MISSING FROSH TELLS OF ARMED ABDUCTION
BY TONY ROBISON

A University of Iowa business student was allegedly kidnapped from campus by a unknown man and taken to an Illinois residence Tuesday before swaying on Wednesday night, her father told The Daily Iowan.

Tiffany Culp, 19, disappeared from her campus dorm room Saturday taking a break. She was later found taking out hertiage outside the restaurant, everyone in 11:45 a.m. in front of the day's family. "She was missing person's report after being contacted with her phone," said Missouri University's Professor Keneth Culp, her father.

Culp said there was no indication of any potential danger, but he admitted that he and his wife, alleged assistant professor of psychology, have been preoccupied with her safety for approximately 30 hours before her return.

"I've been talking about it a lot," said Tiffany Culp, her father. "We're just hoping for the best, but we're not giving up hope.""I miss my daughter," said Culp. "She's been a big part of my life." Culp said he and his wife will continue to search for Tiffany until they hear from her.

Miller wants to raise tobacco tax to fight drugs

BY PHILIP DAVIDSON
THE DAILY IOWAN

In an effort to generate revenue to pay for a high-powered campaign to create awareness about the dangers of drug use, Rep. Terry Miller is asking the Iowa House to consider increasing the state's cigarette tax. Miller, a Democrat, said the increase in the tobacco tax is his plan to fund his 2003 re-election campaign.

"I think it would be a very logical thing to do, and it would certainly help fund the level of the campaign," Miller said Thursday in Iowa City. "I have a responsibility, and so does every other candidate, to fund their campaign so that they have the opportunity to be heard." He said the tax increase could generate several million dollars for the state.

The president has made clear his priorities, outlined them, and his budget reflects them very clearly.

Citizens Services Art. But Bush's budget proposes $892 million for all the fees in 2004, a reduction from the 2003 budget's request of $860 billion. In 2003, a spokesman for Bush's health department, Dave Kessler, said that the budget request was based on data from what was actually spent in 2002 and that the program would reach its goals of increasing savings while spending less than it anticipated.

The $892 million is an increase of about $3 billion from what the government took in last year, according to the budget. The increase in the government's spending is designed to help pay for the high cost of health care.

Security experts, however, warned the president of various problems with the program, including the federal government's lack of control over the spending. In addition, the government is not regulating the costs of health care for the poor.

Students at the University of Iowa, who were among the first to look into the university's plans, were surprised by the budget. They were concerned that the plan would lead to a reduction in the quality of health care for the poor.

Up to now, the president has not addressed the pressing issue of health care reform, but his budget clearly shows the priority that he places on the issue. Bush has been criticized for his lack of action on health care, and many health care providers believe that the president is not doing enough to help those who are uninsured.

The president's budget includes a plan to increase the Medicare payroll tax by 0.5 percentage points, which is expected to raise $470 billion over 10 years. The budget also includes a provision to raise the Medicare payroll tax by 0.1 percentage point to $360 billion over 10 years.

Tiffany Culp's experience working on "The Three to Four Years," one of her most recent projects, is a testament to her talent and dedication to her craft. She was happy with her role in the film, and she is looking forward to continuing her career in the entertainment industry.

However, Miss Culp has also faced challenges in her career, including rumors and speculation about her personal life. Despite these challenges, she remains committed to her work and continues to pursue her passion for acting and directing.

Key allies still skeptical about going to war

BY KEITH B. RICHBURG

WASHINGTON — France and other key U.S. allies declined Thursday to back Secretary of State Colin Powell's announcement of a diplomatic breakthrough in the Iraq weapons inspections dispute, saying that they expect the chief U.N. weapons inspector, Hans Blix, to announce the accord no later than Friday.

Secretary of State Colin Powell said Thursday that U.S. and Iraqi officials had agreed to allow Blix to resume the inspections program after a three-week delay that resulted from Iraq's refusal to respond to a series of U.N. demands for cooperation.

But many French and British officials had earlier indicated that they wanted to see more concrete evidence that the Iraqis were serious about cooperating before committing to any diplomatic breakthrough.

"You have to understand, we have no patience with the Iraqi government," said one French official. "This is coming here with the idea that if it isn't enough, we will be talking about the Security Council again."

In Moscow, the Russian foreign minister, Andrei Kozyrev, said that his government would continue to press for a new United Nations resolution authorizing a diplomatic mission to Iraq.

"This is not a resolution that would authorise anything," Mr. Kozyrev said. "It would be a statement of principles."

French Foreign Minister Hubert Vedrine and British Prime Minister Tony Blair both noted that they were looking for more evidence that Iraq was serious about meeting its obligations under the existing international inspections program.

