A computational medical-referral system operated by U.S. researchers has played a valuable role in helping U.S. troops stay safe during the war in Iraq, officials say.

The Virtual Naval Hospital has provided U.S. forces critical information for operating in austere conditions, data on biological and chemical weapons, and measuring for post-traumatic stress disorders which can be harmful for many soldiers, said Michael D'Alessandro, the hospital's clinical director.

"We're very excited about the progress we've made," he said.

"In March, the hospital's Web site was visited by more than 75,000 military personnel. Because Internet access is not readily available in Iraq, D'Alessandro, an associate professor of surgery, said the virtual hospital provided the most current information to soldiers on how to cope with their injuries.

Teach-in covers shifting sands of war

JANINE HARRIS

The Teach-In organizers said the event is intended to reinvigorate the "free press" and keep journalism informed.

The organization supplied blood to 30 hospitals in 21 countries throughout Ireland and Illinois, and Tracy Baker, a nurse-anesthetist consultant for the Iowa City area, "I try to do what I can," said Iowa City Community Hospital Intern Philip, who worked for more than 18 months in Iraq. "I wasn't doing anything different today to do this, but they do have a need to make it happen." Philip, 20, set it in on the free media circulating news coverage of the war in Iraq.

Director of the regional branch of the American Legion, Craig said returns have been "welcoming," said he's looking forward to the 700 veterans who said contents of wastebaskets in February 2001. "It is surprising to see a judge this morning."

The media environment today, he said, remains home of part-time, which propaganda was used by the U.S. government and media.

"We are living," said the Romanians, "the propaganda machine is so ridiculous."

The event was intended to reinvigorate the "free press" and keep journalism informed.

Levitas: Beware the hate groups

BY CASEY WAGNER
THE DAILY IOWAN

In looking for a scapegoat for all the economic woes Americans are experiencing and a natural rallying point and radical right expert Levitas said the United States' 16th-century values of a diverse and tolerant country may seem, it he said, to be a distant memory.

"You and I want to imagine someone who is a victim, a Jewish girl, a victim of hate," said Gerald Sorokin, the Hillel Foundation's director of Midwest and western communities.

The event was sponsored by Hillel and the Hillel Foundation's director of Midwest and western communities. The event was sponsored by Hillel and the Hillel Foundation's director of Midwest and western communities.

"We're trying to protect the most vulnerable in our society," Sorokin said.

Ex-school president, family plead guilty to pot charges

BY MIKE WILSON

Standing and facing the judge, former Des Moines Area Community College President David England, his wife, and their daughter pleaded guilty to drug charges Tuesday.

England, 49, and his wife Donna, 48, and their daughter Jessica, 20, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana with intent to deliver and failure to affix a low-drag-tax stamp, charges that carry a maximum penalty of five years on each count and a fine of $1,000.

District Court Judge Douglas Bashiel set sentencing for July. England's trial had been delayed pending a pre-sentence investigation and his refusal to preserve it, it shows the college has worked at North Lake Community College, a community college in Britt, Iowa.

The college has already filed the motion for the tax cut, said Edward Kutmus, the college's general counsel, "This is a very significant issue for the college."

The tax reduction that has been proposed would give a person with $50,000 in retirement income a $4 annual benefit, Fisher said. "The 10 percent of elderly income earners would receive 57 percent of the tax cut," he said. The income-tax proposal is more complex. It would increase the mortgage tax, temporarily increase the sales tax, temporarily reduce property taxes on the school buildings, Fisher said. It would cut approximatly $310 million in income taxes. Alan Johnson's description of Zeta Tau Alpha is an accurate depiction of the architecture of the renowned Alpha Tau Omega, designed by Charles F. Flint in 1907, was striking because, even today, the purpose of the office building was primarily to be an inspiration to other, less fortunate, smaller fraternity organizations. It is still a beautiful example of presidential architecture, and it is a testament to the quality of leadership in the university.

A two-member team of investigators from the University of California, San Francisco, has found a way to use the insulin inside the body to improve its efficiency. The team, led by Dr. John W. Allison, used an insulin-releasing device that is implanted under the skin and connected to a small computer. The device is programmed to release insulin at specific times, based on the patient's blood glucose levels. The results of the study, published in the journal Diabetes Care, showed that the device was effective in reducing the frequency of hypoglycemic episodes and improving glucose control.

In my opinion, what is the best way for the state of Iowa to revitalize its economy?

In my opinion, the best way for the state of Iowa to revitalize its economy is to focus on developing a diversified economy that includes agriculture, manufacturing, and technology. Iowa has a strong agriculture sector, which is the backbone of its economy, but the state also has a strong manufacturing sector and a growing technology sector. By investing in these areas, Iowa can create jobs and attract new businesses.

Mike Guidich, Des Moines

It's a great question, and I think it's important to consider the different approaches that different states have taken. In Iowa, we have a strong commitment to education and workforce development, which I believe is critical to long-term economic growth. We also have a strong focus on infrastructure and transportation, which is important for attracting new businesses and retaining existing ones.

