The Englert Theatre received the promise of $20,000 from the county Thursday after Englert officials told the supervisors a Vision Iowa grant was dependent on the county funds.

County grudgingly funds Englert

By John Malseed
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors and Iowa City pledged limited funds toward the renovation of the Englert Theatre on Thursday to ensure that the project remains eligible for $1.6 million in state funds. Project officials are vying for money from the Vision Iowa Community Attractions and Tourism fund. The Vision Iowa board would not consider the request unless the city and county governments also contributed money to the Englert. "To me, that's blackmail," said Supervisor Pat Harney. Harney and other supervisors expressed disappointment that Vision Iowa was dictating how county funds are spent.

The supervisors pledged $20,000 over the next five years at a rate of $4,000 per year. In a move mirroring that of the state, the supervisors said they could limit their spending if they receive less than $1 million from Vision Iowa, a fund that has doled out $300 million to communities for building state attractions. "They're doing it to us; why not do it to them?" Supervisors Chairwoman Carol Thompson said. The supervisors said their action sets a precedent for the funding of other local projects that could ask for Vision Iowa money. Among those are the Iowa Child project and a pool in North Liberty. See SUPERVISORS, Page 7

UI poet returns to new Chile

By Amir Efrati
The Daily Iowan

When UI Spanish Professor Oscar Hahn was arrested on Sept. 11, 1973, by military forces in his native Chile, his captors told him he was a "prisoner of war." "Of what war?" the world-renowned Chilean poet asked before being led away from his home.

Hahn

Hahn, then a professor at the University of Chile, became a victim of Gen. Augusto Pinochet's military coup and subsequent war against domestic "Marxist enemies." Now, the UI professor of more than 25 years is returning for his first prolonged stay in the place where, nearly three decades ago, he was wrongly jailed, beaten, and tortured for 10 days. Learning institutions were Pinochet's prime targets. "They had a grudge against all intellectuals," said Hahn, adding that he feels fortunate because most of his colleagues

Rossi to join UI search group

By Sara Faiwell
The Daily Iowan

Responding to concerns about the make-up of the UI presidential search committee, state officials announced Thursday they tapped a former UI student leader to become the 26th and final member of the group. Dan Rossi, who served as the UI Student Government vice president during the 2001-02 academic year, was appointed to the Search and Screen Advisory Committee Thursday by the state of Iowa Board of Regents. The political-science major said he is excited about the opportunity to help choose a new president.

"I know I can do a good job of not only reflecting undergraduate views, but all students," said Rossi, a senior. "I have worked with UI-related issues for a while, and it's nice that I get some input on this." In July, the regents approved a 25-member committee to assist the board with the search for a new successor to Mary Sue Coleman, who began her presidency at the University of Michigan Thursday. The committee contained three students — one undergraduate and two doctoral candidates. In a statement announcing Rossi's appointment, the regents acknowledged "concerns were expressed about the number of undergraduate students" on the committee. For example, UISG President Nick Herbold said he recommended several possible candidates to the regents. He said undergraduate students "should have more say in the matter." "All I can say is that I'm very happy another student

Tax man takes weekend off

By Tony Phan
The Daily Iowan

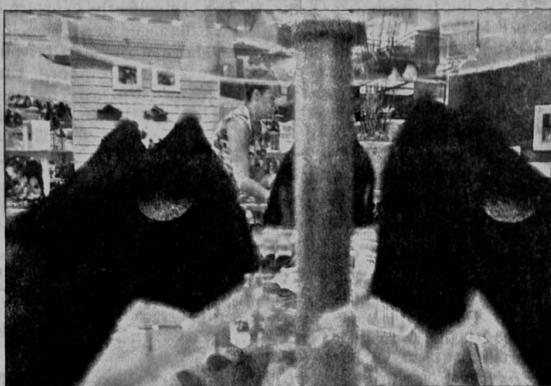

Area retailers are gearing up for Iowa's third annual sales tax holiday this weekend, which state officials say will continue indefinitely despite an expected drop in consumer spending this year and shortfalls in state revenue.

The holiday has been in effect since 2000, when the state gave up $1.6 million in taxes. Last year, it lost $1.3 million, and Iowa businesses earned $25.7 million. Today and Saturday, state businesses cannot charge sales tax on clothing and footwear items that cost less than $100 each.

Despite the state's across-the-board budget cuts, the tax break will continue for many years because of a bill passed by Iowa lawmakers during the 2000 session, which officially established the tax-free holiday on the first Friday and Saturday of August each year.

"The theory is that we drive sales for the merchants at the cost of tax revenue," said Dennis Prouty, the director of the Iowa Legislative Fiscal Bureau.

"I haven't seen any indication that it will be pulled by the Legislature," said Michael Lipsman, a tax-research director in the Department of Revenue. "When all is said and done, the customers and retailers are happy." But Lipsman acknowledged that the downward trend in total sales for the weekend could continue this year with the soft economy.

Scott Morgan/The Daily Iowan

"The retailers haven't been promoting it as much this year," he said. "Hopefully, people already know about it and will come out this weekend." Ken Lanvin, the owner of Touch of India, Old Capitol Town Center, shares that hope. "We get over twice as many people as a normal weekend coming through our store," he said. "I look forward to this time every year."

Violence numbing teenagers in Israel

LIVING IN CONFLICT

PART 3 IN A 3-PART SERIES

By Amir Efrati
The Daily Iowan

TEL AVIV, Israel — The Israeli-Palestinian conflict has significantly altered, if not scarred, the lives of Israeli youth.

Youval Zerah, 18, from Kfar Saba, can literally see skirmishes between the Israelis and Palestinians from his bedroom window, two miles from the Palestinian-controlled town of Qualquilya on the West Bank's western edge. Listening to the shelling, explosions, and gunfire from Israeli helicopters in response to suicide attacks has numbed him. "I know I can die just as easily in any other part of Israel," said the recent high-school graduate, who plans to enter Israeli army intelligence next year.

Zerah

Like Zerah, 19-year-old Tel Aviv native Oshere Merchav has coped with an overwhelming sense of vulnerability felt throughout her country during the past two years.

"You feel there is a tension, a pressure on you always, as if you are about to get hit in the stomach," she said, adding that she, too, will enter the Israeli military in September to join the Education Corps. "It's hard when you board a bus in order to go home and you don't know if you'll live or not."

