Where have all the pledges gone?

BY JEFFREY PATCH
THE DAILY IOWAN

Leaders in the UI Greek system say the number of pledges has unexpectedly dropped by as many as 100 this fall, puzzling the community as it scrambles to recruit members through less-traditional means.

Some venture to guess that a tuition increase of 18.5 percent is to blame for the low numbers, which is forcing some fraternities to count on informal rush to fatten their numbers. "Basically, I think numbers were down this year because students were hesitant about doing anything that would cost extra," said Jenny McClure, the vice president of recruitment for the UI Panhellenic Association. "I think right now students are facing a lot of increased prices with the university." Greek representatives said last year's controversy surrounding a whistleblower's claims of alleged hazing at the university did not factor into this fall's low numbers. They declined to comment further. The number of sorority pledges dropped from 640 last fall to 540 this year, McClure said. Numbers for fraternities

Search panel sets criteria for UI leader

BY GRANT SCHULTE
THE DAILY IOWAN

Candidates for the UI presidency must demonstrate a strong commitment to diversity and equal opportunities, but they don't need such achievements on their record, the presidential-search committee decided Tuesday as it completed a set of criteria for the position.

Advertising efforts to attract candidates, including a brochure and Web site in the works by the Office of University Relations, will note those criteria desired in a leader who realizes "the importance of sensitivity," committee members said during a two-hour meeting at the Levitt Center.

The 26-member panel also approved a revised personal-qualifications guideline requiring a Ph.D., professional degree, or the equivalent, and a record that would qualify for a tenured appointment at the rank of professor.

The original criteria, which mandated a distinguished-professor status, met wide criticism at the committee's Aug.

19 meeting because departments set different standards for the honor, giving applicants from certain areas an unfair advantage.

But on Tuesday, the most debate was on diversity. Some members maintained the importance of a record emphasizing movements toward diversity.

"One of the first words I looked for in the ad was 'diversity,'" said Jerry Schnoor, a UI professor of engineering. Committee members are seeking a replacement for former UI President Mary Sue Coleman, who left to take the

Eating outside the IMU bun

BY BRIDGET FRODYMA
THE DAILY IOWAN

In a corner of the IMU Union Station, a team of Burmese chefs turn rice, seaweed, vegetables, and raw seafood into a traditional Japanese dish that strikes fear in some palates.

The IMU added sushi to its staple menu of burger and fries last year and hired a small staff to prepare the bite-size items on location this summer. Still, some timid tongues resist the raw tuna, fish eggs, and eel that serve as a backbone of the operation.

"Most people don't even know what it is, so they're scared to eat it," said head sushi chef Tun Naing.

A common misconception is that sushi is only raw fish (which is called sashimi), he said, when in fact it is a combination of rice and vinegar. The food began as a way to preserve funa — a type of fish. However, cucumber, carrots, avocado, and other items are often encased in the rice and seaweed.

"This job is about keeping in touch with people ... sushi is for white, black, young, old," Naing said. "I get experiences from everyone."

The native of Burma began his American career in the diamond industry, selling uncut gems in New York City before deciding to turn his sushi habit into an opportunity to grow professionally. A friend introduced him to sushi and taught the 36-year-old how to press and roll sushi with bamboo mats in his free time.

Naing began his sushi career in New York City, and he has taken his quick hands on the road during his four years in the United States. He worked at Penn State University and in Maryland, St. Louis, Wisconsin, and New Jersey.

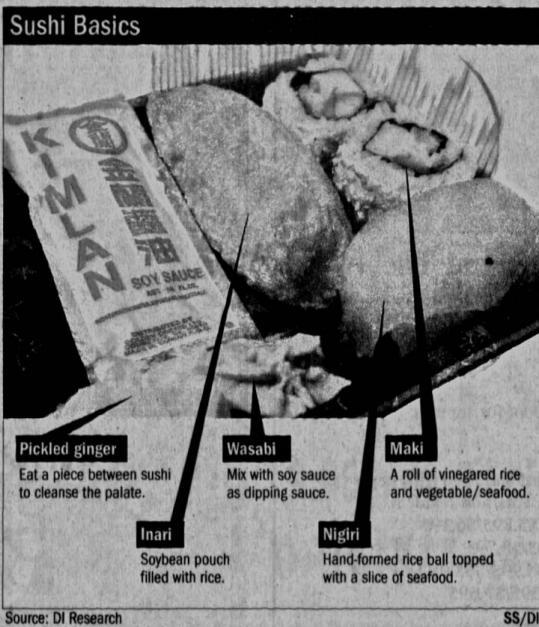

He'll complete a two-year stint in Iowa City before the company that employs him sends him to his next sushi destination.

"I like it here," he said, adding that he understands students and enjoys their company. "The people are nice."

As the head of sushi operations, Naing was able to hire former classmates from Burma whose friendship dates back 10 years. The UI employs the team of white-aproned, nimble chefs through Advanced Fresh Concepts, a national sushi bar corporation that has 300 operations.

Alleged church arsonist jailed in I.C.

BY TONY ROBINSON AND KAREN HEINSELMAN
THE DAILY IOWAN

A man who allegedly burglarized and set fire to a church in North Liberty was extradited from California to the Johnson County Jail on Monday to face criminal charges.

Seth Richard Weese, 19, address unknown, along with an alleged accomplice, allegedly broke windows, destroyed a computer, and stole pennies from a penny drive at the Heritage Christian School and Grace Community Church in North Liberty during the early morning hours of June 19.

Weese also allegedly lit at least four small fires in and around the church and school, causing more than $500,000 in damages.

A surveillance video allegedly captured the two cashing money at Hills Bank in North Liberty. Police received tips after broadcasting that image.

After signing an extradition waiver, Weese was transported to the Johnson County Jail, where he remained Tuesday night on a $35,650 cash bond. He faces charges of third-degree burglary, a class D felony, and second-degree arson, a class C felony. If convicted, he could face up to 15 years in prison and $17,500 in fines.

He was arrested in Santa Cruz, Calif., where he had apparently fled. The alleged accomplice has not been identified, and police are still searching for him.

"People want to see justice done," said church member Ron Cowger, adding that

Russia promises to ratify Kyoto pact

BY PAUL GEITNER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Russia announced Tuesday it will ratify an accord on reducing smokestack emissions and other causes of global warming. Moscow's approval would clear the way for the agreement to become law in much of the world — but not the United States.

Russia's promise on the agreement, which the United States has rejected, came as leaders at the World Summit wrapped up a long-term blueprint for tackling the global woes of poverty and pollution. Attention at the summit shifted to immediate crises, including Iraq.

Ahead of the arrival of Secretary of State Colin Powell, Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Tariq

Aziz sought support from U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan and former South African President Nelson Mandela for heading off a threatened U.S. attack.

Annan urged Aziz to comply with U.N. Security Council resolutions, which call for the unconditional return of weapons inspectors to Iraq, his spokeswoman said.

The United States continued to be criticized for its rejection of the Kyoto Protocol, which requires developed nations to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide and other heat-trapping gases to 1990 levels by 2012. Many countries view the accord as crucial to reversing a global-warming trend blamed for cataclysmic storms, floods, and droughts worldwide.

"All countries around the world need to address the questions of environmental protection ... under the same rules," said Japanese Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi.

U.S. Environmental Protection Administrator Christie Whitman said the United States supported other countries' ratification of the deal. But she said the agreement was not appropriate for the United States, which is taking other action to limit climate change.

Russia's ratification of Kyoto would meet the last requirement for the accord to come into effect: that the countries on board account for at least 55 percent of carbon-dioxide emissions based on 1990 output.

Conflict charges beset Rich case

BY RYAN J. FOLEY
THE DAILY IOWAN

Prosecutors and defense attorneys in the Andrew Rich murder case squabbled in court filings released Tuesday, each accusing the other of potential conflicts of interest just three weeks before trial.

Prosecutors asked for a hearing to determine whether Rich's two court-appointed attorneys have a potential conflict because their office has represented two witnesses in the case.

In a separate filing, defense attorneys Emily Hughes and Quint Meyerdirk requested that state Assistant Attorney General Tom Miller be disqualified from prosecuting the case. They accused Miller of contacting a key witness prior to his deposition and persuading him to change testimony in order to benefit the prosecution.

"Failure to disqualify ... Miller would severely prejudice the defendant's ability to put forth his defense at trial and investigate his case, thereby rendering counsel unable to provide effective representation of counsel and violating the defendant's right to fair trial," they said in the filing.

Rich, who is from Wyoming, is accused of the 1999 slaying of John Helble in North Liberty. Helble, 28, was found dead of a gunshot wound in his trailer on Feb. 23 of that year. A key issue of dispute has been how many days passed before his body was discovered.

Enter Dr. Charles Lynch, a UI pathologist set to answer that question. Originally, prosecutors said Helble had been dead for approximately 20 days. During his deposition, however, Lynch said Helble died at least 34 days before his autopsy — a fact the defense claims helps prosecutors.

The disparity is significant because it potentially changes Rich's whereabouts at the time of the murder.

"Dr. Lynch testified during his deposition that, based on the conversation and/or information provided by Tom Miller, Dr. Lynch has now expanded his findings concerning the time of death to include at least 34 days prior to autopsy," defense attorneys wrote.

Defense attorneys want to question Miller to learn what he told Lynch "in order to persuade [him] to expand his findings concerning time of death." Miller could not serve as both an attorney and a witness.

"The specific issue for which Mr. Miller is a witness ... is a hotly contested issue that is central to the defense," attorneys wrote.

Trial in the case is set for Sept. 24.

Local authorities tapped Miller to help prosecute the case, saying resources were scarce. Assistant Johnson County Attorney Linda Paulson is working with Miller.

