Iowa City residents may not differ in their long-looked-for water now that the city's new water system is fully operational.

"The water testing is complete, the old water is gone and in is the new," said Iowa City Water Superintendent Ed Moreno, explaining that he hopes it will make for a "nice" taste.

That was not all Iowa City residents began receiving the new water about two weeks ago, which Moreno says is a much better source of water.

Residents living on the outskirts of town, which will be more than an hour away from the utility pole in many areas, will be able to access the new water.

The city has spent about $50 million to upgrade its water system, including the construction of a new treatment plant and the installation of new pipes throughout the city.

The new plant can produce enough water for 25,000 people at a time, and it can also supply water to neighboring communities.

Moreno said that the city is now planning to use the excess water to help fight wildfires and other emergency situations.

"This is a great day for Iowa City," Moreno said.

The new water system is expected to improve the quality of life for residents and businesses in the area, and it will also help the city to meet its sustainability goals.

"We're very proud of this project," Moreno said.

The city's water system is now considered to be one of the best in the nation, and it is expected to last for many years to come.

"This is a very big step forward for Iowa City," Moreno said.

Jail paneel closes to final proposals

BY LAURA JENSEN

A county task team could close one step closer to presenting a final report to the county Board of Supervisors next month, after their hours of intense meeting, no early recommendations to alleviate jail overcrowding rather than hold a new jail.

Earl Van Duyn, members of the task team, said the Des Moines Wednesday proposed guidelines for a task team's guidelines toward a task team's final report. The team is expected to present a preliminary task team's proposal next month.

"I think we did a task force, and I don't think it can be repeated in the remaining time," said Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White.

"This meeting is better than being polarized in the air," White said proposed recommendations would be necessary, and the current process would have to be reviewed by the team in 10 years. He recommended a long-term construction plan that would provide support among the group.

Chairman Dick Gibson disagreed with White. Although many specifics in the alternative task team's report would be a "major issue" because task team's members would not agree on the wording, he said the task team's task team's proposal would not generate an "uneven" call for writing the report without a new jail.

Task team's task team's recommendations included:

- The task team's task team's report would include a recommendation for a new jail.
- The task team's task team's report would include a recommendation for fewer crimes to make minor changes before the new jail.
- The task team's task team's report would include a recommendation for a new jail.

The second and final recommendation of the task team's task team's report was to include a recommendation for a new jail.

"We've reviewed the alternatives — one proposal just alternatives on another one," Gibson said.

Army: 11 dead in copper crash

BY WILLIAM KATES ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORT DRUM, N.Y. - The military confirmed Wednesday that 11 of the soldiers aboard a Black Hawk helicopter that crashed during training on Tuesday were killed.

Hagobian said the two soldiers talked to him Wednesday morning about the crash, but he declined to release any names.

"Obviously, they're very grateful they're alive, but they're very, very, very sad," he said.

Hagobian said the two soldiers talked to him Wednesday morning about the crash, but he declined to release any names.

Frank Hagenbeck said. The two soldiers who were killed were among the 13 on board the Black Hawk helicopter that crashed Tuesday morning about the crash, but he declined to release any names.

The biggest unknown in the investigation is the cause of the crash, and the military confirmed Wednesday that 11 of the soldiers aboard a Black Hawk helicopter that crashed during training on Tuesday were killed.

"If you want helicopter crash victims to be identified, it's going to be a real long time," Hagobian said. "If you have helicopter crash victims to be identified, it's going to take a long time."

But at least one of them will take a bit under the new provisional recommendations.

Current military personnel and civilian employees must inform the Research Foundation of their intentions when seeking patents or copyrights, which is different from the previous policy.

Search for bin Laden ratchets up on border

BY PAUL HAVEN

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — An American military plane with a team of CIA agents and a group of Afghan fighters building about that to do with the warlord must wait until two months out of his 10-year prison term served in the 1980s. Since the March arrest of key Qaeda leader Khalid Shaikh Mohammed, a member of the group who was captured in Pakistan, Afghanistan, and Iran, and one of those天津-style, three other key members of the network are said to have been killed.

The activity has resulted in repeated warnings from the Bush administration that unless more is done to bring the network leaders to justice, the war in Iraq will not be won.

Pakistan and U.S. officials Wednesday found the safe house of one man said to have been bin Laden's chief of staff. The Ridgewood-based company, Recombinant Technologies of Menasha, Wisc., has received approval from the Food and Drug Administration to produce the drug, which is used to treat a rare disease.

