Israeli siege goes on; protests spread

BY KEITH B. RICHBURG
WASHINGTON POST

JERUSALEM — Israeli bulldozers halted the demolition of Yasser Arafat's headquarters in Ramallah Sunday night as the Palestinian leader remained confined with more than 200 others in a single building surrounded by coils of barbed wire. Palestinian protests in support of Arafat spread across the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Israel rebuffed several overtures to mediate an end to the siege, diplomats said. Israelis, Palestinians, and Western diplomats said they believe Prime Minister Ariel Sharon is trying to force the Palestinian leader to seek exile abroad.

After destroying most of the buildings in the sprawling, block-sized complex — the Ramallah governor's office, a conference center, an intelligence headquarters, and several mobile homes — Israeli soldiers late on Sept. 21 added one more highly symbolic humiliation, raising the blue-and-white Israeli flag over the Palestinian leader's compound.

"It's gloating," said Saeb Erekat, the chief Palestinian negotiator. "It's their silly idea of a victory." He added, "The idea of raising the flag on the compound means they don't want Palestinians here, they don't want us to exist."

Arafat was defiant. "We will hoist the flag of Palestine above the walls, churches, and minarets of Jerusalem ... May God make me a martyr," Arafat said in excerpts of a telephone conversation with an Israeli-Arab lawmaker broadcast on Israeli television, Reuters reported.

In the protests, two Palestinians were killed early Sunday in Ramallah, and two more later in the day when Israeli troops opened fire, according to Palestinian hospital officials and the Israeli army. The army said

Temp housing might welcome next president

BY GRANT SCHULTE
THE DAILY IOWAN

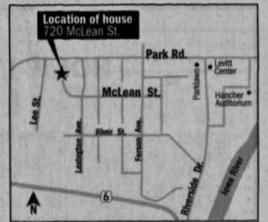

An upscale home in a quiet, affluent neighborhood will temporarily house the next UI president if administrators decide to renovate the president's mansion. The university is also leasing the 720 McLean St. residence as a potential residence for visiting faculty at a cost of $2,200 per month — $7.33 per square foot.

In a meeting in the IMU last week, the state Board of Regents approved an 18-month lease for the forest-enshrouded, 102-year-old house.

"The university has an insatiable need for temporary faculty housing," said Steve Parrott, the director of University Relations.

The UI president's house, 102 E. Church St., needs repairs, but there are no immediate plans to renovate the facility.

Such repairs are necessary and common for the president's house, which was built in 1908, said Rod Lehnertz, a Facilities Services Group architect who oversees the mansion. Typically done in the transition between presidents, the repairs might include improving or installing new carpeting, plumbing, or electrical wiring, he said.

"Securing a rental property for the president helps us a lot," Lehnertz said. "If the president was occupying the usual residence, we wouldn't do any large projects there."

In July 2001, the regents approved a $22,000 renovation project at the president's residence that included installing a service elevator for catering carts and constructing a back porch.

Rent for the McLean Street house is paid through a revolving university fund supplied with profits from renting some of the school's properties, said Doug True, the vice president for Finance. The McLean house is unoccupied.

Housing needs for faculty are handled on a case-by-case basis, said True, adding that

Co-op debates food giant's buyout plan

BY PHIL DAVIDSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

The nation's largest natural and organic food distributor wants to buy out the Midwest's leading supplier, in effect nearly erasing all debt that struggling New Pioneer Co-op has wrestled with for almost a year.

United Natural Foods Inc.'s offer to consolidate with Blooming Prairie Cooperative is a contentious issue facing the New Pioneer Cooperative Society Board of Directors. Representatives from Blooming Prairie, the store's current supplier, are warm to the idea, while New Pioneer directors are conflicted about straying from their member-owned philosophy.

The proposed merger would erase most of the "significant" debt the Co-op, which operates a store at 22 S. Van Buren St. and one in Coralville, owes to Blooming Prairie. New Pioneer Board President Derek Maurer would not elaborate on the store's debt.

"I'm torn between the principles of cooperation and financial relief," said board member Shelton Stromquist.

Blooming Prairie CFO Jim Mostek said joining United Natural Foods would ensure financial stability, adding that the company earned record third-quarter profits.

The natural-food giant controls distribution centers across the United States, primarily on the East and West Coasts. The merger would convert Blooming Prairie from a cooperative to a publicly traded corporation — the main problem New Pioneer directors have with the proposal. United Natural Foods currently trades at $18.57 a share on NASDAQ.

Vilsack fights back on budget

BY MIKE GLOVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — A damp shirt sticking to his back, Gov. Tom Vilsack dashes across the street seeking yet another hand to shake along the parade route.

"Good to see you working up a sweat," says his eventual target, a backer festooned with stickers and buttons advertising Vilsack's hopes for a second term.

Grimacing, Vilsack trots off down the street, dodging cheerleaders and floats as he takes his case to voters with little of the trappings of his office.

"I'll not be outworked," says

Vilsack, who is seeking his second term as governor in the November election.

The governor prides himself on being a grinder, betting that voters will reward a plainspoken, hardworking guy who works from dawn to dusk in search of votes. He faces no lack of challenges.

Vilsack has caught a precious few breaks over the past couple of years. He's presided over the state as an economic recession punched gaping holes in the state's budget, forcing him to furlough 10 percent of the state's work force and to make deep cuts in programs close to the hearts of fellow Democrats.

With a Republican majority in the Legislature and a well-financed GOP rival in Des Moines lawyer-lobbyist Doug

Gross mixes warm with scrappy

MASON CITY, Iowa — Doug Gross was so struck when former lawmaker Betty Jean Clark showed up at a campaign event, he immediately dispatched an aide to fetch a camera and take their picture.

"I worked with her way back when," said Gross, the Republican candidate in November's gubernatorial election. "And it's all to your credit that you did," added Clark, a leading moderate.

After a couple of decades in public life, there are few people whom Gross encounters that he doesn't have a connection with, but everything is different now as he steps out of the supporting role and seeks the state's top political job all on his own.

He's been a state worker who rose through the ranks to become chief of staff to Gov. Terry Branstad, earning a law degree along the way. When he left, Gross joined a large Des Moines law and lobbying firm and remained intimately involved with state government, rising to become a wealthy and influential managing partner.

A standard part of his stump speech lists his reluctance to leave the comfort of private life for the often brutal world of politics.

"When people first started asking me about running, I said no," says Gross. But a coalition of former allies such as Branstad, former state Republican Chairman Brian Kennedy,

Hung jury disappoints both sides

BY TONY ROBINSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

Antonio Foster's week-long trial concluded Sept. 20 with a hung jury, stacked 11-1 to convict the Coralville man of rape and burglary.

Johnson County Assistant Attorney Anne Lahey said the state will retry the case against Foster. The date for that trial will probably be set today when defense attorney Crystal Usher and Lahey meet with District Court administrators.

Usher and Lahey said the mistrial is disappointing.

"Now we are back to where we started," Usher said on Sept. 20.

They will present the case to another set of jurors with a different judge presiding.

District Court Judge Thomas Horan dismissed the jury of five men and seven women after they sent two notes saying they could not reach a unanimous decision — the first at 10 a.m. and the last coming about 2:30 p.m.

"It's frustrating that we will have to go through this whole process again," said the defendant's wife, Emily Foster, who attended the trial and took the stand in her husband's defense.

Foster, 30, is charged with second-degree sexual abuse and second-degree burglary after an alleged July 2001 incident at the Coralville Ramada Inn. He is accused of raping a hotel clerk and stealing $50 from her purse.

The Daily Iowan has chosen not to print the alleged victim's name.

The woman took the stand numerous times throughout the trial, stating that she had never met Foster before the alleged sexual assault. She testified that he raped her, stole her purse, and threatened to kill her several times with a knife or gun.

During his testimony, Foster contended that the 45-year-old hotel clerk persuaded him to help her with a "bogus robbery" at the Ramada Inn on July 16, 2001. He told the court that after arriving at the hotel,

Now we are back to where we started.

Crystal Usher, defense attorney

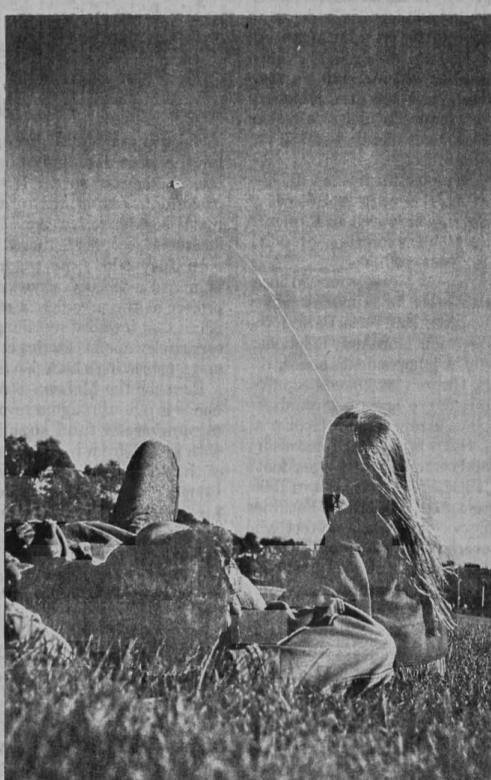

she changed her mind about how the money would be split and seduced him. When he tried to leave, she said she would tell the police he raped her if he didn't agree to the scheme, Foster said. He then fled the motel and went to his home state, Illinois.

Foster is also charged with a string of separate sex-related crimes before the alleged rape in July 2001 — facts kept from the jurors to keep deliberations unbiased. He is set to go to trial for those offenses on Oct. 7, which could be delayed pending the new trial date.

Low Iowa tax attracts other states' smokers

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — The state is seeing a financial windfall from an unexpected source — smokers.

Cigarette buyers from Illinois and Wisconsin are crossing state lines in increasingly large numbers to save money because of Iowa's lower cigarette tax, retailers say.

The number of Illinois residents crossing the Mississippi River to buy cigarettes in Davenport has been on the rise since July 1, when Illinois raised its tax by 40 cents to 98 cents a pack, Iowa tobacco retailers said last week.

Cigarettes sold in Iowa are taxed at 36 cents a pack, allowing an Illinois smoker to save $6.20 on each carton.

"People from Illinois say their governor is crazy, and they are not going to pay those prices over there," said Jane Hunt, the manager of the Cigarette Outlet in Davenport.

Dubuque retailers say they're seeing Illinois and Wisconsin residents flocking across the Mississippi River into Iowa to buy cigarettes.

Wisconsin cigarettes are taxed at 77 cents a pack after an 18-cents-per-pack increase took effect last fall.

A store clerk at Tobacco World in Dubuque said she's seeing a lot more business from out-of-state customers.

"Some of them will come and buy five and 10 cartons at a time," Stephanie Dupont said.

An influx of out-of-state smokers is also expected on the state's western border in such towns as Council Bluffs and Sioux City after Nebraska's cigarette tax increases to 64 cents a pack on Oct. 1. That's an increase of 30 cents a pack.

Southern Iowa retailers could also see an increase in out-of-state smoker business if Missouri voters pass an increase in their state tax from 17 cents to 72 cents a pack on Nov. 5.

Cigarette-tax collections had been declining in Iowa since 1998, but the rate of the drop appears to have slowed the past two months to less than 1 percent because of increased cross-border sales, said Dale Thede, the manager of the excise-tax program for the Iowa Department of Revenue and Finance.

Iowa is not likely to see an increase soon, lawmakers say.

Man accused of robbing store with butcher knife

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — A man armed with a butcher knife allegedly held up a discount store and fled with the cash before police caught him.

