Save the Poor Farm, board urged

BY LAURA JENSEN
THE DAILY IOWAN

Historic preservationists want the county to restore a 100-plus-year-old farm that once housed Johnson County's poor and insane residents. Leah Rogers, the historic preservation consultant for Tallgrass Historians, asked the Board of Supervisors to nominate the Johnson County Poor Farm and Asylum site for a listing in the National Register of Historic Places.

The county would have to pass an ordinance for the area to be preserved, as the listing itself provides no actual protection for the land and buildings. Part of the criteria to be placed on the register are to make a significant contribution to broad patterns of history and possess integrity of location, feeling, and association. "We must act quickly on the buildings, or they will fall down," said Supervisor Terrence Neuzil, who will serve on a subcommittee studying a course of action for the land. "One of the biggest problems is obtaining the resources for preservation."

The site contains 12 buildings, including the Chatham Oaks building, which was built in the 1960s and is too new to be part of the historical site. The original Poor Farm main building no longer stands, but three buildings remain, along with several historic barns. "The Poor Farm represents the collective history of how we deal with those less fortunate," said Dell Richard, a member of the Johnson County Historical Society. "The way we treat them helps define who we are as a people."

Renowned clarinet-meister tootling along at 90

BY AMY JENNINGS
THE DAILY IOWAN

When woodwind guru Himie Voxman first set foot on the UI campus as a student 73 years ago, he wasn't thinking about music. The world-renowned clarinetist and respected music instructor was set on a career in science. "Frankly, it just happened," said the former director of the UI School of Music director about the musical success that culminated in 1995, when university officials named the music building in his honor. "I would have been happy doing science."

World-renowned clarinetist and ex-director of the UI School of Music Himie Voxman poses with his clarinet at his home in Iowa City. The UI is sponsoring a festival in his honor this weekend.

The university community will show its appreciation for the chemical-engineering graduate turned musical legend this weekend with a two-day concert extravaganza to celebrate his 90th birthday on Sept. 17. The free event will be held at Clapp Recital Hall. Among Voxman's top achievements is being the first American to receive the Lifetime Achievement Award from the International Clarinet Association in 2000.

Residence Hall with dreams of becoming an engineer. "I only became involved in the music department because I played various concerts in the IMU with the University Band," he said. During his undergraduate years, Voxman worked with faculty members that current UI students know only as building names. "Dr. [Phillip] Clapp claimed that he kept me from being kicked out of the university, and Dean Carl Seashore gave me my first job after I got my degree," Voxman said. The longtime UI professor started his career in 1933 as a research assistant in the psychology of music. Voxman climbed through the teaching ranks until colleagues selected him to be the music school director in 1954. He has so many great memories from his 26-year directorship, Voxman said, he can't pick just one. "I was most proud of the curriculum we developed, that we were attracting good students and graduating more department heads than any other university," he said. Musicians outside Iowa recognize Voxman as the co-author of the Advanced Method for Clarinet, a volume considered to be mandatory for woodwind students worldwide. While collecting countless honors throughout his career — he was named Distinguished UI Alumnus in 1993 — Voxman has always made time to teach. Susan Schwaegler, who drives an hour from Moline, Ill., twice a month for private lessons with him, said he has a special way with students. "He is the kind of teacher who brings things out of students rather than imposing on them," she said. After his retirement from the university in 1980, Voxman remained active by scavenging European libraries for rare music, writing music reviews, and attending concerts. "You can do a lot in 90 years," he said with a smile.

All Robert DeWitt Sr. has left are prayers and hopes as he is sentenced today for allegedly masterminding a forgery ring that duped Kmart stores out of more than $100,000.

But he's not betting they will come through at the Johnson County Courthouse, where he faces two counts of forgery and one count of third-degree theft — charges that could imprison him for up to 12 years for a crime spree that authorities said involved his wife and three sons. "I'm really worried and concerned about the tide going in the wrong direction," the self-proclaimed reverend said via telephone from his Johnson County Jail cell.

Aiming for consistency, UI adopts new logo

CASEY WAGNER
THE DAILY IOWAN

A new logo will soon adorn all UI business cards, letters, and the Web site in an effort to bring consistency to external relations and to better represent the institution, officials said. Steve Parrott, the director of University Relations, said that in the next couple of months, the school will introduce an update of the Old Capitol dome logo that has been used for more than a decade. The new logo, to be used universally, will make the university more identifiable, he said. Many of the university's schools and programs that now use their own logos will also have to adopt the new design. "This is going to end up being good for everybody," Parrott said. "We want people to know that [letters and communications] are not only from a certain college or department but from the UI."

The current logo consists of an outline of the dome in white inside a black square. Parrott said officials wanted to move away from the reversed image, so they drew up a dome in a black outline as a replacement. A new font was also selected for the name. The arrangement of the logo and name plate comes in different variations each college can choose from. Although the dome burned down in November 2001, officials said, the image has a historical association with the university. Former university President Mary Sue Coleman made the decision to replace the old logo after an external consultant said the institution needed to standardize its logo on outgoing material.

Alum returns with deep-dish desire

BY ALEXIS GRUND
THE DAILY IOWAN

A UI alumnus who has been in the restaurant business for nearly 25 years is bringing his passion for the industry back to where it all began.

Joe McLaughlin will open a branch of the Old Chicago restaurant chain in Coralville next month in the former Shakey's location, Highway 6 & 218.

"I have worked in the restaurant business here in Iowa City before; it was a natural thing for me to come back," McLaughlin said.

He began his career in the industry as a night cook at the Iowa River Power Company while he was a UI senior.

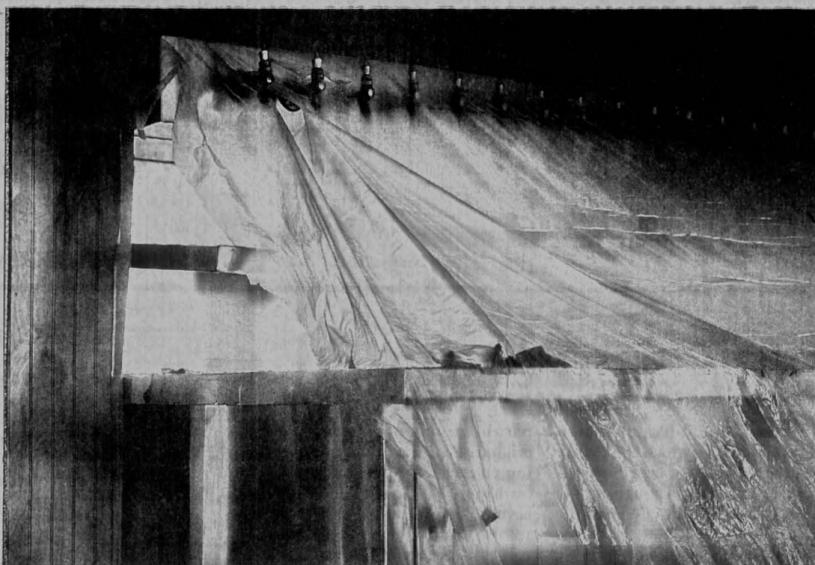

"Coralville is a nice area, and Iowa City is always a great town to be in, so I thought it would be an ideal place to bring the franchise," he said.

After opening five Old Chicago restaurants in five years for the corporation, McLaughlin and his partner, Dale Paulsen, decided to buy a franchise of their own.

"We have both been with the company since 1996, and we liked the way it did business and wanted to become a part of it," McLaughlin said.

The duo own another Old Chicago in Peoria, Ill.

full-service chain based out of Boulder, Colo. The menu features such Chicago delicacies as deep-dish, thin crust, and stuffed pizzas, fresh-made pastas and calzones, as well as salads, burgers, sandwiches, and homemade desserts.

The chain is also known for its 130 varieties of beer.

"We cover all of the bases," McLaughlin said.

The restaurant will sport a big-screen television, pool tables, shuffleboards, and other games.

"I like the fact that by owning the restaurant we get complete control over every aspect of the business," McLaughlin said.

"We actually get to help build the restaurant. We get to design it, pick its location, and come up with our own concepts."

His secret to success?

"My No. 1 priority is if you take care of your staff and the people walking in, you're all set," McLaughlin said.

Students flock to Microsoft deal, spurn Apple

BY ANNIE SHUPPY
THE DAILY IOWAN

The UI's software contracts with Microsoft and Apple computers have led to mixed results: Microsoft is booming, while students have been reluctant to bite into Apple.

During the 2001-02 school year, roughly one third of the university's 28,000 students took advantage of Microsoft's offer, while approximately 250 students bought Apple packages, said Marc Franke, the campus-services director for Information Technology Services.

The university might consider discontinuing the contract with Apple if the software is not popular with students, he said, but he expects to renew the agreement in January 2003.

"It is possible, but we want to make sure students have alternatives to Microsoft," Franke said.

The Microsoft campus agreement, which was renewed by the university Sept. 1, makes Microsoft XP, Microsoft Office XP, and such language programs as Visual Basic available free of charge to students via downloads and at the cost of $7.50 in hard copy CD form.

The UI has a similar contract with Apple, dubbed the Apple TAP Agreement. It differs from the Microsoft agreement because it only includes a $17 operating systems package for Apple computers. Apple's $20,000 contract, signed in January, is not as extensive as Microsoft's because a much higher percentage of UI students own Windows machines, Franke said.

Computer fees of $180 per student contribute $378,000 to funding the $640,000 Microsoft contract, he said. Funding for the Apple contract comes from UI funds.

"In March, we will see how many students use the [Microsoft] program to see if it still represents a good value," he said.

Since the beginning of the program in March, the University Book Store has sold nearly 2,000 copies of the Microsoft media on CD form, said Richard Shannon, the store's associate manager of general merchandise.

