were not permitting him, Snoop Dogg, to come and perform here in town, and I am aware of their reasons, but then for you to "make up" this story to get a few laughs isn't right.

I have had people read this article to get their opinions, and in each case, they all agreed that this article made them think. At first they were like me, (shocked), and then they felt hurt, not only because they were fans of this artist, but because they also knew that what you did was hurtful to the community and to the artist.

Mr. Phulery, whatever your intentions were writing up this article, you didn't state them very clearly. I personally think that you owe our community an apology for your rude comments.

Next time you decide to play a

April Fools' joke, you should think of the consequences that follow. Think of how you made the artist feel.

Making bold claims about the Mideast

I am writing this letter in response to James Eaves-Johnson's recent column (DI, April 11). Eaves-Johnson makes several bold claims regarding the ongoing crisis between the Israeli and Palestinian people.

He contends that Israel is the freest state in the Middle East.

Try telling that to the 3.4 million Palestinians living in refugee camps, or the 4,200 Palestinians arrested in the recent Israeli military incursion into several West Bank cities, or the estimated 200-300 Palestinians killed in the past weeks alone. The European Union, the United Nations, and much of the international community have recently condemned Israel's treatment of Palestinian refugees.

[Second, he claims,] "Israel has a right to engage in self-defense."

Do the Palestinians not enjoy the same right? If Israel were occupied by a vastly superior military force, and the Israeli people were subjugated in their own country, and the incoming force declared the creation of a new state, then I suspect the Israeli people would take action. [Third,] "Israel targets military objectives."

What military? Yes, sometimes Israel targets poorly armed Palestinian policemen, civilians, and members of the Palestinian National Authority with U.S.-financed Apache helicopters, F-16s, tanks, and the threat of nuclear weapons.

[Fourth,] he claims that "a terrorist runs the Palestinian Authority."

While Chairman Yasser Arafat is no Mister Rogers, Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's hands are not clean, either. In 1982, then-Defense Minister Sharon was responsible for the massacre of more than 1,000 unarmed Palestinian civilians in refugee camps in southern Lebanon as determined by an official Israeli investigation. Does this make Sharon a terrorist, or is that label reserved for Arabs?

Modern-day Israel replaced Palestine in 1948. While millions of Palestinians fled and became refugees throughout the world, those that remained were left with no rights, no security, and no infrastructure in what once was their homeland. If these are the characteristics of a free people, then I suggest the columnist re-evaluate his definition of freedom.

Libraries shouldn't be required to use porn-filtering software

What do Super Bowl XXX, the National Organization for Women, and Hustler magazine all have in common? While this may sound like the beginning of a bad joke, in fact, it is the central point to a debate on Internet freedom. Web sites by these three organizations, among thousands of others, have been blocked at one time or another by software designed to protect children from Internet pornography.

Currently, the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Library Association are battling the federal government's latest attempt to censor the Internet. According to the Children's Internet Protection Act, which went into effect almost one year ago, all libraries seeking federal funding for the purpose of Internet access must enforce the use of commercially produced filtering software. Not only does the Internet act greatly infringe upon the First Amendment, it also places too much faith in a solution that has repeatedly been proven unreliable.

The filtering software mandated by the act is very simple. It reads the text returned from Web sites and checks to see if it contains any words flagged as objectionable. If so, the user is prevented from accessing the site.

Although this approach sounds reasonable, in practice the results are abysmal. The main problem is that many words in the English language have multiple meanings, some innocuous, some offensive. For the most part, the designers of the filtering software are free to choose what they will block. Common filters will look for simple character strings such as "XXX," "sex," or "masturbation." Such words and phrases are very prevalent on pornographic sites. However, most filters take it many steps further and block much more benign words such as "gay," "lesbian," or even "feminism." Although homosexuality and feminism are objectionable to some, why should our libraries be constrained by the closed minds of a tiny minority? Forcing libraries to block this kind of material is simply ludicrous.

Even if the filtering software worked as promised, allowing the federal government to decide what material libraries are allowed to display is a very dangerous practice. It is quite common for oppressive regimes to burn books and texts by the opposition. Filtering software accomplishes much the same purpose without all the smoke and ash. In effect, it is possible to silence opposing views simply by throwing away the bytes as they are sent down the wire. Surely the Soviet premiers would have been overjoyed to use a few mouse clicks to muzzle their detractors.

Forcing libraries to use filtering software is a pointless move that results only in the gagging of the last bastion of truly free speech, the Internet. This article itself is already excluded from what many filters will allow library patrons to view because it contains flagged keywords such as "lesbian." Worst of all, those patrons searching for information on homosexuality might never know they were receiving only those sites deemed to be not offensive by some nameless corporation. The gag itself is invisible. Burning books at least creates a bright flame as they are censored; filtered Web sites do not even give off a puff of smoke.

In search of our sensibilities and senses of humor

As I know more of mankind, I expect less of them.

— Dr. Samuel Johnson

What is wrong with people? I know that some of us believe we live in the greatest nation on Earth and that our way of life is unmatched the world over. Is that why we've lost our sense of humor? Our sensibility? And in return, gained a little bit of apathy and a whole lot of rudeness? Is that really how it should be?

Recently, people have gotten really upset over some pretty insignificant things. While all people have something that always makes them mad, I'm inclined to believe that what they've been complaining aren't those things. For instance, a DI cartoonist published a cartoon depicting college "evolution." The cartoon showed a man during each year of college, and in each stage, he grew more unkempt and more drunk. He ended his college career as a fat, drunken education major. That's funny. It's not contemptible. But many people felt the opposite, particularly people in the College of Education. And I suppose they're allowed to, but it's a cartoon. Learn to laugh at yourself. Without that ability, you will lead a miserable life.

And unfortunately, this ever-so-serious outlook on life is not even brushed aside on April Fools' Day. The DI ran a couple of spoof stories. I wrote a column that was completely riddled with lies. That's what April Fools' Day is for. And yet some people took offense to our jokes, citing our words as "racist" and even demanding a written apology. Relax. Please. Even if it's just for that one day. Not everything in life should be taken so seriously.

Amanda Mittlestadt

While some of us have become unfunny, others of us have continued to be un-smart. The City Council, in particular, has been unrelenting in its reign of stupidity. It is contemplating giving the go-ahead for a new apartment complex to be built light years away from campus, yet still (barely) in the limits of Iowa City. Despite complaints from the zoning commission, the fire and police departments, environmentalists, and, most importantly, students, some councilors seemed to have closed their ears. Instead, they have chosen to be persuaded by an out-of-state construction company. Fine. But remember, councilors — you have stated time and again that students only speak out when the issue is alcohol. We have proved you wrong, and if you continue to turn a cold shoulder to our voice, it will ring resoundingly in your ears after the next election.

So some of us have lost our senses of humor and our sensibilities. Alone, that would be enough. But we had to take it two steps further.

While we're getting worked up over the little stuff, we completely ignore the important stuff. Case in point: in January, a colleague of mine wrote a satirical column about the things Jesus would do in today's world. It was a funny piece. I laughed out loud. But, of course, some people were outraged. The column sparked a two-week long debate on the Opinions page. I am certain this was not my colleague's intent.

