City offers fiber deal on pickup of 10,000 fibers

BY LAURA JENSEN

Iowa City has extended an offer to Johnson County to connect the city and county administrative buildings in a fiber-optic cable system. The project, which the Board of Supervisors hopes to complete next year, will cost $100,000 and will be paid for by the city's Central Technology Fund with the contract to install the technology.

The project will be funded under the auspices of the Statewide Fiber Optic Network (SFON), which is also providing the fiber-optic cable system.

The project would include four nodes of service, one in the city hall, one in the county courthouse, one in the library and one in the Board of Supervisors' offices. Each node would have a dedicated fiber optic line to the other nodes.

The city would be able to connect to the state's fiber network and the internet, providing a faster and more reliable connection for its employees.

The city estimates the cost of the project at $100,000, and the project is expected to be completed within one year.

Prisoners toll of further attacks
WASHINGTON (AP) — John Walker Lindh and Taliban sympathizers tell U.S. interrogators the Sept. 11 hijackers were supposed to be the first of three increasingly serious attacks against Americans. Their claim has not been corroborated, government officials said Wednesday.

Lindh will be sentenced today. He faces 20 years to life for supplying services to the Taliban and conspiracy to murder Americans. He received a 30-year sentence for a separate weapons conviction.

Volleyball team takes road trip for redemption

BY ALI NOLLER
THE DAILY IOWAN

Despite falling to last-place in the Big Ten last season with two losing conference matches, Iowa's women's volleyball team has optimism about the future of the team.

"We played the No. 1 team in the nation three times," senior Michelle Moriarty said, referring to both Michigan and Purdue. "At Michigan, the score was 20-20 when the Hawkeyes blew a big lead. We were still in the game and just couldn't make plays. Purdue was 3-0 against us, but we were close. We were just not able to put together a big run to win a match. We played well overall, but we can't let them go unchallenged."

The Hawkeyes may feel the sting of not qualifying for the NCAA Tournament again, but they are focused on redeeming their performance in the Big Ten.

The Hawkeyes will take on Michigan and Purdue in a home-and-home series this weekend, looking to bounce back from last year's losses.

Iowa State is looking to build on its recent success, but the Cyclones' young nuclei may face challenges from experienced opponents.

Iowa State's年轻的 nucleus includes sophomores Jordan Hedges and Montana Tuma, who are starting to make an impact on the court.

"The Cyclones' young core is stepping up and making contributions," said Iowa State coach MacKey Brown. "They are learning on the fly and showing improvement."

But Iowa State will face tough competition from established programs like Iowa and Wisconsin.

The Hawkeyes and Badgers are both preparing for their home openers, which will take place on Friday and Saturday, respectively.

"We are excited to face Iowa and Wisconsin," Brown said. "These are two big games for us, and we want to prove ourselves against these elite programs."

ROUGH BIG TEN

Rough Big Ten start motivates soccer team for weekend

By Katie Low
The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeye soccer team entered the Big Ten with a 2-1 record after last weekend's games. They are looking to continue their momentum this weekend with home games against Northwestern and Minnesota.

"Last weekend was a great start," said coach Bobby Valentine. "We need to continue our good form and build on what we accomplished."

The Hawkeyes will host Northwestern on Saturday at 1 p.m. and Minnesota on Sunday at 1 p.m. in Iowa City.

"Northwestern is a tough team," Valentine said. "They have a strong defense and quick counterattack. We need to be ready for their challenges."

But the Hawkeyes are confident in their ability to compete with top Big Ten teams. They are looking to build on their recent success and continue their upward trajectory in the conference.

Badgers face first test tomorrow

BY ANDREA SZULSZTEYN

Wisconsin has gotten off to its best start under coach Barry Alvarez.

The No. 10 Badgers are 6-0 heading into the true opener against No. 20 Penn State on Saturday. Wisconsin has started 6-0 twice before, in 1967 and 1996, but the team has struggled when it’s week 8 and 4-0 in the Big Ten.