Armed guards further the sense of insecurity by searching everyone at the entrance of supermarkets, restaurants, banks, malls, hospitals — any public building. Fear appears to have gripped much of the population.

Israel's situation especially troubles Merchav, who at 16 joined the Peres Center for Peace Youth Council that united Israeli and Palestinian teenagers.

"It's so heartbreaking for me because I know so many wonderful Palestinians and other Arabs," she said. "Unfortunately, the only people who represent them today are those who kill Israeli civilians."

The violence has caused many Israelis to forge a deepening mistrust of Palestinians.

"For many people here, every Palestinian is the one that blew himself up in a mall," Zerah said. "Likewise, for them, every Israeli is the soldier who shot their brother."

Though they both express sympathy for poverty-stricken Palestinians in the occupied territories, Zerah and Merchav do not justify Palestinian bombings against Israeli civilians. Suicide attacks are one of the only ways Palestinians can fight the occupations, Zerah conceded, "but violence for political ends is not right. There is no way to rationalize killing innocent civilians in a restaurant."

Making Palestine a state is necessary for peace, Merchav and Zerah said, but doing so now would put Israel at greater risk.

FBI arrests 2 WorldCom execs

By Carrie Johnson and Ben White
Washington Post

Two former WorldCom Inc. executives surrendered to the FBI in New York Thursday to face charges of securities fraud and conspiracy for allegedly manipulating the corporation's books, as investigators vowed to press on with their probe of the nation's second-largest long-distance phone company.

In an increasingly familiar sight, FBI agents handcuffed Scott Sullivan, WorldCom's former chief financial officer, and David Myers, its onetime controller, and led the grim-faced accountants past a horde of cameras to a Manhattan courthouse, where they were released on multimillion-dollar bonds. Sullivan and Myers stand accused of hiding $3.9 billion in expenses through accounting tricks in an effort to make WorldCom appear profitable during 2001 and the first three months of this year. WorldCom's disclosure of the improper accounting on June 25 helped trigger the largest bankruptcy filing in U.S. history.

Thursday's arrests add to the parade of recently ensnared executives from Rite Aid Corp., biotech company ImClone Systems Inc., and cable-television provider Adelphia Communications Corp. This time, the march includes a company with substantial operations in the Washington area. WorldCom is the parent company of both MCI, the Arlington, Va., telephone giant, and Ashburn, Va.-based UUNet, an Internet provider whose network carries one half of the world's e-mail.

"With each arrest, indictment, and prosecution, we send this clear, unmistakable message: Corrupt corporate executives are no better than common thieves when they betray their employees and steal from their investors," said Attorney General John Ashcroft. "[They] will meet the judgment they fear and the punishment they deserve."

Deputy Attorney General Larry Thompson said Sullivan and Myers carried out the alleged fraud in a brazen way, but he declined comment when asked if prosecutors would charge WorldCom itself with fraud.

Residence Hall head to retire early

By Mike McWilliams
The Daily Iowan

When Maggie Van Oel came to the UI in 1970, she was on track to earning a master's degree to pursue a teaching career.

More than 30 years later, she's still at the university, but her dream of becoming an art instructor has faded. These days, she's the director of UI Residence Services.

Van Oel is tying up loose ends as she readies herself for a break. She is one of 21 university employees who took advantage of an extended early retirement deadline, citing program incentives such as continued payment into her retirement fund as well as her life-insurance policy. She will leave in January 2004, eight years after she became director.

With 252 employees, Van Oel's office oversees 5,625 students living in the university's nine residence halls. A large chunk of the department's $35 million annual budget comes from student room and board fees.

"I'm tired," the 58-year-old said. "I just think I'm ready. It's a very demanding job. It's a fun job, but I can't see someone doing it for a long time."

Van Oel began her Residence Services career in 1971, when she took a job as a live-in hall coordinator in Burge — an unpredictable job, she said, because such emergencies as fire alarms or leaking pipe could arise at any moment.

"We'd have something [happen] where I couldn't walk away and go to school," she said. "That would happen multiple times, and I found that I couldn't [attend classes]."

After resigning as hall coordinator in 1979, Van Oel stayed close to Residence Services, working in the housing-assignment office before taking her current position.

Since then, she instituted a substance-free policy for all dorms in the fall of 2000 — a switch that was met with little outcry, she said.

Van Oel

Prior to the change, students who were of age could smoke or imbibe alcohol in their dorm rooms.

"Hardly anybody in the halls is 21," she said. "We were committed to providing a space where you didn't have to deal with the fallout of drinking."

During her time as director, Van Oel has overseen several infrastructure improvements, such as the remodeled cafeteria in Hillcrest and a $17 million fire-safety upgrade in the dorms.

In the works is a $14.5 million Burge cafeteria renovation, which will begin this fall, and construction on a new West Side dormitory, beginning in 2005.

Some projects will likely disrupt the residents' lives, she said, but she wants to stay on board to help because the next two years are "going to be tough."

Phillip Jones, the vice president for Student Services, said the search for a new director will probably begin this fall. Van Oel's accomplishments are obvious in some of her projects, he said, such as the Currier Community Center, which was completed in April.

"You can see in the residence halls some examples of her progressive ideas," Jones said. "She has been an educator as well as an administrator of the residence halls."

Observing students and seeing how they mature during their time at the UI has made her tenure worthwhile, Van Oel said.

"My best experience has been seeing generations of students grow up and learn how we fit into society," she said.

Ashcroft pal promised Okla. victims $

By John Solomon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A longtime friend and adviser to Attorney General John Ashcroft signed up Oklahoma City bombing survivors as clients with a promise to use his connections to win them government compensation in exchange for 10 percent to 27.5 percent of the proceeds.

Approximately 120 survivors and victims' relatives from the 1995 bombing signed up for the lobbying campaign, which fell apart last month amid lawsuits and ethics complaints involving the organizers, according to court documents and those involved. The intent was to win a share of the hundreds of millions set aside for families of Sept. 11 victims.

The Ashcroft friend, attorney Charles Polk, has had occasional contact with senior Justice officials, including Ashcroft, adviser David Israelite, and Sept. 11-fund administrator Kenneth Feinberg, Justice officials said.

But officials were unaware he was soliciting business from Oklahoma City victims or had a financial stake, Justice spokeswoman Barbara Comstock said Thursday.

