2 UI alums find a soprano's range

BY ANNIE SHUPPY
THE DAILY IOWAN

Driving their $200 1963 Chevy Impala west to Hollywood on a cross-country trip 24 years ago, two UI alums never anticipated Tony Soprano and Emmy nominations in their future.

Robin Green and Mitchell Burgess, who have known each other for 27 years and were married last November, are writers and executive producers for HBO's hit series "The Sopranos." Green, a 1977 Writers' Workshop alum, and Burgess, a Cedar Rapids native who earned his B.A. in history in 1978, have garnered a number of Golden Globe awards, a Peabody award, an Emmy, and a Writers Guild Award for their achievements.

Green, 57, was teaching an undergraduate creative-writing seminar when she met Burgess, 51, who was fresh from the Army and attending the UI on the GI

Bill. They began dating after the semester was over.

"He was my most talented student, needless to say," Green said. A Providence, R.I., native and a 1967 Brown University alum, Green said writing for television was not in her original plans. A former waitress, Marvel Comics secretary, and Rolling Stone contributing editor, she had her sights set on writing fiction when she came to the UI in 1975.

Burgess

Green

"The expectation is not going to Hollywood but that you will contribute to literature, and I was just one who happened to fall through the cracks," she said with a laugh.

After taking on temporary work in Los Angeles, Green accepted her first job writing for television ten years after graduating from the UI, although she didn't even own a set until 1983.

David Chase, the creator of "The Sopranos," who had worked with Green on the 1988 series "Almost Grown," approached the couple in 1996 with a pilot for the show and asked them if they would be interested in working on it. At that point, all of the networks had passed on the idea of a show about the foibles of a Mafia don.

"We told him we'd think about it, and then 15 seconds later we said, 'Sure,'" Green said, describing the decision as "a no-brainer."

Burgess said that although they knew the pilot was very good, it would not guarantee success. Since then, reception of the show has been "phenomenal," but he recalls a confused initial reaction from peers.

"Everyone thought we were making a TV show about opera singers," Burgess said from New York City's Union Square during a Daily Iowan interview. "People thought it would probably last one show and be off the air. We were hoping it would find an audience, and it found one big time."

Burgess and Green, who say their writing strengths are very different, work side-by-side when writing together.

"I type, he sits next to me, and we place ourselves in the scene," she said. "Once we figure out what the scene needs to be about, we explore dialogue."

As producers for the show, responsibilities include casting, choosing props, finding extras, scouting locations, and overseeing filming. When producing on the set, the shortest day is between 14-15 hours while the longest can be up to 20, including travel time, Green said.

The experience of "The Sopranos" has been "astounding," and while she said she has no particular plans for projects following the popular television series, the veteran writer and producer will probably not slow down.

"I just feel like I'm not done yet," she said.

For Burgess, a 1970 graduate of Cedar Rapids' Jefferson High School, such a "long journey, though amazing" was improbable, he said.

"If you told someone I grew up with that I work for television, it doesn't compute. I've been very fortunate," he said.

DI photographers receive top honors

Three staff members for The Daily Iowan took home top honors from the Iowa Press Photographers Association's annual awards ceremony in Ames on April 18.

UI senior Zach Boyden-Holmes was named College Photographer of the Year. Other winners included Daily Iowan photography coach Danny Wilcox-Frazier, who was selected as the Iowa Photojournalist of the Year, and photographer Ben Plank.

Boyden-Holmes also received first place in the college-news, portfolio, and multiple-pictures categories. A Daily Iowan photographer for three years, he was selected for the top collegiate award based on his portfolio of 19 images that included work from The Daily Iowan and his internship at the Moline Dispatch and Rock Island Argus in 2002.

The college journalist of the year award was Boyden-Holmes' first major honor after winning a number of individual categories last year. He also took second place in college sports and pictorial and third place in college sports and personality portrait.

UI graduate student Wilcox-Frazier won the top honor for the third time.

Currently a freelance photographer, he also received first-place in open-portfolio and portrait-personality, second place in feature and multiple-pictures, and third in sports-portfolio.

UI senior Plank received second place in college-feature, third place in multiple-pictures, and honorable mention in the sports and personality-portrait.

"I was really happy with how The Daily Iowan photographers did," Wilcox-Frazier said. "It's always rewarding to see your staff recognized by a group of well-respected people with a lot of experience in the business."

Legislators scramble to cut $128 million

DES MOINES (AP) — With only two weeks remaining in the Legislative session, lawmakers are facing the daunting task of cutting $128 million out of next year's proposed budget and figuring out a way to come up with $890 million for an economic development fund.

Some Republican leaders insist on passing changes to the state's income and property-tax systems and easing regulatory burdens on businesses before they'll approve the Iowa Values Fund.

The same big issues were identified as priorities in January when the session began. They could postpone the scheduled adjournment May 2.

Some leaders are optimistic that this week will bring breakthroughs in negotiations and lead to passing tax and regulatory changes that will pave the way for the values fund.

Others seem resigned to finding the cuts needed from the budget, sending it to the governor, and going home.

The values fund was proposed by Gov. Tom Vilsack in the early days of the session as the only way to boost the state's economy so that it can fund government services.

The fund would pay for major economic-development initiatives, including boosting the biotechnology industry, providing money for school repairs, and funding quality of such life projects as parks and recreational facilities.

Exile claims mayorship

BY NIKO PRICE

BAGHDAD — With potential food shortages just weeks away, the U.S. military opened a warehouse to U.N. aid shipments Sunday, stockpiling flour for Baghdad's people as workers toiled to restore battered basic services, such as power and water.

An opposition figure who has proclaimed himself mayor said he had formed a municipal government. He promised to put on trial anyone whose "hands are stained with the blood of the Iraqi people" under a new Constitution based on Islamic law.

Recently returned exile Mohammed Mohsen al-Zubaidi said he had been meeting with "lawmen" to draft new statutes in a country that has spent decades answering to only one authority — Saddam Hussein.

"We have met with lawmen to create laws and to open the courts so that life can begin to take on legitimacy," al-Zubaidi said at a news conference.

Without elaborating, he said Iraq's new Constitution would be based on Islamic law, as many

Two Iraqi men enjoy a meal at an outdoor eatery in a crowded Baghdad street on Sunday. Life is coming back to normal in Baghdad.

Arab nations' Constitutions are to varying degrees. The comment drew applause from Arab journalists gathered in a sweltering coffee shop.

"Every person whose hands are stained with the blood of the Iraqi people will be put on trial," al-Zubaidi proclaimed.

Islam is the official religion under Iraq's current Constitution, but followers of other faiths have freedom to practice.

Al-Zubaidi and the leader of his U.S.-backed Iraqi National Congress, Ahmad Chalabi, are both Shiite Muslims. But Chalabi told ABC-TV's "This Week" on Sunday that he does not envision an Islamic theocracy, although religious groups would likely play a role in governing Iraq.

Saddam son-in-law surrenders

BY CHARLES J. HANLEY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD — Saddam Hussein's son-in-law has left the Syrian capital and surrendered to the Iraqi National Congress in Baghdad, a spokesman in London said Sunday.

One of Saddam's top bodyguards was arrested Sunday by the group, the spokesman said. And U.S. Central Command said Iraq's minister of higher education and scientific research was apprehended by coalition troops.

Jamal Mustafa Abdallah Sultan al-Tikriti is married to Saddam's youngest daughter, Hala; he was deputy head of the Tribal Affairs Office in Saddam's ousted regime. Dubbed by the U.S. military as the nine of clubs in its deck of most wanted, he ranks No. 40 out of the 55 top Iraqi officials sought by the allies.

"There have been some negotiations until he was persuaded to come to Baghdad and surrender to our people in Baghdad," said Haider Ahmed, a spokesman for the congress, a London-based umbrella group of Saddam opponents.

He said he did not know precisely when al-Tikriti surrendered, but he believed it was Sunday. Al-Tikriti had been persuaded to leave Damascus and surrender in Baghdad, Ahmed said.

He said his information came "from my colleagues in Baghdad."

Al-Tikriti was being questioned by intelligence officers of the Free Iraqi Forces on Sunday and would be turned over to the U.S. military "in a matter of hours, not days," Ahmed said.

Entifadh Qanbar, the congress' liaison to U.S. Central Command in Qatar, said it was "our general policy is to turn over war criminals to the Americans."

He said al-Tikriti is in his mid-30s; he had no information about the whereabouts of the daughter.

Officials at Central Command said they had heard the reports but could not confirm the surrender. Syrian officials were not immediately available for comment on al-Tikriti's reported surrender.

The report comes as President Bush applauded signs Sunday that Syria is beginning to heed American demands for cooperation against Saddam's defunct regime.

Tensions between the United States and Syria escalated after reports surfaced that members of Saddam's deposed government had crossed the border to flee the U.S.-led war.

Uneasy Easter for Iraqis

BY CAROL MORELLO
WASHINGTON POST

BAGHDAD — In all his 57 years, Samir Ahad has never experienced an Easter Sunday so filled with sorrow, hopelessness, and dread as this one.

At every turn was a reminder of the war that left lives in shambles and usurped a government that had cosseted the small Christian minority. Parishioners arrived at the Evangelical Protestant Church, where Ahad is the secretary, in cars pockmarked by shrapnel. The absence of the chocolates, colored eggs, and new clothes that usually mark Easter services at the Presbyterian church underscored that the parishioners have no income to spend.

