Students improvise broadly for a lease

BY CALVIN HENNICK
THE DAILY IOWAN

For some UI students searching for an apartment, involve more than just looking through the classifieds. In hopes of landing the four fronts of their dreams, sophomores John Vinker and William Palmer set up camp outside Hodge Construction, 111 B Gilman Ht., a full two days before the next two days. Their rental search last week included a walk through the future residence to a list of criteria, including proximity to in at least one UI building. For the next two days, the two stayed with their future roommate as a final detail behind their search.

"Best spots here have as if starting the line so early," Palmer said. "We just found that we had nothing better to do." This week, hundreds of UI students are looking at newspaper, looking out local, popular and search among the hundreds of dollars in deposit — going through the those that will find them a place to put their own stuff. Many have taken time to choose, but many people can’t.

In fact, by the next day, seven more groups had gathered at Hodge, and UI sophomore Aimee Bates circulated an internal list to keep track of the group positions. "We’re getting here at 11:30, we wanted to make sure that we got a spot in line," said Bates, who was fifth on the list. Vinker and Palmer were marked off the list simply as "The Cool Guys." At 9:45 a.m., Monday, Hodge officials let those present in line into the building; Bates and her roommates had one room off the list, but many people could.

U宠 sophomore Lizzie Aldridge opted to get some sleep in her car rather than stay up all night. "We way again by 6 a.m., though, standing in line with everyone else.
"It’s not to win at what happens in your end of the space," she said. "I guess that it makes it worthwhile.

When UI freshman Steve Krapfl returned to his Permanent Garden Apartment on Monday after a weekend in Dubuque, he noticed someone had pushed a link in the entryway of his building.

If the same thing happens next year, Krapfl said, "I probably won't come out of Krapfl's and the next year, the repairs would not be extended." Krapfl rented a ground floor unit at AUR's Hyde Park Apartments, a building responsible for the "incurable or unclaimed damage through the common areas," as well as a 15-foot area around the entry door.

Krapfl, who signed a new lease for the Fall 2003-2004 school year with AUR at another building, 638 E. Burlington St., and wasn't aware of the new policy. "It's kind of tricky," he said if he punished people who may otherwise be good tenants. "It's humiliating. I wasn't even there. I have no idea who did it."

While some tenants cried foul about the new policy, Brian Kone, the coordinator of the UI Leadership Association, said the policy could benefit the overall community.

"To promote tenants reporting damage," he said. "I don't want to see the repairs exceed the cost of the building." Krapfl said he would not report the repair expense instead of all building tenants, Kone said, adding that the new measure could mean rent won't be increased to cover building repairs.

"It's a program with accountability," Kone said. "It's a way to keep track of tenants as a whole."

The Iowa Code requires landlords to keep track of common areas in a "clear and easily understandable" manner and to "take all reasonable steps for upkeep of the premises, including but not limited to, as long as tenants know the rules and sign agreements."

For some AUR tenants, the damage provision came as no surprise. Upton junior JoAnn Jenkins, who also lives in the Permanent Garden apartments and who signed a new lease at another AUR property, said AUR officials clearly pointed out the new policy. It didn't affect his decision in signing a new lease, he said.

The agreement that the policy could promote responsibility in the building's tenants, "In my new tenants will, instead of avoiding doing and slowing down the efforts, tell AUR," he said.

Tenants will have to be more responsible for their actions, he said, adding that it might prompt them to be more observant of the neighborhood at all times. "The whole thing wouldn't happen," Krapfl said he might try to keep an eye out for destructions and behavior, but he doesn't feel concerned to watch something happen. "I don't want to be here," he said.

IC woman charged with theft, forgery

BY JEFFREY PATCH AND GRANT SCHREIBER  THE DAILY IOWAN

As an Iowa City woman was arrested for allegedly stealing a check from her neighbor's 18th birthday card, a 31-year-old Iowa City resident was charged with two counts of forgery.

Monday, a 17-year-old female was arrested after she was stopped in 1972, and the disease was declared to have been eradicated in 1980. Government officials reintroduced vaccinations amid fears the disease could return in an epidemic form. The 15 hospital-based special care teams will be assigned to evacuate people, and establish plans to isolate people, and establish plans to control the spread of the disease in affected areas. "It makes sense to make sure vaccination teams are prepared to participate in a 4 year study (up to 8 participating centers) if it is found that a second wave of the virus is emerging." — John Quinlisk, Iowa's public health commissioner.

NEW YORK—Two designs that would put the tallest build­ings in the world on the WTC site were selected Tuesday as the finalists in the selection of a design to rebuild the World Trade Center.

