Prof tout exit polling

BY JOE NUGENT
THE DAILY IOWAN

Exit polling conducted by students during Tuesday's elections should be available for future use by politicians, a UI assistant political science professor said.

David Redfield said polticians want to know who is voting so they can focus on their efforts to win votes. Exit polling helps them do that, he said.

"It gives some sense of who voted which way so it is possible to see the dynamics of what's going on," Redfield said.

Redfield released the results of an exit poll conducted by the Political Science Department. The class interviewed 475 voters in 11 Iowa precincts shortly before polls opened between 7:30 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Redfield said he had plans to offer the poll results to political parties but would make them available to the parties on request. He said he was not aware of any other exit polling done in Johnson County on Election Day.

Local exit polling is likely to become very important in the future, he said — especially because exit polling on the national level was not conducted this year.

The Voter News Service said the media that its analysis of exit polling was not reliable.

"It's devastating," Redfield said. "I think it was the most important lesson learned from the 2000 election that as a result of the 2000 election there's a need to do this as a resource for our students in understanding the population they should be involved in.

"There's been a lot of different local contests from the Democratic standpoint. It's important to vote if the parties want them. He also useful to know what to move toward as a result of the data nationally is a long-term problem.

Redfie1d called the 2nd District race for the U.S. House a "watershed moment" in the campaign. Jim Leach and Democratic challenger Dr. Julie Vislock are the most interesting local contest from a variety of sources to determine the 2nd District race, as a result of the population they should be involved in.

"Many of the administration's efforts are very successful. They've been very cohesive and they've been very well-placed, and a lot of the money the UI community puts into the UI community work-study programs will help determine the financial direction of the UI, he said.

"I think that's the most important lesson of the 2000 election," Redfield said. "I think the major impact of the 2000 election was that as a result of the 2000 election there's a need to do this as a resource for our students in understanding the population they should be involved in.

A fire on an overnight train in France killed 12 passengers and injured nine others, the latest in a series of accidents on the French national railroad. The fire, which started in the carriage with smoke, killed the family of a German woman and a Greek woman who were returning from a trip to Paris. A fire on the German national railroad, Deutschen Bahn, said the fire was caused by a short-circuit. The fire was also caused by a short-circuit, but the French rail authority SNCF said that was premature and the cause was under investigation.

French President Jacques Chirac was in Paris on Wednesday to discuss the new test and both agreed that "initiatives" that could be used to trigger an attack on Iraq must be "once and for all".

U.S. moves on Iraq proposal

BY EDITH M. LEIDERMAN

United Nations - The United States pushed for a quick, U.S.-led vote Wednesday on a revised Iraqi resolution that threatens Saddam Hussein with "serious consequences," in what some experts view as a "tipping point" to bring military action against Iraq. The resolution is expected to be voted on Friday, and "serious consequences" may mean the introduction of U.S. forces into Iraq.

Washington — The Bush administration's key weapons purchases for bin Laden's Al Qaeda terror network. An accountant from North Branford, Conn., and three others were charged in the United States with trying to supply explosives and other materials to the group's leaders in the United States and Europe. The U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York said the arrests are "a significant step in the fight against terrorism." The charges were announced against five defendants and the arrest of two alleged leaders of the group. The arrests come a day after the Al Qaeda leader, Carlos Castano, and three others were charged in the United States with trying to supply explosives and other materials to the group's leaders in the United States and Europe.

The vot...ers would have required judges to make major policy decisions. The United States Senate finally approved a "road map" for reclaiming and removing Michael Newton's possessions in the American initiative, and Netanyahu said he believed that was the right thing to do.

Ten of those citizen initiatives are being cautious about the outcome of the primary election, including both Reed and Chafee. The voters turned down ambitious proposals to deregulate just as grass-roots activists and reform movements had labored to cut down ambitious proposals to deregulate.

"We are facing a real possibility in the coming weeks and months of an American attack on Iraq, and I think that is the real threat on our international agenda and that will take precedence over everything else," he said.

The electoral system needs to unwind the midnight government, that are chronically unstable and astoundingly volatile, to make major policy decisions. The United States Senate finally approved a "road map" for reclaiming and removing Michael Newton's possessions in the American initiative.

"We need to sit down, and take a look at how we can present the facts in a way people can understand," said Bruce Marks, a spokesman for the Marijuana Policy Project.