Under a gloomy sky, nobody could muster even a perfunctory "Happy Easter" greeting. Instead, many wept through the sermon on a day meant to celebrate resurrection.

"This is a sad Easter," said Ahad, sipping tea in the church office where ceiling fans rotated lazily under a generator's power. "We have suffered, not only from Saddam but from pollution of the air and the water, from having no jobs and no income. And in my mind, I keep seeing my son carrying a Kalashnikov to protect the church from looters. I didn't want this for him. We are all afraid, for today and for the future."

A smothering blanket of loss and worry stripped joy from Easter services.

At Evangelical Protestant Church, a widowed parishioner said he was preparing to leave Iraq, hoping to provide his grown son with a better future.

"It's going to be like Iran," warned the parishioner. "Even Christians will have to wear head scarves. There will be no alcohol. No dancing. All Christians are afraid now."

"Christians are afraid of the new government and what it will do with us," said Wisal Kotta, as she left Easter services at Our Lady of Rescue, a Syrian Catholic church. "There may be many political parties, religious parties."

"Of course we are sad," said Jusef Waad, an agricultural engineer attending Easter services at the Syrian Catholic church. "We have no security. We have no electricity or water. We have no jobs. Everything is gone. There is no Easter this year. This smile on my face is false. It is only there so I can carry on with life and do my religious duty. But inside ourselves, we are still afraid."

Saddam hid in bodyguard's house

BY ELLEN KNICKMEYER
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BAGHDAD — Saddam Hussein's entourage hid out in the home of a former family bodyguard for much of the U.S.-led air war, fleeing only when a bunker-busting bomb meant for the Iraqi leader struck a block away, residents told the Associated Press on Sunday.

The accounts heightened the possibility that Saddam survived the April 7 attack.

Neighbors said they believed Saddam himself had stayed in the house in the well-off western Baghdad block, though none of those interviewed claimed to have seen the Iraqi leader.

However, Saddam's top bodyguard, Ali Nassir, and the ousted leader's cousin Gen. Ali Suleyman Abdullah al-Majid were among those seen coming and going for about 10 days. Nassir and others guarded the house until all inside fled in the hours after the U.S. bombing on the afternoon of April 7.

"They came out in civilian clothes, in groups, and you could see the fear on their faces," said Osama al-Bidery, next-door neighbor to the high-walled compound. "They left their guns, they left their uniforms, and they left like civilians."

The home's owner, a woman who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said Baath Party officials barred her from the house during the time they commandeered it and told her to burn a discarded two-star general's uniform she found when she moved back in.

Saddam, fearful of assassination attempts, was known to move from private home to private home on a regular basis. Even before the war began, he declined to spend nights in one of his family palaces.

In the last hours of the U.S. entry into Baghdad, the United States unleashed bunker bombs that blew a crater 60 feet deep into a street of the al-Mansour neighborhood. The bombs blew at least three houses and 14 people into barely discernible bits.

U.S. authorities said at the time it would take digging and forensic work to determine whether Saddam had been inside.

The targeted houses had been on a block behind the United Arab Emirates Embassy. Just a block away, on the other side of the embassy, was the house where neighbors say Saddam's camp took refuge.

The neighborhood housed intelligence officials and other ranking members of Saddam's regime, al-Bidery and neighbor Falhel al-Zaidi said.

Residents said Saddam had once given the house in question to one of his favorite bodyguards — an operative slain by Saddam's eldest son in a notorious case that highlighted Oday Hussein's brutality.

Al-Zaidi and al-Bidery said the current homeowner worked in intelligence for Oday. But she denied working in any way for Saddam's son, saying she ran a tourism business.

An ornate two-story limestone structure with arches looping on top, the house at times had been rented by ambassadors of Libya and Algeria, the woman and other neighbors said.

Threadbare and dim, with frayed carpet, the home includes a dark front room with blue rugs and thick blue curtains. The key piece of furniture in the front room is a desk on a raised podium.

The homeowner said she and her family had fled Baghdad in advance of U.S. bombs. When family members changed their minds and returned, they found the house had been taken over. Baath Party officials had changed the locks and told the family members they could not move back in.

A SARS patient receives treatment behind double-layer glass windows amid strict quarantine measures at the Beijing Ditan Hospital on Sunday. China reported a nearly 10-fold increase in cases in Beijing.

China axes two in SARS fallout

BY JOHN POMFRET
WASHINGTON POST

BEIJING — In the most significant political shake-up in more than a decade, the mayor of Beijing and the minister of health were removed from their Communist Party posts Sunday for failing to deal with the spread of SARS in China.

Health officials also conceded they had mismanaged the outbreak of the disease, an unprecedented admission by the Communist Party. The government increased the number of confirmed SARS cases in the capital from 37 to 346, a tacit acknowledgment that it had previously lied about the toll. The government also canceled the annual one-week vacation that begins May 1. The Ministry of Education effectively confined hundreds of thousands of students in the capital to their campuses to limit the infection rate.

The moves constituted a political earthquake for the Chinese Communist Party, which has rarely acknowledged making mistakes during its 54-year rule. From the start, Chinese sources said, the new government, led by President Hu Jintao and Premier Wen Jiabao, approved the cover-up. But a combination of intense international pressure and the influence of the information revolution on China made the government look so out of touch that bold action was demanded, the sources said. While the government withheld information about the virus, many Chinese traded news on cell phones in text messages.

The ramifications for the way the party rules China will be huge, Chinese analysts and politicians said. Hu and Wen, who came to power vowing to take responsibility for problems, appear to have set a new precedent for how to rule China by firing two senior officials for organizing a cover-up.

"This is the beginning of the end," said a senior official who has lobbied behind the scenes for greater democracy. "This is the spark many of us have been waiting for."

"Our government is marching toward the right direction," said Jiang Yanyong, the former head of the military's No. 301 hospital who, in a rare feat of whistle-blowing, accused the government of a cover-up two weeks ago.

Ancient village found under Illinois hillside

DAMIANSVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Digging crews have found hundreds of 1,200-year-old stone arrowheads and pottery fragments buried under an Illinois hillside.

The discovery near this village about 35 miles east of St. Louis represents an important archaeological find, said Brad Koldehoff, a state archaeologist.

"It's a significant site. They discovered a keyhole-shaped house and what appears to be a small village," he said.

"Keyhole" houses are dwellings made of clay and logs with rooms half submerged in the ground. The large, dome-shaped living area at one end was reached by a long, straight, covered entrance, giving rise to the name "keyhole."

Microscopic examination of debris from their ancient garbage pits shows the inhabitants ate venison and turkey, plus what are today considered weeds. One common dish was a sort of pancake made from the seeds of knot weed.

The village dates from the Late Woodland period, from around 600 to 800 A.D., said Koldehoff.

What is learned from the dig will be integrated with knowledge gained from other finds in Illinois in recent years, including the 2001 discovery of 70 handmade ceremonial stone ax heads beneath a field in Shiloh.

The hillside where the artifacts were found last week was chosen for excavation because the landowner wants to sell its dirt to the state as fill for a nearby highway project. State law requires that an archaeological team search for artifacts and excavate any that might be found.

Attention Graduating Students

Did you know that you can reduce the interest rate on your student loans and save thousands of dollars by consolidating your student loans after graduation?

Does it Matter When You Choose to Consolidate?
Yes. If you are about to graduate (or have recently graduated) timing is critical to maximizing the amount that you can save with consolidation. If you wait too long to apply for consolidation, you might miss out on the opportunity to reduce the interest rate on all your loans by 0.60%.

The Higher Education Act, established by Congress, allows any graduate (or parent with PLUS loans) to consolidate their student loans by combining all their eligible student loans into a single loan issued by a new lender. Graduates who do this immediately after graduation (while they are still in their non-repayment period) are able to reduce the interest rate on all their eligible loans by 0.60% - potentially saving themselves thousands of dollars.

What Does it Cost to Consolidate?
There are no fees or credit checks, nor is there any penalty for early repayment of your consolidation loan. Note however, that you can only consolidate once and consolidation can affect certain deferment and cancellation benefits associated with loans.

Are you about to Graduate?
Act now by registering with the Student Loan Consolidation Program (SLCP). It is free and involves no obligation. SLCP will simply provide you with information on what consolidation is all about and contact you after graduation to remind you of the opportunity to reduce your interest rate by consolidating early.

There are several other benefits associated with Student Loan Consolidation and these include:

- The ability to reduce your monthly interest repayments by up to 54% by extending your repayment period. This may help you in matching your income level to your repayment obligations.
- Fixing the interest rate on your loans to take advantage of the historically low interest rates that are currently available for the life of your loans. Your existing loans are variable and could rise over time as interest rates rise. Consolidation can ensure that this doesn't happen.
- Dealing with only one monthly loan repayment from one lender can make your life easier.
- Save even more on your repayments by taking advantage of 'borrower benefits' that can reduce your interest rate by up to an additional 1.25% by making electronic and on-time repayments.

For more information, call a loan counselor at 1-866-311-8076 or click on our ad at www.dailyiowan.com to see if you qualify for these savings.

While visiting the paper online, be sure and sign up for the email edition. It's the best way to stay informed beyond graduation, and it's free.

