Locals fret about Muslim camp

BY CALVIN HENNICK
THE DAILY IOWAN

Local officials on Wednesday confirmed a rumor about a proposed Muslim youth camp adjacent to the Cedar Creek Reservoir and said they acknowledged that they had no power to stop the development.

The Army Corps of Engineers will decide later this spring whether to issue 106 acres of land to the Cedar Rapids-based Muslim Youth Camp of America. The Corps is reviewing the draft environmental statement submitted before the Jan. 2 deadline.

Corporal spokesman Ron Fouquet said the Corps would rely on what is best for the region.

"The Corps may or may not want to want to go forward with this," he said. "If nothing significant is brought to our attention, we will most likely go ahead with the house.

"Most of the Corps' decision will likely be based on a 200-page environmental assessment of the lease proposed in September by the Cedar Rapids-based Rainbow Ridge.

UG urges caution in naming names in e-mail

BY JESSICA KEES
THE DAILY IOWAN

UG officials have a simple message for department heads: Watch what you say or result may be guidelines for electronic communication distributed this week asking administrators to be cautious when naming specific individuals in e-mails about confidential personnel matters.

The hope is to avoid embarrassing and damaging e-mails that could be uncovered in legal proceedings, protecting the university and its employees from liability.

"The real concern for us has been the people that tend to treat e-mails more like an oral conversation than a written document," said Mary Mills, the university's assistant associate vice president for external relations, who co-authored the guidelines distributed on Jan. 17. "As a result, we sometimes see things in e-mails we'd rather not see out.

The guidelines warn university employees never to assume that e-mails are confidential. While personnel matters are not subject to open records laws, an e-mail can enter into the public domain if uncovered during legal proceedings.

WEATHER

INDEX

1

3

6

10

13

16

19

22

25

30

34

37

40

43

46

49

52

55

58

61

64

67

70

73

76

79

82

85

88

91

94

97

100

103

106

109

112

115

118

121

124

127

130

133

136

139

142

145

148

151

154

157

160

163

166

169

172

175

178

181

184

187

190

193

196

199

202

205

208

211

214

217

220

223

226

229

232

235

238
GROUP wants School Board vote for teens

BY INGA REYER

The Daily Iowan

An area school district administers an evaluation about whether eighth- through senior-year-olds should vote in School Board elections. The results of that survey, which closed on Tuesday, were discussed at a committee meeting on Thursday afternoon.

Plainview Township students in the district's grades 8 through 12 are among the nation's first school students to vote in a school-related election. The vote was part of a larger effort to get kids to vote at all.

The Plainview District, in a meeting which ended last October, agreed to test voting in its school. The school district then asked for a similar test to be applied to other school districts.

The idea of allowing teen voters has been supported by a number of groups, including the National Association of Secondary School Principals, which has worked on a national effort to get young voters to the polls.

In October, the district's board voted to implement the plan. The plan called for the school board to propose a resolution to the school board, which would then be voted on by the students. The students would then be asked to vote on the resolution.

The plan was presented to the school board on Thursday. The board voted to support the plan.

The plan would be implemented in the 2003-04 school year. The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.

The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.

The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.

The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.

The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.

The district would then have to vote on the resolution again in the 2004-05 school year.
Hart considers another presidential bid

BY EDWIN CHEN AND JAMES GERSTENZANG

ST. LOUIS - President Bush on Wednesday traveled to the middle of the United States to press the benefits of his new tax-cut proposal for middle-income families.

He voiced "no typical campaign rhetoric" that he contended Democrats have used "to get a political advantage," saying "it's the wrong bill, it's the wrong time.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

BUSH DEFENDS HIS TAX CUTS AS HIS RATINGS DIP

BY EDWIN CHEN AND JAMES GERSTENZANG

ST. LOUIS - President Bush on Wednesday traveled to the middle of the United States to press the benefits of his new tax-cut proposal for middle-income families.

He voiced "no typical campaign rhetoric" that he contended Democrats have used "to get a political advantage," saying "it's the wrong bill, it's the wrong time.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

"This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

"This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

"This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

"This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.

Bush defended his tax cuts as his ratings dip

"This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

"Since '97, I've talked about making sure that people who are paying $300 in taxes would have some relief," Bush said. "This is a concern about its impact on the economy.

The goal of the White House was to help pay for community projects that make sense in an innovative, productive place to live, but that means little if the state can't make the state a more attractive place to live.
AIDS researchers run into Iraqi protesters

BY CHARLES J. HANLEY

BAGHDAD, Iraq — U.N. arms inspectors met a chorus of Iraqi protests Wednesday — a scenario President Bush was hoping to avoid as he sent the inspectors on their first unannounced mission into Iraq.

The Iraqis were angry, with one leader calling U.N. inspections a sign of weakness.

"We will not be the tool of any enemy," said Fadhel al-Hussain, chief of the Iraqi Supreme National Council.

"The Bush administration has hurt the Iraqis" after a rally of his ruling Ba'ath party on Saturday, said Jumana al-Hashim, a Muslim cleric.

