No shot in the arm for UI measles

BY CATHY FLORY
THE DAILY IOWAN

Responding to a shortage of inoculations, the UI has suspended a requirement that all students show proof of measles vaccinations before registering for classes.

Merck and Co., which provides the university with the vaccinations, stopped manufacturing single-component serum in favor of double-component serum because of demand. But the double-component serum, mainly used for young children, carries a higher price tag and more side effects, prompting school officials to postpone the vaccination requirement for 2,780 students next semester.

Proof of two measles vaccinations has been a prerequisite to registering for classes since 1995. In the past two years, the university has inoculated roughly 2,500 students with the single-component vaccine.

The measles virus is easily spread by contact with carriers, whose symptoms include a runny nose, fatigue, watery red eyes, and coughing. Other symptoms include white spots on the mouth and a red rash that starts on the face and continues to spread across the rest of the body.

"College students are at a higher risk of catching the measles because of living in closer quarters," said Lisa James, the Student Health Service nursing manager.

Though measles is not nearly as serious as it was before the 1960s, complications such as ear infections, pneumonia, brain infections, and even death may occur.

An extreme scarcity of the single-component measles vaccine has made it practically impossible to receive the inoculation since last spring, and the university has absolutely no supplies in stock. James said Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa have been spared from a similar plight.

Multiple factors contributed to the UI's shortage, including manufacturers that halted production of the single-component vaccine to replenish a low supply of the double-component measles vaccine.

"The shortage has something to do with the companies," James said. "They continue to buy each other out and change the drugs they want to sell."

Though many students may have already been vaccinated against the virus, none of this year's incoming students have been inoculated by the university, and no new vaccines are expected until early 2003.

Students who do not want to wait for more of the serum can receive the double-component vaccine, which also protects from mumps, or take a Titre test to determine if the level of antibodies in the blood shows immunity to measles.

"The problem with the Titre is if you take the test and are not immune, you will still be required to get the shots anyway," James said.

The mandatory-vaccination suspension could continue next fall if sufficient supplies of single-component vaccines are not provided, she said.

Ex-SEC point man to address scandals

BY PHIL DAVIDSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

A former chief accountant for the Securities and Exchange Commission will address the recent corporate scandals that dominated the national spotlight through the first part of this year.

Lynn Turner, a professor of accounting at Colorado State University, will speak about the proliferation of accounting abuse practiced by blue-chip corporations over the past 18 months. The event is sponsored by the UI's RSM McGladrey Institute of Accounting Education and Research.

Turner is also director of the Center for Quality Financial Reporting at Colorado State.

As SEC chief accountant, Turner advised the agency on a number of accounting and financial reporting issues and helped to rewrite rules governing auditors' independence. Also during his tenure, the SEC brought enforcement cases against companies and auditors in such high-profile outfits as Waste Management, Sunbeam, Pricewaterhouse Coopers, and Arthur Andersen.

Turner is a two-time recipient of the SEC chairman's Award for Excellence.

Joining Turner will be Bruce Webb, a McGladrey & Pullen National Audit and Accounting partner.

Bruce Johnson, a UI accounting professor and the director of the RSM McGladrey Institute, said the university is now particularly focused on ethical accounting practices because of the recent cases, such as Enron and WorldCom. Professors routinely set aside class time to discuss the latest cases that have garnered media attention, he said.

"Faculty members are more attuned to the subject than they were three or four years ago," Johnson said.

The institute, founded in 1984 with contributions from UI graduates who are McGladrey and Pullen partners, provides financial support to sustain and enhance the university's nationally renowned accounting programs.

RSM McGladrey is a national business-services firm that offers middle-market companies business and tax consulting.

In an effort to restore confidence in the U.S. capital markets, specifically public company financial reporting, on July 30, President Bush signed the Sarbanes-Oxley Act.

In a provision under the act, the SEC selected members on Oct. 25 for the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, which is to be headed by former CIA and FBI Director William Webster.

SEC Chairman Harvey Pitt tendered his resignation on Nov. 5 after sparking an uproar over his decision to withhold information from his fellow commissioners regarding Webster's past involvement on an auditing board for U.S. Technologies, a firm that now faces investor lawsuits for alleged fraud. The company's auditing panel, under Webster's direction, fired an outside auditor after it expressed concern about some of U.S. Technologies' financial practices.

Lee enters Alford plea in Hall Mall blaze

BY JAMES BAETKE
THE DAILY IOWAN

The man accused of setting fire to the Hall Mall last spring entered an Alford plea to arson on Nov. 8, saying he doesn't remember the incident because he was in a suicidal and drunken state at the time.

Robert E. Lee, 50, entered the plea — meaning he does not admit guilt but acknowledges there is enough evidence to be found guilty in a trial — in District Court for second-degree arson as part of an agreement with the prosecution.

A second-degree burglary charge stemming from the incident was dropped as part of the agreement.

"I'm not sure what I want to do," a confused Lee said during the hearing, after entering his plea. "They said I [set the fire]."

Lee said he didn't believe he was guilty and didn't know what he was doing April 16 when he set fire to the downtown building because he was under the influence of alcohol on a three-day drinking binge and wanted to commit suicide.

Frustrated by Lee's confusion, Judge Kristin Hibbs demanded a clear and official plea.

After quietly conversing with his attorney, Dennis Cohen, Lee again officially entered the plea, assuring the court he completely understood his rights and possible consequences.

Lee caused approximately $20,000 in damage to businesses in and near the Hall Mall, including College Street Billiards Club & Deli, when he set fire to the building. The fire originated in Subculture, a tattoo parlor in the mall.

According to police, Lee forced his way into the locked building, spread an inflammable substance, and used a match to light the blaze.

Lee once owned the Electric Head Tattoo and Body Piercing Shop, a tattoo parlor that was located in the Hall Mall but closed in February because of unpaid rent. Around the time of the blaze, Lee was in disagreement with another competitor for not financially helping him to open another business.

Lee is scheduled to be sentenced on the arson charge Jan. 3, 2003. He faces a maximum $10,000 fine along with a prison sentence of up to 10 years for the class C felony.

CITY BRIEF

Police searching for suspect

Authorities are searching for a man who robbed a Coralville gas station on Nov. 9.

Police say a subject entered Sinclair, 605 Second St., around 8:51 p.m. and demanded money while displaying a handgun. He then fled the scene on foot with an undisclosed amount of cash.

Witnesses described the suspect as a black male in his mid-20s, approximately 5-10, with a medium build. He was wearing light-colored blue cut-off jeans, a blue long-sleeved shirt, and a black mask over his head.

People who have any information regarding the incident are asked to contact the Coralville police at (319) 354-1100.

GOP brushes off cut-&-drill agenda

BY CONNIE CASS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans are pulling out wish lists that grew tattered and faded over the past 17 months, busily underlining, highlighting, and prioritizing. Among their favorites: cutting taxes, approving conservative judges, and drilling for oil in the Alaskan wilderness.

By early next year, the Republicans will once again be running it all — the White House and both chambers of Congress — as they did during President Bush's first few months in office.

Ideas that seemed like pie in the sky while Democrats controlled the Senate suddenly look doable again.

That does not mean it will be easy. The Senate remains closely divided, and Democrats can use parliamentary maneuvers to delay and even block bills.

"Some people say, 'Full steam ahead, just get it done.' That's easier said than done in the Senate," noted Trent Lott, who will once again be the Senate majority leader. "But we do have an opportunity now."

But before they assume control of the new Senate and House, Republicans in the White House and Congress are confronting the limits of their power. Tax cuts are still high on the GOP's agenda, but they must compete with non-negotiable demands for higher military and homeland-security spending and a politically must-do prescription-drug benefit for the elderly.

Moreover, congressional Republican leaders must push all three of those priorities in the face of burgeoning budget deficits and potentially recalcitrant Senate Democrats, who still hold enough seats to filibuster bills not to their liking. One senior White House official said President Bush understands he still needs Democratic support for his tax-cut proposals, even with a newly Republican-controlled Senate.

"The president remembers life before Jim Jeffords switched parties," he said, referring to Sen. James Jeffords, I-Vt., and to tough negotiations the White House had over the 2001 tax-cut battle when Republicans clung to a one-vote Senate majority.

Conservative activists and economists are fretting that the Bush administration and Republican leadership are squandering an opportunity to be bold in favor of a calculated effort to position themselves in the political center for the 2004 campaign. Both the White House and the GOP leadership, they say, are determined not to repeat the mistakes of the 1994 "revolution" and overreach.

"My fear is that they are losing track of the fact that this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to really force change," said Kevin Hassett, a tax economist at the American Enterprise Institute.

Haitians stream for U.S. despite policy

BY SABRA AYRES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI — Desperate to leave Haiti's unending violence, hunger, and poverty, Marie Ocean didn't even ask where the small boat was headed when she squeezed aboard.

For nine days, she and 180 others drank salt water and had no way to protect themselves from the sun or rain. The boat almost capsized, and Ocean vomited continuously through the journey last year from Port-au-Prince to Florida.

Still, she has no regrets. "I just had to leave Haiti," she said.