The Microsoft agreement has decreased Microsoft XP and Microsoft Office XP sales by nearly two-thirds at Iowa Book, where the discount is not recognized, said Brad Jenkins, the head of the store's software department.

"On campus, it has about killed sales of Microsoft Office XP and Microsoft XP," he said.

With a Microsoft Office XP price of $149.99, Iowa Book has chosen not to compete with the UI deal, and Jenkins recommends students purchase the software at the IMU.

UI students can access the software through the ITS Help Desk Web site or at the University Book Store.

Iowa wins on Medicare-reimbursement plan

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — An agreement was reached on a Medicare package Thursday that will improve health care in Iowa and other rural areas, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, announced.

Grassley and Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said the agreement with Democrat Max Baucus, the chairman of the Senate Committee on Finances, includes the House-passed amendment by Rep. Jim Nussle, R-Iowa, that addresses the underpayment of Medicare reimbursements to Iowa.

Almost every provision of a Grassley plan, called the IOWA bill, is included in the agreement that could be passed before Congress adjourns this fall, Grassley said.

Grassley and Baucus have been negotiating for weeks on a bipartisan provider package, and Harkin has also been meeting regularly with Baucus, urging him to include needed improvements to Iowa reimbursements in any such legislation.

"Iowa is dead last in Medicare payments," Harkin said before the agreement was reached. "It's simply not right that Iowa is dead last in Medicare payments.

Sen. Tom Harkin,
D-Iowa

Iowans pay the same taxes but get less than half the benefit of some states."

The Medicare-provider bill passed by the House of Representatives in July included the Nussle amendment, which works to correct geographic inequities in Medicare payments to Iowa hospitals.

The provision would sharply increase payments to hospitals in states underpaid by Medicare.

The provision inserted by Nussle into the House bill increases payments by 5 percent per Medicare patient to most hospitals in fiscal years 2003-05.

Baucus has agreed to support the same language in a Senate proposal.

It would affect approximately 70 hospitals in Iowa and total more than $100 million in the state.

CITY BRIEF

Colombia program seeks applicants

The Rotarians of District 6000 are seeking four professionals interested in visiting Colombia as part of the Group Study Exchange program.

The Rotary Foundation promotes these visits once a year to places such as Argentina, India, the Netherlands, and Japan. The upcoming trip is scheduled from April to May 2003.

The program consists of teams of professionals who are exchanged with another group of international professionals. The visits last four to six weeks, during which members share personal knowledge of their own countries while experiencing the other countries' cultures, customs, vocations, and lifestyles.

While abroad, team members stay in Rotarians' homes and have the opportunity to meet their professional counterparts, said Ed McEleney, the Rotary director of the exchange program for the area.

Those interested in applying must be employed full-time in a recognized company or profession and have a strong general-education background. The suggested age bracket is 25-40. Applicants cannot be a Rotarian or in any way associated with the group, and they must live or work in the district — the southern half of Iowa.

For an application, contact local Rotary Club presidents, Ed McEleney at (319) 631-3493, or Steve Churchill at (515) 224-3646.

City gets 'best' SEATS offer

BY NICK NARIGON
THE DAILY IOWAN

County officials say the best contract they can offer the city for use of a bus system for the elderly and disabled is $100,000 more than they first submitted.

In a Sept. 23 letter sent to the Iowa City Department of Parking and Transit, Johnson County SEATS officials said the lowest price they can offer is $812,000 because city officials failed to sit down and negotiate after July.

However, the letter from Tom Brase, the SEATS director, said the group is open to negotiations and is committed to an early resolution.

"If we could sit down, I can plan out the figures where everybody could possibly be happy," he said.

SEATS originally proposed a contract between $612,000 and $702,000. The city's fiscal 2003 contract with SEATS is $563,000. Representatives from both sides said they're getting frustrated with the lack of action in dealing with the bus service's financial woes, which have prompted SEATS officials to entertain the idea of raising half-price fares for low-income and disabled passengers — a move city officials have said is "not acceptable."

The service was nearly scrapped recently because of county budget cuts. Money-saving measures might mean one office worker will be eliminated, Brase said.

City officials have said cutting the program is not an option they want to pursue and have gone so far as to criticize some cost-saving measures proposed by SEATS.

"We have negotiated and negotiated," said Councilor Connie Champion. "We went through this five years ago, and it was frustrating."

Talks will likely start next month, she said.

Brase said 80 percent of paratransit users are from Iowa City, which pays less than 50 percent of the program's cost.

Brase's letter also proposes that the city pay for bus maintenance because the county leases the vehicles from the city.

In addition, the city should follow the vehicle-replacement schedule, because buying new vehicles will be cheaper than maintaining old ones, he said. All but one of the city-owned buses is more than 5 years old, and all but that one has an average of over 150,000 miles.

In its letter, the county proposed to pay for the first 25 percent of administration and rent costs.

Joe Fowler, the director city transit, addressed his concerns with SEATS in a Sept. 9 letter to the group, saying its proposals would force the city to pay a disproportionate share of its money for administration. In addition, Fowler's letter rejected the idea of Iowa City forming an alliance with Coralville to provide Sunday paratransit service.

GOP says it knows source of tape

BY MIKE GLOVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — Republicans said Thursday they've identified the source of a leaked transcript of a strategy session held by Rep. Greg Ganske as a man having long ties to U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin.

"He has a longtime relationship with the senator," said Iowa Republican Chairman Chuck Larson, who said officials have turned the name over to investigators.

He declined to identify the source of the transcript, but two campaign sources said it was Des Moines businessman Brian Conley, who was briefly on Harkin's congressional staff in the mid-1970s. A telephone message left at Conley's home was not returned.

In addition, Larson said the person they identified had a letter to the editor published in the Des Moines Register in February. That newspaper printed a letter from Conley critical of Ganske on Feb. 7.

Conley works at a Des Moines paper company but was not at work Thursday.

At a news conference, Larson said Republicans think there are much closer links between the Harkin campaign and the incident than Harkin has acknowledged.

"I think you'll find in due time that a member of the Harkin staff worked with him, provided a cassette recorder, and then returned the machine after the meeting," said Larson.

Harkin campaign manager Jeff Link said the campaign was preparing a statement to be released later.

The developments are the latest twist in an increasingly bizarre episode that began Sept.

Harkin

Ganske

3 when Ganske held a strategy session at a Des Moines hotel.

A transcript of that session was delivered to reporters, and Republicans objected. Harkin's campaign staffers initially denied they were involved, then conceded they had passed the transcript along after it was delivered to them by an invited guest at the strategy session.

He has a longtime relationship with the senator, and he was in fact working hand-in-hand with the senator's campaign.

Chuck Larson,
Iowa Republican chairman

Harkin has said that was a mistake and apologized, but Republicans continued to press the issue. On Wednesday, a Des Moines lawyer said he represented the man who provided the transcript and issued a statement in which the man said he was a Ganske donor who had been angered by comments the Des Moines Republican made.

That made him decide to turn the tape over to Harkin, the statement said. That statement didn't identify the man, but Republicans quickly did.

Larson sought to cast the episode as part of a larger effort. While Conley did give $50 to the Ganske campaign, he was far from a backer, Larson said.

"I believe this was done to give the appearance he was in fact a Ganske supporter, when in fact he wasn't. He was a mole," said Larson. "I believe this was done as a ruse, a cover-up, a way to infiltrate the Ganske campaign."

The episode has jumbled a Senate race where Harkin was once thought to be relatively safe as he seeks a fourth term. There has been no independent polling since the issue arose earlier in the week, but there's been little discussion of anything else in the campaign.

Harkin has sought to distance himself from the episode by saying a junior staffer passed along the transcript and made a mistake. Larson argued there was a much closer connection.

"I do not believe the person is a Ganske supporter," said Larson. "He has a longtime relationship with the senator, and he was in fact working hand-in-hand with the senator's campaign."

In the statement issued Wednesday, Des Moines lawyer Brent Rosenberg said he had advised his client that no laws had been broken by tape recording the meeting.

Larson said he disagreed, arguing that both federal and state laws prohibit such actions. Republicans and Ganske aides have asked state, federal and local officials to investigate the issue.

"We do not believe that the individual who attended this meeting was a disillusioned Ganske supporter but was in fact a mole from the Harkin campaign," said Larson. "We find it extremely difficult to believe that Sen. Harkin did not ask of his staff who delivered the transcript."

Des Moines police spokesman Sgt. Bruce Elrod said Thursday that "no new information" is available on the investigation but said he would provide daily updates to reporters.

UI set to get autumn cleaning

BY JEFFREY PATCH
THE DAILY IOWAN

Some say the UI campus is "shamefully" dirty. Others contend otherwise.

Either way, dozens of volunteers will descend upon the east campus and surround neighborhoods for the first-ever community/campus cleanup this weekend.

University students and administrators will gather Saturday in Hubbard Park to kick off the hour-long event at 10:30 a.m.

Some students said it's time the campus gets a cleaning.

"The campus is shamefully dirty," said UI junior Holly Heusinkveld. "There's a lack of self-respect because if [students] really cared about themselves, they wouldn't do this to where they are."

A catered barbecue will be held on the IMU patio following the clean-up effort. The Stepping Up Project will provide $200 for food, and UI interim President Sandy Boyd said he intends to pick up the rest of the tab.

He'll also deliver a speech about volunteerism.

"Creating community-service options for students is a primary objective," he said. "Volunteerism is the glue that builds communities in America."

UI Student Government President Nick Herbold said he values the idea of administrators mingling with students at the event.