Back in 1996, Wisconsin was 1-0 in the Big Ten when it faced Penn State at home that season. Coach Barry Alvarez was in his first year in charge.

Will a quick start in 2002 produce the same success?

The Niners Likely certainly produce the biggest challenge for the Badgers.

The Badgers are as high as No. 15 in both major polls, which already has earned its win total from last season.

Penn State on Saturday is the final ranked team the Badgers face in their first two games.

The Badgers will be tested by the Nittany Lions, which averaged 25-17 in their seven losses last season. The Lions are expected to contend for the Big Ten West crown.

Another conference team that the Badgers were 6-2. Play better, we will start.

Dolphins, Patriots battle for supremacy in weak AFC East

BY DAVE GOLDBERG

A week ago, the Miami Dolphins and New England Patriots looked unbeatable, heading into two-week showdowns.

Now both are 3-1, but the game is still huge in the AFC East, where, with the early demise of the Jets, these two look to battle it out.

The Dolphins are favored by three, the standard award for trademarked advantage. But their winning streaks—four and eight, respectively—have been displaced by injuries, a couple of key losses for Miami last month and being sidelined at crucial junctures for New England.

The problems the team faces are the least six Miami players who saw significant time last week, displaced fracture below his right pinkie. He will need surgery to repair a small tendon in the finger. The team refused to comment on whether Sprewell had surgery.

Knicks off to rough start

BY CHRIS SHERIDAN

The Knicks 14-13 record is not much of an achievement considering the talent and money invested.

The New York Knicks have shown they are not ready to compete with the league's elite. Their defense is weak, their offense is erratic, and their decision-making is questionable.

The Knicks have struggled to find a rhythm on both ends of the court. They have lost games to teams they were expected to defeat, and they have blown leads in close contests.

To summarize, the Knicks are in a rough start to their season. They need to improve their defense, develop consistency on offense, and make better decisions throughout the game.

The Rams' Kurt Warner says he would like to be back in five weeks.

Warner hopes to return sooner than doctors' estimates.

ASSOCIATE PRESS

ST. LOUIS — The doctors say Kurt Warner won't be back under center for the St. Louis Rams for about five weeks, but the two-time MVP isn't paying attention to their programs.

Warner figures he'll take just five weeks for the broken little finger on his throwing hand to heal.

"I believe that it's going to be sooner," the former Northern Iowa and Iowa Hawkeye quarterback said. "Last time, I was out for just five weeks and came back. So I'm believing that I'll be out that quick if not quicker. I'm going to stand by that."

Warner broke the finger during the Rams' 10-10 tie last Sunday in Detroit, when, he braggingly added, he hit a Detroit defensive back in the face the week before Oakland defensive backs were attacking Warner's right hand to heal.

"I'm going to do whatever I can," Warner said Monday during a news conference at the Rams' practice facility. "I'm going to fight through this and I'm going to fight through it as fast as possible."

Doctors who performed surgery on Warner's finger this week said the latest injury will take longer to heal because the finger was broken in three places and was displaced.

"I'm going to do whatever I can to get back as soon as possible," Warner said. "I'm one of those guys that believes in fighting through things and not letting things stop you."

Warner was back at the Rams' practice facility the day after Tuesday's surgery, with his right hand in a large splint. He told breaking the smallest bone in his right arm "the whole offensive line is on my back after it happened."

Miami hosts CART races this weekend

BY TIM REYNOLDS

MIAMI — Driven by a desire to turn their track around after seven years of limited success, Miami officials are counting on this weekend's CART event to be a turning point in what they hope is a new era for motorsports in the city.

“Obviously it's a big deal to us,” Miami City Manager James C. Borel said. “We've been trying to do as a city.”

Borel added that the event from happening along the waters of Biscayne Bay in Miami Beach's Bayfront Park area. Hemiedeest deeply wanted an opportunity to prove to him and the city that the Hawkeyes were more than a team of记录 poor play one day later event promoters the city could not enter such a plan.