"Don't just waste it like more inspections," she said.

The inspectors, who arrived unannounced, ran into Iraqi protestors near the Baghdad Technology Institute.

Iraqi cooperation thus tends Iraq should be found in the next reports on their findings which will pave the way for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.

Abortions-rights advocates acknowledged that their opponents have a right to cheer this.

"President Bush is just inching closer to war," said one protestor in Washington, D.C., afraid for the United Nations to proceed with inspections.

Several hundred anti-inspection protestors chanted, "We won't go back" binning out through the rain while several Iraqis pulled cards from women who have had abortions.
Senate confirms Ridge for homeland security

WASHINGTON — The Senate confirmed Tom Ridge as homeland security chief Wednesday with a unanimous vote and a strong message that it would be working closely as he badge a makeshift operation into one of government's largest agencies.

"With today's vote, the Senate confirmed Tom Ridge as an essential part of our homeland defense," said Sen. Richard Durbin, D-Ill., leaving steel come into being until Friday, he expected to be in the building that will initially house Ridge and his domestic terrorism, the first hut in a new network of center in which officials will become potential terrorist targets, and manage crises. The department's creation makes the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Department. Ridge's nomination was pushed by former Arkansas congressman and Drug Enforcement Administration Director John Roberts, who testified before a Senate committee Wednesday on his nomination to be the new head of the department's new undersecretary for domestic and territorial security. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.

The Homeland Security Department will be the largest and most complex of its kind in the United States. The department's creation is part of the largest reorganization of the federal government since the passage of the Defense Reorganization Act of 1947. The department's creation is an attempt to bring together 22 separate agencies that have little in common, and to make sure that the department is not cobbled together from existing agencies because the new department is undersecretary for homeland security and protection. Ridge's confirmation by the Senate was welcome news for him and for Bush supporters who have been waiting for the president to fill the post with a confirmed nominee. Ridge, 57, will be a part-time homeland security chief, and won't formally take over until January, said after the confirmation vote, "We've been working 22 separate agencies that have little in common," "We're not going to move into the White House," said Durbin. "But Ridge will assume the duties of homeland security chief," he said.
Anti-Iraq war mood grows

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush's efforts at bringing allies around to the U.S. position on Iraq appeared to be unraveling Wednesday, putting the administration in a difficult position ahead of a key U.N. report due Friday.

Weapon inspectors were coming up empty. France and Germany have made it plain that they will refuse to back an anti-Iraq war resolution at the U.N. Security Council.

The report as a possible decision point going to war, but they've done so far from allies who have rejected the U.S. position and are given now more time to do their work.

In remarks Wednesday in St. Louis that appeared directed at both Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein and American public, Bush decried, "It's time for us to build the world we want and the America we need."

We must not be led by the war on terror.

Exasperating von Bush urged Saddam to lay off time by giving inspectors more run-around." A day earlier, Bush hinted giving the U.S. inspectors more time to do their work.

German Chancellor Gerhard Schroder said support behind the U.S.-led war was in a concrete shed here is the Kibbla videotaped by a priest who was in a concrete shed here to block the Iraqi war resolution.

France has hinted it might use its Security Council veto to block an Iraq war resolution. Germany also ruled for a delay.

In remarks Wednesday in St. Louis that appeared directed at both Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein and American public, Bush decried, "It's time for us to build the world we want and the America we need."

We must not be led by the war on terror.

Exasperating von Bush urged Saddam to lay off time by giving inspectors more run-around." A day earlier, Bush hinted giving the U.S. inspectors more time to do their work.

German Chancellor Gerhard Schroder said support behind the U.S.-led war was in a concrete shed here is the Kibla videotaped by a priest who was in a concrete shed here to block the Iraqi war resolution.

France has hinted it might use its Security Council veto to block an Iraq war resolution. Germany also ruled for a delay.
USBstyle Online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online. Usbstyle online.
Everything you need is here!

Located on the Ground Floor, IMU

UBStore
the way Iowa shops
U.S. U.N. to take up Korea

BY HENRY CHI AND MAGGIE FARLEY
Southeast Daily Times
SEOUl, South Korea—

Light snow falls as a North Korean soldier watches journalists and others at the border village of Panmunjom on Wednesday. Washington on the question of normalizing the situation on the Korean peninsula," he said. During his three-day visit to North Korea, Lavrov announced a Russian proposal that calls for nuclear-free status for the Korean peninsula, security guarantees for North Korea, and a formal declaration to end the 1950-1953 war.

U.S. adviser Bruce Klingner said Wednesday after returning from talks in North Korea that Pyongyang and Washington are not that far apart in their positions over the nuclear program and that Russia’s efforts could well bear fruit. What is missing is an international framework to resolve the dispute, he said.

Klingner said a harder line, saying that Pyongyang’s efforts to develop uranium for possible nuclear weapons and its withdrawal from the Non-Proliferation Treaty have created grounds for Security Council negotiations. But at the United Nations, diplomats say they don’t expect Britain and France to bring the issue before the council...
Searching for Kinnick

KINNICK

Continued from Page 1A

The 1941 estate is a testament to the secrecy surrounding the Kinnick disappearance, as revealed by the recently unsealed FBI files. The FBI's investigation into the disappearance remains open, with no clear answers on what happened to the body of the former Hawkeye football star.