"No one in the attorney general's office, including the attorney general himself, had any idea that Charles Polk was working on any legal matters related to Oklahoma City victims or that Polk had a financial interest in connection with Oklahoma City," Comstock said.

Polk said in a statement released by his attorney that he worked as a lobbyist in an attempt to win compensation for the Oklahoma victims, but he never discussed it with Ashcroft and cleared all his actions in advance with lawyers.

"We operated under the assumption that we were in compliance with all applicable laws," Polk's statement said.

Some of those who worked with Polk say the St. Louis attorney suggested to them that Ashcroft's department supported the idea of extending the compensation Congress set up for Sept. 11 victims to the Oklahoma City families.

"He did say the Department of Justice felt there was probably an injustice, and it would probably administratively happen, but it wasn't for certain," said Kathleen Treanor, an Oklahoma City woman who lost her 4-year-old child and in-laws in the explosion on April 19, 1995, which killed 168 people. She joined the effort to sign up victims for the campaign.

Polk managed to get some of the Oklahoma victims a private audience with Feinberg, the lawyer Ashcroft picked to administer the Sept. 11 compensation fund, which is expected to pay out as much as $1.8 million to individual families who lost loved ones in the suicide attacks.

"I told them I'd be glad to process their claims if Congress decided to expand the program," Feinberg said. "But I told them it was entirely up to Congress."

Victims who wanted to sign on to the venture, which also included a second lawyer and an Illinois businessman, were asked to sign forms.

The initial form called for paying "27.5 percent, plus expenses, of any amounts recovered," according to court records. The proposed fee was later adjusted to as little as 10 percent when it appeared there would be no need for litigation to win compensation for Oklahoma families, organizers said.

James Helenthal, a publisher of an Illinois shopping newspaper who was a partner with Polk on the campaign and then had a falling out, alleges in a lawsuit that Polk told him in March that Ashcroft had encouraged the venture to help Oklahomans.

"Mr. Polk told Mr. Helenthal that he ... had gotten the nod from key government officials on this, that they wanted him to get this deal, and all he really needed to was go out there and sign them up," the suit alleges.

The suit was filed last week in St. Louis County, Missouri, after an earlier suit was thrown out in Illinois. Helenthal alleges he is owed hundreds of thousand of dollars from the venture. Polk also has sued Helenthal.

Polk called Helenthal's allegations a "transparent attempt to create political pressure on me."

POLICE LOG

Adrian Thomas Lard, 25, of Davenport was charged Thursday with domestic assault. According to police reports, Lard allegedly choked a woman with his hand after asking her to step outside.

Robert James Gundy, 55, of Des Moines was charged Thursday with fourth-degree theft. According to police reports, Gundy allegedly collected $435.63 worth of merchandise from Menards, 1375 Highway 1 W., and returned the items without a receipt. He received $457.42, including sales tax.

CITY BRIEF

Two state auditors review mental-health agency records

State officials arrived Thursday in Johnson County to investigate massive expenditures made by the county's mental-health agency at the close of the last fiscal year.

Auditors Kathy Rupp and Annette Campbell met with Elaine Sweet, the Mental Health/Developmental Disabilities director, to determine the legitimacy of 59 independent-contractor claims totaling $97,000 filed in June.

Johnson County Auditor Tom Slockett provided the auditors with documents that included contractors' time sheets.

"The auditors talked about wanting to meet with officials from other counties as part of their review," he said.

The state auditor is expected to issue a report in two to four weeks after officials review documents and meet with Slockett, Sweet, and Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White.

White ordered the audit Monday after officials discovered that Diane Blackburn, a Jackson County employee contracted by Sweet, was double-billing hours in the two counties.

Blackburn was fired July 26 after receiving more than $11,000 from Johnson County.

Mass. lawmakers to people: We know more than you do

BOSTON (AP) — More than 200 years after citizens dumped tea in the harbor and took up arms in defense of liberty, the cry of tyranny is being raised again in Boston — this time against the people's elected representatives.

The state Legislature devoted much of the session that ended Wednesday to trying to quash citizen initiatives, prompting the newspapers to caricature the House speaker as an autocrat with a scepter and crown.

Lawmakers in the cradle of democracy ignored voter mandates to roll back the income tax, balked at funding a Clean Elections law, and refused to vote on whether to put a measure banning gay marriage on the 2004 ballot, even though supporters had collected 130,000 voter signatures.

Massachusetts voters can pass ballot initiatives, but only the Legislature can put up the money needed to carry them out.

To many, voter initiatives are a foolish way to make laws, and some legislators consider it their duty to serve as a check on the passions of the people.

"While we have a responsibility to the voters who voted for the referendum, we also have a responsibility to the voters who want a good education system and good roads and want government to run," said Rep. Dan Bosley, a Democrat from North Adams. "Do we do the popular thing, or do we do what we think is right based on the knowledge that we have, which may indeed be a little more sophisticated than what the general public has?"

This year, more than any other in recent memory, legislators trusted their own judgment, saying a $600-million revenue shortfall made voter-approved initiatives such as tax cuts impossible. The budget passed by lawmakers could cut health insurance for 50,000 unemployed and homeless people.

Senate passes trade package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress on Thursday returned to the president the power to negotiate trade agreements, passing legislation that also helps workers hurt by the economic fallout from global commerce.

"We can show the world that America will lead the way in building a new consensus on international trade," said Senate Finance Committee Chairman Max Baucus, D-Mont.

The Senate voted 64-34 to restore trade powers that had expired in 1994 and had not been renewed since. Minutes earlier, senators rejected a final effort to kill it by opponents, who said the bill's cost would exceed budget caps.

The bill now goes to President Bush for his signature.

"This is a historic and great day for America," Commerce Secretary Donald Evans said.

Bush pressed Congress repeatedly to pass the measure before leaving for the August break, saying its promise of fostering economic growth and jobs would be an important means of reviving the business community's flagging confidence.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer said the president was "very grateful" the Senate was moving on the legislation.

Trade promotion authority, also known as fast track, is in itself only a procedural tool. It allows the president to negotiate trade agreements that Congress can approve or reject but cannot change.

Yet Bush, like past presidents, says the authority is critical if the United States is to take the lead in efforts — such as the new round of World Trade Organization talks — to liberalize global trade.

