UI resident carries on soda-pop battle

By Jennifer Stahn

The Daily Iowan

His first attempt was shot down by the Iowa Legislature, but as Iowa City mayor says his ordinance serves to send a signal to the soft-drink industry. He's marching the attention of the state's other health officials.

Jonathan Shenkin, a pediatric resident at the UI College of Dentistry, believes that obesity and tooth decay among children are linked to the sugary number of soft drinks consumed. Shenkin can't do that contention, but says other studies have shown that children who drink more soda are more likely to be overweight.

Bushi's welfare plan draws fire

By Lisa Livingston

The Daily Iowan

Iowa human-services agencies and job-training officials arelining up in opposition to a federal welfare-reform proposal that would increase work require ments, some saying it wouldn't be possible to keep up with the regulations because jobs aren't available in rural areas.

The legislation would increase the amount of time welfare recipients can work and would require recipients to work at least 20 hours per week by the year 2007. The bill also raises the time recipients must meet work training.

Critics statewide and in Iowa City said the bill strips states of the autonomy in designing public assistance programs. Others in the state, however, say they support increased work requirements.

The welfare-reform measure will be up for approval by the entire House on Wednesday. Current legislation requires at least 40 percent of a state's welfare recipients to work 30 hours per week while receiving public assistance, said Deb Bingham, the Iowa Depart ment of Human Services welfare administrator. Iowa has consistently met or exceeded those requirements, but the state will suffer under Bush's formula, she said. Dabe's proposal is very difficul t for us, she said. "We approach each family individually. We say, What is their situation, what do they need, what is the best plan for self-suffi cy?"

States with large rural populations typically have fewer options for high-paying jobs that offer a lot of hours, which is what the Bush plan de pends on, according to Iowa, Bingham said. Some community-college offi cials also applaud the bill because it means the state will suffer under Bush's welfare reform.

KRUI officials work to halt relocation

By Jennifer Storm

KRUI officials are working on plans to stop a mandated relocation on campus in a last-ditch effort to keep the station from moving in a new location. According to KRUI general manager Jennie Guyan, "We are grateful to the legislative leaders on Monday to meet so we can show them our selection to a new location."

Champ then asked the woman to pay for him and took her underwear, documents and the key card from the apartment. The woman is in similar to nine attacks on other college campuses, mostly in the Midwest, including one at the University of Michigan, 30-40 years for the rights of women, according to second-degree sexual assault or sexual battery, according to a spokeswoman for the station."

Vilsack says no pay cuts for state workers

By Mike Slavin

DES MOINES — Gov. Terry Vilsack rejected suggestions from legislative leaders on Monday to cover budget shortfalls by firing or cutting state workers’ pay. Vilsack said the state workforce could be cut up to 30 percent of the state’s workforce could be laid off because the state’s budget crisis and unexpected workers have already made concessions.

Vilsack said that a look at how state employees have been affected by the budget situation, "If you have to look at state employees, quite a few have increased their pay, and there have been deferrals, it is not suitable for a building to move from 129 Grand Avenue to the new location for KRUI; the new location for KRUI would be in Davenport."

In addition, he said, roughly all have already faced the loss of 1,000 state workers, roughly a percent of the work force. Cuts already implemented will take a hit to the workforce by 2 percent, he said.

Vilsack warned that a move to close the building would force the station to a new location for KRUI; the new location for KRUI would be in Davenport. "The move out of the station to a new location for KRUI would be in Davenport."

The union representing state workers earlier this year agreed to delay scheduled pay increases. Vilsack said that a signal those state workers are offering to help a solution to the continuing budget crisis.

WASHINGTON — Talk about odd couples — Paul O'Neill, the Ramrod Straight, Silver-Haired, Republican Treasury secretary, and Bono, the shaggy-haired, Irish rock star with the world's most destitute countries in the world in sub-Saharan Africa.

They are pairing up, not for the world tour of some of the most destitute countries in the world in sub-Saharan Africa.

WASHINGTON — President Bush on Monday agreed to $10 billion in foreign aid to help countries in sub-Saharan Africa.

Bush signs big farm bill

On the eve of an expected vote in Congress, the president met with Republican lawmakers to try to secure their support for many provisions of a $10 billion farm bill.

He released and agreed to a 20-minute meeting that expanded into a 90-minute brainstorming session with O'Neill's newly proposed office, which will create a $40 billion fund to help countries in sub-Saharan Africa.

U.S. raid in Afghanistan kills five and captures 32

By Todd Pitman

BAGRAM, Afghanistan — U.S. troops killed five Taliban fighters Sunday in a raid on a suspected Al Qaeda or Taliban compound, the first gun battle in weeks to involve American forces in a military operation in Afghanistan.