Foundation's fund-raising fees concern some officials

FOUNDATION

New said other factors, such as the state of the economy, also factored into the foundation's decision to alter its fund-raising policies. In addition to the gift charge and other fees, the foundation is also supported through gifts designated to support its operations.

"The old system was very dependent on a market situation," New said, adding that the foundation has started absorbing the effects of the economic slowdown. "Our donations are fewer, so we are getting less return. This is a more effective formula."

At the end of 2002, the endowment pool managed by the foundation exceeded $400 million, a drop of almost $58 million from 2001. The 11 percent decrease, combined with a $24 million drop in the university's internal endowment, meant a combined loss of $82 million last fiscal year for the university.

In other adjustments, the foundation will also change fees charged to colleges or departments for development officers assigned to work with each more," she said, adding that she spends almost 20 percent of her time on fund-raising. "These kinds of fund-raising [efforts] support scholarships, and, as the state budget is going down, the external funds need more and more input."

The UI Foundation, which was founded in 1956, is autonomous from the university and functions as a channel for private contributions that benefit all areas of the university. Contributions are used for scholarships, professorships, facilities, equipment purchases, and more.

New acknowledged that the changes may lead to increased expenses in some departments, but he has not heard many complaints.

"Change is always difficult," he said. "But for the most part, people understand that it is a necessity."

inmate is charged or convicted. Iowa law states that a felon who "intentionally escapes or attempts to escape" from a correctional facility commits a Class D felony, punishable by a maximum five-year prison term.

But escape for someone charged or convicted of a misdemeanor means a serious misdemeanor charge, with penalties of a maximum jail term not to exceed one year. Wilkins and Hershberger are both felons.

The escape prompted Oakdale officials to heighten prison security with more guards and an extra patrol vehicle in the area in which the convicts escaped. The facility has since upgraded to maximum-security status, with heavier supervision of dangerous convicts.

State lawmakers are also looking at the fence they scaled, which was designed to sound an alarm when its barbed wire was disturbed. It did not because prison officials had turned it off for a construction project.

The project is expanding the section that houses inmates with special needs. Ort has said that turning off the fence did not change any procedures and that the prison is safe.

Her father, Leroy Latta, said he asked his daughter to join the Sister Cities Commission in researching and cleaning jawbones from the whales caught in 1996, which had developed algae and mildew while being stored.

"I was taken aback when my dad asked me," Knudsen-Latta said. "I decided to do it because I'm an inquisitive person. You don't take a class to learn about whale bones."

Her father spent six months attempting to get international permits to export the bones. When those attempts failed — because the bones were protected under the Endangered Species Act and other regulations — he turned to the federal government. President Bush signed a provision into law in 2001 allowing the export.

Last summer, Knudsen-Latta received the Gold Award, the highest award a Girl Scout can receive, requiring 50 hours of community service, for her work on the whale bones.

"I am proud of her willingness to help others, her intellectual persistence, and hard work in really nasty conditions," Latta said. "Claire learned an important lesson about service to others: Sharing your talents, whatever they are, is fulfilling."

Proper compensation for medical mishaps

A drug-addicted nurse gives a child an overdose of a drug, causing her to slip into a coma and die. A physician in a hurry for a golf game reads the wrong pathology slides for a female patient who suffers removal of two healthy breasts. Under the proposal to limit "non-economic" damages in medical malpractice cases, those lawsuits would be worth $250,000 — no exceptions. Non-economic damages in personal-injury cases are pain, suffering, disability, and disfigurement. In wrongful-death cases, non-economic damages are the loss of the relationship to the spouse and children.

If the dead patient is a stay-at-home mom with children, the proposed bill would limit the family's recovery to $250,000 plus the cost of a nanny. The nanny is the "economic loss" to the spouse and children and represents the cost of a person to supervise the children. The administration has often vocalized its policy that government should cut back on regulation and restrictions on business. Yet, on the other hand, it places arbitrary limits on our children's lives if they are injured or killed by a negligent health-care provider.

This legislation is an alleged cure for the doctors who are paying excessive malpractice premiums. Notably, the proposed bill does not contain any reference to any requirements of the insurance industry to limit or reduce premiums. In fact, the insurers have no obligations whatsoever in this bill. The insurance companies can continue setting premiums at any level they desire. Does this sound logical? More important, do the promoters of the bill honestly believe that the insurance industry will treat the doctors fairly once damage limits are instituted?

The insurance companies lost billions of dollars in the stock-market downturn as well as the events of Sept. 11. The insurance companies, like all businesses, are trying to recoup their losses and increase their revenue in the most direct fashion — by increasing malpractice-insurance premiums. With no limit for such premiums, the bill does not guarantee doctors relief. Instead, the bill punishes the victims.

The House of Representatives has already passed this bill and sent it to the Senate. It will take up the bill at the end of the month. If you think that you, or your wife, or children are worth more than $250,000 for serious injuries, please call Sen. Charles Grassley and Sen. Tom Harkin and tell them to vote against this bill.

David Fulco? No!

Look, I'm not trying to be rude, but I would like to dispel a common misconception: I am not David Fulco, The Daily Iowan's film reviewer. It has been brought to my attention on numerous occasions that we share a resemblance; I, however, do not see it.

Though I do possess a wealth of knowledge about some movies, I have not seen Anger Management, and I would guess that Phone Booth has something to do with the dreamy young Colin Farrell, a phone booth, and probably some sassy-legged tart.

In summary, no, I am not David Fulco, and if anyone asks me what I thought of How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days, I'm going to tell them that they would be better off asking any girl I've recently dated.

State right in yielding to feds on OWI limit

Following the directive of the federal government, Iowa is tightening its drunk-driving laws. With a vote of 46-4, the state Senate passed a bill to lower the legal blood-alcohol limit from .10 to .08, and Gov. Tom Vilsack has promised to sign the bill into law.

Had Iowa refused to lower the limits, the federal government would have withheld $47 million in federal highway funding. In essence, the federal government put the screws to state lawmakers, and while some did not appreciate the gesture, in the end they made the right decision.

Although no one is championing the cause of drunk drivers, the new laws have their critics. Many state lawmakers around the country resent the federal government's heavy-handed enforcement of lower limits. Any state refusing to comply loses out on millions of dollars in federal aid. Stewart Iverson, the Iowa Senate majority leader, called it simple blackmail.

In South Carolina, legislators were so opposed to the forced compliance that they wrote a special amendment into their lower-limit measure. If the bill is passed and signed into law, then the attorney general for South Carolina is urged to sue the federal government for railroading the state into passing it. After hearing about this, some Iowa lawmakers resentful about the federal government's intrusion have urged the Iowa attorney general to join with South Carolina.

While lawmakers may resent the federal government's enthusiastic enforcement, the critics are missing the bigger picture. Drunk driving is a major problem, killing someone every 30 minutes and injuring someone every two minutes. It is curious that South Carolina is fighting the measure so viciously, considering that it leads the nation in drunk-driving fatalities. South Carolinians would do well to swallow a little pride and simply give the law a try to see if it works. Here in Iowa, the possible benefits outweigh indignation.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, a lower limit could result in a 7 percent decline in fatal crashes involving alcohol in Iowa. However, if even one life were saved, that would be reason enough to swallow our pride and let the federal government push us around a little. Legislators should seriously consider the costs in human lives when deciding whether to sue the government over a little underhanded encouragement.

Lowering the legal blood-alcohol limit to .08 is a measure that could save lives and prevent serious injury to the people of Iowa. Passing the law by more than a 10-1 margin shows that our state senators know and understand the problems that drunk driving is causing in our state and around the country.

They may not like the way the federal government tossed around threats and undermined the rights of states, but they were able to overcome their indignation and do the right thing.

A tale of death and resurrection in the springtime

In June, several men I do not know will come to burn down my house. Upon first hearing this news, it struck my roommates and me as, well, unsettling — until the wisest among us (the only female roommate) explained that the men are from the New York Fire Department. This was comforting. Besides, we will have vacated our much-beloved residence by then, and it is, after all, better to burn out than fade away.

Still, there is something that hurts about this loss, as there is something that hurts about every loss that comes on the cusp of spring.

On Saturday afternoon, with fire-drill premonitions on my mind, I stepped out into the roaring rain in delicate dress shoes and slogged through the muddy wasteland that is our yard.

"Yard" is perhaps not the best word to use. "Yard" implies grass, and green, and groomed. "Yard" is something proper, kind of English maybe. That which surrounds our house is the American version: wilderness, weeds, trash, some concrete, stumps mixed with shoots, rich earth thick with potential bloom. It is construction, a plot. Yes, we'll call it a plot.

Our landlord has been doing some plotting. He is going to build something new when the men from New York come to burn our house down. In my dreams, it is something beautiful. Something Frank Lloyd Wright would be proud of, a modern marvel, as harmonious with the nature that encircles it as it is with the minds and bodies that will inhabit it. More likely, it will be a duplex, one more American Iowa City plot duped. But I hold on to my dream.

I slogged through the soggy soil in delicate dress shoes to the waiting car. Closing the rear driver's-side door, heavy, I shook like a dog, and it was silent inside. We drove to Cedar Rapids for the funeral.