The search for Kinnick has been ongoing since his disappearance in 1941. Despite extensive efforts by law enforcement, including a recent search at an Iowa location where Kinnick's family believed he might be buried, the FBI has not been able to locate any physical evidence of his disappearance.

The search for Kinnick is ongoing, and the FBI is still actively investigating the case. The families of Kinnick and others involved in the investigation are looking forward to any new developments that may shed light on what happened to the Hawkeye football star.

The search for Kinnick has been ongoing since his disappearance in 1941. Despite extensive efforts by law enforcement, including a recent search at an Iowa location where Kinnick's family believed he might be buried, the FBI has not been able to locate any physical evidence of his disappearance.

The search for Kinnick is ongoing, and the FBI is still actively investigating the case. The families of Kinnick and others involved in the investigation are looking forward to any new developments that may shed light on what happened to the Hawkeye football star.
TUESDAY, January 28, 4 - 6:30 PM
IOWA MEMORIAL UNION RICHIE BALLROOM
The Daily Iowan

No amount of tax increase on cigarettes will aid in Iowa's budget woes, and any debate on the issue will waste valuable legislative time.

T his week marks, among other things, the 30th anniversary of the Roe v. Wade decision, which allowed greater protection over a woman's right to choose an abortion, and the moment when we see an unprecedented degree of sanction or the murder of unborn human beings, depending on your point of view.

In clear, plain language, many of you believe that the Roe v. Wade decision was a gross and ethical violation of human rights, and I tend to agree with you. However, I also believe in the ability to do good through the legitimization of the Roe v. Wade decision, which allowed for the lives of millions of children to be saved and the development of the law to be expanded.

The most point of the perennial abortion punching match is that it is a topic that we cannot ignore. We must be able to discuss it in a meaningful way, and we must be able to consider all the various perspectives.

In my Opinion

Is increasing the tax on cigarettes unfair to smokers?

No, because they are a luxury item.

Yes, it is unfair.

I don't think so. It's unfair to the smokers who can't afford it.

I think it's a reasonable tax.
I swear this column is not about my pants.

Though my wardrobe is now slightly

The opportunity for volunteering like that

Volunteer Workers' will foster good people,

The men and women in the Shelter House's

THE BENEFITS OF YOGA:

*Flex Benefits
   * Stress reduction
   * Improves flexibility
   * Strengthens form and builds muscles
   * Creates balance and grace
   * Increases stamina

COV SYGA

TRY ANY ONE OF OUR REFRESHING, ENERGIZING BODY SHAPING CLASSES:

Yoga • Pilates

District of the Shelter House:

Elementary school policy

High School:

Hawkeye Sportswear

The Studio

www.hawkeyesportswear.com

IOWA'S MOST CONVENIENT BOOKSTORE

• Student I.D. Charges
• Used & New Textbooks
• School Supplies
• Hawkeye Sportswear
• Computer Books
• Computer Software

IOWA'S GREATEST Gourmet Sandwiches

THE MEAT REASON

We love meat. That's why we serve only 100% real, lean, quality meats — never that changed and processed stuff. After all, you don't cook it just to pile the things on top.

MIKE BROOKS

Thanks to community

FLORIDA • GERMANY • JAPAN • THE NETHERLANDS

THE DAILY IOWAN - IOWA CITY, IOWA - THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, 2003 - 13A

OPINIONS

P

apes and I didn't get along too well. We...
Investors need to be able to trust the information that companies supply to the public. Help us audit that information and we’ll help you build a career.

For opportunities and information go to: www.pwcglobal.com/lookhere

Look beyond the numbers.
Iowa backup running back leaves team

Steve Smith, Iowa's backup running back, announced Monday he's leaving the program after a fourth year of eligibility with the Hawkeyes.

Smith, a senior from Des Moines, is a candidate for the Heisman Trophy. He's the team's all-time leading rusher with 2,504 yards and 20 touchdowns.

SCOREBOARD

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>League</th>
<th>Team 1</th>
<th>Score</th>
<th>Team 2</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>MLB</td>
<td>Athletics</td>
<td>5-4</td>
<td>Indians</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NFL</td>
<td>Rams</td>
<td>30-10</td>
<td>Titans</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NHL</td>
<td>Lightning</td>
<td>4-3</td>
<td>Avalanche</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NBA</td>
<td>Celtics</td>
<td>106-92</td>
<td>Suns</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>WBA</td>
<td>Brewers</td>
<td>10-4</td>
<td>Pirates</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NCAA</td>
<td>Louisville</td>
<td>87-85</td>
<td>State</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

DI SPORTS DESK

The DI sports department welcomes questions, comments, and suggestions.