For their part, they asked the court to find whether a conflict exists among the defense attorneys. The Public Defender's Office, for which they work, represented witnesses Eric Cheney on drug charges and Tanya Dlouhy on a variety of charges. Neither was represented by Meyerdirk or Hughes, who declined to comment Tuesday night.

Yet, prosecutors said, the office "has gained information that constitute secrets and confidences from those two witnesses."

"The Public Defender's Office ... may not be able to keep their ethical duties to said prior clients and effectively represent the present Defendant without divulging secrets or confidences" from the prior representations, the filing said.

Rich has been serving a 50-year sentence on unrelated federal firearm charges since December 2000.

Renovation besieges Van Allen lawn

BY ANNIE SHUPPY
THE DAILY IOWAN

The south lawn of Van Allen Hall will be fenced in during a year-long construction project at Spence Psychology Laboratories, forcing the area to be reseeded a second time and cutting off a handicap-accessible entrance to Seashore Hall.

Last spring, groundskeepers seeded the area, which is now covered with gravel. When the lawn was designated a construction-access area, workers salvaged the shrubs and mulch but some grass was lost.

The lawn will serve as a lay-down site for supplies and waste for Phase II of the Spence renovation.

Once construction at the laboratories end, contractors will restore the grass at an undetermined expense that is included in the total project cost.

"They will completely re-sod the lay-down site, plant new bushes, and repair any damage to the sidewalk," said Steve Schlote, a project manager for the UI Facilities Services Group.

The project blocks off the handicap-accessible entrance to the Seashore basement, causing complications for some workers in the building, said Jane Singer, a UI assistant professor of journalism. Her office is located in the Seashore west wing.

"It is really bad for people who are handicapped," she said. "They now have to go around to the other side of Spence to get into the building. We can still get into the main entrance, but we have to cross over in front of Van Allen instead of coming in from Linn Street."

The Spence renovations began July 12. The building houses the Carl E. Seashore

No quick relief seen for school crowding

BY AMY JENNINGS
THE DAILY IOWAN

Community members raised concerns that the upcoming vote on a proposed School Board referendum won't provide immediate relief for overcrowding problems in Iowa City schools.

Four candidates gunning for three available School Board seats had unclear answers at a forum Tuesday night about what actions will be taken now to handle bulging classes.

"We have yet to flush out what we will do during the next three years until the new schools are built if the bond referendum passes," said board President Lauren Reece, who is up for re-election on Sept. 10.

Incumbents Dale Schultz and Don Jackson agreed that short-term discomfort may be the only solution for teeming school hallways.

"We have already added portables to Northwest Junior High, and we will probably have to do more of that," Schultz said.

Jackson said some tough choices will be made about redrawing boundaries "that won't be fun to deal with."

A public vote on the $38.7 million property-tax bond will come two months after the School Board election. The three incumbents are being challenged by UI Associate Professor Toni Cilek.

All four candidates agreed that local schools face serious enrollment issues this fall.

"I do not know the specifics, but I know from being in many schools that there is not enough space," Cilek said.

Schultz said City High enrollment surpassed 2002 predictions by approximately 100 students; both Northwest Junior High and West High are over capacity as well.

Passage of the bond proposal on Dec. 10 would set plans in motion for the construction of a new elementary school, junior high, and alternative high school, with improvements to existing schools.

Sixty percent voter approval is required for the bond to pass.

If the bond does not pass, students and teachers will be faced with prolonged space limitations as board members rework the original bond or investigate other funding options.

After stopping him on Iowa Avenue for public intoxication around 2 a.m., police allegedly saw what appeared to be the clip of a knife in Babcock's front left pocket, police records show. The officers then searched Babcock and allegedly found a switchblade.

Efrain Aguilar, 25, 2430 Muscatine Ave. Apt. 35, was charged Monday with simple domestic assault and obstruction of emergency communications. Aguilar was allegedly fighting with his girlfriend, resulting in some physical confrontations, said Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Brotherton. Aguilar allegedly pulled the phone off the wall, removed the battery from the phone, and physically prevented the woman from talking to police officers when they arrived at the scene, Brotherton said. The woman sustained no injuries, police records said.

The man who was found dead near the Old Capitol Town Center parking ramp Aug. 30 has been identified as John Smith, 53, 111 Forest View Mobile Home Court.

Police, who have labeled his death a suicide, said Smith jumped from somewhere between the third and sixth floors of the ramp.

Students looking off the top of the ramp found Smith's body, hidden from sight behind transformers between the ramp and Capitol Street, hours after his death, said Iowa City police Sgt. Mike Brotherton.

An investigation showed no other obvious signs of trauma on Smith's body other than those suffered in the fall, and there is no evidence to suspect foul play, Brotherton said.

Brotherton also said the investigation indicated that Smith had a history of mental-health issues but refused to release any details.

NEW YORK — Stocks tumbled Tuesday as investors grew skittish over a series of developments ranging from lower-than-expected manufacturing activity to brokerage downgrades of Citigroup Inc. and Ford Motor Co. The Dow Jones industrials fell 355 points.

"We're back to work from a not-so-good August," said Arthur Hogan, the chief market analyst at Jefferies & Co. "We came in with a couple of downgrades and just a general sense the economy hasn't picked up the way we would like to see it."

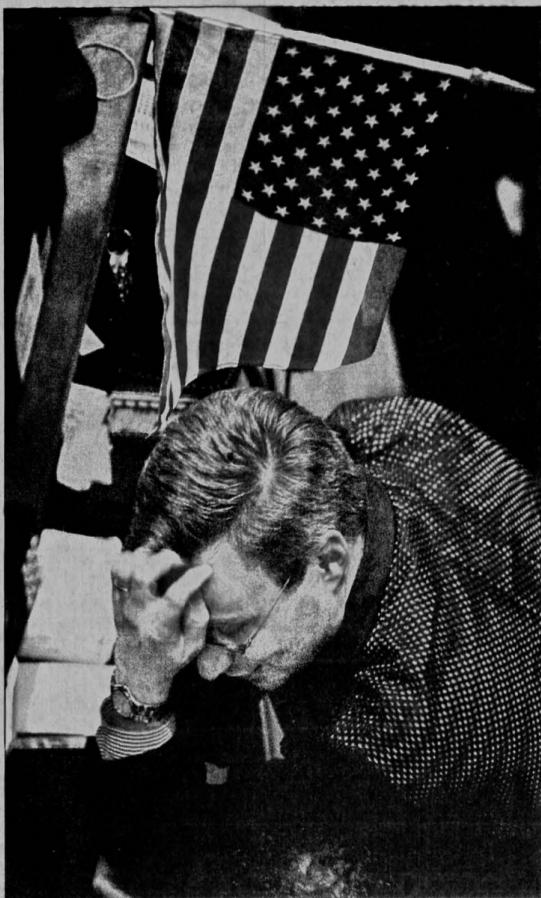

The Dow Jones industrial average closed down 355.45 — 4.1 percent — at 8,308.05, its fifth-straight day of decline. Tuesday's drop was the largest one-day loss since July 19, when the Dow fell 390.23, and it came after a 2.4 percent decline last week to break a five-week winning streak.

The broader market also finished sharply lower. The NASDAQ composite index declined 51.01 — 3.9 percent — to 1,263.84, after falling 4.8 percent in the previous week to end three weeks of gains.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index fell 38.05 — 4.2 percent — to 878.02, following a drop of 2.6 percent to end a five-week run higher.

The Institute for Supply Management said its index of business activity remained steady at 50.5 in August, below analysts' expectations of 51.8. An index above 50 signifies growth.

Clinic firm as showdown rages

BY HANNAH WOLFSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

STORM LAKE, Iowa — In her dozen years as manager of a Planned Parenthood clinic in small-town Iowa, Sue Thayer thought she had seen it all — pickets, threats and, locked away in a file cabinet, the records of women with problems she never imagined.

But nothing comes close to the furor that has erupted in the months since the sheriff demanded to see some of those files in hopes of solving the gruesome death of a newborn.

Planned Parenthood's refusal to turn over the records has stirred debate around the country and divided this farm town of approximately 10,000.

It began in May, with the discovery of a baby boy who had been dismembered by machines at the county garbage-sorting center. Unable to identify the baby or establish the cause of death, sheriff's deputies turned to the town's doctors and nurses to find out who the mother was.

Two Storm Lake doctors' offices and the hospital provided investigators with the names of expectant mothers who could not be accounted for. Yet, when deputies showed up with a subpoena for the names and addresses of women who had undergone pregnancy tests, Planned Parenthood said no.

The organization, which contends that doing so would violate the privacy of the women, appealed to the Iowa Supreme Court. On Aug. 30, the high court agreed to hear the case.

"For many women, it's the most personal test they've ever had done," Thayer said. "They come in expecting the information will stay here. Some women even use the back door. Some don't use their real names." Buena Vista County Attorney Phil Havens said patients at the clinic cannot expect total privacy because in most cases they do not see a doctor or even a nurse.

As for any inconvenience caused by the opening of the records, "I'm sorry for that. I apologize," Havens said. "But a human being was thrown into the garbage and shredded, and I think that crime was important enough to society to at least attempt to find out who did it."

The case has been the talk of Storm Lake's cafes and the editorial pages of the local papers.

"I am not ashamed, nor am I embarrassed to admit that I have gone to Planned Parenthood," one teen wrote in a signed letter to the editor. Another — the daughter of a sheriff's deputy — argued that such issues shouldn't be discussed "with a law-enforcement officer knocking at your door."

"Let's face it. It's a small town we live in. People talk," she wrote.