The next month, I wrote a piece about a problem that plagues our society — rape. The response? Almost nonexistent. Is it such a sensitive issue that people are afraid to speak out about it? If so, that is the exact behavior that perpetuates the crime. People are quick to speak out about insignificant things, but shy away from ones that matter. Our apathy to salient issues only decreases our power over them. It doesn't make them go away.

The problem of apathy seems to be spreading — and breeding rudeness. A recent study by Public Agenda, a nonprofit research organization, shows that Americans are ruder than ever. Those interviewed for the study acknowledged that rude behavior is a pervasive problem in American society. We notice it everywhere — from business and customer-service employees, from our fellow citizens, and even from children. Most people want to blame it on a declining sense of community and the ever-present, ever-offensive media. But we really have no one to blame but ourselves. We are not controlled by the media; we are still individuals, capable of thinking for ourselves. Our actions and behaviors are the results of our own thoughts and feelings.

What is wrong with people? Whatever it is, something has to change.

Amanda Mittlestadt is the DI Assistant Opinions Editor.

Court: Israelis must return bodies

By Jamie Tarabay
Associated Press

JENIN REFUGEE CAMP, West Bank — Israel's Supreme Court told the army Sunday that it must give the Palestinians the bodies of those killed in Jenin's refugee camp, a move that could help clear up the escalating dispute over how many Palestinians died in the fierce fighting.

Also, the army gave journalists a limited tour of the devastated camp and rejected Palestinian claims that hundreds of people, many of them civilians, were killed. The army said it has found fewer than 40 bodies after searching half of the camp, and most of those corpses belong to Palestinian gunmen.

The court also ordered the army to include workers from the Red Cross in teams searching for the bodies following more than a week of battles in the camp, the site of the heaviest combat since Israeli troops launched a West Bank offensive March 29 to track militants responsible for attacks on its civilians.

Sunday's court decision comes amid Palestinian accusations that Israel has been secretly burying Palestinians in mass graves. The petition to the Supreme Court was filed by Arab Israelis who said Israel was attempting to hide the number of dead.

It has been impossible to confirm the death toll. Palestinians officials and medical groups have not been allowed into the camp, but they contend that the death toll is in the hundreds.

The army, which suffered 23 deaths among its soldiers in the camp, had been saying that approximately a 100 Palestinians were killed, most of them gunmen, and that it wanted to bury the militants in unmarked graves in a cemetery in northern Israel.

Col. Dan Riesner, an adviser to the army's advocate-general who was present at Sunday's court hearing, said the bodies of 37 Palestinians, including at least 23 young men believed to be gunmen, had been found in a search of half of the camp.

Of the 37 bodies, Riesner said at least 26 were left where they were found pending the court action and also because of fears they may be booby trapped. Israeli officials said 11 civilian bodies were turned over to relatives or hospitals and were buried.

Israel has declared the Jenin refugee camp a closed military zone, though some journalists, including several from the Associated Press, have managed to get inside over the past four days.

The army on Sunday gave a group of journalists a tour of part of the camp, which was home to some 15,000 Palestinians.

The powerful stench of sewage mixed with garbage strewn on the camp's narrow alleyways. Many houses were empty, some with their front doors open.

Bullet casings littered the streets and alleyways, lying amid shattered glass and shards of rubble. Walls bore Hebrew letters and numbers, the work of the Israeli army to mark the roads. Alongside them were slogans of the militant Islamic group Hamas.

Some homes had their windows shut, but the sound of children playing and the aroma of baking bread wafted through, indicating that some people were still around.

Most residents who have remained inside the camp were too afraid to venture out.

But Mariam Fayed and the remaining five members of her family came out Sunday to survey the devastation. She said men in her family had left the camp before the Israeli army moved in.

For 10 days, the family survived on meager portions of bread and rice, said Fayed, displaying a pot of chopped greens from her garden and mixed with fried onions.

Chaos in Caracas: president returns

By Alexandra Olson
Associated Press

CARACAS, Venezuela — Triumphant yet chastened, President Hugo Chavez returned to office on the wings of a popular uprising two days after he was ousted and arrested by Venezuela's military, saying he has reflected on his mistakes and was prepared to "make corrections."

"I do not come with hate or rancor in my heart, but we must make decisions and adjust things," Chavez said at dawn, moments after pushing past tens of thousands of supporters to reclaim the presidential palace in Venezuela, the third-biggest supplier of oil to the United States.

Opposition leaders stayed clear of public light on Sunday. Venezuelans struggled to make sense of the dizzying, bloody sequence of events that led to Chavez's brief ouster and stunning return.

Chavez was ousted by his military high command, which claimed he had resigned under pressure after gunmen opened fire on opposition protesters. At least 16 people were killed.

Economist Pedro Carmona was sworn in April 12, only to resign a day later amid widespread street protests, looting, and rebellions by several military officers who refused to go along with the plan. Chavez's vice president said April 13 that Carmona and his supporters would be tried.

"I'm sorry, but the pain I feel doesn't let me talk," said one old man, his eyes welling as he stared at his scorched shoe store in a western Caracas slum.

Chavez appealed for calm, and the looting that had gone on through the night died down. By sunrise Sunday, streets in the capital were empty.

A caravan of Chavez supporters interrupted the silence, speeding through the city in motorcycles and cars, honking horns and chanting, "He's back! He's back!"

The Bush administration, which showed no remorse when the Venezuelan military ousted the country's elected president last week, advised Chavez on Sunday to make good use of his second chance.

"We do hope that Chavez recognizes that the whole world is watching and that he takes advantage of this opportunity to right his own ship, which has been moving, frankly, in the wrong direction for quite a long time," said Condoleezza Rice, President Bush's national security adviser.

Misery settles like dust amid West Bank rubble

By Laura King
Associated Press

NABLUS, West Bank — The misery alights and settles here and there: on the trembling shoulders of a mentally ill man deprived of the medication he needs to calm his terrors, in the anxious face of a mother who cradles her newborn baby girl as she begs a ride home for fear of being shot in the street, along the tightly clenched jaw of a gray-haired Palestinian teacher about to be blindfolded and led off by Israeli troops in full view of his 8-year-old son.

In nearly every corner of the West Bank, Israel's massive 15-day-old military offensive has carved a swath of suffering through the lives of ordinary Palestinians, the unintended or disregarded victims of the most intense and wide-ranging manhunt ever for Palestinian militants who plan and carry out suicide bombings, shootings, roadside ambushes, and other violent attacks against Israelis.

Since March 29, Israeli armor and troops have clanked and churned their way into six of the West Bank's eight principal Palestinian towns and cities, together with some two dozen smaller villages. In some places, the soldiers' stay has lasted only a matter of hours; in others, their presence has already become a way of life, full of entrenched routine and unvarying custom.

Each new military takeover — the latest of them taking place on April 13, in a widening circle of villages surrounding the town of Jenin in the northern West Bank — looks and sounds much like the last: the distant rumble of tanks growing louder and louder, guttural Arabic-language commands shouted through megaphones by arriving troops, frightened families peeping out from behind curtains and shutters, house-to-house searches by the soldiers, and often, the thunderous echo of rockets and shellfire that rains down on homes and gunmen's hide-outs alike.

Like so much that happens in this part of the world, events of the past two weeks have a quality of seeming larger than life, played out on an epic scale. In reality, the West Bank — with its biblical hills, stony valleys and silvery-leaved olive groves — is a small place, only about the size of Delaware.