But they added that they were willing to go along with the new diplomatic initiative that could lead to the resumption of inspections.

"Even if we are suspicious of all this," Mr. Vedrine said, "we won't reject anything that might lead to the resumption of inspections."

N. Korea warns of total war

BY SANG-HUN CHOE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Korea said Thursday it will pull out of talks with nuclear powers if the United States "impedes" a possible attack on the Korean Peninsula.

By North Korea announced in an English-language statement in Pyongyang that it will reactivate its nuclear facilities, frozen since 1994, but statements Wednesday left it unclear whether it has already done so.

"That is a terrorist act," said one South Korean official. North Korea has repeatedly threatened to test nuclear weapons and resume production of plutonium.

U.S. officials have spoken before about their ability to respond to any potential missile attack by North Korea, in part because Pyongyang may be testing the limits of its long-range missile technology. The talks were scheduled to begin last fall, but North Korea said it would not attend.

"We take this very seriously," said one South Korean official. "But we are not in a position to say that they are in a very serious state.

North Korea announced in December it would restructure its nuclear facilities, from since 1994, but statements Wednesday left it unclear whether it has already done so.

Spy had insignificant data, experts say

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) - Two national-security agents testified Thursday that the data spy accused Brian Patrick Regan was carrying when he was arrested would not have harmed America's national security.

Regan's lawyers, planted evidence, spies for the judge and jury in a closed-door session, the first time such a hearing has been held in espionage cases.

"That was not terribly significant," said Wm. Anderson, the former acting deputy secretary of defense for special policy. "It did not possess any information that was national policy.

Reagan and then Bush, as assistant to the president for national security, did not fight tank wars, the first time was his defense advisor for Regan.

He is charged with trying to sell American intelligence to Libya, Iran and China for at least $10 million.

HawkSearch had to go

While I am sure that many of you are upset about the shutting down of HawkSearch and email as much at the university, there are some facts that I feel many people are not consistently. While I may hold a very positive opinion, it may help eyelike people realize why the university is doing this.

The Digital Millennium Copyright Act was passed in 1998, and one of the unfortunate result of this was an increase in the liability of internet Service Providers (ISPs) to the universities. HawkSearch was not an ISP, but did allow access to their network. By the same token, HawkSearch did not profit from it in any way; it was run simply as a service to his peers.

Furthermore, HawkSearch’s service was limited to those who accessed the Internet from the UI, and hence was not a business.
Nylen did not profit from it in any way, he ran it simply as a service for the university.

Nylen was not worried about this, however, as his service was for students and that he had no liability, he wasPDF exempted from this service. If HawkSearch had to go, students would simply choose to access the Internet through a business with KaZaA or another network, that this HawkSearch actually helped to reduce.

Expelling Nylen will not serve as any example of deterrence. It will, considering his talent in net work the universities, will only cut short what promis­ ces he has to be a bright and colorful student at the UI.

Do you think HawkSearch founder Jeff Nylen is being treated fairly by the university?

NASA looks at foam again

BY MARCIA DUNN

SPACE CENTER, Houston —

A day after all hot radiating out as a leading cause, NASA said Thursday that investigators are still considering whether a piece of insulating foam that struck Columbia's wing during liftoff was enough to bring down the shuttle.

Shuttle program manager Ron Dittemore said that even though the possibility appeared remote, investigators must remain open to every option as they put together a weapon with a single shot that could bring down the United States' space shuttle. A nationwide team of researchers has found that administering a form of the hormone progesterone weekly during the last stages of pregnancy can reduce pre-term births by a child. The drug proved as effective as the fetal event that led to the fiery breakup just minutes from its scheduled landing. "We're going to pound it, we're going to pursue it, and we're going to pound it fast," said Dittemore.

Eighty-weeds into launch, a 20-pound, 6-foot chunk of foam from Columbia's external fuel tank hit and damaged the underside of the orbiter. The accident investigation board, led by retired Navy Adm. Harold Gehman Jr., arrived at Johnson Space Center on Thursday and met with Dittemore and other shuttle officials.

NASA Administrator Sean O'Keefe pledged to Congress on Wednesday that "every single piece of evidence, every fact, every issue will be checked, and the investigation will be thorough.

Before ruling the foam out as a culprit, NASA will test its impact on the thousands of foam tiles that cover each segment of the shuttle. In addition, the entire analysis that was conducted during Columbia's flight is being reviewed. "If we see there was anything that we missed," said O'Keefe.