"I thought it could be a good idea to clean up the campus and get some administrators to meet students," said Herbold, who helped coordinate the event after former UI President Mary Sue Coleman presented him with the idea. A university alumnus first proposed the notion.

UISG plans to promote the cleanup with a mass e-mail to student groups.

"We can work with any number of volunteers," Herbold said.

production, using labor as compensation to the county for their care. The facility was mostly self-supporting.

There is also a possible burial ground, discovered during a pond excavation, containing 49 unmarked graves of those who died at the farm.

The 160 acres of the county-owned land is located west of Highway 218 and south of Melrose Avenue.

One possible plan would be to divide the area into four segments, according to a report by the Johnson County Council of Governments. Part of the site could be used for a park. The farm itself would be preserved.

The Chatham Oaks Building, which today houses the mentally ill and some elderly, would be kept running with room for expansion, and a small portion of the area could be sold as residential property, with the county's profits going to help fund the preservation.

To come up with additional funding, the county would pursue grants with the help of the Johnson County Historical Society.

Neuzil and Harney are expected to recommend a specific plan sometime this fall.

Oldest DeWitt prays as sentence looms

The gray-haired, bespectacled 56-year-old patriarch is steadfast that his family never forged checks in a spree that spanned more than a dozen states under the guise of religious charity. He iterated earlier assertions that the family was in the area to launch new churches in Eastern Iowa.

Assistant Johnson County Attorney Michael Brennan said he recommends the maximum prison time and $2,000 in fines for DeWitt, whose attorney is seeking a suspended sentence and placement in a halfway house.

DeWitt's attorney, Pat

Ingram, could not be reached for comment.

Four members of the DeWitt family, originally from South Carolina, were sentenced to three years probation and a year-long stint at area halfway houses as part of a plea agreement reached in June. They must serve at least six months.

Robert Jr., Mark, Timothy, and Ruby DeWitt were also each fined $1,250 this summer on forgery and theft charges. Timothy DeWitt was fined an additional $500 for identity theft. The family is required to pay Kmart $90,807 in restitution.

The youngest DeWitt, Esther, had all her charges dismissed as part of the deal.

The family purchased toys from Kmart stores with forged checks and later returned the items for cash, saying they were leftover Christmas presents.

"We will not plead guilty because we are innocent," DeWitt said during an interview at the Johnson County Jail.

DeWitt's wife and children, who refused to comment when reached Thursday, have contacted him once via mail since their release in August. Financial constraints keep them from affording stamps, he said. On top of that, he said Esther DeWitt's whereabouts are a mystery.

But DeWitt said he's glad his family members are out of jail, adding that he'd serve 100 years to free them.

The county will return the family's two cars and personal belongings in the near future, said Ruby DeWitt's attorney, Frank Santiago.

Coralville police arrested the sextet Feb. 24 after discovering fake IDs, stolen electronic goods, and receipts in the DeWitts' two motel rooms at the Ramada Inn. Police originally responded to an assault call placed by Robert DeWitt Sr., who said he was being beaten by other guests at the Coralville motel.

Parrott said each college and department will still be permitted to use its individual logo, but the designs must be approved by the dean of that college and be placed at the bottom right side of letters. The new university logo must be placed at the top left, and each college and department can have its name below that image, he said.

The College of Liberal Arts and Science has already elected not to use its logo with the new design, said Carla Carr, the school's director of External Relations.

"I think the new logo and designs are a great idea," Carr said. "It will help unite the university and will bring a kind of consistency that will be great for us."

The Tippie College of Business, however, will use its individual logo along with the new design, said Barbara Thomas, the college's director of publications.

"We understand the importance of 'branding' and that the UI has a strong brand," she said. "It's really challenging to create something like this that everybody likes, and I think they did a good job."

Authorities would not say whether the gunmen got away with any money.

The suspects were stopped in a stolen pickup in O'Neill, a ranch town 75 miles west of Norfolk. They were identified by police as Jose Sandoval, 23, of Norfolk, and 21-year-olds Jorge Galindo and Erick Fernando Vela, both of Madison.

All three were charged with five counts of first-degree murder, which carries a potential death sentence in Nebraska.

A fourth man, Gabriel Rodriguez, 26, of Madison was being sought late Thursday, the Nebraska State Patrol said in a news release. The statement didn't say what role he is believed to have played in the robbery, and calls to the patrol weren't immediately returned Thursday night.

Norfolk Police Chief Bruce

Mizner had tears in his eyes as he read the victims' names at a news conference. The employees — Lola Elwood, 43, Jo Mausebach, 42, Lisa Bryant, 29, and Samuel Sun, 50 — and customer Evone Tuttle, 37, were found dead at the scene.

Mizner said it was unclear what went on inside in the bank, though the wounded customer and two unharmed employees may be able to help

Investigators did not immediately have the special equipment needed to view the bank's security tapes.

After leaving the bank through a shot-out glass door, the gunmen broke into a nearby house where they confronted the home's residents and stole their car, Mizner said. No one in the home was injured.

The suspects drove about 10 miles, ditched the car and stole a pickup truck, Mizner said. Authorities tracked down the first car, a Subaru Outback, by using its satellite navigation system.

Hamas denies leader dead after Israeli missile attack

BY MITCHELL LANDSBERG
LOS ANGELES TIMES

JERUSALEM — Israeli helicopters launched a missile attack Thursday aimed at the man who has long been deemed Israel's most-wanted terrorist, striking a car and killing at least two people inside. But the militant group Hamas denied that leader Mohammed Deif was among the dead.

Two missiles struck the olive-green Mercedes-Benz on a crowded street in Gaza City, turning the car into a smoldering heap of twisted metal and body parts. Forty bystanders were injured, among them 15 children, hospital officials said.

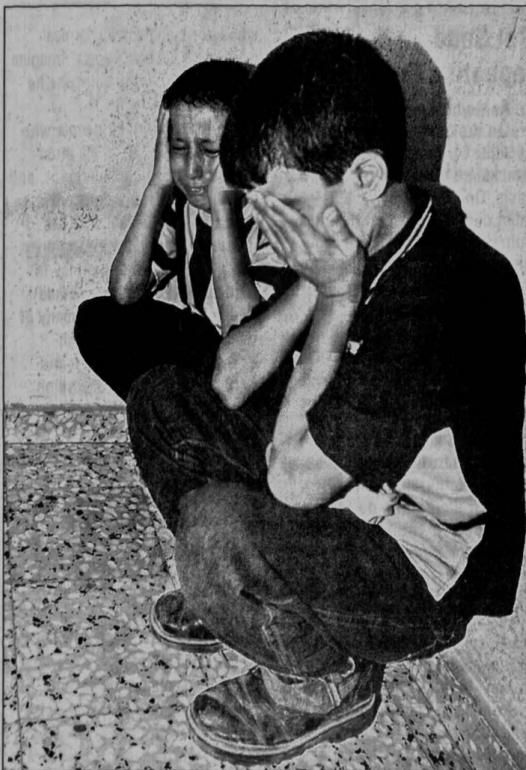

Hamas said two of its members inside the car and a bystander were killed. Israeli television showed scenes captured minutes after the attack in which a third man was shown being pulled from the back seat of the Mercedes. It was not clear whether he was alive.

"Deif was not in the car, thank God," said Hamas spokesman Abdulaziz Rantisi, who nevertheless vowed revenge against the Israelis. "We'll hit them everywhere," he said.

Israeli officials clung to the hope that Deif was dead, but they acknowledged that they had not been able to confirm what happened to him. Late Thursday, Israeli TV quoted unidentified security officials as saying "the probability is high" that he was killed.

Deif, the head of the Hamas military wing in the Gaza Strip, has been Public Enemy No. 1 in Israel for six years — ever since his predecessor at the top of the wanted list, bombmaker Yehiya Ayash, who was known as the "Engineer," was killed by a booby-trapped cell telephone. No one has ever claimed responsibility, but it has been widely assumed that the phone bomb was the work of Israeli intelligence.

Israeli officials said Deif was the mastermind behind dozens of suicide bombings that claimed hundreds of Israeli lives.

Adel Hana/Associated Press
Mahmoud, left, and an unidentified relative weep as mourners carry the body of his brother, Baha Abu Sultan, 22, a militant from Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, from the family house for a funeral procession in Gaza City on Thursday.

"Look, he's the most important army commander in Hamas," said Yohanan Tsoref, a research fellow at Israel's International Policy Institute for Counter-Terrorism. "He is the most important not only from the professional point of view but from the symbolic point of view."

At 36, Deif has become "sort of a father figure" to young Hamas militants because of his extensive experience in carrying out attacks against Israel, Tsoref said.

"But you know," he added, "Hamas is not an organization of one man." If Deif is dead, he said, he would be quickly replaced.

The attack came on a tumultuous day in Gaza and the West Bank.

The day began with reports that a Palestinian — later identified as a member of the Al Aqsa Martyrs Brigade, a militant group affiliated with Palestinian Authority President Yasser Arafat's Fatah movement — had been killed by Israeli soldiers while trying to attack a Jewish settlement in the northern Gaza Strip. Then came word that a Hamas activist and an Israeli soldier were killed in a gunfight in the West Bank village of Labeled, east of Tulkarm.

Ex-spy rebukes Sept. 11 panel

BY DANA PRIEST AND SUSAN SCHMIDT
WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — The CIA's former director of counterterrorism, offering an impassioned public rebuttal to reports of intelligence agency failures before the Sept. 11 terror attacks, told a congressional panel Thursday that overwhelmed anti-terror analysts have performed admirably with inadequate resources, defeating "constant terrorist attacks [and] saving hundreds and perhaps thousands of lives."