That is exactly why the records should be protected, Karen Hixon said as she ate lunch at the coffee shop across from the courthouse.

"It isn't fair to those people who went in confidence," she said. "Just the idea that you can have someone come up and say, 'I heard you were pregnant,' is awful."

"But if it were my granddaughter, I'd want to know about it, and I'd want her punished," Sandra Morris said as she arranged flowers at the grocery store.

very presence here, said Dana Larsen, the editor of the Storm Lake Pilot Tribune.

The clinic, which serves six counties, does not perform abortions. But that distinction is difficult for many to make in this conservative, mostly Christian community in which hand-painted signs reading, "You Know Abortion Is Wrong," rise out of cornfields.

"I think people have forgotten what they were arguing about in the first place," Larsen said. "There's really nobody around talking about the baby or how to keep this from happening again."

The uproar has surprised Sheriff Chuck Eddy, who said he half-expected Storm Lake's new mothers to hold their infants up to the window outside his office to prove they were not to blame.

Sheriff's deputies trying to find the mother have inquired at schools and churches, and they ran DNA tests on a few women who were thought to have been pregnant. They have also looked for households using the same garbage bags the baby was found in, with no luck. The sheriff said he has run out of leads.

Vilsack rebukes Gross on Medicaid

BY MIRANDA LEITSINGER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — Gov. Tom Vilsack said his Republican challenger's call for Medicaid cuts makes him unfit to be governor, but Doug Gross said Vilsack acts as if the state has an unlimited amount of money to spend on the program.

"The fact that Mr. Gross is willing to deny care to Iowa's most vulnerable families while paying off his rich supporters with big new business tax cuts disqualifies him for the office of governor," Vilsack said Tuesday in a statement.

Last week, Gross said he would impose a pay freeze on state workers and cut into state spending on Medicaid, which provides health care for the poor. In doing so, he hopes to allocate funds to other areas, such as higher education.

"The fact is, Vilsack hasn't managed the Medicaid program well," said Eric Woolson, a Gross campaign spokesman.

In February, Vilsack signed into law most of a $61 million bailout of the state's troubled Medicaid program. Projections for next year have already shown a deficit of up to $93 million.

Woolson said Gross has suggested speaking with private-sector companies to find ways to provide the program's services at lesser costs. He's also talked about identifying the basic needs of different groups of Medicaid recipients.

On Tuesday, Vilsack asked Gross to provide more details about which of Iowa's 250,000 Medicaid recipients would be affected, such as the elderly, children, or the disabled.

"Mr. Gross has proposed reforms without specifics. There is a growing credibility gap with this candidate," Vilsack said at a news conference at a rehabilitation center. "If you're going to propose reforms, then the people of Iowa deserve to know specifically who you are going to hurt."

Vilsack said Medicaid accounts for approximately 20 percent of states' spending nationwide; in Iowa, it makes up roughly 10 percent. He said the Department of Human Services is working with pharmacists statewide to maximize the use of Medicaid money spent on prescription drugs.

that the original guidelines did not show enough zest for expanding the university's ethnic diversity.

"You don't need to skew the ad to make it look like it's the most important point," he said. "People will read [the original guidelines], though, and not realize the university has a diverse population."

The latest statistics available, from fall 2001, show that minorities make up 8.8 percent of the university's student population, a figure that has remained relatively stable since fall 1997.

The committee also approved the general attributes it will use when seeking and interviewing candidates, including:

- A strong commitment to quality undergraduate education.

- A commitment to building and maintaining the university while making optimal use of its resources.

- An abiding faith in the values of academic freedom.

- The ability to lead the university effectively, inspiring confidence in faculty, staff, students, alumni, and the state of Iowa.

The state Board of Regents must approve the search criteria at its next meeting, scheduled for Sept. 18-19.

Absent from the committee's list is a mandatory background in the health sciences, which was used in 1995 when the university tapped Coleman. Those criteria were criticized by some, who said it possibly limited candidates and neglected other areas of the university.

were not available, although many frats reported low figures during formal rush during the week of Aug. 19.

The blame for low recruitment falls on entire fraternities and not select individuals, said UI sophomore Josiah Ball, the recruitment chairman for Phi Kappa Theta.

"A few [fraternities] have had some pretty low numbers, but we're doing really well with our rush," he said. "Prices of fraternities could possibly be a factor."

Membership and living in a frat house runs $4,876 a year, according to the UI Greek Web site. Membership without residence costs $1,037 a year. Sororities charge $4,616 and $1,160 for membership with housing and membership without residence respectively.

Greek officials say the prices are comparable with living in the residence halls, which charge from $2,029 to $5,426 according to room type.

Some fraternities, such as Sigma Alpha Mu, have lost their houses and, in turn, interest in membership, Ball said.

Alpha Epsilon Pi inducted seven pledges last year, and fraternity officials were surprised to see the number rise to 12 this year.

UI senior and Alpha Epsilon Pi pledge Sigil Jenkins said he enjoys the bonds formed in fraternities.

"It's good to have an extended family on campus because when things go wrong, you have people you can count on and trust," he said.

Jenkins admits to having had some second thoughts about joining, but he said he soon became comfortable with the Greek lifestyle.

"I was fearing a cult atmosphere," he said. "I don't have that reservation anymore."

The chefs were the next step in continuing last year's successful sales of pre-packaged sushi obtained at grocery stores.

"We knew it was a popular item with students when we started selling sushi last year from a company that sold to Hy-Vee," said Barry Greenberg, the assistant director of the IMU Food Service. "The customer response is great. The reason a lot of students like it is because it is a healthy food choice, it's different, and it travels well."

Sushi sales this year have averaged approximately 250 packs a day — a number Naing described as "not good, but not bad either."

"God is 1,000 a day," he said. Nine- to 12-piece packs of sushi cost $5 to $9 at the IMU. Greenberg said that as long as the operation performs well, it will continue indefinitely.

According to Advanced Fresh Concepts, sushi is low in fat, sodium, and calories. Nine California rolls — the most popular sushi at the IMU — contain 290 calories compared with a cheeseburger's 320. While some may worry about health issues associated with raw fish, Greenberg said the risks are minimal.

UI senior Katie Eharoshe said she likes the availability of sushi and prefers the imitation crab, avocado, and cucumber in California rolls.

"I like sushi, and when I came here, I just started buying it here," she said.

parishioners are not preoccupied with retribution.

Church members said the incident has only brought them closer to God and that goodwill has come out of it.

UI alumnus and Iowa City West High teacher Troy Langos said his wife, Karen, the church secretary and treasurer, discovered the fire around 8 a.m. and called for help.

"She poked her head in the foyer and saw smoke and fire," he said.

More than two months after the flames died, Cowger said, he still smells the fire every time he opens the church's front door and steps into the foyer.

Smoke and soot crept into the building's ventilation system and spread throughout the church, causing more damage than the flames, Cowger said.

"The dry wall was totally replaced, the entire ceiling in the entire church was replaced, all the chairs, the books in the library, even the files," he said.

One day after the incident, Pastor Brooks Simpson told reporters that investigators had some leads, but Weese did not turn up until more than two months later and halfway across the country in Santa Cruz, Calif.

The fire also garnered attention from a federal agent at the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms office in Des Moines.

The incident initially halted church services for one week and postponed the youth fall kick-off. Optimistic members say repairs to the church are approximately 90 percent complete.

Once that happens, the nations that have accepted it — 87 so far — would be required by law to start reducing the carbon dioxide and other gases pumped out by

The United States, which rejected the accord last year, would not face the requirements, which the Bush administration says would set back the U.S. economy.

BY GLENN FRANKEL
WASHINGTON POST

LONDON — Prime Minister Tony Blair, besieged by critics in his own party and by opinion polls showing strong opposition to military action against Iraq, Tuesday forcefully articulated the case against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and delivered a spirited defense of the United States and President Bush.

Blair spoke as European Union foreign ministers appeared to be moving toward bridging a gap with the Bush administration with a proposal for a new Security Council resolution that would set a deadline for Iraq to readmit U.N. weapons inspectors unconditionally or face military action.

In tones that were alternately angry, lecturing, and puzzled, Blair lashed out at the Iraqi government, which he described as "appalling, and brutal, and dictatorial." He said it was continuing to develop nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons in violation of nine previous Security Council resolutions.

"This isn't just an issue for the United States," Blair told America shouldn't have to face it alone." Britain will publish a dossier of Iraq's violations within the next few weeks, Blair said.

Britain has been the United States' closest ally in the military campaigns of the past year. At the same time, it has often worked to close differences between Washington and other European governments, which have viewed U.S. policies with skepticism.

Cuomo stuns NY, quits governor's race

NEW YORK (AP) — Just a week before the primary, former U.S. Housing Secretary Andrew Cuomo abandoned his sinking campaign for governor Tuesday and threw his support to a fellow Democrat in the race for the job once held by Cuomo's father.

The withdrawal cleared the way for state Comptroller H. Carl McCall to challenge two-term Gov. George Pataki, the Republican who ousted Mario Cuomo eight years ago.

The younger Cuomo had a commanding early lead in the polls, but by the time he dropped out, he was trailing McCall by more than 20 points.

Cuomo, 44, had failed to win support from such high-profile Democrats as Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton and had committed a series of missteps — the most visible coming when he charged that Pataki had merely held Mayor Rudolph Giuliani's coat in the aftermath of Sept. 11. Even Cuomo's father called the remark a political mistake.

Cuomo said advisers had told him he could cut the gap in the polls and perhaps win by attacking McCall, but he refused. Citing the upcoming anniversary of the terrorist attacks, the former Clinton administration Cabinet member said: "We need healing now, maybe more than ever before."