Viewed from close up, through the now-distorted prism of Palestinian daily life, what has happened here can seem like nothing less than a cataclysm.

Israeli military curfews have placed nearly 2 million Palestinians under effective house arrest, and tanks have confined their leader, Yasser Arafat, to his shell-pocked headquarters. More than 4,000 men and boys ranging in age from 15 to 50 have been detained in mass roundups. In many Palestinian cities, towns and refugee camps, the property damage is of a magnitude normally associated with a particularly wanton natural disaster.

Palestinian deaths and injuries — whose numbers are already the subject of much angry debate — are agreed by both sides to run into the hundreds. Quotidian necessities such as food, water, and electricity are now prized commodities; everyday activities such as work and school are on hold; simple pleasures such as family outings, television, and fresh food are luxuries only to be dreamed of.

Europeans bash U.S. on Kyoto Protocol

By Tom Cohen
Associated Press

BANFF, Alberta — European environment ministers slammed U.S. rejection of the Kyoto Protocol and its policies on greenhouse gas emissions Sunday, calling them political maneuvers to preserve the energy-burning American lifestyle that have nothing to do with economics.

The comments on the final day of weekend talks by environment ministers of the world's industrial powers overshadowed their discussions on how to integrate environmental issues in new global policies for sustainable development.

Host Canada had tried to prevent the Kyoto Protocol dispute from dominating the G-8 environment ministers meeting involving the United States, Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, and Russia, along with the European Union and U.N. Environment Program.

A final statement by the ministers said the environment continues to be degraded worldwide. It called for the upcoming World Summit on Sustainable Development in South Africa to integrate environmental issues in policies for alleviating poverty and promoting economic growth in developing nations.

"Environmental considerations have to be a full part of the thinking and not an afterthought," said Canadian minister David Anderson.

Several dozen people, including some dressed as endangered spotted owls, marched to the hotel Sunday to call for protecting forests. It was the lone demonstration of the weekend.

The formal agenda made no mention of the Kyoto agreement, which requires reductions in greenhouse-gas emissions, but it came up in every discussion, and it was the focus of a breakfast meeting Sunday, delegates said.

After breakfast, European ministers expressed their dissatisfaction with the U.S. stance on the issue, calling climate change an international problem that required an international agreement with full participation by such a major emitter of greenhouse gases.

"The basic problem is that the United States has chosen to stand outside the [Kyoto] protocol," said Margot Wallström, the European Commission environment commissioner. "It makes the protocol weaker, that's for sure."

Germany's Jürgen Trittin said he had trouble understanding U.S. arguments that Kyoto restrictions would harm the American economy, saying Germany had reduced greenhouse-gas emissions without significant problems.

"We are convinced that reduction of carbon dioxide is not a harm to the economy," he said.

He also noted that the Kyoto Protocol requires reductions in emissions and said the Bush administration's incentive-driven program intended to induce voluntary reductions was politically motivated to prevent substantial changes in U.S. consumption.

Cheap energy in the past created a U.S. lifestyle that consumes more energy than other countries, and forcing too much change too quickly would be politically dangerous, Trittin said.

Hawkeyes swing into third

By Donovan Burba
 The Daily Iowan

If Finkbine seemed a little warmer than the rest of Iowa City this weekend, it was probably because of the Michigan women's golf team.

The Wolverines scorched the 10-team field at the Hawkeye Invitational to successfully defend last year's title, finishing 15 shots over runner-up Indiana. Host Iowa placed third with a score of 917, its best finish of the spring season.

The Hawkeyes were in great shape after the rounds on April 13, sitting just four shots back of second-place Indiana. Maggie Gabelman, Heather Suhr, and Laura Holmes all scored in the top 10 on the first day. But Sunday brought whipping winds and high scores. Gabelman (77-71-85-233) and Holmes (74-77-85-236) both carded 85s to finish 18th and 25th, respectively. Suhr (71-80-76-227), however, remained undaunted, carding a third-round 76 and finishing seventh overall.

Also competing for Iowa were Liz Bennett (81-74-80-235, 23rd), Megan George (80-78-80-238, 27th), and Shannon Fleming (83-81-79-243, 39th).

"I'm very pleased with third place," said Iowa coach Diane Thomason. "Obviously, you want to win, but we beat some good teams. We beat Wisconsin

Iowa smashes records

By Tyler Lechtenberg
 The Daily Iowan

Monstrous throws, provisional qualifications, and the blossoming of some young Hawkeye talent summed up this weekend's split-squad action for the Iowa men's track and field team.

Most notably, sophomore thrower Bill Neumann shattered his personal-best in the javelin with an outstanding throw of 244-5 at the Sea Ray Relays in Knoxville, Tenn. The throw won the event at the elite meet, improving Neumann's previous personal mark by more than 17 feet and garnering the school record as well as an NCAA automatic qualification in the process.

"He's put himself up among the best guys in the country as a sophomore," Iowa coach Larry Wiecezorek said. "That's the type of throw that can score at the NCAA meet."

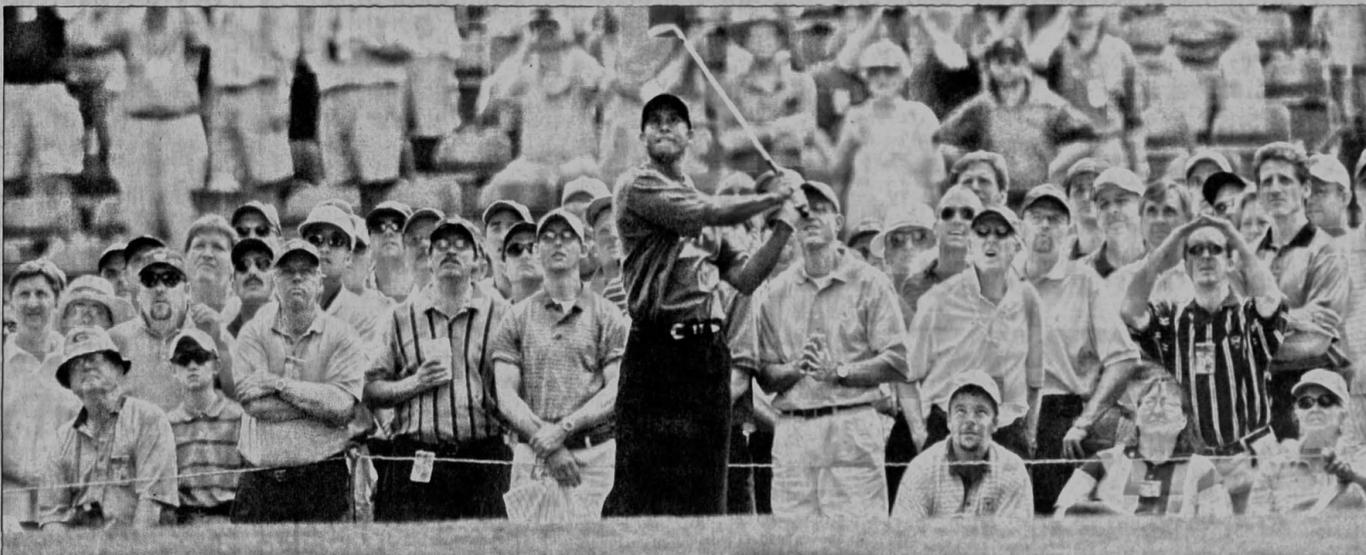

Neumann and success have been synonymous since the sophomore arrived from Comox, British Columbia, last year. But such a large improvement — albeit from last year's Big Ten runner-up — caught even Wiecezorek off guard.