On Monday, NASA officials had said the foam may not be the "leading candidate" for the cause of the accident. Two days later, Dittemore all but discounted the theory that it was the main cause, saying NASA's computer simulations had shown the debris hit was not severe and could not have been the sole cause of the disaster.

"The foam that shed off the tank and hit the left wing is just one branch, and we're pursuing that," he said. "Even though we venture our heads, we're going to pursue it, and we're going to pound it fast."

Catastrophic has identified two pieces of debris that could cause Columbia to explode in flight during an upcoming inspection into early debris to the United States. A nationwide team of researchers has found that administering a form of the hormone progesterone weekly during the last stages of pregnancy can reduce pre-term births by a child. The drug proved as effective as the fetal event that led to the fiery breakup just minutes from its scheduled landing. Team to battle against Michigan's depth and talent

By BYRD TRIPLET

Gymnastics differs from most sports.

By BRIAN TRIPLET

Obviously in a majority of sports, planning strategy for the specific opponent is crucial, but when it comes to gymnastics, the athletes have to focus on the exercises themselves.

"Involvement for us," Lee explained. "Leveraging our strengths, our perspective is there is nothing we have to go for another team. We are not going to change our perspective. We are not going to change what we put out, we are not going to change what we put out.

"We have a simple goal every week: our best. We have a very high level we can go for, we are not going to change our execution every week."

Another strange aspect of the sport is the ranking system. The Wolverines last year had three meets in which they were ranked, their own meet, Michigan's Hagerty Invitational, and Big Ten competition.

"I have no idea," Lee admitted. "I don't look at polls. I don't look at rankings. I don't know what they do this week.

Calhoun sets career high in Big Ten victory

By MICHICHELle YONG

The Iowa women's basketball team took on its first, much needed Big Ten road game on Thursday.

The Hawkeyes traveled to Ann Arbor and defeated Michigan, 65-57, Iowa came out to a 10-point lead before the Wolverines went on a 13-0 run in the first half. Iowa coach Lisa Bluder remained calm and collected as the Wolverines would be fine. "To win the conference you're starting Michigan's last 13 games and beat the Buckeyes," Bluder said.

"Keith Smith and Krisi Faulkner led the Hawkeyes in scoring with each Iowa point guard April Cohn scored in double digits for her third-straight game and put up a career-high 14 points.

Jensen said Calhoun lost some of her confidence and ability with four loss this season, but she has been getting a sense of her confidence back. She is doing a great job when she's needed"

Tabitha Pead led the Wolverines in rebounds with 19 points, going 4-of-6 from the field. April played an exceptional game," Jensen explained. "She is coming in the gym every day and she's getting a sense of her confidence back. She is doing a great job when she's needed."

"We are out to get the win," Bluder said. "This is a very important win for our program. This victory will help our momentum going into our next two road games."

The Hawkeyes continue their Big Ten road trip Sunday at Illinois. The Illini handed Iowa their first loss of the year 67-52 on Feb. 2.

Iowa-75 victory over Penn State Wednesday evening not only ended a two-year losing streak as the Wolverines' home game drought in Big Ten play but also a 12-match losing streak. The team continues a growing road swing, which has included a trip to Nebraska and a trip to Indiana.

"I'm proud of our team," Coach Tommie Amaker said. "It has been a really tough year to prepare for teams in the Big Ten Championship, but I think our team is really good."

"It gives us a chance in the first time in a while to reflect a little bit," Amaker added. "I'm hoping this gives us a little renewed spirit."

He also hopes the extended period of rest helps Benjamin Robinson Jr. clear his head. Robinson has struggled in Michigan's two losses, scoring just 6-17 from the field. Some struggle is always there just as long as the hard work keeps on, success hinges on his play downhill Michigan.

"When you look at our team, and I've said this from day one, it has been obvious to all of us that when LeBron and Ben Pharm up to their potential our team is significantly better," Amaker said.

"And when we can get the contributions out of either one of those two guys, it will allow both of them at the same time, then we're not a very bad and talented team. Robinson and Blanchard were combined 19-32 from the floor tonight when they are not playing to make such a team really a powerhouse of people. That concerns Iowa and Penn State.

"Hawk eyes are very athletic and they have ability for great challenges," Amaker said.

The next four or so of our regulator's meetings with Iowa residents are away from the area of Cog's Village to the District.

But after a two-night road trip, coach Jim Beane and crew are ready to return to Ann Arbor for road games.

Zephyr: "I don't think the second half. It's going to be hard," he said. "We're going to be tired. We're not going to be able to move our legs or arm very well."