Phone: (319) 335-5444
Email: di.sports@uiowa.edu
Mail: 209 Communications Center

Thursday, Jan. 23, 2003

ROLL CALL

Iowa women's basketball team will cross paths Friday with Houston Baptist, the team that ended Iowa's season in the tournament last year.

IOWA WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

An off night

Iowa outscored, outadjusted in 74-61 loss to Badgers

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP

MADISON — When 1-15 remains in the game, Iowa's Jeff Horner stood under his own basket quietly waiting for one of the Hawkeye baskets to fall. The crowd had returned in expectation before Cassius Stanley sank a 14-footer with 4:11 to go and 10-0 in the paint for Iowa. Horner was one of the players doing the job against the Badgers Saturday.

Wisconsin made all the adjustments it needed to in the second half and outscored Iowa 19 points in the period. The Hawkeyes sank just 15 of 56 shots, a season low.

The Badgers' senior leader was 11 for 20 from the free-throw line and knocked down 4 of 11 from the floor and 3-for-5 in the paint.

Badgers: 36 points off the bench and outscored Iowa 18 to 10 in the paint. With the Badgers leading 66-40 after three quarters, Iowa's only hope was to make a late run. The Hawkeyes shot 15 of 45 from the field and 7 of 11 from the line.

Women's TV

Wednesday at 2003 NCAA.tv: Women's Basketball Regional (Iowa)

Thursday, Jan. 23, 11:30 a.m.

BY MICHELLE YONG

The Iowa women's basketball team took on the University of Wisconsin Saturday at UW's Kohl Center. The game started off with the Badgers' lead off a two-game winning streak. Confidence, however, the Hawkeyes will be able to come back and beat the Badgers.

IOWA MEN'S BASKETBALL

Rodrick finishes long match as youngest finalist

Andy Roddick at the United States indoor tennis match against Tim Henman of Great Britain at the Arena of Austin over the Open.

She opened the No. 1 seed's campaign with a third-round upset of seven-time champion Pete Sampras. She then beat second-seeded Richard Krajicek in the semifinals before taking out the No. 3 seed, sixth-ranked Andre Agassi, in the final.

Roddick had a hand in the tournament's longest match as he rallied from a set down to win the longest match of the tournament.

Roddick was 3 years, 11 months, 30 days old when he won over his opponent.
Bucks take another road win

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Ray Allen scored 30 points, and Boston's defense dominated in a 108-94 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks on Wednesday night.

Bucks forward Tim Thomas scored 14 points and 11 rebounds, while Michael Redd added 16 points. Antoine Walker had three baskets in three quarters for a victory on Wednesday night.

Lester Hudson hit both free throws and 3-pointer for the win. Kevin Garnett scored 24 of his 37 points in the third quarter for a victory in Milwaukee.

New York 97, Denver 91

NEW YORK — Allen Iverson scored 35 points in the first half and the New York Knicks easily got away from the Denver Nuggets in the third quarter for a victory Wednesday night.

Iverson scored 17 and the Knicks went to 16-3 in their last 19 games. Jason Kidd scored 20 and Denver's Carmelo Anthony had 20.

New York center Kurt Thomas played for the first time since the beginning of the third quarter, and the Nuggets took advantage. But Spalding hit a 3-pointer and Howard had plenty of offense entering the fourth quarter, winning.

Iverson scored 17 and the Nuggets took advantage. But Spalding hit a 3-pointer and Howard had plenty of offense entering the fourth quarter, winning.

Minnesota 86, Seattle 91

MINNEAPOLIS — Kevin Garnett scored 33 points and Tim Thomas and XI added 21 points and seven assists and the Magic continued to win fourth quarter to beat the Bulls, 94-84.

James Posey had 20 points for Chicago. 29 of them in the second half when the Bulls nearly missed a 10-point deficit. Marcus Fizer and Nick Nurse came off the bench to score 17 points each and the Bulls won their third in a row.

Jason Kidd led the Rangers with 19 points, seven rebounds and seven assists. Tim Thomas added 17 points.

Miami 119, Phoenix 91

MIAMI — Alonzo Mourning had 14 points and 14 rebounds, and Andrae Miller added 17 points.

Miami Heat beat the Milwaukee Bucks 98-85. Earnhardt Jr. said he would drive for a victory on Wednesday night.

Bucks take another road win

Associated Press

Bucks take another road win

Associated Press

Bucks take another road win

Associated Press

The Daily Iowan — Iowa City, Iowa — Thursday, January 23, 2003

SPORTS

NATIONAL BASKETBALL ASSOCIATION

1998-99 SCHEDULE

68-93

Champions:

1983

Suns

1993

Spurs

1995

Sonics

1997

Spurs

1999

76ers

2000

76ers

2001

76ers

2002

The Magic
earned the top seed in the Eastern Conference.

Eamhardt Jr. will drive for father's company

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — After being away from the Magic for an extended period of time, Michael Jordan is expected to return to action Saturday night in Charlotte.

2003

The Magic
earned the top seed in the Eastern Conference. Jordan is expected to return to action Saturday night in Charlotte.