Those plans were adopted two years ago [that] for whatever reason, left. Now it's come back to us, Borel said. "We have all kinds of opportunities to bid out to bid," Lopez said. "This is a permit," Diaz said this year's event is going to go off without a hitch.

In the parking area Thursday morning, it was largely empty, except for a few stray cars and a few people.

And if anyone knows offensive lines, it’s the Hawkeyes, under Ferentz’s offensive line coach since 1981-1983. Ferentz pre- viously coached the Big Ten’s best offensive line in 1999 at Wisconsin before coming to Iowa in 2000. He went on to coach the No. 1 line for the NFL’s Cleveland Browns-Baltimore Ravens franchise before coming back to Iowa to fill the same role.

“Toum of all my seniors at the University of Iowa and the NFL to Ferentz,” said former Hawkeyes and NFL All-Pro linebacker Ahmad Black.

This year’s offensive line is one of the best in the Big Ten, featuring multiple All-Big Ten selections and All-American candidates.

For the Hawkeyes, the offensive line is not just about statistics and numbers. It’s about chemistry, communication, and teamwork.

“As a unit, we work hard to get everyone on the same page,” said Steinbach.

With top players returning from last season, the Hawkeyes are expected to dominate on offense. The line is key to the team’s success, as it protects quarterback and opens holes for the running game.

“I really love it,” said Nelson. “Being on the offensive line, you’re always the first to hit and the last to leave. It’s a physical battle every day, and I love it.”

The Hawkeyes hope to continue their success on offense, led by Ferentz and his experienced and talented line.

THE DAILY IOWAN
Ohio State at Northwestern: If you only stay home to watch one college football game, make it this one. The Buckeyes reigned supreme in 2015 and have a good chance to do so again. They’re a program I give up, making the Wildcats play the No. 2 Buckeyes should be classified as a pretender out of Ohio State’s shadow. A lot may be riding on Saturday’s outcome, and if the Buckeyes lose, it’s a breakdown of the ranking.

Our criticism of Ohio State is that it’s a one-man team. The only team that can(’t) is Northwestern. Coach Pat Fitzgerald, with a strong defense in 143.8 yards per game, around the Woody. The Buckeyes are just dominating. They’re more than just saying that without Jimmy Page. Led Fitzgerald was under the lights at Ryan Field and couldn’t have been more excited when they were to national prominence in the narrowest margins of victory.

It’s hard to believe that they’re still one of the nation’s best teams. Penn State started out 0-4. Joe’s called his troops and, with the help of backup quarter­back Zack Mills, led them to a 35-3 victory. Still one of the nation’s best teams. Penn State should have no trouble rebounding from last week’s setback. Northwestern, though 4-0, has yet to play a tough opponent.

There’s nothing more dangerous than a team coming off a heartbreaking upset loss. The Lions (got 57 second-quarter total points) may go on of two ways. They can either take their frustrations on Northwestern and hang 70 on them or they can get up and go down for the rest of the year (lose, perhaps). Joe Patero’s team do not lose.

Paterno showed why he’s still one of the nation’s best coaches last season when considering the situation, but he couldn’t have been more pleased with what his team has done. Northwestern is a breakdown of the ranking.

Northwestern: Cruel and unusual in Big Ten

Northwestern against Maurice Clarett and Ohio State? No way. They should keep it close, but ultimately Millie will show why half of one of the top quarterback in the country.

Penn State at Wisconsin: No way. They should keep it close but ultimately Millie will show why half of one of the top quarterbacks in the country.

Penn State at Wisconsin: No way.
QB Orton returns to Iowa for his own homecoming

If you're a defensive player, you can get jacked up for a game, but a quarterback, you need to be more level-headed. Kyle Orton, quarterback.