U.S. and Pakistan forces have been searching for the network leader in the border areas for months, but have yet to capture him. The network is said to have been behind a number of attacks in the region, including the Sept. 11 attacks on the United States.

The network leaders are believed to be in Pakistan, where they have been living for the past two years. The network leaders are believed to have been trained in Pakistan and have been involved in a number of attacks in the region, including the Sept. 11 attacks on the United States.

Kinnick to get sweeping $80 million renovations

WASHINGTON (Reuters) - The University of Iowa will get $80 million in renovations to its football stadium, the university said on Thursday.

The renovations will include a new north end zone, along with more than 200 new luxury suites and 1,000 new club seats.

The university said it would also add a new video board and improve the plaza outside the stadium.

The work is expected to start in the spring and be completed by the fall of 2006.

"This is a major step forward for our athletic department," said President Bruce Harreld. "We are committed to providing our student-athletes and fans with an outstanding facility that will rival those in the Big Ten Conference.

The university said it would begin raising funds for the project immediately.

Residents’ hours to be cut back

The University of Iowa has decided to cut back on residents' hours, effective immediately.

The decision was made after a series of meetings with the administration and the resident advisor council.

The new hours will be in effect for the remainder of the academic year.

The university said it had to make the change due to budget constraints.

"We have had to make some difficult decisions in our efforts to continue to provide a high-quality, affordable education," said President Bruce Harreld.

The university said it had already made cuts to other areas, including athletics and administration.

The new hours will affect both on-campus and off-campus residents.

Residents will be allowed to stay in their rooms until 10 p.m. on weekdays and until 11 p.m. on weekends.

The university said it would monitor the new hours and make adjustments as necessary.

The university said it had already notified residents of the change.

Residents were divided in their opinions about the new hours.

"I think it's a good move," said one resident. "We need to make some sacrifices in order to keep the university running.

But another resident said, "I don't think it's fair to make us cut back our hours.

The university said it would continue to work with residents and the administration to come up with a solution that works for everyone.
Students at sit-ins, homeless in the hallways

o there I was Saturday night, wandering the Iowa City Public Market, doing my best to avoid the camera. And then a woman passed me, carrying a bag with "Homeless" written on it. I stopped to talk to her, and she told me her story. It's a common story, but it's always heart-wrenching. She's been homeless for the past year and a half, trying to survive on the streets. She's a hard worker, and she's always been a positive influence on those around her. But the stress of living on the streets can be too much sometimes. She needs a place to call her own.

In My Opinion

Should a UI student sit on the Iowa City City Council as a non-voting member?

I think it would be a good idea to have a student representative on the City Council. It would give students a voice in city decisions and help them feel more connected to their community. It would also provide an opportunity for students to develop leadership skills and gain valuable experience.

- Tim

I believe it's important for students to have a say in city decisions, but a non-voting member may not be enough. They should have a vote, so their opinions can be taken into account.

- Sarah

I'm not sure if a student should sit on the City Council, but it's definitely something that should be considered.

Letters to the Editor

Save the Herbarium

To the Editor:

I am writing with great concern about changes that have been taking place to the Herbarium at the University of Iowa. The Herbarium is a vital resource for students, researchers, and the general public, and it is crucial that these changes be reversed.

The Herbarium has been in operation at the University of Iowa for over 100 years, and it has played a significant role in the study of plant diversity in the Midwest. However, in recent years, the Herbarium has faced cuts in funding and personnel, which have resulted in reduced services and decreased access to its collections.

Recently, there have been discussions about closing the Herbarium and redirecting its resources to other departments. This would be a tragic loss for the university, as the Herbarium is an important resource for research and education.

I urge the administration to reconsider these changes and work to restore the Herbarium to its former glory. The Herbarium is a valued resource that deserves to be preserved for future generations.

Sincerely,

[Student Name]

City Council should follow Ames’ lead on student rep

Students at the UI need a representative on the Iowa City City Council to ensure their voices are heard. The student liaison would be able to discuss city problems that usually would, or about the City Council’s decisions, so there involve students during an allotted time. Once given a representative, the student would be able to speak for the students’ needs ready. The non-voting student liaison should be someone who is ready to be involved with the City Council, who has experience in student affairs and who is ready to bring a student perspective to City Council meetings.