Cofer Black, a beefy, professorial former spy who said the CIA had thwarted an attempt by "Osama bin Laden's thugs" to assassinate him in Khartoum, Sudan, seven years ago, angrily challenged the portrayal of intelligence operatives as inept bureaucrats that has often emerged during two weeks of public hearings before the House-Senate intelligence committee.

Instead, in powerful tones, he described CIA counterterrorism officers and analysts as "the finest Americans this country can produce. They are highly professional, smart, hardworking, brave and have an unbelievable work ethic — working 14-18 hour days, seven days a week, month after month."

Black said the CIA's undermanned covert operations staff had been cut by 25 percent in the 1990s. Its counterterrorism center had only as many people as "three infantry companies" to handle threats around the world and only "enough money to purchase about two modern jet-fighter aircraft," he said. Nevertheless, Black said, the CIA thwarted a 1998 attack on the U.S. Embassy in Albania and a millennium plot in Jordan, and uncovered threats to U.S. Embassies in Yemen and France last year.

House passes cap on malpractice

BY JANELLE CARTER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The House, responding to doctors' complaints that rising insurance premiums are forcing them to quit their practices or relocate, passed a bill Thursday to cap pain-and-suffering damages that juries can award in malpractice suits.

The 217-203 vote came after a lengthy debate over whether limiting large jury verdicts would ease the costly insurance crunch felt by doctors and patients. Its passage faced an uncertain future in the Democrat-controlled Senate, which already has rejected a similar measure.

"Our nation is galloping toward a health-care crisis of dimensions we have never faced before," said Rep. Nancy Johnson, R-Conn. "There are whole states where a woman cannot find an obstetrician who will take a high-risk pregnancy."

"Very quietly, access to sophisticated high-risk care is declining in America," she added.

Democrats questioned whether the bill would simply be a cash cow for insurers after Republicans rejected Democratic attempts to require that savings be used to lower malpractice insurance premiums.

"They are going to allow the insurance industry to pocket this money," said Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass. "That's what it's all about. It's about the insurance companies, not about physicians."

But Republicans were buoyed by support from the White House, business groups, insurers, and hundreds of physicians.

Exit exams cheat would-be high school grads in Massachusetts

Massachusetts students are now being asked to take and pass an exit exam before receiving high-school diplomas.

The exam consists of two sections: English and math. Beginning in their sophomore year, the students are given five chances to pass the exam. Technically, as sophomores, the students should have the knowledge and skills to pass the test.

However, only 37 percent of the class of 2003 passed the exam the first time. On the second try the percentage only rose to 53 percent. All of this just for a high-school diploma.

Most students expect that after passing all their classes and fulfilling their requirements that they will receive a diploma. With this new test, students can no longer make that assumption.

The new stipulation that the Massachusetts Education Department imposes on high-school students is unfair and discriminates against students who are receiving a less-than-adequate education.

As of Sept. 19, six students had filed suit against the state Board of Education, the state Department of Education, and Holyoke city schools (four of the students who are listed as plaintiffs attended Holyoke schools). According to these six students and their attorneys, the reason that the suit is being brought is because is not providing equal and quality education to all students.

Ethnicity and economic issues aside, this test is altogether ill-conceived. If schools are passing students to the next grade while not providing them with the skills to pass a basic academic examination, that is the fault of the schools, not of the students. In effect, the Massachusetts Educational Board is using the exam as a way to test its own ability to educate and then punishing the students when the school system has failed. If students have failed to meet the credit or grade-point average requirement of a particular school, they should not graduate; but forcing a test on students who have not been given the skills to pass it is unfair.

High school is a time to learn. However, if the only choice for students is an inadequate facility, whose fault is that? Students should not be punished for a system that has failed them. The idea of an exit exam may seem logical and beneficial on paper, but in practice, the exam is only providing evidence that Massachusetts schools have failed and will continue to fail.

not only does the exit exam discriminate against the poor students of Massachusetts, the state's educational system

Get Saddam or risk repeating Sept. 11

As we have recently commemorated the one-year anniversary of Sept. 11, new facts about the attacks are surfacing on a daily basis. One that struck me as most disturbing is that despite numerous terror attacks occurring overseas, former President Clinton repeatedly turned down offers to take Osama bin Laden into custody. In one particular case, the Sudanese government knew bin Laden's precise location and offered him to the United States. We were being offered a chance to put the world's most notorious terrorist behind bars without putting in much effort at all. What did Clinton do? He let him get away. The rest is history.

After the tragedy of 9/11, the United States, led by President Bush, put together a worldwide coalition to make the world a safer place, specifically going after one of the most deadly terrorist organizations in the world. Now Bush is attempting to continue on that mission by trying to overthrow one of the most dangerous men in the world, Saddam Hussein.

However, many people have become outraged at the thought of attacking Iraq. They reason that we have no proof of Saddam's evil, and military action is not justified. I beg to differ. We are dealing with a man who knowingly tested chemical warfare on his own people. Imagine what he would do to someone he doesn't like.

I am disgusted by people who defend Saddam. Sept. 11 must serve as a learning experience, and we can not let more innocent Americans die because we are ignorant and don't want to think about the horrors of that day in September. Perhaps we should remember the quote that many of us probably saw in our high-school history classrooms and rethink our positions accordingly: "Those who do not know history are condemned to repeat it."

Liberals can't have it both ways

On one hand, liberals claim President Bush is guilty of conspiracy surrounding 9/11 and is behind dark corporate dealings ... and call him dumb and a puppet on the other.

On one hand, liberals claim the Bush administration is proposing nothing but "bad" and flawed ideas pertaining to domestic issues ... and ignore the fact that the Democrats in the Senate have moved virtually no new proposals/ideas of their own to the floor since taking control on the other ... (And they're mad at the president? Shouldn't they be mad at their own leadership for sitting on their collective butts?)

On one hand, liberals claim that Bush is a warmonger for wanting to remove Saddam Hussein from power ... and forget the fact that they backed former President Clinton in overwhelming fashion for making that same call back in 1998 on the other ... (AS IF Saddam hasn't aggressively pursued weapons programs since U.N. inspectors left four years ago ...)

Can't have it both ways ... On one hand, liberals claim that the Bush tax cuts have been the ruin of our economy ... and forget that the tax cuts haven't really kicked in yet, and the $300-$600 rebate checks were a Democrat provision on the other.

On one hand, liberals claim that the Bush proposal to privatize a part of Social Security will take money out of the system, hence "out of the wallets of many" ... and forget that without a fundamental change in the system, money will be taken out of the wallets of many anyway to keep the program solvent in order to prevent a "bankrupt" program. (AS IF the liberal rob-Peter-to-pay-Paul approach — just increase taxes again — is either a short or long term solution?)

Can't have it both ways ...

Terrorism: today's version of David and Goliath

I was in my bedroom one recent Saturday morning and heard a big commotion outside my window. The disturbance was from a large number of birds. I live within city limits without any woods nearby, so I thought the birds couldn't have seen a snake or hawk. But their noise was so deafening I could no longer ignore it. I decided to investigate.

The noise was from a flock of small black birds trying their best to harass a crow. There were about 50 of those noisy little birds and only one crow. I stood and watched the drama unfold. The small birds were on the tree first, and the crow landed on a branch nearby. The small birds felt threatened, so they instinctively decided to use their advantage in numbers to make the crow feel uncomfortable enough that it would leave.

At first, it appeared as if the crow was unimpressed. But soon it took off and landed on the ground. The small birds knew that they were no match for the power of that single crow. They maintained the level of their noise and flew over the crow, safely keeping their distance. As far as I could tell, the crow didn't seem frightened in spite of the threatening flyover and noise. There was no obvious sign of panic. It took its time to waddle along on the ground and finally kept a safe distance from the noisy crowd. Then, the noise died down, and peace was restored in the neighborhood.

Later that evening, I was watching the evening news, which was dominated by the war on terrorism in various parts of the world. There were actions in Afghanistan as a result of saber rattling by some Al Qaeda and Taliban remnants. Some militants were arrested in Pakistan. There was another suicide bombing in Israel. There was an incursion into India by some militants from the Pakistani side of the Indian-Pakistani border of Kashmir. Many people were senselessly slaughtered. I watched mourners in both Israel and the West Bank. Families on both sides of the divide mourned the loss of their loved ones.

But almost superimposed were some young Palestinians celebrating what they perceived as one small victory achieved by the explosion of a suicide bomber. And there were gun-toting Israeli settlers screaming for more Palestinian blood. As a result, the Israeli soldiers went on a rampage throughout the West Bank, leaving a sea of vengeful destruction behind them. They later laid siege to and hoisted Israel's flag over Arafat's office in Ramallah, as if in symbolic absolute humiliation of the Palestinians.

In each case of terror cited above, the underdogs knew the limit of their power. Unlike the biblical story of the puny David manhandling Goliath the giant, or in the case of those small birds getting their way with the crow, the expectation of terrorists was not to win.

They knew that there was no chance of that happening. It seems as if all they wanted or hoped for was to do some damage and see for how long the giant would lick his wounds. It was like when a giant has his big foot on top of a fallen munchkin. The munchkin, not knowing what else to do, takes hold of the giant's Achilles' heel and starts chewing on it. The strategy was to cause temporary minor discomfort in order to be noticed.

I have always been fascinated with the way society supports the weaker party in most athletics competitions. Even in the presence of overwhelming superiority, we still cheer on the underdog as if to recognize that we are all underdogs sometime, somewhat, somehow. We witnessed young Palestinians dancing on the streets after a successful suicide bombing. We saw the actions of the Jewish settlers at the West Bank. We heard about the indiscriminate killing by Islamic militants in India, Nigeria, and Russia. We wonder and ask rhetorical questions. How could one human being treat another so poorly, and how could anyone support such horrible acts? When we do, we should remember that as long as there are people who consider themselves underdogs with limited power to do anything else besides some damage in order to be noticed, there will be people who will cheer the weak in whatever battles they fight against the strong. That is reality, not an excuse. The worst thing is when the strong behave irrationally, just to humiliate the weak.