2 kidnapped teenage girls found safe; suspect shot

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — Two teenage girls abducted at gunpoint early Thursday from a lovers' lane were rescued 12 hours later, and their kidnapper was shot to death by law officers, authorities said.

"The girls are safe in the custody of Kern County," said Los Angeles County Assistant Sheriff Larry Waldie.

Tamara Brooks, 16, and Jacqueline Marris, 17, were abducted about 1 a.m. in the Quartz Hill area of Los Angeles County by a gunman who left the girls' dates bound with duct tape. The crime set off a manhunt across the Southwest.

The kidnapper was identified as Roy Ratliff, who was wanted on unrelated rape charges.

Kern County sheriff's Cmdr. Chris Davis said Kern County officers, acting on a tip, spotted the kidnapper's Bronco and pursued it. Ratliff resisted and was shot by officers, Davis said. The girls were found near Lake Isabella in Kern County.

Friends and relatives at the sheriff's command center here wept with joy and hugged when they learned the girls were safe. "There are seven of us that always hang with each other, so if one of us is down, we are always there to help one another," said Erika Bermudez, a friend of Tamara's.

Guest Opinion

Dangerous terrorist on the loose; white male who wears a top hat

Dear Attorney General John Ashcroft:
 As a loyal American, I'm writing to report a dangerous terrorist to your TIPS program. First, let me confirm the United States' own definition of terrorism, as set forth in the U.S. Code, to wit:

"An act of terrorism, means any activity that (A) involves a violent act or an act dangerous to human life that is a violation of the criminal laws of the United States or any State, or that would be a criminal violation if committed within the jurisdiction of the United States or of any State; and (B) appears to be intended (i) to intimidate or coerce a civilian population; (ii) to influence the policy of a government by intimidation or coercion; or (iii) to affect the conduct of a government by assassination or kidnapping."

If this is correct, the individual I'd like to report is definitely and repeatedly guilty of terrorism. This person has (1) assassinated and attempted to assassinate political leaders around the globe; (2) committed genocide against indigenous peoples in North America, Southeast Asia, and elsewhere; (3) bombed targets around the world without regard to civilian deaths (something he terms "collateral damage"); (4) initiated and maintained embargoes of food and medicine that have resulted in the deaths of hundreds of thousands of children; and (5) provided weaponry to repressive theocracies such as Israel and Saudi Arabia. Sadly, the foregoing is but a partial list of his disgusting behavior.

To compound his sins against humankind, this tyrant has the gall to claim the moral high ground by asserting that he's serving the interests of "democracy" and "freedom."

Please apprehend this terrorist at your earliest opportunity. He's tall, gaunt, and elderly. He's given to wearing a top hat and red, white, and blue, and he goes by the nom de guerre of "Uncle Sam." Quickly now! People are dying, man!

Cutting library hours forces night owls out into the cold

Nothing is more important for learning than an easily accessible, well-stocked library. High-tech classrooms, a winning football team, and flowers for the Pentacrest are all nice touches, but without access to information stored in the library, a university's quality is diminished.

Unfortunately, UI officials do not seem to understand this simple fact. Just recently, UI Libraries officials announced that, because of budgetary pressures, the library would have to cut some of its hours. Starting in the fall semester, the Main Library will begin closing at midnight on weekdays, rather than at 2 a.m. This decision could seriously hamper students' access to the library and force late-night studiers elsewhere.

Many students are swamped during the daytime hours. Juggling a full class load with a job means that by the time these students can sit down to study, the sun has already sunk far below the horizon. For these dedicated individuals, the only quiet, easily accessible place to cram is the Main Library. Now, with the announcement that the library doors will close two hours earlier, these students will be forced onto the street. In an ideal world, they could simply find another quiet place to study after midnight, but such places are hard to come by in Iowa City. Inevitably, some students will just end up studying less. Their grades could slip, not because of laziness, but simply because of a lack of late-night study space.

Adding insult to injury, library officials are not even planning an announcement of the revised hours. Thanks to the university's mass e-mail system, university-wide announcements are easy and cheap. A simple warning e-mail to returning students could have softened the blow and given late-night studiers a chance to find an alternate study site. Instead, it is likely that many loyal library patrons will arrive after midnight and simply find the doors locked.

Scaling back library hours is a definite sign of a declining university. Like a company that begins laying off its workforce, a school that restricts access to the library is in obvious trouble. Just as the laid-off workers must find new places of employment, so, too, must the disenfranchised students find new places to study. It is ironic that this announcement has come as President Mary Sue Coleman leaves for Michigan. For better or worse, she committed herself to providing a quality education for every student that came to the UI. Now, as she leaves, that quality education seems to be leaving with her.

Welcome to the Hawkeye University!

What's that? You say you're interested in coming to the UI next year, and you want me to answer a few of your questions? Yeah, I suppose I could do that.

Oh, you'd like to get a scholarship? Well, I hope you play football, because our football program alone is able to offer — what's that? You don't play football? Oh, um, let me see then. Well, I guess there's always the Presidential Scholarship. But unlike a football scholarship, it's not a full-ride. You see, it's $7,000 per year, so you're pretty much out of luck if you want it to cover your out-of-state expenses. Yeah, sorry, that's our highest academic scholarship. Are you sure you don't play football?

Maybe you should consider taking up the sport. I mean, after all, UI alum Arthur E. Stanley recently donated $2.8 million that is going to pay for 14 of the 85 football scholarships each year. Yeah, I know, isn't it an awesome deal? You could come here on scholarship and never actually have to play in a game with 85 free-rides to go around. Yes, it's true, there are 35 more football scholarships than there are Presidentials. But hey, that's what you've gotta do if you want to keep up a consistently mediocre football program.

What's that? You think the money should have been donated for academic scholarships instead? Well, UI Athletics Director Bob Bowsby probably wouldn't agree with you there. He said that the gift "frees up crucial resources that can be used for equipment and facility upgrades, student-athlete support services, sports medicine, and nationwide recruiting efforts." Yeah, or Bowsby's new contract, perhaps.

Calvin Hennick

A DIFFERENT SLANT

Oh, you hadn't heard? He recently received a raise to $345,000. Yes, I do realize that former President Mary Sue Coleman didn't even make that much before she left for Michigan. But after all, Bowsby is the man responsible for running Tom Davis out of town and bringing in Steve Alford. Without him, we might have never known the sweet taste of spectacular first-round NIT defeat.