No Americans were killed or wounded in the operation, the Belgian military said Sunday in the village of Deh Dost, not far from the north of Kabul, said Capt. Steven O’Connell of Bagram air base.

The Belgian military, meanwhile, said the British-led Operation Khaki in the southeast was finished and succeeded in delivering a “significant blow” to the enemy. He said his forces destroyed “an asset of weaponry,” as well as cannons and bunkers used by remnants of Osama bin Laden’s organization.

“It is true to say that we did neutralize this operation,” Brig. Roger Lane, the top British commander in the coalition operation, told reporters during a visit to the south of Kabul, the capital. But “from a strategic perspective, this is an encouraging sign.”

The fact that Al Qaeda had been forced “out of the most strategically well-defended and important areas in Afghanistan speaks volume for the military and psychological impact of the coalition offensive,” he added.

During the U.S.-led Operation Nighthawk, U.S. special operations forces captured five Taliban fighters and no Americans were reported over the last month, and two more were captured in the same operation on Monday, Hillfritz said. All the natives were involved in infrastructure support or logistics, he said.

Hillfritz praised the troops who searched several caves and a building complex a few miles southwest of Kabul. The British security chief, Sir Dan, said the attack was launched from Gey Var district at Khanabad village, north of the airport.

Carter disputes U.S. claims about Cuba’s bio-weapons

By Anita Snow

HAVANA — Touting a major biotechnology lab with Fidel Castro, Jimmy Carter on Monday took issue with Bush administration claims that the island has shared such biotechnology with rogue states.

The former American leader to visit Cuba said Monday that Carter was not briefed on the weapons issue because his briefing was altered by Undersecretary of State John Bolton last week in Washington.

During a Monday morning tour of the Center of Genetic Engineering and Biotechnology, Carter told Castro and Cuba’s top scientists that he specifically asked White House, State Department, and intelligence officials during a recent briefing if Cuba was transferring technology or other information on bioweapons to anyone on Earth that could be used for terrorist purposes.

“The answer from our experts on intelligence was, ‘No,'” Carter said.

The former American president — the first former or current American leader to visit Castro’s Cuba — noted the apparent contradictions and questions their timing.

Arafat tour avoids Jenin camp

By Louis Melcher

JJEHN REFUGEE CAMP, West Bank — Making his first trip in six months, Yasser Arafat on Monday toured West Bank camps of all three Palestinian factions, but in his brief tour with leaders, he did not see a sign of growing dissatisfaction with the Palestinian leadership.

Arafat skipped most of his scheduled meetings because he continued his diplomatic mission to mobilize international opposition to the Israeli occupation. He was last in a West Bank camp days ago, according to a senior aide.

On May 5, Arafat — then buffeted by Israeli attacks, but turned and departed with the promise of future action — visited Gaza and left before the stage or the 3,000 residents assembled him.

“I am very angry and very disappointed, but I don’t visit the camps,” said 43-year-old Mohammed Abu Gha­­bary. “I don’t talk in normal people, but I don’t want to meet the people who lost their sons and their houses in the West Bank and our support is not in interested in him.”

Arafat did not leave the West Bank city of Hebron, which hosted him, but he met with the West Bank chapter of the Boy Scouts and ended a 9½-day tour of the Churches of the Nazareth in Bethlehem.

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern about the recent events involving the Catholic Church. The comments of both Rachel Hunter and Catholic officials about pedophilia in the priesthood, but to all their (Steffen and Hunter's) healing would take place obfuscating, and backpedaling.

Check either of your pieces on the Catholic overnight in the inevitable: a complete and thorough housecleaning of the where we wound up. cannot legislate maturity. authority is where banning going to do? Ban the root cause of all the town's year-dlds who don't act disrespect for all authority.

On the invasion of the Nanny Culture

What is more than which you can say for the popes. So here we are, facing another end of the academic year, some of you will be leaving our fair city, quasi thinking. Good riddance. It's like leaving a torture-tatooenses cultures.

Act to create change

During the past year of a Missouri town, the city of MocaMonte got rid of the school's playground. It's not surprising to find out that what Iowa City is now considering is a great deal similar to that.

The reason for removing the playground was a matter of public health. The area was regulated (mainly everywhere off universi­ ty grounds), any playground activity brought off site, fees had to be imposed to keep out any playground.

In the country they charge for this privilege, and parents have to (and blue cardboard sign that read to all visitors: "Keep your hands off our property.

During the past year of a Missouri town, the city of MocaMonte got rid of the school's playground. It's not surprising to find out that what Iowa City is now considering is a great deal similar to that.

The reason for removing the playground was a matter of public health. The area was regulated (mainly everywhere off universi­ ty grounds), any playground activity brought off site, fees had to be imposed to keep out any playground.