Michael Madigan, 44, of Cedar Rapids was charged with first-degree robbery and was being held Sunday at Linn County Jail on $50,000 bail.

Police said Madigan allegedly hit and choked a store employee the evening of Sept. 21 before riding off on a bicycle. The employee was not injured.

Store customers pursued Madigan. He was later arrested by Linn County and Hiawatha officers near the store.

Peggy De Jong of Cedar Rapids, was sitting in her car when Madigan walked out of the store, looking like any other customer.

De Jong said she was amazed someone would rob the store while many people were shopping there and many others were standing in the parking lot.

Pro-Israel group starts up

BY KAREN HEINSELMAN
THE DAILY IOWAN

Jonathan Chaika's mind is on the Middle East. His heart is with Israel.

The UI sophomore is combining action with his beliefs by rallying students to stand behind Israel in its conflict with the Palestinians. He is forming a new organization, Hawkeyes for Israel, to educate students about what it means to be pro-Israel because, he said, other campus organizations "ignore the Israeli experience."

"I didn't have a moment of epiphany to shape me on this path," Chaika said.

Chaika, who is from Rhode Island, grew tired of wishing for a pro-Israel group to appear on campus and decided to initiate one with the help of the Hillel Jewish Student Center. The group plans to hand out pamphlets, invite guest speakers, hold roundtable discussions, and write letters to the editor to further its cause, Chaika said.

Josh Howard, the student-program director at Hillel, said the pro-Israeli platform that Hillel and Hawkeyes for Israel embrace is "broad" and "leaves a lot of room" for contrasting ideas about specific Mideast territories and policies. Being pro-Israel means believing the country has a right to exist as a Jewish and democratic state within secure and recognizable borders, Howard said.

Chaika said his group welcomes debate and discussion from the opposition as long as it is "constructive and academic in nature."

Graduate student Osama Saba of the UI General Union of Palestinian Students said the university is an open forum, and Hawkeyes for Israel is free to express its views. Saba said he would encourage UI students to look beyond mainstream media for information about the Middle East because the amount of news provided is not sufficient for truly understanding the conflict. "People should ask questions

... from both sides to form an educated opinion," he said. "I hope that people do research."

Chaika said he is adamant about his pro-Israeli stance.

"I have gone back and forth," he said. "I was a lot less hard-core about my beliefs, once upon a time."

To formulate his opinions and validate his beliefs, Chaika began researching the Middle Eastern crisis last year. He deliberately sought out documents written by authors on opposing sides, and he encourages others to do the same.

"It's easy to pretend you know a lot," said Chaika about the Middle Eastern conflict. "It's easy to say they're both to blame ... but to really get at the root of the problem and policies that create the situation is ... opening a different can of worms."

Chaika said he expects up to 20 students to attend the group's first meeting on Oct. 1, which is open to all UI students.

Calif. defies Bush on stem cells

BY JENNIFER COLEMAN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Gov. Gray Davis signed legislation Sunday to allow embryonic stem-cell research in the state, a direct contradiction of federal limits on the research.

Davis has said the legislation is essential to keep California at the forefront of medical research. He was joined at the ceremony by actor Christopher Reeve, who has become a medical-research activist since he was paralyzed in a horse riding accident seven years ago.

The bill was opposed by the Roman Catholic church and anti-abortion groups, who say the research is tantamount to murder because it starts with the destruction of a human embryo.

Stem cells, which are found in human embryos, umbilical cords, and placentas, can divide and become any kind of cell in the body.

Last year, President Bush restricted federal funding for human embryonic stem-cell research to a select number of existing cell lines. Critics say many of those stem cells are in poor condition and are useless for research.

Sen. Deborah Ortiz wrote the bill, which states that California will explicitly allow embryonic stem-cell research and allows for both the destruction and donation of embryos.

The bill requires clinics that do in-vitro fertilization procedures to inform women they have the option of donating discarded embryos to research. It requires written consent for donating embryos for research and bans the sale of embryos.

Ortiz and supporters of her bill say the research could be valuable in curing or alleviating chronic and degenerative conditions, such as Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's, and spinal-cord injuries.

Reeve has said he has regained some feeling in his fingers and toes, and he urges further stem-cell research as a way to treat paralysis.

"Since stem cells were first isolated in 1998, the political debate has had a chilling affect on our scientists," Reeve said Sunday. "It is painful to contemplate what advances could have been made" if that research wasn't stifled.

The move will attract "the best and the brightest" researchers to California, said Larry Goldstein, a professor at University of California-San Diego, and it would halt the migration of stem-cell scientists to other countries where the research is permitted.

Congo horror not over

BY RODRIQUE NGOWI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KINDU, Congo — When a notorious rebel commander showed up leading a crackdown on pro-government tribal fighters in eastern Congo, it ended in the cold-blooded murder of more than 50 civilians.

Coming a month after Congo and neighboring Rwanda signed a peace deal, the Aug. 30 blood-bath is a sign that, for many people in and around this vast Central African country, their four years of horror are far from over.

Signs of trouble appeared last month when the bodies of dozens of Rwandan-backed rebels floated downstream past this Congo River port in the Maniema province.

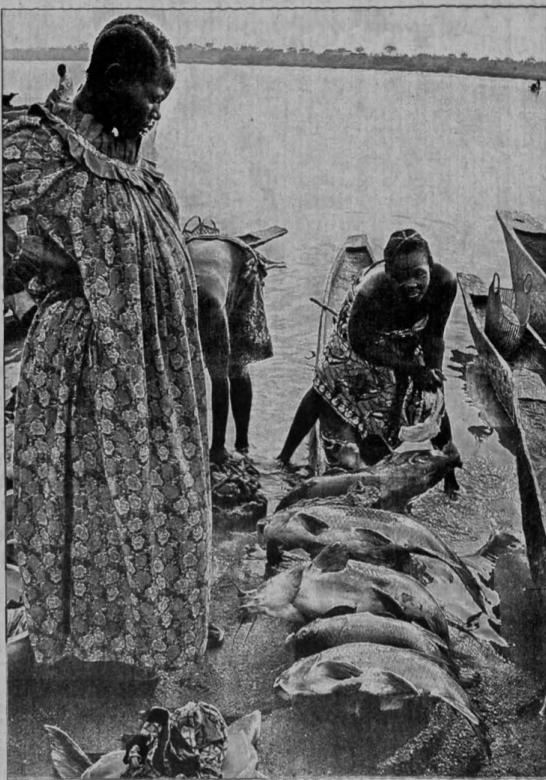

They were victims of ambushes by Mayi Mayi tribal fighters in Maniema, whose history is written in the blood of cannibalism, the hunt for slaves and elephant ivory, and tribal wars.

Then 14,000 people displaced by the fighting flooded into Kindu, whispering how rebel troops had shot and killed at least 56 civilians on a large island in the river on the morning of Aug. 30 after tying their hands behind their backs and grilling them for information about the Mayi Mayi.

Some 200 men are missing after they were seized by rebel troops led by Gabriel Amisi, the deputy chief of staff for the army of the Rwandan-backed Congolese Rally for Democracy, human-rights activists said.

Amisi, known by his nom de guerre Tango 4, is also implicated in the massacre of 180 people in Kisangani, a port farther downriver, during a May 14 uprising and subsequent rebel reprisals.

"I was in a group of 58 men led to the center of Nyonga Island for execution on Aug.

30," a trembling survivor said.

He said that after capturing the island from the Mayi Mayi, the rebels divided their captives into groups of five, tied their hands behind their backs, and led them away from the women and children.

The rebels first interrogated the men, aged from 15 to 60, on the whereabouts of the elusive tribal fighters, then lined them up in groups and shot them dead, said the father of two.

When he saw the bodies of those already shot, he fainted just as the executioners opened fire. A bullet hit his thumb, and the other four in his group fell on top of him, dead, he said.

He said he hid for two days before crossing the river to Kindu.

NATION BRIEF

Bush administration proposes sharp cuts in Medicare

NEW YORK (AP) — Medicare payments allocated to hospitals to cover many drugs and outpatient medical procedures would be reduced sharply under a Bush administration proposal, a newspaper reported Sunday.

The cuts would affect a wide range of drugs, including those used to treat cancer and arthritis, the New York Times said. It also would reduce payments used to cover medical procedures ranging from the implantation of battery-operated pacemakers to routine breast biopsies, it said.

Technology enhancements have allowed many hospitals to increase the number of outpatient services that they provide. There were more than 110 million Medicare claims for outpatient services filed by hospitals last year, the Times said.

But the government is expected to target some of these same services in its attempt to balance the budget. Federal health officials said Medicare had been overcharged for many outpatient services, the Times said.

Hospitals receive a fixed amount of money from Medicare for each outpatient service they offer. The services are grouped together by categories, and a standard payment is set for each category.

Under the proposal, the payment for a unit of red blood cells for an outpatient would be cut from $137 to $83, a 39 percent decrease. The government would cut its payment for Remicade, used to treat rheumatoid arthritis, by 39 percent.

Medicare would reduce "by 67 percent its payments for implanting infusion pumps, which deliver medication for severe pain."

"Hospitals will not be able to continue providing chemotherapy at the proposed rates," said Dr. Edward Braud of Springfield, Ill., the president of the Association of Community Cancer Centers, whose members treat more than half the nation's cancer patients. "Patients will have less access to care."

Bush mandate to be narrow, officials say

BY RON KAMPEAS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Lawmakers predicted Sunday that President Bush's request for a mandate to restore regional security in the Mideast would be scaled down to address just Iraq, allowing congressional authorization to take on Saddam Hussein.

There were also bipartisan pleas for Israeli restraint in the face of Iraqi provocation, although members of Congress said they would understand if Israel felt the need to respond to attacks.

The White House has proposed a resolution that would authorize the president "to use all means that he determines to be appropriate, including force, in order to defend the national-security interests of the United States against the threat posed by Iraq and restore international peace and security in the region."

"It's much too broad; there's no limit at all on presidential powers," said Sen. Carl Levin, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"There need to be some changes ... it's not even limited to Iraq," Levin, D-Mich., said on "Fox News Sunday."

Bush wants the U.N. Security Council to enforce bans on weapons of mass destruction against Iraq. The United States believes Iraq is stockpiling deadly chemical and biological weapons and is rebuilding its nuclear weapons program.

Sen. Joe Biden, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said keeping "region" in would set too broad a precedent.

"I predict that won't be the language," he told CNN's "Late Edition," adding that the White House was amenable to change.

"They've made it clear to me that they understand they want to talk about it ... We can clean this up in a way that we don't set a precedent for future presidents," said Biden, D-Del.

Some Republicans sympathized with the need to contain the language. "These are very, very important definitions, because it will guide the president and this nation probably into war," Sen. Chuck Hagel, R-Neb., said on ABC's "This Week."

Even those comfortable with the proposed language said they would accommodate change to speed it through. The White House wants the legislation to pass before Congress recesses before elections Nov. 5.

"We can correct that; I don't think that's fatal to the heart of the resolution," said Rep. Henry Hyde, the chairman of the House International Relations committee.

Still, Hyde, R-Ill., called the objections "specious" and said the proposed resolution was standard.

Hagel and Sen. John Kyl, R-Ariz., predicted that the resolution would easily pass before the elections, but Biden warned that Bush needed to work harder to explain his plans.

"The American people are grown up," he said. "You tell them what we need to do, tell them the threat, and they will back the president. But we haven't told them all of the story yet."

He and Levin also urged

Bush to work closely with the Security Council, saying it would bolster domestic backing for any war.

"There is a degree of confidence that increases in direct proportion to the notion that we are not going to be going alone with this," Biden said.