Joyce Bernal was a wonderful woman. She drove trucks before most of us knew her. She worked desks with us, steadfast, holding things together. More than anything, Joyce loved her grandchildren, Christopher and Isabella. She visited them most weekends, always offering me — and any other student who lived anywhere within several hundred miles of her daughter and son-in-law's house in Illinois — a ride home when she would go. (Several hundred miles probably didn't seem too far to a woman who'd driven trucks in a past life.) I wish now that I'd taken her up on one of those weekend rides; I just assumed she'd be around for a while longer, that there'd always be time to catch up on the things all of us had done in past lives before we knew each other.

JESSE ELLIOT

It seemed they were washing the world on Saturday. It must have been too much for the heavens to hold, all that water and death and springtime. Had to let something go. I heard a few people complain, but mostly the drops were met with tranquil approval. Good for farmers. Good for the earth. Felt good on noses and shoulders. Free shower, a friend said. The sky was full of gifts.

In life, I thought as I stepped from the rain into the warm, orange, strangely comforting parlor of the funeral home, we live with the knowledge that several men — or women, or forces of nature, chaos, coincidence, fate — will come to burn us down someday relatively soon. Something new will rise in our place. It might be Frank Lloyd Wright; it might be a duplex made of cheap materials with little love. Either way, in the meantime we should live like ... well, like Joyce did, I guess — like it feels good on noses and shoulders.

And so, in the last few weeks, with the onset of spring and the prospect of a burning, my roommates and I have taken to doing with our cherished residence what we can while we can. We are decorating the walls — in paper, in poem, in permanent marker (even as we acknowledge that the idea of a marked permanence is little more than a pleasant illusion). And in memory of Joyce Bernal, I would like to open the floor (and the ceiling) to public comment.

If there's something you've always wanted to see written on a wall — a word, a phrase, a name, a thought — I encourage you to place a call to our beloved house and home at (319) 358-7586. There, you will find an answering machine waiting to hear what you've been dying to say. (And, yes, I do realize that by doing this I am opening myself up to — and indeed almost eagerly anticipating — all kinds of "your column sucked, I'd like to burn down your house myself" sorts of calls. But let this only provide yet another reason for those with any slightly more positive or engaging dialogue to pick up the telephone.) You will say something long or short, large or small. Whatever it may be, it will go up on the walls.

In June, when several men come to Iowa City to burn down a house, our words will rise into the air together, piggybacking plumes of smoke all the way to who-knows-where. We will give something back to the sky. We will send a message to Joyce, or to our favorite truck driver or farmer out across the plain, or to no one in particular. We will live, like it was springtime all over again.

Pulling astonishment out of a hat

BY DAVE STRACKANY
THE DAILY IOWAN

Nate Staniforth had just finished screening a short documentary he made. The film, a half hour in length, surveyed examples of Staniforth's magicianship from levitation to escape from life-threatening situations to telekinesis to a host of analogical card tricks.

The film was entertaining and the tricks impressive, but his face read of dejection when he looked up from the projector console he'd been futzing with. Warily, he asked, "How do I get them here?"

Staniforth is a magician. He is a student of history and theater at the UI. He is a sophomore. Outside of his ability to levitate objects, seemingly teleport cards, and survive being chained, weighted, and tossed into the freezing Iowa River, his philosophy is his most endearing characteristic. Above and beyond the mechanics of illusion, he believes in magic as a powerful and a positive tool. Astonishment, Staniforth stresses, is a valuable, underrated, and enriching feeling — one that cannot be acquired in the everyday, or even in film. Magic is its only provocateur.

The film Staniforth screened, like his live performance, proves him to be more than a card-counting Rico Suavé with two scoops of dexterity. He is charming, charismatic, but moreover, he treats magic as art — an important distinction. I wouldn't be surprised if in 10 years, Staniforth ranked among the greatest magicians around, vis-à-vis David Blaine, Copperfield, and even Houdini. Such is the level of astonishment that his tricks and his mentality engender.

But despite this, it was not by way of magic that all but 20 seats of the auditorium were empty at the screening April 15. Staniforth said it's a tragic track of deprecation, concession, and resignation to pulling rabbits out of top-hats at birthday parties by generations of "magicians."

Monika Pawlak/The Daily Iowan

Nate Staniforth will perform at Public Space One (above the Deadwood) tonight and Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"The history of magic," the young magician explained with regret, "hasn't been a roller coaster; it's been a merry-go-round. All magic has been is, 'Look at me, I'm gonna make this appear or disappear.' But like in any rock concert, it's not about the songs individually, just like it's not about the tricks. The real value in it lies in the way it can make people feel."

His voice, low and even, began lightly fanning the bases of a prodigious life spent molding illusion, charisma, and feats of the impossible into art. He describes his first encounter as an 8-year-old in Ames with J.R.R. Tolkien's The Hobbit and how the mystic Gandalf imbued in him an infectious curiosity with astonishment. His right hand, like the twitching tail of a nervous cat, cuts, shuffles, and bridges a deck of cards as he delineates his trips to the library as a kid: checking out books on Houdini; studying and practicing the dexterous rudiments of sleight of hand and the nuanced graces of magicianship. And after 12 years of study, including an apprenticeship in Las Vegas with a man he describes as "arguably the greatest magician in the world," Staniforth has become a master in his own right.

For all in attendance, his tricks — performed on the streets, the screen, or the stage — inspire gleeful screams, incredulous yelps, smiles, and laughter like clockwork.

Here in Nate Staniforth I see the very essence of the philosophy he seeks to inspire in others. More so than any "prestidigitous" display, it is his persona that is most astonishing. As miraculous as his illusions are (and they are, believe me), the dancer, in Staniforth's case, outdoes the dance. His magnetic personality, commanding stage presence, and Midwestern good looks make his appearances (and disappearances) akin to incredible songs you want all your friends to hear or a new movie you're convinced no person can do without seeing.

To add a little astonishment to your day and life, see and experience Nate Staniforth at Public Space One (on Dubuque Street above the Deadwood) today or Tuesday at 8 p.m. As with most PSONE events, a donation of $3 is suggested for admittance to help maintain the nonprofit, volunteer-run, art and theater venue.

Double agent hurt FBI

BY DANNY POLLOCK
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Katrina Leung was a Republican political activist, a prominent Southern California businesswoman, and an FBI informer paid $1.7 million for her work and expenses over two decades.

It was in the latter role, authorities allege, that she developed sexual relationships with two FBI counterintelligence agents and was able to steal U.S. secrets for the Chinese government.

As the suspected double agent now sits in a federal detention center, authorities are trying to determine just how much damage she did to U.S. intelligence efforts and weapons programs.

"This is not a pretty story about our intelligence community," said Michael Greenberger, a former Justice Department official in the Clinton administration who is now a law professor at the University of Maryland Center for Health and Homeland Security. "If this is the quality of intelligence going on, it raises real questions."

Court documents accuse Leung, 49, of a long list of severe security breaches, including tipping off Chinese authorities to U.S. agents looking for nuclear secrets in China and revealing names of FBI agents investigating Chinese spying in this country.

FBI Director Robert Mueller has said the handling of intelligence assets needs to be overhauled to prevent such breaches in the future. And court documents filed by the U.S. attorney's office say the FBI will have to reassess all of its actions and intelligence analyses involving Leung's activities.

"A central goal of this reassessment will be to determine which foreign counterintelligence investigations have been thwarted or compromised by her communication of information to her People's Republic of China handlers as well as by disinformation she may have provided her FBI handlers," according to the documents filed by the U.S. attorney's office.

Among the accusations against Leung is one that she gave Chinese officials the name of an FBI agent who went to China in 1992 after investigating a critical nuclear-espionage case in this country in the 1980s.

"Such surveillance could well reveal FBI counterintelligence techniques and persons of interest to the FBI," the court documents state.

The documents do not name the man, but several law-enforcement officials confirmed to the Associated Press that he was William Cleveland Jr., the lead FBI agent in an investigation that targeted an alleged attempt by China to steal neutron-bomb secrets. Cleveland had been having an affair with Leung since 1988, according to the records.

The court filings contain limited details about the extent of Leung's activities. But in denying her bail, U.S. Magistrate Judge Victor Kenton said Leung could be a flight risk because she had access to about $872,000 in U.S. bank accounts and perhaps millions more in foreign banks.

Leung was arrested April 9 and charged with unauthorized copying of national-defense information with the intent to injure the United States or benefit a foreign nation.

Fraud alleged in Nigeria vote

BY GLENN MCKENZIE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

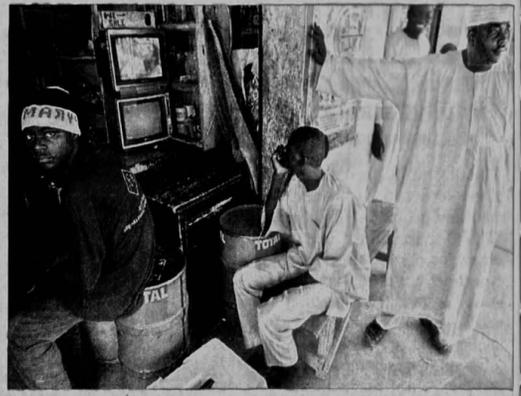

LAGOS, Nigeria — President Olusegun Obasanjo easily led his main challenger in early returns Sunday from presidential elections marred by scattered violence and allegations of fraud.

With more than 9 million votes counted in 16 of Nigeria's 36 states and the federal capital territory, Obasanjo had 75 percent of the votes, compared with 21 percent for Muhammadu Buhari, a former ally.

Opposition leaders accused the government of rigging the ballot and threatened mass protests.

