Panel: UI erred in Pierce case

Committee calls for new policies to bring 'clarity and closure'

Council ponders anti-new bar bill

BY BRANDON CAMPBELL AND TONY ROBINSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

Top UI administrators made errors in procedures, judgments, and communications responding to and handling basketball player Pierre Pierce's criminal case, according to a committee report released Thursday that suggests a policy overhaul.

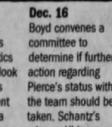

The five-page report, released at a UI Athletics Board meeting, accused administrators of making inappropriate statements, favoring Pierce during negotiations, and providing insufficient support to the victim.

The committee released several recommendations to revamp policies to bring "clarity and closure" to the Pierce case and "an assurance that procedures are in place to protect students" and the university in the future.

Recommendations include drafting clearer policies for suspending athletes, making coaches report all violations against players to the administration, and training coaches to make appropriate remarks on sensitive subjects.

University officials should also create a "crisis- or event-management plan" to deal with similar situations in the future and identify a member of the

'Our review indicates that errors in procedures, judgments, and communications were made in the Pierce case.'

The report recommended the following steps:

- Write a suspension policy that specifies when an athlete must be suspended and when it is at the discretion of the athletics director.
- Expect coaching staffs to enforce team rules with appropriate discipline. Athletics must report all violations of policy to UI administration.
- Train coaches and athletics officials how to make appropriate public statements regarding highly sensitive public issues.
- Develop a list of resources for addressing major crimes and misconduct to be presented annually to student-athletes, coaches, and athletics staff.
- Develop detailed "crisis- or event-management plan."
- Appoint a sexual-assault and sexual-harassment compliance officer for the Athletics Department.
- Appoint a committee to provide direction and advice on all policies regarding crime, misconduct, and the general welfare of student-athletes, as well as develop a clear, concise, and uniform code of conduct for student-athletes.
- The administrator who oversees athletics not be in the Office of the General Counsel "due to the inherent dual roles of legal adviser to the president and university and liaison to athletics."

Athletics Department as a sexual-assault and sexual-harassment compliance officer.

The report also recommended appointing someone to replace university General Counsel Mark Schantz as the administrator who oversees athletics, saying his dual roles pose a conflict of interest.

Schantz and UI Athletics Director Bob Bowlsby fielded questions from attorneys settling a sexual-assault charge against Pierce. The Hawkeye guard, who had been accused of sexually assaulting a UI athlete in his residence Sept. 6, later entered a plea bargain to assault causing injury and apologized for "inappropriate sexual conduct."

He agreed to redshirt this season and retained his scholarship.

The committee made it clear that Pierce's status as an athlete dominated the concerns of university officials involved with the case, though it was inconclusive whether he received preferential treatment as a result.

In a six-page rebuttal, Schantz said his dual roles were not a problem, and he criticized the committee's findings as too vague and said they invited innuendo for not mentioning names. He said the report would not provide any clarity or closure on the matter and denied any wrongdoing.

Yet he said he would cooperate if incoming President David Skorton chose to rearrange the administration, at one point sarcastically asking, "Do you really think I can afford to forego the huge bonuses I get from taking on this extra work?"

The university should study how other schools operate to determine "where the position should be located, as well as the skills necessary for the person who assumes the position," the report said. Schantz assumed the job when Ann Rhodes resigned as vice president for University Relations in 2000.

The report was approved unanimously, although some members did echo some of Schantz' concerns about vague-

New bars would be virtually prohibited from opening in downtown Iowa City under a measure the Iowa City City Council will consider at its Feb. 3 work session.

The council could pursue tougher zoning regulations after years of discussion about preventing bars from opening within a certain distance of other establishments serving alcohol. Approximately 40 establishments, including restaurants, are licensed to sell liquor in downtown Iowa City's three-block by three-block business district.

"We've talked about doing this for years," said Councilor Connie Champion. "I think it's time to take action."

In a memo released Thursday, the city Department of Planning and Community Development asked councilors to clarify a number of points, including what defines an establishment as a bar, whether restaurants and liquor stores

'Shoebomber' sentenced to life in prison

BY PAMELA FERDINAND
WASHINGTON POST

BOSTON — Richard Reid, the British drifter and Muslim fundamentalist who attempted to explode a bomb in his shoe during a transatlantic flight in December 2001, today became the first admitted member of the Al Qaeda network to be sentenced to prison since the terrorist attacks in New York and the Pentagon on Sept. 11, 2001.

Reid, 29, was sentenced to life in prison for attempting to blow up an American Airlines flight carrying 197 people from Paris to Miami. When he pleaded guilty to all eight charges against him in October 2002, Reid pledged his support to Al Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden and declared himself an enemy of the United States. Under federal sentencing guidelines, he faced a minimum sentence of 60 years in prison and a maximum of life plus 30 years. Prosecutors had urged that Reid receive a life sentence with no chance of parole.

Before being sentenced today, Reid renewed his complaints about U.S. policy against Islamic countries. He told the judge, "Your government has sponsored the torture of Muslims in Iraq, and Turkey, and Jordan, and Syria with their money and weapons."

But U.S. District Judge William Young refused to listen, quickly telling Reid that Americans will not cover before terrorists.

"We are not afraid of any of your terrorist co-conspirators, Mr. Reid," Young told him. "We are Americans. We have been through the fire before."

"You are not an enemy combatant — you are a terrorist ... We do not negotiate with terrorists. We hunt them down one by one and bring them to justice."

He then turned to the flag behind him and said, "You see that flag, Mr. Reid? That's the flag of the United States of America. That flag will fly there long after this is long forgotten."

As he was leaving the courtroom, Reid began to yell at the judge, saying, "You will be judged by Allah," and he was wrestled out of the room by the security officers.

Reid's case was one of several highly publicized cases in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 attacks. Zacarias Moussaoui, the only person in the United States accused as a conspirator in the attacks, is scheduled to stand trial in June in federal court unless he is turned over to

UI alum & lifelong Hawk fan blooms in IC soil

As a UI undergrad, Kelly Hayworth watched Hawkeye basketball games at the UI Field House instead of Carver-Hawkeye Arena and took business classes in what was then the business school, Phillips Hall. He lived in Rienow, but, like all other students, had to leave after two years because of overcrowding problems.

But some aspects of the university life the the Coralville city administrator enjoyed haven't changed. As did many before and after him, the 1985

M.B.A. graduate hung out at the Airliner and spent his final student years in an apartment along Burlington Street.

"It's amazing how different the facilities were," he said.

Hayworth, 42, left the area after graduation to take a job as a finance officer for the city of Creston, Iowa. He returned three years later, though, to take his current position, in which he oversees 13 Coralville city departments from parks to police, fire to finance.

He didn't return just for the job. The self-proclaimed "avid Hawkeye fan" and past member of the M.B.A. Association picked the loser, though," he said.

"I was interested in government," said Hayworth, a former member of the College Republicans. "My intention was to eventually move into the private sector, but I enjoyed city business so much I decided to stay."

That interest led him to help locally in presidential caucuses in 1980 and 1984 — "I always

Cable to bump rates

PHIL DAVIDSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

Following a year of controversy, cable-television subscribers can expect an increase in basic cable rates for the upcoming months.

Mediacom, Iowa City's cable-service provider, will increase the family service from $36.95 to $40.95 a month. The 10 percent increase is effective March 1, according to a letter sent to the Iowa City City Council from Jon Koebrick, Mediacom's director of government relations.

Koebrick could not be reached for comment.

Councilor Mike O'Donnell said the council expects to hear many complaints.

"An increase is never a good idea," he said.

In addition, there will be a $1 decrease in the digital-access and digital-value packages and a $1 decrease on all packages, including HBO. Rates for digital access start at $48.95 per month and can be as high as $79.95 per month.

Two new channels, Eternal World Television Network and National Geographic Channel, will be added when the new rates go into effect. The family service now offers 65 channels, and digital access offers 126.

From January to March 2002, the Iowa City Cable Administrator's office was flooded with complaints.

In September, the city said it would fine Mediacom $73,500 for the inconvenience and miscommunication. The fine was dropped in favor of slashing prices of the company's premium-channel services.

Oakdale likely to avoid budget crisis

BY JOHN MOLSEED
THE DAILY IOWAN

In his 13 years with the Iowa Department of Corrections, Oakdale Deputy Warden Greg Ort said the state correctional facilities came the closest to budgetary crisis this fiscal year.

The department will now likely avoid a funding crisis because of an Iowa House measure that passed 97-1 on Wednesday, providing $5 million for prisons to avoid furloughing employees.

"I'm very grateful the Legislature and governor's office recognized these institutions would have had difficulties and be dangerous to operate," Ort said.

Every day of fiscal 2003, one-third of the 315 workers at the Iowa Medical & Classification Center, as the Oakdale facility is officially known, would have had to take a full day off had the funding not been restored. Such a deep cut in day-to-day staffing would not only have put remaining personnel in danger but have severely limited services to inmates, Ort said. Because one of the functions of Oakdale is to rehabilitate inmates before they are released from corrections, limiting services would have taxed the already above-capacity facility.

"The courts are going to keep convicting and sentencing people here," Ort said, adding the number of inmates can't be limited unless mandated by the state director of corrections.

Oakdale was designed to hold 540 inmates; it houses 990. The double bunks that fill each regular cell now spill over into the commons area. New inmates stay in a barracks-like reception area, an open room that holds approximately 100 people. This living situation, plus extra staff tasks such as meal and mail delivery, eliminates lock-down as a feasible option to accommodate employee furloughs, Ort said.

He credits the early and overwhelming support for this bill to the proactive approach Department of Corrections took to prevent the furloughs this year. More than 30 lawmakers toured the Oakdale facility during the legislative break, he said.

Other facilities and prisons across the state offered first-hand tours to state legislators. Gov. Tom Vilsack toured the Iowa State Penitentiary in Ft. Madison.

Sen. Robert Dvorsky, D-Coralville, has worked as a job developer at Hope House, a halfway house in Coralville, for 11 years. The legislator, who also has 13 years of experience working on justice-system budgets, said he does not consider furloughs a viable option. "If you don't have enough guards, you run into problems with public safety," he said. "It's almost impossible for guards to have furloughs when you're running a prison 24-7."

Matt Paul, a spokesman for Gov. Tom Vilsack, said the governor would likely support the measure once the Senate approves it, as is expected.

The $20 million package also provides $1.7 million to the Department of Public Safety to avoid furloughs and $8.9 million for the Department of Human Services.

The Senate approved the measure Jan. 22, 47-0, but needs to verify the bill a second time because the House made changes to the measure.

UI law dean to file brief on behalf of Michigan

BY DONOVAN HANNAH
THE DAILY IOWAN

UI College of Law Dean N. William Hines will file a "friend of the court" brief with the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of a national organization supporting the University of Michigan's affirmative-action admissions policies.

The amicus curiae brief drafted by Hines, an executive committee member of the Association of American Law Schools, is in direct opposition to a brief filed by the Bush administration asking that the Michigan policies be declared an unconstitutional quota system.

The law-school group represents 165 schools; it will file its brief by the Feb. 18 deadline. Amicus curiae briefs are filed with the court by unaffiliated parties who believe a case's outcome may affect the party's interest.

Michigan rates undergraduate applicants on a 150-point scale, allotting 20 points for having an economically disadvantaged background, being an underrepresented minority, attending a high school serving a predominately minority population, or being a scholarship athlete, among other categories. The greatest weight — up to 80 points — is given to high-school grades.