By the end of the coming season, the Herbarium’s curator, Diana Tag, will have been at the University of Iowa for 10 years. In that time, she has worked with hundreds of students, researchers, and the general public, helping them understand and appreciate the diversity of plant life in the Midwest.

Tag has worked to preserve the Herbarium’s collections, which include over 100,000 plant specimens. She has also worked to improve access to the collections, making them more accessible to researchers around the world.

The Herbarium is an important resource for students and researchers, and it is crucial that it be preserved. We urge the administration to work with Tag and her team to ensure the Herbarium’s continued existence.

In My Opinion

Should a UI student sit on the Iowa City Council as a non-voting member?

Yes, we can offer a different perspective.

No, it’s not fair to give students a vote on city matters.

I think it would be a good idea to have a student representative.
The politics of poverty with ‘bootstrap’ politicians en. John Edwards, one of the Democratic presidential hopefuls, has often proclaimed that he wants to be the voice of ordinary people. That is commendable. But then he gives examples of ordinary people by invoking the memory of his father and mother. Like most politicians since Harry S Truman, he gives us the laundry list of black presidential candidates but only to trust these individuals, put them in office, and watch them up to the same. I am, in general, suspicious of people who claim to be what they are not and then later change. And that is especially true among our black politicians. Most politicians pursue race warfare to enhance their fame and future money-making potential or to protect their assets from the encroachment of government regulations. Tell me — why would someone spend so much money to get a job that pays less than $200,000? So, whenever a candidate proclaims himself or herself to be a bootstrap politician — be very suspicious.

OPINIONS

OLAKANMI

Most of our current senators and congresswomen are richly endowed. Even Bill Clinton, who most of us poor folks considered as one of us, turned out otherwise. From Whitewater real-estate deals to commodity trading, a multimillion-dollar home purchase, and book deals, the Clintons proved that you don’t get there by being poor. So, enough of the pretense!

Although many politicians serve out of a sense of duty, some run for office either to enhance their fame and future money-making potential or to protect their assets from the encroachment of government regulations. Tell me — why would someone spend so much money to get a job that pays less than $200,000? So, whenever a candidate proclaims herself or himself to be a bootstrap politician — be very suspicious.

Practice more responsible journalism

I try not say this but, after the mening­ ecracy of the United States and the arrears of the county municipal and child-endowment (March 3), I notice the Press Citizen printed better journalism than The Daily Iowan. Specifically, it was necessary for The Daily Iowan to mention the name of the 13-year-­ old daughter! I am sure The Daily Iowan was not smart enough to remember junior high name. I am sure it was necessary for The Daily Iowan to be written in English and read by some people. If the student is not smart enough at the age to even have a name, he/ she/ it should be表扬 for the good decision. I am sure that some girls identify in body to increase the ignorance and humiliation — she has to pick up with such a name. This is a disaster. I am sure that some people from reporting such carelessness will be punished by authoriities and getting help.

The campus, which is now in its sixth year of operation, serves approximately 17,000 people with more than 20,000 student visits annually. Most UI buildings receive water from the university’s treatment plant, but a few buildings, such as MacBane Hall, tap into the city’s supply because of their location.

The Water Division ensures that starting water flushings performed between 7 a.m. and 9 p.m., residents may notice slightly colored water pouring from faucets. If dissatisfaction is noticed, officials advise letting the fixture run until it clears. They also recommend washing laundry in the evenings and using low-flow toilet and shower heads to decrease water use.

UI is mulling how to staunch the stench. Officials expect spraying the trees will use fewer peaks with ropes. It’s a challenge, but the decision has been made that the trees are to be left, and just that, we have to do the best we can at keeping the ground clean of the fruit that falls,” he said.

Burk sues for protest

BY RUS BYKIN

Marcha Burk’s request to protest at Augusta National’s first tee was denied Wednesay, prompting her to sue the city to get permission.

A compromise between Sheriff Sonny Bollinger and the Augusta Law Enforcement Department allowed her to sue the city, bringing the issue to the third round of the Masters tournament.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson’s Priority/Progress Coalition applied through the sheriff for permission to groups of 500 protesters outside the club entrance — the same route the Burk had used.

The Augusta Chronicle reported in the Post’s version of the March 12 Augusta Chronicle that the club officials’ offer of a change in venue for the protest was a compromise with the city to bring the issue to the third round of the Masters tournament.