More than 68,000 Haitian migrants have been intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard in the last decade. Most are sent back, while a few like Ocean are allowed to stay. No one knows how many make it to shore undetected or drown trying.

The Haitians' desperation drew the national spotlight last month when a 50-foot boat carrying more than 200 men, women, and children approached Key Biscayne. As television cameras rolled, the Haitians leaped into the water and swam to shore, where most were captured by authorities as they dodged rush-hour traffic.

Despite a fast-growing population of Haitians in South Florida and some significant political inroads, they are having a tough time changing an immigration policy that they see as biased against them.

The policy silently implemented by the Bush administration in December 2001 requires that Haitians — unlike asylum seekers from other nations — be jailed until their cases are decided. On Nov. 8, the administration iterated that stance toward Haitians, saying Haitians and others who attempt to enter the United States illegally by sea will be detained and subject to an expedited process to send them back home.

A feared mass migration from Haiti would endanger the lives of migrants at sea and tie up Coast Guard resources that should be committed to homeland security and the war on terrorism, Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman Mario Ortiz said.

Approximately 40 Haitians from the Oct. 29 boat were granted bonds this past week ranging from $1,500 to $4,500. The INS immediately issued an automatic stay to prevent the release of the migrants, citing a "national security concern."

Immigration authorities said they want to send a message to Haiti that illegal migrants will be detained.

Immigrant advocacy groups say the policy is a tragedy, and they hope the attention on the Key Biscayne migrants makes more Americans aware that the government singles out Haitians.

"Hopefully, this will get the momentum going and finally get some attention to the bad policy we have," Cheryl Little of the Florida Immigrant Advocacy Center said at a recent protest aimed at getting Gov. Jeb Bush to oppose his brother's regulations. "This is an opportunity to educate people about what's going on."

The Haitian-Americans' treatment has also attracted the attention of Rep. Carrie Meek, D-Fla., and the Revs. Jessie Jackson and Al Sharpton. Meek promised to organize a protest in Washington in February, after the new Congress takes office.

Palestinian attacks kibbutz, killing five

BY EITAN HESS-ASHKENAZI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KIBBUTZ METZER, Israel — A Palestinian man broke into an Israeli farming community late Sunday and went on a shooting rampage, killing five people, including two children, Israeli officials said.

Two hours later, Israeli helicopters fired rockets into a large auto body shop in downtown Gaza City, touching off a huge fire, witnesses said. The workshop was believed to be empty at the time of the attack, shortly before 2 a.m.

The Israeli military declined immediate comment, though it has frequently targeted metal workshops in the past, saying Palestinian militants use them to manufacture weapons.

In the shooting attack, the gunman entered Kibbutz Metzger, a collective farming community in northern Israel, just across the border from the West Bank shortly before midnight Sunday.

"There was shooting for close to 10 minutes, then the security forces arrived, and we're shut inside the houses," a member of the farm, identified only as Irit, told Israel radio.

The Israeli security forces could not immediately locate the gunman, and it appeared he may have escaped from the farm, approximately 30 miles northeast of Tel Aviv.

The Israeli rescue service, Magen David Adom, said at least five people were killed, including two children.

"Israelis in their own homes were brutally targeted by Palestinian terrorists," said David Baker, an official in Prime Minister Ariel Sharon's office.

Earlier Sunday, a car exploded outside the kibbutz after Israeli police ordered the driver to stop. The two occupants were killed.

It was one of three instances Sunday in which Israeli authorities said they managed to avert a suicide attack.

In another case, the army said it arrested a 15-year-old youth from the West Bank city of Nablus who was on his way to carry out a suicide bombing when he was caught.

Students get some oversight on fees

FEES

Student leaders' attempt to hold Jones accountable for other expenditures financed by the fees yielded an accounting record that neglected to mention a variety of projects subsidized by the funds.

Jones was in control of the funds for more than 10 years without any checks; under the current audit's recommendations, the accounts will be reviewed by a representative of Jones' office who cannot spend or transfer money from the accounts.

Among UISG's concerns was whether the leftover fees were used in the best interest of students, not only at Jones' discretion, and that students be consulted before the funds were allocated.

The report was released with little fanfare July 23, 2002. A scheduled press conference with Jones and Belinda Marner, the assistant vice president for Student Services, was put on the back burner when the UISG executive responsible for publicizing the audit resigned for health issues, Herbold said. The audit will be made public in a future UISG media event, he added.

"Dean Jones and Belinda Marner really did work with us this year, and talked to us about our priorities, and didn't do anything we didn't want them to," Herbold said. "They really gave us a lot of time in explaining where the money was and where it was going. I'm happy with how it's going, and if he keeps acting as he did this year, there shouldn't be a problem."

Funding shortfalls jeopardize free daycare

Although frugal budgets are the norm for the nonprofit center, recent state budget cuts have resulted in fewer potential sources of funding, she said.

"Things are pretty tight," Graglia said. "We're struggling to meet our basic needs."

Established in 1995, the facility is partially funded by the Johnson County Empowerment Fund, which works in conjunction with the state government to improve the lives of families with children. Graglia and other staff are now scrambling to make up the remaining $34,000 needed from other sources — including state grants and donations from area businesses — by the end of the fiscal year so the center can stay open.

Located in the basement of First Mennonite Church, Home Tie provides daycare for children ages 2 months to 6 years for a maximum of three months. The facility now provides care for 14 children.

To qualify, families must demonstrate that they are in crisis. Families who receive any government financial assistance are eligible, Graglia said.

Before children are admitted to the facility, she works with the families to develop a plan of action to improve their situation during the three-month period.

"Our success rate is pretty good," Graglia said. "We help families get back on their feet."

Closing Home Tie would be "horrible," said UI junior Nate Fulcher, who has worked at the center for two-and-a-half years.

"Home Tie is the only stability some of those kids have," he said.

"We're only able to work with them a couple of months ... with no idea where they go after that. You just hope things work out for the best."

UI business fraternity Alpha

Kappa Psi recently donated care packages for each child at the center. Each contained canned food and a personalized greeting card. Area businesses donated some of the products for the baskets, and fraternity members purchased the rest, said UI junior and fraternity member Kate Cavitt, who helped organize the effort.

Such projects help the center improve the lives of the children and their families, Graglia said.

"As far as helping us out, we really appreciate [the project]," she said. "We're always looking for donations."

U.S. warns Saddam: We're really serious should Iraq fail to comply with the U.N. resolution. The leaks appeared to be an effort to send Saddam a message about how serious the United States is.

A Pentagon plan for invading Iraq calls for a land, sea, and air force of 200,000 to 250,000 troops. Pentagon planners had considered an approach that would have used 100,000 or fewer troops, but they settled on a much larger force favored by Gen. Tommy Franks, the head of the Central Command, which would run any war in Iraq, said officials who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

"If I were Saddam Hussein, I would take it with a great deal of concern and seriousness and understand that this is not some idle threat that has been issued by the United States," Powell said on CBS's "Face the Nation." "This is not some resolution to be ignored, as he's ignored all previous resolutions."

Powell, Rice, and Card declined to discuss the details of the plan, and Bush ignored a question about it as he returned to the White House from Camp David.

Sen. Carl Levin, the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said the administration may have planted false stories to mislead Iraq. "It may be disinformation, as far as we know," he said on CNN's "Late Edition."

"I don't think it's particularly helpful for actual plans to be out there publicly," said Levin, D-Mich. "On the other hand, there's some value in that, because it shows Saddam seriousness of purpose, and if he doesn't get that idea from all the other rhetoric and actions that we've taken, this should clearly finish the job."

Iraq has until Friday to accept the terms of the U.N. and pledge to comply; it has until Dec. 8 to provide weapons inspectors and the Security Council with a complete declaration of all aspects of its chemical, biological, and nuclear programs.

"He doesn't knuckle under," Wilson said. "If anybody would have a reason to get down, he would."

As Nation stood outside his rural home in Riverside on Sunday afternoon, the retired vet, husband, and father of one said he doesn't dwell on his wartime experience although he enjoys visiting schools to teach students about the war and veterans. He'll speak at a Lone Tree school today in honor of Veteran's Day.

"A lot of [this generation] doesn't know who vets are," said Nation, who still gets a lump in his throat when the national anthem is played. "Vets are anyone who wore a uniform."

'Greatest Generation' disappearing

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BUSHNELL, Fla. — Three gray-haired men point their military rifles skyward and squeeze off shots that echo through the soaring oak trees of the Withlacoochee State Forest.

Two other members of the volunteer honor guard ceremoniously fold an American flag and snap to a salute during taps. They stand by as the casket bearing yet another military veteran is wheeled off for burial in the vast Florida National Cemetery.

The men have time only for some small talk before the next casket and next group of mourners arrives. Then they'll do it all over again. And again. And again.

At six special shelters on the cemetery grounds, 60 miles north of Tampa in Sumter County, full military funerals are often happening simultaneously, all day long. They are conducted at a rate of approximately 30 every weekday. On Tuesday, the day after Veterans Day, more than 40 are scheduled.