Sarah Van, Iowa City

I agree with your point about education and workforce development. I think it's crucial that we have a well-educated and skilled workforce to compete in the global economy. I also think it's important to have a strong infrastructure and transportation system to support economic growth.

Bob Peterson, Ankeny

It's a complex issue, and there are no easy answers. In my opinion, the best way to revitalize Iowa's economy is to focus on a mix of approaches, including education, workforce development, infrastructure, and transportation.

John Smith, Cedar Rapids

I think it's important to consider the unique strengths of Iowa and build on those strengths. In my opinion, Iowa has a strong agriculture sector, which is a key part of its economy. By investing in agriculture and supporting local farmers, Iowa can continue to be a leader in this sector.

Mary Brown, Iowa City

Bush tries to straddle 2 sides in AIDS debate

BY AMY GOLDSTEIN AND JULIET EILPERIN

WASHINGTON — As the House prepares to vote Thursday on a bill to provide $26 billion over 5 years to fight HIV in Africa, the administration, President Bush and health experts are struggling to make the proposal more palatable politically. The White House and its conservative allies fear it could unleash an international effort to provide antiretroviral drugs for all, a program that somedrawns concern.

But the White House, which prepared the ambitious initiative, hopes the Bush administration, which was on the front lines of the international fight against HIV, is prepared to take action to prevent a potential collapse of the global system. America's role in the effort is also crucial to the administration's efforts to protect the country from another terrorist attack.

The five-year plan, which would be modeled after the Bush administration's efforts to provide antiretroviral drugs for all, has been challenged by the Bush administration, which has been criticized for its failure to do enough to prevent a potential collapse of the global system. America's role in the effort is also crucial to the administration's efforts to protect the country from another terrorist attack.

Moving U.S. troops eases sore point for Saudi government

BY VERNON LOEB

WASHINGTON — The U.S. military is drawing a line in the sand at the border of Saudi Arabia, a move that may ease a sore point for the Saudi government and help it avoid a potential confrontation with the United States.

Saudi Arabia has been a key ally of the United States in the war on terrorism, and its government has been eager to see U.S. troops stationed there. But the Saudis are concerned about the potential for a military conflict with Iran, and they have been seeking ways to reduce their dependence on U.S. forces.

The move to station U.S. troops in the kingdom is unlikely to change the Saudis' concerns about Iran, but it may give them some breathing room to negotiate with the United States on other issues.

The Saudis are unlikely to be satisfied with the current deployment of U.S. forces in their country, but they are likely to be encouraged by the fact that the United States is taking a more active role in the region. The Saudis may also view the deployment as a sign of the United States' commitment to regional stability.

The move to station U.S. troops in the kingdom may also be a signal to other countries in the region that the United States is willing to take a more active role in the region. The Saudis may also view the deployment as a sign of the United States' commitment to regional stability.

Iowa State players back Eustachy after scandal

Eustachy’s behavior was a hot topic on radio talk shows, both locally and nationally. The Daily Iowan, "I’m behind coach Eustachy 100 percent, as I know he would do for me and every other player on our team," said senior left fielder Jake Huse when the Daily Iowan put the story to the players Thursday night. The recruits said they were all behind Eustachy and that’s when we’re the team effort.

Iowa State baseball players went to the Big Ten offices in Chicago on Tuesday to present a petition to the conference office asking the Iowa State players to be reinstated by coach Larry Eustachy.

The players also apologized by telephone for being late, one player said.

Iowa State officials are not suspending disciplinary action against Eustachy, who is under contract through the 2010-11 season and is paid more than $1 million a year, but nothing has been decided.

Vroman said the players told university President Gregory Geoffroy and Athletic Director Bruce Van De Velde that they supported Eustachy and wanted him back, but nothing has been decided.

"Basically, he's a good man, he's a good coach," said Vroman, who was charged with public intoxication last month. "He always looked out for me and has been there for me. He's a good honest man. I just don't get it. Why would he do this to them?"

Vroman said the photo "looks bad but it doesn't look like a man who's hurt by what he did, or if he's trying to get himself out of it."

Eustachy, 41, is holding a one-car lead in the coaching carousel at an apartment party in Colon­bus, Ohio, on Sunday night. He was fired last January.

Good, bad, and ugly from NFL draft

Another NFL draft is in the books, and some teams have the opportunity to build a nucleus of good, young players. However, the one thing that's certain is that Larry Eustachy and college kids from a rural school, like our own, can't just make mistakes. We're the fans for this year's draft squad who are "The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly.""The Bridge of Madison County doesn't hold. Hard to draft Eustachy again after he's had another substance abuse problem," said Vroman.

On Wednesday, Dec. 12, Iowa's coach Scott Broghamer and seven players were suspended for the Big Ten championships. They had a season-long suspension of six games.

By Kelly Beaton, The Daily Iowan

The Hawkeye players have had some wins and losses of late.

After all has essentially become a two-week interna­tional trip, Iowa City (19-21) will finish a non-conference stretch that included eight games in 12 days. The Hawkeyes finished the season 6-0, including a weekend sweep of Michigan State.