Levin said the Iraqi president was more likely to fold before joint action than if he were threatened by the United States alone. "I want him to look down the barrel of a gun with the world behind it."

Oceans are in trouble, panel says

BY JOHN HEILPRIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Six months before the first man landed on the moon, a presidential commission urged Congress to use more "fully and wisely" a different sort of vastness, one teeming with life but just as mysterious and far closer to home — the world's oceans.

More than three decades later, a second presidential commission, led by a retired admiral who headed the Energy Department in the first Bush administration, says the urgency is even greater than when the Eagle landed.

"The oceans are in trouble; the coasts are in trouble; our marine resources are in trouble. These are not challenges we can sweep aside," said James Watkins, sounding more like a lifelong environmentalist than a former chief of naval operations and national-security expert.

Since the last commission's report in early 1969, pressures have increased on coastal areas that are home to half the nation's population. Ocean resources once thought to be boundless are now recognized as having limits.

Approximately 40,000 acres of coastal wetlands providing essential spawning, feeding, and nursery areas for three-fourths of U.S. commercial fish catches are disappearing each year, says the new U.S. Commission on Ocean Policy, now halfway through an 18-month study.

Of the fully assessed U.S. fish stocks, 40 percent are depleted or are being overfished, the commission says in an interim report to be released this week. Also, 12 billion tons of ballast water from ships are spreading invasive alien species to new locales around world.

The panel points to a need for consolidating the federal and state governments' myriad and often conflicting policies affecting oceans.

"Individuals who work and live on the water, from fishers to corporations, face a Byzantine patchwork of federal and state authorities and regulations," the commission said. It cited more than 140 federal ocean-related laws administered by nearly 20 different agencies and commissions.

"We're already assuming that there has to be a national ocean-policy coordinating body," Watkins said.

The commission found that: Ocean pollution, largely from farmland and urban runoff, and human populations are increasing so much near shorelines that proper coastal management is overwhelmed.

Fish stocks continue to be depleted, and the advice of scientists too often is ignored at the expense of fisheries and the long-term sustainability of the fishing industry. There may be a need, for example, to more closely regulate aquaculture, the fish-farming industry.

Not enough study has been given to the interaction between oceans and climate change, particularly in the Arctic Ocean.

UI rents backup house in case of renovations basis, said True, adding that he learned of the McLean Street rental agreement a month ago.

"We want to make sure we can accommodate all faculty that come here," he said.

The lease on the house, which runs from Oct. 1, 2003, until March 31, 2004, was one of four approved for the university at the regents' Sept. 19 meeting. Other properties included 6,000 square feet of climate-controlled warehouse space in North Liberty, which the university will use to store contents from the Old Capitol during its restoration, and 286 square feet at the Oakdale Research Park to be used for developing Internet and software projects for health-care facilities.

Appraised at $404,230, the 3,136-square-foot single-family home on McLean was sold to broker associate Patrick Moreland for $630,000, according to records from the Iowa City assessor's office. Moreland said he was unable to comment beyond general public information about the home.

Most of the area's residents are affiliated with the university, said neighbor Craig Syrop, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology. UI interim President Sandy Boyd lives a few blocks away on River Street.

"It's a nice place to live," Syrop said. "If they stick the president in a home away from home, they aren't going to put him in a ram-bunctious neighborhood."

Food giant may buy out Blooming Prairie

CO-OP

"[United Natural Foods] had made it clear that it will put a distribution center in the Midwest if this transaction does not go through," Mostek told a reluctant board of directors.

Blooming Prairie supplies products to natural-food stores, traditional grocery stores, buying clubs, and restaurants from locations in Iowa City and Minnesota. Sixty percent of Blooming Prairie's members must vote in favor of the sale in order for the proposal to go through; the seven members of the New Pioneer board get a portion of those votes. Board members would not say how they plan to cast their ballots.

Results of the vote will be unveiled Saturday.

In accordance with the acquisition, $260,000 would be given to share among the 10 members of the Blooming Prairie Board of Directors. In addition, $2.2 million would be divided among the 300 employees of Blooming Prairie.

Mostek said he would support the merger even in the absence of a payout.

"This is a good move in terms of securing distribution for the future," he said.

The Co-op netted a loss of more than $250,000 in fiscal year 2001. The store became financially troubled after debuting its Coralville location to a lukewarm reception three months behind schedule. The location lost $26,701 from July to August 2002, said New Pioneer Treasurer Peter Fisher. The store was forced to implement furloughs and reduce inventory earlier this year to cope with budget problems.

"It looks like we're going to think about this a little bit more," Maurer said.

Israeli siege of Arafat continues there were armed Palestinians in the crowds. A fifth Palestinian, a teenager, was shot and killed in Nablus, in the northern West Bank. The army said it was checking the details of the fifth death.

Sunday night, hundreds of Palestinian youths were gathering to protest in Ramallah's Manara Square, but the Israeli military this time appeared to be making no attempt to disperse the crowd, as it has in the past.

The Palestinian demonstrations, in which people poured into the streets after being called by loudspeakers from mosques, appeared to take Israel by surprise. "I think this goes deep for Palestinians, whether they are big fans of Arafat or are angry at him," said Raji Sourani, a Palestinian human-rights lawyer in Gaza City. "He is the elected president, and he is being humiliated."

The Israeli demolition of Arafat's compound, known as the Muqata, also drew criticism Sunday from the United States and Britain. "Israeli actions in and around the Muqata are not helpful in reducing terrorist violence or promoting Palestinian reforms," White House spokeswoman Jeanie Mamo said in Washington.

Recovery around the corner, Vilsack says

Gross, Vilsack has faced a daily barrage of attacks.

"I appreciate your dreams, because I've been living a nightmare for the last couple of years," Vilsack told a picnic crowd in Cedar Rapids. "It hasn't been easy."

The governor faces a delicate balancing act. Necessary budget cuts have left many of his core constituencies nervous. He seeks to reassure them with a personal touch and a reminder that they'd fare much worse with Gross at the helm.

Polls have shown Vilsack and Gross locked in a tight and competitive race, with neither building much of an edge. That's not good news for an incumbent governor, because conventional wisdom generally holds that undecided voters break at the last moment for the challenger.

But Vilsack says he's only begun to make his case and he has scheduled a backbreaking wave of appearances over the next month.

In his pitch, Vilsack acknowledges the tough times the state has faced but says it has weathered the worst of the storm and emerged in a lot better shape than most.

Taxes were cut, and not raised, and such key services as education and health care were protected from the worst of the cutting, the governor says.

"We're on the way back," he says. "The economy is starting to turn around slowly. We're in better shape than most."

Sipping a beer from a plastic cup and munching on a hot dog, Vilsack tells voter after voter that it isn't about him, and he's making the case with increasing fire and passion.

"Your hopes and your dreams, that's what's really on the ballot," Vilsack shouts to labor backers in Cedar Rapids. "Never has there been an election where the contrasts have been sharper."

"I'm hearing some fire up there," says an admiring Don Zeller, a local Democratic powerhouse in Eastern Iowa.

"I've kept my word, even in the most difficult of economic times," he tells voters. "This has been a long and very tough time."

Vilsack says he's basing this year's campaign on the lessons he learned in the last election, when he became the state's first Democratic governor in 30 years.

Gross blasts handling of economic troubles

GROSS

former Gov. Robert Ray, and Des Moines businessman Marvin Pomerantz talked him into making the leap.

"They taught me well," says Gross. "These are good public servants who taught me well. I think I have an obligation to give back."

While Gross has no shortage of allies who are powerful and well-connected, he's making his first run for public office and needs to sell himself to rank-and-file voters.

Donning protective glasses, Gross bounds through a couple of factories in Garner, searching out every hand to shake. It's the classic hand-on-the-shoulder political handshake, with eye contact and a word for all.

"I can't do it without you," Gross tells one.

"Some of this may not be gubernatorial," Gross says in an aside as he dashes around the factory.

"You gonna be better than the one we got now?" asks a tow-motor operator.

"I'll give it my best shot," says Gross. "Every individual voter makes a difference. We have all these wonderful people and wonderful resources."

But there's a note of urgency in Gross' folksy approach and an intensity that's marked a career close to the levers of power. When he was Branstad's chief of staff, he says, he essentially ran the state on a daily basis for a chief executive more interested in the big picture. He describes Branstad as a chairman of the board and himself as chief executive officer.

Gov. Tom Vilsack's election in 1998 made him the state's first Democratic governor in 30 years, rocking the state's Republican establishment. As someone who understands power, Gross radiates the intensity of someone trying to get it back.

When he talks to the movers and shakers, that intensity rises to the surface and folksiness falls aside.

"This is as an important an election as we've had in half a century," Gross told a couple dozen activists who showed up for the grand opening of a county campaign office. "We've learned the hard way we need to do everything we can to control that office. We Republicans need to approach this election with that kind of intensity."

NATION BRIEF

'Beauty and the brains' wins crown

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — For years, the people behind Miss America have been telling the world there's more to her than a rhinestone crown and a pretty smile. In Miss America 2003, Erika Harold of Urbana, Ill., they have a brainy beauty who proves it. Harold, a 22-year-old Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Illinois, was to enroll this fall at Harvard law school but put it off so she could compete in the Miss America Pageant. Her performance in a pop quiz given to the five finalists, in which she correctly answered 10 of 16 multiple-choice questions about contemporary culture and American history, and her soaring aria in the talent competition helped seal her victory Sept. 21.

On the quiz, she didn't know the name of the pilot who made the first solo trans-Atlantic crossing in 1927 (Charles Lindbergh) or the name of the first American in space (Alan Shepard), but she knew that the late Ted Williams was the baseball Hall of Famer whose heirs were fighting over whether to freeze his body. "You have a Miss America who absolutely personifies what this program is about and where we're going," said Interim CEO George Bauer. "The walk is matching the talk." Harold said she plans to promote anti-violence and anti-bullying programs during her yearlong reign. She chose the cause because of personal experience: As a ninth grader, she was bullied and harassed, both racially and sexually, and had to change schools to escape it, she said. But some bullied youngsters react instead with violence, Harold said.

Supporters of German Chancellor Gerhard Schröder and his Social Democratic Party react after hearing the first projected results for the German federal elections in Berlin on Sunday.

Schröder squeaks by

BY CAROL J. WILLIAMS AND JEFFREY FLEISHMAN
 LOS ANGELES TIMES

BERLIN — Chancellor Gerhard Schröder appeared to hang on to the German leadership by the slimmest of margins in a cliffhanger election Sunday, after rising in voters' esteem at the campaign's 11th hour for his steadfast refusal to commit German troops to a war against Iraq.

Overcoming his failure to reform the shackled economy or put more Germans back to work, Schröder weathered accusations of anti-Americanism as he tapped into his countrymen's wellspring of resentment about what is seen as U.S. bullying and Washington's desire to topple Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The near photo finish between Schröder's Social Democrats and their conservative opponents from the Christian Social Union, led by Bavarian Gov. Edmund Stoiber, reflected the deep divisions in German society over both domestic and foreign policy. Stoiber had accused the incumbent chancellor of damaging cherished ties with U.S. allies and instilling fear among Germans.

In the closest election result in modern German history, the conservatives gained ground on the incumbents by making the 10 percent jobless rate and a stagnant economy the main issues, while Schröder pulled up in the last leg by promoting a more independent and self-assured foreign policy for this NATO nation.

Preliminary official results were still being tabulated early today, but two independently drafted television projections both showed Schröder's party and his allies in the Greens with approximately 1 percentage point more than the conservatives and their pro-business Free Democrat allies.