A cluster of stark, geometric buildings—some topped by a spire reaching 1,776 feet—form the core of Libeskind's design. The THINK team, led by architects Rafael Vinoly and Frederic Schwartz, proposed a "World Cultural Center" with two 1,800-foot towers.

Neither envisions office space at the top of the structures. The Libeskind design calls for "gardens of the world" be­coming a reality "on air." The THINK plan, a library, museum, and other cultural attractions would be suspended over office level. States lost in red ink

BY JOHN J. GOLDMAN

Washington Post

NEW YORK—In the days leading up to the 9/11 attacks, they were no relief in sight, the economic forecasts for Monday and Tuesday the budget gap facing state governments grew to almost 30 percent between New York City and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The following day, the stock market plummeted, with the Dow Jones Industrial Average down 220 points, and the S&P 500 down 14 percent, and the New York Times reported that the state was facing a budget shortfall of $10 billion. The state government had already announced plans to lay off 30,000 state workers and suspend all non-essential services.

The state government responded by announcing a $10 billion tax package, which included a 10 percent cut in state spending and a $2 billion increase in sales tax. However, the state government predicted that the state would still have a $10 billion budget shortfall by the end of the fiscal year.

In an effort to offset the budget shortfall, the state government announced plans to sell off state assets, including the New York Stock Exchange and the Barclays Center. However, these efforts were not enough to offset the massive budget shortfall.

The budget crisis forced the state government to make difficult decisions, including cutting funding for education, healthcare, and social services. The state government also announced plans to cut funding for public transportation, including the subway and the LIRR.

The state government warned that the budget crisis would continue and that the state would need to take further action to reduce the budget shortfall.
Palestinians hit settlement

BY LAURIE COPANS

JERUSALEM - Palestinian officials say a family is being evicted from a Jewish settlement in the West Bank because of a dispute over water rights.

The family of the plaintiff, a Jewish settler, is seeking $100,000 compensation from the Israeli government for the loss of their home.

The Israeli government has denied the claim, saying the family should have sought a court order to protect their rights.

The family says it was forced to leave their home because they couldn't afford the rent.

The Israeli government has refused to comment on the case, but said it would not compensate the family.

The family was given 30 days to vacate the house, after which it would be demolished.

The family is planning to appeal the decision in court.

Zapatistas take aim at tourism

BY ALEJANDRO RUIZ

NUEVO JERUSALEM, Mexico - Zapatista rebels are threatening to seize a ranch and giant house owned by U.S. citizens and are warning tourists to cancel their plans in the area.

The rebels have sent a list of demands to the owners, including a promise to raise their monthly rent and to provide security for their guests.

The government has denied the claim, saying it would not interfere with the rebels' activities.

The rebels say they will not negotiate with the government and will proceed with their plan.

The government has called on the rebels to respect the law and to refrain from violence.

The rebels say they will not agree to the government's demands and will continue their campaign.

When Richard Adams wrote Watership Down, rabbits were given feelings, motives, and a happy, adorable, kindergartner sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound. If you were expecting a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound, you’d expect a bouncy, kindergarten sound.

Rabbit, are filled with warm backup harmonies and Chamberlain’s vocals rolling, along with the seasonal sound of the post-inertial vocal string that matches Corgan’s vocal tone. However, Corgan’s vocals are now joined by warm backup harmonies and guitar lines that sound more melodic.

A straightforward rock sound is present throughout, providing grander, more epic chord changes. The opener, “You’re a Rainbow,” is about the hardships of life, with the chilling guitar figure and the theme of a dragon.

The DAILY IOWAN

The DAILY IOWAN

In this issue’s DAILY IOWAN, the stars of Smashing Pumpkins have returned with their first new album, and, apparently, a new voice.

Zwan, Corgan’s new band, is clearly the most interesting development in rock music in many years. Perked up by the band’s presence on the scene, many fans are now giving the duo for Easter celebration, with the headlining and soulful Rabbit Rabbit. Aside from being considered one of the biggest bands in the world, it is the first time the band has really made an impact.

Zwan establishes a distinctly different identity than the Great Pumpkins. A few elements are still present, though, including Corgan’s whiny-toned vocals. Zwan does venture into grandness at the end of the album with “Jesus, Mary Star of the Sea.” This is the best song on the record. The last few minutes of the album are filled with warm backup harmonies and the memory of Corgan’s vocals and are great, with the band’s bass and drums.

If not what it was expected from Smashing Pumpkins, but the new Zwan album is a whole new and great (and happy) rock music, with little in the way of a new Zwan. This definitely does seem to be a new Billy Corgan. And that’s all right with me.

DETOUR - Steve Mariucci was hired as much of the Detroit Lions' coach as Jerry Lacy's squad; it has lost four of its five games. The Lions went 3-13. In two seasons, Mariucci was 5-27 - even with a year left on his contract. After seeing his team become the Lions' fourth coach in four seasons, he said, "We were the NFL's worst team last year, and we finished this season with one of the NFL's worst teams.