"I will not close a gap in an election by opening one in the body politic," Cuomo said at a news conference, surrounded by family and friends, including his father and former President Clinton.

McCall, the only black candidate ever elected to statewide office in New York, later thanked Cuomo and welcomed his support.

Dems, Bush gird for homeland clash

BY CURT ANDERSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Senate kicked off a contentious debate Tuesday on President Bush's blueprint for a Homeland Security Department, with Democrats flatly rejecting White House demands for greater management flexibility over the agency's estimated 170,000 employees.

The White House responded with a statement repeating Bush's vow to veto the Senate measure, largely over the worker dispute.

Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle called Bush's proposal "a power grab of unprecedented magnitude" that would undermine the nonpolitical government civil-service system and threaten labor-union rights and protections for one-third of the workers.

"We're not going to roll over when it comes to principles and beliefs we hold to be very, very important," said Daschle, D-S.D.

The White House and its Republican congressional allies also dug in their heels. Tom Ridge, the president's point man on homeland security, said the new department needs broader powers to hire, fire, promote, demote, and pay employees — and waive union rights in matters of national security — to meet emerging terrorist threats.

"The president has indicated it's not just a matter of reconfiguring letterheads and addresses," Ridge told reporters after meeting privately with Republican senators.

The Senate GOP leader, Trent Lott of Mississippi, predicted Bush would bring enough political pressure to bear to get much of what he wants in the end.

"It's about doing the job. If we get into this political folderol ... I think that's a mistake," Lott said.

The president met Tuesday with GOP senators at the White House to reinforce his demands for the new Cabinet agency; he planned similar sessions later this week with Democrats.

To get best candidate, UI must expand Stepping Up search scope, and they have been ineffectual in making a significant difference in students' consumption of alcohol.

the next four years, and, despite having ample time and money to establish itself as a significant presence on campus, it has not achieved any noticeable difference in curbing binge drinking.

The organization is searching for a new coordinator, and now is the perfect time to find a new leader to stimulate the program with new energy, new direction, and, most importantly, new ideas. Perhaps this kind of leadership can be found on the committee, but to legitimately find the most qualified person to head this important committee, Phillip Jones, the UI vice president for Student Services, should accept applicants from across the country and not limit his search to the few dozen members of the existing panel.

The chances that Jones can find the kind of vital, creative leadership that the group needs within the group are slim considering that Chairwoman and interim-coordinator Carolyn Cavitt has said the focus of the next four years would be to simply support the projects already in place. Stepping Up's current projects are all admirable endeavors; however, they are limited in

The organization's activities have not been adequate for the past six years; rather than attempt to change existing projects to include more people, support different and varied groups, and create new programs, it plans only to continue with its ineffectual business as usual.

By maintaining an unacceptable status quo, adopting a limited vision of the future, and resigning itself to its current non-role in the university, Stepping Up is doing a disservice to the grant donors, the university, and students who need better drinking alternatives.

Jones said he is limiting his search for a new coordinator to committee members to ensure continuity in the organization's battle against binge drinking. However, his first concern should not be to continue an unproductive history — it should be to find someone who will actually decrease binge drinking and lessen the prominence of alcohol at the university.

If he is committed to accomplishing this goal, Jones will perform a nationwide search of the most qualified, inventive, and effective leaders in the country who will be able to reinvigorate Stepping Up and actually enact change.

Guest Opinion

Research did not cause stuttering

As someone involved with human-subjects research, I believe The Daily Iowan's reporting and editorials regarding the 1939 Tudor study deserve journalism, the university, and the Tudor study plaintiffs themselves. They simply perpetuate the mythology surrounding this master's thesis about the onset of stuttering.

The most decisive omitted fact is that the latest, impartial scientific evaluation of the study's data concludes that the researcher did not, indeed could not have, "caused stuttering" — or done any other lasting harm for that matter. See for example, Ambrose and Yairi's article in the May 2002 Journal of Speech-Language Pathology for the reasons.

The plaintiffs may, or may not, have suffered harm from something else before they entered the Davenport home, while they were there, or thereafter. But there is, so far, no proof any harm they may have suffered in life was related to this research. Indeed, the cited study indicates there is evidence that it could not have been related.

The authors also conclude there is little or no indication the researcher had any intention to do harm.

That really ought to be the end of the matter. If harm was neither intended nor done, what's the problem? Where's the "lack of ethics" your editorial headlined?

There's more. A former UI vice president for Research says the study "was well within the norms of the time." He's right. UI authorities approved not only this study but many others at the home. Those with legal responsibility for the orphans approved.

Even if harm was done — and apparently it wasn't — aren't "the norms of the time" the proper basis for moral judgment? Wouldn't you rather have your actions in 2002 judged by the standards of 2002 than by those of 2065?

But wait for the irony. In the late 1930s, there were no human-subjects ethical standards. And yet the standards self-imposed by this researcher and supervisor more than 60 years ago compare very favorably indeed with those of major research institutions today.

They certainly compare favorably with the Tuskegee syphilis study, subjects exposed to atom bomb radiation, the 12,000 babies with thalidomide birth defects, or subjects deliberately injected with cancer and hepatitis.

Such studies were approved by government and prestigious institutions decades after the 1939 study.

Now, there are very detailed ethical standards. And yet, within the past two or three years, the NIH has shut down eight major institutions for violations. In 1999, the FDA chastised the UI itself for "corrections promised but not implemented" in 1992, 1995, and 1998. In 2001, a volunteer subject in a research study at Johns Hopkins actually died.

There are many intricate issues surrounding the role of clinical trials and other uses of human subjects in research. Among those issues are the most appropriate legal and ethical standards (including those that unnecessarily inhibit needed research). That would be a worthy subject for The Daily Iowan's editorial treatment.

Picking on a dusty master's thesis from 1939, and repeating the myth that it did harm in unethical ways when it did not, is not only grossly unfair to the researcher and misleading to the public, it's also a rather bizarre choice of "news peg" from among the hundreds of timely and significant case studies available for editorial treatment.

The Obvious Manifesto

A specter is haunting America — the specter of the unseen obvious. Every day, thousands of Americans miss the point entirely by failing to see that which is right under their noses. A famous example: It has been said that "religion is the opiate of the masses." Now, this is quite clearly false, for opium is the opiate of the masses.

Obviously. In the news this week, there are countless examples of issues so obvious as to hardly warrant debate. One such issue, the importance of which stands unequalled throughout all of human history (or at least the history of Fox), is that of who will be chosen as the new "American Idol."

The winner will be crowned tonight in a two-hour special, and it is all too obvious that Kelly Clarkson should win the competition hands down over Justin Guarini (who should've been disqualified long ago anyway, because he isn't actually a human being but rather a flawed genetic experiment involving Carrot Top and Latoya Jackson). If, on the other hand, you think that Justin should win, it's because you're a 14-year old girl, and there's a reason that the Constitution keeps you out of the national electoral process.

Of course, if you're in any way a decent human being, you must have no idea what I'm talking about, because you don't watch the show. I, too, once abstained from the guilty pleasure of watching Simon Cowell rip apart another of Nikki's awful '80s renditions, but now I have succumbed.

Please, don't judge me for watching — I don't even like the show; it's just that I'm addicted. If this seems impossible, keep in mind that most heroin addicts don't particularly like heroin.

Obviously. Speaking of heroin, the Bush administration recently came out with a set of guidelines that recommends against expelling high-school students who test positive for drugs. Now, this move is as obvious as the day is long. I mean, if we kicked every cocaine user out of school, how would our presidents ever get a decent education?

One issue on which Bush has failed to see the obvious, however, is the possible attack on Iraq.

See, it's one thing when only Germany, Russia, Nelson Mandela, most of Congress, most of your dad's advisers, and all laws of common sense are against you; but when you can't even get a solid backing from your own secretary of State (who, by the way, would have kicked your ass if he had run against you in 2000), it's time to give up the fight.

Maybe Bush should just sit back and wait for someone with experience in international politics to tell him when Iraq is actually a threat. It's not as if the rest of the world is going to sit idly by as Saddam attacks America. The president needs to face the facts: If he pushes for a regime change in Iraq in 2003, we may just have our own little U.S. regime change in 2004.

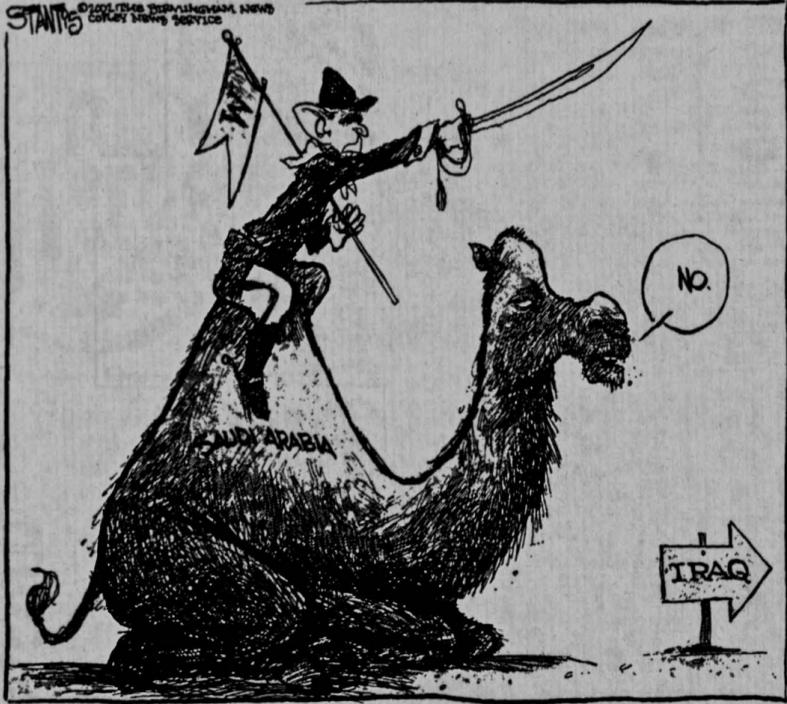

Obviously. If we do force Saddam from his office in Iraq, perhaps we could persuade him to become the next director of the Stepping Up Project here at the UI. I mean, he does have a better record of achieving his goals. Whereas Stepping Up has received almost a million dollars and seen no results, Saddam would have at least bombed the Field House a time or two.