A beaming Schröder waited until well after midnight to appear before supporters in what served as a turn in the winner's circle. But mindful of the U.S. post-election fiasco two years ago, he refrained from declaring a categorical victory. In an anti-climactic conclusion to a hard-fought campaign, he was accompanied by his Foreign Minister, Joschka Fischer of the Green Party, who was hoarse from weeks of frantic campaigning.

"A majority is a majority, and if we have it, we will use it," Schröder said, alluding to the narrowness of his coalition's lead. The Social Democrats and Stoiber's faction polled roughly 38.5 percent each, with the Greens' projected 8.6 percent giving the incumbents the edge over the conservatives and the Free Democrats, who polled a disappointing 7.4 percent.

Stoiber, who had earlier leapt on exit-poll projections to proclaim his party the winner, conceded at 1 a.m. today (6 p.m. CDT Sunday) that his opponents appeared to have clung to a majority. But he predicted that the government would be in crisis "inside of a year" and claimed a "strategic victory" for his side in erasing the nearly 6-percentage-point lag his party suffered behind the Social Democrats in 1998.

Under Germany's complicated election system, voters choose parties rather than an individual chancellor candidate, leaving the appointment of a government leader up to a majority coalition. While neither pair of allied parties posted an outright majority, the failure of the former Communists to clear a 5 percent threshold to take a share of the proportional vote meant the seats would be redistributed to give the incumbent coalition an estimated 305 to the opposition's 294. The ex-Communists, the Party of Democratic Socialism, won only two directly elected seats in what will be a 601-member Parliament.

Quit your bellyachin'

To my fellow college students, I ask one favor of you: STOP WHINING! Yes, tuition at the three state universities is slated to go up another 17.6 percent next year, and no amount of complaining will lower that figure. It hasn't in years past, so why should it start now?

I admit, I'm a senior, so next year's hike won't affect me, but last year's 19 percent increase didn't turn me into a crybaby like it did the UISG president and vice president. My tuition has increased 38 percent since my freshman year, and in my opinion, my education was worth every penny of it. I know that when I graduate, my salary will more than compensate for the money spent at the UI when compared with the chicken feed a lot of high-school graduates are paid to flip burgers.

Students complain that the Iowa Legislature should increase its contribution to the Big Three, but give me one good reason why it should. First of all, the votes of students weren't the ones that put state legislators into office. Second, why should Mr. and Ms. Iowa Taxpayer help finance the education of out-of-staters and resident Iowans who plan on fleeing the state upon graduating? (I fall into the second category.)

There is no such thing as a free lunch, or a free college education for that matter, and it's time that we teenage to 20-somethings quit crying like the spoiled brats we have become. We are the main beneficiaries of our education, so why shouldn't we pick up the check? And considering how low tuition at the UI is compared with other universities across the Midwest and the country, it's still a bargain even with next year's 17.6 percent increase.

So go ahead and arrange your protests on the Pentacrest and scream at the top of your lungs that higher tuition is unacceptable. When your throat hurts and your voice is hoarse, I'll be right there pitying you, because all of that time you spend yelling at a Board of Regents that isn't listening could have been spent in the classes you're paying to attend.

Sean Iske
UI student

Getting enough for your money?

As the entire state is aware, budget cuts and tuition increases are a hot topics. With rising tuition come hopes to at least maintain standards of learning. However, at the UI College of Nursing, the quality of education is declining.

Specifically, a required pathophysiology class, encompassing the study of all human organ systems, has seen a drastic change. This course is only offered in the fall, and without warning, the format of the class has been changed to an audio-only, Web-based course. In addition, this course is required to continue in the nursing program, and for those who need both auditory and visual modes of learning, there is no other choice.

The nursing school has defended itself by stating that Web-based learning is the wave of the future and is therefore the first step into the 21st century. But one has to ask, if the same class was offered with a live teacher and visual aids last year, are we not moving backward if students are left sitting in front of the computer listening — not watching or interacting — but listening to the previous year's lecture on the Internet? This is a huge step in the opposite direction and is equivalent to offering college courses via the radio. If the UI advertised that classes were now only being given on the radio, who would pay tuition to attend? So why should nursing students be paying full tuition for a pathophysiology course in which they can only hear the voice of their teacher?

As I strive to vocalize my grievance to the school administration, by contacting the course instructor and deans of the college, my peers and I continue to struggle through the current semester. This situation needs to be rectified immediately.

The nursing school should want us to successfully complete the program, and there is still time to make that happen.

Has anyone seen my teacher?

IMU renovations reach into the wrong pockets for funds

When are university and state officials going to realize that students do not have bottomless pockets? All across the university, departments are scrambling to scrimp, and the students are still asked to fork over more and more money every semester.

This time around, university officials want students to pay a $29 IMU renovation fee. The money will supposedly go toward making the building more student-friendly. New space is to be added for student gatherings, small concerts and plays, and even dining areas overlooking the Iowa River. However, construction of these new features will not be completed for at least a few years.

Therefore, many juniors and seniors paying the new fee would never get to experience the payoff. During a time when tuition is slated for another astronomical increase, it is truly unfair to ask students to pay extra for something they probably will not even see.

The administration based its renovation decisions on a student survey conducted by a consulting firm in 1998. According to the survey, a majority of students were willing to pay a little extra for IMU renovations. Of course, 1998 was a different era. The stock market was booming, unemployment was virtually nonexistent, and yearly tuition increases nearly matched inflation. Since the time of the survey, tuition has skyrocketed, and the economy has tanked. Student morale at the UI has also drooped as students have watched class sizes climb right along side their U-bills.

A different survey, conducted by the UI Student Government in 2000, came up nearly opposite results. According to the UISG survey, students were more concerned with saving money than with IMU renovations. University officials were quick to denounce the survey as unscientific. However, UISG has a much better window to student opinion than an outside consulting firm, and the organization receives no compensation for its work.

While renovations to the IMU would be nice, it is simply the wrong time to propose such improvements. Only during times of economic prosperity should officials look to improve the aesthetic aspects of the university. When budgets are tight and students are working 40 hours a week in addition to taking out huge loans, the university should do its part and ease the burden as much as possible. Academic improvements should still be considered, but cosmetic changes should be deferred until the economy eases up on students and their families.

Bush wants to play cowboy? Let's play cowboy. He's gonna turn us into a rogue state, the least we can do is show him a little bit of rogue citizenry.

Now, I don't think our American president is an evil man; he just needs a good roughin' up. He's forgotten what it's like to be challenged. I don't blame him, really. I imagine it's awful hard to act and react as a responsible individual in this world when you're carrying the weight of a nuclear arsenal and a Geriatric Old Party on your back. It's enough to make a man downright doozy. If he's falling asleep at the wheel, though, I do believe it is our obligation as rogue citizens to box those big old ears from the back seat and get that man awake.

In related news, I had a lucid dream last night. It was the first of my life, and it made me think of William James. James, you know, the psychologist/philosopher/political pragmatist/most generally Man of the Mind who, in 1870 — after years of deep and debilitating depression — famously declared, "My first act of free will shall be to believe in free will."

Ah, 1870. Now those were the days. That was a time when men were men ... unless of course they were women.

But the suffragette movement, awwwww, those suffragettes. They fixed that up. They got the vote out. Those were better times. What I wouldn't give to have lived in those times of evolution and revolution.

It makes me nostalgic for the '60s. O! Those Sixties! With its freedom and its rights of civility and its rock and their roll! Those people were better people. The country has lost its way. Lo! All hope is gone! I shall retire to the tower of ivory ramparts and shun these ugly young who've got themselves no vigor. Where have all the Ginsbergs gone?

Or if I thought those Ronnie years were the years of goodness trickling down through the American stream, well, in that case: O! Those Eighties! With its free market and its wars of cold and its rock-solid values and their rolling of the red carpet. Those people were better oligarchs. The invisible hand has lost its way. Lo! All hope is bought up! I shall retire to the grounds of gentile gardens and scorn these forlorn young who've got themselves no vim. Where have all the cowboys gone?

Whoa, whoa, whoa! O! Lo! Slow it down, that nostalgia flow! There is no History passing whose train we are not on ourselves.

Which is to say, all aboard! Your cowboys are right here and what's more than James'

JESSE ELLIOTT

Gang of 19th-century Metaphysicians is that now there're cowgirls, too. (We knew they were smarter all along, and it worked for a time to hold 'em by force, but the greater Forces of Evolution, the Vote of Creation, will not have that no more, and so speaking of which, that overcoming force ...)

Do you feel that? Do you feel that thing in the air? That thing happening? Life happening?

No? Well, then, friend, you've got to make yourself feel it. You've got to pull a James and will your will into existence, because life is there, which is to say your life is here, ripe, and unlike any bursting-with-juice life that History's ever bit into before.

It's Iowa City this year, and it's not just any old year, and it's not just any old town, I don't care what they try to tell you. You've just got to get hooked up. You've got to start a new business linking people through the air with Karsten, write great searching treatises on Faulkner with Gina, build Human-Powered Submarines with Forrest and the crew, catch Lucky down at Gabe's on his galloping guitar.

And these people listed here are only the people I know (and only a sampling few), and I know you know many more, and I'd like to get to know those many more. I'd like to get to you, and I'd like for you to get to me. Let's make our own accord, to forget the Force for a fortnight or two and to overcome by Art, Science, Evolution, Creation. Let's overcome by Business. Local business. Good business. Healthy competition. Co-operation on the Scene. Politics. Joy. A heartfelt proposition or two of our own: the New Feel Program.

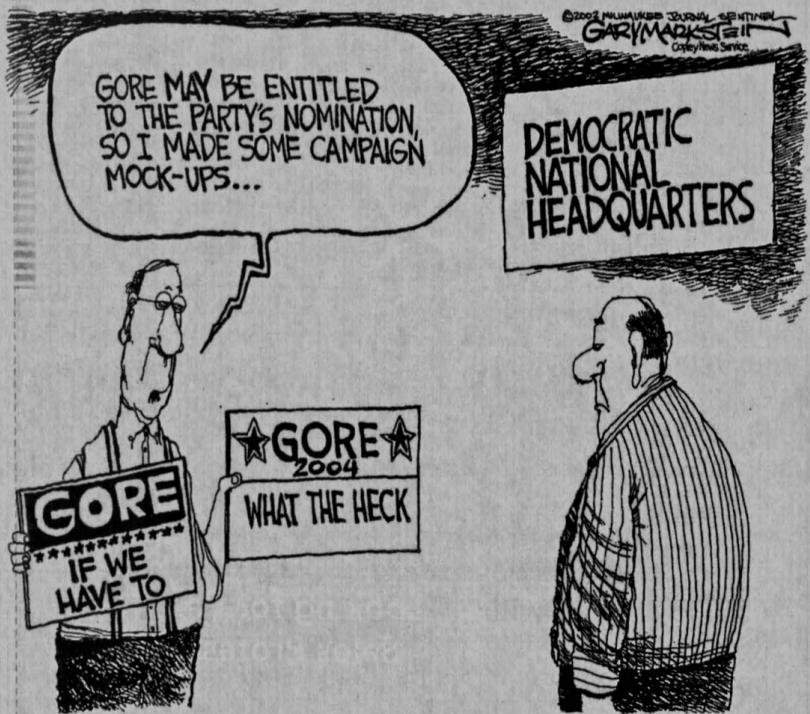

You want History, too? Fine. That's good. You should. You should want every human overcoming every obstacle, past, present, and future. But don't let your dead sit around. Don't put them up on rotting pedestals. Drag them out of coffins with quotes and fights worth fighting. But never forget you.

I see you in your room. I was there last night in your deep depression with you. James and I both, actually. It was rough, but when we woke this morning we decided it was time to pull ourselves up by the bootstraps.