No taming this Tiger

By Doug Ferguson
 Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Not the best players in the world, not a toughened-up Augusta National could stop Tiger Woods' march to Masters history.

Woods made short work of the tournament's longest course ever Sunday and had an even easier time against a collection of top-ranked players who scrambled for the sidelines as he became only the third player to win back-to-back titles.

An early burst of birdies gave him control, and Woods never let anyone closer than two strokes the rest of the way. He closed with a 2-under 70 to claim a three-stroke victory over U.S. Open champion Retief Goosen.

"After the front nine, I knew it was all over for me. I just tried really hard for second," Goosen said. "It is obviously difficult playing with Tiger."

Despite all the changes to the course, the scene was all too familiar.

Woods walking up the 18th fairway in a victory parade, tugging on the brim of his cap to acknowledge the applause. Give him the lead at Augusta — or just about any major — and just wait for everyone else to back down.

We were all trying to make something happen to catch Tiger, because we knew he wasn't going to falter.

— Phil Mickelson, PGA golfer and won a green jacket for the third time in six years. He became the first player to repeat as Masters champion since Nick Faldo in 1990. Jack Nicklaus was the only other, in 1965-66, and Woods' victory put him halfway to Nicklaus' mark of six Masters.

Woods looked to the sky and smiled when his 18-foot birdie putt just missed, but he tapped in for par and walked over to hug his parents.

He finished at 276

Last year, Woods battled Phil Mickelson and David Duval down the stretch to win the Masters and become the first player to sweep the four professional majors.

Another tight finish loomed, with six of the top seven players in the world all poised to win the Masters. By the end of the day, they were scratching their heads, trying to figure out what they could do — if anything — to tame Tiger.

"We were all trying to make something happen to catch Tiger, because we knew he wasn't going to falter," said Mickelson, who closed with a 71 to finish third, his 39th major and still regarded as the best to never win one.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Iowa nabs two Big Ten victories

By Roseanna Smith
 The Daily Iowan

Toni Neykova wouldn't let Michigan's Kavitha Tipirneni ruin her last game at home.

Instead, the senior played through three sets, ending her final game on the Klotz Tennis Courts with a 7-5, 3-6, 6-2 victory. Neykova, who is ranked No. 104 in the Omni Hotels Poll of national players, led the Hawkeyes' 5-2 team win over the Wolverines as well as Iowa's match-winning point on April 13 over Dora Vastag of Michigan State. Neykova swept Vastag (6-0, 6-1) in the 6-1 victory.

Iowa coach Paul Wardlaw wasn't surprised with Neykova's performance in the clutch.

"Toni's key was in the first set (7-5)," he said. "She's been money for us at home, and because Michigan is playing so well, it's obviously a good win for Toni."

Steffi Hoch and Cassie Haas also contributed to the team victory in singles with a pair of wins in two heavily-contested matches. Haas survived a 10-7 tiebreaker, winning over Christine Nolan (7-5, 7-6 [10-7]). And, Hoch outlasted a controversy involving a ball rolling behind a player, creating interference, to score a decisive tiebreaker victory over Michelle DaCosta.

"The refs let it play, and that actually ended up helping us," Wardlaw said. "It changed the momentum, and Steffi just continued to play well."

Against Michigan State, the Hawkeyes were also led by Haas, who retired Caroline Lay after a 5-0 start, and Deni Alexandrova who shut out Mandy Caldemeyer (6-0, 6-0).

The Hawkeyes scored the doubles point in both matches, getting good play overall, Wardlaw said. The No. 59 duos team of Neykova and Alexandrova went 2-0 on the weekend, defeating both Big Ten opponents.

"Our doubles are doing really well," Wardlaw said. "The point is important, and in the last three of our four games, we've scored it. Our doubles keep getting better."

In the Big Ten, Iowa is currently at 4-4; the pair of wins broke a three-game losing streak and were the Hawkeyes' first home contests in seven matches.

Wardlaw said the successful weekend would be important entering the final weekend of the regular conference season against Minnesota and Wisconsin.

"These games will give us a little momentum heading into the last weekend," he said. "Our players know every day we're playing with our NCAA bid on the line."

End Regular Season

Opponents in the East and West set

Nine of the 15 seeds in the NHL playoffs were up in the air until the completion of games Sunday, the final day of the regular NHL season.

In the Eastern Conference, the New York Islanders beat the Philadelphia Flyers to nail down the No. 5 seed, setting up a first-round series with the Toronto Maple Leafs, the fourth seed in the East.

New York's victory pushed New Jersey down to sixth. The Devils will play No. 3 Carolina in the first round.

In other East pairings, top-seeded Boston plays eighth-seeded Montreal, and No. 2 Philadelphia will take on No. 7 Ottawa.

The West was almost completely wide open entering play Sunday, with all but No. 1 Detroit in limbo. The Red Wings' opponent wasn't set until Phoenix beat Nashville in the last game of the day to move into the sixth seed. It meant Vancouver settled in as the eighth seed and will meet Detroit.

Labonte wins at Martinsville

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Bobby Labonte pulled away on a restart with seven laps to go Sunday and won the Virginia 500 NASCAR Winston Cup race, an event that featured plenty of banging — even without Kevin Harvick. Harvick's growing status as NASCAR's bad boy was solidified hours before the race, when the governing body made him the first driver barred from an event because of rough driving in the series' 54-year history. Harvick's Richard Childress-owned Chevrolet was driven instead by fill-in Kenny Wallace, who spun out after 73 laps and wound up 32nd. Despite the buzz about Harvick and the unprecedented penalty in the garage area before the race, the 500 laps went on in typical Martinsville fashion, with most every car leaving the track with marked-up exteriors. In all, there were 14 caution flags that slowed the pace for 104 laps, many caused by the nose-to-tail and side-by-side contact that typify short-track racing and got Harvick in trouble with NASCAR officials.

Marlins blank Braves; Bonds injured

MIAMI (AP) — A.J. Burnett pitched a four-hitter, and third-string catcher Ramon Castro homered twice to help the Florida Marlins beat the Atlanta Braves, 7-0, Sunday.

Florida's Mike Lowell went 3-5, his fifth consecutive multihit game, raising his average to .408. Burnett (2-1), who struck out eight, pitched the third complete game and second shutout of his career.

Jason Marquis (1-2) gave up three home runs, including a 442-foot drive by Derrek Lee.

Mets 6, Expos 4

NEW YORK — Roberto Alomar, borrowing a bat from Mike Piazza, homered twice, drove in four runs, and singled to set up Piazza's go-ahead single in the sixth. New York won for the fourth time in five games.

Steve Trachsel (1-2) got the victory despite another costly error by New York's shaky infield. The Mets lead in the major leagues with 20 errors.

Armando Benitez pitched the ninth for his fourth save. Tony Armas Jr. (1-2) allowed five runs and five hits in six innings.