Stepping Up needs to face reality — people simply like alcohol more than they like alcohol alternatives.

Obviously. Actually, I should have qualified that last statement. People sometimes do prefer alternatives to alcohol, if the alcohol in question is Miller High Life Lite, the so-called "Champagne of Beers."

Last week, the European Union ordered a Swedish yogurt company to stop advertising "champagne flavored" yogurt because champagne is so closely identified with France. Perhaps, if we all band together, we can get the United States to join the European Union, and thus force Miller High Life to stop its fraudulent advertising.

Israeli court limits exiles

BY MOLLY MOORE
WASHINGTON POST

JERUSALEM — The Israeli High Court of Justice ruled Tuesday that in "extreme cases" the government can banish to the Gaza Strip the relatives of Palestinians in the West Bank accused of carrying out bombings and other attacks on Israelis.

But the nine-member court, which has been under intense international scrutiny, refused to give authorities blanket approval for banishment as a tactic to deter future attacks. It said the ruling represented an attempt to balance human rights and security concerns by allowing banishments when authorities can back them with strong evidence, while curbing the army's desire to use them more generally to discourage would-be terrorists.

"Human rights cannot receive complete protection as if there is no terror," the court wrote in a 30-page ruling. "And the state security cannot receive complete protection as if there were no human rights." The Israeli military cannot banish "an innocent relative who does not present a danger, even if it is proved that assigning his residence may deter others from carrying out terrorist acts," the ruling added.

Brian Hender/Associated Press

In that vein, the court upheld a military court's decision to banish Intisar and Kifah Ajouri, who are accused of assisting their brother in preparing a July 17 suicide-bombing operation. At the same time, it ruled that the army could not send Abed Assida to Gaza simply because he lent a car and gave food and clean clothes to his brother, whom Israelis accuse of terrorist activities.

The Israeli army has sought to send families of accused West Bank terrorists to the Gaza Strip because the Palestinian part of that territory on the Mediterranean is closed in by fences and troop deployments, blocking access to Israel by would-be suicide bombers. In addition, Israeli officers have said, punishing the families of those accused of attacking Israelis could deter further attacks, inducing families to try to prevent their relatives from getting involved.

Slowly, female rapists get treatment

BY AMBER MCDOWELL
ASSOCIATED PRESS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Tonya Payne got four years in jail for luring a 15-year-old boy into her trailer and raping him, exposing him to the AIDS virus.

When she gets out this week, she says, she will be a changed woman — thanks to a sex-offender treatment program Tennessee recently began offering to female inmates.

"If I hadn't had the treatment, I would definitely classify myself as being at high risk to do it again," Payne said.

Payne is among five inmates at the Tennessee Prison for Women to graduate from the prison's first therapy program for female sex offenders, a two-year program that ended in July.

Such programs are widely offered to men who commit sex crimes, but they have been almost unheard of for women. Texas and Kentucky are among the few states that provide counseling for female rapists.

Payne went through two-hour sessions five days a week that included group therapy on topics such as anger management and victim empathy. She also received help with her history of sexual abuse and drug and alcohol addiction.

Payne said counseling helped her come to terms with being sexually abused as a child by her stepfather, getting married at 13, and contracting HIV through casual sex.

"I started looking at what in my life made me who I was. I hadn't dealt with it," Payne said. "I'm not going to say my old issues are what caused me to rape my victim. I just didn't like me."

Left to wither on the Vines of product, not music

BY RICHARD SHIRK
THE DAILY IOWAN

Like a mediocre foreign film is given more leeway for having subtitles, the same is true for Australia's latest export, the Vines. Coasting on frothy-mouthed Capitol reps' ideas of selling America foreign exoticism through the band's borrowed rock pastiche, Highly Evolved (Capitol), is the most disappointing "it" band album of the moment. Maybe a stereotype, but it would seem that a nation founded as a penal colony by Britain is bound to produce some bad-ass rock 'n' roll. From Birthday Party, You Am I, Midnight Oil, and most pre-vomit asphyxiation AC/DC, these bands have paved over the occasional occurrence of an embarrassment like the BeeGees or Air Supply with a sound based on considerable amounts of thematic conviction and guitars as big and mean as that giant inland desert. Sadly enough, however, as much as Rolling Stone wants to believe that coming from Australia makes you the Steve

Erwin of rock, this just isn't the case for the Vines. Barely graduated from rattlin' window panes playing Nirvana covers in suburban Sydney (where the band members met working together at McDonalds), the originality of the trio seems to mirror the beef content of a McCheeseburger: none. Lead singer/guitarist Craig Nichols' voice is constantly in danger of alternately drifting into Scott Weiland or Richard Ashcroft copyright infringement. The rhythm section of Patrick Matthews (bass) and drummer Dave Oliffe seem to have no problem following suit. The Aussie youngsters have also been prodded along by the slick pro-tool abuse of Gargamel-like producer Rob Schnapf. Everything is pitch-corrected and flawless, which, as in the case of Schnapf's work with Elliott Smith, Guided By Voices, and Beck, takes away more than it adds. About as slick as the production values of Highly Evolved is the mix of demographics spanned in just over 40 minutes. After GNR-ing it through "In The Jungle," delivering some earnest BRMC garage rawk ("Get Free," "Highly Evolved," "Outtathaway,") and frolicking through spaghetti-limp shoegazer/Britpop cast-offs such as "Homesick," and "Sunshinin," the Vines guys either can't decide on what kind of band they would like to be or, more likely, left the creative ideas and sequencing to the marketing department. And if the Vines were to be cut loose long enough and managed to wrestle out of enough contracts to make music rather than product, it might find that the band is so steeped in immediate influences (Nirvana, Stone Roses, Verve, Nirvana) that further excavation would reveal that the Vines, Australian or not, is really nothing more than roots.

Russia to throw Bass back

BY MARA D. BELLABY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Russia told N Sync singer and aspiring cosmonaut Lance Bass "Bye Bye Bye" Tuesday after he again failed to pay the $20 million fee for his planned ride into space. The Russian space agency Rosaviakosmos ordered the 23-year-old pop star to leave Russia's Star City cosmonaut training ground, where he had been since July, after missing several deadlines to pay for his October ride to the International Space Station. "It's over," said Rosaviakosmos spokesman Sergei Gorbunov. Russian space officials negotiated with Bass "in good faith," but "his sponsors didn't fulfill the conditions of the contract, and we never received the money," Gorbunov said, adding that the trip was now an "impossibility." Bass will be replaced on the ride by a container packed with space-station supplies weighing approximately the same as him. However, Bass' publicist in New York disputed the Russian announcement, saying, "The trip is not over." "We are still in negotiations," Jill Fritzo said. "We feel very confident that there will be a resolution soon and the trip will go on as planned." The Los Angeles television producer behind the bid dismissed the Russian announcement as a negotiating ploy. "The truth is that we simply need to complete the delivery of the funds so that everyone is comfortable, and he'll be back in the saddle again," said David Krieff, who plans a series about Bass' trip and is gathering sponsors. "The reality is that we do have a little grace period." Krieff expected Bass to be back on the crew list by week's end. The Russians agreed to several deadline extensions because Bass' name had been forwarded to their space-station partners, who endorsed the singer last week, Gorbunov said. Also, a short amount of time remained for training, making it impossible to begin work with another candidate, he said. Bass' supporters blame paperwork problems for the payment delay and insisted that he still hopes to make the trip. "Lance is not stepping down by any means," said Jeff Manber, the president of MirCorp, a company that helps arrange space-related adventures and is partly owned by Russia's Energia Space

Corp., which built part of the International Space Station. Manber said he met with Russian space officials Tuesday. "It is a little dramatic to say he was kicked out," Manber said. "He will be back there [at Star City] probably tomorrow or the day after." Bass, who attended a U.S. space camp in Florida 10 years ago, would be the youngest person ever in space if he goes on his trip.

ABC tries Monday nights with Madden

NEW YORK — They've tried a comedian and old quarterbacks. Now, with John Madden and Al Michaels, "Monday Night Football" is turning to two old pros who promise an emphasis on games, not gimmicks.

ABC Sports lured Madden from Fox for its football franchise this season, pairing him with Michaels, who has been in the "Monday Night Football" booth since 1986.

After working three exhibition games, the new ABC team makes its regular-season debut Sept. 9 with an attractive matchup: Pittsburgh against New England in a rematch of the AFC championship game.

"I feel like I've worked with John for 10 years," Michaels said. "It's that comfortable, it's been that easy, it's been that enjoyable."

ABC has a lot riding on the new team. Ratings for "Monday Night Football" have dropped seven straight years, more than 15 percent during the last two years. But with the network's prime-time collapse over the past year, the show is still one of the most reliable programs on its schedule.

Madden and Michaels say they hope the network's fortunes improve. But they weren't ready to take ABC on their backs.

"All we can do is prepare as perfectly as possible to make the best of every game we can," Michaels said. "There's really nothing we can do to bring up the ratings except be as good as we can be. Everything else would just be a trick. It wouldn't last very long."