"This is a massive rigging. The masses are going to react. They will fight," Francis Erube, an official in Buhari's party, told the Associated Press. "Obasanjo's people want to mess up this country. But the people are not going to allow them to do that."

Nigeria has never had a successful transition from one civilian government to another. The West African country, the continent's most populous, is one of the world's largest oil exporters but is desperately poor and has a history of coups and unrest.

Nineteen candidates — including three former generals — are challenging Obasanjo, a former military leader-turned-statesman whose election four years ago brought 15 years of brutal military rule to an end. Buhari, his main rival, is a former junta leader and former ally whose relationship with Obasanjo began souring following Obasanjo's election.

Election observers said they were concerned about the possibility of fraud during the count.

"The trouble is not the voting process, which has been peaceful," said Festus Okoye, the leader of the Transitional Monitoring Group, which has 10,000 election observers. "It is the counting of votes that concerns us."

During voting April 19, soldiers opened fire at a polling booth in the oil-producing Niger Delta, killing six people.

U.S. officials ponder reprocessing claims

BY GEORGE GEDDA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. officials are examining broadcasts from North Korea about the status of more than 8,000 spent nuclear fuel rods to establish whether the announcement presages production of plutonium-based nuclear weapons.

The English-language announcement broadcast for foreign consumption on April 18 said the country was already "successfully reprocessing" the rods, but a subsequent U.S. government translation of the original Korean-language version suggested that the country was only at "the point of the reprocessing operation."

The State Department is evaluating the contradictory claims, leaving up in the air for the time being whether U.S., North Korean, and Chinese representatives will meet as planned in Beijing to discuss North Korea's nuclear-weapons programs.

In another twist, North Korea appeared to offer South Korea an olive branch and proposed high-level talks for later in the month. North Korea had suspended several planned talks with the South, including a Cabinet-level meeting last week amid tension over its suspected nuclear-weapons programs.

Reprocessing the spent fuel rods could create a crisis because the country could have six to eight additional nuclear weapons in a few months on top of the one or two it already is believed to possess. As U.S. officials see it, this could dramatically alter the political landscape in Northeast Asia and possibly lead to an arms race.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher noted on April 18 that reprocessing by North Korea would be regarded as an "extremely serious matter."

The English-language version of North Korea's policy, broadcast by the Korean Central News Agency, said: "We are successfully reprocessing more than 8,000 spent fuel rods at the final phase."

A State Department official called into question that claim, saying there was no indication that any reprocessing had taken place, a comment apparently based on information from satellite photographs.

CERVICAL DYSPLASIA STUDY

Healthy non-pregnant females age 18 to menopause with a diagnosis of LSIL or ASC-US are invited to participate in a 2-3 month study. In this study we will be evaluating the safety of an intravaginal experimental gel in women with mild dysplasia. This study would require that participants come to the clinic a minimum of 8-10 times including some hospital stays. Participants must be currently using either Depo-Provera or an oral contraceptive pill.

- All study-related exams and hospital expenses will be provided.
- Compensation provided.

For more information on how you can participate, contact Kristi Followwill at 356-4602 between the hours of 8:00 and 4:00, or e-mail at kristen-followwill@uiowa.edu, or visit our web site at: <http://obgyn.uihc.uiowa.edu/>

Healthy nonpregnant females between the ages of 16 to 23 are invited to participate in a 4 year study (up to 8 visits). The research will compare a study approved quadrivalent HPV vaccine to placebo to determine if the vaccine will prevent HPV infection. Participants must agree to use an effective birth control method through month 7 of the study.

- Routine gynecologic care, and pap smears are provided.
- Certain forms of contraception provided.
- Compensation provided.

Self sets sail for new coaching job

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Bill Self arrived on Kansas' campus and joined basketball players for a meal Sunday amid reports that he agreed to leave Illinois and coach the Jayhawks.
 Kansas scheduled a news conference for today at 1 p.m. CDT to "introduce its men's basketball coach."
 Jessica Johansen, the Jayhawks' equipment manager, said Self ate on campus Sunday with players, boosters, and athletics staff. "I met him briefly," said Johansen, who wouldn't say whether Self was introduced as Kansas' new coach during the meal at the school's athletics center.
 ESPN.com and the Web sites for the Kansas City Star, the Lawrence Journal-World, and the News-Gazette of Champaign, Ill. — all citing anonymous sources — reported that Self accepted the job.

IOWA FOOTBALL SPRING GAME

One soggy afternoon

Annual game disrupted by rainy weather

BY DONOVAN BURBA
 THE DAILY IOWAN

The Iowa Hawkeyes' Big Ten championship banner hung limp on its flagpole atop Kinnick Stadium April 19 — but only briefly. Minutes after the flag was raised, the stadium was hit with whipping winds and torrential rain, sending Iowa back into the locker room and thousands of Hawkeye fans scurrying for shelter.

After a 15-minute delay, the team returned (along with a few hundred soggy faithfuls) to play Iowa's annual spring game, which ended in a 0-0 tie. The result confirmed what coach Kirk Ferentz already knew: Hawkeye defense is now the team's meal ticket. The first-team defense, playing for the black squad against the second-team offense, dominated. Jonathan Babineaux led the attack, recording two bone-crushing hits in the backfield.

"We're just looking at the opposite of where our team was a year ago," Ferentz said. "We're hoping that the experience we have coming back on defense will give us a chance to be pretty good on that side, just like we thought coming into the [2002] season our offense could carry us." Iowa's defense, which was second in the nation against the run in 2002, lost just four starters, compared with seven on the offensive side.

 The biggest hole is at quarterback, where Nate Chandler takes over for Heisman trophy runner-up Brad Banks. Chandler, who threw just 20 passes in 2002, struggled on April 19, going 6-15 for 52 yards. Chandler was unable to get the black team into the end zone, even though Ferentz put an extra five minutes on the clock at the end of regulation. Still, the offense couldn't score on four attempts from the seven-yard line.

 To his credit, the 6-7 junior refused to chalk his struggles up to the inclement weather. "Obviously, we weren't throwing as well as we'd like to," said a still-soaked Chandler. "I don't put that up to the weather; who knows what it's going to be like during the game? We need to get better in all conditions."

Pair of Hawkeye seniors nail down win against Ohio State

BY KATIE LOW
 THE DAILY IOWAN

In a fitting end to the season, the Iowa women's tennis team edged out Ohio State on Sunday with help from its two departing seniors.

Steffi Hoch and Cassie Haas were the last two singles players left on the court as the rest of the team looked to them to give the Hawkeyes a 4-3 win.

At No. 2, Haas was the first of the two to win after she pulled out a close first set and took the second with ease (7-6 [3], 6-1). Hoch finished off the win with an impressive win at No. 1 (6-2, 6-1).

"You couldn't have asked for a better sports movie today," Iowa coach Paul Wardlaw said. "They both produced as they have been doing all season."

Hoch said she was happily surprised by the win that she regarded as a total team effort.

"Ohio State beat Northwestern and they beat us, 7-0, so we didn't expect to win today," she said. "It was our last match and we were all on the same page. Everyone was fighting for wins today."

Other Hawkeyes to muster wins against a tough Buckeye team were sophomore Gloria Okino and junior Deni Alexandrova.

Okino and Alexandrova both easily took out their opponents.

The Hawkeyes (7-12 overall, 5-5 Big Ten) also notched a 4-3 victory over Penn State on April 19. The team dropped the doubles point but was able to come back and win four of six singles matches for the win.

At No. 2 Hoch easily defeated Penn State's Leigh Ann Merryman (6-2, 6-2). Freshman Chelsea Glynn won a two-setter at No. 4 (7-5, 6-2). Alexandrova and junior Jennifer Hodgman both pulled out three-setters to give the Hawkeyes the victory.

Wardlaw said he was happy to see his team pulling out the close wins.

"The kids are playing well," he said. "It's a fine line every weekend. All the Big Ten teams are good."

He said that these wins will be helpful for the team's morale going into the Big Ten Tournament next weekend in Champaign, Ill.

"They give us a lot of confidence," he said. "It reminds us that we can beat anyone. We know that we can play with anyone, but this shows we can beat anyone."

Wardlaw said the Hawkeyes will find out today who will be their first opponent in the tournament.

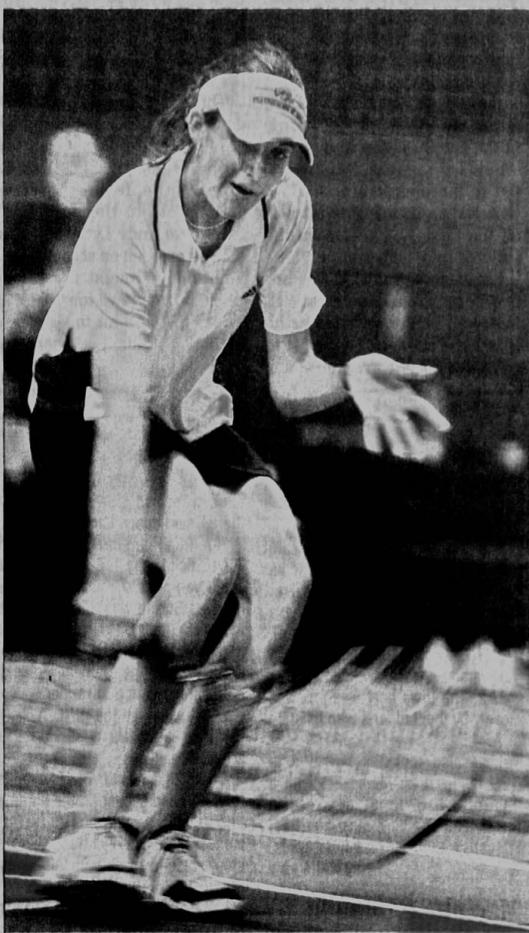

Because of the two last-minute wins, the team may be granted a first-round bye.