Phillies 3, Reds 1

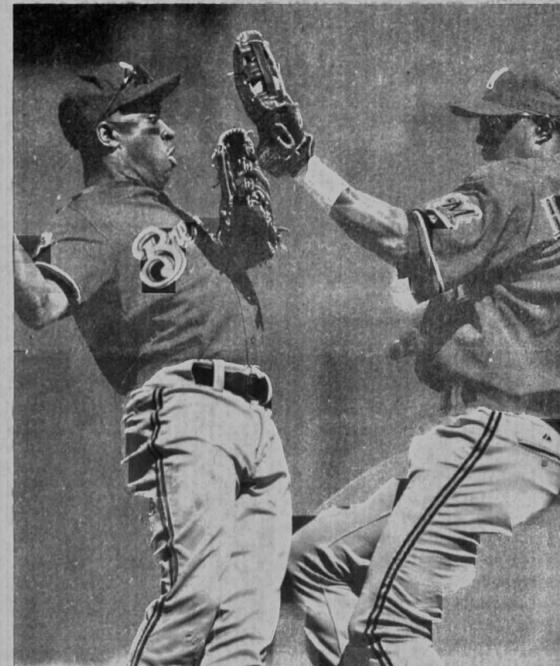

PHILADELPHIA — Vicente Padilla (2-1) took a shutout into the ninth inning, allowing six hits and striking out a career-high 11 in his third major-league start.

Bobby Abreu had two RBIs, Todd Pratt matched a career high with four hits, and Jose Mesa got three outs for his fourth save, stopping Cincinnati's four-game winning streak.

Elmer Dessens (0-3) allowed seven hits in six innings and gave up three unearned runs in the third after a throwing error by third baseman Wilton Guerrero.

Bucks closer to playoffs

By Arnie Stapleton
Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — In the midst of the most trying season of his NBA career, Ray Allen had the game of his life.

Allen scored a career-high 47 points thanks to a club-record 10 3-pointers, and the slumping Milwaukee Bucks took a step toward earning a playoff berth by beating Charlotte, 98-91, Sunday.

"Ray just put them on his shoulders and wouldn't let them lose," Hornets coach Paul Silas said. "That's what great players are supposed to do."

Allen's eight 3's after halftime tied an NBA record for 3-pointers in a half, and his 47 points were the most by a Bucks player since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 50 against Portland on Jan. 19, 1975.

And Allen basically did it on one leg.

He has been playing all season with knee tendinitis and an atrophied quadriceps muscle in his left leg — the result of Philadelphia's Eric Snow banging into him in Game 7 of the Eastern Conference finals last year.

"That's the confidence I think I needed, working through having the injured knee, and the confidence my team needed," Allen said.

The Bucks, in danger of falling from Eastern Conference favorite to the draft lottery in one of the biggest collapses in NBA history, snapped a five-game losing skid and won for just the fifth time in 20 games.

Milwaukee's Ray Allen leaps in the air as time expires after the Bucks' 98-91 win over Charlotte on Sunday.

Rowers post season's best times

By Ali Noller
The Daily Iowan

The women's rowing team did not need to travel to enjoy pleasant weather over the weekend, but it didn't mind the trip to the warm, salty beaches of Long Beach, Calif. On April 13, the Hawkeyes battled the University of Southern California and Long Beach State in a regatta at the Pete Archer Rowing Center.

The Iowa rowers were victorious in two of three races and notched their best times of the spring season in the sultry waters. Iowa coach Mandi Kowal said she was pleased to come out with two wins, especially after experiencing travel problems.

"USC has a tremendous amount of horsepower," Kowal said. "We had very respectable races, and USC was appreciative of that."

Iowa's varsity 4+ came away with a tight victory over USC, coming from behind to win with a time of 7:46.3 to the Trojans' 7:47.6. Kowal said the Iowa crew did a great job of handling their composure after a slow start.

Iowa's other victory came from the novice 8+, topping the USC by 17 seconds. "They had a big margin of victory," Kowal said. "But they need to concentrate on the sprint of the race. We need to work on going out and posting our best time as our race plan."

Iowa's No. 18-ranked varsity 8+ dropped a race to USC's eighth-ranked squad, 6:36.2 to 6:30.8.

"The [varsity 8+] needs to put the entire race together," Kowal said. "We really need to figure out how to get stronger and be incredibly unified as a team."

Kowal said that when the Hawkeyes raced against Wisconsin on April 6, the varsity 8+ had a more allied effort, while during the race versus USC, the crew didn't seem as determined.

As the Hawkeyes return to Iowa to train for their biggest home meet of the season, they hope pleasant weather will continue. Iowa will host Michigan State, Wisconsin, and Minnesota in the Head of the Iowa on Saturday.

The regatta will be held at Sugar Bottom race course.

Men shocked twice in Michigan

By Roseanna Smith
The Daily Iowan

The No. 57 Iowa men's tennis team traveled to Michigan over the weekend and returned with little more than disappointment.

The Hawkeyes were upset by Michigan State, 4-3, on April 13 and then fell to No. 37 Michigan, 5-2, on Sunday, losing two consecutive matches for the first time this season.

"Michigan State was a killer," Iowa coach Steve Houghton said. "It's probably one of the toughest matches ever. It was just heart-breaking. I think the match took a lot out of us physically and emotionally, I think it may have had some aftereffects on the [Michigan] game—it's hard to say."

In each contest, Stuart Waters and Hunter Skogman led the team, both building a 2-0 record in singles.

Ranked No. 95 by the Omni Hotels poll, Waters upset the Spartans' No. 39 Henry Beam (6-2, 6-4) on Sunday after defeating Andy Formanzyck (6-4, 6-3). With the two wins, Waters improves to 6-2 against ranked opponents on the season.

Skogman recorded Iowa's second point against Michigan by defeating Anthony Jackson in three sets (6-4, 1-6, 6-3). He also overturned Cameron Marshall (6-1, 6-3).

"Both of those guys play with a lot of confidence because they've had enough experience winning now," Houghton said. "I think in tight situations, they know they can do it."

In doubles, Waters and freshman Justin Gaard defeated Chris

Rolf and Chris Shaya, 8-4. Skogman and Jake Wilson locked out Michigan State's Mike Jonckheere and Goran Topalo, 8-3.

Against the Spartans, Pete Rose also picked up a win in No. 6 against Mike Hodge.

The Hawkeyes will return home this weekend to play Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Houghton said that while the losses were difficult to swallow, the team's confidence shouldn't suffer.

"It's hard to take, but with one weekend left, we have to gain some ground on people," he said. "But our guys know enough not to let a weekend like this blow their confidence. I have no doubt they'll enter the match with a lot of enthusiasm."

Mixed results for women's track

By Tyler Lechtenberg
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's track team faced some of the stiffest competition in the nation and came away with some up-and-down performances at the Sea Ray Relays hosted by the University of Tennessee.

"I felt we had kind of mixed fortunes," Iowa coach James Grant said. "I was hoping that we would get everybody to be on the up at this meet."

In Knoxville, Tenn., Iowa was led by a pair of javelin throwers, Alana Redfern and Mandy Beck. Redfern, a freshman NCAA provisional qualifier already, placed third with a throw of 152-6. She was followed by Beck, a senior, who finished fourth at 149-0.