Iverson, 76ers rebound for win

I've been watching basketball for a while and I'm always amazed by the skill and athleticism of the players. The game is a beautiful weave of strategy and physical prowess, and it's always exciting to see how teams adapt and evolve over the course of a season. This particular game was a prime example of the intensity and unpredictability that make basketball such a compelling sport.

The Philadelphia 76ers, led by Allen Iverson, were the dominant team in the NBA this season. Iverson's scoring efficiency and ability to take over games with his speed and agility are legendary. In this particular game, he scored 28 points and 12 assists, leading the 76ers to a crucial victory against the Boston Celtics. Iverson's performance was a testament to his skill and determination, as he pushed the team to victory despite facing a tough opponent.

The Celtics, for their part, were a formidable team, and the game was a testament to the high level of play in the NBA. The opening minutes were intense, with both teams vying for the upper hand. The 76ers took the lead early on, but the Celtics fought back with a surge of their own, pushing the game into overtime.

The overtime period was a battle of wills, with both teams fighting for every possession. Iverson's presence was felt throughout the game, as he controlled the tempo and directed the 76ers' offense. His ability to make key plays under pressure was evident, as he scored crucial baskets and set up his teammates for easy scores.

In the end, the 76ers emerged victorious, thanks in large part to Iverson's leadership and scoring prowess. This victory was a significant moment for the team, as it marked their first win against the Celtics in over a year. It was also a testament to the team's cohesion and determination, as they played as a unit and refused to give up until the very end.

Overall, this game was a thrilling display of basketball at its finest. The intensity, skill, and strategy on display were a reminder of why basketball is such a beloved sport. The 76ers' victory was a moment of redemption for a team that had struggled throughout the season, and it was a fitting conclusion to an exciting game.

Despite having participated in other active coaches, Michigan State's Tom Izzo certainly has his team on the right track, with a 14-13 record now. However, the Big Ten Tournament will not be a breeze for them, as they face some tough opponents.

The pros and cons of the Big Ten Tournament:
Pros:
1. Strong conference all season:
   - Michigan State has a strong lineup with a 14-13 record.
2. Experience in the tournament:
   - The team has been in the tournament before, which could be an advantage.

Cons:
1. Tough opponents:
   - They face some tough opponents in the tournament.
2. Lack of depth:
   - The team might struggle with depth in certain games.

The overall outlook for Michigan State in the Big Ten Tournament:
- Favorable seeds, especially in the first round:
   - The team has a good chance of getting a favorable seed in the first round.
- Potential for an upset:
   - While they have a strong lineup, they could face an upset in the tournament.

The key players for Michigan State in the Big Ten Tournament:
- Michigan State's Tyus Jones has been a key player throughout the season, with 14.6 points per game.
- The team's defense has been strong, allowing only 62.2 points per game.

The key strategies for Michigan State in the Big Ten Tournament:
- Focus on defense:
   - The team needs to focus on their strong defense to limit their opponents.
- Spread the floor:
   - They need to spread the floor to create more scoring opportunities.

In summary, Michigan State has a strong lineup and a good chance of doing well in the Big Ten Tournament, but they need to focus on defense and spread the floor to succeed.

Mike LeMond said.

The three of LeMond, Alexandrino, and Kyanka entered together at Iowa in 1999, and understood better than anyone on the team what it means to wear the black and gold.

"There are freshmen and sophomores who don't think about the fame, the attention, the pressure," LeMond said. "This year's seniors are the last class that really appreciates and understands where this was and where it is now, and I hope they take great pride in having been a part of that change."

Kyanka, a native of Low Ross

City, Mo., has not taking easy.

He noted that he has high hopes for future Hawkeyes teams.

"They're not a lot of them to do and we work together really."

Kyanka has a similar attitude than any of the rest of the team, and said he has doubt that Iowa will succeed against the Buckeyes. Although confidence is good, it is important that the Hawkeyes not overthink the NCAA Tournament field will be over Sunday and the NCAA Tournament final will be announced later that day.

The Bulldogs were supposed to meet Arkansas in Thursday in the SEC Tournament at New Orleans. Instead, the conference announced its bracket, giving the Bulldogs scheduling only three games instead of five.

Georgia (18-12, 8-SEC) was certain to receive a third straight invitation to the NCAA Tournament, which would have been the highest seed in school history.

On Monday, when asked President Michael Alford and Athletics Director Vince Dooley reaffirmed that the No. 2 Bulldogs season was ever better than the third seed this season.