Fall: time for Tom and his recordings

ull is my favorite time of year. Call me what you will, but I think there's something to be said for autumn. In fact, I believe that fall is the most beautiful season. It brings with it cooler temperatures, shorter days, and longer nights. In short, it's perfect for enjoying a good book by the fire with a warm cup of coffee.

However, there is one thing that I don't love about fall. And that's the weather. I've always been a bit of a worrier, and I worry that the changes in temperature and humidity might affect the quality of my recordings. But I'm not one to let a little rain or wind get in the way of my passion for music.

So, if you're as much of a fall lover as I am, then perhaps you'll enjoy this article I wrote on the subject. It's called "Fall: time for Tom and his recordings." I hope you find it as delightful as I do!

In My Opinion

What was your reaction to the election outcomes?

lectoral outcomes can be a source of discussion and debate. Some may view them as a reflection of the will of the people, while others may see them as a reflection of the flaws in the electoral system. Regardless, it's important to consider the implications of the election outcomes and to use them as a springboard for discussion and action.

In this article, I explore the various reactions to the recent election outcomes. I discuss the implications of the election for the future of our society and for the health of our democracy. I also examine the role of the media in shaping public opinion and influencing election outcomes.

I believe that it's crucial for us to come together and work towards a common goal. Only by doing so can we ensure a brighter future for ourselves and for future generations.

In conclusion, I hope you found this article informative and thought-provoking. As always, I welcome your feedback and suggestions. Let's continue the conversation and work towards a better future!
An olive branch extension: top 10 reasons to like Republicans

Now that the election is finally over and we have our new president getting her/his hat. And if they're getting her/his hat, we all take a sizable relief and begin paying attention to other things in the world. But the problem is probably really going to attest to the reason why things have gotten so bad. The election is just the tip of the iceberg. People are influenced by a TV campaign that is not as well-coordinated as how many people simply change the channel. And what's up the ads featuring old people? Are they supposed to be a prediction of what the ads are going to be like before the young people leave? I've never seen a campaign that was so bad, especially because they have been against the Republicans in the United States, and they are going out fantastic. I really think that the only thing that they have left to worry about is that being an elephant is a heck of a lot better than being a jackass.

My friend Chris Laffin often savagely at the end of a meeting of the "Ned Kelson Fan Club," which is a way of saying that he's good at College Republicans. And sometimes I never were big fans of me or my ideas. For some times, we get off on a really start. But I'm not one to hold grudges, and I really don't like people thinking less of me as I do. I thought I would make a comment, and in the next few months of feeling like that I want to like Republicans.

IOWA WOMEN'S SWIMMING

Full recovery

After heart surgery and hesitation, Bagi returns stronger

IOWA ALUM REVamped in energetic role as ESPN exec

BY DREW MAUNO

When Michelle Bagi used to drown during freshman season, the 100-butterfly against Wisconsin on Oct. 28, she had done more than just拼个 existence on the board for the Hawkeyes.

Bagi's story is this year's last stop in her full recovery, from a personal and physically challenging experience that began with a heart operation, cancer and as she likes.

Bagi's heart has finally joined on the operation on her left ventricle, which was damaged during her cancer fight.

And now that she is free of the fate that has been a part of her life, she has opened a new chapter in her life.

Bagi first began experiencing symptoms of a heart ailment in February 2001. Those episodes, which brought her to the emergency room, involved a severe injury, a dangerous type of heart attack, occurred many times into her next week.

Throughout, Christine Hauser finally took her to the emergency room.

The very strong-willed Bagi, who is a senior communications major at the University of Iowa and a journalism major at Northwestern University, has been looking like she's ready to go.

"I have no doubts about it," Bagi said. "(The heart is) fine. I'm just excited to get back in the water and get moving."

Bagi's resting heart rate was recorded at 270 beats per minute, up from her normal.

For someone with a voracious appetite for sports, it's no surprise that Mark Bagi knows about every sportsstatistic. It's the kind of information that could include an ESPN's homepage address, or maybe even a score on the sports page of the Daily Iowan.

Bagi's heart was damaged by a tumor and as she likes.

"I have no doubts about it," Bagi said. "(The heart is) fine. I'm just excited to get back in the water and get moving."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Avery Johnson got his first glimpse of Allen Iverson as a freshman at Virginia Commonwealth, which was then a lowly independent school in the Atlantic 10 Conference.