Thus, the biggest problem facing political leaders and diplomats is how to find solutions to the problems facing the weak, real or perceived. Such solutions must find equitable and genuine resolutions to legitimate grievances. Then, it will be easier to differentiate between people with legitimate complaints and terrorists without a cause.

O, Lovely (who is Lovely, you ask? Read The Garlic Press and find out), you should have been at Gabe's on Tuesday: Beautiful things DO happen, sometimes. A blond chap named Chad brought chalk and handed it out to all the passersby, and we drew. We dressed up concrete in red, blue, yellow, and green. Have, have you seen? Concrete. Maybe next time you could bring the chalk: It's there at the Fun Zone, 105 S. Dubuque. Chad won't mind (he's a nice guy); it's not copying, it's keeping something beautiful alive.

If you want copies, though, go to Zephyr's; see Warren Paris' portraits in the window. He'd like that. You could put your artwork there, too, just talk to Erica.

"Goldfish crossed with piranha creates male breast milk."

Don't take my word for it, though, see it Scotch-taped to the register at the Tobacco Bowl. Talk to Tommy, ask him about the artwork festooning the walls.

Is this for here? Yes, I'm prohere, but let's go. You and me. Look see: Have you seen the bicycle racks across from Gilmore Hall? They look like

Moss apologizes to family, not officer

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. — Minnesota receiver Randy Moss apologized to his team, family, and friends Thursday — but not to the woman he's accused of pushing with his car while trying to make a turn.

Moss spent a night in jail after the Tuesday night episode, which resulted in two misdemeanors but no felony charges. Moss will start Sunday against Seattle, and his agent said the team will fine him an undisclosed amount.

"I'm sorry for what I've caused and what I brought on everyone who really cares about me or this team," Moss said. "I do take care of my responsibilities, and I stand up for my actions."

English golfers make transition to new lives

BY DREW MANROE
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Spectators at this weekend's Lady Northern Invitational in Iowa City might view junior Laura Holmes and sophomore Liz Bennett simply as Iowa golfers with a history of success.

What these onlookers may not know are the obstacles the two players encountered on the road to this success. The ways Holmes and Bennett have met every challenge presented to them, on and off the golf course, are impressive.

Both players hail from England — Holmes from East Yorkshire, in the northern region of the country, and Bennett from Sway Hampshire, near London.

Holmes, a year older than Bennett, decided first to make the trek across the Atlantic to attend college. Most English golfers attending college in the United States choose Southern schools, where they can play year-round. But Holmes had other priorities besides ideal golfing conditions, leading to her decision to accept a scholarship from the UL.

"When I got an e-mail saying [Iowa] was interested in me, I had to find it on the map," she said. "I had never heard of it before. But I chose to come here because it's a good school. A lot of the schools down South were smaller, and the culture shock would have been bigger down there.

"I also love the fact that here, when golf is done in mid-October, I'm a student. That's a huge issue, not just to do well in golf, but in school."

Bennett arrived at Iowa a year later. Despite coming from opposite sides of England, the two knew of each other through the English golfing circuit. When Holmes discovered Bennett was considering joining her at Iowa, she did everything she could to influence Bennett's decision, calling her incessantly in the weeks before decision time.

"I narrowed it down to four schools," Bennett said. "Two of the others also had English or Scottish girls. But Laura sold it the best."

The transition from fish and chips and Oasis to the land of ubiquitous fast food and rap music was not an easy one. But Holmes and Bennett faced the challenge head-on.

"Everyone thinks it's really easy being an international student, but it's really quite difficult," Holmes said. "Little

Underrated Iowa seeks big-time upset in Happy Valley

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Two years ago, when Iowa last visited Happy Valley, the downtrodden Hawkeyes got a much needed confidence boost with a double-overtime, 26-23 victory.

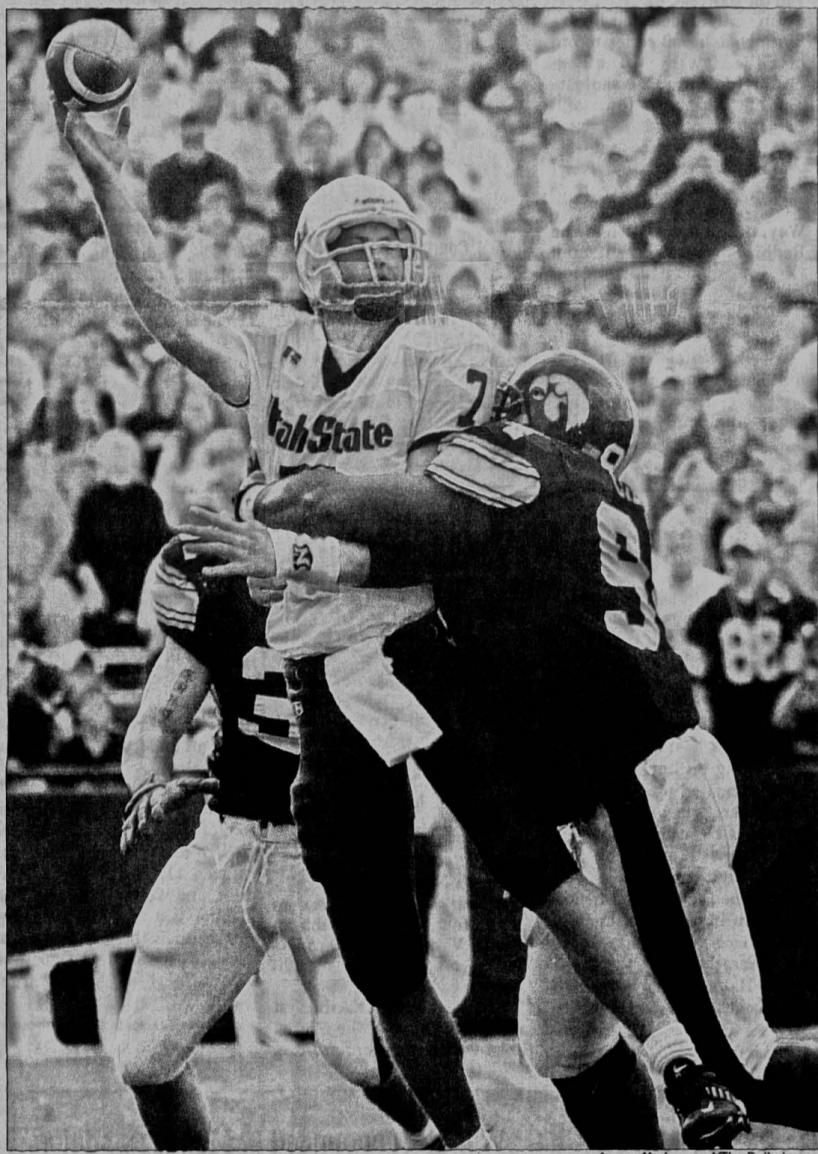

"No one gave us much of a chance," Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz said while reflecting on the game that many feel set the tone for Iowa's resurrection from the Big Ten basement the following season.

No one's giving the Hawkeyes much of a chance this time around, either, as they prepare to take on No. 12 Penn State in front of 100,000-plus fans Saturday in the Big Ten-opener for both teams. But don't tell that to some of Iowa's players.

"Last time we went there, it was a pretty big crowd, and they were loud, and we were able to quiet that crowd down," said defensive tackle Colin Cole.

Quiet would be an understatement when describing the reaction of the Penn State faithful to Ryan Hansen's game-ending interception in 2000; it was as if all the oxygen had been sucked out of Beaver Stadium. The victory marked a critical juncture for both programs.

Iowa, which entered the game with just one victory, finished 3-9 in 2000 and carried that momentum over to a 7-5 campaign last year. Penn State, meanwhile, finished the 2000 season 5-7 before ending last year with a 5-6 ledger — the first-ever back-to-back losing seasons Penn State suffered under coach Joe Paterno, who took the program over in 1966.

Volleyball team debuts at home tonight

BY ALI NOLLER
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa volleyball coach Rita Buck-Crockett will debut a more well-rounded team than in 2001 tonight in the Hawkeyes' first home outing since Sept. 4 and their first conference match of the year.

Iowa (6-4), led by a dynamic Kelli Chesnut, will look to improve on its No. 10 Big Ten finish. In addition, Iowa seeks to pick up more wins as it opens the Big Ten season against Michigan tonight and No. 21 Michigan State Saturday.

The Hawkeyes' conference battle will not be an easy one for a team still striving for consistency tency from its entire lineup.

Buck-Crockett said the Iowa team needs consistent play from everyone in order to have a successful season, as the conference boasts some of the top competition in the country.

"We are definitely better than we were last year," she said. "We have a lot of solid players working hard — their hard work has got to pay off. It's not going to be easy, because every team [in the Big Ten] is a strong team."

The Hawkeyes will indulge in their first opportunity to see how they fare against the Wolverines, who bring a 6-4 record to Carver-

Hawkeye Arena. Last year, the two teams split matches, with each winning at home. Currently, the Hawkeyes and Wolverines both sit at No. 9 in the Big Ten standings.

Buck-Crockett said Michigan's team was very similar to her own — scrappy and quick, with good ball-handling skills.

"This will be very evenly-matched," she said. "If everyone does her job, it should be a very good match."