"It's been a season-long suspension of six games. They're really just trying to get their heads together and focus on what we have to do," said senior catcher Jose Abreu.

Behind him were Iowa's Ben Kaufman and Andrew Wick, both of whom have been big contributors for the Hawkeyes. They not only put on a show but also battled for the team.

Iowa coach Scott Broghamer has the games with intermediate real NFL draft order a secret as usual. He will have a starting lineup in place for the Big Ten championship game.

"It's an exciting game, obviously," said Vroman. "I'd like to see what he's thinking but it's hard to do that."
Hawkeyes stellar in singles play

BY KATIE LOW

A split personality pervaded the women's tennis team this year. Wardlaw said. The Hawkeyes were quite strong in singles, winning four of the singles positions in nine of their Big Ten duals. They also split on 1, 2, 3, or 3 of the conference duals.

"I don't think we have a lot of players where styles of play are really suited to singles," said Wardlaw. "Our team has an abundance of players who have good doubles." The team was still solid, Wardlaw said. The Hawkeyes finished with an overall record of 11-4 on the season, which Wardlaw attributed to the versatility of the Hawkeyes. The team had a 10-3 dual record this season. Wardlaw said he plans on attacking this season with an even more balanced team.

I thought we competed well and played as a team.

Paul Wardlaw, Iowa women's tennis coach

"I think we improved throughout the year and probably played our best tennis the last three to four weeks," he said. "I was still very proud of the way we played the team game.

The Hawkeyes will use the summer to play in tournaments and to improve their strength with conditioning programs. Wardlaw said he expects four to five new players to join the team in the fall and he is hoping they can help Iowa become a more balanced team.

"I expect we will be really solid with four in terms of our returners," he said. "We also have some very good doubles players coming in, which, combined with the returning players, will make this year will be helpful.

Iowa's doubles teams will be very strong this year."

THE LAKERS' grasp on the NBA crown is tenuous these days like Larry Eustachy's Montana after an all-night binge. That half of the Lakers playing are extremely Edouard, but the other half is in their material possession. Power forward Robert Horry is 32, Brian Shaw's 37, and possibly new coach, 33-year-old Bob Fox, will miss the rest of the postseason after tearing a tendon in his left foot. Fox's leadership and playoff experience will be missed.

The rest of the Lakers roster has started to recover a bit. A MALNAD unit, with Kobe Bryant being one of the new men. Bryant's off season, the Lakers, led by the rapidly rising Shaquille O'Neal and Books of the West, are looking like a team that can win it all.

The Lakers, minus Fox, have been struggling in doubles, but for some teams, Phil Jackson, has managed to get the Lake's lead in doubles. The result? A 20-win point spread against the Lakers that far to the series.

Call it a gift, because the Lakers are on a three-game win streak in the playoffs, the game to be played.

The Indians (7-19) are off to their first seven-game winless streak since June 27-July 24, when they lost six straight.

Brandon Vargas (0-3) took full advantage of their early lead, allowing three homers for his third loss in four starts.

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Eddie Giacchino, 16, skated by skating in the 1,860-meter (2,000-meter) heat in the men’s 2003 World Junior Championship, the first World Junior Championship in which he has skated in the 1,860-meter heat.

The Hurricanes scored their first goal of the season when Martin St. Louis scored in the second period. St. Louis deflected a shot by goalie Dwayne Roloson in the third period.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Richard Jefferson had 17 points and a career-high 10 rebounds, and the New Jersey Nets made 11-13 free throws in the final 2:37 to beat the Dallas Mavericks 95-92, for a 2-2 lead in their first-round series.

Jimmy Kud (15) added 16 points, and Kerry Kittles had 15 points in the defense's first game against the Mavericks.

The Nets took control of a low-scoring series with Wednesday's triumph in the opener by winning the second half.

With practice, Couples finds groove on PGA tour in three years

BY DOUG FERGUSON

Fred Couples rediscovered his playing form. He had won six times since 1998, including a title at the TPC at Pebble Beach, but his game had lapsed since playing with Butch Harmon at his side.

It ended Sunday after a six-stroke victory at the Pebble Beach Pro-Am, which his manager called one of the most satisfying victories of his career. "It feels totally different," Couples said. "I've thought about winning since I was 10 years old."

Couples' victory moved him to No. 3 in the world and to No. 2 in the FedEx Cup standings, which assures him of a spot in the Tour Championship and an $11 million bonus.

"I know how hard it is to win," Couples said. "I've been working hard, and I think it's finally paid off."

In his victory speech, Couples noted the key to a successful career.

"It's not about the wins," Couples said. "It's the effort and the improvements."
Hawkeyes continue winning

Iowa jumped out to an early 3-0 lead in the bottom of the first when Rodney Combs hit a two-run double.Part of the reason Iowa won was because Bruce Braley decided to use a two-man lineup in the No. 3 and fourth holes, and Braley scored the bases with a two-run single to center.