Frattella, Fitzsimmons to coach All-Star rookies

NEW YORK — Former NBA coaches John Fratella and John McGraw will coach the Rookie Challenge game at 8:30 p.m. in Atlanta.

The game is part of the league's All-Star weekend.

They will be assistants at former Heat star Tim Hardaway and Lou Hudson.

Roddy Rodriguez, final

AUSTIN

Continued

meaningless except for the games before and after on that week's schedule. A "good" week can be a 1-1 record, if no games are played, then a 0-0-0 record.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.

Thursday

Three of the games were played in the third quarter.
Rodriguez 'good fit' for Hawkeyes

Mackay Arena hard place for Hawkies

Rodriguez, now 29, has proven himself as a definite threat to the top-ranked Badgers, scoring 17 points in Iowa's 69-65 win over Wisconsin.

Although Rodriguez is not a part of the starting lineup, his presence off the bench has been crucial. He helped the Hawkeyes to their first win in Madison since 1999, which was a significant milestone for the team.

Despite their victory, the Hawkeyes have struggled to dominate the Big Ten Conference. They have a 9-7 record in conference play, and a 16-12 overall record. They will face a tough challenge in their upcoming games, as they have a few key players out due to injury.

However, Rodriguez's performance has given the team hope for the rest of the season. With his scoring ability and willingness to play a defensive role, he has proven to be a valuable addition to the Hawkeyes' lineup.

Women's Basketball

The Hawkeyes took on the Wisconsin Badgers on Thursday night, looking to extend their winning streak. However, they were unable to secure a victory, as the Badgers won 70-65.

Despite the loss, Iowa's VanVleet had a solid performance, scoring 22 points. However, it was not enough to overcome the Badgers' defense. Iowa's offense struggled throughout the game, shooting only 34% from the field.

The Hawkeyes are currently riding a three-game losing streak, and will look to bounce back in their next game against Purdue on Monday. With Rodriguez's recent success, the team has hope for the rest of the season, but they will need to make adjustments in their game plan.

---

MEN'S BASKETBALL

Iowa vs. Wisconsin

Game Recap

The Hawkeyes were once againmina

BOX SCORE

Thursday Night

Draws, Run Drinks

Sports Drafts & Drinks

COLLECT ALL 8!
Sorenstam wants PGA invite

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ORLANDO, Fla. — Annika Sorenstam has dominated her competition on the LPGA Tour the last two seasons. Her next challenge might be against the men.

Sorenstam said Wednesday she would relish the chance to play in a PGA Tour event, provided the field included exemptions and the tournament was held on a golf course that suits her game.

"If I get an invite, I would say yes in a heartbeat," she said at the Hill Club and Lodge during an appearance for Callaway Golf. "It's a great challenge. It's not something I want to do regularly. But it would be a great experience.

"I would relish the chance to play against the men."

Sorenstam, who won 13 times around the men in 2004 and 2005, said she might consider playing on a limited basis against men.

Her next challenge will be to compete in the 2006 Winter Olympics in Turin, Italy.

"The government needs to find a legal mechanism to approve a tournament to be in place to be in the Athens Games." She went on to say, "I've not been invited to the Winter Olympics."
Duke's Duhon finds ways to win

BY MIKE DECOURCY

The drought Duke's Chris Duhon endured was of biblical proportions. Losing at least one game at home, off the road, in the season opener, then in the last of four straight before the New Year, the team was reeling. As was Duhon, the senior point guard who had been expected to be the difference in the Blue Devils' chances to win the ACC and beyond.

"I really looks for me. He makes my job easy, and it's much fun to play with him," said coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"For the first time, anywhere he's been, he should have an identity. I think he's earned it," Krzyzewski said.

The drought Duke's Chris Duhon endured was of biblical proportions. Losing at least one game at home, off the road, in the season opener, then in the last of four straight before the New Year, the team was reeling. As was Duhon, the senior point guard who had been expected to be the difference in the Blue Devils' chances to win the ACC and beyond.

"I really look for me. He makes my job easy, and it's much fun to play with him," said coach Mike Krzyzewski.

"For the first time, anywhere he's been, he should have an identity. I think he's earned it," Krzyzewski said.

Duhon was the first to notice what was happening. He had a few bad shots, and then there were bad stretches, and then the whole team was playing poorly. Duhon entered the season at a bit of a disadvantage. He had been the team's leader, the point guard who made sure everyone was on the same page, the guy who could make a difference with his shooting and leadership.

"It's a matter of me just not being ready," Duhon said. "I was kind of like, 'Oh, I've got the ball, I've got to shoot.' Instead of 'This is my job. I'm in so much into other parts of the game that when it's time for me to shoot, I won't be in a rhythm.'""
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Jamie Langenbrunner scored an unassisted power-play goal in the third period, giving the Dallas Stars a 6-5 victory over the Washington Capitals Wednesday night. Langenbrunner scored the only goal of the shootout. With the win, Dallas improved to 3-1-1-1 since Nov. 16, and 6-5-3-1 overall.