No, I don't think that Bowsby's new contract is extreme. At least, not when compared with Kirk Ferentz's new deal. Oh, you hadn't heard about that either? Well, he's guaranteed at least $910,000 annually, plus performance bonuses. No, you see the beautiful thing is, he doesn't actually have to win any games at all to get some of the bonuses. For example, he'll get a $300,000 longevity bonus next season just for still being the coach. So in theory, he could make over a million bucks without winning a single game. But after all, he only needed two seasons of miserable performance before he was able to lead the Hawkeyes to a 6-5 regular season record. That's right; at Iowa, we wildly reward even the mildest of athletic successes.

You're sure you don't want to play football? Well, no matter. You can always get a football scholarship and then get yourself kicked off the team, as senior running back Sika Massaquoi did. They even let him keep his scholarship. Pretty sweet deal, huh?

Oh, you have more questions? A good place to study? Well, there's always the Main Library. It's always quiet in there, with lots of room to do your work. Oh, you want to study late? Well, actually, they just decided to cut back the hours, so now you'll have to get out of there before midnight — a cost-saving measure, you understand.

Well, there's always the IMU ... no, wait. That closes before midnight, too. To tell you the truth, a great place to study would be the new $4.6 million athletics-learning complex. Are you sure you don't want to play football?

No, I haven't heard of any plans for an academic learning center. What an adorable question, though. You incoming students are all so cute, what with your naive notions that college is supposed to be about "academics."

Once you get here, you'll realize that, although the UI is a great school, you'll pretty much have to fend for yourself here, especially as far as money goes. Unless, of course, you're a football player. In that case, you'll have your very own new $1.9 million practice facility.

Theme and variations in the key of sea, opus eight

Arrrrr!
Tis I, the pretentious pirate, back on land after six, long sea days. The times be here now, yar; time to unsally the sails and tie the lass up for thar "inter-rum" peri'd. O, but what a village to be land-loafin' on. 'Tis a red sky most every night (a sailor's delight), and me spots kin seafarers left and right, to and fro, hither and ho. O.

Dave Strackany

WRAPPED UP IN NEWSPAPER

Arrrrr!
Truly a pirate's town is Iowa City. As I dropped low me Faithful Anchor along thar muddy Iowa River, me tooth fillins 'gun to sound some kind of musical sweetness. Applyin' the "Morse Code" to a sudden nervous twitchin' in me eye, I concluded that the frequency of the Sweetness was 88.7.

kindly landlubber named Lurch who is now, after the recent loss of his lower leg by way of a blood clot, the spittin' image of a born pirate. The concert boasts a host of local riff-rockers such as Kita, O'Jesus (the sexiest band in Iowa City), Breakdance, and the ever unpredictable Samb Eggnog; all proceeds go toward Lurch's medical expenses, which is Good. So, goodness, GO.

Arr?
One afternoon at sea, I saw the darn'dest thing. A big metal bird, or "airplane," was flyin' overhead, and from its belly five squabs were jettisoned like so much lousy loot. The boys fell straight down into the ocean's palm, and I figured them for dead. Yesterday, however, I heard word that they're scheduled to wash ashore here in Iowa City this Sunday at Gabe's. The more rootin'-tootin' side of Connor Oberst of Bright Eyes, the Desaparecidos promises to be a little more fun than Oberst's solo material, while remaining just as dubiously poignant and precocious. In a perfect world, I'd like to get a panel of Writers' Workshop students and organize this show like a Morgan's Poetry Slam, complete with audience members yelling "SO WHAT!?" whenever Oberst gets particularly indulgent and convoluted. Other shows to keep an eye out (EYE OUT! Get it? I'm a p-i-r-a-t-e; with a pizatch; get it? Eye out!) for:

Aug. 2 at the Green Room, Dianogah, a hype post-rock band hanging onto the coat-tails of Tortoise drummer/producer John McEntire.
Aug. 8 at the Green Room, Psychosomatic, you know 'em, you love 'em, they won the Battle of the Bands. This one's a benefit for upstart local label and promotion company Pop Explosion.

Aug. 11 at the Green Room, Julianna Hatfield, jangly alter-napop contemporary of the Lemonheads with a sizeable cult following. Also appearing, local indie-diva Kathryn Musilek of Burn Disco Burn and Books on Tape.
Aug. 16 at Gabe's, the Horrors, a rowdy, whiskey-driven, hipster blues band with sticky riffs and a whole lot of energy. It ain't no thing if it ain't got that swing. And that's a wrap, folks. It's been a lovely summer. Be safe, be kind, beautiful things do happen sometimes.

THE NOT SO LAZY DAYS OF SUMMER

The DI photo staff decided to take a look at what students and other people around Iowa City do to pass the time during the dog days of summer. As it turns out, they spend most of their time trying to beat the heat and not go broke. Plus, they try to squeeze in a little time to have fun. These photographs examine just a few ways they take advantage of their short time away from school and work.

were tortured for years or shot as socialist sympathizers.

Hahn, 63, will enter a different country from the one he remembers. Pinochet's disturbing legacy of oppression and murder, in which more than 3,000 people were executed from 1973-90, is still visible among the people.

"They are more cautious," he said of Chileans. "It's like something is haunting them."

After his release from prison, the terrified professor fled from Santiago, the capital, by plane. But while waiting for takeoff, army patrols entered the plane to capture "subversives" fleeing from Pinochet. Hahn was saved, however, by a letter from the University of Maryland that had approved him for a Ph.D. program.

That single document and his history with the UI saved his life. The poet participated in the UI International Writing Program from 1971-72 and re-entered Chile months before Pinochet's overthrow of the socialist government.

Chilean authorities "assumed that because I was accepted in the United States, I was 'clean,'" he said, because President Nixon and other U.S. officials openly supported the coup.

Although he escaped danger in Chile, Pinochet's government attempted to hurt him for his actions against the dictatorship in other ways. In 1981, his collection of poems, Mal Del Amor — (Love Breaks) — was banned in Chile's bookstores, but that actually increased the book's circulation.

Apart from seeing family and friends during a five-month visit, Hahn plans to re-acquaint himself with contemporary Chile while holding readings and attending conferences.

"I'm excited to finally involve myself in the daily life," he said.

Hahn's main goal is to interview Chilean writers about how they are coping with their country's history. He will document the discussions in his 13th book, Close Encounters with Writers.