There's a new will on the scene. And where there's a will, there's a way. There's a new gang in town.

And it's all yours. These are the best of times, these are the Bushiest of times. But above all, these are your circumstances to overcome. Welcome to your lucid dream. Which is to say: All aboard! We ride at dawn.

In towns all across America, little Mom and Pop stores are giving way to the Wal-Mart and Kmart monstrosities. Drive-in movies have been torn down, and in their ashes have been built megaplexes in which hundreds of movies are shown every hour on the hour. Small-town America has been lost to the ever-expanding suburban landscape.

One of the biggest casualties of the loss of the family business has been the neighborhood barbershop. Barbers used to be the town doctors, counselors, fashion experts, and friends. The barbershop was a meeting place for a community to come and talk about the problems of the world while being shaved, shined, and sheered by an expert craftsman.

The new movie BarberShop captures the unique place that barbershops hold in the American psyche with a humor, poignancy, and banter that makes this one of the most enjoyable films of the season.

On Chicago's South Side, Calvin (Ice Cube) is facing a conundrum. For the past two years, he has been saddled with the task of running his deceased father's barbershop. All Calvin really wants to do is to turn the basement of his house into a recording studio where a mix of platinum albums and viable stars could give him the millions of dollars that he needs in order to give his wife the world.

On a whim, Calvin sells the barbershop for $20,000 to a loan shark named Lester (Keith David), who, although promising to keep the name of the barbershop on the front window, decides to turn Calvin's Barbershop into a gentleman's club.

The news of the selling of the barbershop shocks the patrons and the barbers of the shop to the core. Calvin is soon convinced that he made a mistake in selling the shop, but when he tries to buy his shop back, Lester has raised the price to $40,000. Calvin has until the end of the day in order to get the rest of the money and save his shop.

The setting of the movie in a barbershop allows for an eclectic mix of characters who represent a wide range of social and political issues. There's Jimmy (Sean Patrick Thomas), a college kid who is working part time at the barbershop while he goes to school; Ricky (Michael Ealy), a two-time felon who knows that third strike against him would bring with it life imprisonment; and Isaac (Troy Garrity), a white barber who claims that he is more black than many of the people who come into the shop. There's Terri (Eve), who continuously takes back her cheating boyfriend, and Dinka (Leonard Earl Howze), an East African poet who longs for Terri's affection. This mix of characters is so fresh and vigorous, and their conversations so stimulating, that one wishes the camera could stay in the barbershop for hours just to hear what they will say next.

But every circus needs its ringleader. The ringleader in Calvin's Barbershop is old Eddie, a barber from a different time who, although he never seems to have anyone sitting in his chair, still shows up every day to discuss his seemingly insane but well-reasoned views on the state of the world. Eddie is played to perfection by one of the original kings of comedy, Cedric the Entertainer.

Cedric's precise capturing of his character is so good that one would think he is a well-seasoned film star instead of a relative rookie to the world of cinema. Standup comics planning to make the jump from bars to movie houses should take a page out of Cedric's book. Instead of playing a one-dimensional lead whose entire existence revolves around the re-telling of one joke, he plays a supporting role and shines in the ability to become a character actor.

But this film does have its problems. A duo of bumbling fools trying to steal an ATM machine are too ludicrous to actually be seen as funny, and Lester the loan shark seems to have come right out of the celluloid of a Shaft film.

The script sometimes also relies on sight gags in order to procure laughs, which fall (sometimes embarrassingly) flat. These problems, however, are few and are forgotten as soon as the movie's attention turns back to the barbershop.

BarberShop works as both a comedy and as a connection with America's past. Although family-run businesses are finding it difficult, if not impossible, to compete against the larger conglomerates, BarberShop stands as a testament for the little guys. It teaches that while it is important to be successful in this world, it is more important to stay true to your roots and to your friends. We all need to find an opportunity to smile and laugh together, and this movie gives us a chance to do so.

Laughing together makes the world just a bit smaller, and in this case, about the size of a barbershop in Chicago's South Side.

Happy Valley trails

After lopsided victory, Hawkeyes focus on game this weekend at Penn State

BY DONOVAN BURBA
 THE DAILY IOWAN

In the aftermath of Iowa's 48-7 drubbing of Utah State on Sept. 21, the talk in the locker room was not about the game that had just ended.

Instead, the Hawkeyes were already focused on next week's battle in Happy Valley, Pa., against No. 12 Penn State, and the rest of the impending Big Ten season.

"We're pleased to get the victory," said Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz on Sept. 21. "Now, we get to move forward to the Big Ten, and I think all of our guys are looking forward to that."

Unfortunately for Ferentz and his team, Penn State is the hottest team in the conference right now. The Nittany Lions followed up a 40-7 whitewashing of Nebraska on Sept. 14 with another convincing win on Sept. 21, defeating Louisiana Tech, 49-17.

Playing in Happy Valley in front of more than 100,000 Nittany Lions fans won't make Iowa's job any easier, but such a prospect doesn't faze some veteran Hawkeyes.

"It's a pretty good experience to go into Happy Valley, when you get all those fans screaming," said Iowa defensive tackle Colin Cole. "We're going to come out knowing they're one of the Big Ten elites, and we just have to achieve our goal of being the Big Ten champs."

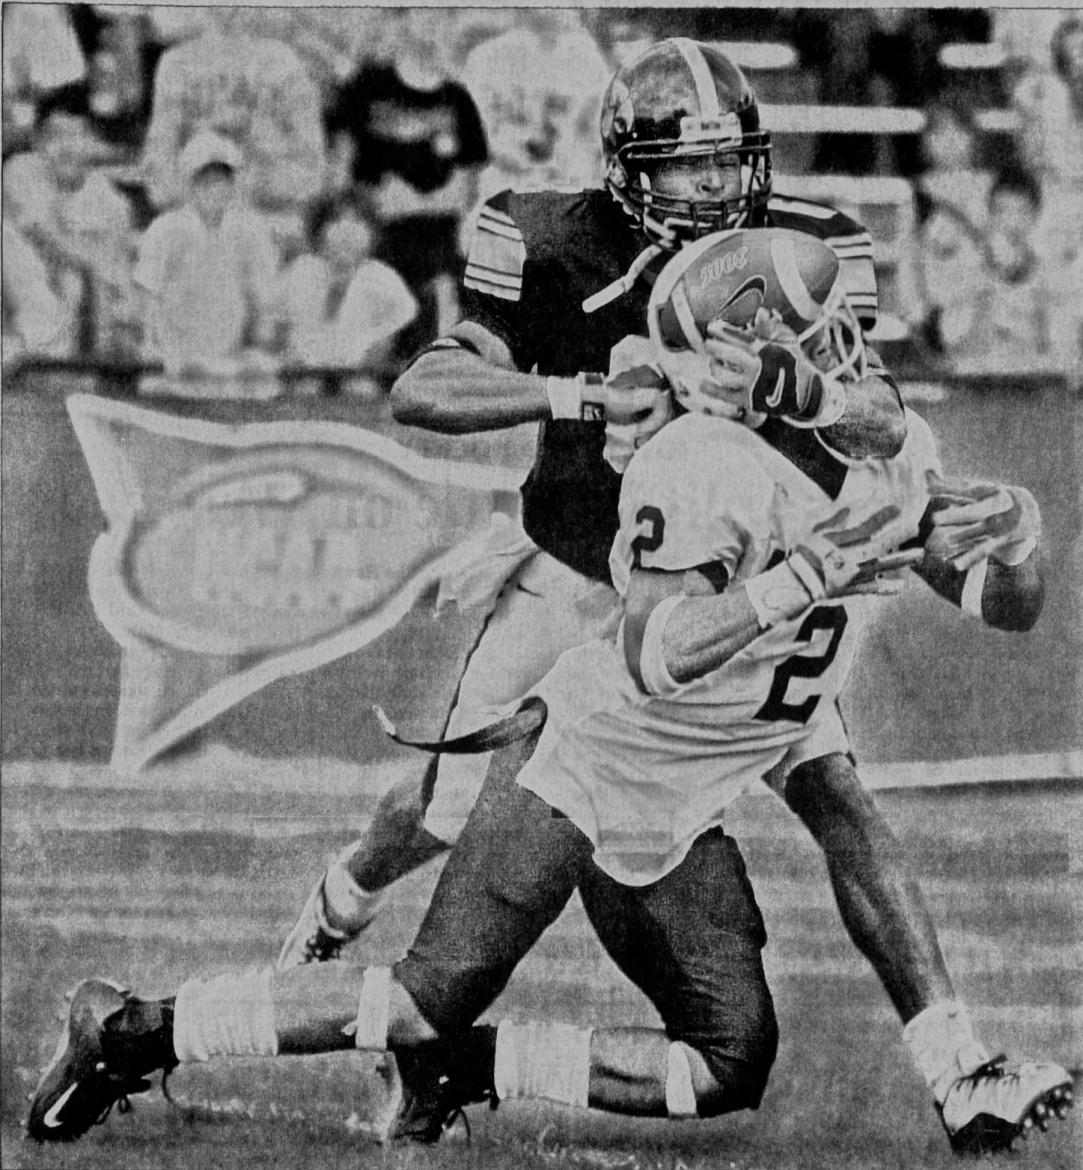

A win at Happy Valley wouldn't get Iowa out of the woods yet, though. The schedule is as harsh to the Hawkeyes this year as it was kind to them the last time around.

On Oct. 26, Ferentz takes his team to Ann Arbor, Mich., to play in front of another 100,000-plus hostile fans at the Big House. The season finale is another tough road match, against Minnesota in the hellish Metrodome.

As always, there's a silver lining to this cloud. Just as it was last season, the Big Ten race is wide open, and although Iowa is not considered to be one of the conference's elite teams, it could benefit from the weaknesses of other schools.

Both Michigan and Ohio State, considered to be the primary competitors for the league title, escaped with close victories over weak opponents Sept. 21. Other traditional contenders, such as Michigan State and Wisconsin, are also vulnerable. If the top teams beat each other, the door could open for the Hawkeyes.

"[The Big Ten] is really anybody's race," Ferentz said. "It's awfully early even to worry too much about that, but it's encouraging that week in and week out, our team has come to play."

Curtis Lehmkuhl/The Daily Iowan

C.J. Jones attempts to make a catch over the head of Utah State defender Mark Estelle during the third quarter at Kinnick Stadium.

The Sept. 21 victory did much to alleviate many of Iowa's concerns, particularly on the defensive side of the ball.

Even without injured safety Bob Sanders, Iowa held the Aggies to 223 yards passing, far fewer than the national-worst 333 per game allowed before the game with the Aggies. Sanders is expected to return next week.

Quarterback Brad Banks also showed no ill effects from the Sept. 14 meltdown against Iowa State that saw him fumble the ball away on consecutive possessions, leading to two Cyclone touchdowns.

Against the Aggies, Banks threw for 185 yards and one touchdown and rushed for 65 more — and didn't turn the ball over once. He has yet to throw an interception in four games this season.

"I just want to be a quarterback who can do all-around things: pass the ball, run the ball, and put some points on the board," he said. "You always want to do the little things, and they turn out to be big things."

A Hawkeye Heaven. Hawkeye fanatics' anticipation about the new UI Hall of Fame has been on the rise recently. On Sept. 20, Hall of Fame inductees, donors, and other university personnel got a sneak-peek at the new building during its ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremony. The three-story Roy Karro Building takes its name from Roy Karro, an Iowa alumnus who donated $3 million to the project.