More often than ever, the caskets hold World War II veterans, who are now dying at the rate of nearly 1,000 a day in America, according to federal estimates.

"Sometimes, it gets to you," says Al Williams, 74, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War whose honor guard does as many as five funerals a day. "I've lost a lot of friends."

The constant activity at the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs cemetery is a grim reminder of just how fast an entire generation is disappearing. And because so many veterans spend their retirements in Florida, the cemetery in Bushnell is filling up rapidly with the familiar white grave markers.

Census figures in 2000 showed that World War II veterans living in Florida died at a rate of about 50 a day during the 1990s, thinning their numbers by almost 27 percent. They used to make up the bulk of the membership in the Disabled American Veterans in Florida; now they account for just 40 percent.

"It's sad that a lot of history is not going to be here in the next 15 or 20 years," says John Heufel, the chaplain of the Dade City Veterans of Foreign Wars post.

Around the nation, funeral services for veterans are performed by military personnel, veterans' groups, or a mix. At a minimum, eligible veterans are due a flag presentation and taps from military representatives. Eleven national cemeteries out of 120 have their own volunteer honor guard, according to the Veterans Administration.

Arabs say Iraq will obey U.N.

BY RAJUV
CHANDRASEKARAN
WASHINGTON POST

CAIRO — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein intends to accept a recently passed U.N. Security Council resolution that requires his nation to disarm and mandates rigorous weapons inspections, Arab foreign ministers and diplomats said Sunday.

In a further sign that Saddam might be ready to acquiesce to the resolution, an Iraqi television station owned by one of his sons reported Sunday night that he has called for an emergency session of the national assembly. Although the legislative body, which is stacked with ardent Saddam supporters, wields little clout in Iraq's political system, it is often called on when the president wants a unanimous, raised-hands endorsement of his policies.

"I think we can expect a positive position by the Iraqis," Egyptian Foreign Minister Ahmed Maher said Sunday on the sidelines of a meeting of Arab foreign ministers here.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Prince Saud Faisal, also said Iraq would be willing to comply with the terms of the resolution, which calls for Iraq to declare within 30 days all of its programs to develop weapons of mass destruction and to provide inspectors unfettered access to Saddam's presidential palaces and other sensitive sites. Iraq has until Friday to accept the resolution.

Suggesting that Iraq's agreement was a foregone conclusion, the Arab foreign ministers, whose meeting was convened by the 22-member Arab League, issued a statement Sunday night "welcoming Iraq's acceptance of the return of the international inspectors unconditionally."

Arab diplomats said they expect the Iraqi government to issue a formal statement in the next few days pledging compliance. The national assembly meeting is scheduled to begin today.

President Bush's national security adviser, Condoleezza Rice, dismissed as "ludicrous" Saddam's call for Parliament to consider a response to the resolution.

"Saddam Hussein is an absolute dictator and tyrant, and the idea that somehow he expects the Iraqi Parliament to debate this — it has never debated anything else," Rice said on ABC's "This Week." "I'm surprised he's even bothering to go through this ploy."

Iraq's foreign minister, Naji Sabri, said his government has not yet taken an official position on the resolution, but he hinted that approval might not be far away. He said the issue of whether inspectors would be allowed back into Iraq "was never a matter of dispute," insisting that an offer made in September to allow the inspectors to return was still valid.

"Everyone knows that the United States is scared that when the inspectors return, their lies will be revealed as it will be known that Iraq doesn't possess any weapons of mass destruction," he said.

Boyd is right: Review the policies

Kudos to interim President Sandy Boyd. He is correct to suggest the Board in Control of Athletics review its policies. With the criminal side of the matter concluded, the plea-bargain arrangement Pierre Pierce entered into should, by no means, be the end of the story. The UI should engage soul-searching, on multiple levels.

Pierce admitted, in his signed confession, to an act of violence. As it stands, he is welcome on campus, in the classroom, and on the basketball court. As a student, I find that particularly troubling. As a woman, I am outright offended. Additionally, Pierce retains his athletics scholarship. I must question the fairness of this decision.

The university graciously extended its belief in my ability with financial support in the form of two academic scholarships, much as it financially supports Pierce's athletic ability. That's where the likeness ends. I will be forever grateful to the university because it offered me an education. The extent of Pierce's gratitude is clearly spelled out in a signed confession.

I must work hard and excel in the classroom in order to retain my scholarships. Pierce will attend games, redshirted, with no expectation that he will produce as an athlete and still retain his scholarship. No one is entitled to an education, including Pierce. He appears to want the best of all possible worlds, and so far, that's what he has.

Additionally, as much as I agree with Boyd's call to action, I don't believe responsibility for Pierce's future lies entirely within the policies and procedures of the university. Most of the onus should be placed on Pierce; he committed the crime. At some point he must ask himself where he fits, if at all, within this university community. He must also acknowledge his obvious, but unrealistic, sense of entitlement. After all, that's what got him into this predicament in the first place.

Real 'Reasons to like Republicans'

I am an active member of the UI College Republicans. I do not speak for the club or its other members, but I am disappointed with DI columnist Nick Klenske's cheap shot "Top 10 reasons to like Republicans" (DI, Nov. 7). I offer a thoughtful Top 10 list of what Republicans believe and real reasons to like them.

1. Tax cuts.

2. We believe capitalism encourages individual initiative and incentive.

3. We believe the proper function of the federal government is to accomplish — in a fiscally conservative manner — the things that have to be done but cannot be done as well by individuals or community organizations — such as paving highways, national defense. Federal government need not be the arbiter of every facet of our lives.

4. We stand up for the little guy (The unborn).

5. We believe in punishing evildoers, not appeasing or attempting to "understand" them.

6. We believe if you are competent, you can own a gun for protection or sport.

7. We believe in the U.S. Constitution. It doesn't mention a guarantee of prescription drugs.

8. We believe judges should not legislate from the bench.

9. We believe in playing by election rules. No cigarettes in exchange for votes. No union thugs "helping" inside voting booths. No "Bingo with a stylus" games at nursing homes.

10. Republicans would never boo people who came to pay respect at a funeral or use a casket as a stump to insult another party organization.

ITS serves as model of student service that all UI should follow

Because of the extreme budgetary constraints facing the UI, the quality of education has been sliding while the price has been skyrocketing. Fewer classes are offered, sections are canceled, and students are being forced to pay more. However, at least one university department has managed to struggle through the hard times and continue to provide great value to students.

Information Technology Services, or ITS as most people know it, has consistently provided great services to the UI students, faculty, and staff. Just recently, it announced a plan to allow students to trade their unused print credit for writable CDs and DVDs. These discs can then be utilized using the appropriate Instructional Technology Center equipment. This decision is only the latest in a long line of great ITS moves.

Other examples of ITS successes are easy to find. The deal that provided Microsoft software for students for a fraction of the retail price was brokered by ITS. Just about any student in Iowa City can easily access the Internet thanks to ITS through either the high-speed ResNet connections in the dorms or the free dial-up modem service offered through the Remote Access program. Of course, ITS' greatest achievement remains the dirt-cheap printing services offered in the ITCs. At 5 cents per page, it is much cheaper to print multiple copies of a document than to take it to the university copy machines. In addition, ITS recently acted on student feedback and added the option of turning off the banner page, thereby saving thousands of pages of wasted paper.

Not content to rest on its laurels, ITS is looking to the future and trying to offer new and better services as the face of technology continues to change. For the thousands of students who depend on their cellular phones to stay connected, ITS is looking into various plans that would allow students to get their cell-phone plans through the university for reduced rates. In addition, ITS has been aggressively updating its assistive-technology services in order to bring the latest technology into the reach of those with disabilities. Many other exciting projects are coming off the drawing board and heading into the pilot phase.

Other university departments would do well to follow the model of ITS. Its deceptively simple policy of continually improving its services for students, faculty, and staff has proven remarkably effective. By listening to input from users and using this feedback to guide its efforts, ITS ends up providing services that exactly match with its users' desires. While it is true that computing fees are on the rise, at least students can easily see their money is being put to good use. If only the same could be said about tuition.

A few random Election Day observations

On Nov. 5 and over the last week, there was a lot of attention paid to certain states, certain elections, and certain possible outcomes. The Minnesota Senate run-off between Norm Coleman and "Last Minute" Mondale got widespread national coverage. South Dakota became a political hot spot. Control of the U.S. Congress was up for grabs.

Indeed, Election Day was full of excitement. In an unprecedented midterm vote, Republicans gained seats in Congress — the GOP increased its hold in the House, and Trent Lott got his old job back as Senate majority leader. Usually, the party with the sitting president loses seats at midterms. Maybe it's because George W. refused to sit, opting instead to stomp away while the nation awaits his war and wallows in his ignored economy, that many right-of-centers enjoyed their victories.

Nevertheless, Election 2002 was interesting. There were some events, however, that proved particularly interesting — some local, some national. There were a few races that deserve some more attention, some outcomes that need to be questioned.

Leach/Thomas
This race was a close one from the very beginning of campaign season. Julie Thomas raised and spent twice the amount of Jim Leach. Leach, however, had name recognition and a fairly rock-solid record to run on. Not to mention 26 years of experience in Congress. That's a lot for a political newcomer such as Thomas to overcome.