The Hawkeyes will travel to the University of Illinois on Thursday for the opening round of the women's tennis Big Ten Tournament.

Softball sweeps series; Birocci hurls one-hitter against Indiana

BY TODD BROMMELKAMP
 THE DAILY IOWAN

Iowa's Lisa Birocci just missed pitching a no-hitter on April 18, settling instead for her eighth one-hit gem of the season.

"Sometimes [the hits] drop," she said. "Sometimes they don't."

Birocci made the rather reflective comment Sunday on a day when balls seemingly found nowhere else to settle than in the gloves of Iowa defenders as she shut down Indiana for an 8-0 victory in six innings at Pearl Field.

The Des Moines sophomore, who hurled seven no-hitters and three perfect games as a high-school senior, finally experienced the satisfaction of attaining a no-hitter at the collegiate level.

"It feels good," Birocci said, dressed in street clothes and nonchalantly eating string cheese after her teammates took Sunday's second contest with the Hoosiers, 9-0. "But those other games with just one hit felt just as good."

Iowa is now 33-10, with an 11-2 record in Big Ten play, and is in sole possession of first place following a pair of losses over the weekend by Michigan.

Indiana put just two balls out of the infield against Birocci, who two days prior had taken a perfect game in to the seventh inning against Purdue before Angi Roembke scratched out an infield single. She settled for a 2-0 shutout victory instead, following that with a 9-0 white-washing of the Boilermakers on April 19 before pitching Sunday's gem.

"It's good to see her confidence grow," said Iowa coach Gayle Bleivins.

Birocci had struggled mightily in recent weeks, including a horrendous start April 16 against Iowa State where she lasted just two innings and walked five batters. Birocci called that start "a wake-up call" and responded by tossing

Iowa team remains in slump

BY KELLY BEATON
THE DAILY IOWAN

Fans making trips to Iowa baseball games are wondering if the sun ever shines over Duane Banks Field.

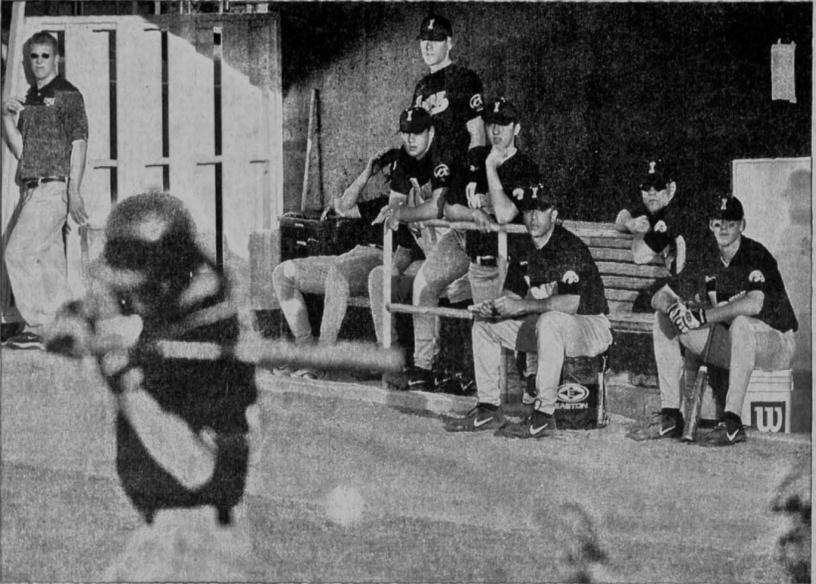

Both figuratively and literally, a storm cloud has hung over Iowa's home this season. The Hawkeyes brought a 9-18 overall mark into last weekend, including a 2-7 record at home. They also had been forced to endure numerous delayed and canceled games because of poor weather, a stretch that continued this weekend — the April 19 double-header was canceled because of rain.

The Hawkeyes continued to encounter hard luck, dropping two of three games in an abbreviated series to conference rival Purdue. Iowa lost 9-5 to Purdue on April 18 before a rally on Sunday for a doubleheader split. The Hawkeyes lost game 1, 18-6, but came back in the nightcap for a 5-4 win.

The Iowa pitching staff got roughed up in a wild game two of Sunday's double-header, giving up 18 runs on 19 hits. Several Boilermakers enjoyed career days, led by first baseman John Hunter, who tallied a career-high seven RBIs with his 4-4 performance at the plate.

Game 1 was filled with several bizarre moments, beginning in the bottom of the first, when second-base umpire Bill Lopina fell to his knees in a shallow centerfield, requiring assistance off the field. Lopina reportedly suffered from dehydration.

Later in the game, after Purdue batted around to the tune of five runs in the top of the fourth, Hawkeye reliever Chris Maliszewski got ejected for some unflattering remarks to home-plate umpire Jon Garlits.

"That's mental toughness," said Iowa coach Scott Broghamer. "He lost his cool and said something he shouldn't have said. You have to do your talking on the field and just get the job done."

The Hawkeyes did get the job done in game one of Sunday's games, led by Jeff Gremley. With the game tied at four runs apiece, the Iowa shortstop stepped up to the plate with teammate Andy Lytle sitting in scoring position on second base.

Gremley brought the Duane Banks Field crowd to its feet, as he laced a base hit to right centerfield, bringing Lytle home for an Iowa win.

"My thought process was to take it to right field and try to get it into the gap," Gremley said afterwards. "The [pitcher] had me out front with a change-up in, so I kept my hands in and was able to spray it over the second baseman's head."

Gremley was a bright spot for Iowa throughout the series, making several strong throws in the field at shortstop, and going 6-13 at the plate with a 6 RBIs.

Despite their strong showing in the second game of the series, the Hawkeyes' two losses emphasized a problem that has plagued Iowa throughout the 2003 campaign. The Hawkeyes have frequently allowed their opponents to explode in one or two innings, forcing them to play catch-up from significant deficits.

"[On Sept. 18], one inning took us out of it, and again [in game two of Sunday's double-header], where I think they sent up like 10 batters in one inning, and we didn't even get one out," said Broghamer.

"You can't do that against good teams. We battle, but you get in such a big hole sometimes, and you can't dig yourself out. We've got to get that figured out. We've got to be able to get through it without giving up five or six runs."

The Hawkeyes stay at home for their next game on Wednesday night against Western Illinois, starting at 6 p.m.

Rowers collect three titles in Minnesota

The Iowa women's rowing team put in a strong performance at its Big Ten double dual against Minnesota and Wisconsin at Lake Phalen in St. Paul, Minn. on April 19.

The Hawkeyes took first place in the Varsity-4 race with a time of 7:27.2. The Iowa boat was followed closely by the Badgers, who finished in 7:28.5.

Iowa also took the Varsity-8 in 6:39 followed by Minnesota with a time of 6:42.3. Iowa dominated in the second Varsity-8 race, defeating Wisconsin by nearly seven seconds.

Men place three in top 10 in California

The Hawkeye men's track team was divided this weekend. A portion of the team was in Walnut, Calif., for the Mt. SAC Relays, while another group competed at the UNI Twilight Invitational.

Team members traveled a great distance to bring back only three top-10 finishes and some competitors did achieve personal bests.

Among those who finished in the top 10 was Joe Welter in the 5,000 meters. The senior took ninth place at 14:42.32 seconds. His time was 20 seconds off leader Irlk de Here of Texas at El Paso.

The 400-meter relay team posted a time of 41.00 on its way to a third-place finish.

WEEKEND ROUNDUPS

"It was really kind of cool because there were two USA all-star teams there," said coach Larry Wiecezorek.

Running personal bests were Tony Leick in the 110-meter hurdles and Ryan Strang in the 400-meter hurdles. Strang was 31st, and Leick took 17th. Matt O'Hollearn also ran a personal best in the 800 meters. Coaches said they felt they discovered an excellent 800 runner.

Meanwhile, at the UNI Twilight, the Iowa throwers continued their streak of success.

Chris Voller and Brad Daufeldt took first and second in the hammer throw. Voller's mark of 190 feet, 11 inches was a personal best. Daufeldt took second place with his discus throw of 172-10.

Women cut off by rain

Competition at the Kansas Relays was cut short this weekend for the Iowa women's track team because of inclement weather. After a postponement in events, coaches decided to take the team out of the meet.

"Sprinters just don't perform well in the cold and wet," said Iowa coach James Grant.

The team did compete on April 17-18. Coming into the meet, coaches were looking for some individuals to qualify for the NCAA regionals, a goal the team fell short of.

The Hawkeyes were fairly strong in April 17 distance events. Sophia Chow garnered second place in the 800 meters with a time of 2:13 minutes, 38 seconds. The mark set a personal best this year.

Arens in the 3,000 meters with a time of 10:11.23, about four seconds off the pace of winner, Courtney Christensen of North Dakota State.

