Save the Poor Farm, board urged

BY LAURA JENSEN
THE DAILY Iowan

His parents, who preferred the arts, wanted to restore a 171-year-old farm that once housed Johnson County's poor and insane residents.

Lewis Rogers, the historic preservation consultant for the Johnson County Historical Society, asked the Board of Supervisors to nominate the Johnson County Poor Farm as a national historic landmark.

In Iowa City, the site was called the Johnson County Farm and Asylum site for a time, but its biggest problem is obtaining the necessary paperwork for the designation.

The Poor Farm was created in 1855 as a place for the mentally ill. It saw its heyday between 1868 and 1930, when it was the largest mental institution in the Midwest.

Residents have said the mental institution's biggest problems is obtaining the necessary paperwork for the designation. The site contains 12 buildings, including the Charleston Building in the 1860s and a new low to be part of the historical site.

The Poor Farm main building is one of the most significant remaining structures, along with several historic homes.

The board has to adopt the new design. The new design would be eligible, depending on the size and duration of a project.

Some say the UI community is "shamefully" city off. But let's face it, this is Iowa, and just because we're not as big as some other cities doesn't mean we're not as good.

For instance, there are plenty of things to do in Iowa City. From live music to outdoor activities, there's something for everyone. And with the University of Iowa being on the campus, there are always new and exciting things happening.

So, next time someone says that Iowa City is "shamefully" city off, just think about all the great things we have to offer. Don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

Hamas denies leader dead after Israeli missile attack

BY MITCHELL LANDSBERG

JERUSALEM — Israeli helicopters launched a missile attack Thursday aimed at the Gaza Strip, bloodbathing the home of Debkaixa, 72, a militant from Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, from the family house for a funeral procession in Gaza City on Thursday.

"But, at this moment, one can say that the probability is high," said Mahmoud, Hamas' military commander in the Gaza Strip, at a press conference on Thursday. Israeli TV quoted senior Hamas officials as saying the attack was a reprisal for a Hamas attack on an Israeli convoy on Wednesday.

The attack was seen as a sign of increasing tension between Israel and Hamas, which has been Public Enemy No. 1 in Israel for six years — ever since Hamas took control of Gaza in 2007 and has been the target of a military siege.

"We have not been able to confirm who was killed," said an unidentified security official as saying the bombing was the work of Israeli spies.

"Deif, the head of the Hamas military wing, was not in the car," said Hamas spokesman Fawzi Barhoum.

"He was killed nine months ago," he said.

"It was an Israeli attack," said a senior Hamas official.

"If Deif is dead, he said, "we will Sue the insurance industry to pocket this money," said Ed. Mark, IDA. "That's what it all about. It's about the insurance companies, not about physicians.

"But RepISTRIBUTIVES were buoyed by support from the White House, business groups, insurers, and hundreds of physicians.

"Our nation is galloping toward a health-care crisis of dimensions we have never seen before," said Barry, an insurance industry analyst. "There are whole states where a woman cannot find an obstetrician who will take a high-risk pregnancy.

WASHINGTON—Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle yesterday began debate next week on a resolution authorizing the use of force against Iraq. But he said the latest White House proposal was unacceptable.

A resolution that President Bush presented to Congress on Thursday failed to win support from Democratic Senate leaders. "We've come a long way but we have a long way to go before that can be achieved," he said.

The disaster left federal disaster officials bracing for an isolation of parts of Louisiana as floods forced the water to stranded hundreds of thousands of people and their animals. The leading Democrat on the Armed Services Committee, said that with the proposed wording there would be "no daylight between what the Congress stands for and what the president and his neo-conservative war partners do on a day in and day out basis."

Underrated Iowa seeks big-time upset in Happy Valley

BY TODD BRUMMElkAMP

The Daily Iowan

Two years ago, when Iowa faced Nebraska in Lincoln, the Hawkeyes were a team in transition. Almost everyone associated with that team, including head coach Kirk Ferentz, was skeptical of any success the team could achieve. The Cornhuskers dominated that game, winning 56-7.

But Ferentz and the rest of the Cornhuskers are now dealing with the pressure of having to face a team that is showing consistent signs of improvement and has already defeated one of the nation's top teams.

The Hawkeyes are 6-4 this season and are coming off a 38-13 win over Missouri State on Saturday. They have shown resilience and playmaking ability throughout the year, which has earned them a spot in the Big Ten Championship game.

Iowa head coach Kirk Ferentz said after the game that he was proud of his team's performance and their ability to stay focused on winning.

"I thought we played well today," Ferentz said. "We executed our game plan and came out with a win. We need to continue to improve in some areas, but overall I'm happy with our effort.

"I'm proud of the way we fought through some tough situations and came out on top. That's the type of game you have to win in order to reach the title game."

The Hawkeyes will face Ohio State in the title game on Saturday, looking to make a statement in front of a national audience.

BY RICK SOLTER

The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeyes are one of the top teams in the country, and they have struggled to find an identity this season. But with every game, they are getting closer to finding that identity.

The Hawkeyes have played two games against ranked opponents so far this season, losing both. But they have also played against some of the best teams in the nation and earned respect from coaches and fans alike.

"The Hawkeyes are a team that is on the rise," said Ohio State head coach Urban Meyer. "They have the talent and the coaching to continue to improve and become a force in the Big Ten.

"We know that we have to be at our best to beat them, and that's something we're looking forward to this week."
The Iowa Hawkeyes will continue their season against the Rutgers Scarlet Knights at 7:05 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 28. The team is looking for a strong performance and is planning to use the lessons from their last weekend's game to improve.

The Hawkeyes have shown resilience in their losses, bringing them closer to the NCAA tournament. The team is focused on maintaining their intensity and keeping things simple.

Men's cross-country faces elite field

The Hawkeyes will face another challenging race this weekend in the Big Ten Conference meet. Although the Hawkeyes have not won in the last eight seasons, they are confident and ready to compete.

The Hawkeyes will be tested against some of the best teams in the conference, and the athletes are looking to show their worth. The team is committed to giving it their all and competing at their best.