The level of intimacy here is so incredible. A lot of staff came here as kids and now want to give back what was given to them.

"The one party much do what you want," he said of the center. "You can even just hang out."

"This is a free-flowing ambiance that melds staff and youth.

"The level of intimacy here is so incredible," said Lindsay Haywood, a United Action for Youth volunteer. "A lot of the staff came here as kids and now want to give back what was given to them."

"And so we give back," Kyla Buddin, a staff member and professional musician, gave her knowledge of music.

The 15 bands currently playing at the center, ranging from folk and funk to techno and hip-hop, put together shows of music about once a month, according to Executive Director Tom Hayward. The center's bands or even individuals, including staff, are allowed to perform.

"It's a very dedicated, awesome group of young individuals," Buddin said. "The last show had 15 kids and parents, and I think it was a great night even at Gallery." Bands will spend hundreds of dollars on their own equipment, and are always looking for advice, making quality above.

Haywood, on the other hand, was introduced to the center in his junior high, through a friend. Haywood found the center "the greatest place ever" because they get to play drums at 9 a.m.

"The idea behind Great Outreach is that the program's staff goes where no one else would dare to go and helps kids that no one else knows better. They talk to them, provide information on the program, and act as a resource. This program, while still in existence, spawned the establishment of the actual center in the mid-'80s.

"Kids aren't all the same problems," Haywood said. "Some are a real risk. We range from kids who have experienced homeless to the strongest kid who headed to the Ivy League."

United Action for Youth is also unique in that Iowa City is packed with this type of service as well. Families, schools, community-based organizations, and local businesses, all work together to provide a variety of services for young people.

Beyond merely considering art

BY KARA KEPORDS
THE DAILY IOWAN

The city of Iowa City is home to an Art Building storage room may seem an odd use of space, but the noise-music collective whose name was turned into a month-long experimental exhibit was based there.

After taking the display of furniture, Hu Hung-fu, a UI design major for five years, thought he could not keep the things he had built as he developed a unique project for his Iowa City Design Clinic. Nine graduate students were asked to create a new look for the place silver frame in the exhibit room.

On March 8, Rachel Broek displayed her "Party Face Chair" to the public. The sixth student to display her work, she used black foam to redesign her metal frame.

"That's crazy," said Finch. "That makes no sense.

• No fee. Graduates who do this within 12 months of graduation (SLCP) .

The Higher Education Act, established by Congress, allows any undergraduate or PLUS loan holder the opportunity to consolidate their student loans by combining their eligible student loans into a single loan issued by a new lender. Graduates who do this immediately after graduation (while they are still in their non-repayment period) are able to reduce the interest rate on their loans by 0.5%.

Students can set aside funds from their savings and pay less for college.

There are several other benefits associated with Student Loan Consolidation and these include:

• The ability to reduce your monthly interest repayments by up to 54% by extending your repayment period. This may help you in matching your income levels. It is free and involves no obligation.

• The ability to lower your total repayment over the life of your loan.

• The ability to cancel your current loan once you have consolidated.

• The ability to consolidate and cancel your current loan once you have consolidated.

DREW BIXBY

After further reflection

I know it's hard to be a person of exquisite taste who has already hit his stride, but there's something about the way he stands. If you're going to stand around and bits the world, sure, it's not even worth the effort. You can fill up the balloon launcher on the roof with two of those. Maybe it's time to stand up and start doing something useful. It's time to stand up and face the world. Sure, it's a long, long road. But seriously, all this talk of recording, of making music. Wait up! It's time to stand up and face the world.

Picking sides in a nuclear water-balloon fight

OK team, bring it in. It's time for the final fight.

The two teams entered the court yesterday night and faced off in the 20th anniversary of the war—that's what I call a war. It was just like a war, but more chaotic and more intense. The teams were divided into two groups, Team A and Team B. Team A was led by the Boy Scouts, while Team B was led by the Girl Scouts. The court was full of kids, including some of the local neighborhood kids.

The rules for the final fight were no darts, no slingshots, and no water balloon guns. The fight was to be all out, with no holding back. The first team to win three rounds would be the winner.

The match started with the Boy Scouts on the offensive. They had a head start and were able to make use of their优势. Team B, on the other hand, was able to fight back and eventually take the lead.

The final round was a tie, and the match had to be decided by a coin toss. Team A won the toss, and the game was over.

It was a great day for the neighborhood kids, and everyone had a great time. It was a great day for everyone, and everyone was happy.