But Thomas won the backing of some big-name supporters (Al Gore among them), campaigned like hell, and put up a good fight. For a challenger facing an incumbent, she ran a good race.

But she lost. And Thomas blamed her loss on her sex: "I guess Iowa's not ready [for a woman in Congress]," she said. "One of us one day will break through that glass ceiling."

Being a woman did not lose Iowa's 2nd District for Julie Thomas. Being a challenger did. Incumbents are re-elected at a very high rate, and from the beginning, Thomas faced an uphill battle. It didn't help that she was campaigning head to head with a seasoned incumbent who had garnered overwhelming Democratic support.

Though Thomas fared well in campaigning, her irrational concession to Leach undoubtedly disappointed her supporters and enraged other female political hopefuls. True politics are not about sex parity; true politics are about the best candidates winning, regardless of their sex.

Ganske/Harkin and Gross/Vilsack

Republicans had to know that neither of their candidates in these two races had a chance. Both were challengers (see above), and both were mud-slingers.

Rep. Greg Ganske, itching to move from the House to the Senate, had nothing on Sen. Tom Harkin. His campaign was negative from the outset.

Doug Gross (head of book-cooking under former Gov. Terry Branstad) criticized Tom Vilsack for mishandling Iowa's economy. Yet Gross didn't produce any real plan of action to fix the governor's mistakes until almost one month before the election. He never offered any solutions to frustrated voters.

And somehow, both of these races ended up entirely too close. Harkin won 54 percent to Ganske's 44 percent. Vilsack's margin was even more narrow — 53 percent over a 45 percent showing by Gross. How did this happen? Did all of Ganske's negative ads miss a near-majority of the voting population? Did disillusioned voters really believe Vilsack was to blame for all of the state's budget woes? Or did the fabled nationwide exultation of the Republican leader, Bush Jr., rub off on these candidates? For seemingly having no chance, these candidates ended up with far more than they deserved.

Jeb Bush/Katherine Harris

Is it any surprise that the state Jeb's brother manipulated to be selected as president turned out in favor of Jeb himself? Or did they? There is so much corruption in Florida politics that we may never know where all the missing votes from 2000 are. In fact, Reuters has reported that more than 103,000 votes were ignored in the first post-election count in one county (the mistake was fixed before the final results were tabulated). The mistake would have robbed Bill McBride, Jeb's Democratic challenger, of 13,815 votes. Does it feel like 2000 all over again to anyone else?

Katherine Harris, the false-breasted GOP darling of Florida, also won election to Congress. How? Harris presided over the election recount that miraculously produced George as the marginal winner. Are Florida's residents so senile that they've forgotten the voter fraud of two years ago? Did they forget the many ways in which they were taken advantage of, ignored, and otherwise misled? Unbelievable.

Indeed, Election Day 2002 was full of excitement.

Moonlight Mile

When:
7:30 and 9:40 p.m.
Where:
Campus 3
★★ out of ★★★★★

Moonlight Mile could have been a great movie.

The film's subject matter is unbelievably rich for a screenwriter: how a family copes with death. Ordinary People and In The Bedroom already garnered Academy Award nominations for their angles on this topic, but it still remains fertile because death is something everyone deals with differently.

The film, set in 1966, centers on the parents (Ben and JoJo Floss) and fiancé (Joe Nast) of a college-age woman (Diana) after she is murdered. Joe moves in with the Flosses, and their willingness to channel Diana through him is supposed to create empathy in the viewer. Ben has Joe join his real-estate business just as he promised before the murder, and JoJo uses Joe as a shield for all the well-wishers who claim to have known Diana.

Everything is swell, sort of, until Joe meets the local mailwoman Bertie when he tries to retrieve the wedding invitations. A couple cumbersome scenes later, it is obvious they have chemistry, but Joe is living with the parents of his dead fiancée. What to do?

There are moments where you really want to feel for the protagonist, Joe (Jake Gyllenhaal). Then director Brad Silberling inserts something unwieldy, such as Joe's courtroom scene, and you have to scratch your head.

A veteran of television and the ghastly 1998 remake of Wim Wenders' Wings of Desire, called City of Angels, Silberling has to take most of the blame for what, at times, feels like an after-school special.

Tone means a great deal when you're trying to persuade an audience to care for characters, but something in this film always seems a little off.

There is nothing wrong with adding humor to a downbeat drama such as this; it is a perfectly natural response to death. Yet at some level, there has to be a consistency of expectations for the audience to identify with and believe the protagonist. Silberling was never able to establish this, most notably with the unspeakably bad finish. Fortunately, there is top-shelf acting, which partially salvages the film.

eral years of downtime, is a revelation as JoJo Floss, the mother of Diana. She is very emotionally collected for someone who has just lost a child, but she is terse and unsympathetic to friends and unable to express herself. Sarandon's role could have been the meat to wrap the movie around, had Silberling wanted to get adventuresome.

Ben Floss is the pathetic father (Dustin Hoffman) who cannot relate to Diana and wants to continue living after she dies as though nothing has changed. His inability to grieve is believable because he unveils his vulnerability early in the movie, a compulsive whose routine has been upset.

Gyllenhaal has been exposed as a one-trick pony. I loved him as a depressed awkward loner in Donnie Darko, thought he was passable as a depressed awkward loner in Lovely & Amazing and The Good Girl, but now I loathe the mopey eyes and bouts of melancholy that accompany all of his roles. He either needs to hire a new agent or take line-delivery lessons from someone other than Sylvia Plath's morose hairdresser half-sister, because this is just too much.

The chemistry between Owen Wilson and Eddie Murphy makes I Spy a humorous film worth seeing.

A game with a lot of play

FILM REVIEW

by Nate Yapp

I Spy

When:
Check local listings.
Where:
Coral Ridge 10/Cinema 6
★★ 1/2 out of ★★★★★

I Spy is a remake of a popular 1960s television show that featured Bill Cosby. If that's all you need to start screaming for mercy from the evil corporate bigwigs of the film industry, do so. There's probably nothing that I can say that will convince you to see it.

This is an unnecessary film, but that doesn't mean it isn't entertaining.

In this era of bankrupt brain trusts, we can only hope for two things from a new version of an old property: A) a remake that captures the spirit of the original but not the exact detail of it (à la Red Dragon), or B) a "re-imagining" that mostly jettisons the source material and bolts ahead with its own ideas (Ocean's 11).

In case you're curious, I Spy is B. Sure the names are the same. There's an athlete named Kelly Robinson (Eddie Murphy) and a spy named Alexander Scott (Owen Wilson). Almost everything else is different — but in this day and age, will anybody notice or care? I sure didn't.

The plot (as it were) is a veritable checklist of spy movie clichés. That's not really a surprise, given that the screenplay was co-written by David Ronn and Jay Scherick, the team responsible for the similarly workmanlike Serving Sara.

There's a Macguffin (a term dating back to Alfred Hitchcock, referring to an object of desire that is less important than the quest to attain it), a stock villain (the horribly underused Malcolm MacDowell), gadgetry galore, a femme fatale (Famke Janssen), and lots of purdy explosions.

Few, if any, of the espionage elements work. Indeed, many of them are badly botched. For instance, Alexander brings Kelly, a civilian, with him on a reconnaissance mission, even after Kelly has fulfilled his part of the mission and is no longer needed. Does that make any sense to anybody?

Good thing this is a comedy, too, or it would be a total lost cause.

I Spy is quite the funny movie. The combination of Wilson's good-natured eagerness and Murphy's self-important boorishness hits exactly the right notes, most of the time. A few of their early routines don't exactly work, especially their initial antagonism, but the film eventually finds its niche and goes with it.

It's the banter, witty or otherwise, that makes I Spy enticing. Wilson and Murphy have chemistry, and they have a lot of it. In a brilliant scene in which the spy is trying to confess his feelings to Janssen, Murphy tries to help him (using a remote voice transmitter). Marvin Gaye's "Sexual Healing" was never so guffaw-worthy.

There's no thinking to be done in this flick. In fact, doing so decreases one's chances of enjoying it. Sit back and accept I Spy for what it is, a stupid, funny film that could actually stand to receive that other brain-dead Hollywood concept: the sequel.

S.T.A.T. Ambassadors

S.T.A.T. Ambassadors are student representatives of the University of Iowa and the University of Iowa Alumni Association. The Ambassadors strive to be leaders and companions to fellow students, their families, alumni, and the Iowa City community.

Get Involved!

- Be a member of a recognized student organization
- Meet a diverse group of UI student leaders
- Develop your own leadership skills
- Organize campus events such as Hawk's Nest, Family Weekend, and Reunion Weekend
- Promote community involvement with Make-A-Wish® Gameday
- Work with UI athletic recruits and coaches
- Host S.T.A.T. membership events
- Act as a liaison between students and alumni

You're invited to attend an informational meeting about joining S.T.A.T. Ambassadors, November 18 at 9 p.m. or November 21 at 8 p.m. in the Michigan Room at the IMU.