The U.S. Supreme Court announced Dec. 2, 2002, that it will hear arguments in two politically charged cases challenging the university's affirmative-action policies.

Unlike Michigan, the UI law school does not allocate points based on an applicant's ethnicity during the admissions process, Hines said, adding that he understands Michigan's motives, though.

"The University of Michigan policy is designed to create a diverse student body," Hines said. "It believes educational outcomes are created if you have a strong diverse student body."

The UI law school, a charter member of the law-school association, does not plan to file a brief of its own, he said, but it may join an amicus curiae if one is prepared by comparable public law schools.

Overall minority enrollment

The University of Michigan policy is designed to create a diverse student body.

N. William Hines
UI College of Law dean for the 2002-03 academic year in the UI law school, 15 percent of the 700 students, is almost double that of the university as a whole, 8.6 percent.

Stephanie McNeil/The Daily Iowan
N. William Hines, the UI law-school dean, and Amy Liu, the college's associate admissions director, stand among old Iowa Reports Books at the law building.

Both numbers exceed the state's minority population, which sat at 5 percent in 2000.

The UI boosts the number of minority law students by visiting major cities around the country, including New York, Dallas, Chicago, Atlanta, Boston, and San Francisco, said Amy Liu, the law school's associate admissions director.

In addition, the UI targets historically black and Latino colleges, Hines said, adding that ethnicity is never the determining factor for admission.

However, the college sometimes admits students with poor test scores and economic disadvantages who impress the school's seven-member selection committee in other criteria, including overcoming unusual circumstances, he said.

"Sometimes, students start off poorly in college and improve by [their] junior and senior years," Hines said. "The applicant's entire record is reviewed."

Deborah Wyatt, 47, 29 Modern Way, was charged with domestic assault causing injury and possession of a schedule I controlled substance Thursday. According to reports, Wyatt allegedly attacked her boyfriend, pulling his hair and biting his hand. Police records show officers searched the residence and allegedly found drug paraphernalia with marijuana residue in the bedroom. A no-contact order was also filed against Wyatt.

Thomas Senn, 43, 29 Modern Way, was charged with possession of a schedule I controlled substance Thursday after authorities responded to a domestic disturbance at the residence. Police records show officers searched the residence and allegedly found drug paraphernalia with marijuana residue in the bedroom. Senn was also allegedly carrying a pipe with marijuana residue.

Deanna McKinney, 32, 1037 Cross Park Ave., was charged with four counts of forgery on Thursday in connection with an alleged incident on Sept. 26. According to police reports, she and two acquaintances allegedly purchased items at four stores in Coral Ridge Mall with a stolen credit card. Police records show three of the stores completed the transactions before the victim filed forgery affidavits. The amount of the purchases remains undisclosed.

Melissa Jo Bode, 33, Keokuk, Iowa, was charged Thursday with three counts of possession of a schedule II substance, possession of a schedule I substance, possession of methamphetamine precursors, and numerous traffic violations. Authorities stopped the defendant in the 100 block of Highway 6 for not wearing her seat belt and allegedly found several prescription drugs, marijuana, and ingredients for the manufacture of methamphetamine in a subsequent search of the vehicle.

Panel takes a crack at state law on gifts

BY MIKE GLOVER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

DES MOINES — The House Ethics Committee on Thursday decided to tackle the state law that restricts the size of gifts legislators can accept from lobbyists.

The restrictions have been in place since 1994; they were established in the wake of the Iowa Trust scandal. They prohibit lawmakers from accepting gifts of $3 or more from lobbyists with an interest in legislative actions.

The Iowa Trust Fund was an investment fund of more than $100 million for local governments across the state until it collapsed in 1991 after a California investment manager stole most of the money to pay off clients he had earlier defrauded.

The gift law has been criticized for years by many lawmakers, but it was never reviewed for fear of how the public would react.

"It has not been clarified since it was written in 1994," said Rep. Scott Raecker, R-Urbandale, the panel's chairman. "The $3 limit will be in play."

Raecker and other critics argue the restriction is confusing and impossible to enforce. For instance, he said, a reception that's open to the general public isn't covered by the gift law, and at events where large numbers of lawmakers attend, it's difficult to calculate the individual cost.

The gift law is not a partisan issue.

Rep. John Connors, D-Des Moines, is a leading critic who says it's absurd to argue that a legislator can be influenced by a meal or a drink.

"It's got to be changed," he said.

He said lawmakers and lobbyists should report gifts, but setting artificial restrictions is insulting. The main effect of restricting gifts to lawmakers has been to stifle the social life at the Statehouse and limit the ability of lawmakers to form the kind of bonds that allow Republicans and Democrats to work together, he said.

"We don't know each other anymore," Connors said.

The ethics laws were crafted when former Senate President Joe Welsh came under fire for his ties to the Iowa Trust.

Critics worried that ties between lobbyists and lawmakers were growing far too close. The Legislature eventually approved the ethics laws, but many lawmakers grumbled and have been looking for the chance to reverse them.

UI prof has dinosaurs on the wing

BY JAMES BAETKE
THE DAILY IOWAN

Chris Brochu, a UI assistant professor of geoscience, released the most detailed description of a Tyrannosaurus rex last week, further strengthening his theory that dinosaurs evolved into birds.

Brochu, an expert in vertebrate paleontology, headed a research project on Sue, the largest, best preserved, and most complete T. rex fossil ever discovered, setting the groundwork for all future study of the dinosaur. His findings disprove many media notions that the T. rex, Latin for "tyrant lizard king," suffered from a severe head gash, that a tooth was lodged in one of its ribs, and that it was actually female. The 42-foot-long dinosaur's sex remains a mystery.

Brochu's report, or monograph, is a full scientific description of the seven-ton specimen discovered on Aug. 12, 1990, in northwestern South Dakota, complete with detailed measurements and images of all its bones and anatomical structures.

Brochu included a CT scan of the 5-1 skull, pictures, and a CD-ROM.

"My report gave the first detailed description of T. rex," said the 35-year-old professor.

Brochu became the highly acclaimed lead researcher in the collaborative discovery of Sue while he was employed by the Field Museum in Chicago.

Sue, which is 67 million years-old, was excavated on Brochu's 23rd birthday and quickly became an issue of hot debate. Discovered by an amateur fossil hunter and dug up by a fossil-dealing crew, bitter legal disputes boiled over when land owners claimed ownership of the bones found on private property. But the land was also part of a Sioux Indian reservation, causing a federal court battle that eventually favored a rancher who lived on the land.

The Field Museum paid the most money ever for a fossil, $8.4 million, when the rancher put the prehistoric bones on auction.

One of Brochu's major findings in studying Sue shows that the fusion of some of her ribs indicates that past discoveries of wishbones in other dinosaurs may be false, supporting the theory that dinosaurs became birds. Despite his work on one of the most well-known dinosaurs in the world, Brochu calls his favorite dinosaur a black crow.

"They just look neat," he said, describing their brilliant black feathers and insisting that dinosaurs are, contrary to popular opinion, alive and well.

According to the third-year UI assistant professor,

Chris Hennessey/The Daily Iowan
Chris Brochu, a UI assistant professor of geoscience, and his "friend" Wally hang out in Brochu's lab. Recent research by Brochu has backed his contention that dinosaurs evolved into birds.

dinosaurs are right under our noses. They build their homes in trees, church steeples, and in fast-food neon signs.

Brochu, a native of Texas, grew up fascinated with prehistoric animals and now teaches the courses Age of Dinosaurs and Evolution of the Vertebrates.

"I'm one of those oddballs who had a fascination with paleontology in the first grade," he said.

But Brochu's true passion lies with crocodiles, in which he has expert knowledge of thousands of species and travels the world — Europe, Australia, Canada, Venezuela, and the United States — to study them.

Brochu often discovers new crocodile species when he visits museums, mostly in drawers and basements, but he has found one new species while working on the field.

He'll continue working for the Field Museum, but Brochu isn't going to give up teaching students at the UI or the business of solving the lineage of crocodiles.

"I've only got a few more decades to do research before I crock," he said.

Man pleads guilty in Shakey's stickup

A Washington, Iowa, man who robbed a Coralville restaurant and defied authorities for three hours before turning himself in October 2001 pleaded guilty to second-degree robbery in District Court in Johnson County on Thursday.

Milford Leon Tarter, 30, could spend up to 20 years in prison for the Class C felony.

On Oct. 18, Tarter used a handgun to hold up Shakey's Pizza, formerly located at 75 Second St. The owner chased Tarter and called authorities from a cell phone after the defendant fled the restaurant and hid in the Best of America Car Wash, located one block away.

A three-hour stand-off between Tarter and authorities ensued before the suspect surrendered. Officers from University Heights and Iowa City police as well as the Iowa State Patrol were called to assist the Coralville police.

Police recovered a handgun and an undisclosed amount of cash taken from the robbery after searching Tarter's car.

Tarter, whose sentencing date has not been set, will be required to serve at least 10 years in prison.

Snead's daughter also allegedly told the principal that she had accompanied her father on several trips in which he met with people and exchanged money.

Court records show the Department of Human Services received an anonymous phone call the same day regarding alleged drug deals and drug manufacturing in the home.

Records show that police searched Snead's home on Jan. 14 and allegedly found a white rock-type substance, a scale, and drug paraphernalia.

Authorities also allegedly found $5,360 in counterfeit $100 and $20 bills, computer equipment for producing illegitimate bills, and shredded false currency, according to the reports.

Bail for Snead was set at $15,000; a preliminary hearing is scheduled for 2 p.m. on Feb. 10.

Residential Mortgage Inc., a subsidiary of Principal, before Feb. 28.

Offices currently provide loan counseling and processing in 78 locations across the United States.

The decision came in response to high expenses and flattening sales at the retail offices, coupled with the success of loans completed over the Internet and telephone, said Rhonda Clark-Leyda, a media contact for Principal.

Approximately 125 Principal employees in Iowa will be affected by the decision.

"This was clearly a very tough decision because of the impact on employees," said Paul Bognanno, the president of Principal Residential, in a statement. "We worked extremely hard to time the decision during a robust mortgage market so [affected] employees would be in the best possible position to quickly find new employment."

Customers with loans currently intact or in process will not be affected by the situation, said Clark-Leyda.

Branch offices in Des Moines, West Des Moines, Sioux City, Mason City, Indianola, Cedar Rapids, Bettendorf, and Ames will close.

Coralville man faces slew of charges

The father of a 10-year-old girl who reportedly brought a crack-cocaine rock to school earlier this month was formally charged with child endangerment, possession of a schedule II controlled substance, and forgery on Thursday.

Frank Snead Jr., 41, 926 Boston Way, Coralville, was arrested on a Johnson County warrant in Cedar Rapids on Tuesday after leading local authorities on a short car chase.

The charges stem from an alleged incident on Jan. 13 in which the defendant's daughter reportedly brought a plastic bag with 2.75 grams of cocaine in it to Kirkwood Elementary.

She allegedly told the school's principal that the drugs belonged to her father and that he made the substance often.

Pierce's jersey hangs in limbo

BY TINA STEIN
THE DAILY IOWAN

Negotiations are in the works for the removal of Pierre Pierce jerseys from Iowa City stores and back into the hands of the manufacturer, Nike.

The facsimile jerseys have been missing from some local shelves since the Hawkeye basketball player pleaded guilty to assault causing injury in November 2002, and they have been languishing in storage rooms ever since.

"I have been going back and forth with Nike to take the No. 3 jersey back," said Kurt Vanderhoef, the manager of Iowa Book, 8 S. Clinton St.