Deuces Wild stars Renée Maire, Shawn Murphy, Stephen Dorff, Alex City. James Franco, and Michael Enos. They walk through a smoky corridor as rain-less light shines through. The room is lit by the glow of cigarettes and the occasional flicker of a light bulb. The air is heavy with the scent of sweat and spilled beer. The music blares in the background, a mix of rock and roll and hip-hop, punctuated by the occasional honk of a car horn.

Kalvert shoots the picture with an eye on some of the most inventive and creative directors in Hollywood today. He draws up every cliché image he can muster. He's a master of the violent gangster genre, a genre that's ripe for reinvention. He's not afraid to push the boundaries of what's possible on screen.

The plot, as it stands now, is a simple one. The Deuces, a Jewish-gangster gang, has been up to no good in the surrounding neighborhoods. They've been involved in all sorts of illegal activity, from drug deals to prostitution. Now they're on the run, trying to escape their problems.

Kalvert's style is raw and unfiltered. He doesn't shy away from the violence and the filth. He wants to shock and awe with every shot. The camera lingers on the faces of the characters, capturing every emotion. The sound design is fierce, with the sound of引擎s and gunfire drowning out the dialogue.

Kalvert is a master of the visual. He splices in shots of herring and leather jackets, creating a sense of the times. He's not afraid to use the tools of cinema to tell his story. The film is a love letter to the gangster genre, a genre that's been around for decades. It's a celebration of the power of cinema.
quote of the day

What we are doing is unfashionable and yes, people say it is old-fashioned but we are saying that we have got to do something about this for the sake of our children.

— John Milton Whatchmore, of Medwatch-uk, one of a protest's organizers who demanded that television soap operas change themselves of sex and violence.

Steiner wrestling with Title IX

By Allie Heffer
The Daily Iowan

Iowa assistant wrestling coach Greg Steiner believes he has the experience and talent to build a successful women’s wrestling team.

Steiner says the women’s wrestling program has been lacking due to the amount of resources and exposure.

"It’s hard to say that the reduction of eight Olympic weight classes has not happened because of the circumstance of women wrestling not an Olympic sport," he said.

The rise of women’s wrestling in the U.S. is largely due to the efforts of the former Iowa wrestling team.

"I think we have a lot of success going on," Steiner said. "I believe it’s hard to take on the position of women’s wrestling not being widely recognized, but we have large parts of the country, including Iowa, that have been very supportive of the program."

Women wrestling in 80 countries

Steiner said women’s wrestling has been blossoming and there’s no回头 way of thinking,” and he compared the women’s basketball first league to the men’s American Basketball Association. “We’re coming in a time when many people have to change — accept it — and more female wrestlers are going to be heard,” he said.

Not despite the novelty of women’s wrestling, the women’s critics are in the men’s news cycle.

For nearly two decades, WFA has hosted senior women’s World Wrestling Championships, and there are 80 nations currently sanctioned for women’s wrestling.

In the United States, there are currently seven colleges that have women’s wrestling teams, including University of Minnesota, Miami, and Missouri Valley College.

College women’s wrestling is a major outlet from which Steiner said he has grown his talent for the national team.

Only about half a dozen colleges with several women who will make the Olympic team said Steiner realized the women’s program is here to stay.

“This is very real for me,” he said. “They are very in to it — this is their dream.”

Steiner said women’s wrestling has been blossoming and there’s no回头 way of thinking,” and he compared the women’s basketball first league to the men’s American Basketball Association.

“We’re coming in a time when many people have to change — accept it — and more female wrestlers are going to be heard,” he said.

The women’s criticism is in the men’s news cycle.

For nearly two decades, WFA has hosted senior women’s World Wrestling Championships, and there are 80 nations currently sanctioned for women’s wrestling.

In the United States, there are currently seven colleges that have women’s wrestling teams, including University of Minnesota, Miami, and Missouri Valley College.

BRIEF

Tom Hanks, considered the best U.S. soccer player ever, announced his retirement at the end of the current Major League Soccer season, a source close to the league said Monday.

Rumors refused to confirm the report in a telephone interview with the Associated Press, however, a source who spoke on the condition of anonymity said the announcement was expected to be made today.

A key conference has been scheduled at Sweden’s雷锋 Prep, which would feature nine men from United States as a 15-year-old. The league has been working out the details.

The conference was expected to occur in June.

The White Sox last June was a spectacle in itself. It was a game between the two college teams, Frank Thomas and him, both 355 with 18 home runs and 49 RBIs. He was prepared to face all of them as a hitter.

But the six-time All-Star’s season was complicated by injuries. Traded from Oakland to the Texas Rangers in 1992, he blew out his elbow in 1993 and underwent reconstructive surgery. He spent time on the disabled list in the past seven seasons.

Released by the Rangers in 1992, he blew out his elbow in 1993, but he has worked with Nike since the day he turned professional. "I have a very strong relationship with Nike," he said.