Iowa got another fourth-place finish out of its sprint medley team of Tamara Dixon, Jiselle Providence, Nicole Charles, and Atalie Barber. The group's time of 3:58.18 could have been improved had the team run in the tougher first heat instead of the second, Grant said.

"I thought the sprint medley ran really well," Grant said. "They ran without any opposition — they won by 20 or 30 meters — so that was a little disappointing."

Junior hurdler Sarah Steffen was anything but disappointing when she broke the one-minute mark for the first time this year with her seventh-place, 59.96 finish in the 400-meter hurdles. Steffen, who also finished 15th in the 100-meter hurdles, is now just 0.76 off of an NCAA provisional qualification in the event.

Grant said his overall impression of the weekend was positive.

"By far, this was our toughest outdoor meet to date," he said. "They handled it pretty well, except for looking a little tired on Friday. I thought they came around tremendously on Saturday and performed much better."

Also on April 13, the Hawkeyes who did not qualify for the Sea Ray Relays traveled to Des Moines for the Jim Duncan Invitational, where three Iowa freshmen captured victories. Latoya Stiffend won the 100-meter hurdles in 15.13, Katie Donlon won the 1,500-meter run in 4:47.63, and Katie Hoback's throw of 41-8 1/2 won the shot put.

SPORTS BRIEF

Lee, Ndereba defend marathon titles

BOSTON (AP) — A warning to anyone considering foul play along the Boston Marathon course: That runner who just huffed by could be a cop.

As many as 600 officers, half from the Boston Police Department, are expected to run in today's race, supplementing the unprecedented force that will guard the race's first edition in the security-conscious days following the Sept. 11 attacks.

Although they have no official duties, the running police will be prepared to leave the course if they're needed.

"Of course I would. Wouldn't you?" Boston police Capt. William Evans said. "I don't anticipate anything, though. I've never found there not to be enough police officers."

There have been no specific threats directed at the 106th running of this marathon, but race organizers are following the trend of other big sporting events by beefing up security to make sure that the expected 17,000 runners and nearly 1.5 million spectators along the 26.2-mile course from Hopkinton to Boston are safe.

Approximately 1,500 police will guard the course, along with 415 National Guard troops and another 1,500 law-enforcement personnel. Helicopters, bomb-sniffing dogs, hazardous-materials teams, and radiation detectors have been added or increased this year, and the whole crew will be in contact with the state's emergency bunker in Framingham. Runners have submitted information for background checks.

If everything goes well, no one on the course or alongside it will have to worry about anything but the course itself.

"All I want to do is get up the hill and over the hill," said Evans, who is running in his 11th Boston Marathon, this time with his black Labrador retriever, Pepper. "When you're on Heartbreak Hill, all you care about is getting over it."

Inconsistency continues for Hawkeyes

By Jeremy Shapiro
The Daily Iowan

Following a dramatic come-from-behind win the night before, the inconsistent Hawkeyes were clubbed, 11-1, by Ohio State Sunday at a sun-splashed Duane Banks Field.

The Buckeyes took three of four over the weekend to capture first place in the Big Ten baseball race. Ohio State used steady hitting and solid starting pitching to subdue any chance that the Hawkeyes had of winning the series. Iowa only managed 1 run in each of the three losses. Iowa dropped to 12-17, 3-9 in the Big Ten, and its lackadaisical play promoted a team meeting following the last out on Sunday.

After a heart-racing 5-4 win on April 13, the Hawkeyes seemed poised to carry that excitement into Sunday's game and pull out a split. However, a masterful outing by Ohio State's Nate Smith quickly dashed those hopes. The right hander moved to 4-0, giving up one run on three hits in seven innings. He struck out a career high 13.

"Their pitcher did a good job keeping us off balance," said Iowa coach Scott Broghamer. "We didn't make adjustments and were mentally tired. Smith got ahead in the count, and we helped him out with the strike-outs."

Scott Morgan/The Daily Iowan

Iowa's Ryan Mentokowski pitches during the double-header against Ohio State on April 13 at Duane Banks Field.

"The bottom of the first set the tone for the afternoon. After Ian Mattiace was hit by a pitch, Andy Jansen singled him to third on a sharp liner down the third base line. Smith then struck out both Brad Carlson and Kyle Thousand and stranded the runners.

The Buckeyes scored one in the second and two in the third. They broke it open with Lance Rolston's two-run homer in the fifth.

A bases-loaded walk by Andy Cox scored Jansen in the sixth for Iowa's only run. The next batter, Louis Andrulonis, harmlessly popped out to center to end the inning. Smith had thrown six-straight balls and the pitch Andrulonis hit appeared out of the strike zone as well.

"We lacked momentum today," Jansen said. "They scored the runs, and we had a couple of opportunities to answer, and we need to key in on those chances."

After a tough 2-1 loss in the first game of the double-header on April 13, the Hawkeyes found themselves down, 4-1, and running out of chances. With two out in the bottom of the fifth, Mattiace walked and advanced to third on a crucial Jansen single. Carlson then took Buckeyes' pitcher Scott Lewis second offering over the right field fence to tie it at 4.

In the sixth, walks by pinch hitter Lance Guyer and Jeff Gremley put two runners on. Mattiace was hit by a pitch loaded them up, allowing for a Jansen sacrifice fly, which scored pinch runner Brian Bucklin for the lead.

Freshman closer Jeff Gilmore retired Ohio State in order to preserve the win, erasing bad feelings from a 7-1 loss on April 12 and the loss in the first game of the twinbill.

The weekend illustrated the inconsistent ball that Broghamer said has kept Iowa at the bottom of the Big Ten.

"We haven't been able to play three days in a row at the same consistent level," he said. "We've had good and not-so-good performances. We have yet to have back-to-back-to-back games with good pitching, defense, and hitting."

Iowa's next game is a road battle with Illinois State on Wednesday. The Redbirds slugged Iowa, 14-6, on March 26 in Iowa City.

SOFTBALL

Iowa bounces back

By Todd Brommelkamp
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa softball team took a giant step backwards in its quest for a Big Ten title with two losses to No. 25 Ohio State this weekend before rebounding with a pair of shutouts over Penn State at Pearl Field on Sunday.

The Buckeyes snapped No. 20 Iowa's 12-game win streak April 12 with a 2-0 win behind the pitching and hitting of Wendy Allen. The sophomore hurler with a pink pony tail tossed a complete game, five-hit shutout against the Hawkeyes while providing the game's lone runs on a pair of home runs.

Bad luck followed the Hawkeyes the next day, as the team twice lost leads in a wild nine-inning affair. After Christina Schmaltz gave Iowa a 2-1 lead with a bases-loaded single in the ninth, the Buckeyes tied the game in the bottom of the frame, then OSU's Kristi DeVries hit a two-run home run to win the game.

The pair of losses were Iowa's first in conference play, temporarily dropping them behind Michigan for the Big Ten lead. The Wolverines split a Sunday double-header with Wisconsin and stand at 8-2 in the conference, the same as the Hawkeyes.

"We had some tough losses, and we knew we needed to bounce back [Sunday]," Schmaltz said.

Bounce back Iowa did, sweeping Penn State, 5-0 and 2-0, to improve to 27-14 overall and 8-2 in conference play.