Pierce was originally charged with third-degree sexual assault and suspended from the basketball team after a Sept. 6 incident at his Orchard Street residence. He later plea bargained, admitting to "inappropriate sexual conduct" with a woman, and he was allowed to redshirt for the 2002-03 basketball season.

"The Athletics Department decided on the manufacturing of Pierce's jersey last January in belief he would be the biggest and most marketable player," said Dale Arens, the Athletics Department licensing director.

Nike printed the sophomore guard's No. 3 jersey upon the university's request. The company could not be reached for comment.

Iowa Book never displayed the $50 Pierce jersey, but it can still be found in the store's storage area and is available upon request.

"I don't want people getting angry with the store," Vanderhoef said, adding that since Pierce pleaded guilty, two customers have requested the jersey.

The Iowa Hawk Shop, 1525 Highway 6 W., Coralville, is one of two locations that displayed the jersey. And although an undisclosed number of the jerseys have sold at $45 apiece, the store is also looking to empty its current stock on Nike.

"Because the season is two-thirds over, chances are slim for a replacement jersey," said

George Herbert, the manager of the Hawk Shop and University Book Store.

Vanderhoef and Herbert could not say how many jerseys they purchased, but Herbert confirmed each jersey cost his stores $22-$25.

Leftover jerseys from last season may still be found on display at some stores, and a slight chance exists that Pierce's jersey may reappear next year if he plays again, Herbert said.

Pierce's jersey was put on display at the Hawk Shop in September, before the high-profile criminal case; it was removed once he was redshirted.

Sale racks at Scheels All Sports, Coral Ridge Mall, are displaying the Pierce jersey for $39.99; 20 remain in stock. The jerseys were marked down from $50 after the store received Hawkeye forward Glen Worley's No. 4 jersey.

"Even after Pierce pleaded guilty, customers were still buying the jersey," said Paul Roesler, the Scheels manager.

Panel: UI errors in Pierce case

ATHLETIC REPORT

ness. For instance, it seemed to target men's basketball coach Steve Alford for making "inappropriate statements" during criminal proceedings, but it never mentioned his name. On the day Pierce was arrested, Alford called him a "great kid" and maintained his innocence even as lawyers were negotiating a plea.

Alford had no comment on the report Thursday, his spokesman said.

His remarks helped fuel protests criticizing university policies. Petitions garnered more than 3,000 names, and a crowd of protesters stood outside Carver-Hawkeye Arena for the first men's basketball game, calling for Alford's ouster.

Interim university President Sandy Boyd responded to pressure from the public by convening the committee on Nov. 6.

Pierce was allowed to rejoin the team when charges were settled because his suspension was pending on resolution of the felony charge. In future cases, the athletics director should have the authority to uphold the suspension if the defendant pleads to a lesser charge or even if a formal complaint is never filed, the committee recommended.

The committee did not consider taking further action against Pierce. A separate committee, headed by law Professor Margaret Raymond, is considering that step.

For his part, Alfredo Parrish, Pierce's Des Moines-based lawyer, emphasized that the committee was inconclusive in deciding whether Pierce received preferential treatment in the case.

"And all of these people have been yelling and screaming about Pierre getting special treatment," Parrish said. "As I said all along, there is no evidence to support this."

He said he was disappointed that neither he nor Pierce were interviewed by the committee. It met three times and interviewed several members associated with both the criminal case and academic suspension.

Boyd will receive a copy of the report today along with a letter from unhappy board members outlining some problems they perceive.

"I will do whatever I think ought to be done," Boyd said.

Senate Oks Treasury nominee

BY MARTIN CRUTSINGER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved President Bush's nomination of John Snow as Treasury secretary Thursday night after the railroad executive gave assurances he would review a department rule on pensions that opponents contend discriminates against older workers.

The nomination of the administration's top economic spokesman was approved by voice vote after many senators had already left the Capitol to begin a long three-day weekend.

Snow, the head of railroad giant CSX Corp. for the past 14 years, was picked by Bush last month to be his new Treasury secretary after the ouster of Paul O'Neill in a shake-up of the administration's economic team.

The administration had pushed for a quick Senate vote, hoping to have Snow on the job by Feb. 3, when Bush will send Congress his new budget.

Snow's nomination won approval after the CSX executive held a 40-minute meeting with Sens. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Dick Durbin, D-Ill., who had blocked the nomination from being taken up by the full Senate until they had a chance to air their grievances with Snow over the pension issue.

The two want the government to implement a rule that would prohibit companies from forcing workers out of so-called defined benefit plans into "cash balance" pension plans. Many companies have been adopting the new type of pension to cut costs.

The two senators said that Snow gave no assurances on what shape the final Treasury rule would take but did pledge to keep the current moratorium on forced conversions in place until a final rule is implemented.

Treasury spokesman Robert Nichols said that Snow had pledged to "give the issue his full attention. He agreed that it was an important issue and said he would treat it with an open mind and be objective and fair."

Durbin said he was satisfied with Snow's assurances, saying Snow had recounted in the meeting that CSX employees had been given the choice of sticking with their current plans or switching to the new cash-benefit programs and that the same options were offered at other companies at which Snow served on the board of directors.

Harkin, in a speech on the Senate floor explaining why he had delayed the vote, said that more than 200 members of the House and Senate had signed a letter to Bush urging the administration to withdraw the Treasury rule and replace it with one that is more fair.

"My only intention was to raise this issue up to make sure that Mr. Snow understood the depths of our feeling about this," he said.

Many large companies have moved in recent years to adopt cash-balance pension program as a way to save money. While the plans offer better benefits for younger and shorter-tenured workers, they can penalize older workers.

Opponents contend that forcing workers to convert to the new plans violates federal age discrimination laws. Late last year, however, the Treasury Department issued proposed regulations that would state specifically that such conversions are not discriminatory. Adoption of the Treasury rule would have ended a moratorium that has been in effect for more than two years that prevented companies from forcing employees out of current pension plans into the cash benefit programs.

Unwanted pregnancies shouldn't be ignored

We applaud the UI for including the Emma Goldman Clinic's celebration during Human Rights Week.

It is absolutely fitting and appropriate to feature an organization whose mission is to "empower women in all life stages through the provision of quality reproductive health care, active education, and the promotion of women's voices in public policy." (www.emmagoldman.com) Controlling one's body, one's health, and one's fertility — all aspects of self-determination — these are fundamental human rights.

To attempt to dismiss and define the pro-choice movement so narrowly as simply pro-abortion demonstrates a gross lack of understanding of the complex reality of this issue. The pro-choice movement empowers women with accurate information to choose what happens to their bodies, rather than leaving the choice to governments and politicians.

Clinics such as Planned Parenthood and Emma Goldman arm women facing an unplanned pregnancy with unbiased information about ALL of their options. When a woman decides to continue or terminate a pregnancy, she assumes responsibility for her actions as well as the actions of others.

It's important to remember that women are not solely responsible for unplanned pregnancies. An extreme example of this is when sex is not consensual. According to the Centers for Disease Control (www.cdc.gov), "28 percent of college women reported a sexual experience since age 14 that met the legal definition of rape or attempted rape."

As a culture, we should take responsibility for preventing unwanted pregnancies by educating our children about their bodies and their biological functions, by increasing access to effective contraception, and by fostering self-esteem and assertiveness. Distribution of biased, inaccurate information only perpetuates fear and ignorance.

Surely preventing unplanned pregnancies is an issue on which all of us can unite.

War hits working class

The Iowa City Federation of Labor has voted to join a new nationwide organization, U.S. Labor Against The War. We are endorsing this organization because the principle victims of any military action in Iraq will be the sons and daughters of working-class families serving in the military and innocent Iraqi civilians.

The billions of dollars spent to stage and execute this war are being taken away from our schools, hospitals, housing, and other urgent domestic needs. Bush's drive for war serves as a cover and distraction for the sinking economy, corporate corruption, and layoffs.

Ironically, analysts across the political spectrum predict that this war will actually increase the likelihood of retaliatory terrorist acts.

Working men and women must join other voices in saying NO to this war.

State of the Union rooted in old GOP 'compassion'

Tuesday's State of the Union address marked an important opportunity for President Bush to address the falling economy and drooping support for war in Iraq. Dividing his speech equally between domestic and foreign policy, Bush provided several enlightened ideas to go along with his typical fare of lower taxes and the axis of evil.

Bush appeared to edge the United States closer to war, saying Saddam Hussein had missed his "final chance." At the same time, he called for the United Nations to meet Feb. 5 to discuss "Iraq's ongoing defiance of the world."

On the home front, the president showed that his administration is making positive steps to correct the types of mistakes that doomed any hope of preventing the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, announcing the formation of a Terrorist Threat Integration Center. The center will pool intelligence from the CIA, FBI, Pentagon, and Department of Homeland Security. In an effort to confront terrorism, Bush asked Congress for $6 billion for "Project Bioshield," which would develop vaccines and treatments against possible biochemical attacks.

Much of the president's address seemed to be an attempt to return to the "compassionate conservatism" that appealed to so many during his campaign in 2000. His proposals included $400 billion for a prescription-drug benefit for elderly who join a Medicare HMO, $10 billion to fight AIDS in Africa and the Caribbean, $450 million for a mentoring program for disadvantaged children, $600 million to expand drug-treatment programs, and $1.2 billion to research and develop hydrogen-powered cars.

All of this sounds just wonderful, except that there is one dollar figure not yet mentioned — a $670 billion tax cut. Just when we were getting used to all this compassion, Bush's typical conservative fare sneaks in.

All of these fine and expensive programs, a poor economy, a ballooning deficit, and another massive tax cut — it just doesn't add up. And this from the man who used the expression "fuzzy math."

In the official Democratic response to the president's address, Washington Gov. Gary Locke called the tax cut "upside-down economics." Bush simply cannot expect Congress to continue to spend and spend and spend, while fighting a war and having the tax base continually shrinking. One wonders if the president ever genuinely considers the reality of things.

He continues to insist on polarizing every issue, placing everything under either "good" or "bad." Saddam is evil, and he must be forced to behave; the United States is the richest and most righteous nation in the world and has the resources to do whatever it wants.

Bush is still riding on the same principles that were so effective post-9/11. Though the war on terror may still be going on, a great deal has changed, and a new game plan is needed. The president showed on Tuesday that he has a few new plays, but he's still operating out of the same playbook.

A new year, but the global script remains the same

Learning calligraphy is like walking through snow. Your ankles, they start to hurt; your feet don't place themselves at the proper angles; your thighs must haul themselves as well as everything else up, down, up, down; you're aware of your breath, and though it's familiar ground, yes, though you walk these letters often enough, you'd swear you had never seen their faces before.

You have seen them, though, just with different intonations, just as the same themes surface annually in the State of the Union address. They do so not because the content of the speech is as meaningless as all the pep-rally standing ovations, nor because the event itself is worthless (though it is almost always cliché and stultifying, regardless of which party holds the presidency), but because human history is shot through with repetitive themes.

In calligraphy, it is with practice, difficult and painful at first, that the fingers learn the patterns; only then can the letters turn beautiful. Beautiful calligraphic form, the textbook says, is less about what occurs and more about what recurs. In human history, however, it is rare for a beautiful thing to recur, and more likely, as President Bush noted, for ideologies of power and domination to do so.

This year's State of the Union referenced the same ideologies of power and domination as last year's did: the infamous Axis of Evil — Iran, Iraq, and North Korea. Bush certainly didn't repeat the phrase "Axis of Evil" but did make sure to explicitly mention each of its constituent countries. Certainly not the country I would exemplify, Iran at the least has remained fairly static in the last year, while the other two have enjoyed (or something) a bit more active of a year.