Please visit our website for application and deadlines:

horoscopes

Monday, November 11, 2002 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your efforts will bring rewards if you have to work overtime. Dive in, and do a good job. Romance is likely, but proceed with extreme caution.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Push to get everything completed today. You may need to turn on the charm in order to convince others. If you don't work fast, delays may set in and you may not have this opportunity again.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may find that demanding relatives or minor health problems upset your plans. Try to go with the flow and not get upset. Situations may not be as they appear. Don't be too eager to sign legal documents.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be upset if someone has borrowed something that belongs to you. Try not to lose your cool, but make your point known. Be clear with others about your boundaries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may be feeling sorry for yourself. Don't look at the end of a relationship as a loss. Keep in touch with friends. You may make a new love connection through work associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be self-reliant, make your own plans, and don't wait for others to phone. You will see good results if you make some of those physical changes that you've been thinking about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Try not to be judgmental of relatives who don't have the same ambitions as you. Tension will fill the air if you continue to criticize others. Consider how you would feel if the tables were turned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may have difficulties relating to foreigners. Read about their culture to understand their point of view.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It's time to take a break. Plan to do things with the ones you love. A short trip will ease the stress and break the monotony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone you love will neither listen nor believe what you have to say. Actions speak louder than words in this case. Pull out all the stops, and make sure that you get your point across.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Uncertainties at work will result in unexpected changes. You may be concerned at first; however, as the day unfolds, you will find yourself in a good position.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't overspend on children, entertainment or organizations. This is a time to be frugal. Instead, offer your time and talent to groups. Investments should be looked at carefully.

Bonds poised to win National League MVP

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds probably will pick up a big post-season honor today, just not the one he wanted.

After putting up another season of historic statistics, Bonds is favored to win the National League Most Valuable Player Award for the fifth time when the Baseball Writers' Association of America announces its voting Monday.

Bonds, the only player with more than three MVPs, won his first NL batting title this season with a .370 average and set records with 198 walks, 68 intentional walks, and a .582 on-base percentage.

IOWA FOOTBALL

Mickelson honored as senior Nov. 9

Iowa defensive lineman John Mickelson was inadvertently omitted from a tribute to Hawkeye seniors that appeared in the Nov. 8 issue of The Daily Iowan's PreGame.

Mickelson

Mickelson has seen action in four games this season for the 10-1 Hawkeyes, recording a pair of tackles, including one during Iowa's 62-10 victory over Northwestern on Nov. 9.

A lifelong Hawkeye fan, he was one of 24 seniors who played their final game at Kinnick Stadium against the Wildcats.

A graduate of West Des Moines Valley, where he was a teammate of fellow defensive lineman Jared Clauss, Mickelson has been named to the dean's list each semester while at Iowa.

Iowa seniors, offensive line take one final bow

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP
 THE DAILY IOWAN

If a picture is worth a thousand words, then the vision of Iowa's five senior offensive linemen walking off the field at Kinnick Stadium for one final time, hand in hand, was a novel representing four, five, and in one case six years of struggle, strife, and ultimately success.

It was an instance that will remain forever in the annals of the Iowa football program alongside such memorable edge-of-your-seat moments as Rob Houghtlin's game-winning field goal against Michigan in 1985. Yet the beauty of the curtain call taken by Bruce Nelson, Ben Sobieski, Andy Lightfoot, Eric Steinbach, and David Porter was its subdued simplicity and subject spontaneity.

"You think about all the things you've been through and all the people who have been through them with you, and it's hard not to get emotional," said Porter, a fifth-year tackle.

The five were greeted by a thunderous ovation as they exited the game with five minutes remaining in the third quarter of Iowa's 62-10 victory over Northwestern Nov. 9.

There was nary a dry eye in the house as the five locked hands and raised them above their heads as they made their way toward teammates and coaches on the sidelines.

"We didn't plan on holding hands or anything," Sobieski said. "It just came naturally."

As far as symbolism goes, it was a text book example. "That was a really neat moment for us," said Nelson. "It kind of typifies the way our careers have gone."

The offensive line, which played a major role in turning the Iowa football team around from a 1-10 squad in 1999 when

Lack lives childhood dream without the glory

BY KELLY BEATON

There are some rewards for being a walk-on, however. Mainly, the honor of getting to live out your childhood dreams of donning your favorite team's uniform on fall Saturdays and running out the tunnel into the stadium you would've given anything to play on as a kid.

"I grew up in Iowa, and my dad always put in the tape of the '85 Michigan game, and that always got me so pumped up," said safety Derek Pagel, himself a former walk-on.

Every young Iowa boy who grew up cheering on the Hawkeyes spent a fair amount of his childhood dreaming of walking onto the Kinnick Stadium turf one day as a player. Even if Division 1 coaches never come knocking at their door, most never give up the dream.

Dallas Clark, Derek Pagel, and Bruce Nelson are three players who beat the odds to star for Iowa after originally joining the team as walk-ons. However, their cases are not typical of most walk-ons. Most rarely, if ever, set foot on the field with the game still in doubt.

After four years of watching from the sidelines, four years of enduring day after day of poundings by massive men who out-weigh him by 50 pounds, four years of scarcely any acknowledgment for his efforts, Will Lack should be bitter. But day after day, there he is, willingly taking every snap possible on the Hawkeye scout team.

The 6-foot-3, 255-pound senior walk-on offensive lineman from Nora Springs, Iowa, has a never-ending supply of determination, will, and spirit. It'd be easy to make a comparison with Rudy Ruttiger, the former Notre Dame walk-on who inspired a Hollywood motion picture of the same name. It'd also be a gross understatement of what Lack means to his coaches and teammates.

While Rudy was a glorified mascot who took years to earn his coaches and teammates' respect, Lack earned it from day one. "The first year here we had [virtually] no offensive linemen, so [he] took every snap against our defense. It's not a real glamorous position — those guys get smacked around," coach Kirk Ferentz said.

"He's a great leader. He's a motivator for the entire team," said senior center Bruce Nelson.

Lack had every excuse to quit the team during his four years at Iowa. He's rarely seen playing time, he has yet to make the traveling roster for a road game, and he is a pre-med student who often isn't allowed the luxury of ample study time.

"I asked Will last February how much he had slept during his junior year, and he said, 'You know, about an average of four

GOLF BRIEF

Zoeller hangs on to win Senior Slam

SUPERSTITION MOUNTAIN, Ariz. (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller regained the Senior Slam lead on the 15th hole and held on to win by one stroke on Sunday.

Zoeller edged Don Pooley to win $300,000 in the tournament which featured this year's Senior major championship winners. Stewart Ginn finished three strokes back, and Jim Thorpe was seven back.

"When you play against the best, it brings the best out in everybody," said Zoeller, the Senior PGA Championship winner. "This is a great feeling. This is a great way to end the year. You've got your four major winners. We're all winners. Everybody out here won. It was a win-win for everybody. It's just somebody has to finish first."

Zoeller entered the second day of the two-day tournament three strokes ahead of Pooley and Ginn. By the turn, Ginn had caught Zoeller. Zoeller went back on top with a birdie at No. 10 but followed with a bogey on No. 11. Zoeller got the lead for good when Pooley drove the front trap on the 23-yard, par-3 15th and bogeyed.

THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa coach Rita Buck-Crockett summed up her team's pair of losses over the weekend concisely.

"We're getting experience and working hard," she said. "But it's not enough."

Iowa's losses to No. 13 Wisconsin and Northwestern marked its 11th and 12th conference defeats of the season. The Hawks have been stymied by the loss of starter Renee Hill to a knee injury in the Hawkeyes' Oct. 27 fall to Ohio State.

Buck-Crockett said the loss of Hill was a "tough break" at a point in the season when the Hawkeyes were beginning to turn things around. The Hawks entered the weekend of Oct. 25 coming off their first pair of Big Ten wins, over Illinois and Purdue. Since the loss of Hill, Iowa has been winless.

"We have to stay positive," Buck-Crockett said. "We have six more matches left, and we're winning some games. We're right there — and we're going to come back next fall with a lot of experience."

Iowa returns all starters next season except for Kelli Chesnut.

Buck-Crockett said she is unsure if Hill will return to the lineup next fall or take a red-shirt year.

Other positives for the Iowa team is the return of Echaka Agba, who has emerged as a leader on the team since taking over Hill's role.

The freshman attacked for 12 kills and tallied a career-high five blocks in Iowa's 3-1 loss to the Wildcats.

"Echaka is going to come back as one of the top players in the Big Ten," Buck-Crockett said.

Jitka Stehnova and Louise

Bates, who has been as stable forces, will return next fall, along with hitters Laura Simpson, Abby Tjaden, and Amoreena Reynolds, and libero Pam Kavadas.

The Hawkeyes showed promise against Northwestern as they jumped out to a 14-11 advantage. Iowa kept a steady lead, increasing the margin to 21-17, before Northwestern retaliated for a 28-27 lead. The Hawkeyes could not stop the advance of the Wildcats, dropping game one, 30-27.