To ignite the team, Buck-Crockett looks to Chesnut, a senior who has stepped up her intensity level as both a player

Hawkeyes home for Big Ten opener

BY BRIAN TRIPLETT
 THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa field-hockey team is counting down its number of home games left this season, though the Hawkeyes are yet to have played one so far. Iowa will open up Big Ten play on Grant Field at 1 p.m. Saturday, where it will take on Northwestern (4-4) for one of only four home games on the schedule this year.

Since 1989, when Grant Field was introduced, the Hawkeyes hold a record of 85-15 at home.

For senior All-American Tiffany Leister, her days at Grant Field are numbered.

"In a way, they have a sentimental value," she said. "It feels weird because it seems like I just got here."

Leister earned first team All-Big Ten honors last year, and this season, she is leading the Hawkeyes with four goals and eight points.

In her final season at Iowa, the defensive back seems a bit disappointed in the Hawkeyes' 5-3 start, but she is confident things are heading in the right direction.

"Things could have been better sooner," Leister said. "But I think everything is starting to come together."

"I think we definitely have the ability [to beat Northwestern]," she said.

In their past four weekends of play, the Hawkeyes concentrated on two separate teams for both Saturday and Sunday. For the first weekend so far this season, they can aim all their attention on one competitor.

"It's good to be at home and focus on one opponent," said coach Tracey Griesbaum.

The Hawkeyes will be focusing heavily on the Wildcats' Candice Cooper, who earned Big Ten Offensive Player of the Week honors a week ago. The sophomore forward ranks No. 6 in the Big Ten with 15 points on seven goals and one assist.

"We obviously have to make sure she doesn't get the ball as much as possible," Iowa's sophomore defensive back Lauren Stiver said. "And when she does, we need to just be aware of her skills."

Sophomore goalkeeper Barb Weinberg has recorded four shutouts so far this season, but she will have her hands full when Cooper and company come to town.

The Wildcats will also be the Hawkeyes' next opponent; Iowa will travel to Evanston, Ill., on Oct. 11 after a bye week.

BY KATIE LOW
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa soccer team will try to redeem itself this weekend after two disappointing losses to Michigan and Michigan State last weekend.

The Hawkeyes (4-3-0 overall, 0-2-0 Big Ten) will take on Northwestern (2-4-1) at home today at 7 p.m. They will travel to Normal, Ill., to match up against Illinois State (6-0) on Sept. 28 at noon.

Iowa began the season with loads of positive momentum, winning its first three games, including a 3-1 victory over No. 20 Dartmouth. After a frustrating 2-1 road loss to Boston College, the Hawks recovered beautifully with an overtime home win against Idaho. Despite being overpowered by the Michigan teams, the they hope to get back on the winning track.

Iowa will meet Northwestern holding a 3-2-0 series lead over the Wildcats. The 'Cats are 0-2 in the Big Ten after a Sept. 20 loss to last year's conference champion, Penn State. Last weekend, Northwestern also lost to Ohio State, 2-1, at home.

Ashleigh Garmon, a sophomore forward, leads the Wildcats with four goals and one assist. Goalie Susie McCreery has allowed seven goals and recorded 22 saves and three shutouts on the season.

Iowa coach Carla Baker hopes her team can put last weekend's losses behind it as the Hawkeyes get ready for this weekend's games.

"We need to really prepare for Northwestern after coming home with two conference losses," Baker said. "It will be a difficult match because they have some talented players. Whichever team can impose its style of play and capitalize on its scoring opportunities should win the contest."

Currently undefeated Illinois State holds a 1-0 series record over the Hawkeyes. The Redbirds recorded two 2-0 shutouts against Northern Iowa and Xavier last weekend.

Illinois State comes into the game with a very balanced attack; eight of its players have scored at least one goal. Annie Wayland, a senior, leads the Redbirds with two goals and two assists. Wayland is the all-time leading goal scorer in the Missouri Valley Conference with 52 goals.

Allison Farrington tends goal for Illinois State, starting five of six games. She's limited her opponents to only three goals, and she boasts 26 saves along with three shutouts.

Curtis Lehmkul/The Daily Iowan
Iowa's Courtney Wilkerson dribbles against an Idaho defender in Iowa's overtime victory over the Vandals on Sept. 13.

"Illinois State is a good non-conference opponent," Baker said. "We're going to have to recuperate after the Northwestern game when we travel to their place. We need to do the things that we do well, and create numerous scoring opportunities, and finish on them. It will be an exciting game, and we look to avenge last season's defeat."

Tonight's game will take place under the lights at the Iowa Soccer Complex, where the Hawkeyes are currently undefeated.

Men's cross-country faces elite field

BY JEROD LEUPOLD
THE DAILY IOWAN

Twenty-eight teams from the West Coast to the East Coast will partake in a cross-country battle royale Saturday in Minneapolis.

Teams hailing from Washington, Texas, and Rhode Island will join Big Ten squads from Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan State, Ohio State, and host Minnesota. Twenty teams are nationally ranked, and they all are gunning for one thing — to be champion of the Roy Griak Invitational.

Just to add an extra-incentive to the eight-kilometer test of endurance, there's more at stake: "At large" points may be reaped. The United States is divided into nine regions, and the top two teams in each region are annually invited to the NCAA championships. Thirty-one teams in total go to the national stage, leaving 13 other squads.

Those 13 are offered a slot depending on how well they have competed against teams from other regions. That is why a crush of bodies will be jockeying this weekend. The Roy Griak Invitational is second only to the Pre-National Invitational in importance. For the Iowa men's team, this will be the first real test.

The Hawks' season is only two meets old, and some Hawkeyes will face their first major competition this weekend.

"We have a lot of young runners; we're throwing them into the meat grinder," coach Larry Wieczorek said. "I think they'll do well."

Iowa's resilience and talent are already emerging. The Hawkeyes captured second place at the Northern Illinois Invitational, losing only to No. 4 Wisconsin. At an unscored Iowa State Open, the Hawkeyes placed first. The accomplishment was made more impressive by packing seven runners in the top 10. True freshman Micah VanDenend was named cross-country men's athlete of the week.

This meet also marks the first overnight voyage of the season. Iowa will leave this morning and arrive in the afternoon in Minneapolis. After checking into their hotel, runners will "pace" the course, to examine the hills and turns. Runners need to know the location of open ground for bursts of speed and hairpin turns to shave off seconds.

Last year, Iowa placed 24th out of 36 teams; four Hawkeyes return to Roy Griak. Dan Haut placed 119, Anthony Rakaric 163, Joe Welter 199, and Dan Trainor 209 out of 311 striders.

Saturday, the gun goes off at noon to decide who is going to be living large in the "at large" hunt.

Waters swings racket with country's best

This weekend: Iowa men's tennis player Stuart Waters will compete in the Baylor Intercollegiate. Waters will face many top national players in this six-player, double-elimination tournament, which features 11 players from the International Tennis Association's preseason Top 100 national rankings. Competition will begin today.

On Waters: Waters finished last year at 21-15 in the No. 1 position for Iowa. A Big Ten honoree, the senior is ranked No. 66, but he has gotten off to a rocky start with a 1-2 record.

Coach's comment: "This is a great honor for Stuart. He has the chance to record some quality wins against the nation's top competitors," Steve Houghton said.

Women's tennis opens season in S. Carolina

This weekend: The Iowa women's tennis team heads to the Furman Invitational in Greenville, S.C. This season-opener for the Hawkeyes features six national teams: Furman, Vanderbilt, South Carolina, Clemson, Middle Tennessee State, and Wisconsin. Competition will begin at 9 a.m. today.

On Iowa: Despite the loss of last year's top player, Toni Neykova, the Hawkeyes have a promising team. With the leadership of senior Steffi Hoch and juniors Cassie Haas and Deni Alexandrova, the women hope to build off of their fourth-place Big Ten finish last year. Junior Jennifer Hodgman, sophomore Jenny Schulte and Gloria Okino, and freshman Chelsea Glynn will be called upon to help improve on the squad's No. 52 ranking.

On Furman: The Lady Paladins will host the tournament this weekend, boasting a 23-4 record and No. 46 ranking. Furman, which finished atop the Southern Conference last year, returns six athletes.

On Clemson: Clemson comes to the Furman Invitational ranked No. 34. The Tigers' No. 1 singles player is Alix Lacelarie, who is ranked No. 31 and comes armed with a 28-13 record.

On Vanderbilt: Featuring five ranked players, No. 7 Vanderbilt is the most decorated team in the tournament. The Commodores' star player is No. 14 Sarah Riske, who finished her last season at 26-10; she is reigning champ of the top flight at the Furman Invitational.

On South Carolina: The Gamecocks also open their season this weekend. Ranked at No. 16, South Carolina finished 17-8 last season. The team's only ranked player is No. 63 Kathy Boyanovich, who posted a 17-7 record last season.

On Middle Tennessee State: Middle Tennessee State finished last season 13-10. Sophomore Jennifer Klaschka finished third at the Doctor's Vision Center Invite at UNC-Wilmington last weekend.

— by Michelle Yong

On Wisconsin: Iowa's Big Ten rival returns this year with seven letter-winners from last year's squad. The Badgers finished second in the Big Ten last year behind Northwestern. Top player Linde Mues also returns ranked No. 12 in the Midwest region. Badgers coach Patti Henderson was the 2002 Big Ten Coach of the Year.

Coach's comment: "We are looking forward to competing. The team made good progress this fall, but there's nothing like the real thing," Paul Wardlaw said. "The Furman Invitational will be a strong tournament where we will be tested."

Men's golf tees off in Bloomington tourney

This weekend: The Hawkeyes will journey to Bloomington, Ind., to compete in the Northern Intercollegiate, played on the par-71 Indiana University Golf Course. Saturday's play includes 36 holes and a 9 a.m. shotgun start; play will resume on Sept. 29 at 9:30 a.m., when the remaining 18 holes will be played.