North Korea, having thrown out U.N. monitors, is, as our president pointed out, "using its nuclear program to incite fear and seek concessions." However, the tactic of applying the international equivalent of peer pressure to convince Kim Jong Il, the dictator of North Korea, that "nuclear weapons will bring only isolation, economic stagnation, and continued hardship," seems likely to be undercut by the fact that the country is already isolated, economically stagnant, and (with the exception of the military and Kim Jong Il himself), suffering blatant and widespread hardship. The entire situation looks like a newly dangerous variant on the "nothing to lose..." theme — catalyzed by the rhetoric in last year's State of the Union.

Iraq, on the other hand, has accepted U.N. inspectors back in, less likely as a result of rhetoric (either by the U.S. president or the U.N. Security Council) than it is of Iraq's being increasingly physically hedged in by our military force in the region. However, the tone of last year's State of the Union prefaced this buildup, and has attempted to ease us towards accepting the brink of war, to "incite fear and seek concessions" from Iraq.

Well and good. In any unfriendly situation, whether its scope be personal or international, scare tactics can be a very effective tool to avoid escalation of the situation. An example? There's been a lot made of the fact that Iraq has gassed its own citizens. It has — but in October, Russia gassed its own citizens, who were being held hostage. Gassed them, ostensibly, to free them, but did so without proper medical support, and ended up killing well over 100 of them (out of around 800). A permanent member of the U.N. Security Council, Russia holds veto power for any of that council's ordinances. So our officials said very little: scare tactics. Maybe nothing explicit, maybe nothing said out loud, but there all the same.

And while the present benefits from a sense of immediacy, it's in these unseen-at-first-sight patterns that both human history and calligraphy fundamentally reside; it's only by learning their formations that we can seek to modify them, change the script by changing the scriptface. Should North Korea use the weapons its rhetoric threatens, the script would be fundamentally changed; it knows that. But should we invade Iraq, the change would be no less drastic, just less immediately perceived; simply because the brink of this war has been brewing for some time does not mean it should boil.

From 1 jazz diva to another

BY KELLY ROHDER
THE DAILY IOWAN

In 1975, vocalist Dianne Reeves unknowingly met one of her idols — the legendary jazz singer Sarah Vaughan.

Backstage at a concert in California, Reeves, who was in her late teens, began a conversation with a woman sitting on a nearby couch. Reeves told the woman that she was a singer.

"She asked who my favorites were, and I told her Sarah Vaughan. She didn't say a thing, but later that evening there she was onstage, and I just about died," Reeves said.

Twenty-eight years, 11 recordings, and two Grammys later, she will appear in Iowa City for the first time, at Hancher Auditorium Saturday night, performing a plethora of songs that span her career as well as songs from a new album set to come out in August.

Reeves has dipped into several genres of music, yet her musical foundations lie in jazz.

In 2001, she released The Calling, a tribute to Vaughan containing 11 personally selected tracks from the vocalist's career.

"The biggest thing I wanted to accomplish was to encompass a timeline of her career as well as the color and shape of her voice and how she used it as an instrument," Reeves said from her home in Denver on Wednesday. "Through her, I found my own voice."

She was first introduced to Vaughan's music around 1973, when an uncle gave her one of Vaughan's albums. Reeves was junior at George Washington High School in Denver and singing with the jazz band. She took her favorite recording, "What Are You Doing for the Rest of Your Life," to the director, who arranged the song for Reeves and the band.

It was around this time that Reeves was discovered by trumpeter Clark Terry while performing with the jazz band at the National Association of Jazz Educators Conference in Chicago. He soon became her mentor, and while the two performed together, she attended the University of Colorado.

Performing was not new for Reeves, who had gotten her start at local clubs in Denver at the age of 14 with her uncle, George Duke. Reeves also performed with local musicians as well as legendary pianist Gene Harris in her first major club appearance.

In the mid-70s, she relocated to Los Angeles to pursue her music career. In 1978, she met musician Billy Childs, and the two worked and experimented with different types of music such as Brazilian, jazz, and rock in the time she refers to as the "generation of fusion."

"I knew I needed to develop my own approach, and this was a time to develop that," Reeves said.

It was this approach that ultimately led her to create the Grammy award-winning tribute to Vaughan, nearly 25 years after their chance encounter.

"In retrospect, I had an opportunity to see her perform, to watch her interact with her musicians, her audience," Reeves said. "She was in focus, in control. The things she was singing were soulful, and I felt lifted. She was in control of her artistry."

She maintains that she continues to, through her career, keep respect, knowledge, and trust a must in the relationship she forms with her musicians and audience.

"We invite the audience to the performance," Reeves said. "It's real; it's in the moment. We want them to know they are an integral part of the magic."

The ties that bind

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the three finalists in Fox's hit "Joe Millionaire" has starred in dozens of bondage and fetish films under a pseudonym, a Web site reported Wednesday.

Sarah Kozer, 29, starred in movies such as Novices in Knots and Hogtied and the foot-fetish film Dirty Soled Dolls, according to the Web site The Smoking Gun.

The site said Kozer was clothed in her movie appearances, which included being gagged and hog-tied in a cheerleader's uniform. She also ties up other characters.

Kozer, one of a trio of women still hoping to land "Joe Millionaire" Evan Marriott in the Fox series, was shown this week sneaking off into the darkness for a tryst with him.

The series drew more than 20 million viewers on Monday, its biggest audience yet. Fox wouldn't say if it knew about Kozer's past before casting her.

"We don't comment on the personal lives of the contestants," network spokesman Scott Grogin said.

There was no answer to a telephone call to Kozer's Los Angeles home on Wednesday. The Smoking Gun said she wouldn't comment when reached by its reporter.

Kozer's occupation is described as "sales and design" on Fox's Web site.

There's no mention of her acting jobs, under the name Cindy Schubert, in Fox's brief bio. When asked, "What is the wildest thing you've ever done?," she said there was a long list but picked backpacking in Morocco.

A little street Magic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Basketball great Earvin "Magic" Johnson is getting back into the TV game after fouling out in 1998 with his talk show.

Johnson said Wednesday he will produce and occasionally appear in the MTV reality show "Who's Got Game," documenting the lives of 12 street-basketball players competing for fame and a $100,000 prize.

Johnson said he's trying to play to his strengths as an athlete after the ill-advised attempt to be a comedian-interviewer on his own late-night talk show, which was pummeled by critics and canceled after two months.

"This is what I'm all about: basketball. I grew up playing street basketball. I wasn't myself in 'The Magic Hour,'" said Johnson, who will visit neighborhoods in such cities as Washington, New York, Chicago, Houston, and Los Angeles in the next two months scouting for contestants.

"I want the guys who are just street ballplayers," he said. "They're not as famous as guys in college and the NBA, but they're famous in their own neighborhoods or playgrounds."

Contestants will be limited to men over 18, but Johnson said he would consider a new version with women if the show succeeds.

Set to debut this summer, the show would include 10 episodes showcasing the history of the players, their interactions with each other off the court, and end with a basketball game.

Iraq's time grows short, Bush says

BY RON FOURNIER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush put allies on notice Thursday that diplomacy will give way to a decision on war in "weeks, not months." Wary world leaders and congressional critics urged patience and demanded proof of Iraq's transgressions.

Opening an eleventh-hour campaign to sway a wide array of skeptics, the president said, "For the sake of peace, this issue must be resolved." His advisers said Bush will maintain consultations with allies through mid-February, when the next U.N. weapons inspectors' report is expected to force talks to closure.

In a flurry of diplomatic activity, Bush met with Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi and Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, placed calls to leaders of Portugal and Sweden, dispatched top advisers throughout Washington to argue his case, and broached the possibility of allowing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to leave Iraq for a safe haven — all actions aimed at pressuring both Baghdad and balking U.S. allies.

Abroad, eight European leaders signed a letter in support of Bush's position and, in Jordan, the government agreed to base U.S. troops in the kingdom.

But the president's position met resistance from many corners, including Democratic and Republican lawmakers, a delegation from Pakistan, former South African President Nelson Mandela, and the Canadian foreign minister, who said his nation opposed unilateral American action.

"If one state acts by itself, it risks consequences," Bill Graham said after meeting with Secretary of State Colin Powell.

Another ally wavered at the White House, when Pakistani Foreign Minister Khurshid Kasuri told Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney his country preferred any military action be approved by the United Nations. He warned that war casualties could inflame his fellow citizens.

"There will be a reaction to the events in Iraq," Kasuri said.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., said Bush's approach has made the United States seem "like a bunch of cowboys" too eager to strike Saddam.

And Republican Sen. Lincoln Chafee of Rhode Island suggested the danger posed by Saddam appeared to be diminished because of international pressure.

The gears of war kept grinding.

The buildup of U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf region is now approaching 90,000 land, sea, and air forces, and that number likely will double within two weeks, officials said Thursday.

Black Hawk down in Afghanistan; 4 killed

BY ESTHER SCHRADER
LOS ANGELES TIMES

WASHINGTON — In the worst loss of life for the U.S. military in Afghanistan in almost a year, four Americans were killed Thursday when their U.S. Army helicopter crashed near the Bagram air base, defense officials said.

There were no indications that the crash of the UH-60 Black Hawk was caused by hostile fire, said Lt. Col. Martin Compton, a spokesman for U.S. Central Command, which is in charge of military operations in the region.

Officials said the cause of the crash was not immediately clear but that it appeared to be an accident.

The helicopter went down about 7:30 p.m. local time in an area known as the East Training Range, approximately seven miles east of the air base that is the center of U.S. military operations in Afghanistan, Compton said.

It was the deadliest day for the U.S. military in Afghanistan since March 4, 2002, when seven soldiers were killed and 11 wounded in an offensive against Taliban and Al Qaeda forces.

"I can confirm that it was a Black Hawk helicopter that was on a routine training mission, that there were four aboard, and there appear to be four fatalities," Compton said.

Since U.S. military action in Afghanistan began in October 2001, at least five U.S. helicopters have crashed or had hard landings that have injured U.S. troops.

ISU assistant coach granted absence

AMES (AP) — Assistant coach Randy Brown has been granted a leave of absence from his duties with the Iowa State basketball team, school officials said.

Athletics Director Bruce Van De Velde declined to get into specifics about the request, other than to say it was done for personal reasons.

Brown, 45, a Fort Dodge native, is in his fourth season on the Iowa State staff.

Alford: Injuries will force others to step up

BY ROSEANNA SMITH
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Alford Reiner Worley Kimm

Big news didn't mean good news for the Iowa men's basketball team this week.

Instead, the Hawkeyes were dealt a blow Monday when they found out that the team's leading rebounder and shot-blocker, Jared Reiner, would be out for two to three weeks with a sprained right knee.

Reiner suffered the injury to his medial collateral ligament in the final minutes of Iowa's 83-72 loss to Ohio State on Jan. 25. He scored nine points and pulled down 10 rebounds against the Buckeyes.

Iowa will now face Purdue on Saturday with a thinner bench than it had before.

And there is even more bad news: The Boilermakers defeated the Buckeyes, 70-65, at home on Wednesday, and they will be looking to avenge last year's loss to the Hawkeyes in the first round of the Big Ten Tournament.

Senior guard Willie Dean, who was named second-team All-Big Ten, scored a career-high 27 points including 17 of 19 free throws against the Buckeyes.

