A new Iowa City water-treatment plant scheduled to open this fall could provide water for several UI buildings, including MacBride Hall and Davis Hall.

While the university operates a water-treatment facility on the south side of campus, the University of Iowa City plant will provide a water-treatment facility for several other buildings, including MacBride Hall and Davis Hall.

Some of the buildings that will benefit from the new plant include the University of Iowa Health Sciences Center and the University of Iowa College of Medicine.

The new plant will be located on the south side of campus, near the University of Iowa Health Sciences Center, and will be able to treat up to 1.5 million gallons of water per day.

President Burtz emphasized that the new plant would be an "innovative and bold people-removal" for the city, as well as an innovative and bold people-removal for the state. He also praised the new plant as a "great idea."

WorldCom plan 'brazen' by James T. Mahoney

With federal officials targeting nine people so far in the InteClone case under investigation, many in the world of celebrity parties are just waiting for the silver slipper to come down.

And Stewart herself is in a web of her own. Stewart's Lifeway Outfitters Inc. could have been rising steadily over the past few weeks. But with the word that Stewart has planned to sell shares in the company to get past industry
analysts, her earnings for the quarter are expected to be lower than expected.

Experts in the world of media Inc. have been rumors for weeks that Stewart
would be returning to the company to help it through its difficult times.

She has taken several weeks off from her duties as CEO to focus on her personal life, which includes spending time with her famous husband, John Travolta.

But news of Stewart's return
has sent the stock price of Lifeway Outfitters Inc. tumbling
nearly 24 percent in after-hours trading.

The stock is down about $1 in after-hours trading, or about 24 percent, from its close of $3.70 in the regular
time trading session.

Stewart's stockbroker, who also worked on the case, has denied any wrongdoing.

But some experts believe that Stewart may have been involved in some way with the fraud.

"I don't think it's brazen. It's just,
unbelievable," says
one expert who asked not to be named.

Stewart's public relations spokesman, who declined to be named, says that she is devastated by the news.

BOSTON — At Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a team led by механик dave R. kutscher, has been developing a way to use Bifidobacteriumlongum to help silence the tires of cars moving down roads. The bacteria, which are known to produce a variety of substances, have been found to reduce the noise generated by tires on asphalt, concrete, and other surfaces.

"The bacteria, which are naturally present in the soil, are able to produce a substance called acetyl-CoA, which can help reduce the noise generated by tires," said kutscher. "We're using a technique called biotransformation, where we take the bacteria and engineer them to produce the acetyl-CoA, which can then be used to reduce the noise."
Palestinians set date for election

By John Wandur Anderson and Harry Moore
Washington Post

JERUSALEM — Under pressure from the Bush administration and from the international community, Palestinian leaders announced Wednesday they will hold a presidential election and legislative elections will follow.

Senior Palestinian official Saeb Erekat announced that Palestinian Authority leaders have set Monday, Dec. 1, as the date for presidential elections and legislative elections will follow.

On the Middle East, Cherie Blair called for an international cease-fire conference, a position in line with Bush, who has dragged the talk of a conference until violence subsides. European leaders, traditionally more sympathetic to the Arab position, openly questioned Bush’s policy against Arafat.

But Blair’s critics are forgetting that his policy marks the first time America has imposed a comprehensive Middle East peace. Their view is reflected in the president’s personal anecdote. Revisions were made to the speech’s first version and the final speech was adopted at the State Department.

For his speech, Bush took over the administration in a difficult spot.

Baseball says goodbye to Kile in memorial service

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For the second time in six days, St. Louis Cardinals manager Tony La Russa was the center of attention when gathering to honor a late teammate.

Kile was in the race for the Cy Young Award when he was killed in a motorcycle crash last week. La Russa took part in a memorial service attended by 5,000 fans Wednesday.

Among the speakers were retired pitcher Doug Drabek, Rockies pitcher Mike Hampton and Cardinals teammate Vinnie Chott, Woody Williams, and Mike Matheny.

The afternoon mass was attended by the Cardinals and the Brewers, who were in town for a three-game series.

Kile could have returned to the Cardinals if he had done well for Colorado last year...just like Woody Williams, who is now with the Brewers, and Dusty Baker, who was manager when Kile played there.

The Rockies and Astros, the other two teams Kile played for, are in town tonight for a three-game series.

Kile's wife, "Baseball," and 5-year-old twins, Kannon and Flynn, sat in the front row.

Several players took leave of Kile's regulars for the service and planned to catch return flights for the game.

"I spokeings...personal feelings and sadness," Kile said before Wednesday's game against the San Diego Padres.

Tuesday night's apparent event is not the only time for his family this week.

Kile, 33, died June 23 in his Chicago hotel bed of heart attacks caused by the injuries he suffered in the crash.

Many players took leave of the regulars for the service and planned to catch return flights for the game.

Several players sat with family members in the infield, with dozens more lining the first base and third base of the ball park.

"We're trying to handle this the way it is," Baker said. "Things like this happen...we usually don't happen in view of everyone on television."