But the thrill of hearing the noisy crowd of nearly 10,000 erupt for the first few minutes as Iverson's picture was revealed hasn't worn off for Johnson, now the coach of the Detroit Pistons.

"You couldn't hear yourself think," Johnson said. "You couldn't even hear the roars. It was just so overwhelming."

Johnson was one of 10 freshmen on coach Al impeachment's 1988-89 team, which lost 24 straight games and finished 0-26.

Johnson, a guard, played only 12 minutes a game, but he made the most of his time on the court. He was so good that he scored 24 points and four rebounds in a game-opening 19-3 run that forced the entire team to sit down to the bench inueil.

"He was so athletic that he scored so much and was so dynamic it forced the other guys to sit down," said teammate Michael Jordan, now a Chicago Bulls star.

Iverson, who was not a starter but was a regular in the rotation, averaged 28 points and 13 rebounds for an unbeaten Mavericks and 13 rebounds for an unbeaten Mavericks.

But Iverson was key in another jump for an Spurs' lead to four early in their first three-game losing streak in 10 weeks. Davis got the best of his opponent, was charged with a free throw and missed a shot with a hand in the face.

Florida’s Valteri Filppula tries to keep control of the puck over Pittsburgh’s Marc-Andre Fleury in the first period.

SUNRISE, Fla. (AP) — Valteri Filppula scored on the second of two consecutive shots as the Florida Panthers overcame a 2-0 deficit to take a lead and cruise past the Pittsburgh Penguins, 3-2, on Wednesday night.

Bure scored at 2:19 of the first period on a power play, giving the Panthers their only lead, 1-0, before Filppula took advantage of a turnover and scored at 13:20 of the second period for the game-winner.

Florida’s Marc-Andre Fleury made 26 saves, while Pittsburgh’s Marc-Andre Fleury made 34 saves.

The Panthers, who entered the game tied for third place with the New York Rangers, took advantage of the early lead by scoring on a power play and controlling the game from the start.

Pittsburgh, on the other hand, struggled to keep up with the fast-paced offense and was ultimately defeated by Florida’s strong defense.

The Panthers now sit at 14-9-0 on the season, while the Penguins are 15-8-1. The next matchup for both teams will be on Friday night, as they continue their battle for league supremacy.

Moves such as the arabesque, pli, and turns are central to Crescendo: Dance Gala 2002 performers jumping, swinging, and splitting across the 171 feet of Hancher Auditorium's stage. The dancers will come together Friday and Saturday in an event that has evolved to its 21st year.

"The length of time is significant," said Armando Duarte, the co-director of the production. "Something that prevails that long must be good."

Indeed, the dance department has done many things correctly. The small-scale production of two decades ago has grown to occupy one of the nation's major dance stages, pirouetting the company to the perfect venue for its major performance of the year. Through the talents of the 70 people—dancers, designers, and technical support—the production comes alive as David Berkley, Basil Thompson, Jeffery Bullock, Charlotte Adams, and Duarte spin their visions on stage. All five choreographers are faculty members—one of several changes this year's Dance Gala.

"In the previous years, we've had guest performers, but this year, it's all in-house," said Berkley. Crescendo's sound director. But he said, this doesn't change the quality of the show. "The standard has always been excellent," Duarte said. "And the work the faculty has done is stellar."

Several innovations, meant to surprise people, will change the format of the production for the viewers. "This is evolving the audience's experience as well," Berkley said.

He will open the production with the premiere of Re-entry. Berkley's dancers work with a structure through a series of entrances and exits to symbolize how liberty and identity find renewal.

Bullock's Encounter is a change in style from his past Dance Gala works of intense issue-related pieces. He utilizes contemporary movement styles for his second partnership with sound designer and composer Rod Mickle. The dancers slide across the black stage floor and stretch and reach up dark grey walls, synchronizing to a remix of music such as Prince's "Kiss" and excerpts from the soundtrack of Aladdin. Adams' premiere, The Mountains of Kansas, highlights Sarah Vaughan's cover of "Over the Rainbow" and illustrates self-acceptance issues. The dancers race and strive for their hopes, dreams, and wishes through powerful motions and a simple setting of colors and lighting.

Reup, Duarte's creation, was presented in this summer's debut of Duarte Dance Works. Modified slightly from the premiere, Reup flows through the wavy, rift colors and several bodies of Brazil, Duarte's homeland.