Tiller enters his team traveling to Iowa City this week for his first Homecoming game. The Hawkeyes are "We're going to continually emphasize blocking to the ball without allowing an average of just five turnovers per game," Orton said. "That's the key to a touch of splendor, a victory over Iowa State. We've been close but never able to make it over the hump, and the Big Ten is coming to us."

"The win last Saturday, the confidence that came out of the Wake Forest game," Orton said. "I'm excited to go home and see my family and friends, but he never considered Iowa a home game. That's a role Orton said he's been searching for his entire career. My first wish is that the Buckeyes make yet another journey to Iowa City. The Buckeyes' fans couldn't have a wish come true as a member of the Buckeye family there, it'll be just like that was a little bit more exciting than I was for every other game I've played in."

In every bad horror movie, there's a scene where the hero's parents are driving, and the bad guys are hot on their tail. The parents, in a panic, try to drive faster, but the bad guys are too fast. The parents then release the brakes, only to be eaten by the monsters later.

It's not hard to see that Big Ten play is a metaphor for Iowa basketball. And as much as fans would like to think the Hawkeyes will be able to break out of the slow, methodical style, this team just isn't designed to be fast, and it never will be.

In that sense, it's not hard to understand why coach Kirk Ferentz is running his offense the way he is. The offense is designed to be slow, and it's working. The Hawkeyes have won their last three games, and they've scored at least 20 points in each of those games.

But there's a catch. The offense is designed to be slow, but the defense is designed to be fast. The defense is designed to force turnovers, and it's working. The Hawkeyes have allowed only 11 points in their last three games, and they've won all three.

It's a tough balancing act, but Ferentz is doing his best to make it work. He's running the offense the way he wants to, and he's running the defense the way he wants to.

The result is a team that's hard to beat. The Hawkeyes are 1-0 in conference play, and they've got a chance to win the Big Ten this year. It's not easy, but Ferentz is doing his best to make it work.

Homecoming festivities this week will be capped off with the annual parade Friday, with UI women's basketball coach Lisa Bluder serving as the grand marshal.

"Bluder said that the grand marshal selection process was a ‘rookie’ selection process, with a number of candidates being considered before the decision was made. The selection process was held at the beginning of the season, and Bluder said that she was happy to have been selected this year, and that it was really exciting since there is a lot of excitement surrounding the university and its athletic teams.

"Homecoming is what the college spirit is all about," Pedsbo said. "Whether we win or lose, experience wise, it’s an opportunity to come back and remember the great times of college without the stress of the game." Bluder said.

"This year's theme will be 'Create the Future,' and Homecoming Council members are excited about continuing the parade's long-standing tradition.

"This year's parade will be a little different," Pedbsbo said. "Bluder's success with the women's basketball program didn't hurt." Bluder said.

The committee also chose John Pappajohn as the hon­ored guest this year. Pappa­john is a 1960 UI business man who was named the UI's first alumnus honorary in 1987, a 1994 UI business school alumnus of the year, and an UIHSC. The honored guest is usu­ally someone well-known that the university can be proud of," Bluder said.

The list of previous honored guests made up the Who's Who of Iowa fame, including former UIUHSC and UIHSC football coach Don Crabb, and actor Ben Affleck.

UIUHSC football coach and UIHSC basketball coach Bill Self.

"This is my favorite game of the year," he said. "The festivi­ties and students coming together are what make this game so great."

"I love being a Hawkeye," he added.

2002 Homecoming schedule

• Oct. 4, 6:15 p.m., Homecoming Parade. The parade begins at the corner of Gilbert and Iowa streets, and ends at the corner of Washington and Gilbert streets.

• Oct. 4, Pep Rally (rain or shine). The Pep Rally will be held on the east-side of the Old Capitol follow­ing the parade to start at 8:15 p.m. The Iowa Dance Team, UI cheerleaders, the Iowa Marching Band and mascot Herky will attend. Special guest John Pappajohn will speak and the 2002 Homecoming king and queen will also be crowned.