Coach Steve Alford said Reiner's injury would force other players to contribute more.

"It's going to be interesting to see how we react now to the lower numbers," he said. "I think there is no question that it will change us a little bit, just because that's our big presence."

"When you're injured and you're hurt, that just puts a little more emphasis on [those] who aren't hurt. So now, guys have got to raise their game."

And as the Hawkeyes average nine or more points from four of five starters, Alford said the duties may fall to Kurt Spurgeon and Josh Kimm.

Kimm played little against Wisconsin and Ohio State; he has scored seven points on the year. Spurgeon scored two points and had two rebounds against the Buckeyes; he has scored eight points this year.

"Both of those guys now become part of the rotation, and they should be ready," Alford said.

Another challenge for the Hawkeyes this weekend will be to regain the consistency that has been missing as of late from forward Glen Worley.

Against Michigan State, Worley scored a personal best 29 points and was a major factor in Iowa's 68-64 win. However, Worley has averaged just 8.3 points in the last three games.

"Especially with Jared out, we really need him to rise to the occasion," Alford said.

Bouncing Back

Faulkner's red-hot hand leads team past the Hoosiers

BY MICHELLE YONG
 THE DAILY IOWAN

With 5:26 remaining in the game, the Iowa women's basketball team hung to a 66-60 lead when Kristi Faulkner drilled an outside shot.

Minutes later Faulkner effortlessly laid in a pass from Jennie Lillis. While the Hoosiers kept chipping at the lead, Faulkner continued to kill them.

Iowa finally put away Indiana 78-62.

It was Faulkner's game. She finished the game with a career high 29 points, going 8-13 from the field and 11-13 from the free throw line.

"Kristi knows we are going to rely on her for scoring power," coach Lisa Bluder said. "She can score in so many different ways and works hard for her points. This is the Kristi we expected this year."

Prior to the game, Bluder said she wanted to see someone else help with the scoring besides Lillis and Faulkner. Point guard April Calhoun answered Bluder's request for the Hawkeyes tonight scoring a career high 13 points, 5-7 from the field.

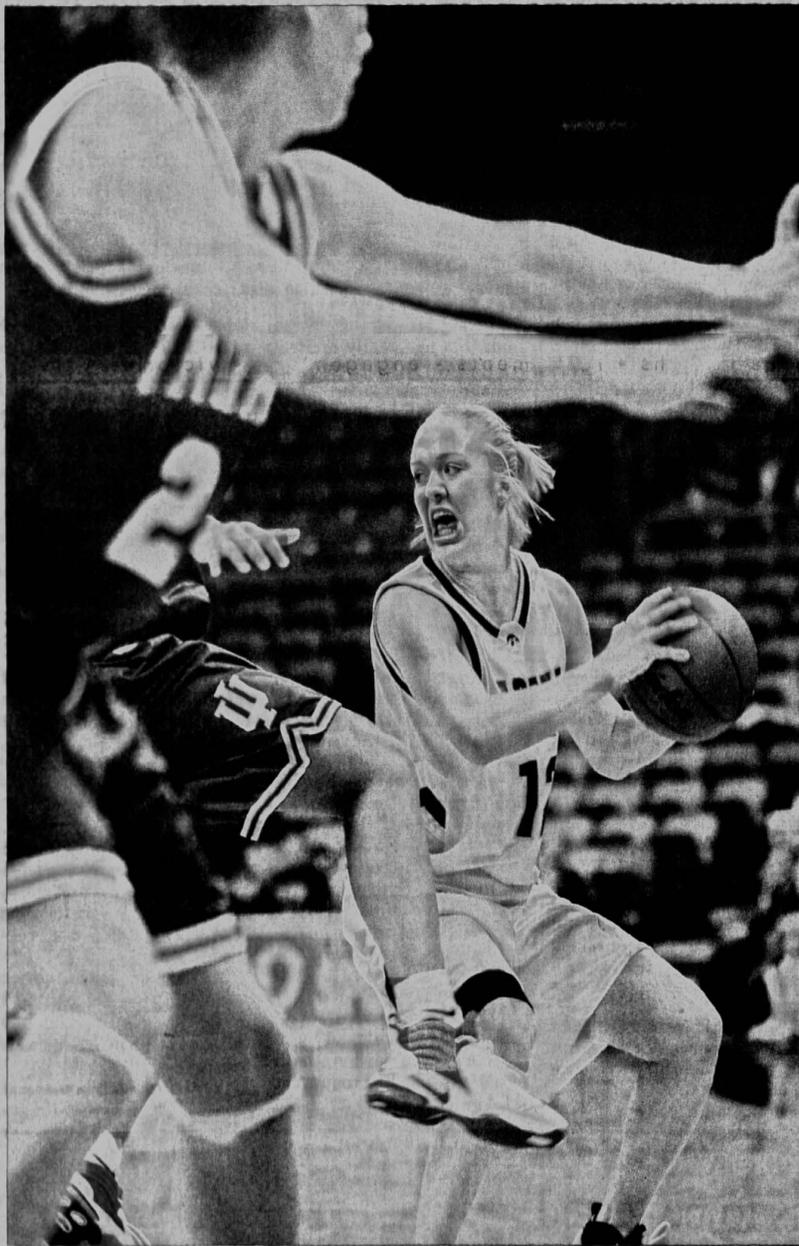

"If there is a look then you take it," Calhoun said. "We knew we needed another person to step up."

The Hawkeyes started off slow, trailing 3-11, unable to score a field goal until 13:25 remained in the first half. Faulkner scored the first three points on for Iowa on free throws, but it was Calhoun who scored the first three baskets for the Hawkeyes.

Iowa got out of its slump, eventually taking the lead and carried a 36-33 lead into half-time.

Faulkner scored seven of the Hawkeyes first 15 points in the second half, opening the lead to 51-42.

Even though it was Faulkner's game tonight, she attributed her night and her recent success to her team.

Smith, Mocco ready to face strong opponents

BY JEROD LEUPOLD
 THE DAILY IOWAN

The link between crispy junk food and wrestling may always remain a mystery, though the Cape Cod Potato Chip/NWCA All-Star Classic does answer one simple question:

Who are the best wrestlers in the nation?

Iowa grapplers Jessman Smith and Steve Mocco will travel to the University of Delaware to find the answers they seek. Smith is ranked No. 1 in the nation at 184; he will defend his status against No. 2 Clint Wattenburg.

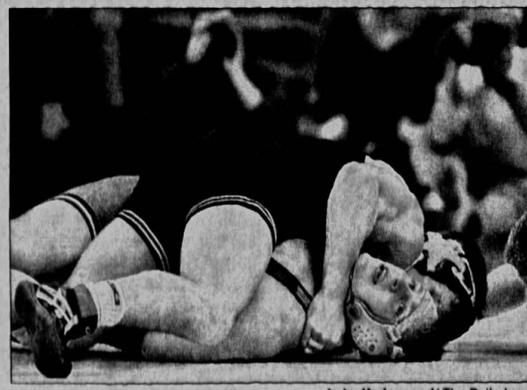

Smith owns a 3-0 record over

Wattenburg but isn't taking this match lightly.

"Wattenburg is a really good matchup," he said. "He's going to be a road block on my way to [being] champion."

The duals have been so close that only five points have separated Smith from Wattenburg in the last three matches, 5-2, 2-1, and 6-5 in the 2002 Midlands finals.

Mocco is also No. 1 in the nation — the twist is he is going up against three-time All-Star Classic veteran Tommy Rowlands. Rowlands defeated Mocco

Commission opens door to Title IX changes, groups say

BY JOSEPH WHITE
 ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A Bush administration advisory commission rejected a proposal Thursday to overhaul the landmark sex-equity law credited with igniting a women's sports explosion. But some women's groups said the panel opened the door to such changes.

The Commission on Opportunity in Athletics considered about two dozen recommendations for Title IX during two days of sometimes contentious meetings. The most sweeping recommendations failed to pass — one proposal produced a 7-7 tie — but the panel endorsed allowing the Education Department to tinker with the ways students and athletes are counted to measure compliance with the law.

"It's very obvious that everyone recognizes that there needs to be change, and this is a great first step," said Mike Moyer, the executive director of the National Wrestling Coaches Association.

"It will certainly stem further loss of programs," said Moyer, whose organization has filed a lawsuit claiming Title IX has led to the elimination of hundreds of men's sports teams.

The advisory commission will forward its report to Education Secretary Rod Paige, who will consider the recommendations. It takes an act of Congress to fundamentally change the law, but Paige can alter the way compliance is measured.

He said in a statement: "I am very pleased that the commission has agreed on a number of reforms that will strengthen Title IX."

Title IX prohibits sex discrimination in public and private schools that receive federal funding, which almost all do. It covers admissions, recruitment, course offerings, counseling, financial aid, student health, and student housing, as well as athletics.

The commission only looked at sports, where the law's effect has been profound. The number of girls participating in high-school sports rose from 294,000 in 1971 to 2.8 million in 2002. The number of women in college sports increased fivefold during the same time.

But approximately 400 men's college teams were eliminated during the 1990s, with wrestling taking a particularly hard hit, as schools attempted to meet standards requiring a ratio of male and female athletes similar to the overall student population.

The commission recommended several changes to a standard that allows schools to comply by having a male-female athlete

Dabord tested positive for drugs in report
 SAN DIEGO (AP) — An autopsy of the older brother of former NBA player Bison Dele was inconclusive although various drugs were found in his system. Miles Dabord was pulled off life support in September 2002 after being found unconscious in Tijuana, Mexico. "The cause of death is best listed as 'undetermined,'" said Jonathan Lucas, a San Diego County deputy medical examiner. A toxicology report revealed that the 36-year-old Dabord tested positive for cocaine, opiates, depressants, and anti-anxiety medication.

MEN'S & WOMEN'S SWIMMING

Women keep collecting records

BY DREW MANROE
 THE DAILY IOWAN

With the Big Ten championships less than three weeks away, the timing was perfect for the Hawkeyes to sweep the weekly Big Ten honors.

Sophomore Lisette Planken was awarded Big Ten Diver of the Week for the second time this season, while fellow sophomore Jennifer Skolaski was named Big Ten Swimmer of the Week.

Skolaski, who already owns two Hawkeye records, raced to four first-place finishes against Illinois and Ohio State on Jan. 25, while Planken nabbed first-place finishes in the 1- and 3-meter diving.

It marked the first time the Iowa women's swimming team has swept the honors since December 2001, when Skolaski and former Hawkeye diver Laura Maldonado received the awards.

"It's quite an honor — they're both very deserving," said coach Garland O'Keefe. "[Jennifer] is in great shape — even better than this time last year. She's already surpassed anyone who's been here in recent history."

"I think it makes me even more excited for Big Tens,"

Skolaski said.

But for now, Iowa must concentrate on its last two home meets of the season, also the last before Big Tens.

Tonight, the Hawkeyes host the 12-1 Missouri Tigers. Iowa had a glimpse of what Missouri is capable of on Nov. 22-24 at the Minnesota Invitational, in which the Tigers finished second and the Hawkeyes fifth.

However, O'Keefe expects tonight's head-to-head match to be closer.

"Missouri is very competitive — [this meet] could be very similar to Illinois," O'Keefe said, referring to last weekend's competition in which the Hawkeyes edged out the Fighting Illini 149.5-148.5. "We know we've got to swim at least as well as we did against Illinois."

On Feb. 1, Iowa will turn around and host Truman State. The Bulldogs are a Division-II team the Hawkeyes are expected to beat, and the Hawkeyes have a couple of motivational factors working in their favor as well.