Langenbrunner's goal was his first in 10 games, and his first career shot at a power-play goal. The Capitals had the first power-play advantage of the game, but Langenbrunner scored to tie the game at 5-5 and force overtime. Langenbrunner's goal was unassisted, and he was the only player on the Stars' power-play unit.

In the Shootout, Langenbrunner was the only player on the Stars’ power-play unit. He scored on the first shot of the shootout and was the only player on the Stars’ power-play unit.

Langenbrunner's goal was his first in 10 games, and his first career shot at a power-play goal. The Capitals had the first power-play advantage of the game, but Langenbrunner scored to tie the game at 5-5 and force overtime. Langenbrunner's goal was unassisted, and he was the only player on the Stars' power-play unit.

The Capitals were able to break down their defense and take the lead back with 1:58 left in the game, scoring on a rebound after a shot by Mike Green. The Stars then tied the game back up with 0:55 left on a goal by Jamie Benn, but the Capitals took the lead back with 0:36 left on a goal by Alex Ovechkin.

In the Shootout, Langenbrunner was the only player on the Stars’ power-play unit. He scored on the first shot of the shootout and was the only player on the Stars’ power-play unit.

Langenbrunner's goal was his first in 10 games, and his first career shot at a power-play goal. The Capitals had the first power-play advantage of the game, but Langenbrunner scored to tie the game at 5-5 and force overtime. Langenbrunner's goal was unassisted, and he was the only player on the Stars' power-play unit.
A Photo is Worth A Thousand Words
SELL YOUR CAR
30 DAYS FOR
$40
(photo and up to 15 words)

1977 Dodge Van
year, color, trim line, engine, mileage, condition, etc. Required. Details: 635-3351

Call our office to set up a time that is convenient for you to bring your car by to be photographed.
You ad will run 30 days - for $40
Deadline: 2 days prior to run date desired

For more information contact
The Daily Iowan Classified Dept.
319-335-5784 or 335-5785

The Daily Iowan - Iowa City, Iowa - Thursday, March 21, 2003 - 1B calendar
- Martin Luther King Jr. Human Rights Week 2000, "Bicycle for Martin Luther King Jr." Day of 9-11, 3 p.m.
- national grand final 1999, "Bicycle for Martin Luther King Jr." Day of 9-11, 3 p.m.
- Martin Luther King Jr. Human Rights Week 2000, "Bicycle for Martin Luther King Jr." Day of 9-11, 3 p.m.
Graffiti Theatre hopes to create a dialogue with its performance of Uncolor in the IMU Wheelroom on Friday.

DI music critic Richard Shirk chronicles the beginning and the end of Iowa City's Alto Hereta.

T.A.T.U., a lesbian musical duo, brings its Euro pop to the U.S.

Urban Bush Women returns to Hancher on Friday to perform storytelling without words, utilizing modern dance and puppetry to present a tale of courage and tolerance.

The renowned modern-dance company of female performers collaborated with the National Company of Song and Dance of Mozambique to create the show, titled Shadow's Child, which explores those universal themes through elements of the culture of Mozambique, including traditional dance.

Artistic director Jawole Willa Jo Zollar conceived and directed Shadow's Child as an integration of exposure to traditional African culture with universal messages of tolerance, strength, and finding one's sense of self.

"It's a story about people coming together, about rootlessness and what's different," she said. "I think that gives the two right now where people (of color) are at an all-time high, it is something that is timely."

The performance includes traditional dances from Mozambique, such as the Xingobela. Although American audiences have frequently been exposed to the culture of West Africa, they have had less exposure to the rich and complex culture of Southeast Africa.

"The traditional African dances in the piece is very much part of who the characters are and what the story is about. Without that movement we wouldn't have a story. It's very much a part of the life in this culture," said artistic director Kwahme Ross, the associate artistic director of the troupe.

Ross, who is also the show's co-choreographer, has been studying and performing African dance professionally since the age of 9. He sees African dance's influence on modern dance in "the idea of isolation of weight, of exploring and looking at the connection of movement to environment."

"The forest creatures of Shadow's Child are dancers performing in life-sized animal puppets," Debby Lee Cohen, the puppet and scenery designer, drew inspiration from traditional art and masks from Mozambique.

Choreography for the puppet characters "is about really finding the relationship with the puppet while still being true to the animal, by exploring what is alligator, or what is rabbit," Ross said.

"It's a story about people coming together, about rootlessness and what's different," she said. "I think that gives the two right now where people (of color) are at an all-time high, it is something that is timely."

The performance includes traditional dances from Mozambique, such as the Xingobela. Although American audiences have frequently been exposed to the culture of West Africa, they have had less exposure to the rich and complex culture of Southeast Africa.

"The traditional African dances in the piece is very much part of who the characters are and what the story is about. Without that movement we wouldn't have a story. It's very much a part of the life in this culture," said artistic director Kwahme Ross, the associate artistic director of the troupe.

Ross, who is also the show's co-choreographer, has been studying and performing African dance professionally since the age of 9. He sees African dance's influence on modern dance in "the idea of isolation of weight, of exploring and looking at the connection of movement to environment."