This year's Homecoming Court includes: Helen Fuller of West Branch; Kristin Tipping of Linn­boom; Laura Furlong of Coralville; Jennifer Blakeslee of West Des Moines; Mary Fuller of West Des Moines; Sam Fuller of West Des Moines; Mike Brooks of West Des Moines; Hannah Englemann of Iowa City; Erin Hartman of Oliver; and Brent Newland of Iowa City.

• Oct. 5, 11:15 a.m., football game. The Hawkeyes take on the Purdue Boilermakers.

• Homecoming buttons can be purchased for $2 at many UI-community businesses and at the University Book Office at the Iowa Memorial Union. Proceeds from the button sales provide the majority of the funds that pay for Homecoming events.

Jeanette Pagel can't talk about dark days in the spring of 1999, without choking up or getting emotional.

"It was a tough time for him," Pagel said. "He was feeling like he wasn't wanted here, he wanted to leave, he wanted to play somewhere else."

Pagel was a junior at Plainfield East High School in Plainfield, Ill., in 1999 when he walked out of a testy meeting with Iowa football coaches.

"I just didn't want to be there anymore," Pagel said. "I just felt like I didn't want to go through that anymore."

Pagel was a safety on the team, but he had struggled to find his role on the team, and he didn't feel like he was contributing to the team.

"I just didn't want to put in the hard work," Pagel said. "I just wanted to go and play and not worry about it."

When some Iowa athletes aren't giving their all on the field, they are giving back to the community. Besides focusing on their sports and academics, they find time to give back to the community, helping children and those less fortunate.

The football team paints sheds, works at soup kitchens, and does other community service around the city. "We still have some support even when we are losing. They are there for us through the good times and the bad times. No matter what, we always get support from Iowa, and we like to show them our appreciation." The Iowa men's and women's basketball teams are involved in Hawkeye Pride through which athletes visit elementary-school classrooms and tutor students or help teachers.

"Our team is always very interested in volunteering and helping. They have positive influences on these children's lives," April Calhoun said. "It's great to put a smile on a young kid's face. We enjoy helping out and giving back to the community."

On Sept. 29, the baseball team participated in the Heart Walk. Participants raise money to fight heart disease and stroke, then walk in the event. "The Heart Walk was a great way for us to give back to the community," baseball player Kyle Thousand said. "I like to show our support for our fans the same way they show their support for us." In the past, many teams have volunteered at the Children's Hospitals, or participated in City of Caring, semi-annual opportunity for Iowa's student-athletes to offer their support to service organizations through the community.

On Oct. 6, the women's basketball team will join forces with Habitat for Humanity to help build a house with other women. "We are a small group as athletes," Becca Thompson said. "Hopefully, with all the positive things we do, other students will follow our lead and also participate in the community.

"It's great to put a smile on a young kid's face. We like to do anything we can to help out."

Nate Kaeding kicking himself into the Iowa record books

BY BRIAN TRIPLETT

THE DAILY IOWAN

Kaeding is a kicker, but he's more than a kicker.

His range is almost 60 yards, and he has hit 35-yarders with the help of the wind.

This year, Kaeding is a perfect 10-10 on field-goal attempts, and he has already accumulated 55 points.

"I'm just worried about helping out this football team and helping it win," Kaeding said. "We get a lot of praise and support for this program, and we need to be able to win.

Success has always been a big part of Kaeding's athletic career, even in his high school days. He grew up in Coralville, and attended Iowa City West High School, where he holds every kicking and punting record. His football team won state championships his junior and senior years, and he racked up a team-high 337 points.

On Sept. 29, Kaeding kicked in his 13th consecutive field goal. That broke his previous school mark of 12, which was set in 2001 against the Nittany Lions.

Kaeding also kicked another field goal in Iowa's 47-24 win against Penn State.

"I think that's a big part of his success," said Kaeding's father, Terry. "He's been kicking himself into the Iowa record books.

Kaeding began the season with 14 points in eight games, and he has hit 35-yarders with the help of the wind.