First of all, it will be the last home meet in seniors Erin Strub's and Michele Schermbach's Iowa careers, a fact Strub isn't harping on.

Chris Hennessey/The Daily Iowan

Hawkeye women launch during relay race.

"I try not to dwell on it," Strub said. "I'm just really excited, and it's going to be a good meet."

Also motivating the Hawkeyes will be the sight of 2001-02 assistant coach Colleen Murphy on the deck coaching the Bulldogs.

Murphy was the assistant coach for Truman State for two years prior to her time with Iowa, and she returned to serve as the Bulldogs' coach before the start of the 2002-03 season.

"It's going to give us some extra incentive to win," said Skolaski.

Tonight's competition begins at 5 p.m. at the Field House Pool. Admission is free.

Seniors prepare for final home splash down

BY DREW MANROE
 THE DAILY IOWAN

It's the last chance to shine at home for the seniors of the Iowa men's swimming team.

The Hawkeyes will host Missouri tonight at the UI Field House pool and Truman State on Saturday for Iowa's last two home meets of the year. For seniors Chris Brunson, Chris George, and Roberto Gutierrez, they are also the last home competitions of their college careers.

John Davey has coached the Hawkeyes for the duration of the senior class's tenure at Iowa, and he said there is an inevitable sadness that goes along with the last home meet each year.

"It's always kind of emotional," he said. "After six hours a day for four years, you get kind of attached to these guys. You just hope to prepare them well in swimming and in life."

"It's exciting, but kind of bittersweet."

George, however, is focused on the task at hand — winning both meets to improve the team's record to an even 3-3.

"It will be exciting to race at home," he said. "We're taking it as another meet. Maybe I'll feel different after the meets are over."

The Hawkeyes are confident they can win both meets, but they know Missouri won't make it an easy task.

Iowa faced the Tigers (5-4) at the Minnesota Invitational on Nov. 22-24. The Hawkeyes finished second with a score of 650.50, while Missouri finished fourth with a 553.

"We beat them at the Minnesota Invite, but it should be a good, competitive meet," George said. "We're looking to go out and take control from the beginning and then just build on that."

The meet against Truman State might not be as noteworthy, but it will give some of the swimmers a chance to compete in events they don't normally swim.

One area that should be in the Hawkeyes' favor in both meets is diving. The contingent is led by junior Timo Klami, who won his second Big Ten Diver of the Week award of the season for a stellar performance against Minnesota on Jan. 25, in which he met NCAA-qualifying standards in the 1- and 3-meter events.

"It was very good to win. Things are going well," Klami said. "Diving is a sport where sometimes it isn't your day. But if I keep diving well, [making NCAA's] shouldn't be a problem."

Tonight's competition against Missouri begins at 5 p.m., and the meet against Truman State will start at 1 p.m. Admission is free.

MEN'S & WOMEN'S TRACK

Hawkeye teams to be tested against the best in nation

BY JEROD LEUPOLD
 THE DAILY IOWAN

The Hawkeye women's squad is attending the Panther Classic and will find itself in fierce competition as well. Iowa will compete against two solid teams in Minnesota and Wisconsin, but coach James Grant isn't putting any emphasis on individual places.

"We're going into this meet as further training," he said. "We're looking for any improvement."

With a fully balanced team, Iowa should get just that.

In the 60-meter hurdles, Sarah Steffen holds the fastest time at 8.67 seconds, but she must watch out for Northern Iowa's Jill Sinwaell, who has clocked in at 8.77.

Aisha Hume is competing in a tight 400-meter field that includes three opponents timed under 58 seconds. Cyclone

Cheryl Harmon is the only competitor with a sub-57-second time, at 56.28.

Hawkeye Michelle Lahann is taking the field for Iowa in the 800 meter with a time of 2 minutes, 14.85 seconds. Her foremost opponents are Wisconsin's Katie Kolpin, 2:13.93, and Drake's Dolly Butz, 2:14.

Lahann attributes the distance runners' success to desire and new coaching.

"This is my last year," she said. "I want to do well. [Assistant] Coach [Wayne] Angel has also given us more intense workouts. We're running times that we couldn't last year."

Last week's standout Georgia Millward will spearhead the 5,000 meter. She goes up against Minnesota's Darja Vasiljeva, whose current best is 19 seconds faster than Millward's.

Badger Daniell Ohmen owns the high-jump mark at 1.68 meters, but Hawkeyes Eve Culhman and Bridget Besch both have 1.63 meters under their belts and could challenge her for the top spot.

Jessie Strand of Iowa shares the highest mark in pole vault with Gophers Monica Stearns and Erica Findlay at 3.51 meters.

Cedar Falls houses top notch teams

Judging by the quality of their company, Iowa's men are rising fast in society: Big 12-champion Nebraska and de-facto Big Ten champion Minnesota are holding court as Saturday marks the Panther Classic in Cedar Rapids.

Iowa isn't tilting against these giants alone; Drake, Iowa State, Northern Iowa, and Wisconsin are also joining the fray. Because of the high quality of competition, almost every event should be exciting.

Iowa's 60-meter leader Omar

Isaacs, at 6.91 seconds, and Zach Digney will be challenged by Gopher Ben Taylor's time of 6.84. Cyclone James Lopez hopes to be a spoiler, previously tying Digney's time of 6.98.

Robert Beach and Digney will have their hands full in the 200 meter, running against Wisconsin's Jvonti Hanserd and his time of 21.86, as well as leading timekeeper Panther Dirk Homewood.

Hanserd strikes again in the 400 meter with a fastest time of 48.93 seconds, but Iowa's Ryan Strang lags behind Hanserd by only 0.32 seconds.

Hawkeye Matt Esche will look to beat his time of 8 minutes, 21.8 seconds in the 3,000-meter and take the gold over Minnesota's Luke Mullranin and Wisconsin's Joe Echerly.

NCAA-qualified Ken Kemeny also holds the best distance in the shot put among those attending the meet.

Hawkeyes celebrate after convincing performances.

Hawkeyes work through the pain

BY BRIAN TRIPLETT
THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa women's gymnastics coach Mike Lorenzen doesn't like to talk about Iowa State.

The Cyclones, who saw their top two all-arounders graduate last year and are 1-3 on the season, have taken the best from the Hawkeyes, including last year's 195.25-193.175 victory in Iowa City.

But this has not kept the No. 19-ranked Iowa team down, and after a strong couple weeks of practice the team is prepared for tonight's matchup in Ames.

"I expect a good performance because we look ready in the gym, but above all I think we're going to have lots of fun," said freshman Tiffany Kwan, who will be competing in vault for the first time in place of last week's Co-Big Ten player of the week Alexis Maday.

Lorenzen said Maday has a couple of bruises on her heels that aren't healing very fast. However, she will still compete in two of the four events.

Along with Kwan, freshman Kortny Williamson and sophomore Michelle Conway will also be utilized more in the lineup.

"We're putting freshmen in to replace juniors, and that's always a little bit of an interesting proposition when you do that," Lorenzen said.

Despite an unfortunate incident in the Nebraska match when junior Stephanie Gran hit her shins against the table on the vault, the X-rays were negative, and she will be back in action in all four events against Iowa State. Gran did, however, suffer deep bone bruises to both her shins and hyper-extended both knees.

"She's in a lot of pain, but she's working through it," Lorenzen said.

So far this season, the Hawkeyes are 0-2, with losses coming to highly ranked Georgia and Nebraska squads.

"Our only goal as a coaching staff is we need to get a little better each week," Lorenzen said. "So we need to do a little better this week than we did last time, and if we win, lose, or draw, as long as we accomplish that goal, we're where we need to be for the season."

Gran explained that last season the team focused more on the Cyclone team than it did on individuals.

"People tried to overdo themselves and got really jittery about it," she said. "I think they're concentrating on themselves this year and our team rather than focusing on Iowa State."

Lorenzen, along with his team, is keeping his hopes high for tonight's matchup, and he says the main goal is to go out and have fun.

"The girls are pretty fired up for this meet," he said. "I think we match up pretty well with them."

SPORTS BRIEFS

Armstrong: War would make racing difficult

MILAN (REUTERS) — American cyclist Lance Armstrong, the four-time Tour de France champion, says he is concerned about his security if the United States goes to war against Iraq.

"We Americans do not enjoy much sympathy abroad at the moment," Armstrong said in an interview with the Italian sports daily Gazzetta dello Sport published on Thursday. "If I have to do the Tour with a war under way, it would be very difficult for me."

"In cycling, you ride in the open — there is no fencing or protection nets. But I will be there just the same," he said.

Caught redhanded

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona is investigating an accusation that star forward Luke Walton was a lookout while other players stole money and candy from a hotel vending machine.

A guest saw men wearing jackets of the top-ranked Wildcats grab up to 80 candy bars and change from the machine in Lawrence, Kan., over the weekend, police Lt. Dave Cobb said Wednesday.

The man, Stuart Schwartz of Chicago, identified Walton but said he wasn't sure about the identities of the other players, he told police.

The Marriott Spring Hill Suites decided not to press charges, but the school's Athletics Department is investigating and could punish the players.

Coach Lute Olson called the accusations "a bunch of hogwash," and Walton denied involvement.

After No. 1 Arizona (15-1) overcame a 20-point deficit to defeat Kansas, 91-74, on Jan. 25, police surprised the coaching staff by entering the locker room to talk to players.

Hotel manager Stephanie Bowler said the team gave her $80 for the candy before returning home and that she considered the matter closed.

Hawkeyes face Commodores

BY KATIE LOW
THE DAILY IOWAN

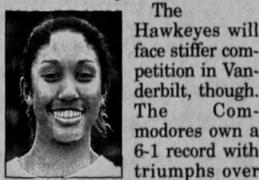

After a good showing at the Hawkeye Invitational last weekend, the 57th-ranked women's tennis team will travel to Nashville, Tenn., this weekend to take on No. 8 Vanderbilt and 56th-ranked Tulsa.

Last weekend, the Hawkeyes were able to defeat both Iowa State and Drake, falling only to a strong DePaul team. The Iowa women swept Drake and lost only one individual match against the Cyclones.

Iowa sophomore Gloria Okino was the only Hawkeye to go undefeated in both singles and doubles at the invitational. While playing the No. 4 singles position, she claimed victory over DePaul's Natalie Matko, Drake's Rebekah Thomas, and Iowa State's Eve Soriano.

Okino partnered with senior Steffi Hoch at the No. 2 doubles position, and they defeated DePaul's Brenda Leung and Natalie Matko, Drake's Anali de Bruyn and Melinda Fenimore, and Iowa State's Tara Goedjen and Kristin Gyaki.

Gloria Okino
Undefeated

The Commodores own a 6-1 record with triumphs over Michigan State, University of Louisville, Middle Tennessee State, Virginia, Baylor, and Pennsylvania. Vanderbilt's only defeat came at the hands of No. 4 Duke in a close match, 4-3.

Sarah Riske leads Vanderbilt, and she is ranked the No. 32 singles player in the country. Riske also plays doubles with junior Aleke Tsoubanos, and the duo is ranked second in the nation in doubles.

"We open with one of the top teams in the country with Vanderbilt," coach Paul Wardlaw said. "This match will give us a good idea of where we are relative to the best."

Tulsa has had little chance to prove itself yet, but has gone 1-0 so far. The Golden Hurricanes recorded their victory last weekend over Southwest Missouri State. The team returns three seniors and two juniors. Tulsa has two ranked players in Alicia Pillay and Aleksandra Durska, who are 20th and 102nd respectively.