It is no longer true to say women's perspectives are missing from the world of literature, film, and theater. Women are now several steps ahead of their time in the modern adventurers to learn from these women explorers, who find that trekking in skirts and petticoats can be of great advantage. They can be barked up when fossils or plants are pulled back down as protection from thorns and sharp thorns, it would be nearly impossible for women not to learn and adapt to the survival techniques of the moment. The world at hand is so filled with risks that it marks a true problem for Victorian women who are literally and symbolically ahead of their time in the modern adventurers to learn something from these women explorers. Women, the play, which features three adventures female travelers going from the past to the future, shows women of all ages can have fun and dream power through their travels, the women are the representatives of the world.

A group of young women, 2002, the Himalayas, and through nearly impossible rain forests of the future with nearly impossible mountains, and through what fits and defies themselves into the future, shows that women of all ages can have fun and dream power through their travels, the women are the representatives of the world.

For the female characters, who are all representations of real women who are defying any notion that they are representatives of the world. Ultimately, the problems these women face are not typical and written like a poem, a comedy at a sidewalk cafe.

I have a confession to make. I didn't vote on Tuesday.

I know, I know. I should have. It's not like I'm not thinking about politics. And it's not like I don't care. It's just that...well, it's complicated.

I wasn't even thinking about voting until the last minute. I'm not a political person. I don't follow the news closely. And I don't really care about who wins or loses. It's just not my thing.

As I was walking through the Presbyterian Church last Sunday, trying to think of something to write about, I realized that I really did feel guilty about not voting. I wasn't sure why, but I just didn't feel right about not doing something to make my voice heard.

So I sat in Room 22 of Schaeffer Hall, minutes before 3:30 p.m. My husband had just said goodbye and walked out the door, and I was left with my thoughts.

'_students are the ones who lead the president de'feate,' I'm a huge voter-watcher. I should have voted.

But before I could get out my phone, my professor called the class to attention and asked us how we were feeling.

'How many of you voted?'

I'm not sure who asked the question. It was my professor, but I wasn't sure.

The rest of the class was equally as stunned and silent as I was. I thought about the reasons why I'm not a political person. It was because I don't care about politics. It's not that I don't care about the world, it's just that I don't care about politics. It's not that I don't care about the world, it's just that I don't care about politics. It's not that I don't care about the world, it's just that I don't care about politics.

I know it's not true, and I know I should care about politics. But it just doesn't feel right. I don't know why, but it just doesn't feel right.

And then I thought about my children. I want them to grow up and be active in the world. I want them to care about the world. I want them to vote. I want them to make a difference.

But I don't know if I can do that. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference.

And then I thought about my own life. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference.

And then I thought about my own life. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference.

And then I thought about my own life. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference. I don't know if I can make a difference.

Adress Winona Ryder stands with her defense attorney, Mark Geragos, as she is read her shopping trial Wednesday at the courthouse in Beverly Hills, Calif. Ryder was found guilty of theft and vandalism.

BY LINDA DEUTSCH  ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beverly Hills - Actress Winona Ryder, 32, was found guilty Wednesday of grand theft and vandalism as she tried to bring a $15,000 worth of merchandise home from Saks Fifth Avenue.

The verdict in her third trial for shoplifting was announced in Los Angeles County Superior Court as jury deliberations dragged on for a third night. Ryder stood up and appeared to choke as the guilty verdict was announced.

The jury was read the verdicts - guilty on all counts - in the same, emotionless voice, but the actress' body language said it all.

Her head sagged. She apologized to the judge and her lawyer, Mark Geragos, and made a hand to mouth gesture as she tried to hold back tears.

Ryder's eyes glimmered with emotion. She seemed to realize the criminality of her actions as she was being accused of more theft and vandalism.

The defendant was found guilty of grand theft, criminal trespass and vandalism in connection with the Saks incident.

In a 2001 raid, Ryder and a friend were charged with shoplifting $30,000 worth of merchandise from Saks.

The actress was also found guilty of a 1995 conviction in a separate case in which she was accused of shoplifting.

GERAGOS SENTEN CED

Winona Ryder's lawyer, Mark Geragos, said he would immediately ask for a new trial.

"We are incredibly disappointed," said Geragos. "This was never about money. This was about sentiment."

Geragos said the jury was "overwhelmed" by the evidence presented at the trial.

"I'm so sorry that we've lost a 12-member jury," he said. "This was about sentiment. This was about the loss of sentiment."
