Archiving the city's criminal history

BY GRANT SCHULTZ

In many respects, Doug Harr is no ordinary police officer. He is at a desk with a Gateway computer and filing cabinets, leafing through old reports and finding gold-filmed parcels of family in the file. He's one of a group of officers in the Iowa City Police Department who spend a lot of time working on old arrest records.

In his office on the third floor of the department's building, Harr can turn on a computer and pull up an arrest notices from the city's electronic database. He can search for any information from arrests made from 1970 to the present. He can print out any report or record he needs by using a computer.

The police's electronic database is one of two locations where old reports and records are stored - the other is in the department's basement. Older records, such as police reports and arrest records, are stored in the city's electronic database. Newer records, such as police reports and arrest reports, are stored in the department's basement. Newer records, such as police reports and arrest reports, are stored in the department's basement.

Catholics welcome rosary changes

BY LAURA JENSEN
THE DAILY IOWAN

The mystery of light includes Christian baptism, its final seal in Corin, his predicting the coming of the Son of God, and the ascension of Christ in front of three disciples, and the establishment of the church as the universal Church. The combination of rosary and eucharist, which was a sign of faith in Christ, is how it was used in the early monastic mysteries, as later developed in the church. The rosary was used in the world and was used in the early monastic mysteries, as later developed in the church.

The Church of the Holy Family said it is planning on changing the rosary to make it more welcoming to Catholics in the youth and among the faithful. "The rosary says we care about what we call the important mysteries of Christ," said Father John Murphy, a campus minister at the Newman Center.

"The rosary is a very significant tool for prayer," said Father Patrick Shockey, a campus minister at the Newman Center.

Local skaters revel in city's newest park

BY RYAN PARNEILL AND CATHY FLOYD

The old skating rink didn't keep approximately 300 skaters from finding their bears in Iowa City's first permanent skating park on Oct. 26. The Iowa City Skate Park opened Oct. 26 on the north side of the city, attracting and meeting the demands of various enthusiasts of skating.

The park is designed to be a facility to skate, jumping off the ramps, and to travel around the 8,0000-foot path.

"We definitely got a good idea and Iowa City needed and skater and Justin Walters, 15, of Iowa City said every day before it even opened, and it's not going to be shut down in 30 days skating the park.

The 11,000-square-foot skate park is made up of ramps, bowls, and rails, and has the ability to skate some new tricks.

A few skaters have complained about a particular substance on the spots, but the skaters have revealed it is a substance used to prevent the ground from slipping.

"It's great to know that we can still have a new skate park," said Josh Josephson. "It's like a good place and we can have fun there."

Iowa City's new skate park, located across Debuca Street from Mayflower, opened up on Oct. 26.

Police said Fears then got into a car and headed east on U.S. 119, trying to get away, but the gunman fired shots into a truck, killing the man in the back seat. Fears was arrested in the roadblock, which widely publicized the news for getting him to tend to his injuries.

Brazil elects leftist in landslide

BY HAROLD OLMOS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAO PAULO, Brazil — Former shipyard worker Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva won Brazil's presidential election Saturday to become the third left-wing leader to take office in the world in less than 24 hours.

The victory was delayed, as Brazil's election tribunal announced Wednesday it would hold a second round of the presidential runoff.

The tribunal had ruled earlier that Brazil's election for president would be延长至 next weekend due to the second round.

The decision came more than a week after the first round of the presidential election, which saw Lula da Silva win by a wide margin.

Lula da Silva, 61, a former steelworker, has been a prominent figure in Brazilian politics for decades and has pledged to address social issues and improve the lives of the country's poor.

He faces former softly spoken Artur Mas, speaking with reporters about Air Force One while returning from a meeting in South Korea.

The president also spoke about the importance of maintaining a strong military presence in the region.

The meeting was held in the context of the upcoming United Nations forum in New York, where international leaders will discuss global security issues.

The president also spoke about his concerns over the ongoing conflict in Afghanistan.

He said the United States and its allies must continue to support the Afghan government and military in their efforts to combat terrorism.

Although the meeting did not produce a definitive plan of action, it was seen as a positive step towards achieving a common goal.

The meeting also touched on the ongoing crisis in the Middle East, with the president emphasizing the need for a diplomatic solution.

He spoke about the importance of regional cooperation and the role of the United Nations in mediating conflicts.

The meeting was also an opportunity for the two leaders to discuss their personal relationships and shared experiences.

Overall, the meeting was seen as a constructive and productive exchange of ideas.

Doctors join on reporting system for health-care errors

WASHINGTON — Doctors believe that reducing medical errors should be a national priority, but they are much less likely than their public to believe in a single problem — and a solution — to the problem, according to a new survey.

The study’s authors’ tone of optimism was tempered by the finding that nearly all physicians believe that it is a matter of time before reporting systems are tested for reporting systems to be effective.

Congress is considering a bill that would mandate that all hospitals that receive Medicare or Medicaid payments be put in place, but support for the bill is so far minimal.

The study was conducted with a mail survey of 1,500 physicians from Massachusetts and 600 other physicians across the United States, as well as a telephone survey of 1,000 Colorado households.

At summit, Bush wins some, loses some

BY RON Fournier

CARO SAN LUCAS, Mexico — A weekend of urgent diplomacy ended Saturday with a string of deals to shore up relations with nations around the world, but the overall outcome was a mixed bag for President Bush, whose administration appears to have failed to galvanize most of the world’s leaders into a united front.

While the president was still sporting a smile Saturday, his ag– reement on the collapse of the election of the winner.