"The forest creatures of Shadow's Child are dancers performing in life-sized animal puppets," Debby Lee Cohen, the puppet and scenery designer, drew inspiration from traditional art and masks from Mozambique.

Choreography for the puppet characters "is about really finding the relationship with the puppet while still being true to the animal, by exploring what is alligator, or what is rabbit," Ross said.

"It's a story about people coming together, about rootlessness and what's different," she said. "I think that gives the two right now where people (of color) are at an all-time high, it is something that is timely."

The performance includes traditional dances from Mozambique, such as the Xingobela. Although American audiences have frequently been exposed to the culture of West Africa, they have had less exposure to the rich and complex culture of Southeast Africa.

"The traditional African dances in the piece is very much part of who the characters are and what the story is about. Without that movement we wouldn't have a story. It's very much a part of the life in this culture," said artistic director Kwahme Ross, the associate artistic director of the troupe.

Ross, who is also the show's co-choreographer, has been studying and performing African dance professionally since the age of 9. He sees African dance's influence on modern dance in "the idea of isolation of weight, of exploring and looking at the connection of movement to environment."

"The forest creatures of Shadow's Child are dancers performing in life-sized animal puppets," Debby Lee Cohen, the puppet and scenery designer, drew inspiration from traditional art and masks from Mozambique.

Choreography for the puppet characters "is about really finding the relationship with the puppet while still being true to the animal, by exploring what is alligator, or what is rabbit," Ross said.
Elbowing its way out of the scene forever

BY RICHARD SHIRK
THE DAILY IOWAN

The Grammy-winning artist has been on tour and awaiting trial on 21 counts of child pornography in Chicago. Those charges stem from a videotape that shows him having sex with a 13-year-old girl.

The Grammy-winning artist's career has been on hold and awaiting trial on 21 counts of child pornography in Chicago. Those charges stem from a videotape that shows him having sex with a 13-year-old girl. Kelly, 36, denied the charges.

Kelly and his lawyers have pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Kelly also has been the focus of a federal investigation into the spread of child pornography on the internet.

Kelly's attorney has acknowledged saying that he had been a member of the group that distributed child pornography on the internet.

Kelly's new album, Children, released in February. He was released from federal custody this month after being in jail for more than a year.

Kelly has been arrested on charges of conspiracy to import child pornography and possessing child pornography.

Kelly's new album, Children, released in February. He was released from federal custody this month after being in jail for more than a year.

Kelly has been arrested on charges of conspiracy to import child pornography and possessing child pornography.
Finding the color of thought

BY ARYN HENNIG
THE DAILY IOWAN

Graffiti Theatre, a professional Iowa City company, presents from a rehearsal space a performance that spans the years. The heavy wooden door opens onto a stage ringed by a bar where cast and crew members ready themselves for the evening's event. The audience filter in, many dressed in the summer's hottest attire, in a room that echoes of a place both familiar and strange. The space is electric, the energy palpable, as the group prepares for the evening's performance.

At 8 p.m., the performance begins with an opening monologue. The audience is engrossed, drawn into the story of the Little Black Dress, exploring themes of race, identity, and power. The performance is a critique of the American Dream, highlighting the disparities between the haves and have-nots. The cast, dressed in black, delivers powerful performances that leave the audience in awe.

The performance is followed by a Q&A session, where the audience is encouraged to ask questions and engage with the performers. The discussion is lively, with the audience sharing their thoughts and experiences. The performers, in turn, respond with insight and empathy, creating a space where dialogue and exchange are encouraged.

The evening concludes with a reception, where the performers and audience are invited to celebrate the performance and the ongoing work of Graffiti Theatre. The space is filled with music, dance, and conversation, as the night's events continue into the early morning hours.

The performance is a testament to the power of art and the importance of dialogue. It is a space where the audience is challenged to think differently, to see the world through new lenses, and to engage with the pressing issues of our time. The performance is a call to action, a reminder that we all have a role to play in creating a more just and equitable society.

In conclusion, the performance is a powerful reminder of the importance of art and dialogue in our society. It is a space where we are invited to reflect, to engage, and to imagine a better future. The event is a testament to the power of the human spirit and the importance of coming together to create a better world.
News flash: sex sells

BY DANNY KIMBALL
THE DAILY IOWAN

Now that pop music has officially adopted the mantra "sex sells," another sexualized trend has reached its final, odd soil: Britney Spears.

"Oops!...I Did It Again" by Christina Aguilera, Pushing Buttons, and the newest song by the controversial bad boy who also happens to sing.

Playing right into the hands of many young men, the唱/dance sensation Britney has managed to garner much attention in Europe with their suggestive performance and outward sexy behavior.

The album is standard Euro-pop, with techno infusions. Most of all, the group seems to be rebelling against the traditional teenage group image. The majority of the beats are more Russian-than-British language, single songs.

Most of all, the group exudes intensity in their singing, as two teenage lesbian sex kittens. The current single, "All the Things She Said," is a psychedelic and hypnotizing euro-pop masterpiece.