On April 18, a host of sprinters were set to advance to the finals on April 19. Aisha James took second place in the 100-meter preliminaries. In the 400, Sarah Steffen and Keely Huber advanced with second- and fifth-place finishes.

The 1,600-meter relay team was unable to improve upon its previous best time, 3:42.52, which qualified them for regionals.

"Whatever we do, we're going to try to put the best teams together for Drake," Grant said.

Men split on the road

The Iowa men's tennis team split two Big Ten matches in its last weekend of dual meets before the Big Ten Tournament.

The Hawkeyes posted a strong 5-2 win over Penn State on April 19 but were handed a disappointing 7-0 defeat at the hands of No. 23 Ohio State on Sunday.

"I think things went pretty well," Iowa coach Steve Houghton said. "It was a tough trip, and we were glad to come away from it with a split."

Three of the Hawkeye seniors did particularly well against Penn State. Stuart Waters, Hunter Skogman, and Pete Rose all recorded wins at Nos. 1-3. Waters pulled out a three-setter for his win (6-1, 4-6, 6-1), while Skogman and Rose both secured dominating wins with scores of (6-2, 6-4) and (6-4, 6-2) respectively. Johan Bergenas was also victorious at No. 4, (6-2, 6-4). The Hawkeyes also grabbed the doubles point with wins at Nos. 1 and 3.

"Penn State is a good team, and that was a quality win," Houghton said.

The Hawkeyes (7-10 overall, 3-7 Big Ten) were unable to do much damage to a strong Ohio State team but were close to winning a few of the singles matches and were victorious at No. 1 doubles.

"The simple fact is that [Ohio State] is just better than we are," Houghton said. "They are extremely good and one of the better teams in the Big Ten."

Houghton said he is pleased with what his team has done after a difficult season. The Hawkeyes had bad luck with scheduling and had to play seven of 10 Big Ten matches on the road. Houghton also said he thinks inexperience contributed to some of the team's difficulties.

Men's team cleans up against Indiana, ISU

The Iowa men's club rowing team finished a weekend competing against Indiana and Iowa State, with a first-place finish in the men's Novice 8+, finishing almost five seconds ahead of the Hoosiers.

The men's novice 4+ race ended with the Hawkeyes 5.21 seconds behind Indiana's boat, and the Novice 4+ race ended the event because of weather. Iowa defeated Indiana, despite stopping for 10 seconds because of a rudder malfunction.

Pitcher Lisa Birocci throws a pitch against Wisconsin last month. On Sunday, she tossed a one-hitter.

Iowa wins a perfect blend

shutouts in her next three starts. In 19 innings of work over three days she allowed just seven hits.

"She was a whole different person at the beginning of this series," said Blevins. "It was very pleasing to see."

The first of Iowa's two victories on Sunday was the perfect blend of Birocci's pitching, stellar defense, and a potent offense. Birocci made sure the other eight players on the diamond were recognized for their contributions.

"When a pitcher is hitting her spots, the defense and the offense are going to be a ton more effective," she said.

The Hawkeyes played errorless softball in all four games against the Boilermakers and Hoosiers, but in Birocci's outing Sunday, their play in the field seemed to stand out just as much as that of their teammate's in the pitching circle. Leftfielder Lindsey Bashor made a diving catch to prevent a bloop single, and shortstop Kristin Johnson pulled several balls out of the hole and fired to first for outs.

"It makes it easier when our pitchers get ahead [in the count]," Johnson said. "Obviously we want to make every play. I thought this was really good for Lisa."

Johnson's bat contributed just as much as her stellar defense, poking a pair of home runs for two of Iowa's 14 hits. The Hawkeyes plated three runs in the first and fourth innings before adding single spots in the fifth and sixth. A base hit to left by Christina Schmaltz in the sixth scored Johnson and ended the game on account of the eight-run deficit.

Schmaltz, who was 4-of-4 in Iowa's 9-0 victory over Purdue on April 19, broke the school record for triples in a season when she smacked an RBI three-bagger in the top of the sixth inning during Sunday's nightcap. The triple, her eighth of the season, broke the previous record which had stood since 1981.

"They just kind of happen," the junior second baseman said.

Ali Arnold followed Birocci's outing with a masterful performance of her own, allowing four hits and walking none. Lindsey Bashor was 2-of-4 at the plate with a solo home run and a run scoring double that brought in two teammates.

The Hawkeyes have allowed just 10 hits and no runs over their last four games while collecting 40 safeties and tallying 28 scores of their own.

Receivers snag rave reviews

SPRING

Matt Bohnet were a combined 2-4 for the gold squad.

Prior to the game itself, the Hawkeyes ran a series of situational drills, which provided far more excitement than the contest that followed. Wideout Ramon Ochoa made a sensational one-handed catch on 50-yard pass from Chandler, bringing the members of a sparse crowd to their feet.

Ed Hinkel followed three plays later with a 55-yard reception, burning backup cornerback Adolphus Shelton. "What a beautiful grab that was today," said Ferentz of Ochoa's snag. "He's done those kinds of things all spring."

The offensive line, another question mark after losing four starters, performed well, although the depth that made the 2002 unit so strong was glaring in its absence.

The second-team unit was a revolving door, and both Bohnet and Manson were "sacked" several times during the drills — in which tackling the quarterback was forbidden. Perhaps the biggest barrier — recapturing the chemistry that came with having five senior linemen last year — is already showing signs of falling.

"In the beginning of the spring, we were all new and hadn't played as one unit before," said starting right tackle Pete McMahon, himself just a sophomore. "We're getting going now; everybody's working well together."

The Hawkeyes open their regular-season schedule on Aug. 30 at Kinnick Stadium against Miami of Ohio. Iowa defeated the Redhawks in 2002, 29-24.

Phone thrower faces assault charge

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. — A 24-year-old man accused of throwing a cell phone that hit Texas right fielder Carl Everett in the back of the head during a game faces a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Juan-Carlos Covarrubias-Serrano, of Palo Alto, was arrested during the Rangers' 12-2 loss to the Oakland Athletics on April 19 after fans pointed him out to authorities, and after Everett alerted stadium security.

The phone was thrown from the second deck of the Coliseum, said David Rinetti, the A's vice president of stadium operations. Covarrubias-Serrano was intoxicated, Rinetti said, and will be arraigned on Tuesday.

He was being held on $15,000 bail.

"I don't think this guy wanted to wake up on Easter morning in prison," Rinetti said. "Hopefully he learned a valuable lesson."

Security was heightened for Sunday's game. Rinetti said staffing was increased and a uniformed police officer was stationed at the visitor's bullpen. In addition, an in-house video monitoring system was being used to monitor the right-field area.

Everett was hit four days after umpire Laz Diaz was attacked by a fan at U.S. Cellular field in Chicago during a White Sox-Royals game.

Sandy Alderson, the vice president of baseball operations, flew from the New York area to Oakland early Sunday to deal with the issue.

Alderson said he hopes fan violence is not becoming a trend.

"I think we've had fan incursions over the years on the field," Alderson said before Sunday's game. "Typically, they're not serious. As they become more frequent there is a chance they will become more serious. We want to stop these things before they escalate."

"When they do happen, we have to set an example for anyone else with the remote idea of doing something like this."

Everett plans to press charges. When asked if he was satisfied with the beefed-up security, Everett said, "It always should have been that way."

"This crowd has always been surly," Everett said. "They throw stuff all the time."

NHL PLAYOFFS

Tampa Bay 2, Washington 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The road to the Lightning's first playoff series victory went through St. Louis.

Make that Martin St. Louis, who scored his fifth goal of the series 4:03 in the third overtime Sunday to give the Lightning a win.

The Lightning, after dropping the first two games at home, won four straight to win the best-of-seven series and advance in the playoffs for the first time in their 11-year history.

Tampa Bay's only previous post-season appearance came in 1996, when it lost 4-2 to Philadelphia. The third-seeded Lightning will play No. 2 New Jersey in the second round.

St. Louis scored on a power play after the Capitals were whistled for too many men.

Vancouver 4, St. Louis 3

ST. LOUIS — The Canucks didn't go away quietly. Now they're going home for Game 7.

Markus Naslund had a goal and two assists as the Canucks staved off elimination for the second-straight game, beating the Blues to force a decisive Game 7 in the first-round playoff series.

Mattias Ohlund had a goal and an assist for the Canucks, who scored two goals in each of the first two periods. Vancouver scored twice on the power play in the second period as the Blues repeatedly hurt themselves with ill-advised penalties.

The Blues made it interesting with third-period goals by Eric Boguniecki and Doug Weight.

Diamondbacks drop Cards in classic brawl

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — Rookie reliever Oscar Villarreal threw 2½ scoreless innings after starter Miguel Batista was ejected and David Dellucci had an RBI double in the fifth as the Diamondbacks beat the Cardinals, 1-0, on Sunday.

The Cardinals put runners on first and second with no outs in the ninth, but Matt Mantei recovered to strike out Scott Rolen and Miguel Cairo. After hitting J.D. Drew with a pitch, Mantei struck out Mike Matheny to end it and earn his second save.

Batista and Cardinals first baseman Tino Martinez were ejected after their fight precipitated a bench-clearing brawl in the fifth inning. Villarreal (1-0) struck out four and allowed one hit.

Boston 6, Toronto 5

BOSTON — Nomar Garciaparra led off the bottom of the ninth inning with a home run as the Boston Red Sox rallied from a five-run deficit.