Rose unhurt after failed carjacking

LOS ANGELES — A passenger in a rented $360,000 Bentley driven by Chicago basketball star Jalen Rose was shot in the face early Tuesday in what police described as a botched carjacking.

The man, whose identity was not released, suffered a wound that was not life-threatening. Rose was unhurt.

Rose stopped the 2002 Bentley Azure at a traffic light about 3 a.m. when three men in a black, four-door Cadillac Escalade pulled up behind him.

One of the men walked up to the passenger's side of the Bentley, pulled out a gun and is believed to have said, "Give up the car," Richter said.

Instead, Rose gunned the accelerator, and the would-be thief fired several rounds at the car, hitting the passenger once.

Volleyball team anticipates today's season debut

BY ALI NOLLER
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa volleyball team may have lined the Big Ten barrel last year after stuttering to a 6-23 finish in a season which saw more disgruntlement than delectation, but the Hawkeyes of 2002 are destined to make the past season exactly that — the past.

Several modifications have already amplified this young Iowa team.

The Hawkeyes netted a pair of new setters in transfers Jitka Stehnova and Louise Bates, both of whom have plenty of collegiate experience.

Buck-Crockett

Hill

They watched team leaders emerge in seniors Kelli Chesnut and Suzanne Bouchard, and junior Renee Hill returns as a natural leader on her right side after setting for the Hawkeyes last season.

In addition, a new position — the libero — was added by the NCAA as a designated back-row specialist; it will be used as a main controller of the ball. Iowa has a candidate tailored for the job already: sophomore Pam Kavadas, who played in all 103 games as a freshman defensive specialist.

Combine all of these improvements, blend them with an upbeat group of players, and the Iowa volleyball team has transmogrified into a team that can battle the top Big Ten teams after finishing in 10th place at 3-17 last season.

"We know that we have nothing to lose," outside hitter Laura Simpson said. "All those teams out there — we can go out and kill them all."

The Hawkeyes' first battle will take the form of intrastate rival Drake today at 7 p.m. in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The last time the two teams met, in September 2000, the Hawkeyes bested the Bulldogs, 3-0, in Des Moines. Iowa holds a 19-10-1 advantage over Drake overall.

Drake got off to a sour start in its season opener last weekend at the Best Western Invitational.

SEE VOLLEYBALL, PAGE 5B

Iowa volleyball

The basics: The volleyball team will host Drake in its season opener in Carver-Hawkeye Arena today at 7 p.m.

Players to watch: Junior Renee Hill, who has already worked her way into the record books after two seasons with the Hawkeyes, will look to improve on her fifth-place ranking in all-time assists (1,010) and her 18th-place in all-time attack percentage. Also look for big things from sophomore Pam Kavadas, who played in all 103 games, and is likely to start at the new libero position installed by the NCAA this season.

Greiving nurses ankle sprain but doesn't sweat starting job

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP
THE DAILY IOWAN

The thought of losing his job as Iowa's starting running back never crossed Aaron Greiving's mind.

Not even after watching backups Fred Russell and Jermelle Lewis have their way with Akron's defense during Iowa's season opening victory Aug. 31.

"I don't think things have changed that much," Greiving told reporters Tuesday.

Still nursing the high ankle sprain that kept him from taking the field against the Zips, junior tailback Greiving likened his current situation to missing spring drills with a similar injury. Despite not participating in Iowa's spring game, Greiving remained atop the Iowa depth chart.

His status remains day-to-day as the Hawkeyes gear up for a grueling road test against Miami University this weekend, but coach Kirk Ferentz remains high on the talented Ames product.

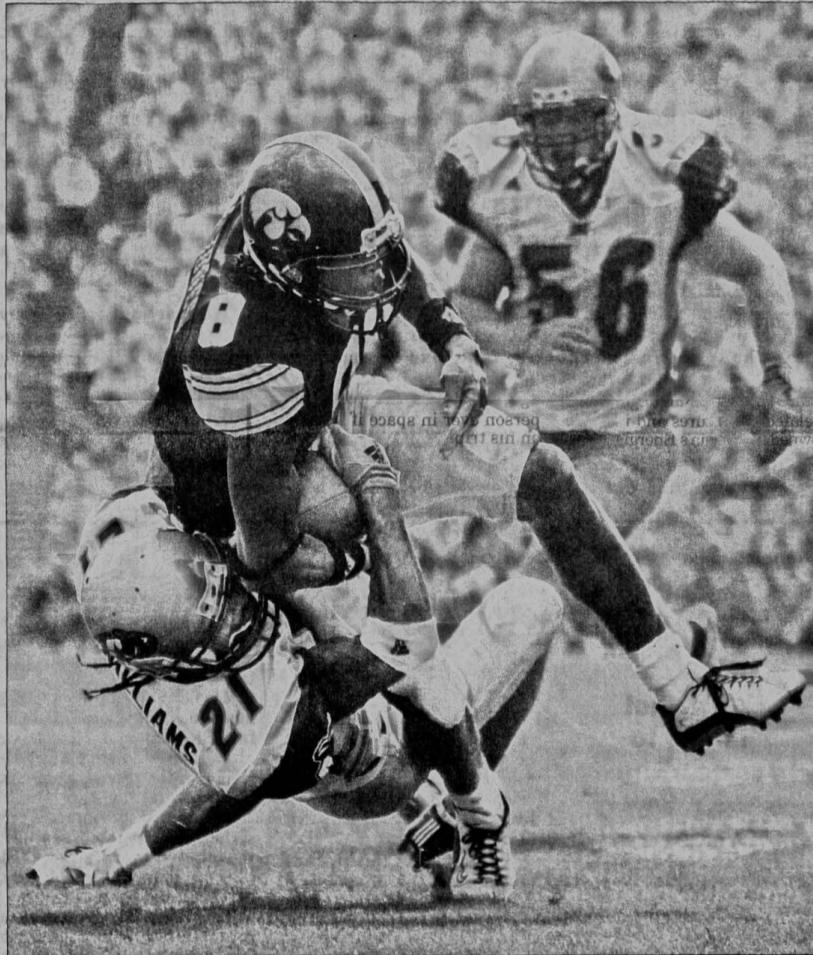

"Aaron hasn't done anything to take away from what he's done [in the past]," Ferentz said.

That reassurance comes as welcome news to Greiving after watching backups Fred Russell and Jermelle Lewis each turn in 100-yard-plus performances against the Zips.

"It makes me feel better," Greiving said before receiving one of the twice-daily treatments on his right ankle. "[The coaches] are telling me they don't doubt me."

Not wanting to bring Greiving back too soon and risk losing him for more games, including Iowa's much anticipated Sept. 14 showdown with Iowa State, Ferentz said Tuesday he would once again take a wait-and-see approach for Saturday's game with the RedHawks.

Both Russell and Lewis said they are more than ready to continue carrying the load for the Hawkeyes if Greiving misses more time while recuperating.

Zach Boyden-Holmes/The Daily Iowan

Receiver C.J. Jones is hauled down by Zips' defensive back Kris Williams in Iowa's 57-21 rout of Akron on Aug. 31 at Kinnick Stadium. Jones gained a total of 45 yards on one carry and one reception.

"All three of the guys we're talking about here we've seen once in game situations," Ferentz said attempting to keep the so-called running back controversy in perspective.

Regardless of who starts in the backfield this weekend, Ferentz said he knows his team will face a stiff test at Miami.

"We're playing a team that just went to North Carolina ... and convincingly won the game," Ferentz said of Miami's 27-21 road victory over the Tar Heels in Chapel Hill.

Ferentz said not only will the RedHawks have momentum from their season opener, they will be looking to make a statement against the first ever Big Ten team to visit Yager Stadium.

Steroids, not strike, threaten baseball

A strike was averted, but baseball failed to effectively address its biggest problem.

No, I am not about to launch into a diatribe about escalating player salaries, competitive balance, or luxury taxes. Bickering over these issues angers baseball fans, but not enough to result in a lost fan base.

But baseball has lost something this year that even an era of "historic" labor peace can't bring back: the fans' trust. This trust was lost when the ongoing home-run explosion in baseball was tainted by steroid allegations. Fans don't know which players are on steroids, so all players' achievements are doubted. As baseball evolves from the national pastime into one large round of home-run derby, fans are drifting away in droves.

This is the biggest problem baseball has right now, and it will ultimately have the most destructive effect on the game.

Earlier this year, former MVPs Jose Canseco and Ken Caminiti admitted to using steroids during their careers. Canseco estimated that 85 percent of today's players use steroids; Caminiti guessed 50 percent. These numbers, while likely exaggerated, brought attention to a problem to which most baseball fans were ignorant.

The 60-home run plateau, only reached twice in the history of the game before 1998, was crossed six times in the last four years. Fans attribute this home-run barrage to steroids. Whether they are right or wrong is irrelevant.

The point is, baseball is a game rich in history and tradition. And many baseball fans are outraged, believing the history books are being rewritten yearly because of drugs that can make today's ballplayers superhuman.

The destruction of baseball history should have made steroids a more prominent issue in the labor negotiations. In light of the steroid controversy, the last four years are an embarrassment to the sport. Short of putting an asterisk next to an entire era of baseball, the best solution to this problem would have been to initiate a random-

Illinois faces frustrating problems at QB

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP
THE DAILY IOWAN

After touting his team's motto of "take another step" during Big Ten media day in July, Illinois coach Ron Turner watched last weekend as last season's conference champions took a giant step against Missouri — in the wrong direction.

The Illini fell to the traditionally mediocre Tigers, 33-20, in St. Louis to begin the season with a loss for the first time since 1998, leaving Turner dodging the question of who his starting quarterback will be.