Supervisors fund Englert

The funding came after pleas from Englert officials, who are in the middle of a $3 million renovation to the 90-year-old facility. Those officials hope to attract 50,000 people a year to the restored theater for live performances, which could begin as soon as the end of this year.

"Your budget is very clear what you can afford and what you cannot afford," Englert project coordinator Justine Zimmer said. "At this point, we're only looking for a token contribution to get to the next step."

Vision Iowa board member Brad Parks of Dubuque said requiring local governments to contribute to projects before they're approved for grant eligibility demonstrates local support for the ventures and encourages cooperation between city and county governments.

"If we're going to invest Iowa dollars, we want to make sure local city and county governments invest in the project, too," he said.

Supervisor Terrance Neuzil expressed concern that Vision Iowa won't just require a contribution, it will also determine the size of contribution based on the county's budget. Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White questioned the legality of such a move.

"Somebody is going to sue them if they persist in this approach," he said.

The Englert restoration project also received a $75,000 contribution from Iowa City in order to qualify for the Community Attractions and Tourism funds. The city contribution comes from Community Block Grants and is also conditional on the amount of Vision Iowa support.

"I think $75,000 is a small price to pay for a $1 million contribution," said City Councilor Connie Champion.

Iowa City had contributed $323,000 to the theater's renovation prior to this latest pledge of support, but Iowa City Mayor Ernie Lehman said that money went to the first phase of the project. The latest contribution was made to help secure Vision Iowa funds for phase two of the renovation, he said.

State continues tax holiday

At Coral Ridge Mall, all stores will remain open until 11 p.m. this weekend to let shoppers take advantage of the savings.

"This is one of our largest sales times. It's bigger than some Christmas weekends," said Younkers sales associate Kirsten Veng-Pedersen.

Even stores that carry no tax-exempt items are expecting a significant increase in traffic and sales.

"We were told by management to expect a spillover from the stores participating in the holiday," said Paul Kleiman, an Electronics Boutique sales associate.

Some shoppers don't care for the 5 percent break or the throngs of shoppers expected — instead, they are planning to stay away from the mall.

"I'm getting my shopping done today," said Coralville resident Kelly Dietre. "Braving the massive crowds to save 5 percent isn't my idea of a holiday."

Others said that they would shop for deals today and Saturday. Many said they didn't know how people could pass up the opportunities.

"I think you get to screw the government for two days by not paying taxes," said Cedar Rapids resident Jesse Whitmore, as he described the armful of cargo pants at JCPenney he planned to buy today.

"We cannot hand over the territories to an unstable and corrupted totalitarian order with a dictator who funds the terrorist groups Hamas and Fatah," Zerach said.

"It would be utopian for the two sides to come together, sit down face-to-face, and talk,"

Merchav said. "Reality, however, slaps us in the face. We are persistently attacked, so we must fight back until negotiation is an option."

With both sides of the conflict bleeding and embittered, agreements between them at this stage seem impossible to reach. Still, Merchav is convinced that "in the end, there will be peace. There has to be."

Presidential search panel adds student has been put on the committee," he said Thursday.

The unexpected addition will ultimately benefit students, who now have more representation in the search, said law Professor Jonathan Carlson, the search committee's chairman.

"It's helpful" to have another student voice working on the panel, he said.

Committee member Jerry Schnoor, an engineering professor, said he was happy to hear the news about Rossi's involvement. He said it was a "good idea" to add a fourth student.

"I feel I am a very well-rounded candidate," Rossi said. "I've been able to hear the views of faculty, staff, students, and state legislators."

With the search committee

now complete, regents say a new president will likely be selected in December or in January 2003.

The board chose the search firm Korn/Ferry International of Dallas in mid-July. The same group helped to pick Coleman for the UI in 1995; last year, it helped to select Iowa State University President Greg Geoffrey.

The search committee's first meeting is set for Aug. 19, when members will begin discussing qualifications for the university's next leader, Schnoor said.

"I want someone who has an academic background and understands what it means to lead a major research and teaching institution," said Schnoor, adding that the president must have the ability to raise money from state, alumni, and private organizations.

Gagne tossed late, Griffey lifts Reds

lowered his NL-leading ERA to 2.45. He walked one and struck out five as the Braves, who have the best record in the majors at 70-38, won for the 12th time in 15 games.

Rangers 19, Red Sox 7

ARLINGTON, Texas — Carl Everett hit a grand slam and a three-run homer against the team that traded him in December 2001 as Texas routed Boston.

Rafael Palmeiro hit his 467th career homer in the eighth inning to pass Willie Stargell and Stan Musial for 20th place on the career list.

Orioles 4, D-Rays 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Chris Richard homered again, and Sidney Ponson won for the second time in 12 starts as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays Thursday night.

Richard hit his second homer in as many major-league games this season — a two-run shot in the fifth. He went deep on the first pitch he saw Wednesday night after he was activated from the 60-day disabled list following offseason left shoulder surgery.

Astros 3, Mets 1

NEW YORK — Roy Oswalt kept his cool on a steamy evening, and Houston won for the sixth time in seven games.

After the teams swapped lopsided victories the previous two days, Oswalt (12-6) and Pedro Astacio (10-4) put the emphasis back on pitching.

Reds 6, Dodgers 4

CINCINNATI — Eric Gagne was ejected after hitting a batter in the ninth, opening the way for Cincinnati's four-run comeback, and Ken Griffey Jr. homered in the 13th inning to lead the Reds over the Los Angeles Dodgers Thursday.

Los Angeles fell to 6-14 since the All-Star break because it couldn't close out a four-run lead against a team that had managed only two hits in the first eight innings.

David Kohl/Associated Press
 Dodgers closer Eric Gagne, second right, is held back by catcher Chad Kreuter and manager Jim Tracy, center, after Gagne was ejected from the game by home plate umpire Dan Iassogna, left, in the ninth inning on Thursday.

Expos 2, Diamondbacks 1

MONTREAL — Vladimir Guerrero hit his second game-ending homer against Arizona this series, connecting with one out in the ninth inning off Curt Schilling to give Montreal the victory.

Tied at 1-1, Guerrero hit

Schilling's first pitch over the left-field wall for his 28th homer of the season. Guerrero hit a game-winning homer in the 10th inning off reliever Byung-Hyun Kim to win the series opener Tuesday.