"I thought our kids came out really well today despite the losses [to Ohio State]," head coach Gayle Blevins said. "We did a good job of keeping pressure on [Penn State] all day."

Liz Dennis started the scoring for Iowa in Sunday's opener, doubling home Kristin Johnson in the bottom of the first. The double was Dennis' 18th of the season, tying the single-season team record held by Kim Davis and Alicia Gerlach.

Schmaltz added to the Iowa lead with a bases-loaded double in the third that brought home two runs. The Hawkeyes also put up two runs in the sixth.

Kristi Hanks improved to 13-8 with a complete-game performance, including a perfect 3-3 day at the plate with an RBI.

Ten hits propelled the Hawkeyes to a 2-0 victory in the day's second game as all three Iowa hurlers combined on a three-hitter. Sarah Thomson started the game before giving way to Lisa Birocci in the fourth. Hanks entered the game with two outs in the sixth and pitched the final inning and a third for her second save of the year.

"All three of us worked well together, and we all did our parts," Hanks said. "That's what gets us wins."

The trio of hurlers got all the offensive support they would need with a Lori Leon RBI single in the first. Johnson added an RBI double in the seventh for good measure. Penn State threatened a late come back with runners on second and third with one out in the sixth, but Birocci induced a fielder's choice, and Hanks struck out clean-up hitter Jennifer Tripken to end the inning.

Johnson finished Sunday 4-8 with two RBIs and three runs scored, including a pair of doubles and two steals.

The Hawkeyes will meet Iowa State for a single game Tuesday in Ames before returning home this weekend for a pivotal series with Michigan State and Big Ten-leading Michigan.

MEN'S GOLF

Iowa finishes 16th at Kepler Intercollegiate

By Travis Brown
The Daily Iowan

A Sunday downpour made play impossible, cancelling the final round of the Kepler Intercollegiate and leaving the Iowa men's golf team in 16th place after two disappointing days of golf. The Hawkeyes finished with a 36-hole total of 615, including an opening round score of 314 that landed Iowa in last place.

"Three guys shot 80, and that just kills you," said Iowa coach Terry Anderson. "You just can't do that at this level."

After the final day of competition was cancelled, UNLV was declared the winner (288-288-576), followed by Colorado, Purdue, Northwestern, and Michigan State.

The top performers for Iowa were senior Tyler Stith and junior Bo Anderson, who both tied for 50th place with scores of 152. Stith (75-77) had great rounds going each day, only to fall victim to a small slump when he took several bogies in a row.

"With the exception of a couple lapses, he could have been in the hunt for the medalist honors," Terry Anderson said.

Junior Aaron Krueger tied for 65th (80-75), and juniors Mike Tapper and Erik Feldick tied for 73rd and 86th, respectively.

"We're sure making it easy for people to beat us," Terry Anderson said. "These guys are better than what they're showing, but you're only as good as the number you put on the scorecard."

The Hawkeyes will hit the links again next weekend, traveling to the First Energy Intercollegiate in Akron, Ohio.

CLUB BRIEF

Iowa's first novice 4+ boat started off the regatta, competing neck and neck for the first 1,000 meters of the 1,800-meter race before overpowering Northwestern. Iowa crossed the finish line 6.6 seconds, about half a boat-length of open water, ahead of the Wildcats, to start Iowa's sweep.

The novice 8+ continued the domination, beating Northwestern by 22.66 seconds and the University of Chicago by 36.01 seconds. To finish out the day, the Iowa second novice 4+ defeated the Wildcats by a margin of 1:04.72.

The men's rowing team will not compete this weekend in order to prepare for the Indianapolis Collegiate Invitational, which is equivalent to the Big Ten championships for club teams. Iowa will compete in a difficult bracket that includes Michigan, Minnesota, and Purdue.

Runners-up tired of Woods

By Paul Newberry
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Maybe they were just tired of finishing second to Tiger Woods.

Ernie Els and Vijay Singh have done it more than anyone, which has to be frustrating for players of their caliber.

They made sure it didn't happen again Sunday at the Masters, transforming Augusta National into the local municipal course.

Retief Goosen will go down in the record books as the runner-up at the 2002 Masters, and indeed he was tied for the lead with Woods going to the final round. But the South African's hopes faded quickly — he lost three strokes on the first three holes — and everyone knows the Masters doesn't start until Sunday's back nine.

For Els and Singh, that's where it ended.

The weekend hacker is quite familiar with these shots — the drive into the trees, the wedge into the water. But guys who have won major titles aren't supposed to play this way.

It was unexplainable, almost painful to watch.

There was Singh, the 2000 Masters winner and also owner of a PGA Championship, taking a quadruple-bogey 9 at No. 15 — which played as the easiest hole on the course — after knocking two shots into the water.

There was Els, twice a U.S. Open champion, yanking his tee shot at No. 13 into the trees, then plopping the next two shots into Rae's Creek. He signed for a triple-bogey 8 and might as well have headed to the clubhouse.

Woods simply had to keep his ball in play, shooting a final-round 71 that put him at 12-under 276 for an easy three-stroke victory.

"If I played my normal game, I'd have been 11 under," said Els, who instead shot 73 to tie for fifth at 6 under.

"I'll come back and try again next year," Singh said with a sigh, having plummeted to seventh with a 76 that pushed his score to 5 under.

Els has finished second to Woods in seven tournaments around the world, more than any other golfer. He was in that position again after making birdies on three of the first eight holes, getting to 10 under.

Things began to fall apart at No. 9. Els' second shot landed about a foot short of where it needed to be, rolling back off the front of the severely sloped green.

The Big Easy showed a rare bit of frustration, raring back his club with one hand as if he wanted to pound the ground.

Second only to Els when it comes to finishing second is Singh, three times a runner-up when Woods has won.

He started to crumble at No. 11, missing a short putt to save par. He flipped his ball into the pond on the way to the next tee, not knowing he would come close to running out four holes later.

Singh also went in the creek at No. 13 but salvaged a par. He was still within three strokes of Woods heading to No. 15, an eagle opportunity that could have made things interesting.

Unfortunately for Singh, a poor drive forced him to lay up in front of the water. He knew he had to knock his sand wedge close to the hole for a birdie try, but he didn't have much room for error with the flag practically hugging the water in a front right position.

The first swing landed a little short, the ball trickling back into the water. Try again.

After dropping, Singh delivered an instant replay. Another ball in the water. Game over.

"I hit two or three bad shots with the sand wedge," Singh said, "and that was that."

Woods pulls in a $1,008,000 prize for his 31st career victory

Woods accepted his green jacket from Augusta National Chairman Hootie Johnson — usually, that's the job of the defending champion.

"I think we're going to wear this jacket out putting it on you before your career is over," Johnson told Woods as he slipped it over his shoulders.

Johnson is the one who ordered the changes at Augusta, adding 285 yards, stretching the bunkers and shifting the tees, all designed to make the Masters a tougher test.

Rain softened the course and allowed for lower scoring. Perhaps it was Woods' presence that turned so many top challengers into mush.

Two-time U.S. Open champion Ernie Els tried to make a charge and wound up with an 8 by hitting into the trees and into the creek.

Former Masters and PGA champion Vijay Singh went into the creek, into the crowd, into the trees, and then took a 9 on No. 15.

Goosen, who started the final round tied with Woods, was already

I was asking one of the officials, do I get the green pants for finishing second.