For Turner, the process is a frustrating one. The battle to replace Kurt Kittner, the school's all-time best quarterback, began during spring drills in Champaign, but neither incumbent Dustin Ward nor transfer Jon Beutjer could distance himself from the other. That carried over to fall camp and the season opener, but Turner remains confident in Ward at the moment.

"He's run the offense better, and he's playing better," Turner said. "I think he deserves the opportunity to start, and he will."

In his first-ever start, Ward completed 9-21 passes for 124 yards and one score against the Tigers before Turner pulled him with the Illini trailing 26-14 in the fourth quarter. Beutjer, who transferred to Illinois from Iowa after an ugly spat with a teammate became a public war of words, connected on 9-21 passes for 122 yards and a touchdown.

"I found out Saturday that there are some things I thought Jon knew — and he does know on the board — but as far as executing in games, he's not ready," Turner told the Associated Press.

The poor start has definitely set Turner and the Illini back in their quest to finish at the top of the Big Ten. Last season, the Illini finished the year 10-2 and represented the conference in the BCS, losing to LSU, 47-34, in the Sugar Bowl.

"The Sugar Bowl experience was something every young child dreams of," Illini cornerback Eugene Wilson said. "It's something to look forward to again."

While the team's early loss certainly hinders hopes of a return to the BCS, the Illini can certainly look forward to a more promising remainder of the schedule, which includes hosting both conference favorites, Michigan and Ohio State.

Kittner may have been talented, but he had a great supporting cast on offense.

ROWING BRIEF
Iowa men's rowing hosts tryouts
 Beginning today, the Iowa men's rowing team is hosting a two-week trial period for prospective rowers to test the waters.
 "The trial period will help the newcomers get acclimated to rowing," coach Kris Muhl said.
 The trial period costs nothing and is obligation-free. Tryouts begin at the boat house at 4:30 p.m.
 All rowers pay monthly dues of approximately $100 to cover the costs of boat and equipment maintenance, travel expenses, and a week-long trip during spring break to either Texas or Florida.
 The Iowa women's rowing team announced the hiring of Laura Macfarlane as an assistant coach on Aug. 28.

New coach, season for cross country

BY MICHELLE YONG
 THE DAILY IOWAN
 Something old, something new.
 The Iowa women's cross-country team will return this fall with all eight letter-winners from the 2001 season. The Hawkeyes return with something new as well: coach Wayne Angel.
 Angel was the head women's and men's cross-country coach at Wichita State before joining Iowa.
 The Hawkeyes' season opener will be Saturday at the Blue Jay Cross-Country Invitational in Omaha, Neb.
 "The first meet is to see where we are and to see if the kids have heart," Angel said. "I hope that as each meet gets tougher, they find it in their hearts that they are good."

 The Hawkeyes' No. 1 runner from last season, junior Georgia Millward, is excited to start the season under Angel.
 "I think Coach Angel is great, he is exciting, he has great ideas, and he is a great influence on all of us," she said.
 "I see a lot of improvement from last year."
 Angel, took his team to a camp in the Quad Cities to begin training for the season, said the team looked motivated and worked hard during the summer.

Millward

 During practice last week in Iowa City, the team worked on pack running and talking to each other during races to emphasize a team mentality.
 One of Angel's goals this season is to take the last-place Hawkeyes into the top five.
 "If we are in the top five, we'll raise eyebrows and bring a big response," he said.
 Last year's No. 2 runner, senior Michelle Lahann, hopes for big improvements this year.
 "Ideally, I would like it if we made it to nationals," she said. "There are a lot of improvements and hope. This is my last year on the team, and I hope to be a huge contributor and end on a good note."
 Iowa will not have the home advantage this fall in the Hawkeyes' five regular-season meets, but Angel is not concerned.
 "We start out [with] easy [meets] to see if we can compete," he said. "I think being away from home and winning is a confidence-booster. I think we have the talent and ability. We are hungry and driven."

Augusta to women: Mind your own business

BY JIM LITKE
 ASSOCIATED PRESS
 The increasingly noisy debate about whether women should join Augusta National Golf Club in time for next year's tournament or face some yet-to-be-named dire consequences reminds us one more time why Caddyshack is funnier than real life.
 In the movie, silly, snobbish behavior by members of the country-club set proves to be nobody's headache but their own. Most of the laughs, in fact, come from watching the deserving parties get exactly what's coming to them.
 In real life, a busybody with too much time on her hands and a stubborn banker with too little patience take their grudge match public and waste more of other people's time and energy than the brouhaha deserves.
 The tiff between Martha Burk, who runs the National Council of Women's Organization, and Hootie Johnson, who calls the shots at Augusta National and the Masters golf tournament every April, hardly qualifies as the principled fight both sides claim.
 Burk said the her organization sent a letter to the Augusta National chairman to call attention to discrimination at the club, when the reason her organization more likely got involved was to call attention to itself.
 Instead of tackling the tough issues that women identify over and over as barriers to their participation in the sport — a lack of time and teaching opportunities, more affordable playing and learning centers — Burk chose the easy target.
 Anybody who truly believes there is a shortage of places where rich people — of either sex — will be welcomed with open arms knows precious little about how the world works. And

We do not intend to become a trophy in their display case
 — Hootie Johnson, Augusta National Golf Club
 Burk apparently knows even less about golf.
 "The Masters, in my mind, is not tied at the hip to this club," she said at one point. "An event of this profile could be held somewhere else."
 Johnson, though, doesn't have the luxury of being out of touch on the topic. He knows Augusta National's 300-strong membership roll has been embarrassingly uniform (read: white males) for most of its 69-year history. No blacks were admitted before 1990, and only a half-dozen or so belong today.
 Johnson said in a strongly worded reply that "the essence of a private club is privacy"; had he ended his reply there, the matter might have ended soon after.
 One of his predecessors, the late Hord Hardin, acknowledged a dozen years ago that women routinely played the course as guests, and members were already preparing for the day when one of them would play it as a full-fledged member. Johnson could have repeated the pledge to buy some time. Instead, he followed his reply to Burk with a three-page letter to the media conjuring up unflattering memories of humorless harpies out to destroy men.
 "We do not intend to become a trophy in their display case," he wrote.

But Johnson didn't stop there, either.
 Last week, to prove just how rich and powerful his club was, he announced the Masters would forgo the usual dollars from sponsors to remove them from the women's group and harm's way.
 With the ante raised, Burk threatened to apply pressure instead on CBS, which televises the golf season's most popular tournament.
 "Who's underwriting the membership?" she said over the weekend. "How does that square with the companies' stated policies on discrimination? I think we would want consumers to know that situation."

 Maybe, but she hasn't had much luck with her crusade so far. Several sponsors have already argued that Augusta National, the private club, and the Masters, the very public tournament it stages each spring, are separate. A spokeswoman said over the weekend CBS will broadcast the Masters next year, and left it at that.
 If anything, Burk's decision to mount a public campaign to force Augusta to admit a woman member before next year will probably backfire. Johnson's stubborn resolve aside, it may be tougher than ever now to find a women willing to join because of the overheated climate.

Clemens K's 10 in Yankee win

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Clemens struck out 10 in his 292nd career victory as New York strengthened its grip on the AL East by beating Boston.

Clemens (12-5) established himself from the start against his former team, striking out the first four batters of the game and making three first-inning runs stand up.

The Yankees snapped a three-game losing streak and increased their lead in the division to 7½ games over Boston with one game remaining against their rival. The Red Sox dropped 5½ games behind Anaheim in the wild-card race.

Derek Jeter homered off Frank Castillo (5-13), and a rare error by second baseman Rey Sanchez helped the Yankees score two more runs in the first.

That was enough for Clemens. He allowed one earned run and four hits in 7½ innings against the team he started his brilliant career with before being forced out as a free agent following the 1996 season.

Mike Stanton pitched the ninth for his third save, getting the final out when pinch-hitter Carlos Baerga lined out to Jeter with a man on.

Texas 7, Baltimore 1

BALTIMORE — An unlikely trio of Texas Rangers nearly combined to pitch an unusual no-hitter against the Baltimore Orioles on Tuesday night.

Jerry Hairston hit a leadoff triple in the ninth inning, ruining the Rangers' bid, but Texas handed the Orioles their 10th straight loss.

Rangers starter Aaron Myette was ejected after throwing two pitches, and Todd Van Poppel pitched two innings. Rookie Joaquin Benoit then extended the no-hitter through eight innings before allowing the Orioles' lone hit.

Van Poppel (3-1) finished the walk, then walked Hairston before striking out the side. He worked a perfect second inning, striking out two, before Benoit took over.

Detroit 4, Cleveland 0

DETROIT (AP) — Rookie Andy Van Hekken pitched a complete game shutout in his major-league debut, allowing eight hits to lead Detroit past Cleveland.

Detroit won for the first time in six games and snapped a nine-game home losing streak.

Van Hekken (1-0), a native of Holland, Mich., on the state's west side, struck out one and walked two as he pitched in front of more than 100 family and friends.

Anaheim 10, Tampa Bay 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Jarrod Washburn became Anaheim's first 16-game winner in nine years, and Orlando Palmeiro drove in a career-high four runs as the Angels beat Tampa Bay.

Washburn (16-5) gave up two runs and six hits in five innings. The last time an Anaheim pitcher won 16 games in a season was 1993, when Mark Langston and Chuck Finley accomplished the feat.

White Sox 5, Blue Jays 4

TORONTO — Jose Valentin's second homer of the game broke a tie in the seventh inning as Chicago won a season-high seventh straight.

Valentin also broke a 2-all tie in the fifth off Estaban Loaiza (7-8) and gave Chicago the lead for good in the seventh off Loaiza with his 21st homer. Both were solo shots.