"Tulsa is a team that should qualify for the NCAA Tournament, so a win against it will legitimize our NCAA abilities and chances," Wardlaw said.

He said he believes that teamwork, not individual performances, will mean the difference between victory and defeat for his team this weekend.

"Most importantly, we need to continue to improve this weekend in how we compete as a team," he said. "Everyone has to pull her weight. Overall, I expect a challenging but productive start to the season."

Former foes join forces in Pro Bowl

BY GREG BEACHAM
ASSOCIATED PRESS

KAPOLEI, Hawaii — After the month-long playoff grind, tension of the Super Bowl, and crazy victory celebrations, Tampa Bay safety John Lynch still doesn't want to rest.

Not until next week, anyway.

Lynch yawned and squinted through the morning sun toward the Pacific Ocean on Thursday before the NFC Pro Bowl team's workouts. The Buccaneers' star was sleepy, jet-lagged, and exhausted, but he thought it was all a small price for his first chance to be an NFL champion and an all-star in the same season.

"There's definitely a difference when you come over here as a Super Bowl winner," said Lynch, in his fourth Pro Bowl. "It's a better feeling. The guys have a respect for you. You're more tired than you ever were before, but it's worth it. It's soooo worth it."

Five members of the Buccaneers were at the Ihilani resort on the west side of Oahu for their first Pro Bowl workouts: Lynch, quarterback Brad Johnson, linebacker Derrick Brooks, defensive end Simeon Rice, and fullback Mike Alstott.

They joined forces with 16 players from the Philadelphia Eagles and the San Francisco 49ers who were sent home from the playoffs by Tampa Bay's defensive machine and ever-improving offense.

Like Lynch, the rest of the Buccaneers are worn out, but willing to play.

"There's a lot of stress — not bad stress, but stress," Johnson said. "The first time I slept since the game was [Wednesday] night. I hadn't slept since Sunday."

Only defensive tackle Warren Sapp declined the chance to add another week of physical punishment to his busy schedule, citing a knee injury in dropping out of his sixth Pro Bowl appearance.

The four days since the Buccaneers' 48-21 thrashing of the Oakland Raiders in San Diego have been a whirlwind of activity — something that's unfamiliar to most of the Bucs. Several players appeared on talk shows and made public appearances, and everyone gathered in Tampa on Tuesday for a victory parade.

"The first time it hit home for me was the parade," said Johnson, who got his second Pro Bowl trip after Atlanta's Michael Vick dropped out last week. "You could see the frustration of all those Bucs fans just get lifted. I don't think anybody can understand what that means to a team and a community until you actually win it all."

"I really felt it when I saw John Lynch and Warren Sapp hugging, because they've been through it all, through all the bad times and bad seasons. I haven't been there for that long."

The Buccaneers' Pro Bowlers hadn't begun thinking ahead to next season or contemplating the possible departure of defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin, who had planned to interview for the 49ers' vacant head coaching position before signing a three-year extension with the Buccaneers later Thursday.

Tie Domi does it all for Leafs

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Tie Domi scored a goal, picked up his 200th career point and got into a fight as Toronto defeated Atlanta on Thursday night, 5-2.

Domi took a big hit from Jeff Cowan early in the game, which seemed to rile up the Toronto enforcer.

He scored the Maple Leafs' first goal with a fortuitous deflection, then assisted on the clincher by Alyn McCauley with 10:40 remaining.

In between, Domi got into a spirited brawl with Atlanta ruffian Jeff Odgers.

Toronto led 2-1 after the second period and stretched the margin on Nik Antropov's goal. He stepped out of the penalty box, broke free on a long pass from Tomas Kaberle and beat Pasi Nurminen at 5:35 of the third.

Tampa Bay 3, Carolina 1

TAMPA, Fla. — Martin St. Louis scored three goals, and John Grahame made 24 saves for his fourth-straight win as Tampa Bay beat Carolina.

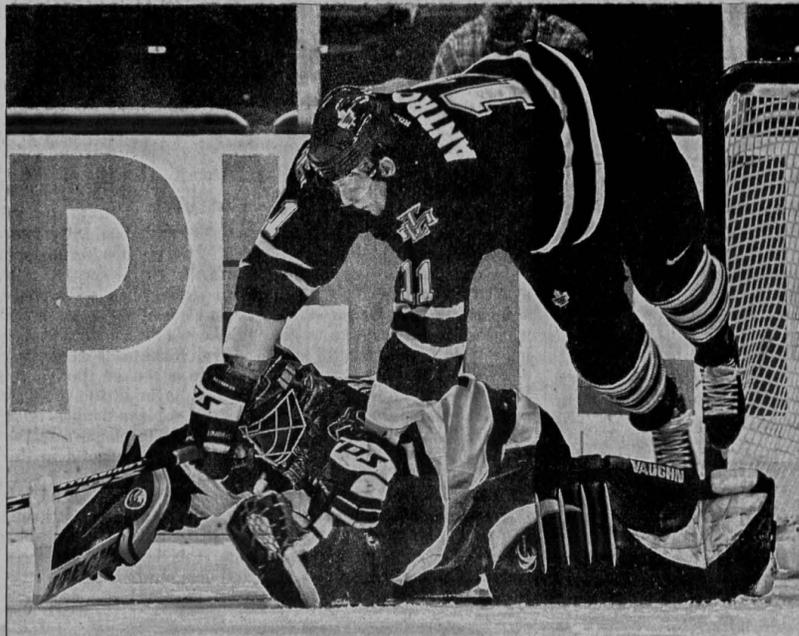

St. Louis completed his first hat trick with a rebound goal with 1:40 left in the third period. It was his 27th goal of the season.

St. Louis put the Lightning ahead 1-0 with a backhand power-play goal at 3:23 of the second period. Dave Andreychuk assisted on the first St. Louis goal for his 1,267th point, which tied him for 26th place all-time with Jean Ratelle.

New York 3, Montreal 1

UNIONDALE, N.Y. — Michael Peca's shorthanded goal 4:44 into the final period helped New York defeat Montreal and move into seventh place in the Eastern Conference.

Oleg Kvasha and Mark Parrish also scored for New York, which leapt over Montreal in the standings with the win.

John Bazemore/Associated Press

Toronto's Nik Antropov dives over Atlanta's Pasi Nurminen in a 5-2 rout.

New York tied the game at 3:39 of the third when Alexei Yashin swung around the net, emerged at Theodore's left, and swept a backhand pass to the other side, where Kvasha wristed the pass into the lower right corner.

Capitals 2, Penguins 1

WASHINGTON — Kip Miller's 11th goal of the season snapped a third-period tie, giving the Capitals a victory over the Penguins.

Nylander had two assists and Sergei Gonchar also scored for Washington, 3-1-2 in its last six games.

Rosival, who spent most of the night shadowing Washington's leading scorer Jaromir Jagr, put Pittsburgh on top 1-0 midway through the opening period. He snuck into the right circle and converted a centering pass from Martin Straka with 7:22 remaining in the first.

Columbus 2, Nashville 1

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Espen Knutsen scored his first goal since Oct. 29 and Marc Denis stopped 33 shots as Columbus beat Nashville.

With the score tied at 1 early in the third period, Knutsen beat defenseman Andy Delmore to the puck near mid-ice and turned him around. Knutsen streaked up the ice, snapping a wristed low past Nashville goaltender Tomas Vokoun.

New Jersey 5, Philadelphia 1

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Martin Brodeur came within 1:58 of posting his fourth-straight shutout against Philadelphia, and defenseman Ken Daneyko had a rare goal and an assist to lead the New Jersey Devils to a win over the Flyers on Thursday night.

Niedermayer put New Jersey ahead with a backhand from the slot that beat Roman Cechmanek between the pads at 4:54.

Detroit 2, Florida 2

DETROIT — Roberto Luongo stopped 33 shots and Viktor Kozlov scored with 12:30 left in regulation as Florida tied Detroit.

Kozlov tied the game at 2 after two shots left Detroit goaltender Manny Legace out of position.

Darren McCarty put Detroit ahead 2-1 midway through the second period.

Legace made 35 saves. Detroit's Brett Hull is still waiting to score 700

DALLAS — Dirk Nowitzki, playing with a stiff neck after being flagrantly fouled by Kevin Garnett, led a late rally with a 3-pointer, a dunk, a jumper and a steal to send Dallas past Minnesota on Thursday night.

Garnett was called for a flagrant foul in the final minute of the third quarter for swinging his right arm at Nowitzki's head after being beaten downcourt on a fast break.

Nowitzki was fine in the final 2:02, starting with a 3-pointer, then a slam off an alley-oop pass from Steve Nash that tied the game.

Garnett went up for a shot at the other end, only to have Nowitzki steal the ball. Nash then made a running 15-footer to put Dallas ahead with 49 seconds left.

Milwaukee 97, Washington 90

MILWAUKEE — Sam Cassell's 31 points helped Milwaukee beat Washington despite 24 points from Michael Jordan in what was likely his last game at the Bradley Center.

Wizards forward Jerry Stackhouse aggravated his left groin and took a seat in the third quarter.

Jordan's fadeaway jumper over Ray Allen pulled Washington to 89-87, but he missed his next three shots as the Bucks iced the victory with a bucket and four free throws by Cassell.

Kwame Brown tied his career high with 20 points. He had three straight baskets to give Washington its first lead, 68-67, just before the third quarter ended.

Officials reviewing report
James received free clothing

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND — First it was LeBron James' Hummer. Now, it's his clothes.

Just a few days after James was cleared of any wrongdoing for accepting an SUV as a gift, Ohio high-school officials are reviewing a report he received complimentary clothing.

On Jan. 25, James, the nation's top high-school player, was apparently given two free "throwback" jerseys worth $845 at a local clothing store. The story was first reported by the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ohio High School Athletics Association bylaws state that an athlete forfeits her or his amateur status by "capitalizing on athletic fame by receiving money or gifts of monetary value."