On Iowa: Iowa's lineup includes seniors Aaron Krueger, Bo Anderson, and Mike Tapper, junior Erik Feldick, and sophomore Luke Miller. Veterans Anderson and Tapper will replace redshirt freshmen Brian DeBuhr and Andy Tiedt, who competed at the Hawkeyes' previous tournament, the Badger Invitational. Krueger led the way for Iowa at the Badger Invitational with a three-day score of 220.

On the competition: The Northern Intercollegiate will provide the Hawkeyes with a preview of the Big Ten championships in two ways. First, all but two Big Ten teams, Purdue and Northwestern, will compete this weekend. Second, the Big Ten meet will also take place Indiana's course.

Coach's comment: "We need to go out there and beat as many teams as we can," Terry Anderson said. "My guys are ready to compete. They've got to get off to a good start, grind it out, and give it their best effort."

NBA BRIEF

Sound familiar? Jordan announces he'll play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Jordan plans to play another season with the Washington Wizards, confident his 39-year-old knees are healthy enough to allow him to finish his contract with the team.

"My love for the game of basketball continues to drive my decision," Jordan said in a statement released by the Wizards. "Physically I am feeling very strong, and I feel that the steps I took in the off-season have allowed me to return to the game in great condition."

The statement lacked the drama and magnitude of Jordan's announcement a year ago, when he ended a 3½-year retirement by resigning from the Wizards' front office so he could resume his playing career.

Jordan is returning as a projected backup. Coach Doug Collins said he has spoken to Jordan about using him as a sixth man at shooting guard, and he's said he doesn't want to use Jordan at small forward because of the physical demands of playing against better defenders.

With Jordan, however, such plans are never a certainty. Last season, whenever Collins, trainers, or even Jordan himself tried to limit his playing time, his competitiveness would get the better of him. He exceeded his projected minutes almost every night.

Jordan will turn 40 in February, though, and the Wizards have added some talent since the end of last season. They acquired point guard Larry Hughes, shooting guard Jerry Stackhouse, and small forward Bryon Russell to start on the perimeter.

"No decisions have been made as to my exact role on the team," Jordan said in the statement. "But I expect that Coach Collins will make those assessments next week in training camp."

Jordan signed a two-year contract when he came out of retirement for a second time last year, but he'd worked so hard getting back in shape that his knees weren't ready for the rigors of a full NBA season.

He played 60 of 82 games and started 53, while trying to hide the pain and discomfort he felt in both knees. His right knee had to be drained of fluid several times, and he had surgery on the knee in February.

Cross country runs in Great American race

This weekend: The Iowa women's cross-country team travels to Charlotte, N.C., to compete in the Great American Cross-Country Race on Friday. The 5,000-meter race will begin at 7 p.m. at the Ballantyne Resort.

On Iowa: Iowa's top seven runners will be sophomores Katie Donlon and Michelle Sokol, juniors Sarah Arens, Atalie Barber, and Georgia Millward, and seniors Michelle Lahann and Ericka Roberts.

On the competition: The Hawkeyes will meet 25 teams. Top-ranked Brigham Young University will be on of 10 nationally ranked teams: North Carolina State (6), Arkansas (7), Duke (8), Northern Arizona (10), William and Mary (13), Colorado State (20), Columbia (23rd), Virginia (26), and Coastal Carolina (30).

Coach's comment: "I am hoping that the athletes will respond to a challenge in this type of competition," Wayne Angel said. "They are going to go out there, and compete tough, and do the best they can. We are going to see how we will do against the best teams in America. Hopefully, after this meet, we will be ranked in the Midwest regional polls."

A's win West, Angels finally clinch AL wild-card berth

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — On their fifth try, the Anaheim Angels finally clinched their first playoff berth since 1986.

Garret Anderson, Tim Salmon, and Scott Spiezio homered as the Angels stopped their skid with a 10-5 victory over the Texas Rangers.

With the score 2-2 in the fifth, Salmon hit a tiebreaking infield single, and Anderson hit a three-run homer off Colby Lewis (1-3). Salmon and Spiezio hit two-run homers in the seventh.

Before Salmon's fifth-inning hit, the top three batters in Anaheim's lineup — David Eckstein, Darin Erstad, and Salmon — were a combined 0-29 in the series.

Rookie John Lackey (9-4) allowed three runs and seven hits in five-plus innings, leaving after giving up consecutive singles at the start of the sixth.

Oakland 5, Seattle 3

SEATTLE — Scott Hatteberg hit a two-out, two-run double in the 10th inning as the Oakland Athletics beat the Seattle Mariners to clinch the AL West title for the second time in three years.

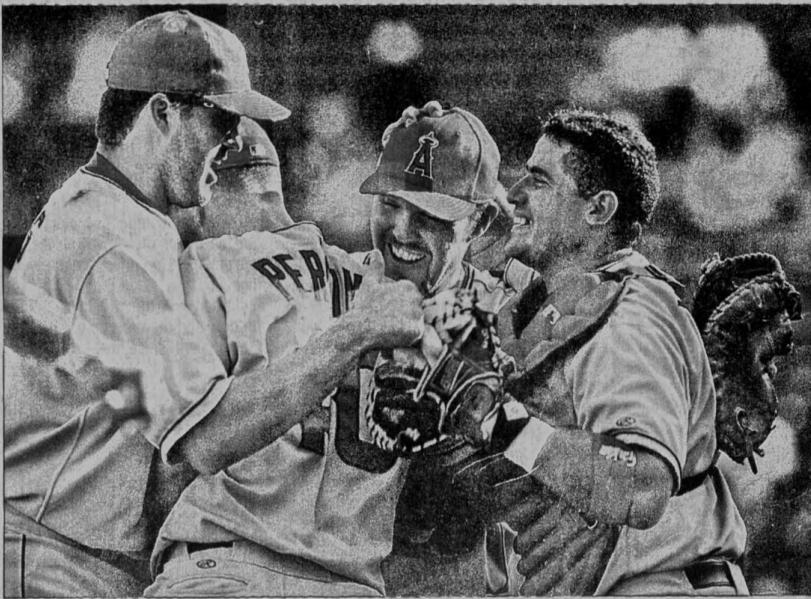

After Hatteberg's hit off Shigetoshi Hasegawa (8-3) put Oakland ahead 4-2, Miguel Tejada had an RBI single. Tejada, who went 4-5, had tied the score with a one-out solo homer in the ninth off Kazuhiro Sasaki, who blew a save for the eighth time in 45 chances.

Seattle was eliminated from post-season contention about 15 minutes before the start of Thursday's game when Anaheim beat Texas.

White Sox 3, Boston 2

CHICAGO — Dan Wright won his fourth-straight start, and Magglio Ordonez hit his 38th homer, giving Chicago a club-record 217, as the White Sox beat the Boston Red Sox 3-2 in their home finale.

Wright (14-12) took a two-hit shutout and a 3-0 lead into their eighth, but Boston loaded the bases on a walk, Freddie Sanchez's infield hit, and a hit batter. Benny Agbayani followed with a two-run single off Antonio Osuna.

Anaheim Angels' Troy Glaus, from left, Troy Percival, Scott Spiezio and Bengie Molina celebrate their 10-5 victory over the Texas Rangers that gave Anaheim its first playoff berth in 16 years.

Ordonez hit a two-run homer in the sixth off Josh Hancock (0-1), who allowed three runs and six hits in his first major-league start.

Cincinnati 1, Cubs 0

CHICAGO — Danny Graves became the latest pitcher to contain Sammy Sosa, scattering four hits over six innings in the Cincinnati Reds' 1-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Sosa went 1-4 with a strikeout and two groundouts.

Sosa got his first hit of the series — a ball that barely made it out of the infield, glancing off Graves' glove.

Montreal 4, Florida 3

MONTREAL — Jamey Carroll singled home the go-ahead run in the sixth inning to lift the Montreal Expos over the Florida Marlins.

Vladimir Guerrero had a single in four at-bats. Derrek Lee hit a two-run homer for the Marlins.

Lee hit his 27th homer off Tony Armas Jr. (12-12) with two outs in the sixth to put the Marlins up 3-2. Brad Wilkerson led off the bottom half with a double off Brad Penny (8-7). Wilkerson scored one out later to tie it at 3 on Wil Cordero's single.

Cordero stole second and advanced on Endy Chavez's sacrifice before Carroll singled to restore Montreal's one-run lead.

Toronto 5, Baltimore 1

TORONTO — Esteban Loaiza pitched a five-hitter for his third complete game of the season as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Baltimore Orioles.

Carlos Delgado homered and hit an RBI double for the Blue Jays, who have won four straight to improve to 41-32 since the All-Star break.

Former Toronto star Pat Hentgen (0-4) lost his fourth-consecutive start for the Orioles, who have dropped nine in a row and 29 of 33.

Tampa Bay-Yankees, rained out

NEW YORK — The game between the Tampa Bay Devil Rays and New York Yankees was rained out Thursday night, forcing a possible makeup the day after the scheduled end to the regular season.

The game would be made up only if it would determine the home-field advantage in the AL championship series. The Yankees (100-58) began the day one game ahead of Oakland (99-59).

Mets-Pittsburgh game canceled

PITTSBURGH — The New York Mets at Pittsburgh Pirates game was rained out Thursday night and will not be made up.

Gamez leads by one stroke at Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Robert Gamez had nine birdies and shot 7-under-par 63 to take a one-stroke lead over John Huston and Frank Lickliter after the opening round of the Texas Open on Thursday.

D.A. Weibring was two shots back at 65, while Mark Brooks, Joel Edwards, Rory Sabbatini and David Morland ended the day at 66 on the par-70 La Cantera Golf Club course in the hills north of San Antonio.