"I get goose bumps just being here," Gary Dolphin, "The Voice of the Hawkeyes," told the crowd. Dolphin was the first in a line of speakers at the event — a list that included "Big" Bill Logan, a former Iowa basketball star, interim President Sandy Boyd, and Hawkeye Athletics Director Bob Bowsby. Funded completely by private donations, the project offers two floors of awards and displays of Iowa athletics, a Hawk Shop, and meeting room.

Iowa Athletics Director Bob Bowsby said the meeting rooms will be used by the Athletics Department for general meetings and recruiting and will also be open to the public. He also hopes the new edifice will be better as a tour than that of Carver-Hawkeye Arena, which most school children have been offered in the past.

"Right now, we get bus loads of school kids touring Carver and then sitting outside my office window and eating lunch. I don't know what they're looking at, maybe the janitor. Hopefully, this will give kids an introduction to the UI, and it will nurture a lifelong relationship," Bowsby said.

As visitors enter through the west doors, they are surrounded by a plethora of images of Iowa athletes. Two walls plastered with pictures of present and past athletes embody all that is Black and Gold. Plaques featuring Hall of Fame inductees Donald Klotz, Ronnie Lester, Michelle Edwards, Don Nelson, Virgil Hancher, and others are mixed between the color photos.

On the second floor, individual sports and their accomplishments are featured. Each display is set up to resemble a locker room, so tourists can literally feel the spirit of such greats as Chuck Long and "Ice" Edwards. Audio clips, such as the Iowa fight song, Nile Kinnick's stirring Heisman acceptance speech, and the 1998 men's basketball victory over UConn, fill the air as fans peruse Hawkeye memorabilia.

The third floor features national-championship teams, Hawkeye Olympians, Iowa pro athletes, and a timeline of athletics memories. With computers throughout the build-

IOWA FIELD HOCKEY

Hawkeyes split in battle on West coast

BY BRIAN TRIPLETT
THE DAILY IOWAN

The No. 8-ranked Iowa field-hockey team split a pair of closely contested games this weekend on the West Coast, falling to California, 3-2, in Berkeley, and defeating Stanford, 1-0, in overtime.

Iowa took on No. 18-ranked California on Sept. 21 on its brand-new, state-of-the-art turf at Maxwell Family Field.

After a scoreless first half against the Golden Bears, junior forward Pattie Gillern came through for Iowa with her second goal of the season a little more than three minutes into the second half.

The Hawkeyes' defense broke down for a short span of time, and the Golden Bears, who now hold a record of 5-1, scored three goals in under three and a half minutes. Pooja Mehta connected on the first two goals with assists from Nora Feddersen. The third goal came on a penalty corner from Michelle Ward.

Tiffany Leister scored Iowa's final goal of the game on a penalty corner with the assists credited to Lindsay Miller and Lauren Edwards. In her senior campaign, Leister leads the team in goals with four.

Freshman Debbie Birrell was given a yellow card in the remaining minutes of the game, forcing the Hawkeyes to compete a player short.

Iowa had more than twice as many penalty corners as the Golden Bears, leading 11-5. Iowa goalie Barb Weinberg and California's Kelly Knapp each recorded six saves on the day.

Sunday saw a much better outcome for the Hawkeyes, as they snuck past Stanford with an unassisted goal by Lindsay Miller in overtime. Miller, whose goal was her second of the season, rebounded her own blocked shot and shot it past Cardinal goalkeeper Emily Zander less than five minutes into overtime.

"It seems like every time we've played Stanford the last few years, it has been a dog-fight," Hawkeye coach Tracey Griesbaum said. "And today was no exception."

Iowa took six shots in overtime, compared with Stanford's one. The Hawkeyes outshot the Cardinals, 15-8, on the day.

Weinberg had five saves for Iowa and recorded her fourth shutout of the year.

The 5-3 Hawkeyes will on take on Northwestern in their first conference game of the year at Grant Field on Saturday at 1 p.m. The weekend will be the first of the season that Iowa will not have to travel out of town.

IOWA SOCCER

Baker: Team disappointed in two Big Ten losses

BY KATIE LOW
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa women's soccer team suffered two disappointing losses on the road as they opened Big Ten play last weekend.

Iowa lost, 2-1, to No. 14 Michigan on Sept. 20 and was shutout, 4-0, by Michigan State on Sunday. The Hawkeyes' record now stands at 4-3 on the season, 0-2 in the Big Ten.

"I think we came out well against Michigan State," said Hawk coach Carla Baker. "However, we allowed a penalty kick two minutes into the game, and that really changed the momentum. Michigan State is a good team, and we couldn't create enough chances to get any momentum for ourselves."

The Spartans' first goal came on a penalty kick from Andrea Sied at the 9:49 mark in the first half. Two more points were recorded in the half on goals from Abby Sheppard and Emma Harris. Harris scored again in the second half to cap off Michigan State's scoring drive.

Iowa goalie Britta Vogeles made five saves as the Spartans outshot the Hawkeyes, 15-12.

Iowa's loss to Michigan was even more disheartening — the game was called because of inclement weather as the Hawkeyes were mounting a comeback.

"We're disappointed," Baker said. "We had momentum, and the Michigan team was pushing to get the game called. We wanted to wait it out because we felt that we could have scored again."

The Wolverines scored twice in the first half on goals from Therese Heaton and Ericka Kleinholz.

"The first half of the game, we couldn't play well," Baker said. "We were unorganized, and we were scrambling, which Michigan capitalized on. We played better than them in the second half, but it was too late; they had already scored twice."

Hawkeye senior forward Sarah Lynch scored unassisted with eight minutes left, but the game was called three minutes later. On the season, Lynch has connected for three goals.

Iowa outshot Michigan, 8-7, and Vogeles recorded two saves.

Baker said she believes the team needs to take the losses in stride and learn from the mistakes made this weekend.

"I think we need to establish more of a mentality," she said. "The student-athletes need to get to a point where they truly believe that they're in the top half of the conference."

Iowa will resume action under the lights Friday against Northwestern (2-3-1) on the Hawkeye's home turf at 7 p.m.

Baker believes that a win against Northwestern can restore the confidence lost last weekend.

"We're looking at Northwestern as a good team," Baker said. "We have to have motivation to bounce back in the conference and to show [Northwestern] that we're the better team."

IOWA MEN'S TENNIS

Houghton remains positive after fall season start

BY KAVITHA THIMMAIAH
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa men's tennis team kicked off its fall season last weekend at the Virginia Invitational.

Six Iowa players competed in three singles draws and two doubles draws. Although the team as a whole did not go far, Hawk coach Steve Houghton said he was not disappointed.

"This was a high-powered tournament, and with only a week of practice, and the fact that this was our first tournament, these kind of results are expected," he said.

Seniors Stuart Waters and Hunter Skogman were both defeated in the first round of the Flight A Singles Consolation draw. Waters lost to Zalan Kiss of Charleston Southern (6-3, 6-1). Skogman played a tough first-set match, eventually losing (7-6, 6-1) to Will Shaw of North Carolina State. Fellow senior Pete Rose was also defeated consolation.

Freshman Chaitu Malempati lost his match (6-0, 6-0) in his collegiate debut.

Tres Jones was the only member of the squad to record a victory in the singles draw. Jones defeated Kyle Hatten of Virginia (6-3, 6-2) in Flight C, then lost in three sets to Kenan Bell of Liberty.

Houghton felt the box scores did not do justice to how some of his players, such as Jones and Johan Bergenas, played.

"Tres and Johan were both players who, I felt, played really well. They played some pretty good players and lost a couple of tough matches," Houghton said.

The Hawkeyes fared better in the doubles draw; Waters and Justin Gaard won two matches in Flight A before being defeated by North Carolina State's R.J. Murray and John Davis. Rose and Johan Bergenas made it to the Flight B Doubles Consolation championships without playing a match, winning by default over teams from Nebraska and Charleston Southern. They lost in the finals to Dillion Walker and Chris Gonyer of Nebraska (8-5).

The Hawkeyes will take this weekend off, and Houghton said the team would use the time to build on lessons learned at the tournament.

"We need some work around the net and playing more aggressively during key points," he said.

The Hawkeyes will travel to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the All American Tournament on Oct. 5.

McGriff first to hit 30 homers with five teams

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH — Chicago Cubs first baseman Fred McGriff became the first major leaguer to hit 30 homers in a season with five teams when he homered Sunday in Pittsburgh, however, the Cubs still lost to the Pirates 5-4.

McGriff hit a 3-0 pitch from Kris Benson into the right-field seats for his 30th homer and his first in PNC Park, the record 42nd park in which he has homered. The two-run drive came in the first inning.

Until Sunday, McGriff and Cleveland's Ellis Burks had homered in 41 parks each.

McGriff also had three 30-homer seasons with Toronto, two with San Diego, and one each with Atlanta and Tampa Bay. He now is 22 homers away from No. 500 in his career, a mark reached so far by only 17 players. Teammate Sammy Sosa has 498.

McGriff has hit at least 20 homers in a season 15 times. The only other active player with as many 20-homer seasons is Barry Bonds.

McGriff also became the first Cubs first baseman to hit 30 homers since Ernie Banks hit 32 in 1968.

Rob Mackowiak's tiebreaking single capped Pittsburgh's three-run rally in the fifth inning, helping Kris Benson win his fifth straight decision as the Pirates beat the Cubs.

Sammy Sosa went 1-for-3 with a single, he needs two homers in the Cubs' final six games for 500 in his career and 50 for a record-setting fifth-straight season.

Wilson slid in under the tag as first baseman McGriff's throw to second was slightly high and wide.

Philadelphia 4, Cincinnati 3

CINCINNATI — Nostalgia washed over the Reds as they closed their 70s-era ballpark Sunday with a wave of feel-good memories and another reality-check loss to the Phillies.

Not even a start by 37-year-old Jose Rijo could help the Reds avoid a three-game sweep in the final series at Cinergy Field, which opened as Riverfront Stadium with a loss in 1970 and ended the same way.

Bobby Abreu had a pair of hits to extend his hitting streak to a career-high 16 games and scored the go-ahead run in the fifth on Travis Lee's double off Rijo, who lasted 4 1/3 innings.

The outcome was quickly relegated to a footnote in the history of baseball's first professional team.

Riverfront Stadium was the first with wall-to-wall turf and sliding pits when it opened in June 1970. Three Rivers Stadium opened in Pittsburgh later that season, and Veterans Stadium opened in Philadelphia in 1971.

"I know what a lot of fans think and how they'd like to see these stadiums blown up, but a lot of sentimental things have gone on in both stadiums," Phillies manager Larry Bowa said.

St. Louis 7, Houston 3

ST. LOUIS — Albert Pujols hit a three-run homer, and Chuck Finley pitched seven solid innings as the Cardinals beat the Astros.

Finley gave up three runs, two earned, and five hits. He did not walk a batter.

Finley gave up a two-run homer to Mark Loretta in the first and a solo shot to Jason Lane in the fourth.

Jason Irsinghausen struck out two in a perfect ninth.

Toronto 12, Tampa Bay 6

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Orlando Hudson homered and drove in a career-high five runs as the Blue Jays avoided a three-game sweep by beating the Devil Rays.

Hudson went 4-6 and came within a triple of hitting for the cycle. He hit a two-run shot in the eighth inning.

Hudson also had RBI singles in the first and sixth innings and doubled home a run in the fourth.

Montreal 5, New York Mets 1

NEW YORK — Vladimir Guerrero closed in on joining the 40-40 club, hitting his 38th homer and stealing his 40th base to lead the Expos.

Endy Chavez extended his hitting streak to 12 games, and Michael Barrett added an RBI double for the Expos.

Sun-Woo Kim left after 4 1/3 scoreless innings with a cramp in his right leg.