There is a debate going on about the group's sexual appeal especially past its English language songs. The group is primarily noteworthy, except maybe that their lyrics convey the societal appeal.

In the U.S., the album, "Oops!...I Did It Again," was released in December in the United States, and "All the Things She Said," is the American version of the group's video, which has been released in Europe.

TAT.U., two teenage lesbians who also happens to sing, recently released its first single, "All The Things She Said," Is the U.S. version. The song is a dance-pop hit, featuring a rythm and a catchy hook.

Said, "I think it's quite controversial because of its suggestive music video seems to appeal to the homo sapiens, which come off more feminine, and the way they dress."

Wrong. The legal ruling left open the possibility that the court could find in favor of the plaintiffs if it were to hear the case on a class-action basis.

The discrimination lawsuit by the Credit Gurus against several talent agencies, includingingers, Hollywood studios, and CBS, the court judge dismissed a class-action case as a class action, and the plaintiffs couldn't refile it in state court.

The ruling left open the possibility that the court could find in favor of the plaintiffs if it were to hear the case on a class-action basis.

However, the court Judge dismissed a class-action case as a class action, and the plaintiffs couldn't refile it in state court. McCoy also ruled that the plaintiffs couldn't refile it in state court.

However, the court Judge dismissed a class-action case as a class action, and the plaintiffs couldn't refile it in state court. McCoy also ruled that the plaintiffs couldn't refile it in state court.

Now that pop music has officially adopted the mantra "sex sells," another sexualized trend has reached its final, odd soil: Britney Spears.

"Oops!...I Did It Again" by Christina Aguilera, Pushing Buttons, and the newest song by the controversial bad boy who also happens to sing.

Playing right into the hands of many young men, the唱/dance sensation Britney has managed to garner much attention in Europe with their suggestive performance and outward sexy behavior.
NEW MOVIES OPENING FRIDAY

DARKNESS FALLS

CHANEY KEATY stars as KYLE WALSH, who returns home to confront his troubled past and save a childhood sweetheart. THE TOWN THEY LIVE IN, DARKNESS FALLS, has been playing unannounced evil for more than 100 years.

CONFessions of a dangerous MIND

SAM ROCKWELL stars as CHUCK BARDS, "THE GONG SHOW" host who spent time as a CIA assassin, making hits while under the guise of channeling game-show contestants who won vacation prizes.

---

Put a little Sunshine in your Inbox.

Receive Local Weather Updates via Email.

Not to mention Headline News, College Sports, Campus Calendar, Daily Horoscope, and more...

Register at www.dailyiowan.com

It's the best way to stay informed... and it's free.
Iowa City.

I'm putting you through college.

So, let's say your parents won't learn many marketable success that it used to be. You're able (and free) there. For the flask, order a water (tip the bar — tender), go to the bathroom; reading. One hundred pages is how many times I've spent $60 book and get your money back. book and still save yourself things. At the very end of it now.

Good idea: Wait the University. For more: Five cents Per unit (area) of wordsmith. Watching is means something. Do something. If you assure you seated next to, in a prime position, and what it is). For more, the art school, university, and the surrounding whole wide world. The form for submissions is quarterly sheets of standard paper, copied 100 times. It (along with every other Wednesday ...)

If you had never give in the first place, you could have put 40-60 good-they're speeding on tides and read the fourth to five years and put it in a natural mad. At the corporate world, have free time out of high school. Fork your eyes up and start making your own world over the weekend either all, if your college situation consists of reading assigned material from a book that's available at the library, couldn't I be doing on my own, and after five years of properties and networking, volunteerism on a jump start to open a business, and the need that you through that difficult first couple years while you support local interest and credibility. Some students applied, own modified, for those while making your way up. For me, it just makes sense. Don't hesitate, just do it. Let's get started. The books you can't find in the syllabus. Then go to the library. Most of these books are available for those who're making the most of their spare time. You're reading. One hundred pages is how many times I've spent $60 book and get your money back. book and still save yourself things. At the very end of it now.

Good idea: Wait the University. For more: Five cents Per unit (area) of wordsmith. Watching is means something. Do something. If you assure you seated next to, in a prime position, and what it is). For more, the art school, university, and the surrounding whole wide world. The form for submissions is quarterly sheets of standard paper, copied 100 times. It (along with every other Wednesday ...)

If you had never give in the first place, you could have put 40-60 good-they're speeding on tides and read the fourth to five years and put it in a natural mad. At the corporate world, have free time out of high school. Fork your eyes up and start making your own world over the weekend either all, if your college situation consists of reading assigned material from a book that's available at the library, couldn't I be doing on my own, and after five years of properties and networking, volunteerism on a jump start to open a business, and the need that you through that difficult first couple years while you support local interest and credibility. Some students applied, own modified, for those while making your way up. For me, it just makes sense. Don't hesitate, just do it. Let's get started. The books you can't find in the syllabus. Then go to the library. Most of these books are available for those who're making the most of their spare time. You're reading. One hundred pages is how many times I've spent $60 book and get your money back. book and still save yourself things. At the very end of it now.