Garciaparra, who tied the game at 5 with a two-run double in the seventh, connected on a 2-1 pitch in the ninth off Cliff Politte (0-2).

Pittsburgh 8, Chicago Cubs 2

PITTSBURGH — Salomon Torres pitched five shutout innings in relief of injured Pittsburgh starter Josh Fogg, and the Pirates ended the Cubs' five-game winning streak.

Sammy Sosa hit his 504th career homer to tie Eddie Murray for 17th place and put the Cubs ahead 2-0 in the first, but he left after being struck in the batting helmet by a Torres pitch in the fourth. Sosa looked dazed, but was not injured.

Baltimore 4, Tampa Bay 1

BALTIMORE — Melvin Mora homered, and Omar Daal allowed five hits over seven innings.

Daal (1-1), signed as a free agent in the offseason, won for the first time in four starts.

He allowed one run and retired 16 of his final 17 hitters.

Jorge Julio pitched a perfect ninth for his fifth save in seven chances.

Atlanta 8, Philadelphia 1

ATLANTA — Shane Reynolds gave up just two hits in 7½ innings, providing another boost to Atlanta's beleaguered rotation.

Reynolds, who was cut by Houston at the end of spring training, didn't give up a hit until the fifth and finally came out after giving up an RBI double to Tyler Houston in the eighth.

N.Y. Mets 7, Florida 4

NEW YORK — Vance Wilson hit a game-tying solo homer, and Mo Vaughn added a two-run single in a five-run seventh inning.

The Mets matched their season high in runs, taking a four-run lead into the ninth inning.

With the Marlins leading 3-2, manager Jeff Torborg lifted starter Josh Beckett, who allowed three hits and threw 107 pitches in six innings.

Colorado 8, San Diego 0

DENVER — Shawn Chacon and two relievers combined on the 21st shutout in Coors Field history as the Colorado Rockies beat the San Diego Padres on Sunday.

Jay Payton homered and drove in three runs for Colorado, which improved to 8-1 at home and swept a three-game series for the second time this season.

Chacon (3-0) allowed just two hits in the first five innings and struck out Sean Burroughs to end the sixth after San Diego loaded the bases.

Cleveland 7, White Sox 4

CHICAGO — Ellis Burks, Shane Spencer, and Karim Garcia homered.

Burks and Spencer hit consecutive home runs in the first inning, the first of the season for each, as Cleveland took a 3-0 lead. Garcia, who had three hits, homered in the third.

Jason Davis (2-2) allowed three runs and seven hits in 6½ innings for the Indians.

N.Y. Yankees 8, Minnesota 2

MINNEAPOLIS — Mike Mussina pitched seven strong innings.

Jason Giambi and Bernie Williams homered.

St. Louis's J.D. Drew lets the bat sail over the head of Arizona catcher Chad Moeller after reliever Matt Mantei hit Drew in the ninth.

Joe Torre got his 700th victory as manager of the Yankees, whose 15-3 start is the best in team history.

Mussina (4-0) allowed only five hits while the Yankees got a three-run homer in the first inning from Giambi and a solo shot in the third from Williams.

Milwaukee 5, Houston 4

MILWAUKEE — Curtis Leskanic won for the first time in nearly two years, and Keith Ginter drove in a career-high three runs.

Leskanic (1-0) pitched 1½ scoreless innings of one-hit relief with three walks and one strikeout.

Seattle 7, Anaheim 6

ANAHEIM, Calif. — John Olerud's second RBI single of the game broke a tie in the ninth inning and lifted the Mariners over the Angels.

Bret Boone, who gave the Mariners a 3-2 lead in the fifth with a solo homer, greeted Angels closer Troy

Percival (0-1) with a leadoff double in the ninth and scored on Olerud's hit to center that made it 6-5.

Cincinnati 7, Montreal 5

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Pinch-hitter Adam Dunn and Felipe Lopez hit consecutive home runs in the ninth inning and the Reds connected six times in all to beat the Expos.

Aaron Boone homered twice, Austin Kearns hit his major league-leading ninth shot, and Jose Guillen also launched a longball for the Reds. Dunn batted for Scott Sullivan (1-0) and hit his first career pinch-hit homer, connecting off Luis Ayala (1-1).

Kansas City 4, Detroit 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Desi Relaford scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth on Carlos Pena's throwing error.

The Royals extended the best start in franchise history to 14-3 and are 8-0 at Kauffman Stadium.

NBA PLAYOFFS Lakers attack T-wolves

L.A. Lakers 117, Minnesota 98

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Just like that, Kobe Bryant, Shaquille O'Neal, and Co. seized home-court advantage from the Timberwolves.

Bryant scored 28 of his 39 points in the first half, and O'Neal had 32 points and 10 rebounds to lead the three-time defending NBA champion Los Angeles past the Timberwolves in Game 1 of their first-round playoff series Sunday.

Kevin Garnett had 23 points, 14 rebounds, and seven assists, but he couldn't help the Timberwolves take advantage of the first home-court advantage in their history. Minnesota has been eliminated in the opening round the past six years.

Bryant, who shot 12-16 in the first half, dismissed the idea the Lakers would be vulnerable because they didn't secure the home court.

"I don't know what the big deal is about playing on the road. I've never seen fans scream loud enough to block my jump shot," he said.

Bryant was active at both ends, helping hold Wally Szczerbiak to 15 points on 5-9 shooting.

Orlando 99, Detroit 94

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — The NBA's leading scorer had his way with the league's best defense.

Tracy McGrady set a team playoff record with 43 points to help the Magic hold off the Pistons.

Six players tried to guard McGrady, who was 15-28 from the field and 10-12 from the line. He added seven rebounds.

Eighth-seeded Orlando led by 11 points with under 5 1/2 minutes left, but Detroit kept chipping away, using a 14-4 run to pull to 94-93 with about a minute to go.

McGrady made two free throws with 46.5 seconds left. Orlando's Gordan Giricek added two free throws 30 seconds later, after Detroit missed two shots in the lane.

Detroit's Richard Hamilton scored 28 points in his playoff debut. Chauncey Billups scored 21, and Cliff Robinson 19.

Ben Wallace, Detroit's lone All-Star, missed the last two weeks with an injured left knee but played 42 minutes. He altered McGrady's first two shots and drew a charge.

GOLF Love wins playoff hole

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Davis Love III chipped in on the final hole to force a playoff, then hit the flagstick with his approach on the fourth extra hole to defeat Woody Austin and win his fifth MCI Heritage on Sunday.

If anyone needed proof of Love's mastery over Harbour Town Golf Links, they got it here.

Trailing Austin by a stroke on the final hole, Love rolled in a wedge from 66 feet away to tie for the lead at 13-under 271. Then, after watching Austin miss makable putts for the victory on the second and third extra holes, Love struck a 6-iron that bounced off the pin and settled about 3 feet away.

Love lined up the putt, took one practice swing, and dropped it in, to the blares of boat horns in Calibogue Sound.

"There were a lot of bad shots out there," said Love, who earned his 17th PGA Tour victory and third this year. "It was a lot like my win at Pebble; I gutted it out."

Austin had his chances to win. He missed a 6-foot putt on the second playoff hole and a 3-footer on the third extra hole, both which would have given him the title.

Love, who won the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am and The Players Championship, joins Tiger Woods and Masters winner Mike Weir as three-time champions on tour this season.

And Love has no equal at Harbour Town. He was already the all-time champion with victories in 1987, 1991, 1992, and 1998, and is the tournament's leading money-winner, with better than $1.3 million. Nine of his last 12 rounds here — including all four this year — have been in the 60s.

quote of the day

The industry sues, and then the current administration does a poor job of defending itself or comes to a sweetheart settlement.
 — Kristen Boyles, a lawyer for Earthjustice, describing the Bush administration's practice of reshaping environmental policy by settling lawsuits brought by industry groups.

horoscopes

Monday, April 21, 2003 by Eugenia Last

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You'll be tense, anxious, and wanting to do everything quickly today, but if you aren't careful, minor mishaps will slow you down. Your quick wit will win you favors if you aren't impatient.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You will enjoy yourself if you sign up for a seminar or attend a meeting that deals with different philosophies. You will discover a hidden talent if you try your hand at a new hobby.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your financial future is looking brighter. An opportunity is present, but a sacrifice may be necessary. A better position may mean making a residential move.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You may be a little confused about love today. If you are single, choose your partner carefully; if you are in a relationship, ask direct questions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will get along well with your peers, especially those who are willing to work hard and do a little more than their share. Present your ideas; you will be appreciated for them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Check out self-improvement regimes or a coed fitness club in your community. The results you get will be spectacular, and you will meet interesting people at the same time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emotional issues may surface at home. Patience and understanding will be necessary. Make sure that you do your share of the work around the house.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get out with friends. Old romantic interests may try to get back into your life. Don't exaggerate or leave work unfinished.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Opportunities will develop if you have given your all at a professional level. Don't sell yourself short. Let your competitive nature take over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep a low profile today. Don't be too eager to let others know how you feel or what you're up to. This is not the time to make your move.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't spend money in hopes that you'll make yourself feel better. Your depression is due to a lack of funds. Set a budget, and you'll begin to feel better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A new friendship or partnership is likely to form if you discuss your plans and your ideas. Your open and sensitive nature will attract people who want to protect you.