Gamez, who started on the 10th hole, had six birdies in his first nine holes and was 5-under at the turn.

He parred the next four holes before a birdie on the 494-yard, par-5 No. 5 hole pulled him into a tie with Huston. He fell back after missing a short putt for par on the par-3 6th, but made birdies on Nos. 7 and 8 to take the lead.

PENN STATE

Iowa defensive back Scott Boleyn tackles Utah State's Gary Coleman in the Hawkeyes' 48-7 victory on Sept. 21.

But the Lions won five of their final seven games in 2001, and they have begun this season a perfect 3-0, including an impressive 40-7 victory over Nebraska on Sept. 14.

"They're back to being Penn State like you think of," Ferentz said of the program, which won two national championships in the 1980s.

That resurgence is due in large part to the emergence of sophomore quarterback Zack Mills. Mills edged out Matt Senneca for starting duties shortly after Iowa defeated Penn State, 24-18, a year ago, and after some growing pains emerged as the Nittany Lions' leader on offense. The Nittany Lions have the second-best scoring offense in the conference behind Iowa, averaging nearly 39 points per game, in large part because of Mills' performance.

"Zack is a smart kid who wants to be good, understands the game, and is not a hard kid to coach," Paterno said.

"Ferentz said Mills has helped give the Lions an identity on offense, one that features multiple weapons with Mills, running back Larry Johnson, and wide receivers

Bryant Johnson and Tony Johnson.

"It's Johnson, Johnson, and Johnson, and all three Johnsons are good Johnsons," Ferentz said.

With so many options on offense, the Nittany Lions will pose a hefty challenge for an Iowa defense that remains largely untested. The Hawkeyes have allowed just 47 yards per game rushing but a Big Ten-high 305 yards passing. Ferentz plays down those statistics by pointing out most of the teams Iowa played in the nonconference season were pass-oriented teams that did not run the ball. That, he said, will change now that the Hawkeyes have begun Big Ten play.

But Iowa isn't the only team with a suspect defense. Penn State ranks ninth in total defense, having allowed an average of 398 yards per game, including 119 per game on the ground. Paterno calls Iowa running back Fred Russell a "big-time back" and knows, whether or not the dinged-up Russell plays Saturday, Iowa's offensive line will make sure whoever carries the ball has plenty of room to maneuver.

"They're very patient, and the backs have an awful lot of confidence in that offensive line," Paterno said. "They think something is going to open up because those kids hang on to the blocks."

Russell, who along with Ohio State's Maurice Claret leads the conference in rushing, did not suit up for Iowa's 48-7 victory over Utah State last weekend because of an injured shoulder and sprained ankle. He told reporters on Tuesday he was feeling better and would be ready to play this weekend.

Ferentz said Saturday's game will prove to be a great opportunity for the Hawkeyes after a 3-1 start in the non-conference season.

"Everybody's undefeated now," he said.

Game notes: Saturday will mark Penn State's 10th season as a member of the Big Ten conference ... Since joining the conference in 1993, the Lions are 83-29. Only Ohio State and Michigan have better overall records during that time ... Last week's victory over Louisiana Tech was Penn State's 200th victory at Beaver Stadium since the team moved to its new location in 1960 ... Tailback Larry Johnson has rushed for over 100 yards in back-to-back games. Johnson is third in the Big Ten in rushing with an average of 120.7 yards per game ... Gerry Hart, the father-in-law of Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz, was a high-school football teammate of Joe Paterno at Brookline Prep.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Henry Miller ran 25 yards for a touchdown on the second play of overtime as Louisville upset No. 4 Florida State in a steady downpour Thursday night.

Anthony Floyd intercepted a pass by Chris Rix near the goal line a play earlier to set up Miller's run.

The Cardinals (3-2) spilled onto the field after finishing one of the biggest wins in school history. Most of the rain-soaked crowd of 38,109 followed them and brought down the goal post behind the north end zone.

The Seminoles were the highest ranked team to play in the 4-year-old Papa John's Cardinal Stadium.

things like the language and crossing streets are so much different. And looking back, I don't know how I actually made friends. You have to go out and find your way, but it's much better to do it that way — I wouldn't want to be babied.

"I've grown up a lot faster than I would have in England."

Bennett shares Holmes' resilient attitude.

"Your family is only a phone call away, but you have to stay and deal with your problems here," she said. "Laura being here has made life a lot easier. That's been a big advantage."

Adapting to the American style of golf is an ongoing challenge for Holmes and Bennett. Returning to England in the summer made the obstacle even more imposing by preventing the two from spending valuable time learning the nuances of American golf.

"It's very different here," Holmes said. "There's a lot more match play in England, and down South [in the United States] they have a different kind of grass, which makes the whole game different. We have to learn different shots, so we may need to put in a bit more work than the rest of the team. While the other girls play here constantly in the summer, we just play tournaments, practice, and try to do school at the same time."

"We don't have as much time to focus on it."

This makes their success at Iowa all the more remarkable.

Holmes and Bennett finished last year with the Hawkeyes' second- and third-best overall scoring averages, and Holmes was named Iowa's Most Valuable Player her freshman year. They played in both events the Hawkeyes competed in this fall and said they will enjoy hosting this weekend's tournament at Finkbine Golf Course.

"I love this tournament, and it's always fun having it in Iowa City," Holmes said. "The adrenaline is already pumping for me."

The two were divided about their post-college plans. Holmes, who won't return to England next summer, expressed a desire to remain in the United States, perhaps relocating to Chicago.

Bennett said she would enjoy returning to England and living in London. Neither was sure of what role golf would play in their lives.

But there was one thing the two did agree upon — they both love Iowa, but they are English, first and foremost.

"I love Iowa City," Holmes said. "People don't realize how much Iowa has to offer."

"But my heart will always be in England."

Another force in Iowa's arsenal will likely come from Jitka Stehnova, who has stepped into the setter position, filling a major problem area the team battled during last season.

"Jitka's been able to step up because everyone else around her is running a really balanced offense," Buck-Crockett said.

Also advantageous for the Hawkeyes is the return of sophomore Amoreena Reynolds, who missed five matches because of an injury. Reynolds, whose one-block-per-game average ranks second on the team, is expected to start.

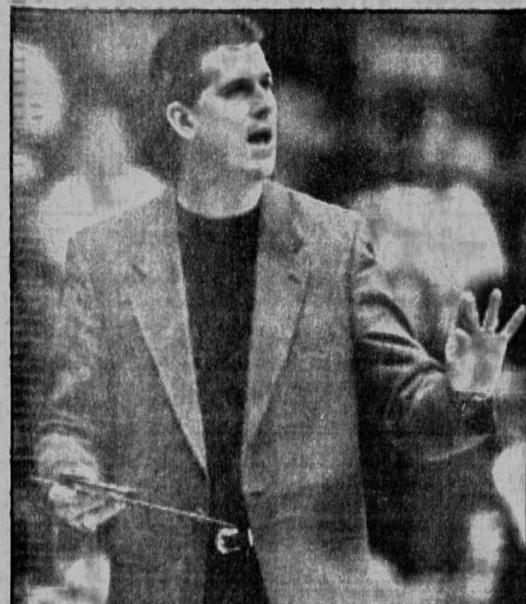

Buck-Crockett and crew are scheduled to begin play at 7 p.m. Admission is $3.

SPORTS BRIEF

Woods teams with Azinger in Ryder

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England (AP) — Tiger Woods will team with Paul Azinger in the opening match of the Ryder Cup today, facing two Europeans who have beaten him before.

Woods and Azinger will play the first better-ball match against Darren Clarke and Thomas Bjorn when the United States begins defense of its title at The Belfry.

David Duval and Davis Love III will face Sergio Garcia and Lee Westwood in the second match, followed by Scott Hoch and Jim Furyk against Colin Montgomerie and Bernhard Langer, and Phil Mickelson and David Toms versus Pdraig Harrington and Niclas Fasth.

The pairings were announced Thursday by captains Curtis Strange of the United States and Sam Torrance of Europe. The pairings for this afternoon's alternate-shot matches will be announced after the morning matches.

Eight pairs matches will be played Saturday, followed by 12 singles matches Sept. 29.

Today's opening match offers the rare matchup of Woods against two players who have defeated him in the past two years.

Bjorn, of Denmark, went four rounds against Woods at the 2001 Dubai Desert Classic and beat him by two shots. Clarke, of Northern Ireland, defeated Woods in the final of the 2000 Accenture Match Play Championship in Carlsbad, Calif.

Torrance insisted he didn't put Bjorn and Clarke out first in hopes of facing Woods, who is 3-6-1 in Ryder Cup matches.

"I had no idea where [Strange] would put Tiger," he said. "But thanks for reminding me. I'll remember that for the team meeting tonight. That might be my best point."

Strange had his own reasons for pairing Woods with Azinger.

"Woods and Azinger were put out first because they both play fast and wanted to get out there and go," Strange said. "And I had pretty good bookends with Tiger Woods starting out and Phil Mickelson bringing up the rear end. So I have a nice flow out there."

How to avoid catching strep or mono

- Don't go to Student Health
- When checking your e-mail, scan any attachments that might be carrying the strep virus.
- Remember: Getting to first base carries an inherent risk of acquiring mono. Subsequent bases are much safer.
- Try to start a surgical mask fashion trend.
- To avoid being directly hit by a cough, run to class in a zig-zag fashion.
- If there is any chance that your roommate may infect you, launch a violent attack on her or him as a pre-emptive measure.
- To lessen the risk of breathing in germs, try avoiding all respiration whatsoever.
- Stay the hell away from me.