Schilling (18-4) had his six-game winning streak snapped as he lost to an NL opponent for just the second time this season.

HAWKEYE SPORTS BRIEF

UI hires Angel as cross-country coach

The UI has announced hiring Wayne Angel as the head women's cross-country coach. Angel will also serve as assistant women's track and field coach. Angel has nine years of coaching experience at the collegiate and high-school level. Prior to joining the Hawkeyes, he was head women's and men's cross-country coach at Wichita State. Last season, Angel guided the women's squad to victory at the Woody Greeno Classic and the Illinois Invitational. Angel served as an assistant coach for the Latvian team in the 2001 World Championships. He earned a B.S. in physical education from the University of Illinois in 1982.

NFL preseason kicks off day evening after tiring plane rides across the International Date Line.

"It's a new experience for everyone," Redskins coach Steve Spurrier said. "It's kind of like a college bowl game."

The Redskins' 13-hour flight was a lively affair. Linebacker LaVar Arrington attracted an audience as he played several games of chess, staring at the board with the kind of unwavering intensity that would frighten a quarterback.

Kicker Brett Conway, protecting his most valuable football asset, wore long blue compression stockings on his legs and rarely sat. Others passed the time with cards, dominoes, DVDs, playbooks — and acts of mild mischief.

"I was merely a part of one rookie prank," Arrington said. "I put mustard on Akili Smith's lips while he was asleep. I got it on camera."

After arrival, both teams received a cultural briefing. Redskins cornerback Fred Smoot offered unsolicited financial advice by telling his teammates to "just add two zeros to everything" when figuring out the dollar-to-yen ratio.

salaries, and both sides said they were close to agreements on those topics.

That is a sharp contrast from 1994, when the sides didn't hold any substantive negotiations until three months after players struck on Aug. 12.

The players' executive board could set a strike date as soon as next week, after Fehr completes his meetings with players.

"We hope we don't have to set a date. It has not yet been considered by the board." "The greatest hope is that it gets settled before we get to that point," Fehr said. "I'm hopeful that we'll find a way to get a deal."

Players seem reluctant to establish a deadline, but the union is convinced that without a deal, owners would lock them out or change work rules after the post-season. Players prefer to have a work stoppage now rather than during the offseason and spring — when it would hurt owners less.

The union has considered dates from mid-August to mid-September for a walkout.

"The main thing is we have to avoid setting a date and get everything settled," the Rangers' Todd Van Poppel said.

Manfred said there was "good progress" in discussing benefits and minimum salary. "Certainly closer to an agreement in those areas than we were previously," he said.

Owners previously proposed raising the minimum from $200,000 to $285,000, with cost-of-living adjustments. Players had proposed raising it to $300,000, with $25,000 annual increases.

"We're close, but we're not quite there yet," Orza said. "We still have some differences but they appear to be of a dimension that can be worked out."

AP sports writer Jaime Aron contributed to this story from Dallas.

wasn't carried out the way prosecutors believe it was planned.

"Everybody wants to claim a part of our victory at the Olympic Games for themselves," Peizerat told the Associated Press. "The judges think it's thanks to them that we're Olympic champions; top skating officials do, too; now, it's the Russian mafia."

to return to France, where he once lived.

International Skating Union President Ottavio Cinquanta said he first learned of the alleged conspiracy on the news; he had never heard of Tokhtakhounov, he said.

Asked whether the federation could be forced to cancel or review the Salt Lake City results, Cinquanta said, "I don't think so. I don't know."

Russian sports officials derided the accusations. Olympic Committee spokesman Gen-nady Shvets called them a "funny fantasy" — fodder for a Hollywood script.

Other transcripts detail a conversation between Tokhtakhounov and a female ice-dancer's mother. And after the Olympics, the female ice dancer called Tokhtakhounov and said she could have won without his help, according to the transcript. While Anissina was the ice dancer who won the gold, the papers didn't identify her as the woman on the phone.

taps in the Russian mafia investigation, they uncovered details of the alleged ice-skating fix, as well as Tokhtakhounov's ties to other sports figures.

Italian police gave few other details, but did cite Ukrainian tennis player Andrei Medvedev, whose Web site featured a 1999 picture of himself with Tokhtakhounov, along with Russian tennis stars Marat Safin and Yevgeny Kafelnikov. That photo and two others with Tokhtakhounov were removed from the site Thursday.

Miami ranked No. 1 in USA Today/ESPN preseason poll

Miami, college football's defending national champion, was voted No. 1 in the USA Today/ESPN coaches preseason poll released Thursday.

The Hurricanes, who completed a 12-0 season with a 37-14 win over Nebraska in the Rose Bowl, easily outdistanced No. 2 Texas and No. 3 Oklahoma in voting by 61 coaches.

Miami had 34 first-place votes and 1,444 points. Texas (11-2) had nine first-place votes and 1,399 points, edging Big 12 rival Oklahoma (11-2) by two points. The Sooners had 11 first-place votes and 1,397 points.

Rounding out the top 10: Florida State, Tennessee, Colorado, Florida, Nebraska, Washington, and Michigan.

Phoenix signs Marion to extension

PHOENIX (AP) — Phoenix forward Shawn Marion, one of the Suns' main building blocks for the future, agreed to a $79 million, six-year contract Thursday.

A team official, speaking on the condition of anonymity, confirmed the agreement but declined to discuss details until after Marion signs, probably early next week.

The amount of the agreement is known because it represents 25 percent of the salary cap, the maximum allowed for a player in Marion's category, under the collective-bargaining agreement.

Marion, a 24-year-old forward, has a year remaining on his rookie contract because the team exercised its option to a fourth year.

Pate takes slim lead in International

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Steve Pate capitalized on a 5-point eagle and favorable playing conditions to forge a narrow first-round lead Thursday in The International.

Pate finished with 11 points under the modified Stableford scoring system used in this event. He was a point ahead of Billy Mayfair and Rich Beem.

Duffy Waldorf, Australian John Senden, Heath Slocum, Hank Kuehne, and Jeff Quinney were at 9.

British Open champion Ernie Els was in a group at 8, and Sergio Garcia had a furious finish of birdie-eagle-birdie to get to 7.

Players earned 5 points for eagle two for birdie, zero for par, minus-1 for bogey, and minus-3 for double bogey or worse.