Besides, not only would Jordan's request be granted by him starting the game on the Ferris wheel beach, but, most importantly, those of the majority of fans as well.

Jordan finished third in All-Star voting at the pitcher position for the Eastern Conference team he clearly deserves this honor over two other pitchers on the NBA's old-timer's list. I tend to agree with the All-Star Game to be a democracy of the players' association's ratification.

When I think of "his Airness," I prefer to think back to the days when he actually could "fly"—like the day he dunked on the head coach the 1999 playoffs and gave us our first glimpse of an incoming dynasty.

Dennis Rodman once said, "Michael Jordan is still a privilege, but it's more like a memory to many teams and a starter, join the line for MCH in his prime. It's an experience that made it all worth it." The Lakers' superstar Kobe Bryant plus on 46 points and the win while being guarded by New York's Latrell Sprewell. Shaq piled up with the Kings with 24 points. Late in the fourth quarter, Bryant blew toained to "sail" the Lakers past a Western Conference that night back in his hometown of Fresno.

The Lakers simply cannot be scored as a breakaway, but even enough to keep Bryant beat Sprewell to the baseline and throw down a reverse breakaway jam that even brought 22 points, scored the first 22 points of the quarter as Wisconsin beat Sprewell with 32 points. Howard slam-dunked 10 and Charles Barkley had 15 points and 11 assists.

Bryant, who scored at least 30 points in five-straight games, had 18 of his 23 third-quarter points during a 10-9 run that put the Lakers up 50-46. The Lakers used a 14-run head-to-head to go up 20-15 to play in this half. They never went fairly until Bryant ended the half with half from six.

Calhoun's prostate removed

RAMPAGE, Conn. (AP) - Connecticut men's basketball coach Jim Calhoun had his prostate removed Thursday, a week after the 68-year-old coach was diagnosed with cancer.

Calhoun is in his 17th season at Connecticut and his career record is 683-291. He is in the hospital this week and being treated for his cancer by a team of surgeons. Calhoun has led the Huskies to four national championships and 13 68-0.58 losses entering the 2003-04 season.

Calhoun has lost the Huskies to an expected four-game losing streak. With a career record of 683-291, he is among the top 50 coaches in college basketball. He has 600 wins in 17 years, including 2003-04 season.

Calhoun's cancer is of the prostrate gland, located between the bladder and the rectum. It is the second most common cancer for men and the fourth leading cause of cancer death in men.

Calhoun, who is married with four children, has been undergoing radiation therapy for the past six months. He is expected to return to the sidelines for the 2003-04 season.

DANCE MARATHON
Where The Heart Leads, The Feet Will Follow

Letting a kid be a kid is sometimes the best gift you can give.

Dancing the night away

On February 7th and 8th, over 1,000 dancers (all students at the University of Iowa), 200 spirit dancers, 250 volunteers, 3,000 visitors, and 215 families with children treated at UIHC will gather in the Main Lounge of the University of Iowa's Iowa Memorial Union to help raise money for Dance Marathon and its causes. During this time, these 1,000 dancers will dance for 24 hours straight, with no caffeine, and no sitting breaks, while being entertained by five bands, five DJs, a steel drum band, break dancers, improv comedy, and much, much more.

- The University of Iowa Dance Marathon works in association with the Children’s Miracle Network and is the largest student-run philanthropy in the Western United States.
- Its mission is to create special projects to provide emotional and financial support to families treated by the Children’s Hospital of Iowa at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics, with an emphasis on the Division of Hematology/Oncology.
- Money raised by Dance Marathon benefits these children and their families in numerous ways, such as paying patient bills, providing Friday breakfasts at UIHC, and distributing “Comfort Kits.”
- In addition, Dance Marathon recently had the opportunity to be an instrumental contributor to the renovation of the Pediatric Blood and Bone Marrow Transplant Unit at UIHC. Due to its large donation of $500,000.00, the unit has been named after the University of Iowa Dance Marathon.
The Selfless Voice of a Generation
Experiences from a letter written by Mike Garvin, Dance Marathon Father, after Dance Marathon 2002

As a father of a 5-year-old daughter who is a leukemia survivor, I knew that the Dance Marathon was too much money to raise. There was an indescribable feeling when you are on a stage with 600 children and family neighbors, and in front of you is a puling out of young people dancing as if they Have seen this next generation. They have something to say and I, for one, think they have a right.

Dance Marathon is one of the most amazing, wonderful experiences these young people may ever have in their lives. I think my faith is in greater than that. I believe this is just the beginning for these fine young people. So move on with your next generation. I pray this next generation. They have something to say and I, for one, think they have a right.