Atlanta 4, Florida 1

ATLANTA — Greg Maddux joined Cy Young as the only pitchers to win 15 or more games in 15-consecutive seasons, and John Smoltz tied the NL record for saves in a season as the Braves beat the Marlins.

Maddux allowed four hits and one run in seven innings to match the record set by Young from 1891-1905.

Smoltz pitched a perfect ninth for his 53rd save in 57 chances, tying the record shared by Randy Myers of the Chicago Cubs in 1993 and San Diego's Trevor Hoffman in 1998.

Maddux struck out six and walked one. He threw only 76 pitches, 61 strikes and 15 balls, in lowering his ERA to 2.64.

Colorado 11, Arizona 7

DENVER — Todd Helton homered and drove in five runs to lift the Rockies to their third-straight win over Arizona, keeping the Diamondbacks' magic number for clinching the NL West at three.

Jay Payton had four hits for the Rockies, including three doubles.

The Diamondbacks erased a 3-0 deficit with a six-run third inning that included five doubles.

But Colorado countered in the sixth on Helton's homer, a three-run shot off reliever Greg Swindell.

Boston 13, Baltimore 2

BALTIMORE — Pedro Martinez earned his 20th win, and Trot Nixon hit a grand slam as the Red Sox cruised past the Orioles.

After giving up two runs and four hits in the first, Martinez blanked the Orioles on three hits over the next five innings before leaving with Boston up 8-2.

Johnny Damon, Nomar Garciaparra, and Cliff Floyd homered in a five-run seventh.

The Red Sox led 3-2 before pulling away in the seventh. Rey Sanchez singled off Sidney Ponson, and Damon followed with a shot over the wall.

New York Yankees 4, Detroit 3

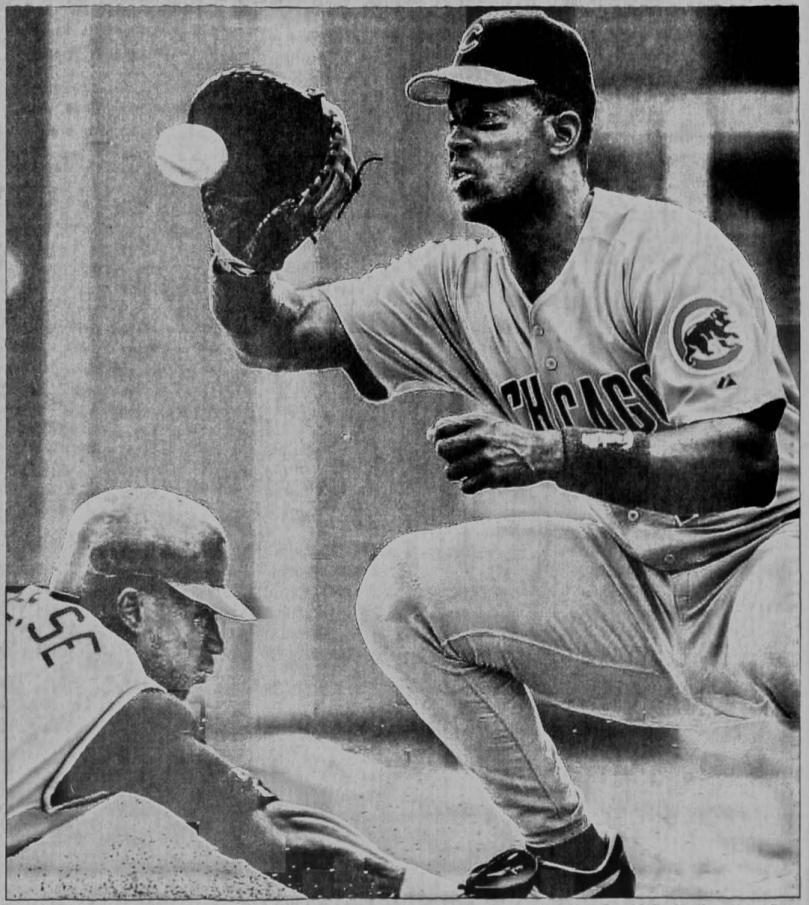

DETROIT — Rondell White hit three doubles and drove in two runs to lead the Yankees to a victory over the Tigers.

David Wells won for the sixth time in his last seven starts, allowing three runs on seven hits, striking out five and walking none.

Rookie Mike Maroth allowed four runs in eight innings for his fourth loss in five starts. He walked one and hit two batters.

Cubs first baseman Fred McGriff receives a first inning pickoff throw from starting pitcher Alan Benes as Pittsburgh's Pokey Reese dives back safely Sunday, in Pittsburgh. The Pirates beat the Cubs 5-4.

Garcia hit a tiebreaking, two-run homer in the eighth inning, and the Indians defeated the Royals.

Garcia connected off Jason Grimsley with one out for a 5-3 lead.

Angel Berroa hit an RBI double in the bottom of the eighth. Raul Ibanez tried to score the tying run on the hit, but he was thrown out at the plate on a relay from second baseman Brandon Phillips.

San Francisco 3, Milwaukee 1

MILWAUKEE — Jeff Kent and Benito Santiago hit solo home runs in the ninth inning, and the Giants kept pushing toward the NL wildcard slot, beating the Brewers.

Kent's 37th homer came with one out against Luis Vizcaino and broke a 1-all tie. After Barry Bonds grounded out, Santiago hit a 420-foot drive to center field.

Los Angeles 4, San Diego 3

SAN DIEGO — Pinch-hitter Mike Kinkade singled home the go-ahead run with two outs in the ninth inning, and the Dodgers beat the Padres.

Kinkade singled up the middle off lefty Kevin Walker, and Mark Grudzielanek scored from second, just ahead of the throw from center fielder Mark Kotsay. Grudzielanek had singled off Jonathan Johnson and stole second.

Seattle 3, Anaheim 2

SEATTLE — The Seattle Mariners prevented Anaheim from clinching a playoff spot as Ryan Franklin out-pitched Angels ace Jarrod Washburn. Franklin gave up two runs on six hits in 7 1/3 innings.

Washburn allowed three runs on eight hits in 6 1/3 innings.

Oakland 7, Texas 5

OAKLAND, Calif. — Jermaine Dye homered twice, and the Athletics beat the Rangers to lead in the AL West.

Scott Hatteberg added a two-run homer for the Athletics.

Woods takes American Express title, $1 million prize

BY DOUG FERGUSON

ASSOCIATED PRESS

THOMASTOWN, Ireland — Tiger Woods failed to play his first tournament without a bogey, but he still got the prize that mattered — a victory in the American Express Championship on Sunday and the $1 million payoff.

Woods missed a 3 1/2-foot par putt on the final hole at Mount Juliet for a 6-under 66, but at least he could afford his first and only bogey of the tournament.

Retief Goosen put together a spectacular charge, tying his career-low round with a 62 and finished one stroke behind.

Woods finished at 25-under 263, matching his lowest score in relation to par in a 72-hole tournament. He also was 25-under at the 2000 Johnnie Walker Classic.

He started the final round with a five-stroke lead and kept a comfortable margin throughout a cool, cloudy afternoon in Ireland.

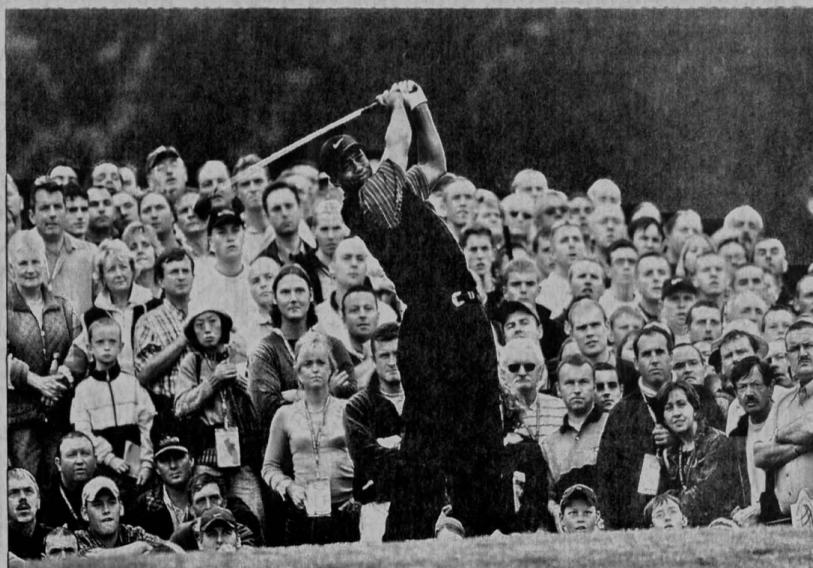

Goosen made him sweat by playing six holes in 6-under par, including a 6-foot eagle putt on the 17th hole that brought him to within one shot of the lead. Goosen had a 22-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole, but missed to the right.

Behind him, Woods struggled on the par-5 17th by hitting his tee shot under a tree, his next shot into the rough, and leaving himself 18 feet for birdie. The putt was true, and Woods showed more emotion than he has all week when it fell.

The only disappointment was the finish.

Woods had 237 yards to the green but angrily backed off his shot because of a photographer. He pushed his approach into the rough, then chipped to 3 1/2 feet. The tournament was over — this was personal.

Woods has never gone an entire tournament without a bogey, and he had played his last 81 holes at par or better. He pushed the short putt, tapped in, and still kept his perspective.

He won. Playing in his final tournament before the Ryder Cup, and using Nike Golf irons in competition for the first time, Woods answered any questions about his form.

It was his fifth PGA Tour victory of the year, making him the first player since Arnold Palmer (1960-63) to go four consecutive seasons with at least five victories.

Woods now has won five World Golf Championships, at least one every year since the series began in 1999 to bring together the best players in the world.

Goosen, who finished second to Woods in the Masters and joked about getting the green trousers as the runner-up, had to settle for a $540,000 consolation prize.

Woods said he would need another solid round to protect his five-stroke lead. He played like it, too, making three birdies on his first five holes to keep everyone at bay.

The critical shot was his approach into the par-5 10th to 15 feet for eagle that allowed him to keep his distance until Goosen's late heroics.

The $1 million payoff increased Woods' earnings on the PGA Tour to nearly $6.5 million and virtually assured him of another money title.

Goosen, meanwhile, moved about $12,000 ahead of Ernie Els on the European tour's Order of Merit.

Solheim Cup returns to America

EDINA, Minn. — The comeback kids brought the Solheim Cup back to America on Sunday.

Led by Wendy Ward's amazing effort against Annika Sorenstam, the United States came from two matches down at the start of the day to defeat Europe 15 1/2 - 12 1/2 and capture one of the most coveted prizes in women's golf.

When Frenchwoman Karine Icher missed a short putt on No. 15 in her match against Rosie Jones, the Americans were assured of the 10 1/2 points they needed to bring the cup back to their home turf.

Moments later, Captain Patty Sheehan learned the news, and dropped her head to the ground in a moment of huge relief and celebration. She hugged Pat Hurst, and the Americans who had already made it off the course started jumping for joy.

"They put out every single ounce of effort they had today," Sheehan said. "These ladies have so much heart and guts."

No one played tougher than Ward. Ranked 56th on the LPGA money list, she was sent out against the world's best player, Sorenstam, and she played her toe-to-toe through all 18 holes.

Women golfers end up eighth

BY DREW MANROE

THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa women's golf team finished in an eighth-place tie in the Mary Fossum Invitational, which included a field of 13 teams. Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes, their score of 953 was the highest of the five Big Ten teams that competed.

The tournament was Iowa's first glimpse at this fall's conference competition, and the Hawkeyes could not keep pace with their peers. Wisconsin finished in second place, and Michigan State, Illinois, and Michigan also finished in the top six.