Golfers with morning tee times — including Waldorf and Senden — had to contend with swirling winds and hard, fast greens at Castle Pines Golf Club. Conditions improved in the afternoon, and so did scores.

"I went out for a newspaper this morning, and it was cold and windy," Pate said. "I was glad I wasn't playing until this afternoon. We got the better of it."

A member of the 1999 Ryder Cup team, Pate slumped to 151st on the PGA Tour money list in 2001. He ranks 152nd this year.

Cubs finally solve Hoffman in 9th

Stephen J. Carrera/Associated Press

Cubs outfielder Roosevelt Brown slides into home with the winning run as Padres catcher Tom Lampkin waits for the throw from right field on Thursday.

Gonzalez smacks game-winning double off Padres' fierce closer

CHICAGO (AP) — Instead of tying Rollie Fingers, Trevor Hoffman allowed Chicago to tie the game and win it — all on one pitch. Alex Gonzalez hit a two-run, two-out double off Hoffman in the ninth inning Thursday, rallying the Cubs over the Padres, 8-7. Hoffman (1-3) was one out from matching Fingers for sixth on the career saves list at 341, but instead, he blew a save for only the second time in 27 chances this season.

"When you play the San Diego Padres, it is an eight-inning game, and if you are not ahead, you generally lose," Cubs interim manager Bruce Kimm said. Twins 6, White Sox 0 MINNEAPOLIS — Eric Milton pitched his fourth career shutout, and Michael Cuddyer hit his first career grand slam as the Twins beat the White Sox Thursday night. Milton (13-7), who gave up six runs off 11 hits in his last outing against the White Sox, held Chicago to three hits, striking out 11 and walking none in Minnesota's first complete game shutout of the season. Marlins 4, Cardinals 0 MIAMI — A.J. Burnett pitched a four-hitter for his major league-leading fourth shutout as Florida beat St. Louis. Burnett (11-7) struck out seven, walked three, and tied his career high for wins in a season, set last year.

The Cardinals' lone highlight was a triple play in the sixth inning. It was their first triple play in more than nine years. Braves 4, Brewers 0 ATLANTA — Greg Maddux pitched six innings for his 268th career win, tying Hall of Famer Jim Palmer for 30th-most ever, as Atlanta completed a three-game sweep. Maddux (11-3) allowed five hits and

49ers, Redskins set to battle in Japan

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — The 49ers arrived for the American Bowl on Thursday and made a surprising request: They want to hold on to a Japanese player added to the roster just for the game. Linebacker Masafumi Kawaguchi impressed Steve Mariucci so much that San Francisco's coach asked the NFL for a special roster exemption so Kawaguchi can return to training camp after the game against the Washington Redskins on Aug. 4 (Saturday night CDT). "We've inquired about it," team spokesman Kirk Reynolds said. The Redskins, meanwhile, landed in Japan with one fewer player than expected. Reserve defensive end Otis Leverette, expected to be a regular part for the defensive line rotation this season, had an MRI exam on his sore knee before takeoff and was diagnosed with a ligament injury that will sideline him approximately six weeks. Kawaguchi joined the 49ers' camp in Stockton, Calif., last week, signing the usual 10-day contract as part of the NFL's traditional gesture of giving local American Bowl fans a special rooting interest. The Redskins were assigned receiver Akihito Amaya. Kawaguchi, a six-year veteran of NFL Europe, came to camp hoping his teammates would see him as something more than an Osaka tour guide. "I told the guys that if I take care of them in Japan, they've got to take care of me with a job," he said this week. Any kind of sightseeing would have been a chore for Kawaguchi or anybody on either team Thurs-

Ravens linebacker Ray Lewis, top, wraps up rookie running back Chester Taylor during training camp. Lewis signed a five-year contract extension on Thursday.

Ravens' Lewis inks 5-year deal

By David Ginsburg
Associated Press

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Ray Lewis was delighted about having enough money to keep his mother happy for the rest of her life. The Baltimore Ravens were elated about securing their All-Pro linebacker for seven more years and freeing up enough salary-cap space to begin negotiations with free agent defensive tackle Sam Adams. On the surface, both sides appeared to benefit from the five-year extension that Lewis accepted Thursday. But Lewis, who received a whopping $19 million signing bonus, saw things differently. Asked for his take on the negotiations, which lasted for nearly a year, Lewis looked over each shoulder to make sure there were no team officials nearby. Then he grinned broadly and whispered, "I won. I got what I wanted." The five-time Pro Bowl star, who had two years left on a deal that was to pay him $4.75 million per season, now has a new seven-year contract worth approximately $50 million. The sides completed the deal on Thursday after the Ravens' morning training-camp practice. "I talked to my mom yesterday, and tears were rolling down my eyes when I told her this wasn't my contract," Lewis said. "When I was 9 or 10 years old, I promised her something. Now she's set for life." The Ravens, similarly, are secure at middle linebacker through the 2008 season.

Baseball arbitrator requests delay for ruling

By Ronald Blum
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The arbitrator deciding the grievance over whether baseball owners can fold teams without the agreement of players asked for more time again Thursday. Arbitrator Shyam Das originally said he would try to rule by July 15, then asked for a delay until Aug. 1. He called the sides Thursday and asked for extra time but did not set a new timetable, management spokesman Pat Courtney and union spokesman Greg Bouris said Thursday. Players filed a grievance, claiming the Nov. 6, 2001, decision by owners to fold two franchises — later identified by management lawyers as Montreal and Minnesota — violated the rules of the previous labor contract, which remains in force. Owners said they had the right to shut down teams and needed to bargain with players only on the effects of contraction, such as a dispersal draft.

After meeting for three-straight days, the sides worked separately Thursday but planned to meet again today. While the union and owners remain far apart on the main issues, players are relatively optimistic a deal can be reached without baseball's ninth work stoppage since 1972. Negotiators made progress Wednesday on the minimum salary and the benefits plan. Union head Donald Fehr briefed the New York Yankees and Texas Rangers, leaving him with just two more teams to see on his round of meetings. "I left the meeting very positive and optimistic after listening to what Don had to say," Yankees pitcher Steve Karsay said after Fehr's session in Arlington, Texas. "We don't want a work stoppage. We want both sides in a room trying to hash it out." Negotiators for players and owners met for approximately an hour Wednesday to discuss benefits and minimum