In game two, Iowa again jumped to a dominating lead, 11-4, and the Hawks forced a pair of Northwestern timeouts when they increased the lead to 20-11. A service ace by Simpson sealed the game for the Hawkeyes, 30-24, aided by five kills by Agba and five digs by Chesnut.

Iowa could not tame the Wildcats post-intermission, as Northwestern took the third and fourth games and the match.

The Hawkeyes dominated Northwestern in the blocking attack, tallying 12.5 compared with the Wildcat's eight. Simpson collected 13 kills, five assists, seven digs, five blocks, and two service aces. Stehnova notched 33 assists and 10 digs, while Kavadas collected 14 digs.

In their battle with Wisconsin on Nov. 8, the Hawkeyes' strongest game was their third, topping the Badgers, 30-21. As a team, Iowa recorded 36 kills to Wisconsin's 63, and 61 digs to the Badgers' 71. Bates recorded a career-high 18 assists, while sophomore Meghan Sims tied a season-high six digs.

The Hawkeyes return to the road for a two-game stand, facing Michigan State on Friday and Michigan on Saturday.

WEEKEND ROAD BRIEFS

Wrestling team lineup set for Gopher meet

Aiming to take a shot at defeating the defending national champion Minnesota Gophers, the Iowa wrestling team solidified its lineup Nov. 8.

Hawkeye wrestlers battled against each other in the best two-out-of-three format, with all seven returning NCAA qualifiers coming out on top in the wrestle-offs.

The dual with the Gophers, scheduled for Nov. 15, will attempt to top last season's NCAA attendance record of 15,646 wrestling fans. The faceoff between the rivals at the Xcel Energy Center is the first of the season; the pair meets for the second time in Iowa City on Valentine's Day.

More than 7,000 tickets have been sold for the battle between the No. 1 Gophers and the No. 3 Hawkeyes. The dual is scheduled on the eve of the Iowa-Minnesota football game, to be held in the Metrodome on Nov. 16.

Field hockey loses in first round at Big Tens

Stacey Todd, along with the rest of the Ohio State Buckeyes, shattered any Hawkeye hopes of continuing postseason play, defeating the Iowa field-hockey team in the first round of the Big Ten Tournament, 2-0, on Nov. 8.

Todd scored both Ohio State goals with less than 10 minutes to play in the game, handing Iowa its third-consecutive loss.

Ohio State, the No. 4 seed in the tournament, and No. 5 Iowa combined for only two shots in the first half, with Iowa controlling the ball on its half for a majority of the time.

Women's tennis ends fall with difficulty

After three days of dual matches, the Iowa women's tennis left Madison, Wis., disappointed.

In their last tournament of the year, the Hawkeyes recorded a combined record of 4-14 for Nov. 8 and Sunday's competition.

Sophomore Gloria Okino roped in three of the four wins. Okino defeated Northwestern's Kristi Roeger in an epic three-set match on Nov. 8.

The final score was 6-2, 1-6, and 11-9. On Sunday, Okino easily defeated Wisconsin's Elizabeth Winchester (6-1, 6-0), then teamed up with Jennifer Hodgman to beat Wisconsin's Lexi

Iowa notes

Iowa got on the board early, quickly building an impressive lead. The Wildcats were held to a first-quarter touchdown, third-quarter field goal, and 99 yards on the ground. Iowa's performance allowed its seniors to be recognized and see playing time on the field for the last time.

QUOTES

Brad's performance speaks volumes; you just have to look at what he does for our football team week in and week out. As far as his stats today, you can't do much better than that. He scored three times through the air and twice from the ground. He's winning with his feet and arm, but more importantly, he's doing it with his head.

— Kirk Ferentz, Iowa coach

Iowa's offensive line? It's just awesome. They handled the game against us. They play so well together.

— Randy Walker, Northwestern coach

Hawkeyes take final bow in front of Kinnick crowd

most of Iowa's 24 seniors were either redshirt or true freshmen to the 10-1 juggernaut it is today, deserved the honor, but their expression and the adulation it received may as well have been an all-encompassing gesture for each senior making a collective curtain call as a member of the team.

From starters such as the offensive line and quarterback Brad Banks to reserve defensive linemen Scott Webb and John Mickelson, Iowa's game against the Wildcats served as the perfect opportunity to take a final bow in front of the home crowd.

Banks was a perfect 10-of-10 passing for 197 yards and three touchdowns and rushed for another two before he took his own curtain call with eight minutes remaining in the third quarter.

"I was just having fun," said Banks, whose performance against Northwestern has bolstered talk of a possible Heisman candidacy.

The offensive line, from the heralded starting five to reserves Jason Hoveland, Will Lack, and Pete Traynor, did not allow a sack and opened holes which allowed for a bevy of running backs to accumulate 245 rushing yards.

Anchored by seniors Colin Cole and Fred Barr, the story was much the same on the defensive side of the ball as the Hawkeyes held the Wildcats to just one touchdown and a field goal.

"It was hard to have only 60 minutes left in Kinnick Stadium," said Cole, who recorded three tackles. "It's been a long run and it seemed like it was going to go forever, but I quickly found out it wasn't."

Cole and his teammates turned over the reigns of the defense to slightly less fanfare — there were no triumphant walks off the field because of the constant shuffling which occurs on that side of the ball — but there was nothing to worry about. Iowa's second and third string defense held the Wildcats scoreless for the remainder of the game.

Secondary mates Derek Pagel and Scott Boleyn, both native Iowans who walked on to the team, went out in style with Pagel recording seven tackles and Boleyn intercepting his first collegiate pass. He added his second later in the game.

Every senior, with the exception of quarterback David Raih who is still recovering from a career-ending shoulder injury, saw at least some playing time against the Wildcats.

"Senior day is tough on me," said Iowa coach Kirk Ferentz following the victory, his own eyes red and moist with tears. "Believe it or not, I'm an emotional guy and senior day has always been tough on me."

The Hawkeyes, who remained at No. 6 in this week's AP poll and moved to No. 5 in the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, end regular season play this Saturday at Minnesota.

SPORTS BRIEF

Serena Williams advances to final

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There'll be only one Williams in the WTA Championships final.

Top-seeded Serena Williams overcame her own uneven play to beat No. 3 Jennifer Capriati, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, in the semifinals Sunday. Older sister Venus was forced out by a leg injury trailing 5-0 in the first set of her semifinal against Kim Clijsters.

Serena Williams will play Clijsters in tonight's final of the $3 million tournament. Williams won the title a year ago in Germany when Lindsay Davenport couldn't play because of injury.

"Hopefully, I'll be able to play a little better in the final," Williams said. Venus Williams said she twisted her left ankle in a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Monica Seles on Nov. 8, but didn't feel the effects until Nov. 9. The official diagnosis was a lower leg strain.

"She was really injured," Serena said. "I don't think she should have went out there at all."

Serena Williams needed just over two hours to put away Capriati for her 18th-consecutive victory. She is 56-4 this year, with her last loss to Chanda Rubin in August in nearby Manhattan Beach.

Serena Williams had nearly four times the number of winners (42 to 11), but she committed a whopping 53 unforced errors and won just four more total points than Capriati.

"Sometimes she's erratic. That makes it difficult to play her because she can get on a roll and then miss a bunch of shots," Capriati said.

After splitting sets, Capriati took a 3-1 lead in the third before the largest and loudest crowd of the week at Staples Center, where the tournament has been plagued by poor attendance in its first year in Los Angeles. Sunday's crowd was announced as 8,164 in the 20,000-seat arena.

Capriati was within a point of going up 4-1, but she returned Williams' serve long. Williams hit a 115-mph ace, and then Capriati missed a forehand as Williams won the first of three consecutive games for a 4-3 lead.

"I had so many chances," Capriati said.

Miami returns to No. 1 in polls

BY RICHARD ROSENBLATT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Miami is back at No. 1, and this time it's unanimous.

The Hurricanes regained the top spot in the Associated Press media poll on Sunday, a week after a 25-point victory over Rutgers saw them drop to No. 2 behind Oklahoma.

With the Sooners losing to Texas A&M, 30-26, and Miami overpowering Tennessee, 26-3, on Nov. 9, the Hurricanes (9-0) received all 74 first-place votes and 1,850 points from the sports writers and broadcasters on the AP panel.

Miami was No. 1 for a record 21-straight polls before being unseated by Oklahoma. For the first time this season, though, the Hurricanes made a clean sweep of the votes.

Ohio State (11-0), the only other unbeaten major-college team, moved up to No. 2 from No. 3 after its 10-6 win over Purdue. The Buckeyes totaled 1,771 points.

Washington State (9-1) made a big jump to No. 3 from No. 5 after a 32-21 win over Oregon, while Oklahoma (8-1) and Texas (9-1) were tied at No. 4 and Iowa (10-1) was No. 6. The four-one loss teams are separated by just 32 points.

Miami remained No. 1 in the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll, followed by Ohio State, Texas, Washington State, Iowa, and Oklahoma.

The order is not certain, but Miami and Ohio State should be first and second when the new Bowl Championship Series standings are released today. The Buckeyes were second and the Hurricanes third behind the Sooners last week.