— Retief Goosen, runner-up to Tiger Woods three strokes behind after three holes.

"I was kind of surprised, no doubt about it," Woods said about no one making a run. "But that doesn't deter me from my concentration."

Can anyone catch Tiger?

"We've been over this 100 times," Thomas Bjorn said. "This being the Masters and him being up there, it obviously puts you under a bit of pressure."

It was similar to Woods' record-breaking season in 2000, when he won the U.S. Open by a record 15 strokes and the British Open by eight strokes.

The praise sounds familiar, too.

"Give him a couple of more years, and I think Tiger will be greater than even Jack Nicklaus," Goosen said.

It might take longer than that, although Woods is sure getting closer.

He won his seventh professional major, joining a list that includes Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen, Sam Snead, and Arnold Palmer, who made this Masters his 48th and last.

So dominant is Woods that he became the first player since the Masters began in 1934 to win a major championship four years in a row.

He also reminded people how tough he is in the final round. Woods now is 23-2 when he has at least a share of the 54-hole lead.

Woods earned $1,008,000 for his 31st career victory, and he became the first two-time winner on the PGA Tour this year.

Goosen didn't make a birdie until the 15th hole, but he moved into second when everyone else fell apart. The South African closed with a 74 and finished at 279.

"I was asking one of the officials, do I get the green pants for finishing second?" Goosen said.

Throwers leading the way for Hawkeyes so far this season

TRACK

"Certainly, we have a lot of confidence in him, but when you go about 20 feet further than your personal best, that's a pretty big jump," he said. "I think that was a pleasant surprise."

Neumann's throw may have been the highlight of the weekend for the team, but a number of other exceptional performances flanked Neumann's achievement. Iowa gained two more NCAA provisional qualifications over the weekend — sophomore Ken Kemeny in the shot put and the 1,600-meter relay — upping the team's number of possible qualifiers to five.

"I'm really excited about our accomplishments this weekend," Wiczorek said. "This was a big boost — one of the emphases we've had is trying to get more provisional qualifiers."

An earlier provisional qualifier, senior Jim Costello, added to the Hawkeye success when he won the open discus with his toss of 170-11 and placed fifth in the hammer throw at 206-6. Brad Daufeldt, another member of the deep Hawkeye throwing corps, placed fifth in the invitational discus at 169-3 and third in the open hammer throw with a personal best throw of 188-8.

Also this weekend, redshirt freshman Andy Banse won both the shot put and discus at the Jim Duncan Invitational in Des Moines and the Hawkeyes made it a 1-2 sweep in the javelin with freshman Joel Storm's throw of 185-11 and junior Matt Stank's throw of 169-8.

Clearly, Wiczorek said, the Hawkeye throwers are heading in the right direction — and the glory for that goes directly to throws coach Scott Cappos.

"Coach Cappos has done a really great job," Wiczorek said. "I'm very proud of him as my assistant; he's built one of the very best throws programs in America."

There is more to the team than throwers though — the Hawkeye runners also posted some strong performances, led by the 1,600-meter relay's provisionally qualifying time of 3:07.21 at Tennessee. Also in Knoxville, a trio of seniors posted season's bests: Sprinter Tim Dodge ran 10.53 in the 100-meter dash and 21.10 in the 200-meter dash, Scott Williamson ran 53.23 in the 400-hurdles, and Shaun Allen posted a time of 3:54.24 in the 1,500-meter run.

At Des Moines, Tony Leick, and Ryan Strang finished second and third in the 400-meter hurdles, freshman Matt Esche placed fourth in the 1,500-meter run, and Sean Moeller and Chris Jensen finished fourth and fifth in the 3,000-meter run to cap off a strong weekend for the Hawkeyes. Meanwhile, junior Luke Nessa picked up where Banse and Storm left off, capturing Iowa's fourth championship in the field events with a jump of 6-4.

sin and Arkansas, and those were two big wins for us."

The victory over Wisconsin was the team's first Big Ten victory of the spring, and it came on a day when the wind made it impossible for any team to improve on its April 13 showing. Iowa shot a 315 as a team Sunday, 15 shots over its second-round score from the day before. Even mighty Michigan carded a pedestrian 311 en route to a final score of 888.

"We weren't really pleased with the way we played [Sunday]," said Thomason. "The conditions got a little tough with the wind, but we played two great rounds [April 13], and that was enough to give us a cushion."

Individually, Michigan's Le Anna Wicks led the way, finishing with a three-round score of 217. Wicks lost the individual title last year at Finkbine in a four-player playoff.

The prize for marksmanship, however, went to Suhr.

"On hole 4, she actually hit the flagstick on a fly," Thomason said. "What are the odds of hitting a flagstick that's maybe a half-inch in diameter with a ball that's only an inch and a half in diameter? That's pretty dang accurate."

The Hawkeyes have a week and a half to harness that accuracy in time for the Big Ten Tournament on April 26-28 in Champaign, Ill.

horoscopes

Monday, April 15, 2002 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Strategically position yourself so that you can make the most of every opportunity that presents itself this year. You will have a passion for what you do best and will reach your highest potential today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You'll have to work hard in order to keep up with everything that is happening in your life. Don't spread yourself too thin. Instead, set your priorities and stick to them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Greater interaction with officials or government agencies will add to your frustration today. Try to get all your papers in order to avoid too many delays.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your involvement in groups with substance will boost your reputation and put you in a key position. Bide your time and let things develop naturally.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): There may be lots going on around you today, but be an observer for the time being. Someone may try to rock your boat if you leave yourself in too vulnerable a position. Sports activity will be exhilarating and probably your best outlet.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can make your mark if you practice what you preach. You will have excellent ideas; although not everyone will agree, if you fight hard enough, you will gain ground and accomplish your goals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone may try to get you to donate to a cause you don't necessarily believe in. Tell that individual that charity begins at home and invest in yourself. There are all sorts of valid opportunities for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your personal life may be going through some changes today that may appear to be disruptive. If you are patient and let things unfold as they may, you will discover that you are actually sitting in a pretty good position.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Advancement can be yours. You can make financial gains through your efforts at work. Your ability to go above and beyond your call of duty will bring you additional praise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It's time to do something that will bring you great joy. Test the waters, try new things, and don't be afraid to make some personal changes that you've been thinking about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Difficulties with family members may cause alarm. Be careful not to overreact to the situation. Take time to listen to everyone's side of the story before you decide what to do.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can expect to hear something from afar today. E-mail, snail mail, or packages will be forthcoming. This is a great day to do things with your friends.

Ways to blow off telemarketers

- Say, "No I'm sorry. Mr. Johnson didn't make it through the accident."
- Insist that you went home from the bars with the caller last week.
- Tell the caller to hold on and find your blow horn.
- Tell them they have to scream because your hearing aid broke.
- Try speaking your best Spanish from high school.
- Repeatedly tell them how sexy their voice no matter what they sound like.
- Start laughing uncontrollably.
- Set the phone by your squeaky bed and jump on it.
- Say, "Have you ever considered getting a real job?"

quote of the day

Hopefully, those guys who stole our uniforms and played today will return them so our guys can put them on and play tomorrow.

— Diamondbacks manager Bob Brenly, after Arizona committed four errors in a 8-0 loss to San Diego.