Paul Konerko also homered for the White Sox, whose streak is their longest since an eight-game run June 12-20, 2000.

Cubs 10, Milwaukee 1

CHICAGO — Alex Gonzalez and Todd Hundley each hit a three-run homer, and Matt Clement pitched a six-hitter as the Chicago Cubs beat the Milwaukee Brewers 10-1 on Tuesday night.

Clement (12-9) pitched his third complete game of the season. He struck out seven and walked three.

McGriff tripled in the sixth, scoring Sammy Sosa. Alou followed with a double to make it 9-1.

Mark Bellhorn added a run in the seventh with his 25th homer.

St. Louis 3, Cincinnati 1

ST. LOUIS — Jim Edmonds hit a two-run homer, and Woody Williams won for the first time in more than two months as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds Tuesday night.

Edmonds had three RBIs, and Williams (7-4) allowed one run on four hits for his first victory since beating San Diego on July 1.

It was Williams' second start, both against the Reds, since his second stint on the disabled list this season for a pulled muscle in his left side.

Steve Kline got out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth, striking out Barry Larkin and Aaron Boone sandwiched around a walk to Adam Dunn.

Montreal 7, Philadelphia 6

MONTREAL — Brad Wilkerson singled home the winning run in the 10th inning, and the Montreal Expos turned a triple play in their victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on Tuesday night.

With 3,879 on hand at Olympic Stadium, the Expos turned the 11th triple play in their 34-year history in the eighth inning to escape a first-and-third jam and keep the game tied at 6.

Pinch-hitter Matt Cepicky doubled off Terry Adams (5-9) to start the 10th. Jose Macias pinch ran for Cepicky and advanced to third on Andy Chavez's sacrifice before scoring on Wilkerson's single to right.

Joey Eischen (4-1) pitched 1½ scoreless innings for the win.

Pittsburgh 3, Atlanta 0

ATLANTA — Salomon Torres made a triumphant return to the majors with Pittsburgh, coming within two outs of a shutout in his first big-league appearance since 1997 as the Pirates beat the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

Aramis Ramirez and Craig Wilson homered for the Pirates, who snapped Atlanta's four-game winning streak and ended their own four-game skid.

But this night belonged to Torres (1-0), who dominated the team with baseball's best record in a matchup against 16-game winner Tom Glavine.

Torres faced only two hitters over the minimum before pinch-hitter Marcus Giles singled with one out in the ninth.

Florida 3, N.Y. Mets 2

NEW YORK — The New York Mets bungled their way to a National League record 15th consecutive loss at home.

Preston Wilson hit a tying homer in the ninth and Juan Encarnacion had an RBI double in the 12th inning as the Florida Marlins beat the Mets.

After an 0-for-August at home — the first month in Mets' history that they went winless at home — New York lost to Philadelphia on Sept. 1, tying the mark.

The Mets have not won at Shea Stadium since beating Houston Astros 10-0 on July 31.

Punting tops Ferentz's list

FERENTZ

Akron, Ferentz said he and his staff feel much better about the team's progress, but the way the Hawkeyes handle themselves this week will tell the staff a lot more about the squad.

"It's that old coach's cliché about going from week one to week two, but like most clichés, it's true," Ferentz said.

Playing tighter football with fewer mental mistakes and improving a defense that allowed 296 passing yards a week ago are his first and foremost concerns.

Punting on punt returns

Ferentz said he will definitely be looking to move forward on punt returns, waiting to make a decision on who will return punts until later this week. C. J. Jones fumbled a punt in the third quarter against the Zips, which led to an Akron touchdown.

Four wide receivers — Jones, Ed Hinkel, Ramon Ochoa, and Clinton Solomon — are the leading candidates to handle return duties this weekend.

Return of the MAC

Though he didn't schedule this weekend's game with the RedHawks, Ferentz said he would have no problem playing similar games against MAC teams in future seasons. That's a good thing, because at least one MAC team appears on Iowa's schedule through 2006.

"I've got great respect for the teams in that conference," he said. "They've really improved over the last decade."

Thorn leaves team

Sophomore tight end Andy Thorn has left the Hawkeyes and will not return to the team, Ferentz said Tuesday. The Waterford, Mich., product never cracked the two-deep at tight end and was stuck behind juniors Dallas Clark and Erik Jensen.

Ferentz said he expects Thorn will remain enrolled this semester, then look to finish out his career at a Division I-AA school, where he would have two years remaining. Thorn redshirted the 2000 season and saw his only action in a Hawkeye uniform in 2001, appearing in four games mainly on special teams.

testing program.

But what did baseball players and owners do instead?

They implemented the weakest steroid-testing program of any major sport, then touted it as the almighty remedy to baseball's steroid plague.

The plan goes as follows: Pre-planned, announced testing for steroids will begin next year and continue throughout the years of the current labor agreement. If it is ever found that more than 5 percent of players use steroids, only then will the testing become random.

There are two major problems with this. First, players can prepare for announced testing so no traces of steroid use shows up. Second, 5 percent is a ridiculously high threshold. Close to 60 players could be juiced up, and baseball still wouldn't resort to random testing.

Why didn't either the owners or the players insist on a more effective testing plan? Money. Prior to the steroid allegations, both groups profited from the long-ball onslaught: Owners, because home runs translated into boosted attendance and revenue, and players, because home runs translated into higher salaries.

Debates will continue about who won the labor negotiations, but the real losers are the fans. Baseball's fan base will continue to dwindle until both the owners and players take steroid use more seriously.

Fans don't like wondering if their favorite players are steroid-enhanced. And they shouldn't have to settle for a distorted brand of baseball.

Illini line still strong

Whoever the Illinois quarterback is, he will have two of the league's top receivers in Brandon Lloyd and Walter Young to look to as well as running backs Antoino Harris and newcomer Morris Virgil.

On defense, cornerbacks Wilson and Christian Morton help to secure a secondary that must deal with the loss of safeties Bobby Jackson and Muhammad Abdullah. Abdullah finished second on the Illini a year ago with 98 tackles.

The Illini remain strong up the middle and on the front line as well. Illinois returns all its linebackers including Jerry Schumacher, the team's leading tackler a year ago with 125 stops. The defensive line will feature two new starters, but Turner regularly rotated as many as 10 players in and out of the game in 2001.

Experience may make the difference for the Illini in a tight conference race, with as many as six teams capable of fighting for top honors.

"There will be a lot of teams that will have the opportunity to win," Turner said. "It will come down to who gets on a roll, plays with confidence, stays healthy, and gets some breaks."

Illinois will look to rebound from its gut-check loss to Missouri when the Illini travel to Southern Mississippi this weekend.

dropping matches to Indiana, Northern Illinois, and IUPUI.

The Hawkeyes have yet to see intercollegiate play, but they are fresh from the excitement of their first intrasquad exhibition match Aug. 30.

"We are very anxious to get the season started and are excited for our first match," Iowa coach Rita Buck-Crockett said. "Everyone is playing very well right now and at a high energy level."

One of the Hawkeyes' main concerns will be controlling Drake hitter Stacy Boerema, who was named to the all-tournament team after recording 46 kills, 4 blocks, and a .270 hitting percentage. Iowa will look to Bouchard and junior Abby Tjaden to control the freshman power hitter.

While the Hawkeyes will look to start the season with a win, Simpson has bigger plans for their debut performance.

"I'm just ready to get out and put them away."

horoscopes

Wednesday, September 4, 2002 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Planning a quiet day at home may turn out to be disappointing; get out with friends instead. Some challenging physical activity should help to boost your energy and your spirit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): It's time to deal with the bureaucratic vista — return those phone calls and personal e-mails. Then relax. Be impervious to the sense of betrayal that an in-law or close friend may provoke in you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Gratuitous purchases are a bad idea for the moment. Put your money into entertaining yourself for a while. Once you master something new, there is no telling what you might do with your new talent.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your family may not be too interested in your complaints, criticisms, or disgruntled attitude. Just try to be calm. It won't always be like this, so learn to let things be.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You'll have a tendency to take on too much as well as overindulge today. Pace yourself before it's too late, or you may find yourself in a mess. It's a good time to make adjustments at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may be feeling critical of certain friends right now, but it may not be a good time to discuss the matter. Secret enemies may be waiting for you to get into a heart-to-heart talk. You mustn't trust what others tell you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can count on the people around you to do whatever they can to help you reach your destination. The more you talk about what it is you are trying to accomplish, the easier it will become to get the assistance you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be very frugal and don't share for the moment. The time to look out for yourself is now, and the sooner you start putting your cash away for a rainy day, the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You'll be confident and attractive to others, but when it comes to your family, you need to maintain your humility. Be careful about what you say to whom. Be honest and direct.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Unpredictable distractions may disrupt some of the relationships in your life. You may want to backtrack to turn a wrong into a right, especially if you acted in haste.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone in a position of power in your life may want to damage your reputation. Don't be too quick to make changes. You may be feeling unsettled, but now is not the time to leap.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): People may want to pull you in all sorts of directions today, but if you become a chameleon, you'll never get your point across. Listen to what others say, but form your own opinions.

Reasons to Bomb the Bejezus out of Baghdad

- We gotta do something with our stockpile of nukes.
- Saddam's just a really big pain in the ass.
- It would look really cool on CNN.
- Cuz the Russians are our friends now.
- It will give those Army guys something better to do besides blow up Canadians and wedding parties.
- So Outkast can write another bumpin' song about it.
- Cuz the French are too big of pansies to do it.
- Because it's easier than striving for World Peace.
- It will make Donald Rumsfeld feel important.
- Nothing brings the American people together like a good war.
- Cuz that red button is just itchin' under Junior's finger.