The top two teams in the final BCS standings on Dec. 8 play for the BCS national title in the Fiesta Bowl on Jan. 3.

Last week, Miami lost 27 first-place votes to Oklahoma in the AP poll after rallying for a 42-17 win over lowly Rutgers, which led by three points in the fourth quarter. Coupled with the Sooners' 27-11 victory over Colorado, AP voters gave the No. 1 nod to Oklahoma.

Nelson echoed his coach's sentiments concerning Lack's work ethic: "The guy is amazing. He'll pull an all-nighter and still be the first one out here the next day."

It's easy to wonder whether Lack ever regrets his decision to walk-on at a Division-I school instead of starring at a smaller one, but he ends any questions quickly.

"I don't think there's anyone in his right mind who would be thinking that now after we've went from 1-10 my first year to playing so well now," Lack said.

He added that playing for Ferentz is a significant part of what has made his experience at Iowa so rewarding.

"I don't see how anyone could turn down playing in the Big Ten and for a coach like Coach Ferentz. I don't think there's any coach who has more respect from their players," Lack said.

Despite his importance on the practice field, he isn't usually able to make an impact come game day.

"Everybody wants to be able to contribute as much as he can to the team on Saturday and be on the field as much as he can. So sometimes it is hard," Lack said. "The way I deal with it is I do as much as I can in practice, so that when I do get on the What's it like to be a walk-on?

"The hardest thing about being a walk-on is knowing that no matter how hard you work, you'll always be the guy nobody knows."

— Jason Hoveland, senior

"As a walk-on, you have added stress about getting that scholarship. You have to worry about bills a lot more. You have to worry about training table. And it's frustrating to see a scholarship player earn in one scholarship check what it takes me all summer to make."

— Tony Burrier, senior

"All the hard times I've gone through here, it's just made me a stronger person. It's going to make it easier for me to deal with hard times later in life, just because I'll have gone through hard times not playing much."

field, I can help my teammates as much as possible."

Ferentz quiets any lingering concerns as to whether Lack and some of his fellow walk-ons will be more than just footnotes in Iowa football history.

"I just respect those guys so much, and anything I can do for them, I'll do down the road," Ferentz said. "We don't have any guys on our football team who care more about it than those guys. Those are the real success stories to me in college football."

Iowa could still smell roses thanks to upset

BY DONOVAN BURBA
THE DAILY IOWAN

Midway through the third quarter of Iowa's 62-10 romp over Northwestern, the focus at Kinnick Stadium shifted from the action on the field to the JumboTron in the south end-zone.

With the game in Iowa City firmly in hand, Hawkeye fans turned their attention to West Lafayette, Ind., where Purdue clung to a late 6-3 over Big Ten leader Ohio State. When the scoreboard flashed the news that the Buckeyes pulled out a 10-6 victory, the Kinnick crowd let out a groan audible even in the confines of the glassed-in press box.

If the Iowa players on the sidelines were doing any scoreboard-watching of their own, they managed to keep their emotions more subdued.

"They were announcing it over the loudspeakers, but that really doesn't matter," said Iowa safety Bob Sanders. "It matters what we do, and we wanted to just come in and get the win today, and we did that."

Iowa might not need any help getting to Pasadena. About the time Northwestern was crossing the Mississippi River back into Illinois, Texas A&M polished off a shocking upset of BCS No. 1 Oklahoma.

That leaves Ohio State and Miami on the fast track to the Fiesta Bowl, the BCS title game, and gives Iowa a strong chance at securing one of two at-large BCS bowl bids. Conveniently, one of those openings would be in the Rose Bowl, which matches up the Big Ten and PAC-Ten champions, unless one or both plays in the title game. Rose Bowl organizers would be hard-pressed to turn down a 10-1 team from a conference with which the game is historically associated.

All of that assumes that the Hawkeyes win this Saturday at Minnesota. Although Iowa is a heavy favorite in the game, coach Kirk Ferentz stressed the importance of maintaining focus in the face of the bowl hoopla.

"This is no time to change our approach," said Ferentz. "I think we've been very successful doing what we've been doing, and we're going to prepare every bit as hard for Minnesota as we did for Northwestern. We'll get the work done we have to get done out there on the field and that'll be it."

All the head-swimming scenarios may create thousands of jobs for college football pundits, but the players themselves at least claim to be indifferent to the whole brouhaha.

"Right now, I don't think we're worried about the Rose Bowl," said senior defensive lineman Colin Cole. "We're thinking about the Big Ten championship. We want that ring, and then whatever bowl we go to, I guess we'll be satisfied with that."

A win Saturday at Minnesota would give Iowa at least a share of the Big Ten title for the first time since 1990.

Japanese all-stars win as Bonds K's thrice

TOKYO (AP) — Barry Bonds opened a seven-game all-star series with one of his worst games in 1 1/2 years.

Bonds struck out three times as the major league all-stars lost to their Japanese counterparts, 8-4, Sunday in the opener of their exhibition series.

Bonds, who homered twice on Nov. 9 against the Japanese champion Yomiuri Giants, fanned three times against Yomiuri right-hander Koji Uehara, who also struck out Jason Giambi twice.

During the regular season, Bonds has not struck out three times in a game since Aug. 8, 2001 — when he was called out three times against Cincinnati and argued with plate umpire Jerry Meals.

Bonds, expected to win his fifth NL MVP award today, also was MVP of the 2000 exhibition tour of Japan, hitting four homers with nine RBIs.

Osgood so good for Isles

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Jason Blake scored a tiebreaking goal at 7:43 of the third period, and the New York Islanders beat the Dallas Stars, 3-2, Sunday to win consecutive games for the first time this season.

Chris Osgood made 38 saves for the Islanders, who also got goals from Shawn Bates and Eric Manlow. Jere Lehtinen scored twice for Dallas.

The Stars scored with man advantage goal at 12:02 of the first. Lehtinen beat Osgood, who got a piece of the puck, from the left side after some crisp passing.

On Dallas' next power play, Sergei Zubov couldn't handle a pass at the right point, and Bates picked up the loose puck and beat Marty Turco from 10 feet.

Anaheim 1, Minnesota 0
ANAHEIM, Calif. — Jean-Sebastien Giguere got his first shutout of the season and rookie Stanislav Chistov scored the only goal in the first period as the Anaheim Mighty Ducks beat the Minnesota Wild, 1-0, Sunday.

Minnesota (10-4-2) still has a league-leading 22 points despite three losses in its last four games.

Giguere faced his stiffest challenge with about seven minutes left in the second period when he stopped point-blank shots by Richard Park and Nick Schultz seconds apart.

Manny Fernandez finished with 36 saves.

Nashville 4, Colorado 3
DENVER — Vladimir Orszagh scored at 15:55 of the third period, Tomas Vokoun had 33 saves and the Nashville Predators beat Colorado, 4-3, Sunday night.

Joe Sakic's 10th goal of the season — on a rare power play — pulled Colorado into a 3-3 tie at 8:15 of the final period.

During an ensuing scramble in front of the Colorado goal, Orszagh poked the puck past Patrick Roy for his fourth goal of the season.

Maggette leads Clippers to close win over Orlando

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Corey Maggette led a late surge, and the Los Angeles Clippers overcame a seven-point deficit in the final 3:13 to beat the Orlando Magic, 120-117.

The Clippers led by 10 early in the fourth quarter. But Orlando's Darrell Armstrong scored eight consecutive points, including a pair of free throws that put the Magic ahead 113-106.

Starting at the 2:19 mark, Maggette had a basket and shot 4-for-4 from the foul line to tie it at 115 with 55.9 seconds remaining.

After Armstrong missed a 3-pointer, Keyon Dooling's free throws put Los Angeles ahead for good, 117-115 with 22.4 seconds left. Miller followed by hitting three foul shots, and Orlando's Grant Hill made a layup at the buzzer.

New Orleans 97, N.Y. Knicks 91
NEW YORK — Baron Davis took over in overtime when the Knicks didn't have a point guard to defend him, leading the New Orleans Hornets to a 97-91 victory Sunday over New York.

Davis scored five of his 24 points and had two of his seven assists in overtime, when the Hornets scored the final 10 points of the game.

Davis shot 10-for-23 from the field and added six rebounds as New Orleans won on the road for the first time this season.

P.J. Brown added 16 points and 11 rebounds and Jamal Mashburn just missed a triple-double with 15 points, 10 rebounds, and nine assists.

For the Knicks, Allan Houston scored 27 but missed four of his five shots in overtime. Lee Nailon added 18 against his former team.

Sorenstam wins 10th LPGA Tour title of the year

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OTSU, Japan — Annika Sorenstam didn't let a cold affect her bid to become the LPGA Tour's first 10-time winner in 34 years.

In fact, she used her weakened condition as a swing aid.

"There's an expression, 'Watch out for the sick player,'" said Sorenstam, her voice reduced to a whisper. "In my case, sometimes it's good because I don't swing too hard and swing smoothly. When I don't play well, it's when I'm trying to swing too hard. When I play like this, I don't swing hard."

The Swedish star birdied the two closing par-5 holes Sunday for a 5-under 67 and 15-under 201 total, giving her a two-stroke margin over South Korea's Grace Park.