However, Iowa did feature a few fine individual performances. Sophomore Shannon Fleming, whose season goals included a top-10 finish in a tournament, finished in a tie for 14th to lead the team. She was also the team's most consistent player, firing a 77 in each of the three rounds to finish at 231.

Sophomore Megan George also played well. She was leading the Hawkeyes after two rounds but shot an 83 on Sunday to drop to 24th overall, second-best on the team.

While the tournament was dominated by Big Ten teams, Kent State won the team championship with a 907, and Nebraska's Sarah Sasse shot 221 to win the individual championship.

Next, the Hawkeyes will host the Lady Northern Invitational on Saturday and Sept. 29 in Iowa City.

GAME QUOTES

Today, this was a good, old fashioned butt whippin'. I don't know for the life of me what happened to our team in the second half. At halftime I thought we were still in the game. Our team has a lot of work to do ... Brad Banks killed us. Not with his passing, but with his running.

— Utah State coach Mike Dennehy

The Big Ten is anybody's race. I think it's too early to worry, but I think our team has proven itself. We've been in every game. We've been in every game.

— Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz

Saints maul Bears in 20-point comeback

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — New Orleans rallied from a 20-point deficit to win 29-23. Rookie Donte Stallworth scored on a 29-yard pass from Aaron Brooks with 1:11 left, and Sammy Knight stopped a last-second Chicago drive with a goal-line interception.

Chicago (2-1) won all 12 previous games decided by a touchdown or less. But this time, the Saints won the close one to go 3-0 for the first time since 1998.

On the winning drive, Stallworth caught the pass near the sideline, got around defensive back Reggie Austin, and coasted into the end zone to make it 27-23. Brooks then ran in for two points.

The Bears drove to the Saints 18, but Jim Miller threw into a crowd at the front of the end zone, and Knight intercepted with 2 seconds remaining.

Trailing 20-0, the Saints got back in it with two touchdowns in 58 seconds in the second quarter, the second after Chicago's Leon Johnson fumbled a kickoff.

New England 41, Kansas City 38

FOXBORO, Mass. — Super Bowl hero Adam Vinatieri's 35-yard field goal 4:40 into overtime Sunday gave unbeaten New England a victory over Kansas City, which had tied the game on two touchdowns by Priest Holmes in the last five minutes of regulation.

Holmes' 1-yard scoring run as time expired, followed by Morten Andersen's extra point, forced overtime. The Patriots (3-0) won the coin toss and marched to the winning kick, Vinatieri's first game-winner since his 48-yarder against St. Louis gave the Patriots the championship.

Troy Brown set a club record with 16 catches and a personal high of 176 yards receiving. Tom Brady completed 39-54 passes for a career-high 410 yards and four touchdowns.

Holmes, the league's top rusher in 2001, had 180 yards and two touchdowns on 30 carries, and he caught one of Trent Green's three TD passes. The other two went to Eddie Kennison.

Cleveland 31, Tennessee 28

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Phil Dawson's 33-yard field goal with 10:47 left in overtime won it after Tim Couch rallied the Browns by throwing for three touchdowns, including two in the final 2:35 of regulation.

The Titans (1-2) led 28-14 with 5:06 left but blew a second-half lead and lost for the second-straight week.

Couch, who sat out the first two games after tearing scar tissue in his right elbow, picked apart the Titans to help the Browns (2-1) overcome four turnovers.

Cleveland needed 11 plays to go 80 yards to cut Tennessee's lead to 28-21 with a 12-yard TD toss from Couch to Andre Davis with 2:35 to go.

With Tennessee ready for an onside kick, Dawson pooched the ball over the Titans, and Dennis Northcutt recovered before it went out of bounds at the Titans' 42. Nine plays later, Couch found Northcutt for an 8-yard TD pass with 12 seconds remaining.

Cleveland won the toss, and this time Couch needed eight plays to set up Dawson's game-winning field goal.

Miami 30, N.Y. Jets 3

MIAMI — Ricky Williams ran for 151 yards, and the Dolphins (3-0) snapped their streak of eight-consecutive losses to the Jets. Williams sewed up the win with a 53-yard touchdown sprint, the longest gain in his four-year career. Miami has won 17-straight home games in August or September.

Miami committed no turnovers. Jay Fiedler, who had thrown eight interceptions in his four previous games against New York, went 16-30 for 185 yards and one score.

Jets QB Vinny Testaverde was picked off twice and fumbled once.

Carolina 21, Minnesota 14

MINNEAPOLIS — Lamar Smith carried 30 times for 154 yards and scored two fourth-quarter touchdowns for the Panthers, who are 3-0 for the second time in their eight-year existence and first time since 1996.

Smith's 24-yard run provided the winning margin.

The Vikings, 0-3 for the first time since 1967, had just 250 yards and turned the ball over four times.

Daunte Culpepper was 19-30 for 191 yards, a touchdown, and a career-high four interceptions. Deon Grant had three interceptions.

Culpepper's frustrations were visible early in the fourth quarter when he hopped up and down and yelled at Randy Moss on the sideline after a third-down overthrow forced another punt.

Indianapolis 23, Houston 3

HOUSTON — Peyton Manning had touchdown passes of 42 yards to Qadry Ismail and 43 to Reggie Wayne, and he helped set up three field goals by Mike Vanderjagt. Manning, who threw three interceptions in last week's loss to Miami, completed 21-28 passes for 272 yards. He didn't have an interception.

The Texans (1-2) attempted a comeback in the third quarter behind the running of rookie Jonathan Wells, who ran 42 yards in a 56-yard drive to set up Houston's only score, a 24-yard field goal by Kris Brown.

David Carr, sacked nine times in last week's loss to San Diego and six times in a season-opening victory over Dallas, went down four times against Indianapolis.

Philadelphia 44, Dallas 13

PHILADELPHIA — Donovan McNabb completed 24-37 passes for 287 yards and three touchdowns, and he ran for 67 yards and one touchdown.

The Eagles (2-1) didn't allow an offensive touchdown for the second-straight game. Reggie Swinton's 100-yard kickoff return was the only touchdown for Dallas (1-2).

Emmitt Smith ran 11 times for 52 yards, moving within 362 yards of Walter Payton to become the NFL's career rushing leader. Smith's sixth carry moved him ahead of Payton for No. 1 on the rushing-attempts list.

Eagles rookie Brian Westbrook threw a 25-yard option pass to Todd Pinkston for a touchdown.

ing, tourists can search a database of athletes to find their favorite Hawkeye hero and a list of their accomplishments.

The third floor also has quarter-sized basketball court on which visitors can hit buzzer beaters like B. J. Armstrong or kick bowl-winning field goals like Nate Kaeding. All the activities give people a chance to "listen, interact, and see Hawkeye tradition," Logan said.

The concept of a Hall of Fame began in 1989, but it wasn't until 18 months ago that construction began. Karro's donation pushed the facility from reverie to reality.

Karro graduated from Iowa in 1942 and watched the great Nile Kinnick in action. He also made contributions to the Hayden Fry Scholarship Fund and donations to the UI Foundation. Karro's vision for the Iowa Hall of Fame is a place in which Iowa can reflect on its victories and celebrate the spirit of Hawkeye athletics.

Jane Meyer, the senior associate athletics director, has overseen the Karro project the last two years. She looks at the Hall of Fame as a place to revel in 100 years of Hawkeye history and as "a celebration of Hawkeye tradition."

important consequence of the Utah State game. Clark, who was second on the team in receiving in 2001, had caught just four passes for 19 yards in the first three games of the 2002 campaign. Against the Aggies, Clark had five catches for 67 yards and proved to be nearly impossible for fewer than three Aggie defenders to bring down. In the rough-and-tumble Big Ten, Clark will be one of Iowa's most dangerous offensive weapons. "I think we've got [Clark] back, and we're going to need him," Ferentz said. "[He's] a guy who energizes our football team, and when he's got the ball in his hands, he's an exciting player."

The Hawkeyes need all the energy and excitement they can get in the upcoming weeks in order to eke out the tough victories in the Big Ten. But make no mistake, this is not a team that wants to slide by unnoticed.

"We're not trying to sneak in [atop the Big Ten]," Cole said. "Last year, we may have snuck up on some people, but this year, we want everyone to hear us coming and know that we're coming not just to play hard, but to win."

horoscopes

Monday, September 23, 2002 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): This is a great day to set your standards high and focus on self-improvement. Emotional problems will develop if you try to force your will on others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Don't count on getting help with your tasks today. If there is someone special in your life, today is a great day to further or nurture that relationship. Talks regarding personal issues will go well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Get together with people who are older or younger than you. You will relate to different generations better, and you will also learn a great deal if you listen to the way these individuals view things.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Start thinking more about your health and well-being. Eat properly and exercise. You will be able to use your knowledge to teach others how to do things, but first you must set a good example.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Don't turn down an invitation today. Family gatherings will lead to a new romantic connection. This is the perfect day to communicate your feelings and personal goals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work, work, and more work is exactly what will pay the bills and get you back on track financially. You can make career changes if you are willing to put in some learning time. You have to set a game plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can surprise everyone around you with your ingenious ideas and your creative talent. You will be able to make some sensational personal changes that will leave everyone admiring how good you look.

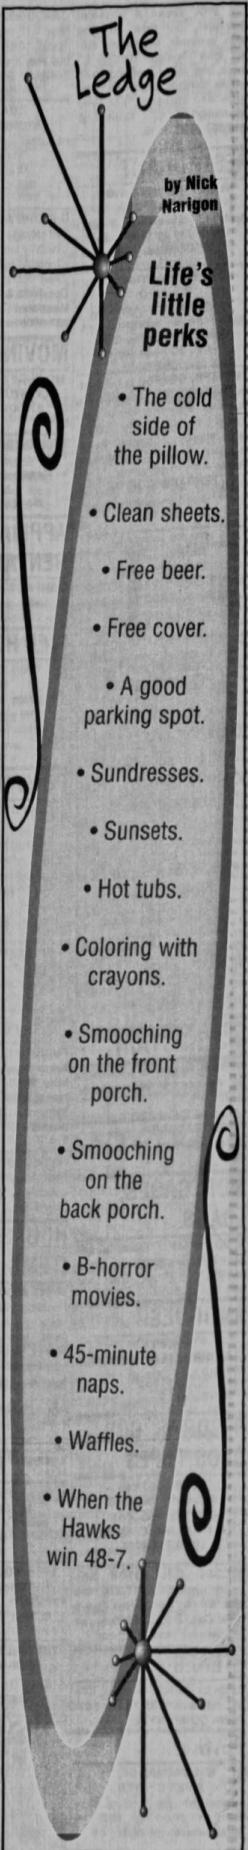

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Work will go well as long as you immerse yourself in your job. Someone you live with may be temporarily hard to please, but don't fret about it. Don't overreact to the changes going on all around you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): This is not the day to sit around being lazy. Get out and socialize. Opportunities to become passionately involved with someone you already have connected with or someone entirely new will make your day superb.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be harboring some emotional issues that should be dealt with, especially if they have to do with someone elderly. Don't let the ones you love rule your every move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You'll be anxious if you don't make plans to do something that requires a little competitive energy. Get out with friends. New love interests may be met through the company you keep.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Hidden matters may come back to haunt you. Be an observer today, and keep your thoughts to yourself. Be sure to do your job well, but don't let someone take you for granted.

quote of the day

As the country ages, however, more and more Americans will see the value stem-cell research has in enhancing the quality of life for the people they love.

— California Gov. Gray Davis, as he signed into law a measure to allow embryonic stem-cell research in the state, a direct contradiction of federal limits on the research.