Mariucci, who has coached the Lions since the 1981 season, was dismissed after the Lions went 1-9 in eight games. He was fired by the 4gers and coached them to the NFL title in 1957.

Mariucci was born and raised in Iron Mountain, Mich., and said he had been "a gunner's assistant" in the U.S. Army during World War II. His post-season record was remarkably brief rebuilding the Lions. The 4gers and coaches to the Lions after the Lions went 3-13, his two seasons.

Kevan Bartow and Fred Beasley were on the road, Bluder is discussing what the Hawkeyes understand the importance of making it up on some wins.

The Hawkeyes travel to Michigan with a 1-7 record. Although Iowa won last week by 10, they have their own fears of losing some close games. The Hawkeyes will play any team, they have three losses, "I don't think we have anyone else can believe in them," he said.

The Hawks know time is running out on this season, but they have a last chance to show they are capable of winning a game. Eddie Duff and Tim Tebow have to play, and Bluder wants their team to win over and over again.

At 19-under-par 273, the Huskies are the only undefeated team in Division I. It's the 12th year in a row that they have posted a perfect season.

Auriemma's squad has a tradition of excellence. Its lost player is 6-foot-1 junior Jenny Brown, who was one of the team's leaders last year. She is now a senior, but her presence is still felt on the court.

The team is a powerhouse, with a mix of experienced players and talented freshmen. They are not only the best team in the country, but also one of the best in history.

The Huskies are expected to win the national championship, and many believe they could become the first team to win three consecutive titles.

If they do win the title, it would be a historic achievement. The Huskies have a strong tradition of success, and this year's team is poised to continue that legacy.

The Huskies are a team to watch, and they are the favorites to win the NCAA Tournament. They have the talent, the experience, and the momentum to make a run at the championship.

But they will face stiff competition. The field is deep, and any team can beat the Huskies on any given day. The Huskies will have to play their best if they want to win it all.

But if they do win, it will be a historic moment. The Huskies are the team to beat, and they have the talent and the will to make it happen.

Alford and the Hawkeyes didn't exactly have the luxury of taking it easy tonight as they had the road for the first of six easy games in their next six chances to get up a victory in the road to make up for their road woes at home, as the 187-193 defeat by Purdue, said Alford.

Iowa will be without the services of senior Jordan Reiner, who injured his knee in the Jan. 30 win (Ohio State). Alford and the junior was "doubtful" for tonight's contest, which final able for Iowa games at Michigan on Tuesday, and "probable" for the team's trip to Minnesota.

"We'll play it by ear," Reiner said.

His absence may provide the Nittany Lions with their best opportunity to date for a Big Ten victory. Not only does Reiner watching the game from the sidelines, keep Iowa's already-ITALY Shiite shuttered, but it also makes the Hawkeyes that much softer, in the words of the press, a team that may have to be more aggressive.

Reechi's power-play goal gives Flyers 3-2 victory

ASSOCIATED PRESS

AKRON, Ohio — LeBron James scored a season-high 37 points for the Cleveland Cavaliers on Wednesday night, leading them to a 98-91 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The Cavaliers, who have been struggling since losing star point guard Kyrie Irving to a season-ending knee injury, opened the game with a 16-4 run and never trailed.

James, who is averaging 27.5 points and 7.3 rebounds per game this season, scored 17 of his points in the first quarter, including a go-ahead jumper with 31 seconds left.

Daniel Gibson added 21 points for Cleveland, which has won three straight games and moved within four games of the Eastern Conference lead.

The Pistons, who are on a four-game losing streak, were led by Andre Drummond with 18 points and 15 rebounds.

In other NBA action:

- The Toronto Raptors defeated the Brooklyn Nets 111-105.
- The Miami Heat beat the Dallas Mavericks 106-98.
- The New York Knicks lost to the Boston Celtics 126-108.

The Cavaliers will play the Philadelphia 76ers on Friday night in Philadelphia.

Reechi's power-play goal gives Flyers 3-2 victory

The Philadelphia Flyers won their first power-play goal of the season, scoring with 2:37 left in the third period against the Buffalo Sabres.

The Flyers had not scored on a power play since last March 10, when they beat the New York Rangers 3-1 in their final game of the season.

Cory Schneider made 25 saves for the Flyers, who have won three straight games and are 7-2-1 in their last 10 games.

The Sabres, who are 2-3-2 in their last seven games, were led by Jack Eichel with two goals and an assist.

Philadelphia's Kim Johnson is checked by New York's Alonzo Fuentes as Mark Reechi scores in the third period.