"I feel better than I sound," Sorenstam said. "I told my caddie, Terry McNamara, today that I'm in the position that I want to be in and that this is what I've been waiting for — to win my 10th."

"I said that I'm going to do everything I can, and nothing is going to stop me. I saved my energy and hardly talked to Terry at all. I just wanted to make sure I had enough energy to do what I had to do."

She's the first player to win 10 times in a season since Kathy Whitworth and Carol Mann in 1968. Mickey Wright reached double figures four times, setting the record with 13 victories in 1963 and winning 11 times in 1964.

"I set high goals for myself, but sometimes you wonder if you can achieve them," Sorenstam said. "Here I am, and I've definitely achieved one of my goals. I feel like crying in a way, but I'm so happy that I feel like jumping high."

She soared above her rivals

all week on the Seta course's four par-5 holes, carding an eagle and three birdies in each of the final two rounds and finishing the tournament 12 under on the four long holes.

She eagled the par-5 sixth — hitting a 4-wood approach to 12 feet on the 483-yard hole — immediately after skulling a bunker shot over the fifth green en route to a double-bogey that dropped her a shot behind South Korea's Se Ri Pak.

"I said, 'Let's get it back, nothing's going to stop me,'" Sorenstam recalled. "I killed my drive, hit a good shot up to the green and made a good putt for eagle."

She added a 5-foot birdie putt on the seventh to move a stroke ahead of Pak and three ahead of Park, and got to 13 under with a 10-footer on No. 10. After six-straight pars, Sorenstam hit another 4-wood solid approach to set up a two-putt birdie on the 476-yard 17th, and closed with an 11-foot birdie putt on the 540-yard 18th.

The 32-year-old Swede earned $169,500 for her 41st LPGA Tour victory to push her record total to $2,648,904, with just the ADT Championship left. She also won events in Australia and Sweden, giving her 12 worldwide victories in 24 starts this year.

Pak, the winner last week in the World Ladies Match Play Championship in Narita, shot a 68. She was forced to play with an old driver after her new model was broken on the bus ride to the golf course.

"My caddie caught an earlier bus, and when he tapped me on the shoulder and told me, I was upset," Park said. "I tried to forget about it, but when I got on the course and saw it not going straight, it was tough ... It was a different shaft, a different clubhead and the feel was different. I couldn't get anything straight out of it."

Pak, a five-time winner this year, finished third at 12 under, matching Sorenstam and Canada's Lorie Kane for the best round of the day.

Vick, Maddox stellar, but neither gets win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Outstanding performances by Tommy Maddox and Michael Vick, combined with two blocked field goals in overtime, resulted in the 16th tie in NFL history and the first in five years.

Vick rallied Atlanta from 17 points down in the fourth quarter, and the Falcons withstood Maddox's franchise-record 473 yards passing to tie Pittsburgh, 34-34, Sunday.

After Pittsburgh's Todd Peterson and Atlanta's Jay Feely had overtime field-goal attempts blocked, Pittsburgh still nearly won it. With only 1 second on the clock, Maddox lofted a 50-yard pass that Plaxico Burress caught at the Falcons 1-yard line. Half of Burress' body was in the end zone, but the ball wasn't, and the Steelers didn't have enough time to run another play.

Maddox was 28-of-41 for 473 yards, easily breaking Bobby Layne's 1958 club record of 409 yards.

Burress made nine catches for a team-record 253 yards and two touchdowns, but Pittsburgh still couldn't hold a 34-17 lead in the fourth quarter.

Remarkably, Vick — perhaps the fastest quarterback in NFL history — pulled off the comeback despite being forced into becoming a one-dimensional player. He had 52 yards rushing but still got free to run for an 11-yard touchdown on a broken play in the final minute of regulation that sent it to overtime.

Despite fighting off the constant pressure, Vick dodged and weaved his way to a 294-yard passing day, going 24-of-46.

St. Louis 28, San Diego 24

ST. LOUIS — The Rams lost four fumbles — two of which were returned for touchdowns — but used two late touchdowns and a successful onside kick to defeat San Diego and win their fourth-straight game. St. Louis (4-5) was led by Marc Bulger's 453 yards passing — the fourth-most in franchise history — and Isaac Bruce, who lost two of the fumbles but caught three touchdown passes, including the 7-yard game-winner with 1:14 to play.

N. Y. Giants 27, Minnesota 20

MINNEAPOLIS — Kerry Collins threw for 300 yards and two touchdowns, and Tiki Barber ran for 127 yards on 24 carries to lead the Giants.

New York (5-4) moved within a game of first-place Philadelphia in the NFC East. The Vikings are 2-7 for the first time since 1984.

Michael Bennett rushed 15 times for a career-high 167 yards, his third-straight 100-yard game. He scored on a 78-yard burst through the line that gave Minnesota its first lead, 20-19 with 8:36 remaining.

Indianapolis 35, Philadelphia 13

PHILADELPHIA — Peyton Manning threw for 319 yards and three touchdown passes, and James Munro ran for 114 yards and two TDs, leading the Colts past the Eagles.

The Colts (5-4) snapped a three-game losing streak. Philadelphia (6-3) had won three straight.

Munro, making his first career start because Edgerrin James and Ricky Williams are out with hamstring injuries, had TD runs of 6 and 10 yards.

Marvin Harrison finished with six catches for 137 yards.

Green Bay 40, Detroit 14

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Brett Favre's sprained left knee gave him no problems in his second start since getting hurt, as he threw for 351 yards and two touchdowns.

The Packers improved their NFL-best record to 8-1 while taking a five-game lead over second-place Detroit (3-6) in the NFC North.

Donald Driver caught 11 passes for 130 yards and Ryan Longwell kicked four field goals in Green Bay's

Atlanta Falcons quarterback Michael Vick runs in a fourth-quarter touchdown to tie the Pittsburgh Steelers, 34-34. The game ended in a tie. Keith Srakocic/Associated Press seventh-straight victory — their longest streak in the regular season since 1963.

New Orleans 34, Carolina 24

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Aaron Brooks threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Donte Stallworth with 31 seconds to play Sunday, and Charles Grant returned Rodney Peete's fumble 34 yards on the final play to preserve the Saints' victory.

The Saints are 7-2, their best start since 1992, and have won five straight over Carolina.

Bolstered by the return of Peete — he missed two games with a knee injury — the Panthers took a late 24-20 lead on his 15-yard touchdown pass to Wesley Walls with 3:31 to play.

Deuce McAllister had 71 yards rushing and two touchdown runs.

Brooks threw for 259 yards and one touchdown.

Tennessee 17, Houston 10

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Steve McNair threw for two touchdowns and Eddie George rushed for 86 yards as Tennessee defeated the Texans in the first-ever meeting between Houston's current and former teams.

At least the Texans (2-7) signaled that this might soon become an interesting rivalry, as David Carr threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Jarrod Baxter with 3:05 left.

The Titans (5-4) didn't seal the victory until Lance Schulters intercepted Carr's pass at the Tennessee 46 with 1:11 left.

Baltimore 38, Cincinnati 27

BALTIMORE — Adalius Thomas returned an interception 25 yards for a touchdown and rookie Lamont Brightful scored on a 95-yard punt return in Baltimore's victory.

Brightful also returned a kickoff 54 yards to help the Ravens boost their lead to 24-14 at halftime.

Jamal Lewis ran for 135 yards and two touchdowns as the Ravens (4-5) snapped a two-game losing streak and denied Cincinnati a second-straight victory.

BASEBALL

Owners vow to spend less

BY JOSH DUBOW
ASSOCIATED PRESS

TUCSON, Ariz. — Baseball teams won't be quite as quick this offseason to dole out those megamillion contracts that characterized recent winter spending sprees.

With a new labor deal that transfers money from the big spenders to the smaller markets, a struggling economy, and few top players available, teams are talking more about financial discipline than breaking contract barriers this year.

Even the free-spending New York Yankees will have to work within a tighter budget because of the new labor deal, which team officials project will cost at least $20 million more in luxury-tax and revenue-sharing payments next season.

The Yankees aren't the only team that will try to rein in spending; most other teams will try to keep their payroll under the $117 million luxury-tax threshold put in place in the new labor deal.

"We project we'll have to pay an additional $10 million in revenue sharing," Seattle general manager Pat Gillick said. "Consequently, that's got to come from somewhere, and we'll have to be creative in our contracts."

This newfound austerity has some agents concerned heading into this week's general managers' meetings in Arizona. "There's really nothing to be gleaned from anything that's taken place yet," agent Tom Reich said. "The most common refrain these days is budget, budget, budget, just like real estate with location, location, location. We'll see what happens. It's going to be a long winter."

In the past four offseasons, teams have broken the $100 million mark in contracts for Alex Rodriguez, Derek Jeter, Manny Ramirez, Jason Giambi, Mike Hampton, Ken Griffey Jr., Todd Helton, and Kevin Brown.

No players in this year's class figure to get that big a contract, but there still are some very attractive players available. Yet it will probably take more time and less money for them to find new deals.