The United States, Mexico and Brazil gathered to work towards a forward-looking relationship with the world, Bush aides say.

The president met with leaders from each of the three countries and agreed to work together on a variety of issues.

Bush said the agreement would be a step forward in the effort to build a more secure and prosperous world.

The presidents also agreed to work together on efforts to combat terrorism, including the sharing of intelligence information.

The meeting was seen as a positive step towards achieving a common goal and strengthening ties with the world’s leaders.

The meeting was also an opportunity for the two leaders to discuss their personal relationships and shared experiences.

Of journeying off the well-worn path

I imagine someone walked across the grass. Imagine scales of color on someone attending out to curving, even patches. There imagine the grass. no pre-made passages, no cut-up roads to skip. No concrete. Only the grass between our toes, under your shoes. Someone says, "Don't walk there." That's what sidewalkers are for. But imagine someone walked across the grass.

Imagine a voice crying out: a message of love instead of hate. Imagine someone taking ownership of their own voice. Imagine her taking ownership of her own life. Do you think you can imagine this? No. Or something else. But don't do it.

Imagine that one woman's courage stiffens the resolve of others. Imagine her taking ownership of her own life. Do you think you can imagine this? No. Or something else. But don't do it.

Good and bad news

I have been reading the last few weeks about the Domestic Violence Intervention Project being sought out to stop all government violence. I have been reading about the recent case involving a domestic violence victim who was killed by her assailant, and I have been reading about the recent case involving a domestic violence victim who was killed by her fellow inmates in a prison. I have been reading about the recent case involving a domestic violence victim who was killed by her fellow inmates in a prison.

Of journeying off the well-worn path

I imagine someone walked across the grass. Imagine scales of color on someone attending out to curving, even patches. There imagine the grass. no pre-made passages, no cut-up roads to skip. No concrete. Only the grass between our toes, under your shoes. Someone says, "Don't walk there." That's what sidewalkers are for. But imagine someone walked across the grass.

Imagine a voice crying out: a message of love instead of hate. Imagine someone taking ownership of their own voice. Imagine her taking ownership of her own life. Do you think you can imagine this? No. Or something else. But don't do it.

Imagine that one woman's courage stiffens the resolve of others. Imagine her taking ownership of her own life. Do you think you can imagine this? No. Or something else. But don't do it.

Imagine someone walking across the grass. Imagine someone walked across the grass.

When the horror flick audience becomes the horror show

The Ring

Inclement weather doesn’t deter dominant rowing team

BY JEROD LEIPOLD

Despite and freezing rain and sleet that blanketed the Hawkeyes rowing team in its last two meets, Iowa remained undefeated. The Hawkeyes competed against Minnesota, Wisconsin, Northwestern, and Ohio State at the Iowa City Regatta Saturday.

"This is pretty good weather," coach March Kowal said. "The water is flat, good for racing. But nobody’s happy for the people who didn’t dress for it and have to stand around."

Despite the 43-degree chill, Iowa posed hard for high places in the women’s open 2+. In the women’s open 4+, Iowa finished fourth with best A and seventh in the B boat. In the women’s novice 4+, Iowa placed fifth with best A and seventh in the B boat.

"We did really well in the open 4+," Kowal said. "Our novice boat was competing versus two Minnesota and Kansas first class boats, and we were fourth."

The Buckeyes took 13 shots on goal and won 4-1. "There were a lot of chances. We were a lot of times unlucky," coach Trent Busch said.

"We had a lot of chances. We just didn’t capitalize," Kowal said. "There was no time that the ball went across an open goal."

Iowa ran the table on the way to a 3-0 victory on the road against Minnesota. Iowa’s field hockey team proved to be too much for Ohio State in double overtime.

"It was an emotional game," coach Mandi Kowal said. "We’re not used to being in double overtime."

Iowa and Minnesota both scored 85 minutes into the game, especially for the seniors, in this last home game of the season.

"It was very emotional," senior Jill Krick said.

"Iowa didn’t score in the extra time, and Minnesota did, which concluded with a Boomerange."

CHICAGO — Wisconsin coach Barry Alvarez knows a thing or two about winning Big Ten titles. Michigan State's Dan Monson knows a thing or two about winning Big Ten titles, too. Alvarez is off to the face of a Big Ten title chase, but Monson's Spartans are just getting started.

1. Alvarez has been around the area long enough to know what Monson is thinking and feeling. He knows that Monson will not be satisfied with the Spartans' 7-11 record last season, when Michigan State finished third in the Big Ten.

2. Alvarez has brought several weapons to the table, including running back Tico Ball and wide receiver Charles Woodson. But Monson has a young team that is still growing.

3. The Spartans have some holes to fill in their secondary, which could be a concern against the Hawkeyes.

Byrd wins first at Buick

BY DOUG FERGUSON

PIKE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — Jonathan Byrd hit his fans with a tee shot and then hit his diet Tuesday at the Buick Challenge, doing both to become the first-time winner on the PGA Tour this year.

The 37-year-old cut down the back nine at Callaway Gardens, Georgia, on the PGA Tour and was within range of the trophy 20 holes starting Monday in relation to par. By the end of the day, he was simply thankful to get his first victory.

David Toms put together a strong round and had an 18-hole birdie on the final hole to force a playoff, but it did over the evening.

Blame that on Byrd, who made 15 birdies and two eagles over four rounds on the rain-soaked Mountain View course. Byrd cooled at 2-under 70 and earned $450,000.

The win was the first because you always knew you can do it,” said the 2004-05 PGA Tour Rookie of the Year on tour. “The greatest thing in the world is to get down when you need them the most.”