Association Commissioner

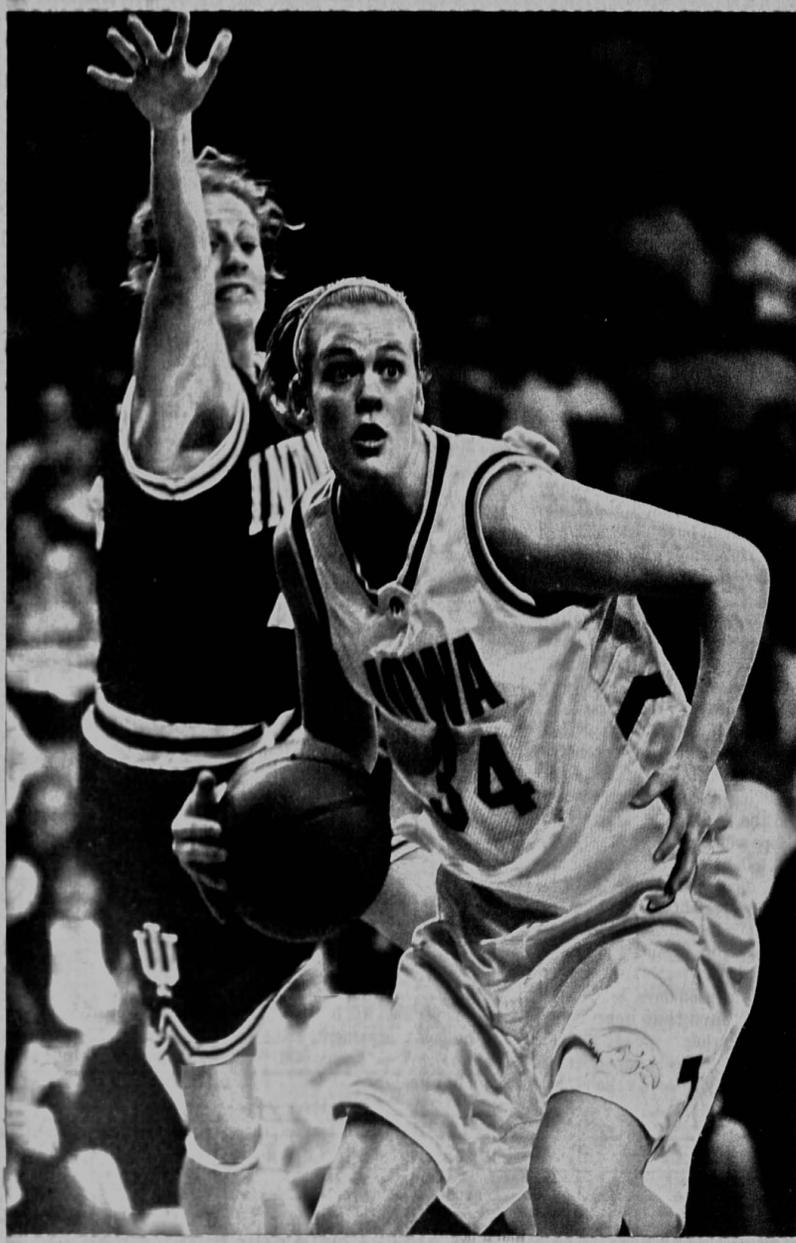

Clair Muscaro is aware of the report "and is reviewing it," said spokesman Bob Goldring.

On Monday, Muscaro ruled that James, a senior at St. Vincent-St. Mary, would not lose his eligibility for accepting a custom-made Hummer H2 vehicle — valued at more than $50,000 — as an 18th birthday gift from his mother. Gloria James provided loan information to support her purchase.

After attending a local game last weekend, James and some friends visited the clothing store where he picked out two jerseys — one of Chicago Bears Hall of Famer Gale Sayers, the other of Washington Bullets center Wes Unseld.

The Sayers jersey costs $395, the Unseld jersey $450.

Store manager Derrick Craig said the store's owner gave the jerseys to James for free.

Faulker faces old team Sunday

"As a team we are more comfortable with each other," Faulkner said. "I'm relaxing and understand my role a little more."

Indiana's leading scorer was Kristen Bodine with 21 points. The Hawkeyes received 13 points from Lillis and the team as a whole had a more balanced attack. Tracy Schrupp scored eight points and Jenna Armstrong posted six.

"Our perimeter stepped up today as a whole," Lillis said.

Including tonight's game, Bluder's team is taking the last ten games of the season and starting all over to make a want to make a run for a top spot in the Big Ten tournament.

The Hawkeyes will face Illinois on Sunday at home. Illinois has a record of 12-5, 4-3 in the Big Ten. The Illini beat No. 10 Minnesota 94-80.

Faulkner especially is looking for to the game against Illinois, being it was her old team. Faulkner transferred to Iowa from Illionis after her freshman year.

"It's just another game," Faulkner said with a smile. "No, it will be exciting.

Conflicting ideas stalled efforts

CHANGES

ratio that is "substantially proportionate" to its male-female enrollment.

The changes deal with roster spots, nonscholarship athletics, and nontraditional students.

"The commission has opened the door for the secretary to do a lot of damage to Title IX," said Donna Lopiano, the executive director of the Women's Sports Foundation.

"It changed the way of counting collegiate participation. The number of male athletes will be deflated; the number of female athletes will be inflated."

One change would establish a predetermined number of roster spots on each team that count toward Title IX compliance rather than the actual number of athletes on a team.

Commission Co-Chairman Ted Leland, the Stanford athletics director, said the rule would prevent a school from stacking

"100 women on the rowing team" to comply with the law.

Critics countered that the rule could allow a school to add scores of male athletes — notably non-scholarship walk-ons — beyond the preset limits without them counting toward Title IX compliance.

The commission went further on the issue of unrecruited walk-ons and nontraditional students — such as those who are part-time — recommending that none be counted as part of the Title IX total. The change would mostly affect smaller schools, particularly community colleges, although some Division I schools would be affected.

The 7-7 vote came on a revamped proposal by Maryland Athletics Director Debbie Yow to allow schools to comply by having a 50-50 split of male and female athletes, regardless of the general student makeup, with a leeway of 2 to 3 percentage points.

Her earlier proposal called for a leeway of 5 to 7 percentage points.

"If we had an apple and were hungry and we wanted to be fair, we would split it 50-50," Yow said. "It is an attempt to be fair."

Commissioner Julie Foudy, a member of the U.S. women's national soccer team, was among those who voted against that proposal. She said the current standard should be left alone and better enforced.

Yow said she felt her proposal would have passed had the 15th commissioner been present.

"It's OK — it's going to be in the report anyway," Yow said. Tie votes get a separate mention in the final report.

Although most of the commissioners seemed in favor of changing the proportionality standard, their proposals were so varied that none could muster a majority. The most sweeping would have eliminated the proportionality requirement altogether. It failed 11-4.

last year to become the national champion. But what a difference a year can make. Since that time, Mocco has butted heads with Rowlands twice, recording wins of 4-2 and 4-3 and keeping his overall record a clean 22-0 for the season.

Even though Smith and Mocco are training while their teammates have a two-week break, Mocco isn't altering his work out from week to week.

"This is the same [match] as any other," he said. "We both know each other well. It's just going to come down to scoring points."

Both Hawkeye wrestlers are looking to come away champions, and both agree on the importance of the All-Star Classic.

"It's a big honor to be invited," Smith said. "I'm really looking forward to it. This is what it's all about: pitting two big names against each other."

Hope Classic continues without its founder

BY THOMAS BONK
LOS ANGELES TIMES

LA QUINTA, Calif. — He never won a golf tournament, but he has his name on one. He never played in a major, but he is still a major star. He was never president of anything, but he played golf with plenty of them.

Bob Hope should be here to enjoy the PGA Tour event that bears his name, to ride around in a golf cart and see his friends and his fans, to shake a lot of hands and soak up the warm, desert sunshine one more time.

He isn't going to be here, though. The 44th Bob Hope Chrysler Classic is just going to have to go on without its namesake, because he is 99 and doesn't see well anymore.

Hope is staying at home in Toluca Lake, Calif., instead of watching the tournament on television, depending on how keen his failing eyesight might be.

According to his publicist, Hope is in something called "full retirement," a position he adopted a couple of years ago.

He no longer makes public appearances, gives interviews, or shows up at his golf tournament.

The last time Hope visited his tournament in person was in 2000, when Jesper Parnevik won and then walked over to where Hope was sitting in the stands to give him a hug.

Parnevik did that because his dad, Bo Parnevik, was one of Sweden's most famous comics, and he was crazy about Bob Hope. Actually, that's probably going to wind up as one of Hope's greatest legacies. Almost everybody is crazy about Bob Hope.

For more than four decades, golf fans who turned out to watch the celebrities chop it around some of the finest golfing real estate in the country could always count on seeing Hope hit the first ball and play a few holes.

The last time Hope was on the tee to start the first round was in 1998. He hit his tee shot, climbed back into the cart, and called it a day.

Sometimes, it's easy to forget what someone means when he's not around, which may even be true for Hope.

It was his idea, and that of his movie buddy and golfing partner Bing Crosby, to combine amateurs and professionals in tournaments. You could throw in some celebrities and some corporate types, too, and create something fun and different.

Whether it was a good idea, ask the charities. Hope's tournament has raised more than $37 million for the Eisenhower Medical Center and other local charities.

That's not a bad legacy, either.

It's no surprise that the two programs that still endure are directly traced to Hope and Crosby, whose Clambake became the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am and has been played every year since 1937, except for four years during World War II.

Linda Hope says she remembers dinner conversation as a kid that revolved around golf. It was sort of folded into the monologues her father was trying out, the jokes or the stories about what was happening on the set or the sound stage that day.

Sometimes, Linda said, Bing and Bob would leave for the golf course, their spikes and sticks in the trunks of their cars, if there was going to be a break of an hour or a two to change the lighting or something else on the set at the studio.

Together, Hope and Crosby helped popularize golf with the average player, through their pro-am brainchild.

It's important to remember that Hope had a two-handicap and was a serious player. Or maybe it's not that important. As Hope once said, golf was his profession. He told jokes only to pay green fees.

Hope was known for having former presidents show up and play. In 1995, Presidents Clinton, Ford, and the first Bush played together in the first round at Indian Wells. Hope was there too, for the whole 18 holes, although he picked up his golf ball most of the time.

Ford was one of Hope's favorites. Hope once said that there were 51 courses in the desert and that Ford didn't know which one he was going to play until he hit his first drive. The best thing about Ford is that he couldn't cheat, Hope said, because all you had to do was look back up the fairway and count the wounded. Hope called Ford the most dangerous driver since Ben-Hur.

That's what the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic is missing now. Bob Hope. Linda says her dad misses being here but is aware the dreams he had about his tournament have all come true.

His love affair with golf seems to have touched everyone in his path. On Hope's first date with Dolores Reade, who would become his wife, he had to pay for the tablecloth at the restaurant because he ruined it drawing pictures of a golf course.

It would be great to see Bob Hope in a cart this weekend at PGA West, a pen in his hand, drawing a picture of the 18th hole on the back of a program. Bob Hope will turn 100 on May 29.

He has his good days and his bad days, says Linda, but his failing eyesight makes it hard to watch much, like television or movies. She says he still enjoys listening.

On the good days, Linda says she is sure that her father enjoys his life.

She says he is not suffering in any way. She says she is also sure the television will be tuned into the golf tournament, and even if he can't see it very well, he will be listening.

So if you're at the tournament this weekend, make a lot of noise, loud enough for it to be heard in Toluca Lake.

horoscopes

Friday, January 31, 2003 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will have to count on your charm if you wish to keep the peace, both at work and at home. You will work best by yourself. Consider starting your own small business.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Opportunities for romance are evident. Be cautious not to reveal too much in the beginning. Travel will prove to be exciting.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Minor health problems may flare up if you have been self-abusive or burning the candle at both ends. Take a break. You can finally mend the disputes on the home front.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You will have the discipline and fortitude to accomplish more than enough to impress your boss. Emotional partnerships may develop through work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Socialize with colleagues. You can gain respect and make deals if you use your quick wit and charm. Make sure you give credit where credit is due.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You will see good results if you make some of those physical changes that you've been thinking about. Set up an exercise program; get plenty of rest and nutritious food.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will be confused regarding domestic issues. Acceptance will be the key. A little pampering will help soothe your nerves.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your ideas for small-business ventures will be lucrative if you follow them through to completion. Don't lose steam now. Putting in overtime will also bring you recognition and rewards from superiors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Unforeseen bills or emergencies have probably caught you off-guard. Cash in one of your hidden assets to cover the expense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Don't let your partner goad you into telling your deepest secrets. Spend quality time with children. Think about your priorities before making a decision.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Misinterpretations will be the outcome if you are evasive about your intentions. Try to communicate with clarity. Be considerate of the feelings of others, and don't overspend on others just to impress.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend the day helping organizations that have a worthwhile cause. You could find yourself inspired to evolve dynamic, new plans to assist the group.
